By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

ewark's city council came back out of executive session on Monday night to announce they were authorizing the city manager to pursue the purchase of the old Crown Vantage site on Paper Mill Road.

"This includes the seven-plus acres of land as well as the buildings," said city manager Carl Luft. "The deal is subject to environmental evaluations but barring something unforeseen. I think we can come to terms."

The price asked by Crown Vantage was not disclosed.

Luft said the city had not yet decided how to use the property. "It has significant recreational and cultural possibilities, as well as historic opportunities," said Luft.

Luft said a water storage facility was unlikely on such a small site.

Carleton Apts. blaze investigated

State Fire Marshall William Preston said the fire that started in a first floor apartment in Building 2600 of Carleton Apartments on Monday night is still under investigation. "The fire spread quickly upward and across the roof," said Preston on Tuesday. "We're assessing utilities and other evidence at the scene."

More trains coming to Newark

By MARY E. PETZAK

EWARK COULD HAVE THREE more trains added to the current daily schedule if the General Assembly approves the Department of Transportation's proposed FY 2000 operating budget.

According to Mike Williams, the budget calls for an additional round-trip train between Newark and Wilmington in the late morning, the early afternoon, and the late evening. "The exact times cannot be determined until Septa coordinates thier schedule with Amtrak," said Williams.

Currently there are 17 round-trip trains running each weekday between the two cities during the morning and evening rush hours. Williams said current ridership is averaging 358 trips a day.

"There were 7,168 trips in January 1999 and 6,198 in January 1998, an increase of 15.7 percent," said Williams.

The budget presented by Transportation Secretary Anne P. Canby reflects a 4.7 percent increase in DelDOT spending, with 38.1 percent of the total spending planned for preservation and maintenance of the state's existing transportation system.

Other proposals for FY 2000 include: full staffing around-the-clock seven days a week at the Transportation Management Center; three new shuttle bus routes in the Churchman's Crossing area; improved ditch maintenance in Sussex County and better mowing in New Castle County; operation and maintenance of the new Route 1 toll facility at Biddle's Corner; and starting Integrated Transportation Management System (ITMS) measures in Dover, Church-

More than 80 firefighters from 10 companies in New Castle County struggled to contain the blaze that raged out of control for two hours at the apartments off Marrows Road in Newark.

According to spokesperson John Farrell, Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company of Newark was first on the scene. "The first apparatus arrived three minutes after the alarm which came at 5:58 p.m." said Farrell. "We got numerous calls all at once."

Farrell said the fire was already going strong when Aetna arrived. "Response time was not a factor," Farrell said. "It had already gained headway when our firefighters arrived."

Kenneth Farrall, Newark City Fire Marshall and an Aetna firefighter, said his company saw the fire before they got to it. "We were coming from

No anthrax in letter The FBI has determined that a letter received at the Planned Parenthood center in Newark on Feb. 22 did not contain the deadly bacterium anthrax. According to David Greenberg, president of Planned Parenthood of Delaware Inc., emergency workers were brought in and the center on Delaware Avenue was closed for the day after the letter arrived in the regular mail. Greenberg said the letter had the return address of a fictitious surgical instrument company.

FBI officials said the threat was similar to more than 30 such letters sent to abortion clinics and Planned Parenthood centers across the United States.

Jeff Troy, supervisor of the FBI's Wilmington Agency, said they received a call about the letter on Monday afternoon. "The procedure for such a call is to contact the Department of Natural Resources and get it into their laboratory," said Troy.

Greenberg said the clinic's staff was "shaken up" by the threat but no one was harmed. No abortions or surgical procedures are performed at the Newark center.

Robbery on Madison Drive

Newark Police are investigating a robbery in the unit block of Madison Drive on Feb. 18 around 11:50 p.m. The victims told police a suspect described as a tall, black male approached them as they were walking in the parking lot behind the residence on Madison. One victim said the suspect stuck what the victim believed was a gun in his back before taking his wallet. The suspect also took a diamond engagement ring from the second victim before fleeing.

Anyone with information is asked to call Newark Police at 366-7110, ext. 138 or Delaware Crimestoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

Addicted son accused of theft

The parents of an 18-year-old heroin addict told Newark police on Feb. 10 their son had stolen jewelry, cash and eight blank checks from their Newark residence. The parents believe the son, who recently was in a detox center but signed himself out, pawned the jewelry and cashed four of the checks to buy drugs. They did not know the son's whereabouts. Arrest warrants were pending.

No arrests in fight

University Police reported no arrests followed a disturbance involving 800 persons outside the Trabant Student Center around 1:20 a.m. on Feb. 20. According to Captain James Flatley of University Police, officers from the Newark, Delaware State, New Castle County, Newport, Elsmere, Cecil County and Elkton police departments stood by while his officers cleared the crowd. Flatley said a fight started inside at a function hosted by Ki Upsilon Sigma and then continued outside. Additional police were called when the crowd refused to disperse. It took about 30 officers and several K-9 units to clear the area. Flatley said there were no injuries reported except some complaints about the effects of pepper spray used by police.

FOR THE RECORD

The number of jobs being cut at W. L. Gore & Associates Inc. in Elkton, Md., was incorrectly stated in the Feb. 19 issue as a result of a typographical error. According to Gore officials, the company is cutting 100 to 130 jobs at four job locations.

the old fire station on Academy and could see the flames in the air as we came by Newark High School," he said.

A resident who lives near the complex agreed events happened quickly. "One minute I was looking out my kitchen window and everything seemed fine and the next minute I looked out of my living room window and I saw eight-foot flames coming out of the roof (of the apartments)!" said Bonnie Perdue Eventually fire companies arrived from Millcreek, Cranston Heights, Elsmere, Hockessin, Volunteer Hose of Middletown, Minquas of Newport, Five Points, Delaware City, and Christiana. The last trucks didn't leave the scene until midnight on Monday.

Neighbors and "stranded residents" looked over the remains that littered the lawn less than 12 hours later. Piles of debris lined wide stretches of ice and black holes gaped in what were once rooftops.

Leon Pannell said that he was getting his truck repaired at a garage when the fire broke out. "When I came home my apartment looked just like it does now," said the resident of the destroyed building.

Darius Brown, another resident of Building 2600, said he came home with his 7-year-old daughter and his wife to a burnt-down apartment, "We didn't even know a fire had started," he said.

Eight of the apartments in Building 2600 were destroyed and two in Building 2500 had minor damage. The fire walls did their job and contained the fire mostly to one building," said Preston.

Resident Rosa Hernandez said that she was not home when the fire started. "I had gone to Wilmington for a while because I heard about the Anthrax scare in Newark," said Hernandez. (See police briefs).

She was paged by a good friend. "She told me 'Rosa, you better go home and get your cat because there is a huge fire in the building next to you," recalled Hernnadez. Hernandex also said she heard the fire started when someone knocked over a candle.

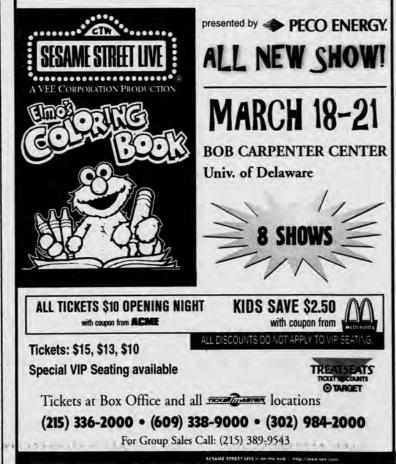

The fire marshall had not yet determined the cause of the fire on Tuesday.

Joan Tubbs said she and her husband, the complex's maintenance man, were alerted when a neighbor knocked on her door yelling to get out. "(My husband) just came home from open heart surgery last week," Tubbs added.

