U. Laurence Boyce Dies Suddenly On Wilmington Street

Prominent Stanton Merchant and Farmer Succumbs to Heart Failure Yesterday

FUNERAL ON FRIDAY

Union Laurence Boyce, aged 50 years, dropped dead from acute dilatation of the heart shortly before entering the apartment of a friend, F. S. Kilvington, in an apartment house at Tenth and Washington Streets, Wilmington, about 9.30 yesterday morning. Death followed almost immediately upon his collapse. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Asa Adair, who had been hurriedly summoned.

Mr. Boyce came to Wilmington about one hour previous to his attack, and had taken his children to Wilmington High School, as was his daily custom. It is believed that he was on his way to pay a business call to Mr. Kilvington.

Prominent Farmer

The deceased was extremely well known to farmers around Newark, as well as to those of his home community, Stanton. For many years he has been engaged in the hay, feed, lumber and grain business in Stanton, and also was a cattle dealer. He was progressive, full of energy and a hard worker in everything he undertook.

Since the inception of the United Caneberries plant here, Mr. Boyce had been a stockholder and an interested worker. When the plant management was taken over by the stockholders on a cooperative basis, it was Mr. Boyce who spent hours going through the rural districts urging the farmers to lend their support to the enterprise. He was an officer and Director in the Corporation.

Mr. Boyce was a brother of W. Truxton Boyce, former Prohibition Director of Delaware. He was prominent in church and fraternal activities in his home community, and will be sadly missed by his host of friends. He is survived by a widow and several children.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon from his late residence in Stanton at three o'clock, p. m. (Daylight Saving time). Further services will be held at St. James Church, Stanton. Interment will be made in the adjoining cemetery.

GT. JOHN FRAZER TRAVELS TO HOMELAND

Leaves Sunday For Inverness, Scotland, On First Visit In 24 Years

Sergeant John Frazer, veteran member of the staff of the Military Department at the University here, and one of Newark's popular older residents, leaves Sunday next on the S. Columbia, out of Philadelphia, for Glasgow, Scotland, from whence he will proceed to his old home at Inverness.

He will make the trip unaccompanied, his family remaining in Newark. Sergeant Frazer expects to spend about a month with his relatives and friends of his boyhood days before coming back to the States. One other and three sisters reside at Patton Street, Inverness, where he will reside during his visit.

It is interesting to note that this will be the first homecoming for Sergeant Frazer in 24 years and the second since he left his homeland for America at the age of 25 years. This was the second furlough he has received during 44 years' service in the Army of the United States.

Sergeant Frazer, although past the age of retirement, as laid down by the War Department, is on active service here at the University and his record is one of the most distinguished of the veteran soldiers of Union.

He lives with his family on Cleveland Avenue, in a new home built a few years ago.

T. C. du Pont Elected

Gen. T. Coleman du Pont was yesterday elected a member of the Republican National Committee by the members of the Delaware delegation meeting in Cleveland, Ohio.

This action was expected following the proceedings of the State Convention held in Dover last April.

Gen. du Pont has been a leading figure in the preparation for the Convention in Cleveland this year, and is the forefront of the party leaders.

BUYS OLD PROPERTY

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Rittenhouse to Occupy Jedell Place

The A. Jedell property, located near Welsh Tract Church and containing 133 acres, has recently been sold by Newark Trust Co. to Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Rittenhouse. After extensive alterations and repairs, Mr. and Mrs. Rittenhouse and their son Ellis expect to make this their future home. It is understood that the portion of the property situated along the road will be offered for sale in small tracts or building lots.

DR. WATSON LEAVES POST HERE MONDAY

Will Do Special Work For Attorney General's Office; New Man Coming

It has been reported from an authoritative source that Dr. Herbert Watson, for many years State Bacteriologist and Chief of the Board of Health Laboratory here, will enter the office of the Attorney General, where he will do special work for that department. It is understood that Dr. Watson will assume his new duties Monday next.

For some days rumors have been flying around that the Board of Health building will shortly be closed here, and the equipment and supplies moved to Dover. No confirmation of this rumor has been received to date, however. There has been no official intimation of the move received at the local headquarters.

There is, however, reason to believe that the State authorities may make a move before the year is completed and in that case an effort will be made by the University here to secure the building to relieve the congestion in the classrooms at Delaware College.

A new man to take the place of Dr. Watson as State Bacteriologist is coming on from New Mexico, according to report. His name has not as yet been announced.

STARTING BANDSTAND

Workmen under the direction of William Little started digging the foundation for the stone work for the new Community Bandstand on the Academy lawn this morning. The construction will be rushed, it is understood, so that the residents may enjoy as many concerts as possible this summer.

PLAN SUMMER SCHOOL

Prof. W. A. Wilkinson, director of the University Summer School, and his co-workers are already making plans for the opening of this year's session. It is expected that the attendance this year will nearly equal that of last year.

Miss Laura V. Clarke, of the Women's College, will be dean of women at the school. The session is scheduled to open Monday, June 23.

CHILD SLIGHTLY HURT

Myra, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Smith, of Delaware Avenue, was slightly hurt early last Friday evening in an accident near Richard's store, on Main Street. According to witnesses, the youngster stepped in front of an automobile owned and driven by John Giles, of near Newark, and was knocked down. Passersby thought the child was badly hurt, but it was later learned that she received minor cuts and bruises and was suffering from shock. Mr. Giles was not held in the accident.

26 High Graduates To Receive Diplomas

Commencement Exercises to be Held Friday Evening—Class Night Tonight

Commencement time at Newark High School has its formal opening this evening in Wolf Hall, when the Seniors will stage their annual Class Night frolic. Plenty of entertainment is certain for the parents and friends of the graduates.

President Walt H. Steel, of the Board of Education, will preside at the Commencement exercises, also in Wolf Hall, Friday evening. At that time 26 young graduates will receive the diplomas. They will also be presented with copies of the Constitution and Declaration of Independence.

The address to the graduates will be delivered by the Rev. Harvey Ewing, former pastor of Union Church in Wilmington.

Another feature will be the awarding of the Alumni Scholarship of $100 to a deserving member of the class for the furtherance of his education.

Miss Gladys Clark is president of the graduating class, and two members of the group will speak at Commencement, Miss Catharine Holton and Marion Hopkins. They will both deliver essays.

The complete program for the exercises follows:

Processional. Invocation, Rev. H. Everett Hallman. Essay, "Chesapeake and Delaware Canal," Marion Hopkins. Essay, "The Newark Academy," Catharine Holton. Chorus, "Oh, Italia, Italia Beloved," High School Chorus. Address, Dr. Harvey W. Ewing. Chorus, "The Bells of St. Mary's," High School Chorus. Awarding of Diplomas, Dr. Walter H. Steel. Awarding of Alumni Scholarship, Mr. Eugene Kennedy, President of Alumni Association. Benediction, Rev. R. B. Matthews.

NATION'S DOCUMENTS GIVEN TO GRADUATES

Declaration of Independence and Constitution Given By Public Spirited Men

For the first time in the history of education in this State, every University, High School, parochial school and private school graduate in Delaware is being presented this June, along with his or her diploma, a copy of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. This is also believed to be the first State to institute such a gift.

