690 Enroll In Both Delaware Colleges

Division Of Registration Fairly Even; Freshman Week Ends With Reception At Knoll

The total enrollment at Delaware University, this year, is 690, with the members fairly evenly divided between Delaware College and the Women's College.

Freshman Week at the University ended Sunday evening. The students attended services in the various local churches on Sunday morning. At Wolf Hall Sunday afternoon Dr. Hullihen addressed the freshmen of both colleges and their parents on "The Aims and Purposes of a College Education." Dean Dutton and Dean Robinson gave short talks. Three pastors of three local churches, Dr. Mathews, Dr. Hallman, and Reverend D. W. Jacobs, were introduced and spoke words of welcome to the young people, inviting them to attend the church services.

Immediately following the meeting in Wolf Hall, President and Mrs. Hullihen received the faculty, the freshmen and the parents who had come for Parents' Day, at "The Knoll." Receiving with Dr. and Mrs. Hullihen were: Dean Dutton, Dean Robinson, and Dean McCue.

In the evening, vesper services were held in the Hilarium at Women's College, led by Miss Christine Baker, president of the college Y. W. C. A. organization. Miss Rietta Emerson, assistant to the pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Wilmington, addressed the meeting. Professor Matthews sang and Miss Eleanor Edge played.

Upper classesmen registered on Monday. Classes started Tuesday morning at eight o'clock. A recess will be taken this afternoon for Convocation Exercises in front of Old College.

Five repeating freshmen have returned to the Women's College this year; 121 new students, 11 with admission.

JOIN ECONOMICS STAFF

Dr. Claude L. Benner, head of the economics department of the University of Delaware, has had two new members added to his staff. Mr. C. R. H. Foster, who replaces Mr. Ewing, will teach business law and accounting. He comes from the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. Mr. M. M. Dougherty, from Harvard University, will do research work in rural taxation in Delaware. Mr. Dougherty was formerly assistant professor of agricultural economics at Texas State University.

Speed Traps

Many motorists, who have regarded 25 miles an hour limit notices in Marshallton, Elspere, Stanton, Newport and other towns in this vicinity, as mere decorations, have in the last week or so found to their discomfiture that the instructions are not to be taken lightly. Two constables in plain clothes have been patrolling the highways through these towns, reaping a large crop of speeders. As there is nothing to distinguish these minions of the law from any other drivers on the road, even the most wary speeders have fallen victim. The constables are still operating and it is prudent to stay within the proscribed limits.

Poultry Worms Big Problem In Delaware

H. S. Palmer Discusses Prevention Of Infestation; Egg Record Report; Artificial Lighting

Mr. H. S. Palmer, extension poultryman at the University of Delaware, in his report for the month of September, takes up the subject of poultry worms, which have been playing havoc with poultry in this State. Mr. Palmer, in his discussion, stresses the point of prevention rather than cure as the best means of eradicating worms, and gives preventative methods suggested by Frank Hare, of the State Board of Agriculture.

One hundred and twenty-two farms in the Delaware Farm Egg Record Club reported for the month of August; the averages being slightly lower than for July. The average number of eggs laid per bird, during September, for pullets was 12.5; for hens, 13; and for birds in mixed flocks, 13. The best flock average for the month was made by a mixed flock of 88 birds, which had an average per bird of 24.7 eggs.

Mr. Palmer's report on worms is as follows:

Poultry Worms

Many poultrymen in Delaware reporting trouble with worm infestation. Worms have been increasing for several years, and will continue to increase until farmers realize their danger and learn how to prevent them.

The two kinds of worms that do the most damage to poultry are round worms and tape worms. Round worms swim around loose in the birds' intestines and eat the food that was intended for the bird. Tape worms attach themselves to the walls of the intestines and suck the blood of the bird. Both kinds of worms also have a poisoning effect upon the infested bird.

Round worms and tape worms are not spread from one bird to another in the same way. Round worms lay tiny eggs in the intestines of the infested bird. These worm eggs pass out of the bird with the droppings. When other birds take food or water that is contaminated with the worm eggs, they also become infested with worms.

Tape worms are made in segments or links, like the links of a chain. The segments on the large end of the worm are filled with worm eggs and when the eggs are ripe the entire segment breaks off with the eggs in it, and passes out of the birds' intestines with the droppings. Other birds will not become infested with tape worms by eating food contaminated with these droppings. First, these tape worm eggs must be eaten by some other being known as the "intermediate host." The most common "intermediate host" for the chicken tape

STOP RAILROAD SERVICE

Passenger service on the Delaware City Railroad was discontinued on September 24. The freight service will be continued.

The mail to the Cooch's Bridge post office is being sent in a locked pouch by the rural mail-carrier once a day. There is a movement for a second daily delivery being agitated. While the Cooch office is on the line of the rural carriers, it is thought that it will not be abolished, as the policy of the post office department seems to be in favor of retaining the long-established offices and there is seldom drastic action in such matters.

Audition of Local Singers

The first hearing of the young voices which were entered in the local contest of the Atwater-Kent Radio Foundation was held last Saturday afternoon in the New Century Club auditorium. Eleven persons appeared before the committee and nine entered the contest. From that number six were selected for the radio test, which is deemed by the committee to be the only fair way of judging for the State contest, as all further hearings will be held over the radio.

As there is no radio station in Wilmington, arrangements have been made by the several committees at Wilmington, Newark and Dover for a hearing at Strawbridge and Clothier's in Philadelphia next Monday or Tuesday. At that hearing a committee of ten, six from the Wilmington committee and the Wilmington Music Association, two from the Newark committee and two from Dover, will select the young man and young woman from each of the three towns who shall enter the State contest. So far these three towns are the only ones organized, but it is thought that others will enter in the next week.

The young people who were selected by the committee last Saturday were: Misses Rosalie Steel and Louise Mathews; Messrs. Kennedy Fell, Wesley Dempsey and Grover G. Henderson, all of Newark, and Miss Edna Murray, of Milltown.

Peninsula Editors To Support Del-Mar-Va

Resolve That Eastern Shore Association's Work Should Continue; Guests Of Dr. Grier

Twenty-five publishers and editors of newspapers on the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula pledged their support to the continuance of the work of the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association, at a dinner given by Dr. G. Layton Grier, at the Wicomico Hotel, Salisbury, Md., Saturday night. This dinner conference was held as a part of the referendum that the Association is holding to discover the true attitude of the public toward its work. It was the resolution of the assembled editors that the Association was performing a much needed and valuable function, and that it would be a severe loss to the Peninsula as a whole if the work were interrupted or discontinued.

Their opinions as to the worth of the association and the wisdom of continuing it in existence were voiced in a set of resolutions prepared by a committee and unanimously adopted by the entire body. These resolutions set forth that the accomplishments of the Del-Mar-Va Association in the past justified its existence and continuance, stated their firm belief that the benefits which have accrued to the Peninsula have shown the association's usefulness and that failure of continued financial support would result in calamity to the business, agricultural and industrial interests of the territory which it served.

The resolutions were drawn by A. O. H. Grier, editor of Every Evening, and were presented by a committee which included, besides Mr. Grier, Warren L. Brooks, Easton, chairman; Edward H. Brown, Jr., Centerville, Md.; Lorrie C. Quinn, Crisfield, Md.; and C. Watson Webb, Cambridge.

Out of the 25 publishers and editors present, there were six from Delaware. They included: Colonel Theodore Townsend and G. Marshall Townsend, of Milford; Robert Brock, Laurel; H. C. McSherry, of Dover, and J. D. Hastings, of Seaford.

SPEEDERS FINED

On Saturday, Private Boyer of the State Highway Police brought before Magistrate Thompson, one George S. Seipnell, of Pennsylvania, charging him with reckless operation of an automobile. The fine was $25 and costs.

On Monday County Highway Officer Ellwood Leach led a parade of three cars to Magistrate Thompson's office. He had driven his motorcycle at 68 miles an hour to overtake them on the Lincoln Highway. The following drivers paid fines of $25 and costs: Robert Wilson, Drexel Hill, Pa.; Rowland Baulbain, Philadelphia; Bernard Cannon, Philadelphia.

Newark Dahlia Show To Be Held Next Week

Century Club Gives Room For Two-Day Exhibition; A. D. Cobb Chairman

Newark is to have another Dahlia Show. This is good news to those who remember the first show held in 1924 and who were amazed at the riot of color and beauty which came from Newark's yards and gardens.