No residents were injured but four Aetna firefighters had minor injuries ranging from burns and lacerations to electric shock. None required hospitalization.

The Red Cross is working with the apartment management and residents.

City towing goes to Horton

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

This time Newark city council reversed their approach and followed the staff recommendation in awarding the two-year contract for the city's towing and impounding services.

Horton Brothers, which was given the contract two years ago, will continue to provide services under the new contract. Horton was recommended because their charge of $5 for daytime tows of passenger vehicles was lower than the $15 bid for that item by Ewing Towing, the only other bidder.

In awarding the contract in 1997, city council rejected the staff recommendation that the contract be given to the tow company with the lowest fee for daytime tows. Councilmembers said at that time they were concerned about requesting bid numbers for a variety of services but awarding the bid only on one item manager Carl Luft City explained this week that the staff gave the most weight to the charge for daytime tows of passenger vehicles because that's the charge in the majority of the calls indicated in a report on the last two years. "Of all the tows, 67 percent would get the (new charge of) $5," said Luft. "I can't explain it, but there it is."

City assistant Carol Houck said an analysis of the 2,190 tows done by Horton in the past two years showed 1,480 were in the daytime category which had a fee of $20 under the 1997 contract. The remaining 710 had higher charges due to winching, storage, etc. but only 68 of those amounted to $100 or more.

"I'm concerned because the cost has gone down steadily over the last few years," said councilmember Jerry Clifton. "(A tow company) can't afford to pay insurance, trucks and labor with this money so somewhere in here someone - meaning some person towed - is paying those charges.

However, Houck said the city only had 10 documented complaints connected with the towing services during the 22 months. "Four were for late responses, one was for an overcharge of $7.50 which was repaid, three people complained the telephone lines were not switched over (after hours), and two were complaints from city police officers about service," explained Houck.

Houck also stated that both Ewing and Horton previously performed this service for the city. "Each vendor had the contract in the past and is familiar with the business," said Houck. "They are free to bid as they see fit."

Councilmember Thomas Wampler said he understood the need to "weight" the items if the majority of the additional services were never charged to those towed. "I think this is a very fair way to do it," said Wampler.

Gerald Grant, councilmember from District 6, agreed. "This process seems to make the most sense to me," Grant said.

Houck said the city will be reviewing the towing charges monthly under the new contract and will be able to determine immediately if there is a problem with excess charges.

Christina seeks bilingual options for district students

Red Clay School officials said they are continuing with plans to eliminate that district as host to New Castle County's bilingual students despite a claim from at least one other district that the decision is not a unilateral one.

"Nothing can be done until a consensus is reached by the New Castle County School districts and the State Board of Education," said Christina District spokesperson John Holton.

For the past 18 years, the Red Clay District has served as the bilingual education host for all districts in the county. According to Ariadna Castaneda-Clare, Red Clay's supervisor for Bilingual/ESL education. the Latino population in Delaware has increased greatly and they simply can not accommodate everyone in the future.

"It is not that we do not want to host the program any longer, but we want the bilingual students to be acknowledged as part of their own community," said Clare. "Currently they are being bused away from their district in order to receive an education.'

Currently, 837 Spanish-speaking students, ages kindergarten through grade 12, who speak very little English are bused out of their home district to appointed schools and classrooms with bilingual teachers in the Red Clay District. The district's goal has been to hold on to each student approximately three years before mainstreaming them back into their own school district.

A year ago, however, Red Clay officials announced plans to resign as host and allow each New Castle County School District to accommodate bilingual students within their own community. "This is something that needs to be done,' said Clare. "It is happening now and we cannot put it off any longer."

She also said that beacuse of the language barrier of Latino parents, many have not been able to fully express their feelings about having their children bused away from their community for an education.

According to Holton, the Christina School District administrators wrote to the State Board of Education opposing these plans. "The number of bilingual students is growing, but not drastically," said Holton. "Currently five to six percent of students are bilingual."

Although the Christina School District is opposing the idea, the Christina's administration is preparing for a consensus in favor of Red Clay. "We are currently discussing what type of program we can implement," said Holton. "There are a lot of factors to consider, one being that the vast majority of bilingual students are (in elementary grades).'

Christina District has a contract with the English as a Second Language Program (ESL) for students speaking languages other than Spanish. Other teaching models also are being considered and Holton stressed the Christina District is committed to their bilingual students. -Sharon R. Cole

Parking changes coming

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Newark Parking Authority, recently absorbed and re-formed as a Parking Committee under the Downtown Newark Partnership, is changing in more ways than one. Meeting for the first time last week, the new committee voted to use "Downtown Newark Parking" as the official name for local parking.

Among parking projects in progress, DNP coordinator Maureen Roser explained the city will reconstruct Lot # 1 behind the site of the future Charcoal Pit, starting in August. "The new lot will have one entrance from Delaware Avenue, 30 extra spaces, and better internal traffic flow," said Roser.

Under serious consideration also is the addition of a second entrance to Lot #3 located behind Abbott's Shoe Repair off of Main Street which Roser said is considered difficult for parkers to find. Although no official subcommitteemember Richard Handloff, owner of National 5 & 10, said he heard a "street rumor" the University of Delaware has discussed building a privately-funded parking garage behind the Academy Building. In addition, the committee discussed possible long term plans to convert Lot #3 into a garage. However, Roser cautioned committee members that nothing has been decided about any parking garages.

Another issue currently under examination is the number of monthly permits assigned to each lot. Committee members proposed that a larger lot be designated for monthly permits in order to make space for daily parking. "With 50 names on the waiting list for a monthly permit, the city has stopped taking names until a decision is made on this proposal," said Roser.

Richard Waibel, a retired Newark business owner, suggested that the committee focus on making parking more user-friendly. "We could mission has been presented, committeemember Richard Handloff, owner of National 5 barking," said Waibel.

Committee member Ann Munyan added, "Especially for Lot # 4, many people are angry that they have to pay after only parking for a minute to leave things for Goodwill." According to committee members, although the Goodwill does validate, few people are aware of it. In addition, as with most businesses on Main Street, validation is not strongly advertised.

"The city considered the idea of using automated lots as opposed to manned lots, but in order to provide free valet parking the city would need more space allocated for parking," said Roser.

"Maybe we can hire a consultant, as we have in the past, to determine if we have sufficient parking already for this." The next meeting in scheduled for Wednesday, March 17

A youth center, although discussed at many public meetings, was also not planned at this time.

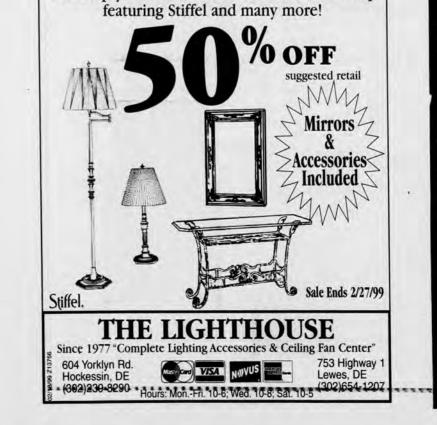

Newark Mayor Hal Godwin said he viewed the offer from Crown Vantage as a "late Christmas" present. "We were all jumping up and down, we were so excited," said Godwin. "I regard this site as a real gem for the city – I think part of it is on the National Register of Historic Places."

Godwin said the purchase was "too good an opportunity to pass up up. "It speaks well of Crown Vantage to offer this to the city at such favorable terms," said Godwin. "Of course, they get a tax write-off but it works for them, it works for us."

While Godwin agreed the site would not be home to a reservoir, he said this land and the neighboring property already housing the city's water treatment plant could lend itself to possible use in the water infrastructure.