The attractively bound volumes were presented by a group of public spirited citizens of the State, Robert H. Richards, a member of the group, asked the honor of presenting the University's share of the volumes, which request was granted. Mr. Richards delivered a lecture on the Constitution here last winter.

It is peculiarly fitting that Delaware take such a step as this. This State made possible the Declaration of Independence, when the measure was faltering in the Continental Congress in 1776, and therefore the Constitution which followed.

Annual Report Again Shows Acute Need for Larger Staff Here

PROF. TIFFANY RESIGNS

Coming as a climax to a collegiate year filled with serious obstacles which were with great difficulty partially overcome and combining an arraignment of the present situation at the University with a plea for a larger and better scope of work, the annual report to the Board of Trustees of the University by Dr. Walter Hullihen, president, was read at their meeting here Saturday morning.

It is apparent, according to the report, that the University is in dire need of financial assistance with which it may carry out the business of educating the youth which comes to its doors each year. Revelations of half-manned departments, crowded quarters in both the Men's and Women's College, lack of funds with which to buy equipment, a consequent retarding of courses, which should be of paramount importance, all these hindrances were recited in detail by Dr. Hullihen.

The teaching staff is crippled. He stated that in at least two departments, the courses of instruction above the Sophomore year are hopelessly inadequate for the standards of a University. The Modern Languages and the History Department are taken as trite examples, as is the Physics Department. The report of the President, discussed at length by the Trustees, was supplemented earlier in the meeting by reports from the various Deans and heads of departments of the University. Extracts from these reports as well as from the President's report will be found in another page of THE POST this week.

Resignations Accepted

Three outstanding resignations were received and accepted by the Board at its meeting Saturday. (Continued on Page 10.)

ACADEMY TRUSTEES MEET

Old Officers Re-elected at Meeting Here Last Night

Little business was transacted at the annual meeting of the Trustees of old Newark Academy, held in the Town Hall last evening. In the absence of Dr. H. G. M. Kollock, Mayor Frazer conducted the meeting.

Officers were re-elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, Dr. Kollock; vice-president, Nathan Motherall; and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Hossinger.

The Trustees are required by the charter to meet once each year to transact such business as should come before the session.

Alumni Adopt New Constitution Here

Delaware College Grads Return for Annual Meeting Saturday

A. J. TAYLOR, PRESIDENT

A long drawn out discussion over the adoption of a new Constitution and By-Laws which consumed all of the business meeting and most of the after dinner program, marked the annual reunion of the Alumni of Delaware College held here Saturday evening.

The Constitution, formulated by the New York chapter, was finally put to vote and passed. It possesses three outstanding changes which were felt to be needed: The centralization of control under one committee, the Executive Committee; the giving to men not able to be present at the meetings, the right to vote by ballot; and the appointment of a nominating committee to present names at least twenty days before election time.

The biggest ovation of the evening was given to Dr. George A. Harter, former president of the College and a true blue friend of every Delaware Alumnus. As his name was called by President George Davis, the entire assembly of over 150 men arose spontaneously and applauded for several minutes. Mr. Davis paid the "Grand Old Man of Delaware" a splendid tribute and never before at an Alumni meeting was the enthusiastic greeting duplicated. It was a stirring tribute by the old grads to the man who led the old college through the many troublous years long past.

Alec J. Taylor was elected president for the ensuing year, over J. Harry Mitchell, of Philadelphia. Mr. Taylor is extremely popular with the grads and is one of the hardest and most loyal workers in the organization.

The executive committee, six in all, were elected as follows: three year term, H. Rodney Sharp and Harry G. Lawson; two year term, Archie H. Dean, of New York, and John W. Jones, of Philadelphia; one year term, George L. Medill, of Newark, and Charles E. Grubb, of Wilmington.

Speeches at the dinner were made by Dr. Walter Hullihen, George Morgan, class of 1876, and several others.

Class of '99 Shines

One of the features of the evening was the announcement made by Mr. Morgan that the class of 1899, now completing their quarter century as alumni of the college, had authorized beautiful condition. This gift was

Lay Corner-stone of New Library as Part of Exercises

OVER 1200 HEAR DR. BAKER IN ARMORY

The Text of Dr. Baker's Address is published on Page 9.

Although hard pressed by the weather bugaboo, which has consistently harassed the event for three years, the annual Commencement of the University of Delaware, held here Monday, took on all the brilliant aspects which have characterized it in years past. A crowd of at least 1200 packed the Armory, where the exercises were held.

Second only to the awarding of the diplomas, came the laying of the cornerstone of the new State War Memorial Library on the lower campus, prior to Commencement. The ceremony was performed by the Grand Lodge, A. F. and A. M. of Delaware, headed by Grand Master Edward W. Cooch, of Newark. Thus was taken the second step in the completion of Delaware's tribute to the boys who fell in the Great War. It is expected that dedication will take place in September.

Ninety-five Finish Courses

Ninety-five young men and women were graduated Monday with honors, marking the first time in the history of the two colleges that a joint commencement was held. Thirty-seven comprised the Delaware College class, 30 in the Women's College and 28 two-year training students in education.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburgh, Pa., and for many years director of Tome Institute, was the Commencement speaker. Dr. Baker delivered a powerful address to the graduates their parents and friends, and was accorded a royal welcome in Newark.

Prior to his address, Henry B. Thompson, president of the Board of Trustees, made his annual report, and Dr. Walter Hullihen, president of the University, read list of prizes awarded.

Hundreds of people came to Newark at various times during the Commencement week-end, to visit sons or daughters, or merely to see the biggest event of the collegiate year. The old town took on a holiday appearance Saturday and Monday, and the merchants reported very busy days in every line.

Corner Store Laying

Shortly after ten o'clock Monday morning, the academic procession formed at Wolf Hall, with the Seniors and Faculty in caps and gowns, and marched in a body to the partly finished Library. After a brief pause, the Masonic Lodge took over the ceremonies. Grand Master Cooch led his officers through the old Masonic ritual of masonry. The stone was found level, true and plumb according to ancient rites. Mr. Cooch then delivered a short address to the assembly.

Bishop Philip Cook, chaplain of the Grand Lodge, spoke for a few minutes on "Tribute," and his remarks were most appropriate to the occasion. He then closed the ceremonies with the benediction.

In the cornerstone box were placed the following articles: Bulletins of the Men's and Women's Colleges, a copy of the Constitution of the United States and the Declaration of Independence; Signatures of the Faculty; copy of the University of Delaware Review; clippings from papers concerning the Library. Four pieces of silver and copper money; the names (Continued on Page 4.)

GETS LL.D. DEGREE

In recognition of his valuable and nationally known services in the interests of Education and the principles of good government and right living, the Degree of Doctor of Laws was bestowed on Dr. Baker by the University of Delaware during the Commencement exercises Monday. He was presented to the President by Dean George E. Dutton, amid loud applause from the audience.

