City Manager Law Diverts Council From Codification

Opponents Of CM Defer Action On Laws Pending New Ruling on Manager

A special meeting of Newark City Council, scheduled last Tuesday night to consider a 90-page proposal for codifying municipal ordinances, was adjourned after 20 minutes when discussion centered on but one ordinance—that governing the city manager.

Four councilmen seeking the termination of City Manager J. J. Salavara's services, carried the majority vote to defer action on ordinance codification and revision until the city manager ordinance is revised.

In explaining his motion to defer action, Councilman William Coverdale charged that the ordinance governing the city manager is obsolete, contrary to the charter on two points, and contrary to recommended policies of the International City Managers Association on other points.

He also complained that it permits four councilmen to hire a manager or raise his pay, but requires five votes to fire a manager or reduce his pay.

The motion to defer action was supported by Councilmen Vernon Steele, Samuel Diehl, and George Wilson, and was opposed by Councilman George Neighbors and Betty McClelland, and by ex-Councilman Avery H. Goddin and A. S. Priestley, in the audience. They said there was no reason to defer the already-delayed codification.

On petition from the four councilmen who voted to delay the codification, Mayor Frank Durnall called another special meeting for tonight at 8 o'clock to discuss the changes in the city manager ordinance.

A New Look on Newark's Main Street

Now under construction, the local branch office of the Wilmington Savings Fund Society is being built by John E. Healy and sons, Inc., with Superintendent Fred Waski (shown opposite Eubank's Barber Shop) with negotiations conducted by Carroll Griffith and Grover Surratt, Wilmington and Newark real estate brokers.

East along Main Street from the campus were the Maxwell, Powell, Parrish, Stiltz and Fader properties. Only the Powell and the Fader properties have continued under the same ownership.

Maxwell's became the State Theater and Deluxe; Parrish's became Eubank's Barber Shop and the Goodwill Store, and the Bank is being constructed on the Stiltz property.

Samuel Handloff Elected To Head NHS Alumni Ass'n

Phyllis Batten Awarded Scholarship; U.S. Sen. John J. Williams Speaks

Samuel Handloff, Newark attorney, was elected president of the Newark High School Alumni Association at the annual banquet in the high school cafeteria last Saturday night as some 200 persons attended. Guests of honor included members of the Class of 1959; the Newark Board of Education, and local school administrators.

A $150 NHS Alumni Scholarship was presented to Miss Phyllis Batten, a senior academy student, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Batten, Jr. She plans to enter the University of Delaware. An American Field Service exchange student in Finland last summer, she is a member of the National Honor Society, vice-president of the NHS senior class, and has been active in Junior Achievement, Bridge Club, Kravon, Latin Club, and prom committees.

U.S. Senator John J. Williams spoke on "American Heritage," asking the older people if they had passed down "less of a heritage to the Class of 1959" since they had "exchanged freedom for government support" to give themselves a more luxurious life.

"The founding fathers felt that the people were to support the government. Today we seem to feel that the government must support the people," he said.

The Senator concluded with a quotation from Benjamin Franklin. "He who would trade his freedom for security would ultimately lose both."

Other officers elected included Vice-President John Grundy, '38; Recording Secretary Mary Jane Foley, '59; Corresponding Secretary Joyce Walbridge Young, '59; and Treasurer William McLean, '52.

The Association voted to present a set of flags for the high school auditorium, and unanimously passed a resolution "That the Newark special school district Board of Education be commended for the manner in which it has provided facilities for the education of our youth during the period of extremely rapid growth of our community."

The Senator concluded with a quotation from Benjamin Franklin. "He who would trade his freedom for security would ultimately lose both."

Perkins Advises Affirmative Vote On School Merger

President Of University
Cites Benefits Offered
In School Consolidation

Concerning the referendum scheduled in the Newark special school district on June 13 for consideration of consolidation with the Christiana school district, John A. Perkins, president of the University of Delaware, has offered the following observations:

"It is sincerely to be hoped that the enlightened school electorate in Newark will give an affirmative vote for consolidation with the Christiana school district. There are several good reasons for doing so. First, since the Christiana children are already privileged to attend our Newark secondary schools, we in Newark should be concerned that those children receive the best possible elementary education before entering the ninth grade with the products of our own elementary schools."