Godwin said he would love to see some historical use made of the property. "A restaurant with a motif would be nice, but the city doesn't want to run a restauran win. "A community theatre was also suggested as a possibility. Godwin said he doesn't want to rush into anything soon, however, "We'll close it up properly, because we don't have any money to develop it right now," said Godwin. We should take it, keep it in storage, and think long and hard about what to do with it.' Crown Vantage closed the paper mill, formerly owned by Curtis Paper Company, as part of reorganization of the company in 1997. The mill on White Clay Creek in Newark with the word "Curtis" cemented into the tall brick smokestack had been operating since 1870, but mills were in that area as early as 1789. The current paper mill passed out of the hands of the Curtis family in 1926 but continued operations under successive owners until the closing. "I told the rest of council, whatever we do, the smokestack stays," said Godwin.

University endows chair for civil rights pioneer

State's first black lawyer honored

Louis L. Redding, the Delaware civil rights pioneer who died last September, will be memorialized with an endowed professorship at the University of Delaware, which he helped desegregate in 1949.

"What better way to honor this great man's legacy than to educate future leaders in the area of law and public policy?" said University president David P. Roselle.

Roselle said the Louis L. Redding Chair for the Study of Law and Public Policy in the College of Human Resources, Education and Public Policy will be filled by a scholar, teacher and community leader who will continue Redding's commitment to the use of the law to achieve social justice for all Americans

Redding, a graduate of Howard High School and an alumnus of Brown University and Harvard Law School, was Delaware's first black lawyer.

He supported efforts for civil rights during his distinguished career, and was instrumental in the desegregation of the University of Delaware in 1949. He also argued a case on behalf of black school children in Delaware that was one of the cases leading to the Supreme Court's decision in 1954 to desegregate U.S. public schools.

To endow the chair, friends of the University, friends of Louis Redding and other civic and business leaders are committed to raising at least $1 million. According to University officials, before the campaign was even announced publicly nearly $100,000 was raised toward the goal, most of it from law firms and members of the Delaware Bar.

The Redding professor will work with faculty, staff and students in the school's graduate School of Urban Affairs and Public Policy, focusing on the critical role of the law in public policy and social change.

As an active resource for the wider community, the Redding professor also will participate in research and public service projects for government agencies and community organizations.

Other public activities will include an annual conference on issues of race, diversity, law and public policy, which will include community leaders and recognized national scholars.

According to Jeffrey A. Raffel, University director of the school of urban affairs and public policy and author of the just-published "Historical Dictionary of School Segregation and Desegregation," the University of Delaware faculty have a longstanding commitment to research, public service and teaching in support of the values of equality and diversity. "We look forward to the Redding professor providing leadership and scholarship in the areas of law and public policy for the school, college, University and the nation," Raffel said.

Not all romance in marriage stats

A review of marriage and divorce statistics for New Castle County compiled by Clerk of the Peace Ken Boulden has revealed some very interesting trends.

The number of divorces recorded annually continues to drop to a seven-year low of 1,818; however, the number of marriages recorded is the lowest in 18 years, 2,908.

Curiously, Boulden's office issued 3,183 marriage licenses in 1998, which means 275 couples had a change of heart somewhat along the way.

The divorce rate is calculated by comparing marriages to divorces. Thus, the ratio of divorces recorded was 63 pecent; an increase of four percent compared to 1997. Historically, Delaware's marriage rate has consistently been below the national rate.

Further, New Castle County continues to have a much lower marriage rate per 1,000 population than Kent or Sussex counties.

According to Boulden, the median age for all marriages has steadily increased since 1990. By the end of this year, Boulden expects the median age for both brides and grooms to be above 30.

Of the couples that divorce, more than 60 percent are married less than 10 years, and more than 30 percent are married less than five years, and more than 50 percent of those couples have children under 18 years of age.

Overall, it was a busy year for New Castle County's Clerk of the Peace. Boulden officiated approximately 600 civil ceremonies during 1998.

The Transportation Management Center has been operating about 12 hours a day/seven days a week in a former house owned by DelDOT at Routes 1 and 72 in Bear. Staff at the center monitors traffic throughout the state and provides current information to the public as well as coordinate DelDOT operations with police, fire, rescue, natural resources and emergency management.

Williams said DelDOT has determined 250 miles of state roads need the ITMS measures, which include camera monitors, traffic signalization programs, electronic toll collection, and other electronic traffic programs. "The three areas indicated here, as well as Route 1 in Rehoboth, are the first because they are very heavy traffic areas," said Williams.

Less extensive ITMS measures have already been implemented in some areas of New Castle County, including Newark. "The traffic signalization system which has orked well in Newark is one of them," said Williams. "The other is synchronized signals along part of Route 896 in the Middletown-Odessa area, including the intersections of Route 13 and Bayview Avenue, as well as some in downtown Middletown."

Not all romance in marriage stats

A review of marriage and divorce statistics for New Castle County compiled by Clerk of the Peace Ken Boulden has revealed some very interesting trends.

The number of divorces recorded annually continues to drop to a seven-year low of 1,818; however, the number of marriages recorded is the lowest in 18 years, 2,908.

Curiously, Boulden's office issued 3,183 marriage licenses in 1998, which means 275 couples had a change of heart somewhat along the way.

The divorce rate is calculated by comparing marriages to divorces. Thus, the ratio of divorces recorded was 63 pecent; an increase of four percent compared to 1997. Historically, Delaware's marriage rate has consistently been below the national rate.

Further, New Castle County continues to have a much lower marriage rate per 1,000 population than Kent or Sussex counties.

According to Boulden, the median age for all marriages has steadily increased since 1990. By the end of this year, Boulden expects the median age for both brides and grooms to be above 30.

Of the couples that divorce, more than 60 percent are married less than 10 years, and more than 30 percent are married less than five years, and more than 50 percent of those couples have children under 18 years of age.

Overall, it was a busy year for New Castle County's Clerk of the Peace. Boulden officiated approximately 600 civil ceremonies during 1998.

The Transportation Management Center has been operating about 12 hours a day/seven days a week in a former house owned by DelDOT at Routes 1 and 72 in Bear. Staff at the center monitors traffic throughout the state and provides current information to the public as well as coordinate DelDOT operations with police, fire, rescue, natural resources and emergency management.

Williams said DelDOT has determined 250 miles of state roads need the ITMS measures, which include camera monitors, traffic signalization programs, electronic toll collection, and other electronic traffic programs. "The three areas indicated here, as well as Route 1 in Rehoboth, are the first because they are very heavy traffic areas," said Williams.

Less extensive ITMS measures have already been implemented in some areas of New Castle County,

"The other is synchronized signals along part of Route 896 in the Middletown-Odessa area, including the intersections of Route 13 and Bayview Avenue, as well as some in downtown Middletown."

INSPECTION ONE HOUR PRIOR TO AUCTION

Decisions are a struggle

THE CITY MANAGER SAID IT was "deja vu' all over again as city council struggled to understand and award a towing contract with various charges on Monday night.

Two years ago, the staff recommended awarding the contract to the company with the lowest daytime tow fee. The recommendation was based on an analysis of the previous towing records which were sketchy and unclear.

Council discussed the bids for two hours and finally went their own way by giving the contract to the company with the lowest total charges.

That didn't really make the most sense, because no one towed is ever charged for every item.

This time staff made their same recommendation for a weighted versus bottom-line award following an even more extensive analysis of the actual tows done under the previous contract. City council held a shorter but still spirited discussion and decided to accept the recommendation. The city manager was relieved if not necessarily happy. "We came in not knowing how you would vote on it just as we did two years ago," he commented, indicating it was difficult to know how to proceed without clear direction from the "bosses" on council. The tow companies were also annoyed because they tried to bid in a way which would get the result of two years ago and lost again.