Realization of the hopes of local growers for another show has been made possible through the generosity of the board of directors of the Newark New Century Club, who this week offered the use of their club room for two days and evenings for the show.

Preliminary arrangements for the staging of the show are in the hands of A. D. Cobb, who has announced that after consulting with several growers, Wednesday, October 5th, and Thursday, October 6th, have been selected as the dates.

All dahlia growers of Newark and vicinity are invited to enter their blooms. No prizes will be awarded but a local committee of judges will award first, second and third place certificates of merit, in the various classes.

Bottles will be provided for entries of single blooms, but exhibitors must furnish jars or vases for vase entries. Tin cans or other unsightly containers will not be acceptable.

Exhibits will be received from 8:30 a. m. until 3:00 p. m. Wednesday, October 5th, and may not be removed until 9:00 p. m. Thursday, October 6th.

The show will be open to the public from 4:00 p. m. to 9:00 p. m. Wednesday, and from 10:00 a. m. to 9:00 p. m. Thursday.

While the show is being arranged primarily for dahlia growers who are interested in comparing their favorite blooms, there will also be a class for vases of other flowers for the benefit of others who do not grow dahlias. (Continued on Page 5.)

Honor James McGlotten

James H. McGlotten, a resident of the Red Men's Home, was singularly honored on Monday night when five carloads of people arrived from Wilmington to give him a party in honor of his eighty-second birthday, which he passed on September 21.

The party was a complete surprise to Mr. McGlotten, who was reading before the open fire when the expedition drove up; having among it prominent members of the Great Council of the State of Delaware. Among those in the party were Great Sachem Robert G. Cantler and Mrs. Cantler, Great Chief of Records Edward McIntire and Mrs. McIntire, Past Great Sachem James Faulkner and Mrs. Faulkner, Deputy Pocahontas, Mr. and Mrs. John Otley, John Winters, Harvey Presthoffer, Mrs. Margaret Presthoffer, Miss Margaret Presthoffer, Mr. and Mrs. C. Page, Miss Annie McLain, Miss Grace W. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hansbury, Mrs. Estelle Barton, Will R. Maris, and Mrs. Charles Wollaston.

On his birthday, Mr. McGlotten received a number of thoughtful remembrances from the Council of Newark.

AUTOMOBILE BURNS

The Aetna Fire Company was called Monday morning, about 6:30, to extinguish a fire which ruined a Nash sedan belonging to William Reed, of South Chapel street.

Mr. Reed had started the motor and left it running in the garage to warm up while he finished his breakfast. When he went back to the garage he found the car ablaze. He pushed it from the garage and called the fire company. The firemen put out the fire, but the car was burned beyond repair. It was covered by insurance.

PRODUCTION POULTRY SHOW

The first Production Poultry Show ever held in this State will be held on Friday and Saturday of this week at Milford. The show is being conducted jointly by the Delaware State Poultry Association and the Milford Grange to give the breeders of layers a chance to show their birds, and the farmers an opportunity to see where they can get the best eggs and breeding stock.

Famous Jockey To Train Horses Here

The famous "Speck" Crawford, who a few weeks ago, at Belmont Park, piloted "Jolly Roger" to victory in the Grand National is expected in Newark some time this Fall to school jumpers for the training stable at the Smith Farm. The Grand National is the biggest steeplechase event held in the United States, and Crawford is the outstanding rider in this type of racing, which requires more nerve than any other kind of riding.

Mr. William Connor, superintendent and trainer at the Smith Farm, disclosed plans for a large increase of the training facilities at the establishment. "Bob" Smith, owner of the farm, and Crawford were here Sunday to discuss building a stable to accommodate 40 head and selected a site for the proposed building, but a number of jumpers are expected here for schooling before work is started on the new barn.

Saturday, Mr. Connor received a carload of likely yearlings to be broken and trained for flat racing. He has also a number of star two and three year old performers, who have been sent to the farm to be put back into shape after a strenuous season on the track.

Premier Honors To Delaware At Vail

Delaware 4-H Takes Highest Judging Honors; Lauded By Press

The members of the 4-H Club group which represented Delaware at Camp Vail at the Eastern States Exposition last week returned home, highly elated over the fact that, for the first time, two of their number captured highest honors in the annual poultry judging contests held in connection with the camp.

It has been customary for the Delaware 4-H Club members to win highest honors in judging at Camp Vail, but they never seemed to be able to attain the coveted first place in the poultry judging contest. This year, however, Robert Kinder, of Bridgeville, and Gooden Pepper, of Seaford, turned the trick and ranked first and second in the contest, and were the only two members of the poultry division to receive the coveted first place ribbons of merit.

The importance of winning this event lies in the fact that these boys were competing against club members who represented Massachusetts and Connecticut and other states who have been winners in the 4-H poultry judging contest at the great Marston Square Garden Poultry Show at New York City each year.

Kinder and Pepper were coached by H. S. Palmer, Poultry Extension Specialist of the University of Delaware, and Miss Anne D. Moore, County Club Agent of Sussex County. (Continued on Page 9.)

STANTON CHURCH TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

The Stanton Methodist Episcopal Church will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary next Sunday. There will be an all-day service and dinner and supper will be served. There will also be special services every evening next week and all-day services on October 9th. A former pastor of the church will preach, also Reverend Louhoff, who has been with the church for five years. There will be a parade of the Sunday School, led by the Cranston Heights Band. Mr. Clymer and his choir from West Church, Wilmington, will render special music.

HAND TORN IN CUTTER

James Robinson, an employee of the Continental Fibre Company, suffered severe laceration of the right hand, while working on a paper cutter in the company's plant this morning. The cutter tore through the back of his hand, severing a number of tendons. After being treated by Dr. Wallace Johnson, he was sent to the Homeopathic Hospital, Wilmington, in the Newark ambulance. William Shakespeare and Alfred Ewing took him in.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY MEETING

The Woman's Auxiliary of St. Thomas' Church will meet on Wednesday afternoon, October 5, at two-thirty at the home of Mrs. Joseph Cristodora, on Park Place.

Newark Schools To Run As Model City

Students To Have Large Place In School Government; Cafeteria Growing; State Officials Visit

Every teacher in the Newark School system is devoting fifteen minutes a day to teaching the fundamentals of student participation in school government. The idea was introduced to the Newark Schools last year by Superintendent Ira S. Brinser, and he expects to have it working in full force this semester.

In the outline of the plan, the student government is comparable to a town or city governing body, and bears the same relation to the general organization of the school staff as a town government bears to that of the State.

The scholars are now learning the organization and purposes of the plan, and the functions of the individual and the various groups as related to the whole. They are being instructed in the duties and responsibilities of the officers and committees. As soon as they are fully grounded in the idea it will be put into working effect, and the Newark Schools will be operated as a model civic enterprise.

The Newark Schools were paid an official visit this morning by a number of State and County education officials. Those in the party were:

Mr. John Shilling, Assistant State Superintendent of Education in charge of high schools; Mr. Harry P. King, Assistant State Superintendent, in charge of elementary schools; Miss Marion Breck, State Director of Home Economics; Miss Ellen Holly, Rural Supervisor for New Castle County; Miss Phyllis Mason, Rural Supervisor for New Castle County, and Major P. S. Prince, Field Agent for the D. I. A. A. The party are attending the Convocation exercises at the University this afternoon.

The school cafeteria, under direction of Miss Frances McCoy, teacher of home economics, is growing rapidly in its service, serving regularly, over 350 daily.

New Castle Woman Chosen Grand Chief At Newark Meeting; Other Officers Elected

At the final session of the two-day annual convention of the Grand Temple, Pythian Sisters for the Domain of Delaware, Mrs. Sophrona Farmer Hewlett, of New Castle, was elected Grand Chief of the order for the State of Delaware. This, the third annual session, was held in the New Century Club, Newark. The election of Mrs. Hewlett was a popular one. She was Grand Senior of the lodge for the year just ending.

The other officers elected were as follows: Past grand chief, Mrs. Mabel Hill, of Newark; grand senior, Mrs. Edith McLean, of Wilmington; grand junior, Mrs. Ella Vincent, of Delmar; grand manager, Miss Lottie Jolls, of Middletown; grand protector, Mrs. Ida Cheffins, of Wilmington; grand guard, Mrs. Ella Toppin, of New Castle; grand supreme representative, Mrs. Mae Simpson, of Wilmington; grand trustee for three years (Continued on Page 8.)

U. OF D. TO HAVE GLEE CLUB

If present plans mature, Delaware College, University of Delaware, will have a glee club this year. George Magruder Berry, Jr., of the English Department of the University, will direct the movement and hopes to begin the voice trials next week.