APPLETON NEWS OF THE WEEK

ELKTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HEARS TALK BY NEWARK RECTOR

Rev. R. B. Mathews Addresses Business Men of Neighboring Town Monday Evening

Elkton, Md., June 11.—Several score business men of Elkton and surrounding territory, together with several guests, attended the first mid-season dinner of the Chamber of Commerce in the Community Church House on Main Street, Monday evening.

The delicious repast was served to the men by the Gleaners of the Methodist Church, a live organization of young ladies of the town. That the meal was well received could be evidenced by the satisfied looks on the faces of the diners afterwards.

It was the first community function held in the new Church House, which was recently remodelled from the interior of the former Dr. Mitchell home. Such occasions will be one of the aims and ambitions of the M. E. Church officials, who purchased the house. It has been stated on good authority that between $1500 and $2000 is all there is to raise for the completion of the fund for its purchase.

Rev. Mathews Speaks
The chief speaker of the evening was the Rev. R. B. Mathews, rector of the St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Newark. Rev. Mathews is not a stranger to Elkton men, he having spoken at a smoker held a few months ago in the Parish House at Trinity Church here. He brought another straight from the shoulder message to the business men Monday night, and his talk was thoroughly appreciated by the audience. His gift of speech combined with a clearness of thought and logic combines to make him a very forceful speaker.

President Bratton of the Chamber presided, and the dinner committee made perfect arrangements for the affair. One of the active workers was William C. Feehly.

Elkton Firemen Go To State Convention

Tomorrow Ends Three-Day Celebration—County Seat-ers Out for Prizes

Resplendent in their newly purchased uniforms, and accompanied by a large amount of apparatus, and a uniformed band, the Singery Fire Company, of Elkton, is confidently expected to carry off a goodly share of the prize money offered at the parade in Havre de Grace tomorrow afternoon. This feature ends a three-day session of the Maryland State Firemen's Convention, which opened yesterday in the River Town.

The Elkton laddies will be present each day of the convention, and take all available apparatus with them save their hose which they have loaded on an ordinary truck for emergencies. Although there was some discussion raised as to whether the town should be deprived of fire protection during the whole day, the program went through as arranged. The apparatus will be returned each day to its house in Elkton.

One of the chief Elkton exhibits will be the old hand drawn and operated fire engine used actively 115 years ago.

A large majority of the towns in Maryland, with a volunteer fire company, will be represented, and it is estimated that over $500,000 worth of fire-fighting apparatus will be on display. About $1,000 in prizes will be given away.

The addresses of welcome were made by Mayor G. W. Pennington and Congressman Millard F. Tydings.

ELKTON PLAYHOUSE ASKS FOR RECEIVER

Steady Decrease in Income and Heavy Indebtedness
Cause Action

Although favored by a bright opening and fulfilling a desire in the minds of many Elkton people long since delayed, the Elkton Playhouse and Hotel at the corner of Main and North Streets, has voluntarily gone into bankruptcy, according to reports from that town late last week.

Omar D. Crothers, representing the Home Manufacturing Light and Power Company, the estate of John P. Lally, late of Wilmington, and Peter J. McMenamin, of Wilmington, filed a bill in Circuit Court last week asking that a receiver be appointed.

Opening about a year ago, the Playhouse was widely heralded over Cecil County and was one of the most pretentious enterprises along the "shore." It is reported that the firm is now hopelessly insolvent, and is carrying debts to the amount of $17,000; furthermore, it is said that the Playhouse is operating at a continual loss, and that little hope for a restoration of business and subsequent liquidation is given.

The history of the conception, actual building and opening of the combined theatre and hotel, heads as a long chain of delays, discouragements and mistakes. For some months, the half finished building remained untouched by workmen, because no funds were available for its completion.

Over a year ago a firm, headed by the late Mr. Lally and including Mr. McClenihan, took over the building from local interests and went ahead with it, meanwhile selling some additional stock in the concern. Much of this stock is owned by Elkton people.

Keynotes Sounded at Republican Convention Coolidge Nominated Tomorrow

President Coolidge unsurpassed by any ruler or prime minister in the world in his honesty, courage and devotion to country, the keynote of the Republican Party sounds the call to the American people to rally to his standard rather than Congress in all issues.

Urges adherence to World Court, with only Harding-Hughes reservations.

Deplores refusal of Congress to accede to President's wishes in writing the Japanese exclusion clause into the Immigration bill.

Criticizes new tax law as abounding in defects, and says it should not be taken as the last word on tax revision.

Accepts bonus bill, enacted over the President's veto, with assertion that conditions must be faced and its provisions willingly met.

Absolves party of blame for some things done and others left undone by last session of Congress because party did not command majority in either branch on major questions.

Cites accomplishments of Administration, begun by Harding and carried on by Coolidge, stressing Arms Conference, American unofficial participation in the work of the reparations experts, establishment of budget system and reduction in the public debt.

Declares for economy in public expenditures and reduction of taxes, inveighs against tinkering with Federal Reserve System and advocates "sane regulation" rather than Government control of public utilities.

Calls for end of scandal-mongering while upholding investigations of "good faith" and pledging punishment of guilty.

A Man for a Platform

Senator Glass of Virginia, in a recent speech says that the Republican Party meets this year with nothing but a Man to present to the people. Accepted. Yes, a Man! And in this day smothered with greed and scorched with prejudice, a Man will make a very good platform. Would that the Democrats offer a similar platform—then would America be safe indeed.

A Man for a platform is a fine conception. And with a Man such as President Coolidge, we know from experience and history that the platform upon which he is elected will be the platform of the Executive Mansion for the next four years.

A Man for a platform—it appeals to us, gives us confidence again. A Man for a platform wins and is well.

Away with phrases to catch, away with promises that lure—Give us a Man for our platform.

Flock to Armory

Immediately after the cornerstone laying, the crowd flocked to the Armory, where the scene of Commencement had been transferred at the last minute, due to the damp ground and overcast sky. The people there met scores of others going into the building. Before the academic procession reached the building every available seat was taken and scores stood in the rear.

Dr. Foster, marshal, led the procession up the aisle while the audience stood; following him came Dr. Hullihen and Dr. Baker, Henry B. Thompson, the Faculty and Seniors of both colleges.

The invocation was offered by the Rev. R. B. Mathews, pastor of St. Thomas here; then followed the report of Mr. Thompson.

In introducing the speaker of the day, Dr. Hullihen stated that he felt that Dr. Baker was a "neighbor of ours," as he was born and raised in Aberdeen, Md. He referred to their associations at Hopkins University, and paid the speaker a fine tribute.

Probably no more stirring appeal to the youth of today to lead their fellowmen has been given here than that of Dr. Baker. He sounded the keynote of his speech when he said that.

The address was attentively received. It contained a wealth of sturdy advice to graduates, and opened a new line of thought for everyone. His was a message ably prepared and ably delivered.

Awarding of Prizes

The long list of awards was read by Dr. Hullihen. It included prizes in English, Mathematics, Freshman and Sophomore work; French, Chemistry and for essays on specified topics. The Willard Saulsbury essay prize was won by John G. Leach, of New Castle, Del. Leach won two smaller prizes in addition.