"Secondly, the Christiana school can be enlarged and will temporarily add to the flexibility of the physical facilities of the Newark school district."

"Thirdly, Newark is considered in the State of Delaware to be the community most education-minded. What it does with respect to school consolidation is certain to affect thinking on this much needed movement elsewhere in our state."

"After the valiant and successful effort of the advocates of consolidation in Christiana, the least Newark should do is to offer its congratulations by means of a great majority for consolidation."

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

U. of D. Agricultural Extension Service

Eggs continue to be an outstanding buy. Prices are LOW—in many stores Grade A large eggs are selling for 45 cents a dozen. This plentiful supply is expected to last throughout the month. Eggs provide a sunny touch to any meal—whether it's breakfast when the order is "sunny side up"—or a sunshine salad (pineapple, carrots, cabbage shredded in lime gelatin) served with deviled eggs. There are literally a thousand ways to serve eggs, so use them often.

Spring vegetables are plentiful and as the month progresses this supply will increase. Right now corn-on-the-cob is plentiful, selling at an average of five cents an ear; lettuce—two nice crisp heads for 19 cents to 25 cents; tomatoes 19 cents a carton; cucumbers three for nineteen cents; radishes five cents a bunch; asparagus as low as 29 cents for a large bunch and even green snap beans have dropped in price averaging two lbs. for 29 cents.

Strawberries are in season and prices are right for freezing and preserving. For top quality berries, select those free from excess dirt, and fresh in appearance with fresh green caps on them.

Other plentiful for June are broiler-fryers, turkeys and vegetable fats and oils.

Army Worm Control Cited

By Agricultural Agent

The first step in controlling the destructive army worm is to inspect your fields every day or two says Edward H. Schabinger, county agricultural agent.

Army worms are recognized by their greenish-brown color, with stripes down their back. They are about 1½ inches long. It is often hard to notice them as they usually feed at night.

For information on army worm control, contact the County Agent, Agricultural Hall, Newark.

Kindergarten Ass'n To Elect Officers At Public Meeting

The annual meeting of the Newark Kindergarten Association will be held next Monday at 7:15 p.m. at the school building, 16 Tyre Avenue, when officers for the year 1959-60 will be elected, along with four members of the board of directors.

A nominating committee of Mrs. Peter Kowal, Mrs. Warren Tyson, Edward Berg, and William Hilton has presented a slate, and nominations also will be open from the floor.

All members of the association are invited to attend, as well as anyone else interested in the kindergarten. Parents with children enrolled for next fall are invited to bring the children so they may become acquainted with the school. There are still openings in the afternoon session for next year, and interested parents may call Mrs. Millean Cobble.

Mrs. Nathalie B. Hammond, NKA teacher, will return next year. Newark Kindergarten Association is a cooperative kindergarten, organized and administered by parents of the children.

The school will close for the year next Tuesday, June 10 and 11 will be devoted to teacher-parent conferences.

Last Tuesday, both sessions of kindergarten joined in an all-day picnic at Rockford Tower in Wilmington, traveling by bus and accompanied by Mrs. Morgan Walker, Mrs. Paul McCormick, Mrs. Joseph Sonnenfeld, and Mrs. Hammond, teacher.

Tips On Freezing Of Strawberries Offered By Agent

"Doubtless God could make a better berry, but doubtless God never did," Frank Walton wrote about the strawberry back in the 1800's.

It is the leading frozen fruit (excluding citrus juices) sold in America today, according to M. Katharine Jones, home demonstration agent.

For freezing it is hard to beat strawberries for taste and ease of preparation, she said.

Gently wash the berries, then remove the hulls and drain. Large berries should be sliced for easier packing. Mix with sugar at the rate of one cup per quart of berries.

They can be frozen without sugar but will not hold their color, flavor and texture as well.

After mixing pack into glass, plastic, or waxed cardboard containers. Leave a half-inch of head space in pint containers and one inch in quart containers, Miss Jones suggests.