Professor Berry is a graduate of Syracuse University and has done graduate work at Harvard. He has had considerable experience in chorus and church choir work and brings a great deal of enthusiasm here to undertake the new work.

DR. JOHNSON ON VACATION

Dr. Wallace Johnson will leave Saturday morning for a vacation, which will include a motor trip to his old home in Michigan. Dr. Johnson will be away about eighteen days.

Worm is the house fly. After the house fly eats the tape worm eggs, the egg goes through another "ripening" process, and then when the chicken eats the fly the worm egg hatches in the chicken's intestines and grows into a tape worm. Worms are not carried from the laying hen to the young chicks through the hen's egg.

Preventing Worms

Poultrymen had better spend their money and efforts on prevention rather than on cures. It is difficult to make a perfect job of expelling worms from infested birds. Also, a bird that has been badly infested with worms is likely to have its intestines so permanently injured that it will never completely recover.

Round worms can be prevented by keeping the birds from taking food or water containing worm eggs. Keep the feed and water clean. If you have had trouble with round worm in your young stock this year, do not grow your young birds on the same ground for at least two years.

Tape worms are more difficult to prevent because they are carried by house flies. Growing chicks on new ground will not prevent tape worms if flies come from a nearby house or yard that is infested with tape worms.

Our problem, then, is to get rid of the flies. This can be done by not allowing any manure of any kind to remain on the farm in condition for flies to breed in it. Flies cannot breed in manure if it is kept perfectly dry.

Poultry manure can be kept dry by mixing with it some raw rock phosphate and keeping it under cover. Cow and horse stables must be cleaned out in the spring and kept clean all summer. Flies from your neighbor may be the cause of your trouble.

Some folks are growing their young birds under wire screen to keep flies away from them. This has prevented tape worms, but has many disadvantages.

Birds that are badly infested with worms soon become pale and thin. The poisons secreted by the worms cause the birds to become blind and to loose the use of their legs.

Treatment for Worms

Prevention is better, but folks who have birds infested with worms are interested in a cure. There are many worm remedies on the market but unfortunately many of these will not do what they claim to do. Dr. Frank Hare, who is employed by the State Board of Agriculture to aid the poultrymen of Delaware in preventing and treating poultry diseases and parasites, recommends the following treatment for worms. However, Dr. Hare emphatically states that prevention rather than cures is the final solution of the worm problem.

Round worms: Place 2 pounds of tobacco dust in each 100 pounds of mash. Use tobacco dust that has a guaranteed analysis of 1 1/2 per cent nicotine. Continue this treatment for three weeks. Then give a dose of epsom salts at the rate of 1 pound of salts to every 400 pounds of birds. Keep birds confined during the action of the salts. Clean the house thoroughly and turn birds in new yard or keep confined to house. If birds are allowed out on old yards they will soon be reinfested with worms.

Tape worms: Flock treatments are not usually successful in removing tape worms. Heavy doses of strong drugs are necessary to break the tape worm's hold on the bird's intestine. In order that each bird get the proper dose it is almost necessary to treat each bird separately. Kamala seems to be the most convenient, economical and effective drug for treating tape worms. Kamala is given to the birds in a little pill or capsules which are forced down the birds' throat into the crop. One capsule to each bird. Another remedy that appears to be giving good results is an Iodine preparation. This must be given in a liquid form by means of a syringe. It is much more expensive and more difficult to administer than the Kamala.

Poultrymen who suspect their birds to have worms should open a sick bird and look for the worms by splitting the intestines from one end to the other. If worms are found write to Dr. Frank Hare, Poultry Disease Specialist, State Board of Agriculture, Dover, Delaware, and ask him for full particulars about buying and administering the Kamala or Iodine treatments. If necessary you may send one of your birds for him to examine. He makes no charge for this service.

Artificial Light

Do artificial lights in a chicken house make the hens lay more eggs? This is the question that a bulletin by A. E. Tomhave and C. W. Mumford just published by the Delaware Experiment Station attempts to answer. They show that by shifting the peak of egg production from the late winter and the spring months to the early fall and winter months, results in getting a greater production of eggs at a time of the year when egg prices are highest. These conclusions are based on the results of three years of experimental work. Some of the conclusions reached by Messrs. Tomhave and Mumford are as follows:

1. Artificial light in the poultry house results in an increased egg production.

2. Artificial lights aid in making the curve of egg production approach more nearly the price curve during the fall and early winter than it does when no artificial lights are used.

3. Lights were of no value in stimulating egg production after March first.

4. Eggs can be produced more economically under electric lights during the winter months than they can under natural conditions.

5. When hens are given a 12 to 14 hour day by the use of artificial light they do not suffer poor health by reason of the lengthened day.

6. Proper relation of lights is an important point in efficient production.

7. Artificial lights, properly installed and managed, are a profitable investment for the poultryman.

The bulletin is free to all Delaware poultrymen and may be obtained upon request.

The deceased was a resident of Elkton for a number of years, previous to removing to Wilmington, where she had lived for about six years, before removing to Stanton. She and her husband, George W. Bedwell, who is employed at the Pusey and Jones Company, had been looking forward to the building of their own home, and had already purchased ground for that purpose. Mrs. Bedwell was a member of Wynema Council, No. 10, D. of P., and Lady Miller Lodge, No. 6, Shepherds of Bethlehem. The funeral was conducted at the home of her son, John A. Bedwell, 527 North Grant avenue, Wilmington, Tuesday afternoon, at 1 o'clock. Rev. Ralph C. Jones, pastor of Silverbrook M. E. Church, Wilmington, of which Mrs. Bedwell was a member, officiated. Interment was made in the Elkton cemetery. Besides her husband and son, Mrs. Bedwell leaves another son, George S. Bedwell, of Elkton. The Roads Commission will construct the road according to the State specifications. A continuous highway will be built, connecting the town of Port Deposit with the newly constructed road over the dam breast, which will give a continuous highway system without a break to Pennsylvania and Harford county.

A Daring Diamond Story

This is a story about diamonds, black diamonds, which gives daring facts that are worth money to every householder who burns coal. It was compiled and written by the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, which, since 1820, has mined and sold the famous "Old Company's Lehigh" anthracite coal.

TWO KINDS OF COAL

You can buy to-day in your city two different grades of Anthracite coal—one of the "Freeburning" grade; the other the "Lehigh" grade.

The Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company has been mining and shipping its celebrated "Old Company's Lehigh" since 1820—it is the original, the genuine, the best "Lehigh coal" produced in the world, and we hope to show to your satisfaction a few of its many advantages over any other grade of Anthracite mined, and just how you can save money and get complete satisfaction by using only "Old Company's Lehigh."

THE EVIDENCE

We claim for "Old Company's Lehigh" the following advantages:

FIRST—It will, ton for ton, last longer than any other Anthracite coal. SECOND—It will, ton for ton, give out more heat than any other Anthracite coal. THIRD—It will, ton for ton, leave less ash, that is, burn up more completely, than any other coal. FOURTH—It will, ton for ton, cause less clinkering and grate troubles than any other coal.

The reason it will last longer than other Anthracite is the acknowledged fact that "Old Company's Lehigh" is the heaviest and most dense coal in the world. The weight per cubic foot in the solid is over 100 lbs. as against 90 lbs. for "Freeburning" coal. Hence, it does not burn up quickly, like "Freeburning" coal, and you are able to get the best and most economical results.

The reason it will give more heat is the acknowledged fact that "Old Company's Lehigh" contains a greater amount of Fixed Carbon—the ingredient in coal which stands for efficient heat. This Fixed Carbon is given by the State authorities as from 4 per cent. to 6 per cent. higher in "Old Company's Lehigh" than in other Anthracite.

The reason it will leave less refuse is the fact that, due to density and hardness of "Old Company's Lehigh" it does not split up under the action of heat, as does "Freeburning" coal. With the latter, all of this coal which breaks off goes through the grate into the refuse and is lost as a heat producer.

The reason it will cause less clinkering is the fact that the "Freeburning" coals contain more sulphur and iron than "Old Company's Lehigh," and it is this sulphur and iron which cause clinkering.