The du Pont Chemistry Scholarship of $300 went to P. L. McWhorter, Jr., of Middletown; the Kiwanis Scholarship of $250 to Herbert Clark, of Wilmington; Sons of Delaware Scholarship of $300 to W. S. Jackson, of Dover, and the Robert Bayne Wheeler Scholarship of $150 to E. T. Lecates, of Wilmington.

The Alliance Francaise medals went to James King, '26, and Catherine Dougherty, '25.

Get Commissions

Another feature of the exercises was the swearing into the service of the United States of 25 young men who will enter the Officers' Reserve Corps following the completion of the R. O. T. C. course at Delaware. They were sworn in by Major L. B. Row. The commissions were handed them by Lt. Gov. J. Danforth Bush, of Wilmington.

The candidates for degrees were presented respectively by Deans George E. Dutton, M. VanGieson Smith, and Winifred J. Robinson. The diplomas were awarded them by Dr. Hullihen at the closing part of the exercises.

The last event of Commencement season, the Farewell Hop, was held in the Armory Monday evening. Three hundred and fifty people attended the dance. The patronesses were Mrs. Walt H. Steel, Dean W. J. Robinson, George E. Dutton and Mrs. Carl Rankin.

Thus closed another milestone in the career of Delaware's State University.

BRISBANE GREET'S NEWSPAPERMEN

(From the Pen and Pencil Club "News"—Philadelphia)

You are in the right business, the only one really worth while. Everybody's business is your business, whereas your business is nobody's business. You can say what you like, nobody can answer you back—or if anybody answers you don't hear it.

You are the eyes and ears of the public, which would be deaf and blind without you.

And in addition to that, you are the public voice. Newspapers do for the nation what speech does for the individual.

You are in the most ungrateful business, you have to perform every day. There is no phonograph to record your performance, and make it immortal.

What you did yesterday doesn't count. Everything depends on what you can do today and tomorrow. That's the one disagreeable feature. And the older you grow usually the less you are worth. That's another disagreeable feature.

But on the whole the newspaper is THE business.

Yours sincerely,

ARTHUR BRISBANE.

BIG PREMIUM LIST FOR BREEDERS OF HOLSTEIN CATTLE

Eighteen classes with four premiums in each class to winners and in addition to six championships, making a total of 84 honors to be won by owners of pure bred Holstein cattle is announced by the Delaware Holstein Freisian Association for the big national show to be held in connection and at the Delaware State Fair, September 9, 10, 11, 12, and 13. Headed by H. F. duPont, Chairman, a committee comprising A. E. Tomhave, J. R. Danks, who will act as superintendent of the Show, J. I. Dayett, T. H. Vansant, H. B. Clark, J. H. Shabinger and L. P. Randall are arranging for the greatest show of Holsteins ever seen in Delaware. In order to assure absolutely the most careful judging and awarding of prizes and honors, W. S. Moscrip, of Lake Elmo, Minnesota, a cattle expert internationally known as the last word in Holstein cattle judging has been engaged to act as judge of the show.

The classes call for bull 3 years and over; bull two years and under three years; bull one year and under two years; bull senior calf, cow 4 years and older, sow 3 years and under 4 years, cow 2 years under 3 years, senior yearling heifer, junior yearling heifer, senior heifer calf.

For the exhibition herds special prizes are offered. There will also be special premiums for breeders of calf herds, breeders young herds, the get of sire and progeny of cows.

There will be premiums for the best four cows, for the senior A. R. cow and Junior A. R. cow.

The championships are for senior and junior bull, senior and junior cow, and grand champion bull and cow.

Entry lists close on August 23 and the competition is open to the world. In order to make the Holstein show more attractive, some of the finest animals of the breed in America will be brought here and will compete for honors with all cattle of the breed exhibited at the show from the East.

It is the aim of the committee in charge of the show to make this an exhibit that will attract the attention of cattle owners of the East and induce them to consider the value of the breed from a dairyman's point of view.

Special arrangements will be made to see that the exhibition cattle are given the best of care and like the Guernsey and Hereford cattle shows, no expense will be spared to make the exhibit the best of its breed ever seen in this section of the country.

Hasn't Missed An Alumni Dinner In Fifty-Three Years

One of the remarkable records of Delaware Alumni was uncovered last Saturday evening here when it was found that one of the diners present has not missed the June meeting and dinner in 53 years.

He is Thomas Davis, Esq., of Wilmington, a member of the Class of 1875 of Delaware College and for the past several years a member of the Board of Trustees of the University. Mr. Davis kept up his record this year and took a leading part in the meeting in Old College. He is known well by all the alumni and shows a keen interest in the younger men.

Mr. Davis entered Delaware in 1871, and after graduation went to New London Academy near here, where he taught for many years. He has never missed their five-year reunions since his first year there, either. Last year he was presented with a gold pencil by New London in recognition of his loyalty and sincere helpfulness.

printed at Kells, and the edition is exhausted.

Kells have now in stock the Constitution and Declaration in thirty different bindings, to suit the taste of the public. They range from the popular sized Boy Scout edition to the exquisite hand-tooled edition, bound in pigskin, which sells for $10 per copy. Between these two extremes range many attractive styles and colors. Several thousand volumes have been printed and distributed this year by Kells.

The Continental Fibre Company secured a special edition recently for presentation to their customers and friends. The Joseph Bancroft Co., of Wilmington, presented copies to every employee of their big Wilmington plant a few weeks ago. This edition was bound in Bancroft cloth.

The first hotel in the country to receive an edition was, very fittingly, a Delaware hotel. These were secured for the Hotel duPont through the manager, Harry Harkins.

COMMENCEMENT LUNCHEON HELD

Following the program in the Armory Monday, the customary Commencement luncheon was served to about 450 graduates, parents and friends, in the Commons of Old College.

The speakers at the luncheon were Clifford A. Smith for Delaware College; Miss Elizabeth McIntire for the Women's College; Dr. Baker, Josiah Marvel, Thomas A. Davis, and Dr. Walter Hullihen.

Henry B. Thompson presided and introduced the speakers.

Young Smith made a very clever talk which drew rounds of applause. He stated that "Major Row and Dr. Hullihen had started with our class, and Major Row thought so much of it that he is going out with it, but despite an effort to get Dr. Hullihen to do the same, he believes he'll stay on with his work."

Dr. Baker spoke of his pleasure in being back near home again, and expressed his appreciation at the reception tendered him. Miss McIntire said this was the first time the girls had a chance to join with the boys in Commencement, and although the latter were known to dislike it, she hoped that the custom will be continued.

Dr. Hullihen, closing speaker, stressed the point that the 1924 graduates should go out into the world and express by the "loyalty of praise" their appreciation of the college and administration of it, and typify the existing "walking the street" criticism which he has noticed. He urged that they speak of the good things of the institution, not the bad things. His speech was a re-definition of his conception of Alma Mater loyalty.

Thomas Davis was also a speaker at the affair.

A delicious lunch was served to the diners by Miss King and her corps of assistants.