When buying fresh strawberries, don't keep them for more than two days. Wash them before removing the caps and be careful not to leave them in water, Miss Jones warns.

TRAVEL COUNCIL

A study of summer resort business will be one of the topics for discussion at the dinner meeting of the Delaware Travel Council on Friday evening, June 12 at the Diner Bell Inn, Dover.

All I know is what I see in the papers.

Free Polio Shots Offered Saturday At County Clinics

This Saturday will be the last chance for residents of New Castle County to receive free shots against polio.

A public clinic sponsored by the Medical Society of Delaware, the State Board of Health, and the Delaware chapters of the National Foundation will be held at the Wilmington Manor Elementary School, on East Roosevelt Blvd., from 9 a.m. until noon, and a clinic will operate at the Wilmington City Board of Health, 1213 North Walnut Street, at the same time.

The clinics will provide first, second, third and fourth shots for all comers, but emphasis is being placed on fourth shots for small children and teenagers, expectant mothers and young adults—the most susceptible groups.

Those families with young children who have not been started on the Salk shots will also have an opportunity to see that the children have at least begun the series before the peak of the polio season.

Despite reports of increased activity in the polio virus, there is evidence that the Salk vaccine remains 85 to 90 per cent effective.

It is people who refuse the polio shots, even when they're offered free, who have more to worry about from the disease than ever before.

Second class matter, March 10, 1910, at the Postoffice at Newark, Delaware, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Newark, Delaware, Thursday, June 4, 1959

It seems unthinkable—even insulting—for a foreigner to question the credit of the United States. Yet President Eisenhower disclosed that 21 foreign governments questioned "our ability to pay our bills and keep the sound as it needs to be."

That's worse, private American citizens are expressing the kind of doubts. They are refusing to buy U.S. bonds government's promise to pay, with interest.

Why this doubt in the dollar? Because for 24 of the last years the United States has spent more than its income. Government has piled up a debt of 283 billion dollars, helped produce inflation that cut the buying power dollar. As a result, people don't want to invest in long-term government bonds because they are afraid the money they put back won't buy as much as the money they put in.

Obviously the government wouldn't need to borrow if it didn't spend more money than the treasury takes. It didn't need to borrow, there would be no credit problem to solve the problem—or at least to keep it from getting worse—it is essential for us to keep Congress from spending more money than we give it to spend in taxes.

The Council-Manager Plan of City Government

This is the first of two articles presenting facts on the Council-manager plan of city government.

The traditional form of city government has been a mayor and council or aldermen. In the early 20th century, there were political experiments in the United States attempting to find a more efficient way to run the affairs of growing cities. The "strong-mayor" plan and commission plan (elected commissioners in charge of various phases of city administration) were tried and found wanting.

Stanton, Va., applied the title of "manager" in 1908 to an engineer hired to run the city under policies set by a council. The plan had already taken its modern form when Dayton, O., employed a city manager in 1914.

The greatest period of growth in adoption of city-manager government came after World War II, and by 1959 a total of 1,550 cities in the United States were operating under this form of government. Since 1908 only 80 cities have abandoned the plan by referendum.

Role of Council & Manager

The council-manager plan applies the political maxim "for representation elect, for administration appoint." The voters elect the council and the council appoints and has the power to remove the manager. The council is the policy-determining group and passes ordinances, approves the budget and votes appropriations and issues bonds.

The manager's duties are administrative. He carries out the policies set by the council; hires and fires city services; sees that ordinances are enforced; prepares a budget, and keeps the council (and through it the public) informed of city government.

Aside from his role as councilman, the mayor has little additional formal power under this plan. He acts as presiding officer of the council and represents the city on ceremonial occasions. However, he does have an opportunity to provide leadership in development and determination of municipal policies.

The chief features of the council-manager plan are:

(1) Unification of authority and political responsibility in the elected council and (2) centralization of responsibility in an administrator appointed by the council.

Letters To The Editor

I have lived the biggest part of my life in Newark, and this is supposed to be a city.

But in a city there should be at least one doctor available on Sunday.

Recently on a Sunday, I was sick and the nearest doctor available was near Wilmington.