To demonstrate clearly that these claims are true, The Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company has had made, in the following manner, exhaustive tests of "Old Company's Lehigh" coal against "Freeburning" coal from all of the other regions and Anthracite companies:

Two stoves, alike in size, shape and every particular, were set up two feet apart; the stovepipe connections were made alike. The fires, therefore, in each stove were under exactly the same conditions. One stove in each test was charged with 6 lbs. of wood, and 50 lbs. of "Old Company's Lehigh." The other stove was charged with 6 lbs. of wood and 50 lbs. of a "Freeburning" coal. When both stoves had been filled, their contents were lighted at the same instant. Full draft was put on and the fires allowed to burn until they went out of their own accord, the stoves and drafts not being touched during combustion. Following are the average results obtained in all tests of "Old Company's Lehigh" against every grade and brand of "Freeburning" coal:

THE PROOF

AVERAGE TIME FIRE LASTED	WEIGHT OF UNBURNED COAL IN REFUSE
"Old Company's Lehigh"—6 hrs. 43 min.	"Old Company's Lehigh"—4 lbs. 8 ozs.
"Freeburning" Anthracites—5 " 46 "	"Freeburning" Anthracites—6 " 4 "
"Freeburning" coals show only 85 per cent. of the efficiency and lasting power of "Old Company's Lehigh."	The unburned coal in your ashes does you no possible good. Here the "Freeburning" coals show 40 per cent. more loss than "Old Company's Lehigh" in this manner.
AVERAGE TIME STOVES KEPT RED HOT	AMOUNT OF CLINKER
"Old Company's Lehigh"—3 hrs. 53 min.	"Old Company's Lehigh"—1 lb. 4 ozs.
"Freeburning" Anthracites—3 " 29 "	"Freeburning" Anthracites—2 lbs. 9 "
"Freeburning" coals here show only 90 per cent. of the heating qualities of "Old Company's Lehigh."	Here "Freeburning" Anthracites show over twice the amount of objectionable clinkers which "Old Company's Lehigh" shows.
TOTAL AMOUNT OF ASH FROM FIRES	KINDLING QUALITIES
"Old Company's Lehigh"—10 lbs. 5 ozs.	Time taken for stove to become red hot:
"Freeburning" Anthracites—12 " 10 "	"Old Company's Lehigh"—19 minutes.
"Freeburning" Anthracites show here over 20 per cent. more impurities than "Old Company's Lehigh."	"Freeburning" Anthracites—45 minutes.
	"Freeburning" shows that it will kindle only about four minutes ahead of "Old Company's Lehigh."

The above facts carefully and fairly obtained, show conclusively that "Old Company's Lehigh" Anthracite coal will enable you to economize in your coal bill, to get more satisfaction, and to obtain better results in your heater or your cook stove.

SEPTEMBER 28, 1927

Good News and Bad News

A strange paradox was emphasized recently by Lady Astor in an address before some educationists in London. She first called to the attention of her hearers the fact that a generation or so ago youth was left more or less free to draw its own conclusions regarding many of the things that were happening around it. Today, however, owing to the inescapable newspaper placards, the thought is being impressed upon consciousness that, as she put it, "the only good news is bad news."

This extraordinary state of affairs is unfortunately so glaring that none can deny it. Indeed, in commenting upon Lady Astor's statement the Teachers World said: "We wish we could regard Lady Astor's pungent remark as belonging to that class of bon mot which depends for its effect upon exaggeration. We cannot." It added:

"Scarcely a day passes but children are led by their eyes to believe that the most important news of the day is the saddest, the seamiest, or the most gruesome happening recorded. Possibly it may be said of the reading public as of the theatre-going public, that it gets the fare it deserves, that the papers, like the plays, merely supply a known demand. There is much truth in the statement, and we believe that both theatre managers and editors would be glad to appeal to a higher plane of intelligence and feeling. The parents of the children are more to blame than the rules of the press or the theatre."

Of course, the moral is not far to be sought. It involves chiefly a determination on the part of educational authorities to correct this false point of view, and a willingness on the part of newspaper owners to raise the standard of news values in their publications. Good news must be seen as that which is truly constructive; bad news as that which does nothing other than satisfy a certain morbid tendency in human experience. As a wider outlook is glimpsed, the latter will be repelled and the former will find itself obtaining a larger and larger audience.—Christian Science Monitor.

The Constitution

"It is too probable that no plan we propose will be adopted. Perhaps another dreadful conflict is to be sustained. If, to please the people, we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterward defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and just can repair. The event is in the hand of God."—George Washington in the Federal Convention.

Debt to the Past

It has been estimated that if we had to start without the knowledge and inventions bequeathed to us by our forefathers, it would take eight men to do the work which can now be accomplished by one. All people born in a modern civilized state fall heirs to the richest legacies. Our debt to the past is incalculable; but our obligation to the future is still greater.—Hamilton Spectator.

Mary: He had forgotten all about her. Of course, this book was for her. Just the book for her. She would love the pictures. He had forgotten all about . . .

He went down to supper and was bewildered and absent-minded throughout the meal. That night his dreams were all of Crusoe, of burning sands and flaming skies, of the crimson cockatoo and Man Friday. When he woke he jumped at once out of bed and ran on naked feet to the book. As a rule the next morning is the testing time, and too often we find that the treasure that we bought the day before has already lost some of its glitter and shine. Now it was not so; the pictures had grown better and better, richer and ever more rich. The loveliest pictures. . .

Just the book for Mary. It was then, standing half-stripped before his basin, pausing as he always did ere he made the icy attack with the sponge, that he realized his temptation. He did not want to give the book to Mary. He wanted to keep it for himself.

While he dressed the temptation did not approach him very closely. It was so horrible a temptation that he did not look it in the eyes. He was a generous little boy, had never done a mean thing in all his life. He was always eager to give anything away although he had a strong and persistent sense of possessions so that he loved to have his things near him, and they seemed to him, his books and his toys and his football, as alive as the people around him. He had never felt anything so alive as this book was.

When he came down to breakfast he was surprised to find that the sight of Mary made him feel rather cross. She always had, in excess of others, the capacity for irritating him, as she herself well knew. This morning she irritated him very much. Her birthday would be four days from now; he would be glad when it arrived; he could give her the book and the temptation would be over. Indeed he would like to give her the book now and have done with it.

By the middle of the day he was considering whether he could not give her something else "just as good" and keep the book for himself. But he wrapped the book in all its paper, but ran up continually to look at it. She would like something else just as much; she would like something else more. After all, "Robinson Crusoe" was a book for boys. But the trouble was that he had now no money. He would receive three pence on Saturday, the last Saturday before Mary's birthday, but what could you get with three pence? Five shillings of the sum with which he had bought Mary's present had been given him by Uncle Samuel—and Uncle Samuel's next present would be the tip before he went to school.

That afternoon he quarrelled with Mary—for no reason at all. He was sitting under the oak tree on the lawn reading "Redgauntlet." Mary came and asked him whether she could take Hamlet for a run. Hamlet, as though he were a toy-dog made of springs, was leaping up and down. He did not like Mary, but he adored a run.

"No, you can't," said Jeremy. "Oh: Jeremy, why can't I? I'll take the greatest care of him and those horrid little boys are gone away now and—"

"You can't because I say you can't."

"Oh, Jeremy, do let—"

He started up from his chair, all rage and indignation.

"Look here, Mary, if you go on talking—"

She walked away down the garden, her head hanging in that tiresome way it had when she was unhappy. Hamlet tried to follow her, so he called him back. He came, but was quite definitely in the sulks, sitting, his head raised, very proud, wrath in his eyes, snapping angrily at an occasional fly.

"Redgauntlet" was spoiled for Jeremy. He put the book down and tried to placate Hamlet who knew his power and refused to be placated. Why didn't he let Mary take Hamlet? What a pig he was! He would be nice to Mary when she came back. But when she did return, that face of hers with its beseeching look, irritated him so deeply that he snapped at her more than before.

After all, "Robinson Crusoe" was a book for boys. . .

Two days later he had decided, quite definitely in the sulks, sitting, with it. He must find something else for her, something very fine indeed, the best thing that he had. He thought of every possible way of making money, but time was so short and ways of making money quickly were so few. He thought of asking his father for the pocket money of many weeks in advance, but it would have to be so very many weeks in advance to be worth anything at all, and his father would want to know what he needed money for; and after the episode of last Christmas he did not wish to say anything about presents. He thought of selling something; but there was no place to sell things in, and he had not anything that any one else wanted. He thought of asking his mother; but she would send him to his father who always managed the family finances.

He went over all his private possessions. The trouble with them was that Mary knew them all so well.

Impossible to pretend that there was anything there that she could want! He collected the most hopeful of them and laid them out on the bed—a pocket-knife, three books, a photograph frame (rubbed at the edges), a watch chain that had seemed at first to be silver but now most certainly wasn't, a leather pocket-book, a red blotting pad—not a very brilliant collection.