Alumni present were proud to see their new president, "Alec" J. Taylor, sitting modestly out among the diners.

Freddie Crouch is spending several days with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crouch.

WOMEN'S CLASS IN FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Eleven members of the class of 1919 of the Women's College, University of Delaware with Dean Winifred Robinson, celebrated the fifth anniversary of their graduation with a dinner at Lynam's, near Newport, Friday evening.

Dean Robinson gave a resume of the happenings at the college since the class was graduated five years ago. Miss Robinson also gave an interesting account of the foreign study plan and made mention of the fact that Miss Elizabeth J. Walker, of Wilmington, a member of the class of 1923 and Miss Helen Simon, of this city, of the class of 1926, will study in France next year.

Those in the class who attended the dinner were: Miss Jones, Miss McGraw, Miss Marion Underwood, of North East, Md.; Miss Lily Ferguson, of Cecilton, Md.; Miss Anne Drew Scott, of Elizabeth, N. J.; Miss Madge Nickerson and Miss Mary Powers, of Newark; Miss Mary C. Dennison, Mrs. Mary Jane Mason Wills, Miss Mary Keeman and Mrs. Helen Stewart Denny, of Wilmington.

THE CONSTITUTION

LET EVERY AMERICAN, every lover of liberty, every well-wisher to his posterity, swear by the blood of the Revolution, never to violate in the least particular the laws of the country, and never to tolerate their violation by others. As the patriots of 'seventy-six' did to the support of the Declaration of Independence, so to the support of the Constitution and the Laws let every American pledge his life, his property, and his sacred honor; let every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his father, and to tear the charter of his own and his children's liberty. Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap. Let it be taught in schools, in seminaries, and in colleges. Let it be written in primers, spelling-books, and in almanacs. Let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice. And, in short, let it become the political religion of the nation.

MISS RICH VISITS NEWARK FRIENDS

Miss Mary Rich, well known here as Head of the Department of Education at the Women's College, spent Commencement season with old friends. Next year Miss Rich will go to the Pacific Coast, where she has accepted a call as Director of the State of Washington Teacher Training. She will spend the summer in the Catskills.

DR. SYPHERD HOST AT BOWERS BEACH

About twelve local people, most of whom were members of the Tuesday Evening Bridge Club, were guests of Dr. W. Owen Sypherd at dinner at Johnson's Hotel, Bowers Beach, Del., last evening. The guests drove down in cars from Newark, and spent a very enjoyable evening.

Mrs. Pierce Whitercraft attended Class Night and Commencement Night at Kennett Square High School, June 2 and 3, while visiting Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hollingsworth.

Mrs. Angie B. Perkins, of this place, spent the past week-end on a visit to the home of a cousin in Aberdeen, Md.

SELECTING YOUR HAIR BRUSH

Brushing the hair makes it grow better as it causes an electrical action which stimulates the flow of blood bringing nourishment to the roots of the hairs. Baldness results from using a hair brush too seldom and keeping the hair cut too short, which accounts for many men being bald too soon.

It is most important that great care be used in selecting your hair brush. Many hair brushes are not designed for proper care of the hair. Some have bristles too short to reach the base of the hairs for massaging the scalp. Others have bristles which are too soft and only slide over the hairs. Brushes with backs collect dust and can not be cleaned without damage to the back, the part that costs most.

Persons most careful in selecting their hair brushes consider the Fuller Hair Brush the best. This brush has two brushing parts with no back to hold the dirt. The stiff bristles are long enough to penetrate the hair and massage the scalp. It is sanitary and can be quickly cleaned without damage by dipping it into hot water. The bristles can not come out, being held securely as in every Fuller Brush. The handle, made of shell or ivory, makes this a very attractive as well as serviceable hair brush.

ing out very well. The main auditorium of the church will be closed for the next few weeks but services will continue as usual and will be held in the basement of the church.

Last Monday was one of the greatest days in the history of Ebenezer Church. Very many of the members and friends of the church were present and worked to get the necessary adjustments made before the new furniture arrives. The masons and carpenters have been busy making certain changes about the building. It will not be many weeks until the re-opening day, and then all friends far and near will be invited to join in the greatest celebration Ebenezer has ever had.

There will be an Official Board meeting at the parsonage Saturday evening, June 14.

Children's Day will be observed at Milford Cross Roads next Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. A very attractive program is being prepared and it is hoped that many will attend the service.

25 Students Get Commissions In O. R. C.

Large Delegation Go to Plattsburg Camp This Summer For Training

Twenty-five graduates of the University of Delaware this year received commissions as second lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve Corps of the United States on Monday. They were sworn in to the service by Major Lathie B. Row, commandant of the R. O. T. C. here. It was Major Row's last official act as head of military here. He leaves for Fort Leavenworth Staff School the latter part of this month.

Under Major Row's administration here, Delaware has created a most favorable impression on the War Department, and for the past three years, the boys from Newark have practically led all other colleges in the activities at the Plattsburg summer camp. The highest peak in attendance was reached three summers ago, when about 50 Juniors and Seniors attended the camp.

This year the boys who will take the six week's course are: Charles P. Blest, Lea F. Connell, Kenneth J. Crothers, James H. Deputy, William M. Donaldson, Ralph L. France, Charles W. Gibson, Chas. E. Green, F. Howard Hedger, Russell P. Hunt, Howard C. Hurff, Herbert Ickler, William S. Jackson, Ralph W. Jones, Albert V. Krewatch, John G. Leach, Richard G. Long, Harrie C. Lowber, John MacMurray, Jr., William D. McKelvie, Francis G. Miller, Harry Pikes, Herman Reitzes, Paul R. Rhinard, Paul A. Shaw, George M. Shuster, Ralph S. Iegrist, John P. Skewis and Cornelius A. Tighman.

George M. Gum and William Piersen, Sophomores, will also attend camp this summer.

Vincent E. Tempone, another graduate will receive his commission after he serves at the Plattsburg Camp the coming summer, one of the requirements being that a member of the R. O. T. C. has to serve six weeks in a Reserved Officers' Training Camp before he is commissioned. Tempone did not attend camp his Junior year as is the custom.

These Juniors will leave for Plattsburg Camp this week.

SALISBURY TOT, EIGHT CHARMS AUDIENCE

Salisbury, Md.:

Although only eight years of age, little Dorothy Richardson, the daughter of Mr. Paul J. Richardson, of this city, made her first public appearance as a musician at a large recital held in Brooklyn, on Monday evening. Before a large and enthusiastic audience Dorothy gave two selections, "Arabesque," by Burgmuller, and "Curious Story," by Heller.

Dorothy had the distinction of being the youngest upil and the smallest one on the stage. Her poise and the ease with which she played won the hearts of all who saw her. Her teachers were charmed with her manner and efficient work. Showers of flowers surrounded her as she left the platform.

The affair was the Thirty-fifth Annual Recital of the Grand Italian Conservatory of Music by the advanced and junior pupils and always brings a well filled auditorium.

Dorothy has been making her home with an aunt in New York for some time, but it is said that she will arrive in Salisbury this week to stay with her father.