We agree in one sense. It is annoying when you can't predict which way the wind is blowing.

But we applaud council's honest efforts to arrive at a fair and equitable bid without worrying overmuch about how inept their struggle may appear at times.

The 'sainting' and damning of Elaine Hall at Stepford College

By MARVIN HUMMEL

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

T^O REALLY UNDERSTAND the "sainting" and subsequent damning of Elaine Hall, you have to know something about the college and its town. Easterville was a very small town whose entire livelihood and interest were the college, which was very small, very good academically, but inbred to the point of danger, and crossbred with the town to the point of embarrassment.

The "townies" were all graduates of the little church-related college, Stepford, and whether you bought a book, a toothbrush, or a milkshake, the owner was an alum, often knew you by name, and had received the current opinion of you over the oral Internet.

The faculty were scary - a father and a

Dee. Her family had gone to Ohio State, a public school, and somehow Elaine had been allowed to be part of the Stepford College. But dating Roy Dee? Town and gown agreed – that was pushing it a bit.

Roy Dee had been an All-American in high school, had 1600 on his SATS, and most especially, had Stepford ties on both sides back to the founders. Elaine's effrontery of dating Roy was discussed severally in the faculty lounge and the grocery store (owned by an alum); even as immigrants were once grudgingly allowed to land in the US, they weren't, nevertheless, to date the established breeds. Enough is, after all, enough.

Until one day Roy Dee was diagnosed as having a fatal disease, one brought on by a football injury – the disease had 27 letters in its name and quickly turned his complexion a bilious yellow.

He suddenly went down from 195 pounds of gridiron toughness to 115 pounds of barely-covered bones. His recessed-raisin eyes flashed at you with hot hatred – he would be dead at 21 and you would live a meaningless life for another 100 years.

And Elaine not only continued dating him but actually accepted an engagement ring from him in that fatal condition because he needed to feel that he "belonged" to some living thing.

May move Heiser House

It has been learned from good authority that the Heiser home, on Main Street next to the College Library, is to be moved to a new site on East Delaware Avenue soon. Estimates on the cost of the removal have been received by two or three large firms, specialists in this kind of work.

Mr. and Mrs. Heiser and family are moving this week into the house on West Delaware Avenue, recently vacated by Professor and Mrs. R.W. Heim. And it's not something teachers, administrators and students will be jumping into without any preparation.

So a task force, set up the Interim Board in October, has come up with awareness workshops, student orientation programs, and in-service staff projects to prepare students of 11 New Castle County Schools and staff for desegregation.

'Citizens should support far-seeing, responsible effort'

To: The editor

From: Paul E. Murray Silverbrook

Thanks for your lead editorial on Feb. 12 about the water workshop conducted by Newark City Council. Had it not been for that heads up, I and another Silverbrook resident would have missed the meeting.

It was an excellent, informative workshop. The presentations were clear and well-prepared. Council's questions dealt with many topics of concern and were answered.

After hearing so many reports of rancorous meetings in Council, I was pleased to see all working in harmony and most professionally.

It is heartening to see Council's efforts to meet the water need of our community. Some of us have been patiently waiting for solutions to our water problems for years. Neither the State nor New Castle County are working water supply issues north of the canal. The City of Newark is, and all its citizens should support their far-seeing, responsible efforts.

Thanks again for your good efforts

Two concerns about Carper plan

To: The editor

From: Robert P. Bartley Jr. B&D Electric

My wife and I own an electrical subcontracting company, which we established in 1974

Today, we employ approximately 150 people. We do contracting work in Delaware and Maryland.

A large percentage of our work is State of Delaware competitive contracts.

Our company belongs to Associated Builders and Contractors as well as Delaware Contractors Association

I am writing today because I am very concerned with the Carper administration's consideration of the Project Labor Agreements (PLAs) or union-only agreements for state contracts.

My concern is two-fold.

First, by enacting a PLA, our free enterprise system will be set aside.

This is the system that has brought our country and Delaware to where it is today. We believe in the right of all Delaware citizens to work on any and all of Delaware's construction jobs, whether they are affiliated with a union or not. We believe that anyone who wants to, should have the right to belong to a union. We have several family members who belong to unions.

Second, by the proposing this agreement, the administration is dividing the people of Delaware. This issue will force every contractor and every construction worker to take sides. Currently, we at B&D Electric are involved in several projects with general contractors, construction managers and subcontractors who are affiliated with various unions. My own personal experience in working on job sites along side of members of union firms has always been harmonious.

By just announcing that his administration is considering signing a PLA, Governor Carper has started to destroy years of cooperation on job sites between union and non-union firms.

I was disheartened when I heard a colleague state that he was resigning from a trade organization with both union and non-union members because that association would not support him in his fight against PLAs.

'She walked around with the kind of black eyes sunglasses can't disguise'

HUMMEL, from 6

Near the end, she walked around with the kind of black eyes sunglasses can't disguise, and the more beat up she became, the more town and gown adored her. Her sorority made Elaine Sister of the Year for her "loving sacrifices for another." Some nights we would be awakened by her sobs coming from "that room.

My complaints and desire to protect Elaine were roundly condemned by fraternity brothers, by at least one professor, and in the drug store by the owner. They all loved her, and the more beat up she was, the closer she came to sainthood!

... She was brinking on insanity and had to * walk away or take a mental space ship to the moon on a one-way trip."

One day far too late, she gave back Roy Dee's ring - she was brinking on insanity and had to walk away or take a mental space ship to the moon on a one-way trip. Roy Dee had to go home where he beat up his nurses and his mother, even on his last day. Town and gown members were too modern to think they could burn Elaine at the stake, but they made sure that she never went anywhere in Easterville without feeling their communal wrath and contempt. She knew better than to go to church, and some of us went to the stores for

We talked her out of quitting school, which the town and gown thought was the least she could do after such an abject betrayal. Her sorority sisters reclaimed their Woman of the Year trophy and used a metal sander to remove her name.

She didn't, of course, go to graduation where Roy Dee's mother received his diploma posthumously; and, after a dozen written requests, the last three sent by registered mail and on her lawyer's stationery, Elaine was finally sent her own diploma. So far as I know, Elaine has never gone back for Homecoming. Nor have I.

OUTLOOK You deserve

■ Newark Outlook is a regular feature, prepared each week by staff members of the University of Delaware's Cooperative Extention Office in Newark.

UNCH: To eat or not to eat is never the question. A lunch break is our right, even for those of us who keep working as we eat. The real question is "What's for lunch - and is it safe and economical?"

Believe it or not, being safe and being trendy sometimes go hand-in hand. In grade school, our self-image was somehow tied to the popularity or coolness of our lunch box.

These days, you might notice that some people like to carry their lunch in a nylon-insulated bag. It's a good idea.

Not only are they bright By Maria Pippidis and colorful, those bags help keep perishable foods at a safer temperature below 40 degrees or above 140 degrees F. Ice packs and thermos bottles also help keep food in that safe zone.

Others seem to prefer the brown bag, which can be alleyooped into the waste can and forgotten after lunch, but offers little protection against the rigors of room temperature. My sister even packs her lunch - Greek olives, a hunk of feta cheese, and two pieces of hard toast - in a plastic department store bag, which she stuffs into her briefcase.

You can be economical while still being trendy. Let's say you have a power lunch coming up. Pack a sandwich and yogurt and eat them just before leaving for the restaurant. Then you can order a dainty salad, consume it graciously, without spoiling your shirtfront or manicure, and have plenty of time to talk without a mouthful of food. It's a good idea unless, of course, someone else is buying.