He did not now dare to look at the book at all. He put it away in the bottom of the chest of drawers. He thought that perhaps if he did not see it nor take it out of its brown paper until the actual day that it would be easier to give.

Then he discovered the little brass bottle with the silver stopper. It had been given to him two years ago on his birthday by a distant cousin who happened to be staying with them at the time. What anybody wanted to give a boy a glass bottle with a stopper for Jeremy couldn't conceive. Mary had always liked it. . .

Mary's birthday came. . . She was lucky in her presents. . . and glass bottle with the silver stopper, from Jeremy.

It seemed that she liked this last present best of all. She rushed up to Jeremy and kissed him in the wettest possible way.

Jeremy stood there, his heart like lead. It may be said with truth of him that never in his whole existence had he felt such shame as he did now. Mean, mean, mean! Suddenly, now that it was too late, he hated the book upstairs lying safely in his bottom drawer. He didn't want ever to look at it again.—From "Jeremy and Hamlet," by Hugh Walpole.

"Some men are like pyramids, which are very broad where they touch the ground, but grow narrow as they reach the sky."—Beecher.

Delaware Opens With St. Josephs Saturday

Play On Frazer Field; Squad De-velops Rapidly; Rothrock In-spires Fighting Spirit

The University of Delaware will open its football season Saturday, on Frazer Field, when it engages the moleskin wearers from St. Josephs. Coach Rothrock has been giving the squad quite a bit of scrimmage, and the performance of some of the veterans promises a warm reception for the visitors. This week, Rothrock and assistant coach Doherty have been giving attention to tackling, kicking and running back punts, and will undoubtedly put a team on the field that will produce feature playing.

The early squad was augmented Monday with a new group of candidates, most of them yearlings. One, Kane, ex-Salesianum captain, is making a strong bid for a birth in the line. Those who reported Monday were: Harry Miller, H. Ruggiero, G. Ruggiero, Frank Russo, of Wilmington High; Adams, from Pennington Prep; Caleb Boggs, of Dover; E. J. Butler, of Salesianum; Frank Gladden, from Wesley Collegiate Institute; Thomas Howell, of Rising Sun, Md.; William Krewatch, of Seaford, and Ralph Raughley, of Elizabeth, N. J.

Draper and Loveland have developed particularly well for early season form, and they are expected to do some sensational running and plunging. Draper, who broke his ankle in the first game of last season, has both weight and speed and is hard to stop. Loveland seems to have retained all the speed and shiftness that he displayed last year.

Rothrock, himself one of the best athletes ever produced at Delaware, throws himself into the game and shows the boys how it is done. The squad seems to have caught his spirit of fight and aggressiveness, an ingredient of which last year's team showed nothing but a paucity.

The line-up for the St. Josephs game will probably be chosen from the following:

Ends—Glasser, Barton and Parkinson.

Tackles—Green, Benson, Kane and Staats.

Guards—Reese, Boyer and Benson. Center—Reynold.

Backfield—Loveland, Draper, Creamer, Di Joseph, Flynn, Squillace, Riggins and Rose.

Frosh-Soph Joust

Extra-curricula activities at the University of Delaware opened officially Monday night with the annual class contests between the freshmen and sophomore classes of Delaware College. The second year men were victorious, as usual, winning two of the three events and losing the third on an alleged foul.

The contests were staged on the lower campus starting at 11 o'clock and in addition to the student body were witnessed by several hundred spectators. The Student Council supervised the contests.

The first event was a jousting contest. Each class was represented by six couples. One boy stood on the shoulders of a fellow classman with a long pole in his hands. At the end of each pole was a boxing glove smeared with red and green paint. The object was to knock the opponents down. The sophs won as two of their couples were left when all the freshmen were down.

The second event was a flour rush. The sophs guarding several bags of flour repelled the attacks of the freshmen for five minutes and were awarded the contest.

The final event was also a rush with the freshmen lined up on one side of the field and the sophs on the other. The object was to drag the men across a goal line. The sophs got all of the freshmen across but it was claimed the second year boys fouled in dragging the last boy across and the decision went to the freshmen.

Hopkins and Steedle in Final for Club Championship

J. M. Terrill won the Class B championship at the Newark Country Club on Saturday, when he defeated H. Souder 3 and 2 in the final. In the semi-finals for the Club championship C. H. Hopkins defeated E. B. Wright 1 up in a tight match, and E. W. Steedle won 2 up from H. L. Bonham in another grueling contest. Hopkins and Steedle will decide who is to be Club champion in the final next Saturday.

The medal play feature next Saturday will be a "Kickers" handicap.

Elk Mills and Rising Sun Even In Series

Elk Mills Takes Second of Five Game Series for Pennant

Elk Mills defeated Rising Sun Saturday afternoon in the second of the five-game series being played for the championship of the Susquehanna League by the score of 4 to 3. The first game was won by Rising Sun.

The game was hard fought from start to finish, taking an extra session to decide the fracas. Bland, Wilson and Allen featured at the stick for the Elk Mills team, each collecting two hits, while Chalmers with three safeties and G. Kay and Reagan with two each were best for Rising Sun.

The next game will be played today, Wednesday, at Oxford, Pa. The score:

Elk Mills . . . 1 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 1—4

Six Problems For The College Freshman

Dr. Charles Franklin Thwing Points Out What Disciplined Student Can Achieve From His Education

Dr. Charles Franklin Thwing, President Emeritus of Western Reserve University, writing for the New York Times for Sunday, September 11, analyzed six problems that the college freshman must solve if he is to receive the largest benefit from his college career. Dr. Thwing's analyses are as follows:

The emphasis in college life is passing from the teacher, the curriculum and the environments to the student himself. This emphasis should never have been lost. Of the several emphases belonging to the student the most important is that which can be summed up in the word problems. A few of the problems that will meet the freshmen of September, 1927, I want to discuss. It may be added that the old student, too, will not be wholly free from the same problems.

"The first of these problems is what I shall call the reconciliation of self-discipline with personal freedom. The typical student will find one prevailing difference between his old life in the high school or academy and his new life in the college. This difference lies in part at least in the limitation of the old preparatory and the freedom of the new college education.

Tasks become less specific. Duties if not less regular at least are less regulated. Supervision is made less close in space and less constant in time. Rules give place to principles, commands to intimations, prohibition to suggestions. Freedom to do or not to do, freedom to loaf or to study, freedom to waste his time or himself or to improve both, all these types of liberty and many others become his academic birthright.

"In working out his salvation he must be, above every other force, his own savior. The college officers, professors, deans, President, will give him aid, but his own self-help is mightier than all other. He is to be a disciplinarian to himself. He is to take account of his own intellectual stock in order to save himself from bankruptcy. He is to make his own intellectual soundings. He is to inspect his own chart and compass in order to save himself from academic shipwreck. Rules more specific and more commanding than the college would make for him, he must lay down for himself. Regulations more timely and more permanent than his home ever suggested he is to set up and to follow."

"He must be a hard master, at times almost harsh and brutal, to himself. It is thus and only thus that many a student rejoicing in his new freedom is able to save himself for his college, for his home and for all his succeeding life. In a word, the American college, for good or bad reasons, is giving the student a range of liberty broader than he can properly use. Therefore, it becomes the peculiar duty of the student to correct these faults of omission and commission of the college by becoming a severe self-disciplinarian."

Benefit From Courses

"A second problem of the new student is to determine what he wants to get out of his college. Of course, not a few men come knowing what they do want to get out of the college. Preparation for a profession, training for business, the making of one's self an educated gentleman. But many, perhaps most, have not thought at all about what their purpose is or should be, much less have they formulated a purpose. They have just felt that it was really a rather good thing to come to college."

"In such an atmosphere of vagueness it is helpful for the student to ponder well over what he should gain in the experiences of the four years. In this pondering he will soon find that the college offers him many and diverse values."

"At times acquaintances which would prove serviceable in subsequent business will make a special appeal. At times friendships made in college will seem to be most precious, and they certainly are precious. At times the opportunity for broad reading will seem to have highest worth, and testimonies of great men abound in illustration and proof. In more mature meditations the result of making one's self a thinker, a thinker on whatsoever subject may be presented, a thinker broad yet accurate, may seem to be worth all other values."