ISSUE NEW SERIES OF DELAWARE NOTES

"Delaware Notes," second series, has just been published by the University of Delaware.

The volume this year contains five complete essays, written by five professors of the University, and is edited by Dr. E. B. Crooks, Professor of Philosophy.

In the brief preface to the book, Dr. Crooks says:

"Delaware Notes appears now in its second year. The reception of last year's modest volume, as well as the response on the part of members of the Faculty this year, lends color to the hope that this annual publication of a series of studies will become a permanent feature of our University life.

Our plan has been somewhat altered. Instead of attempting to represent all the departments of the University in each volume, from now on each annual volume will represent a group of departments of similar interests. This issue comes from what may be broadly called the humanistic subjects. Next year the scientific departments will furnish the material, and a good part of this material is already in sight."

The volume contains essays on the following subjects:

The History, Organization and Operation of a French School, by O. W. Mosher, Jr.

The Democratic Program of Vocational Education, by R. W. Heim.

The Place of the Book of Luke in Literature, by W. O. Syphard.

The Pragmatic Absolute, by Ezra B. Crooks.

Growth of Artistic Appreciation in America in the Nineteenth Century, by George H. Ryden.

"Delaware Notes" is copyrighted, 1924, by the University of Delaware.

LOCAL FISHERMEN BALKED BY MINNOWS

Knoxentown Dam Overrun With Little Fellows, Is
Report of Visitors

Messrs. Ellis Davis and Joseph Sharpe, both of Newark, were weekend visitors at the fishing lake at Knoxentown, Del., this week. Mr. Sharpe reports seeing plenty of fish in the lake, but owing to the large schools of minnows it is almost impossible to catch fish, as they find so much to eat there. He, however, landed a two-pound bass by simply dropping a hook under it and catching it in the side.

Mr. James Wilson, of Cleveland Avenue, and Mr. Edward Honn, of Curtis Paper Mill, also were Knoxentown visitors last week.

Silver Lake, near Newark, seems to be the ideal place for fishing this season.

SHOOT DOG IN CROWD

Academic Procession Started by Shots Monday

While the procession of Faculty and graduates of the University was forming on the campus, near Wolf Hall Monday morning, a self-appointed dog catcher, armed with a shot gun, staged a raid on a group of stray dogs playing on the campus. He opened fire on the dogs while close enough to the assembled girl students to cause them a bad fright. Fortunately the shot did not injure anyone. A few minutes later another shot rang out, which finished one dog. The shots were fired so close to the procession that fears were felt for the safety of the marchers. The raider's name could not be learned.

$100 Friday

While returning to Newark from the D. I. A. A. title game at Dover, last Friday afternoon, three Newark drivers, Corbit Crompton, Ferdinand Finkernagle and Clyde Robinson were held up for speeding near Middletown and fined by a magistrate $25 and costs. The total fines amounted to about $108.

It is reported that the three cars, well filled with Newark rooters in a hurry to get home, were caught by State policeman.

VACANCIES OPEN FOR MILITARY CAMPS

Telegraphic information from the Second Corps Area headquarters was received on June 7 at Delaware C. M. T. C. headquarters, 3149 DuPont Building, as follows:

"There are vacancies still open in the Signal Corps and Engineering Citizens Military Training Camps in the Second Corps Area. Applications for other camps can only be accepted tentatively. It is believed that the War Department will give an increased allotment of vacancies in all the August camps. Applications for camps other than the Signal Corps and Engineers will be held on a waiting list and as vacancies occur they will be assigned in the order of receipt of applications."

In view of the above, immediate action will be necessary to insure acceptance at any camp. As there will, of course, be a few vacancies at the last moment, applicants who take prompt action now will still have a chance of being accepted. Application blanks will be mailed promptly to any one interested.

P. R. R. ISSUES AN ATTRACTIVE FOLDER

With a view to familiarizing the public with the attractive features and the development of the many Seashore pleasure resorts located along the New Jersey Coast, the Passenger Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad has just issued a profusely illustrated 192-page folder, describing in detail the varied facilities and advantages of all vacation seashore resorts from Long Branch to Cape May.

The folder is a highly artistic specimen of printing and is illustrated with a number of large half-tones, made from original photographs. The text has been carefully written with fidelity to detail, and the folder will prove an illuminating presentation of the attractions of the New Jersey Coast and its facilities for a week-end trip or a pleasurable vacation.

Those who have enjoyed a summer outing at Atlantic City, Asbury Park, Ocean City, Wildwood, Cape May, or any of the other New Jersey seashore resorts, and those who read this folder will doubtless appreciate the fact that no vacation is wholly complete without a dip in the briny deep.

A free copy of this attractive folder may be had upon request of D. N. Bell, Passenger Traffic Manager, Pennsylvania Railroad, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, Pa.

Commencement Orator Declares Students are Leaders

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

GIVEN BY DR. BAKER

When the history of our times is written and especially when the ideas and sentiments that have controlled the age in which we are living are reviewed, it will be found that the basis of our statesmanship, of our legislation, of much of our writing and of our art, is the conception that the public must be pleased. Science, too, is being pushed farther and farther into the mysteries of nature in the hope that a new revelation of her secret forces may make living less burdensome, more varied, more pleasant. The broker who deals in scientific disclosures is always lurking near the scholar's laboratory ready to seize upon the new thing and carry it off to the factory where it may be used to turn the wheels of industry, and thereby free man from his treadmill. Yes, you will say this is not to be questioned. It is the age of democracy—the era of self-government, self-determination, self-expression. And one might add without being censorious—the era of self-gratification. The people have gained greater independence. It is natural that they should strive to get what they want and that their demands to be pleased should be louder and more insistent than ever before.

This notion will be accepted without reservation as it applies to politics, but we may go further, and we shall observe that the masses have moved forward to a station of greater power and authority not only with respect to the form and methods of government, but also in art, literature, and education. The rule of the people has brought with it the assertion of their rights more positively concerning the kind of books and plays and pictures and music that are to be produced and the kind of schools that are to be maintained. The underlying motif of much of what the statesman, the artist or the man of letters, or even the teacher thinks or accomplishes is that the interest of the great mass must be secured. The unintelligent have claimed and secured rights that were never theirs before.

We take it as a matter of course that the politician shall have his ear to the ground and shall adapt his views to the prejudices and sentiments of the voters. We believe in democracy, and we believe the most effective check upon tyranny and injustice is in universal suffrage, but democracy is in danger because the unintelligent, the unreasoning, are finding ways to enforce their views and to override the ideas of thoughtful and selfless men. A new form of infidelity has revealed itself, which shows distrust of intelligence, which discounts the importance of experience, which suspects success. Public opinion find it easier and safer to show respect for the prejudices of the mob than to follow the dictates of reason and patriotism. And the mass prefer leaders who speak their rage and re-echo their thoughts. Great men can achieve little for his country without the arts of the politician—without pandering to the superstitions of the mob. The politician finds that it is to act the part of the man of the people to cultivate his eccentricities, to be those who have achieved position in finance or business by belittling the accomplishments of scholars and scientists. I can not find time to discuss the influence of the unintelligent upon government, but it has become so serious in most countries, not forgetting our own, that at times it appears as though the only way out of the muddle of incompetent administration and futile legislation through the rule of a wise and unshakable dictator.