More BUSINESSES, more people... now more lawyers. Newark's continual growth calls for more community services and native son Mark D. Sisk said he is responding to that call.

The former city prosecutor for Newark and counsel to the Newark Parking Authority has come back to open a second law office only four years after leaving the city to join a Wilmington law firm.

According to Sisk, he was already thinking about opening a local office during an interview for the Newark Post four years ago when he stated he wanted to better serve the community.

Sisk kept his word and now greets clients in his new office at 299 E. Main Street as well as at his Wilmington office. He shares space with Newark attorney Thomas Ferry in a brick building across from Market East Plaza.

The timing could not be better for Sisk or Newark. With 14 years as a prosecutor and an additional four as a defense attorney, Sisk feels that he is at the peak of his career, and Newark is at its peak as a city. "Newark has plenty of room for more lawyers," Sisk said. "Because of my experience with Newark and my ongoing relationship with University of Delaware organizations, I wanted to establish a more convenient and visible presence here."

The Newark High School graduate started down this road in 1972 when he decided to transfer from the University of Delaware, where he was a history major, to pre-law at Haverford College in Pennsylvania.

After graduation from Villanova Law School, Sisk returned to Newark and was hired as the Deputy City Solicitor. Because of his interest in criminal law, he also was offered the position as City Prosecutor.

"I was able to learn both sides of the law by observing and working with polished attorneys such as Joe Hurley, Gene Maurer and Louie Ferrara," he said of his experience during that time.

Sisk said the decision to become a lawyer has brought many coincidences in his life.

In 1968, Sisk worked at Porter Chevrolet along with Hal Godwin, the dealership's mechanic at the time. Then a long-haired hippie, Sisk never dreamed that in 30 years he would be a lawyer winning a case for Godwin long after the "mechanic" became a city councilmember. Another irony surfaced in the mid-1980's when Sisk was involved in drafting Newark's noise ordinance. "During the late 60's, I might have been in violation of the ordinance," said a smiling Sisk. Sisk now defends clients primarily on matters of family primarily on matters of family law, estate planning, criminal defense, and real estate. And while he will have regular hours here, his partners, Hughes and Glancy, will be available in the Newark office by appointment only. "I believe in Newark as a place to be," Sisk said this week. "I left said this week. "I left a considerable investment in this community and I plan on continuing my contribution to its growth."

those over-packaged lunch-in-aplastic-tray combinations. They defeat the economic advantage of packing your lunch. Finishing off last night's leftovers saves the most money. And, it is often more nutritious than quick-lunch foods.

Some people say that variety in the lunch box will keep us happy. Here's another idea: Whether packing your own lunch or that of a family member, enclose an inspirational saying, last night's unread funnies, or a note to brighten the day. Slipping in an errand reminder can also help especially when work gets hectic.

And, here's what to do if you are afraid you won't have time in the morning to pack your lunch. Prepare and freeze sandwiches ahead of time and then pull one out as you go out the door. Add a piece of fruit and you've got a great lunch in moments.

You deserve a lunch break

Newark Outlook is a regular feature, prepared each week by staff members of the University of Delaware's Cooperative Extention Office in Newark.

UNCH: To eat or not to eat is never the question. A lunch break is our right, even for those of us who keep working as we eat. The real question is "What's for lunch - and is it safe and economical?"

Believe it or not, being safe and being trendy sometimes go hand-in hand. In grade school, our self-image was somehow tied to the popularity or coolness of our lunch box. These days, you might notice that some people like to carry their lunch in a nylon-insulated bag. It's a good idea.

Not only are they bright By Maria Pippidis and colorful, those bags help keep perishable foods at a safer temperature below 40 degrees or above 140 degrees F. Ice packs and thermos bottles also help keep food in that safe zone.

Others seem to prefer the brown bag, which can be alleyooped into the waste can and forgotten after lunch, but offers little protection against the rigors of room temperature. My sister even packs her lunch - Greek olives, a hunk of feta cheese, and two pieces of hard toast - in a plastic department store bag, which she stuffs into her briefcase.

You can be economical while still being trendy. Let's say you have a power lunch coming up. Pack a sandwich and yogurt and eat them just before leaving for the restaurant. Then you can order a dainty salad, consume it graciously, without spoiling your shirtfront or manicure, and have plenty of time to talk without a mouthful of food. It's a good idea unless, of course, someone else is

More BUSINESSES, more people... now more lawyers. Newark's continual growth calls for more community services and native son Mark D. Sisk said he is responding to that call.

The former city prosecutor for Newark and counsel to the Newark Parking Authority has come back to open a second law office only four years after leaving the city to join a Wilmington law firm.

According to Sisk, he was already thinking about opening a local office during an interview for the Newark Post four years ago when he stated he wanted to better serve the community.

Sisk kept his word and now greets clients in his new office at 299 E. Main Street as well as at his Wilmington office. He shares space with Newark attorney Thomas Ferry in a brick building across from Market East Plaza.

The timing could not be better for Sisk or Newark. With 14 years as a prosecutor and an additional four as a defense attorney, Sisk feels that he is at the peak of his career, and Newark is at its peak as a city. "Newark has plenty of room for more lawyers," Sisk said. "Because of my experience with Newark and my ongoing relationship with University of Delaware organizations, I wanted to establish a more convenient and visible presence here."

The Newark High School graduate started down this road in 1972 when he decided to transfer from the University of Delaware, where he was a history major, to pre-law at Haverford College in Pennsylvania.

After graduation from Villanova Law School, Sisk returned to Newark and was hired as the Deputy City Solicitor. Because of his interest in criminal law, he also was offered the position as City Prosecutor.

"I was able to learn both sides of the law by observing and working with polished attorneys such as Joe Hurley, Gene Maurer and Louie Ferrara," he said of his experience during that time.

Sisk said the decision to become a lawyer has brought many coincidences in his life. In 1968, Sisk worked at Porter Chevrolet along with Hal Godwin, the dealership's mechanic at the time. Then a long-haired hippie, Sisk never dreamed that in 30 years he would be a lawyer winning a case for Godwin long after the "mechanic" became a city councilmember. Another irony surfaced in the mid-1980's when Sisk was involved in drafting Newark's noise ordinance. "During the late 60's, I might have been in violation of the ordinance," said a smiling Sisk.

NG HON

Sisk now defends clients primarily on matters of family law, estate planning, criminal defense, and real estate. And while he will have regular hours here, his partners, Hughes and Glancy, will be available in the Newark office by appointment only. "I believe in Newark as a place to be," Sisk said this week. "I left a considerable investment in this community and I plan on continuing my contribution to its growth."

buying.

If you "eat in" a lot, resist the temptation of stocking up on those over-packaged lunch-in-aplastic-tray combinations. They defeat the economic advantage of packing your lunch. Finishing off last night's leftovers saves the most money. And, it is often more nutritious than quick-lunch foods.

Some people say that variety in the lunch box will keep us happy. Here's another idea: Whether packing your own lunch or that of a family member, enclose an inspirational saying, last night's unread funnies, or a note to brighten the day. Slipping in an errand reminder can also help especially when work gets hectic.

And, here's what to do if you are afraid you won't have time in the morning to pack your lunch. Prepare and freeze sandwiches ahead of time and then pull one out as you go out the door. Add a piece of fruit and you've got a great lunch in moments.

S UMMER HILL resident Allison Kleinschmidt, 8, is one of sixteen dancers on two teams from The McAleer School of Irish Dance competing in the World Irish Figure Dancing Championships in Ennis, Ireland, in March.

The teams placed 3rd and 5th at the Eastern Regional Competition in Philadelphia on Nov. 27 which qualified McAleer dancers to compete in the World competition for the first time in 27 years.