"These and other purposes are simply illustrations of the length, breadth and height of the field of choice into which the student is flung. His immediate problem is to think about what he wants to get, even if he gets for himself no immediate satisfactory conclusion. Lacking a conclusion he still should think. Even if the answer of the freshman should prove not to be the answer of the sophomore, or if both answers should ultimately be unlike the answer of the senior, yet the obligation of thinking and of thinking hard may prove to be of a worth higher than any specific answer itself could create."

"In thus thinking, the student may find solved yet another—the third—problem. It is the problem of rationalizing his ideals. For most ideals, both within and without college walls, are born into the realm of the emotions. They are felt rather than conceived or understood. They are therefore vague and need to be brought into definiteness, into well-ordered relations. They should be measured by the intellectual balances. They are to be interpreted by the intellectual standards, to be solidified into intellectual values, to be translated into intellectual languages."

Studies and Leisure

"A fourth problem which immediately meets the student on his matriculation is the adjustment of leisure to work. How many hours a week shall he study, how many shall he play? What share of his time shall he spend in talk and what share in solitary study? The questions are pretty central and determinative. They are also individual. Facts of health, of adjustments, of duties such as self-support, all conditions lying beyond the classroom, help to make up the answers."

"I must not commit myself to analyze too closely, but in general I should say that the student should give himself as fully as possible to the business of college. That business is scholarship. Let him devote forty hours, or fifty, or even sixty of each week to this business. (The late Sir Walter Raleigh said, when he was teaching at Manchester, that he could work only four hours a day.) After such devotion let him loaf or talk as he will, or go in for the track, or try for the eleven or the nine, or let him "heel" for the college paper, or try to make the dramatic club or the glee club, or seek to share in any one or all of the undergraduate activities."

"But if, on the contrary, he goes in hard for these activities and consequently devotes enough of himself only to the college studies as to "get by," he will find himself failing, failing to get sufficient and most lasting values."

"A further problem—it is the fifth—for many a freshman emerges, a problem most personal and insistent; it is the problem, "shall I join a fraternity?" Assuming that the freshman gets a "bid," I want to give an answer through five suggestions: Let the freshman consider, first, the cost of joining; second, the character of the membership of the chapter that gives him the invitation; third, the value of the fraternity as a method and means of present college and post-college friendships; fourth, the advantages and disadvantages of the chapter house as a home and as a place and condition of study; fifth, the reputation of the fraternity and of this individual chapter for scholarship and high character."

Joining a Fraternity

"The consideration of these five points of an academic Calvinism, and of other points as well, will lead the student to a proper conclusion. This conclusion will be usually in favor of becoming a member of the fraternity electing him to its membership."

"The last problem to which I refer may be called the problem of translating learning into scholarship and of scholarship into power. The college is a place and a condition, a force, a means and a method of learning. It represents the gaining of knowledge, the accumulation of facts. It stands for the great departments of intellectual acquisition—acquisitions belonging to all the field that concern humanity or nature. The student is to be a master in at least one of these fields and with the others he is to have at least a speaking acquaintance."

"But such acquaintance or acquisition forms one of the smallest worths of the college course. The student may be a human encyclopedia; but he must not be that only. Even if he be thus learned he yet has only partially failed. But rather and more he is to translate his learning into scholarship. And what is the difference between learning and scholarship? Learning is concerned with the fact; scholarship stands for the meaning of the fact. Learning is concerned with many and diverse facts; scholarship deals with the relation of these facts. Learning stands for truth and truths; scholarship is concerned with the causes, the conditions, the limitations, the results of these truths. Learning refers to the mechanical parts of knowledge; scholarship to the human part. Learning is primarily an intellectual process product; scholarship, accepting the intellectual deposit, gives to it emotional and ethical significance. Learning stands for intelligence; scholarship for the intellectual."

"It is thus that learning is translated into scholarship. But a still further translation is to be made. Scholarship is to be turned into power, into intellectual and volitional power. Scholarship is to aid the student in choosing the best, highest, noblest in the multiple relations of life. Scholarship is to result in doing, in serving, in planning, in achieving. In point of the professions, scholarship is to make the minister, the teacher, the doctor, the lawyer, the editor, the engineer, the architect. In point of business, scholarship is to make the executive."

"CASEY AT THE BAT"

"Take out the big bum!"
"Kill the umpire!"
"Come on, kid, knock a homer!"
"There goes the old ball game."
These, and all the other expressions which make baseball the game it is, are included in Wallace Beery's current Paramount starring comedy, "Casey at the Bat," which shows at the Newark Opera House, Thursday and Friday of this week. Beery, perhaps the actor to have made the most progress during the past twelve months, due to inimitable performances in "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now" and "Old Ironsides," enacts the small town junk man who suddenly finds himself catapulted to fame and fortune when a big league baseball scout signs him to a Giant contract.

Imagine if you will (it isn't difficult) Beery as the hero of America, the Babe Ruth of 1890. Picture the laughs as Wallace hits a home run with one hand while holding a stein of beer in the other. Think of the roars that'll be forthcoming as he climbs on the stage of the old Casino Theatre and makes a personal appearance. Then comes a trip to Coney Island and you'll wonder what the wild waves are saying. A morning in bed, duped into believing he's very rich, and finally—the big game! Ford Sterling enacts Beery's Columbus by "discovering" him. ZaSu Bennett is the Centerville belle and "Glorious Holloway," Beery's villainous manager. Monte Brice directed this Victor Turnbull production.

RESOLUTIONS OF SYMPATHY

Whereas, God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove Thomas Green from our midst and;

Whereas, Thomas Green has for many years been a faithful and efficient Director of the Mutual Building and Loan Association of Newark and a good citizen of Newark; Therefore be it

Resolved, that the Directors of the Mutual Building and Loan Association in session met do hereby express their grief in the sudden and tragic death of their fellow Director, and also extend their sympathy to the sorrowing family that has been left behind. Be it further

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be ordered spread upon the minutes of the Directors' meeting of the Mutual Building and Loan Association and that a copy be forwarded to Mr. Green's family and communicated to the press.

VIOLET RAY VALUABLE AID TO BEAUTY

The foremost scientists of the world have again contributed to the art of the beauty specialists in developing the Violet Ray and designing apparatus that has made it one of the most effective treatments for certain diseases of the hair and scalp. Mrs. Elizabeth Auger, proprietor of Auger's Beauty Shop, has introduced the Violet Ray treatment to Newark. The apparatus is ingenious in its simplicity; having glass instruments designed for the various treatments. The treatment itself is said to be delightfully invigorating.

While the Violet Ray treatment has been accepted as one of the best means of curing dandruff and falling hair, it has also proven an effective method for reducing fatty tissue; causing the tissue to dissolve. A curiously shaped instrument has been designed for the reduction of double chins.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

APPLE RELISH

Tie in a cheesecloth bag 4 tablespoonfuls of fresh mixed whole spices, being sure of a blade of mace and picking out all but a few of the cloves. Drop the spice bag into 1 quart of cider vinegar to which has been added 3 teaspoonfuls of salt and 2½ cupfuls of brown sugar, and boil until there is a light sirup. Remove seeds from 8 large green peppers and 1 sweet red pepper, and put the peppers through the food chopper with 8 firm tart apples, peeled and cored; 4 onions and 1 cupful of seeded raisins. Mix together thoroughly, then add to the spiced sirup and cook slowly for an hour or until the relish is very thick. Seal hot in sterilized jars. This is as delicious as it is unusual.

DIET WITH TOMATOES

The popular pastime of dieting has been made more interesting and more scientific by the fact that everybody is informed nowadays on the topic of food values. Both men and women with a tendency to embonpoint approach the problems of diet with intelligence and a sufficient knowledge of food properties to guide them safely through a reducing diet which, while taking off pounds will at the same time give a well balanced ration, containing the elements necessary to the maintenance of health.

A Versatile Food

There is no food which seems to fit all requirements when counting the calories like tomatoes, particularly the canned ones which may be had all the year, and always uniform in quality and flavor. This vegetable is at once low in calories and rich in vitamins—a rare combination. In other words tomatoes supply the chemical elements necessary to health minus the fattening quality which the starchy foods possess. A modicum of this starchy ingredient may be supplied by the addition of bread. A special qualification for tomatoes on a diet list is the fact that they may

D. A. A. Official Gives Grade Crossing Rules

L. L. Hoopes, executive secretary of the Delaware Automobile Association, in an outline of rules for safely crossing railroad grade crossings says, "Don't assume the train has passed because you can see its tracks."

"All the customary admonitions of 'stop, look and listen,' may fall on deaf ears, but one is almost sure to reflect on the grim logic of the above warning, with consequent pause before taking a chance on crossing railroad tracks."