Scientific progress and the application of science to practical ends have complicated the changed condition of masses and have been factors in the changes. Machines have been used to lighten the worker's load and to shorten his working hours. The chief incentives to the worker and inventions have been the "thru eat bread." Generations have been sought for a softening of his fate and have put nature under control to assist them in the accomplishment of their tasks. Man has thereby gained more security, more freedom, more comforts, more diversions, more leisure.

The struggle against working hard continues from generation to generation. Great rewards are given to the genius who releases men from burdensome tasks—who shortens the processes of manufacture and thereby sets free human hands. Labor is in revolt and the challenge of the laborer to science to give him more freedom, more leisure, is a standing challenge. The inventor is asked to find a machine that will reduce the number of men required for a mechanical operation and at the same time to reduce the hours of work for those who remain. We have an unending race between the desire of man to escape from his tasks and science, which is trying to make up for the growing shortage of man power. The putting of nature to work—the employment of man's inventive genius to spare the worker has made it easier for the people to get what they want or at least what they think they want. Labor has become a more expensive commodity, therefore the working man has more money with which to purchase what he desires. His working hours are shorter, therefore he has more free time to discover these desires and to gratify them. This increased leisure makes it possible for him to think more about politics and education and literature and art.

The liberation of humanity by science has brought with it many blessings. We must not, however, forget that it has not been accomplished without certain mischievous effects.

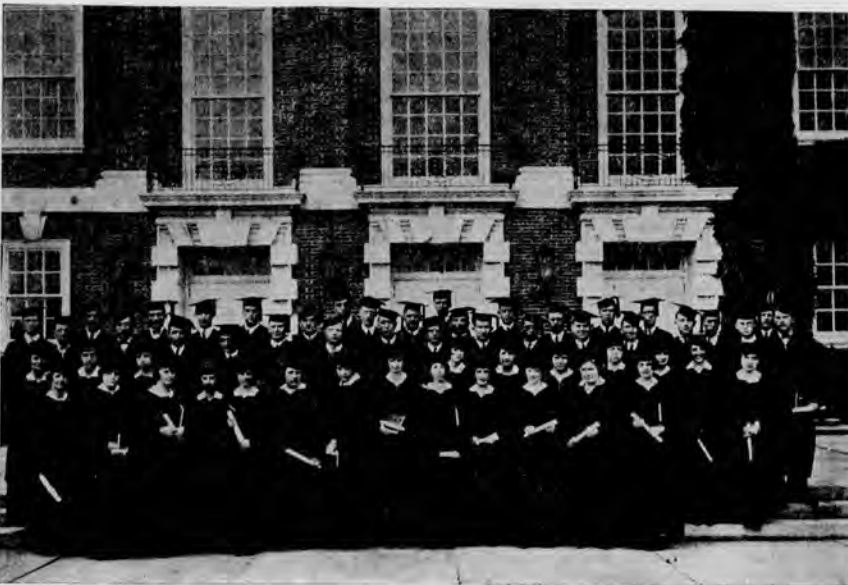

How far can we go in permitting machines to do the world's work, in indulging ourselves in the repose that they are expected to bring us, without causing the race to grow slack? An evidence of this slackness is seen in the emergence of the white collar job. One of the commonest sayings that is heard, and especially at Commencement time when the young graduate chooses his career, is that young men do not want to work. A fundamental idea of Americanism is unfaltering energy. It may be a survival of puritanism, but the strenuous life motif of the days of Roosevelt is still a dominating ideal in our philosophy of existence. We are, therefore, particularly concerned over the white-collar man. His unnatural prominence does not belong in the American tradition. We fail to realize that he is a by-product of the machine. The output of modern factories is so great that the manufacturer must often resort to more or less artificial means of disposing of his products, and there has therefore grown up a sort of industrial parasite who helps to create a demand for the machine-made commodities. In this category many of the white-collar men belong.

Another evidence of slackness is the excessive luxury of our times. Machinery and inventions have added and are continually adding to our comforts, but we are deluding ourselves if we measure progress by the additions to our conveniences. The growth in luxury and the raising of our standards of living are out of proportion to our progress expressed in terms of spiritual and mental advancement.

Finally, there is a moral aspect of the changed conditions that have been brought about by substituting the machine for human hands. We may be seeking relief from our burdens or a greater extent than is reasonable or even good for us. In most forms of manufacture, the individual has such a small share that his sense of responsibility diminishes. He takes very little pride in his work and gets very little exhilaration from it. Whatever may be the cause, whether it is the machine or something else, I do not know, but our sense of responsibility is slackening and our demand for diversions and self-gratification is growing. Possibly, this state of mind may explain the growth of radical theories of government and economics. The machine has shortened the worker's day, has increased his pay, has lightened his load, although it may have made his work more monotonous. It may have made him feel that work is not an inexorable necessity that work is not an inexorable necessity.

Aside from the interest in the young men and women in the picture, it represents a decided departure at Old Delaware. This is the first picture ever taken of the classes in a joint Commencement. Prior to this year the men and women students have been holding separate exercises.

GRADUATES OF UNIVERSITY HEAR STIRRING SERMON ON LIBERALISM

Rev. Herbert F. Randolph of Philadelphia Preaches Baccalaureate in Wolf Hall Sunday

At the first joint baccalaureate sermon in the history of Delaware, the Men's and Women's College graduates joined in worship Sunday morning last in Wolf Hall.

The academic procession was much longer than in previous years, because of the women students and faculty in line. It made a very pretty sight passing into the well filled auditorium down to where places had been reserved in the first few rows.

The procession was led by Dr. F. M. K. Foster, marshal, and following him came Dr. Hullihen and Rev. Randolph.

Program Given

During the processional, the University Orchestra played. The stage at Wolf Hall was tastefully decorated with spring flowers and ferns. Following the invocation, the assemblage sang "Faith of Our Fathers." The scripture reading and prayer were given by Rev. Randolph. O. W. Mosher, Jr., then played a violin solo, "Largo," by Handel. Following another hymn, the sermon was preached by Rev. Randolph.

Rarely has there been heard a more powerful sermon to graduates in Wolf Hall than that delivered by Dr. Randolph. He spoke particularly of the great progressive movement in religion, and the plea that men and women shape their lives along a more advanced basis than that established many years ago. He stated in effect that as the world moves on, so must religious doctrines move.

World Is Better

"Frankly," he said, "I am one of those who believe that the world is a better world today than ever before. I do not believe that we are moving on toward another dark age. I believe that the golden age is ahead of us, not behind us. This age of ours may have all the faults and failings which the gloomy Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral attributes to it. Nevertheless, taken on the whole, it is the best age the world has yet known. Changes are rapid and frequent among us. But on the whole, I believe the world is sweeping into a younger day."