The honor is doubly special for the 3rd-grade student at St. Peter School in New Castle. Although Kleinschmidt has only been dancing for two years, her mother was one of those McAleer dancers competing 27 years ago at the World Championships held in Dublin, Ireland.

Fabulous Fun Days and music combi

ONCERTS of great music and Fabulous Fun Days for Families combine next month to make Longwood Gardens an important stop on every reader's performing arts schedule.

Priscilla Johnson, performing arts director at Longwood, is surpassing her own outstanding record of bringing quality performers all can enjoy. Other performing arts presenters might well take note of what is going on just over the Delaware state line in Kennett Square, Pa.

On Saturday, March 6, the Family Fun Days get underway with a folk music concert in the Conservatory Ballroom at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Red Grammer, an award-winning children's song writer and per-former will offer "Hello, World." It is a special grandparent's day concert.

After the performances there will be a pot-a-plant activity for the children and a fun filled plant hunt.

On Sunday, March 7 at 2:20 p.m. in the Conservatory Ballroom, John Conner a well-known concert organist will present 19th and 20th century organ music from England, France and Germany featuring the works of Frank, Mendelssohn, Preston, Bridge, Ives and Thalben-Ball.

This is Mr. Conner's Longwood debut.

The following Saturday, Barbara and Gerhardt Suhrstedt will offer a children's program called "East Meets West" in the Ballroom at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

It is a program which compares songs, dances and customs from the 19th century in Russia and the United States. Music of Tchaikovsky, Moussorgsky, Rimsky-Korsakov, Stephen Foster, Scott Joplin and John Philip Sousa will be featured. Education, fun and great music all rolled into one performance that's hard to beat.

Be sure to be a wearin' the green if you are coming to Longwood on Sunday, March 14 because Timlin and Kane will be presenting an Irish Concert just three days before the great saint's day, March 17. The title of the show is "A Celtic Fantasy."

The duo has been together over twenty years with vocals, guitar, banjo, mandolin, fiddle and bass.

They have a number of recordings on the market and have appeared in the Bethlehem (Pa.) Musikfest and Celtic Classic and the Shawnee Irish Festival.

Sunday, March 21, will find a piano recital in the Conservatory Ballroom with Nina Lelchuck at the She will offer keyboard. Beethoven's Sonata No. 23 in F minor, "Appossionata;" Schubert Impromptus from Opus 20; Rachmaninov's Four Preludes from Opus 23; and Chopin favorites - Nocturne No. 27 in D Major, Fantasia-Impromptu in C sharp minor and the Waltz in A Major, Op. 42. The performance begins at 2:30 p.m.

A Little Princess" is the offering of the Artspower National Touring Theater at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Saturday, March 27.

This musical adaptation of Frances Hodgson Burnett's "The Secret Garden" traces Sara Crewe's riches-to-rags journey as she discovers how true friendship conquers Renown pianist Nina Lelchuk will appear in the Longwood Gardens performing arts series next month.

the power of money.

An organ and vocal concert featuring Don Kinnier, organ, and Judy Townsend, soprano, will conclude the performing arts series for March on Sunday, the 28th. Their program is called "Garden Varieties." They bill it as familiar and unfamiliar songs from the 1890s to the 1990s.

That rather covers the waterfront! The concert is in the Conservatory Ballroom at 2:20 p.m.

Prices for the Fabulous Fun Days for Families are $13 for adults, $7 for ages 16 to 20, $5 for ages 1 to 15.

The concert series including John Conner, Timlin and Kane and Don Kinnier and Judy Townsend are free with garden admission. The Nina Lelchuk concert also free but advance reservations are required.

By the way, if you do want to make a day of it with a performance, tour of the gardens, et al., the Ter-race Restaurant located near the Conservatory will be open for self service and full service dining.

Garden highlights this time of year include acacias, amaryllis, camellias, clivias, sytissus, delphiniumns marguerite daises, orchids, pansies, primroses, tulips and much more. For more information you may call 610-388-1000.

Art is a risky business

LLUSTRATOR Thomas Telle Reynolds, left, "had a good time" drawing pictures of masks made and worn by Native Americans which will be exhibited in April at the Newark Municipal Building.

According to Reynolds, the natives of North America believed spirits controlled their lives and their environment, and were responsible for their health, their crops, and the weather. In order to please the spirits, Native Americans performed rituals during which select members of the tribes made and wore the masks.

Reynolds said the masks were made from gourds, sea-shells, animal skins, wood, driftwood, and animal skulls. The masks resembling humans had distorted facial features. "These masks were ingeniously made," said the Tyre Avenue resident. "They were abstract in design, and amazingly modern-looking. A high degree of imagination and creativity went into their making."

Some masks were elaborately designed and decorated, others were simple. Many masks were quite humorous, according to Reynolds.

The illustrations of the masks that will be displayed were drawn with felt-tipped markers, and pencil on cardstock. There will be fifteen 12x16inch drawings in black and white.

"Drawing Indian masks is something new for me," said the artist. "This has been my most ambitious artistic project, and an educational experience, as well."

Reynolds' stepfather started him in art when he was a small child. "He used to take my drawings and show them to people where he worked, and he bragged about me to my teachers at school," said

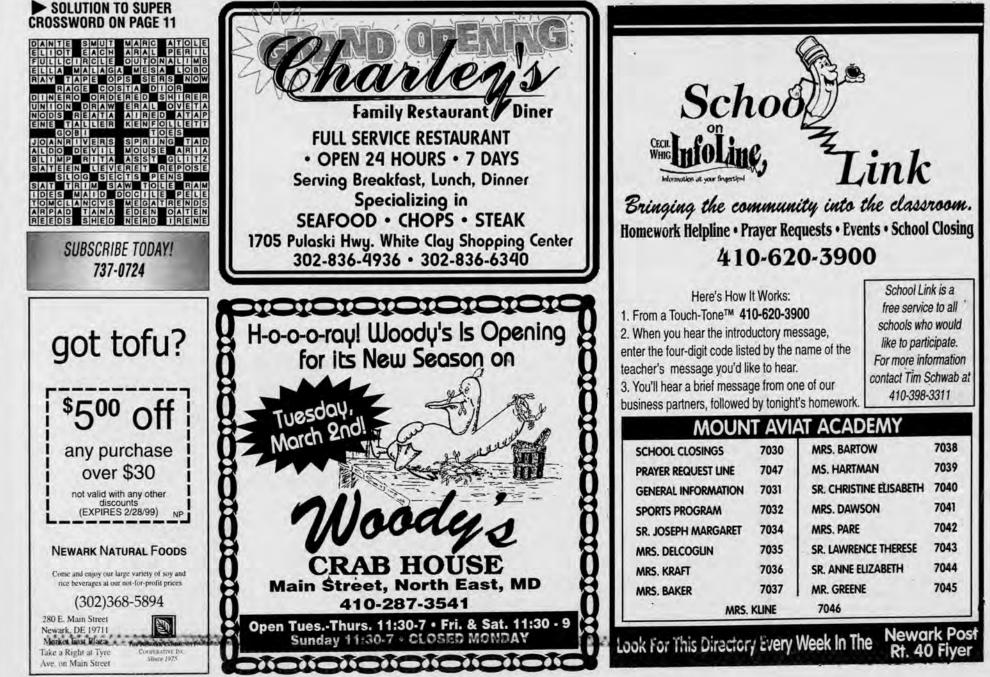

Reynolds.

Reynolds believes art is a risky business, and artists have to be risk-takers. "You have to be willing to look foolish and take chances, and you have to be shamelessly enthusiastic about what you do and what you want to accomplish," he said "An artist has to be his or her own raw material."

To Reynolds, the process of accomplishing something can be more important than the actual accomplishment. "Someone once told me that I keep trying to reinvent the wheel," he said. "I also keep trying to reinvent myself."