"Recent increase in the number of grade crossing accidents indicates that the average motor car driver has not yet learned the tragic lesson so often impressed on the public through the columns of the newspapers. Thousands of drivers hardly even pause at unprotected grade crossings, and hardly a day passes that some accident is not recorded."

"We desire to call particular attention to a hazard that is not apparent even to careful, experienced drivers. And that is the danger, on double track roads, of trains passing in opposite directions a few seconds apart."

"Within the last two weeks seven motorists have been killed because drivers, waiting for a train to pass, have ventured on the tracks without making certain no other train was approaching. In one instance, the blinker lights guarding the crossing were the direct result of a fatal crash. The driver, having noticed on numerous occasions that the lights continued to blink until the train had entered another 'block,' assumed the warning flash was caused by the train he stopped for and started across the tracks as soon as the last car cleared the crossing. Another train came from the opposite direction and another grade crossing tragedy was recorded."

"The only safe rule is to make absolutely sure the tracks are clear. Loss of a minute to 'stop, look and listen' may be the saving of life."

GO WAY, MULE!

Down in Westpoint, Texas, the cotton farmers had seen two bad years in succession: An unprecedented drought in 1925 had caused a complete failure and a record crop in 1926 had depressed the price of cotton below the cost of production.

Lige, a gentleman of color, had been a farmer all his life, hence it was a surprise to see him sell his team and go to work in the railroad-section gang.

"Them last two years cured me," he explained. "Ah wouldn't tell another mule to get up if he was settin' in mah lap!"

"When you were in Africa, did you travel in the Sudan?"
"No, in a roadster."

be prepared in infinitely various ways.

Tomato Ring is something different that may be done with this vegetable and is made in the following fashion: cook these ingredients for 20 minutes; one can tomatoes, one bay leaf, speck of mace, one teaspoon salt, six peppercorns, one slice onion. Strain and reserve one cup of the strained tomato mixture. Melt two tablespoons butter, add four tablespoons flour and pour in slowly the tomatoes. When smooth, pour this over three well beaten egg yolks and set aside to cool. Beat three whites very stiff and mix gently with tomato sauce, turn into a well greased ring mold, set in a pan of boiling water. Bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes. When ready to serve, remove from pan carefully, fill the center with braised mushrooms.

"PETITS POIS" ARE "PETTED PEAS"

What is there about a French label either on food or clothes which makes the article so much more interesting? It must be the French reputation for excellency in cookery as well as dress-making. No one will deny that "Paté de Foie Gras" sounds a lot more aristocratic than "Goose Liver." Just so with "Petits Pois" which have always been considered a very great delicacy and came originally from France. "Pettered Peas" they are facetiously called by canners because they require more coddling than any others.

What Epicures Say

When being prepared for canning, peas are graded by 32nds of an inch and the tiny ones belonging to the "Petits Pois" classification will pass through holes only 9/32 of an inch in diameter. But real epicures do not like the extremely small peas. They maintain that the larger sizes possess more nutriment. In fact they declare the choicest peas and the ones which have the choicest flavor are those which are cooked without sifting just as they come from the garden.

An Unusual Recipe

This extremely nutritious vegetable is one of the most successful of canned products, and is third in point of vegetable popularity. With its valuable aid the housewife can devise many tempting, dainty dishes. Here is a pea purée which is different: rub through a colander one can of peas, add a little boiling water or soup stock. Cut several slices of bacon in small pieces, put in a frying pan and cook until crisp, add one onion cut in dice, and continue cooking with the bacon until brown. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serve like mashed potato, pouring the bacon and onion over it before serving.

Hairpins

It is reported, and surely the news is important, that the hairpin is "coming back." But it is a new sort of hairpin, resembling little the old pin with which one could pick a lock or, in an emergency, use as a button-hook in connection with a glove button. The new arrival is much more delicate and fragile, and correspondingly less useful. The report is interesting, not in itself, but for what it may portend. If there are hairpins, there will have to be hair, and presumably much more than now adorns so many feminine pates. It is true that there is even now a sort of Zulu style of hair fashion, in connection with which some restraining implement might be found handy and greatly conducive to comfort. But the demand based on this supposed need would, at best, be slight. If the new hairpin is really to have any vogue, its coming must, it would seem, coincide with a gradual unbobbing process. There are certain indications, faint, it is true, and perhaps deceptive, that such a process is even now under way. It is a subject in regard to which "mere man," if he is wise, will maintain a benevolent neutrality. It would be the wildest folly for him to commit himself.—Indianapolis News.

Most of us like it medium when it comes to water for washing or bathing.

Combination faucets at kitchen sink and bath-room fixtures bring the comfort and cleanliness of "once-used water" to all the family.

They save hot water, too, at the daily rush hours.

In the other judging contests held during the week, Edwin Pierson, of Hockessin, received a second place merit badge in potato judging; Hazel Biggs, of Houston, a second in bread judging; Margaret Thorp, of Seaford, a third in clothing judging; and Francis Dill, of Milford, a third in beef cattle judging.

For the first time at Camp Vail a special judging contest for State Leaders was held, and all leaders were required to judge potatoes. Delaware scored another victory when first place in the contest was awarded to A. D. Cobb, State Leader of County Agents.

During the week of the Exposition Delaware Club members maintained a very attractive booth, demonstrating the production, marketing and use of good eggs.

The following from the Springfield Union of September 22 is indicative of the interest which the booth attracted:

Pullets Pay $250 In One Year Delaware Lads Prosper from Profits from Small Flock

An income of $250 for one from a flock of pullets is the boast of Gooden Pepper, a young lad from Delaware, who shares in the "Eggs for Health" exhibit of the 4-H Club of that state exhibited at the Eastern States Exposition. This year Pepper has a flock of 110 pullets and expects to make more money next year.

"Eat More Eggs for Your Health's Sake," is the keynote and motto of the Delaware 4-H Club demonstration. The booth includes three units presenting important phases of egg production, egg inspection and preparation of eggs.

The first unit consists of a model poultry house with home-made equipment designed to lessen labor. There are 16 large and productive white leghorn pullets which the club members declare are contented hens and happy inmates of their ultra-modern hen-house. These birds are the property of Pepper.

In the next booth members of the club are engaged in showing visitors the secrets of good and bad eggs. Six eggs of varying degrees of perfection are mounted before a strong white light. The boys point out that in a good fresh egg the air cell is small, the white is clear and the yolk almost imperceptible.

Over a white counter the boys and girls serve egg sandwiches, deviled eggs, dainty custard pies and refreshing egg milk shakes. They repeat to the more interested customers that "Eggs are an economical food, eggs are a protective food" and "eggs are easily digested."

The following 4-H Club members and leaders made the trip by special car over the Pennsylvania Railroad:

New Castle County—Edna Ballard, Rockland; Clesta Wilson, Glasgow; Edwin Pierson, Hockessin; J. Oliver Koelig, Newark.

Kent County—Hazel Biggs and Eleanor Simpson, Houston; Francis Dill, Milford; Herman McGinnis, Wyoming.

Sussex County—Margaret Thorp, Seaford; Margaret Nelson, Bridgeville; Robert Kinder, Bridgeville; Gooden Pepper, Seaford.

Leaders—A. D. Cobb, State Leader of County Agents, Newark; Helen V. McKinley, State Leader of Home Domestic Work, Newark; Ed Willim, Jr., County Club Agent, New Castle County, Newark; H. S. Palmer, Poultry Extension Specialist, Newark; Mrs. Ed Willim, Jr., Newark.

In addition to this group Delaware was represented at the International 4-H Leaders' Training School, held at Camp Vail, by Miss Iva James, of Laurel, and W. Burnham Simpson, of Houston.

"THE BELOVED ROGUE"

John Barrymore is perhaps the only artist of the theatre who is equally successful on the stage and screen. The reason is to be found in his encompassing and unparalleled genius. He is as handsome as a Grecian god and the romantic figure that fits with thrilling perfection into picturesque role, like the one that is to be his in "The Beloved Rogue" as it will be presented on the screen of the Arcadia Theatre, Wilmington, during the week of October 3rd.

The "Beloved Rogue" is the story of Francois Villon, a vagabond, poet, lover and scoundrel of Fifteenth Century France. He falls in love with the ward of the king and after an adventurous courtship which almost cost him his life, marries the lady of his heart.