If you are sick today, you don't want to wait until tomorrow for a doctor.

I think there should be a doctor on call at all times in a city as large as ours has grown to be.

Why take our money to an out-of-town doctor when we could have our own.

M. A. Gregg

Problems

Council-manager cities have all faced problems in understanding the system and making it work effectively. Two typical problems are discussed here.

In theory, policy and administration are separated in council-manager government.

In practice, the distinction is narrowed, and effective working of the plan means that the council and the manager must work together as a team. They are interdependent and cannot stand on formal or strictly defined legal powers.

The manager makes recommendations regarding policy to the council, but does not publicize his recommendations in advance. Thus the council may freely accept, reject or modify his recommendations. Once the council has decided on a policy the manager should join in selling it to the people.

Although the council-manager system is designed to remove politics from governmental administration, political leadership and responsibility in the sense of policy-making—initiating policy—presenting it to the voters and defending it—are still essential. This all-important role belongs to the elected mayor and council, but in practice they may fail to lead because they lack incentive and the political advantage of hiring and firing city employees. The manager cannot remedy this possible weakness. He cannot assume the role of leadership. His job is to carry out the policies made by the council.

The true work of art is but a shadow of the divine perfection.

10,000th to Enroll

Little Carolyn Groverman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Groverman of 313 West Twelfth Street, is the 10,000th person to be enrolled under the Wilmington Group Hospital Service Plan.

CAROLYN, 1938
in a clipping from the Journal-Every Evening, January 4, 1938

In January, 1938, the Delaware Blue Cross Plan—then only two years old—welcomed its 10,000th enrollee. The person receiving this distinction was Carolyn Groverman, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Groverman of Milford. Born under her parents' Blue Cross family contract, the child inherited protection she has never relinquished.

On her 19th birthday, ineligible for further family contract coverage, Carolyn wisely continued Blue Cross through her own personal contract. Entering a year's employment at Strawbridge & Clothier, she took Blue Cross with her under group contract. Later, when she went away to school, she took Blue Cross with her again under personal contract.

Today, at 21, Carolyn Groverman is a junior at American University, Washington, D. C., majoring in Business Administration. She is a third-generation member of Blue Cross, for her parents and grandparents also belong to the Delaware Plan. More than ever, she appreciates the value of Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage, and the ease with which it can be transferred from one situation to another. And she plans to take this coverage with her, wherever she goes. It is coverage that you, too, can plan to take with you . . . when you reach 19, leave home, change jobs . . . or move, marry, or retire.

From 10,000 members in 1938, Delaware Blue Cross-Blue Shield enrollment today is in excess of 276,000 — almost two-thirds of the State's population.

The Winner! And a Good Guess!

And Gretchen, who doesn't—or didn't, then—own a camera, borrowed the 50 cents to buy a box of film in order to enter the Photo Center contest, Tom Leo reports.

Referendum

A similar constructive appeal for a favorable vote was given by Robert C. Meyer, past president of the Council of Newark P.T.A.'s.

"In an effort to give the best possible educational facilities and advantages to youths of our area," he said, "it is recommended that residents of the Newark special school district cast an affirmative vote at the referendum on June 11. 'Children of the Christiana Elementary School group will be better prepared to meet the educational needs required by our secondary school system. Cost of maintaining 80 tuition-free students now attending our junior and senior high schools will be alleviated by the Christiana-Salem tax increase. Higher teacher qualification requirements at the Christiana school will assure better student development. The result will be another step forward for the educational leadership furnished by the Newark special school district,' Meyer concluded.

The referendum will be held in all schools of the Newark district on June 11 between 1 and 8 p.m. If the majority favor consolidation, the seventh and eighth grades now attending the Christiana school will be assigned to one of the Newark junior high schools. The transfer of seventh and eighth grade groups, totaling 60, from the 230 pupils in the Christiana school will result in some four elementary classrooms available for expansion of the elementary program in the total district. This factor is significant, according to school officials, in that the opening of the Robert Gallaher School in September is questionable, with construction now behind schedule.

Available rooms at Christiana would provide needed facilities until the opening of the Gallaher School later in the fall.