Reynolds has had his landscape drawings printed up on postcards which were sold at O'Donald's variety store in Old New Castle. "I also make my own greeting cards," he said.

His work has been exhibited twice at the Wilmington Public Library, and at the Newark Free Library.

Spartans seek sixth straight swimming title

By DAVID HUGHES

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Year after year the St. Mark's girls swimming team makes a huge splash.

The Spartans have dominated for so long, it's hard to remember the last time they lost a meet. Their current win streak of 123 is one of the nation's longest, and they're fully expected to celebrate their sixth straight state title this weekend at the University of Delaware.

"The place is almost like a factory," said coach Rob Maegerle of his school's perennial swimming prowess. "People leave and they're replaced by someone else just as good, they come in and they're great. It's unbelievable. I don't want to say that I don't have to do much coaching, but these kids sure take care of business when they get in the pool.'

Maegerle, whose team went 11-0 this winter, is actually new to all this glory. He took over the coaching reins this year from Mike Ramone, and the program hasn't skipped a beat. St. Mark's remains awash in outstanding swimmers, and the scary thing is a lot of them are freshmen and sophomores.

St. Mark's top girl is Lisa Morelli, a mere 10th grader who Maegerle describes as "basically See SWIMMING, 18 ► the Silver Eagles had won eight of 13 weight classes.

Eight seconds into overtime, Zenorini won it with a takedown, putting a heavy exclamation point on Hodgson's third consecutive conference title.

Hodgson, who qualified its entire 13-man team for this weekend's state tournament, finished first in the 15-team field with 303.5 points.

William Penn, which will send 11 to the states, was second with 243.5. Hodgson's Jordan Sianni (103 pounds), Mike Welch (119), James Taylor (125), Marc Rispoli (135), Ryan Smith (145), Derrick Davis (160), Tom Donahue (171), and Jason Anker (189) also won titles.

Sianni and Anker each had pins, while Rispoli won by a technical fall.

Those efforts came only days after Hodgson had won its third consecutive Division II state title.

"We had a great weekend. Better than what we expected," said Hodgson Coach Jerry Lamey. "We knew that all our guys are talented, hard, tough kids; that they're capable of doing what they did. But whenever you come off a big week like winning the (dual meet) state title, you never class left him tied with ex-teammate Bruce Kelly's mark of 141 at Saturday's Independent Schools meet.

Santoro, who won two matches to equal Kelly, admitted frustration at having the record delayed. But he won't have any trouble setting the new standard at this weekend's individual state meet at Delaware State. Though Santoro said it will be an honor to get the record, he didn't want the distraction hanging over him as he enters the states. He claims the record isn't that important to him anyway.

"I wanted to get it today so I wouldn't have to think about it at the states, I didn't want it to be a big deal going into the states," he said after the Independent meet ended.

Santoro was one of 12 Spartans, including twin brother Brian Santoro at 171 pounds, to qualify for the states. St. Mark's crowned 10 champions at the Independent meet.

"It's a great day for him, it's just that he was looking for-ward to breaking it today," St. Mark's coach Steve Bastianelli said of Santoro. "He only had two matches, so it was kind of disappointing."

Santoro is 141-22 in his four-year career and 33-3 this sea-son. Though he always admired Kelly, and previous St. Mark's record-setter Kyle Talley before him, Santoro has mixed feelings about the wins record.

"It's not that big of a deal to me as people probably think," he said. "To me a kid like Bruce Kelly [now a freshman

McFarland leaves A.I. du Pont girls soccer a success

St. Mark's graduate seeks more time for professional career

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

St. Mark's High graduate Mike McFarland, who coached Alexis I. du Pont's girls soccer team to its third consecutive state championship last spring, quit the position in late December to concentrate on other pursuits, including his professional playing career, he said Tuesday. McFarland, 27, who is also a member of the Delaware Wizards pro soccer team, will remain an assistant coach of the boys team at St. Mark's

"I'm going to be focusing on playing with the Wizards," said McFarland, who is a resident of Newark. "My (playing) time last year was limited. This might be my last good run with them.

"I had put so much time and passion into coaching, it kind of took away from my time with the Wizards.

" Things (at AI) went very successfully and I'm definitely disappointed (at losing), but I just want to focus on the Wizards." The Wizards began training a month ago.

In his two seasons at AI, McFarland coached the Tigers to a 37-1 record.

The Tigers finished ranked 14th nationally each year by the National Soccer Coaches Association of America.

McFarland led the state in scoring the fall of his senior year - 1988 - and was also named to the First Team All-State squad. He was a third-team all-state selection as a junior. Former Glasgow High goalie Fran Kulas, who is an assistant coach for the men's soccer team at the University of Delaware, is expected to succeed McFarland at AL

AI athletic director Bill Yelsh said Kulas' selection has to be approved by the Red Clay school board.

Christiana boys top Glasgow Vikings clinch second place in Flight A with 69-63 victory

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Christiana High used its advanatge in height and quickness over visiting Glasgow to earn a 69-63 victory last Friday in a Blue Hen Conference Flight A game that was significant for both teams.

The victory for the Vikings, who were already assured of a state tournament berth, clinched second place in the Blue Hen Conference Flight A standings with a 10-4 record. Christiana, 13-8 overall, had nonconference games remaining against Concord and Ferris this week.

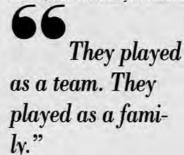

State tournament seedings were to be decided Sunday.

"I really liked the way they played tonight," said Christiana Coach Ron Hollis, whose team stumbled in a 69-57 loss at McKean in a Flight A game two nights earlier

They played as a team. They played as a family. If they continue to play like that, they could be a surprise in the tournament."

Glasgow (6-7, 10-9), meanwhile, although not guaranteed a statetournament berth, had a game left to play against Salesianum.

We've been playing about as well as I can expect a young team to, because right now, we make a lot of young mistakes at crucial times," said Glasgow Coach Donald Haman, who starts only one senior.

Against Christiana, the Dragons trailed 11-8 after the first quarter and 30-24 at halftime.

Christiana's Virgil Rush had eight points at the break, while teammates Jaron Johnson and Garry Haile each had five.

Alvin Walker paced Glasgow with eight points, including his second three-pointer of the game at the buzzer. Teammates Derrick Coursey had six and Shane Mundy had five.

Christiana, paced by six points from Rush and Greg Brown, led 49-39 after three quarters.

Midway through the fourth quarter, Johnson sank a free throw, then missed the second. But Brown snared the rebound and scored to give Christiana a 65-52 lead. Glasgow closed to within 65-58 late in the game, but Christiana couldn't be caught. Glasgow's Shane Mundy nailed a three-pointer at the buzzer.

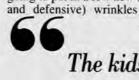

"At first, we weren't a family, but we've come together now," said Johnson. "On any given night, when everybody shows up, we're the best team in the state."

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK PAT ATKINSON - CARAVEL

By DAVID HUGHES

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Pat Atkinson just turned 14 several weeks ago. He's an eighth-grader at Caravel Academy, and at first glance would appear to be a long way from stardom on the varsity athletic level.

But the pint-sized Atkinson is already making a name for himself. He pulled off one of the biggest surprises of this winter sports season in last Saturday's Independent Schools qualifying wrestling meet at Salesianum.

Atkinson not only dominated the 112-pound class, he was voted the Independent meet's outstanding wrestler in a vote of the meet's coaches. This was the same meet that featured mighty St. Mark's, which crowned 10 individual champions, and other top wrestlers from established programs such as Salesianum and Tower Hill.