The settings are elaborate and true to the early France of the kings and Barrymore is a colorful figure in every setting, revealing a physical daring that is akin to that of Fairbanks. He fights and duels and loves with the thoroughness of the gallant of another day.

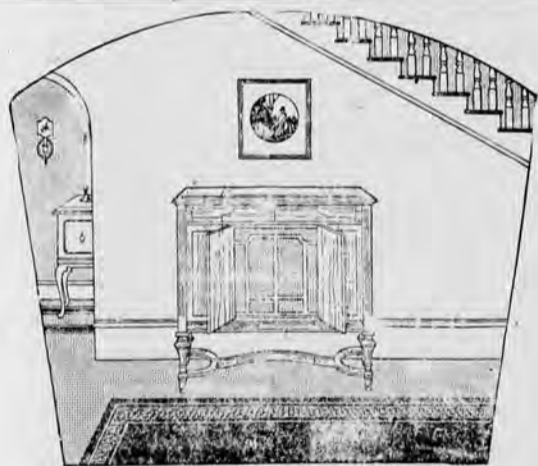

Conrad Veidt plays Louis XI of France at one time the enemy of Villon and later his most admiring friend. Marceline Day, Lawson Butt, Slim Summerville and many others are in the cast of support.

"Humbleness is always grace; always dignity."—James Russell Lowell.

CLUB FEDERATION SENDS DIRECTOR TO NEWARK

Howard Strong, of Philadelphia, director of the Tri-State Regional Federation of Clubs, and Mrs. Frank E. Hamell and Mrs. J. Edgar Hires, members of the Municipal Art Committee of the Civic Club of the same city, came to Newark last Wednesday to confer with Mrs. A. D. Cobb, president of the Newark New Century Club relative to interesting the women of the local club in the federation.

The reason for getting in touch with the clubs of towns near to Philadelphia is because the encroachments of a big city affect the towns within a certain radius, with respect to civic improvements. Mr. Strong will address the members of the New Century Club here at a meeting which will be arranged by the civic committee of which Mrs. Dunleavy is chairman.

Special Meetings at M. E. Church

The Methodist Episcopal Church is holding a series of meetings during the week of October second to ninth inclusive. The program committee has planned a program of much interest, with an appeal for all types of people. The program follows:

Sunday—Loyalty Sunday. It is desired that each member and friend of this Church will solemnly covenant that he will be more loyal to the various organizations as well as to the services of worship.

At 10.00 a. m. the Church School will convene, all departments assembling in the Church auditorium. This is promotion day. It is also Missionary Sunday and a birthday missionary offering will be inaugurated.

At 11.00 a. m. the pastor will deliver a Communion Meditation and administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Reception of members at this service.

The Epworth League will meet at 6.45 p. m., and at 7.30 p. m. the evening service will be held. Dr. G. T. Alderson, a former pastor, will preach at this service.

Monday—Former Pastors' Night. Mr. F. A. Cooch, chairman. All living former pastors have been invited to be present on this evening.

Tuesday—Men's Night. Mr. W. F. Lindell, chairman. The Men's League and their invited guests will meet for supper at 6.45 p. m. in the Sunday School room. An interesting program will be rendered following the supper.

Wednesday—World Fellowship Night. Dr. E. B. Crooks, chairman. A representative of the Board of Foreign Missions will be present to tell of the great work the Methodist Episcopal Church is doing in other lands.

Thursday—The Ministry of Music. Dr. T. F. Manns, chairman. An organ recital, the program of which will be interspersed with vocal solos and duets by noted singers, will be rendered through the courtesy of Mr. Frank Brown, of Wilmington.

Friday—Young People's Night. Mr. E. F. Dawson, chairman. All officers, teachers and members of the Church School are earnestly requested to be present. An instructive message will be delivered by Rev. J. R. Bicking, pastor of Scott Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilmington. He will illustrate his message by the use of crayon, blackboard, paint and paper.

Sunday—Rally Sunday. "Every member present" is the slogan.

At 10.00 a. m. the Church School will convene. One hundred per cent attendance in every class!

At 11.00 a. m. the hour of morning worship, Dr. J. W. Colona, District Superintendent, will preach.

The Epworth League meets at 6.45 p. m. The president, Mr. J. Wilkins Cooch, is requesting that every member answer present when the League roll is called.

Bishop William F. McDowell, the Resident Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will be present at the evening service at 7.30 o'clock, and will deliver the sermon.

SOCCOR GAME FRIDAY

On Friday afternoon, at 3:30, the Newark Junior High School soccer team will play the Claymont school eleven on the Maxwell field, located just below Lovett avenue. This will be the first game of soccer ever played by the Newark schools, the sport being new this year.

Soccer for junior high school teams has been organized this year by the D. I. A. A. and four teams, Newark, Claymont, Delaware City and Middletown, will fight it out for the Northern championship. Mr. Earl Keller is coaching the Newark team.

Field hockey has also been introduced as a new sport in the Newark schools this year, and both the senior and junior high school girls will have teams. Miss Ruth Ewing is coaching the junior girls, and Mrs. Louise Duffy, director of physical education for the Newark schools, is coaching the senior girls.

Various industrial concerns are contributing cinders for the new running track being constructed for the Newark schools.

The playing field of the colored school is being put into shape. The natural drainage and slope of the ground facilitates the work greatly, and at a small cost.

"THE BEANTOWN CHOIR"

"The Beantown Choir," a musical production of a light vein, will be given by the Degree of Pocahontas, in the Newark New Century Club, Saturday, October 15, curtain rising promptly at 8:15 p. m.

Art in the Garden

Many students of American life profess to see a marked desire on the part of our citizens for greater beauty in their homes and environment. This urge to be surrounded by beautiful things is not taking the form of theoretical discussions and philosophizing about art, music and landscaping, but is manifesting itself in a practical way.

The American wants a beautiful home, beautiful furniture and furnishings, beautiful gardens and surroundings, and so he is creating them himself or setting up a demand for them which artists and craftsmen are satisfying.

Art has served its full purpose only when the rank and file, the general citizenry, the vast majority of the populace want their environment, the utensils they use in their homes, their streets, business houses and factories created along beautiful lines. The knowledge which a few have of art serves only a limited purpose, while a general and widely spread appreciation of it benefits the whole nation.—Richmond, Ind., Palladium.

New Century Club

The Newark New Century Club will hold the first meeting of the club year on Monday, October 3rd. There will be a reception and all new members are especially urged to come.

At roll call each member is requested to respond with two sentences telling where and how she spent her vacation. There will be a musical program and tea will be served.

At this meeting the question of whether the club shall have weekly or bi-weekly meetings will be discussed. Each member is urged to come to express her opinion by her vote.

Members wishing to present names for club membership will please send them to Mrs. Pilling, the membership chairman, at once.

The club is letting the dahlia growers of Newark use the club rooms on Wednesday and Thursday, October 5th and 6th, for a Flower Show, which will be free to the public.

The chairman of committees for the coming year are: Program, Mrs. J. I. Dayett; Hospitality, Mrs. P. B. Myers; Education, Mrs. W. A. Wilkins; Civics, Mrs. Chas. Dunley; Music, Miss Nell Wilson; Decoration, Mrs. J. M. Barnes; American Home, Mrs. Walter Geist; Social Service, Mrs. R. V. Townsend; Dramatics, Mrs. J. O. G. Duffy; Conservation, Mrs. W. J. Barnard; Ways and Means, Mrs. G. W. Rhodes; Library, Mrs. G. E. Dutton; Membership, Mrs. John Pilling; Rental, Mrs. H. L. Bonham.

It is hoped that each member of the club will be at the meeting Monday, October 3rd, at 2:30.

Mrs. J. C. Hastings, Secretary.

years, Mrs. Maude Moore, of Newark; press correspondent, Mrs. Sallie Wharry, of Wilmington; grand mistress of records and correspondence, Mrs. Sophie Wigglesworth, of Wilmington; and grand mistress of finance, Mrs. Florence Harvey, of Grubb's Corner.

At the session Thursday, the officers were installed by Mrs. Mae Simpson, Mrs. Marjorie Tucker and Mrs. Dora Dorman, past officers of the order.

Mrs. Velma Richmond and Mrs. Wideman, both of Pittsburgh, and both past officers of the Pennsylvania lodge were visitors Thursday evening.

It was decided to hold the meeting next year at New Castle the second Thursday in November instead of in September.

Following the installation there was a reception to the outgoing officers when gifts were presented to some of the retiring officers.

A banded bag was given to Mrs. Velma Richmond, the past grand chief of Pennsylvania.