"The award is great, I never won an outstanding wrestler award before in any meet, and to do it as an eighth grader and in this meet, it's just unbelievable," he said. "I came in motivated for the states, but I knew I had to get this first. Now I can go to the states and hopefully I'll do well there too.

"I knew if I worked as hard as I could that good things would come, but it is surprising to get this award."

Atkinson, 27-1 this season, credited his parents and his coach at Caravel, Darren Archangelo, for his sudden success.

"I love the sport, and I told my parents I wanted to wrestle as much as I can," he said. "This outstanding wrestler award goes to them as much as it does to me.

"Coach Archangelo has been through the states [at Claymont High] and he wrestled in college and did well. He knows what it takes. In the wrestling room I just rely on him to tell me what to do."

Atkinson will join Caravel teammates Brent Schreiber (171) and Randy Saw (119) at the individual state meet this weekend at Delaware State.

Schreiber, who picked up his 100th career victory at the Independent meet, placed third in the states last year. He has a 26-3 record this season. Schreiber placed second at the Independent meet, and Saw was fourth.

Caravel is a small school and doesn't have a huge wrestling tradition. But maybe Atkinson and his teammates can start to give the Bucs a reputation.

"I want to do well at the states, and I hope the other guys do well also," said Atkinson. "This is a great thrill for me going to the states, and I want to show that I'm a good wrestler."

wrestling at Lehigh] deserves it more than I do, with his credentials and everything. But it will be an honor to get it."

Brother Brian Santoro told a different story. He said his brother definitely looked forward to owning the record.

"Oh yeah, he always gave Bruce heat about breaking the record. He said, 'You'll only have the record for one year,' " said Brian Santoro, who is 77-15 in three years of varsity and 29-8 this season.

"It's been great watching him get to this record. When he won 30 as a freshman I knew he had a chance to get it."

Bastianelli said Brian Santoro played a significant role in his brother equalling Kelly's mark.

"Without a doubt, Brian helped in terms of being close to his brother and the fact they really pushed each other," said Bastianelli.

"They've both always shown great determination. Peter got to this record with four years of working hard and being dedicated to wrestling."

Only seven wrestlers were on the Independent meet draw sheet at 189 (Tatnall did not compete in the meet, and several other individuals dropped out). Since Santoro was the top seed, he got a first-round bye. He picked up a pair of wins, nitely peaking at the right time."

BRIAN SANTORO

including an 18-3 technical fall over Friends' Alec Johnson in the finals.

The Santoros led another dominating performance by St. Mark's, which was coming off its third straight Division I state dual-meet championship.

Also winning Independent titles were freshman Andrew Donofrio (119), Matt McConnell (who recorded a 35-second pin in the finals at 125), freshman Chris Collins (130), Kyle Herbein (135), John Leyh (140), Bill Murphy (145), Shawn Willis (152) and Jeff Grieder (160).

St. Mark's won eight individual state titles last year, including both Santoros.

The Spartans will have a hard time repeating that feat, but they're confident they can do well.

"I feel real good about our team right now," said Peter Santoro. "We've been wrestling real well, and hopefully we can follow that up with another good performance."

"We're definitely peaking at the right time," said Brian Santoro. "We've gotten so much better since the beginning of the year it's unreal."

know coming into a tournament with good competition.

"The Blue Hen Conference is tough. William Penn, Glasgow, Howard and Concord are all quality teams. And with William Penn back in the conference, we really didn't know what to expect. So we really worked hard and we wanted our kids to come out and be aggressive."

William Penn won the other four titles: Greg Quailes (112), Joe Ferrara (130), James Fromal (140), and Ray Calloway (152). Calloway pinned Hodgson's Anthony Adams 19 seconds into the third period with a heavy takedown that left Adams writhing in pain with bruised ribs.

Including the semifinal round, Hodgson won five of seven matches from William Penn, which will send 11 wrestlers to the states.

Hodgson's James Taylor (bottom) eventually got the upper hand to beat McKean's Will Cintron 6-4 at 125 pounds.

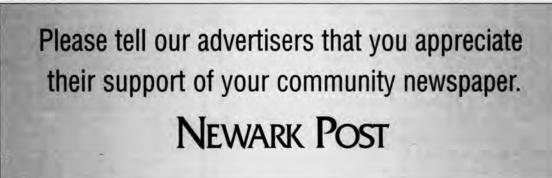

Glasgow, which finished third with 173 points, showed its might with three finalists: Scott Brooks, who lost to Fromal 13-3, Brian Conway, who entered his match against Donahue with 133 career wins, but lost 11-3, and Jesse Johnson, who lost to Anker 6-5.

"We did pretty good as a team," said Glasgow Coach Jon Hackett. "Of the 10 wrestlers we brought that were varsity all year, all 10 are going to the states."

Christiana's Ryan Spencer, the only Viking to get past the quarterfinals, was pinned by Sianni 1:33 into the second period.

Newark, which finished fifth with 117 points, will send six wrestlers to the states: Justin Wayple, who finished fourth at 130; Jeff Hudson, fifth at 135; Brent Cromer, third at 152; Bob Eno, sixth at 160; Bram Walker, fourth at 171, and Todd Hobson, fifth in heavyweight.

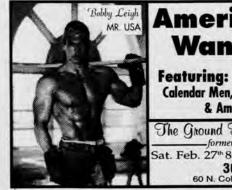

"I think having six kids in the finals is a pretty healthy showing," said Newark Coach Kevin Martin, who returns 11 starters next season.

Hen men, women try to rule America East roost

DELAWARE, FROM 1

A Delaware player has won the award seven times this season.

The championship game will be held March 6 at 11:30 a.m. at the arena of the highest remaining seed.

UD freshman guard Megan Dellegrotti, meanwhile, was named America East Conference Rookie of the Week for Feb. 22.

Dellegrotti, of Berwick, Pa., averaged 12.3 points, 2.3 assists and 1.7 steals per game to help the Hens to a 2-1 record.

Dellegrotti is the second Hen to receive Rookie of the Week honors this season.

Newark graduate sets records

Delaware sophomore Butch Patrick, a graduate of Newark High, was named Most Outstanding Athlete in leading the Hens to the America East Indoor Track and Field Championships last weekend at Delaware Field House.

Patrick set conference and school records in winning the 60 meters in 6.87 seconds and the long jump in 24 feet, 1/4 inch. Patrick was also fourth in the 200 meters.

Hayman named Coach of the Year

UD men's and women's swimming coach John Hayman was named America East Coach of the Year after guiding the men's team to its third consecutive championship last weekend at the University of Maine.

Hens coach Bob Hannah is in his 35th season. His teams have posted a 981-419-6 record. Twenty other coaches in NCAA Division I have reached the 1,000-win plateau.

The Hens have three position players and one starting pitcher returning from last year's team.

One of those returning players is junior outfielder Kevin Mench, a native of Newark who was last year's Collegiate Baseball Player of the Year and a Baseball America preseason All-America selection this year.

Hens open softball season

The UD softball team begins play Friday at the East Carolina Tournament. The Hens' lineup features senior second baseman Laurie Brosnahan, a graduate of Glasgow High. Last season, Brosnahan started all 47 games, hit .273, led the team in doubles with 11, and drove in 13 runs.

St. Mark's has three relay teams that own the best times in the state this season (1:42.58, 1:42.99 and several outstanding ninth graders, including Erica Gentilucci and Katie Kuczmarski. There's also diver Kristin Gamgort.

"This is probably the best crop of freshmen in the state in a long time," said Maegerle.

Maegerle feels his team is ready for the state meet after yet another overpowering dual-meet season.

"They usually set their sights on a couple of meets a year, especially Newark, then they zone in on the states," he said. "They're looking forward to this week.

"It will be a good meet, I think it will be a lot better than people believe.