"If you believe in a providential order, in God as being in His world, then it is obvious that the world moves from good to better, and from better to best. Men have always talked, as some very loudly talk, about the end of all things and the dissolution of the whole fabric in tragedy and defeat. But looking back from our high vantage ground, we can see that change has always meant ultimate progress, not loss but gain, not descent but ascent."

Delivers Sermon

DR. HERBERT F. RANDOLPH

Pastor of Calvary M. E. Church, Philadelphia, who delivered a strong sermon to University graduates Sunday morning last.

Dr. Randolph then proceeded to talk of the changes in the Christian church. The distressed and unsettled minds of almost all people worrying over these recent changes, he said, were due for the most part to the fact that almost all people are mental sluggards. "They prefer to take their religion," he said, "if they take it at all, without thinking it through. One thing they resent and that is any change in their religious ideas. Their one song is 'The old time religion is good enough for me.' Well, it's not good enough for me. Religious ideas must keep abreast the intellect of the times. The centuries are strewn with the rejected dogmas of the people of various times. The old forms perished only because purer and nobler forms of belief were waiting to take their place. The disappearance was not loss but gain."

Discusses Atonement

Here, the speaker referred to the doctrine of atonement. He mentioned that the early Christians looked upon the sufferings of Jesus as a ransom

Class Day, Dinner, and Dance Mark Program at W. C. D.

Although the baseball game and Old College dinner attracted most of the men visitors and college people Saturday, the day was really marked by the many activities attendant to the closing of the collegiate year at the Women's College.

Among the many events were: Class Day exercises in Red Men's Grove in the morning, the President's reception at "The Knoll" late in the afternoon, the Alumnae dinner in the New Century Club and the Dean's dance in Residence Hall.

Day, which started at 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

Several score people attended Class Day exercises. The daisy chain procession was a beautiful feature of the exercises. The members of the Sophomore class, dressed in white and bearing the daisy chain, escorted the Seniors in their caps and gowns to the grove. There in the large "D" made by the daisy chain, the Seniors sang their class song, which was written by Miss Mary E. Deen, a member of the graduating class. The color ceremony was carried out by Mrs. Mary Braeme Seasholtz of the Seniors and Miss Georgia Wiggins of the ophomores. Miss Wiggins accepted the color to keep in trust for the Class of 1923. Following the acceptance of the color, the Class of 1923 sang to the Seniors.

Miss Emily Peale Roe, president of the Senior class, then presented the cap and gown, symbol of seniority to Miss Madalin Wintrup, recently elected president of the Class of 1925. Miss Eleanor Vinyard of the Class of 1924, sang a solo.

The Sophomores then took up the daisy chain and the procession returned to the Women's College campus, where Miss Lois Garret planted the ivy to keep green the memory of the outgoing class. Miss Eleanor Rush presented to the college the class gift of new lights in Sussex Hall. The gift was accepted for the college by Dean Robinson. The singing of the Alma Mater concluded these exercises.

Alumnae Dinner

About 100 alumnae returned and enjoyed the dinner given by the alumnae in honor of the new class entering the association. The dinner was held at the New Century Club and followed a business meeting of the association. Election of officers was held at this time. Mrs. Ruth Clendaniel Bausman, of the Class of 1918, was elected president of the Women's College Alumnae. Mrs. Mary Jane Mason, of the Class of 1919, was elected vice-president, and Miss Helen D. Shorb, was elected treasurer. Other officers of the association are Miss Elizabeth R. Taylor, recording secretary, and Miss Hilda Stevens, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. A. D. Warner, who is an honorary member of the Alumnae Association, gave a toast to Miss Mary E. Rich, who is leaving soon for the Pacific Coast. Miss Rich was formerly a popular member of the faculty of the college. Mrs. Warner also gave a toast to Miss Walker, who will sail for France next Wednesday. Miss Walker was then introduced to the guests at the dinner by Miss MacDough.

The singing of the Alma Mater concluded the program at the dinner. A business meeting of the association was held following the dinner.

At 9 o'clock Dean Robinson was hostess to the Seniors, and to members of the Class of 1923 and the Class of 1919, who are celebrating the fifth anniversary of their graduation this June.

The Women's College Farewell "Hop" was given on Friday evening. The patronesses were: President and Mrs. Walter Hullihen, Dean Winifred J. Robinson, Miss Rachel W. Taylor, Miss Emma L. Wilson, Miss Quaesita C. Drake, Dean and Mrs. George E. Dutton.

truth will prevail and that the outcome will be only gain. The issue will be purer and nobler faith. The changes will mean enrichment and enlargement."

1924 CLASS IS 100 P. C. ON LIBRARY PLEDGES

Men Students So State To Miss Kennedy, Secretary Of Alumni

As one of the last official acts as a class in the University here, the members of the Senior Class, led by their president, William E. Howard, Jr., pledged a 100 per cent fulfillment of their obligations in support of the new Memorial Library last Friday, when they submitted such action to Miss Lina C. Kennedy, in charge of the handling of the pledges here.

The matter was made public following a call on Miss Kennedy by a committee of the class, with a resolution adopted to the effect stated above.

A continued drive is under way for the cleaning up of the outstanding pledges. Although in some instances the obligations have been coming in slowly, the collection of the money has met with real success on the whole.

PREPARE FOR STATE FIREMEN'S CONVENTION

Lewes, Del.

The Lewis Fire Company is preparing for the convention of the Delaware State Volunteer Firemen's Association on July 9. Each member will have a new uniform, and the company will be accompanied by the Philharmonic Band of Wilmington. Already eleven bands have promised to be in line on that day. Most of the companies in the state as well as many nearby companies in Maryland are expected to be present with a part of their equipment. Every effort is being put forth to provide for the comfort of the visiting firemen, as well as many out of town guests. The local Firemen's Carnival will be in progress at that time.

paid to the devil. Later, he said, the theologians taught the sufferings were an expiation offered to an angry God. "Today," emphasized Dr. Randolph, "we reject all. No doubt the changes troubled many people; but we recognize that changes have not meant loss but gain. We have been receiving fuller light."

"As the result of the ceaseless changes of the centuries, we are nearer the truth today than we have ever been. We know God today as the world has never known Him before. We are acquainted with Christ as no age has ever been acquainted with Him, not even the first century. And yet, I view this religious conflict going on now with the confidence that

Reports to Trustees Show Many Needs at University

Prof. Harold E. Tiffany, associate professor of chemistry, resigned his post and will take charge of a commercial chemistry business in Wilmington, it is reported. Prof. Tiffany is one of the veteran professors at Delaware, having first come here in 1906 as assistant to Dr. Wolfe. He has remained continually in the harness ever since save for two or three years spent in the employ of the duPont Company during the war. Professor Tiffany is known and liked by a host of graduates of the institution, and his record at Delaware has been one of real service and distinction. For some months it has been his desire to get into commercial chemistry and late reports have it that he is to conduct the chemistry business purchased from Dr. Thomas F. Brown of Wilmington, with offices in the Ford building. Prof. Tiffany has spent many years in research work and is an authority on organic chemistry. During the past year he has been taking charge of the Freshman chemistry courses here.

The resignation of Dr. E. M. R. Lankey, plant pathologist and expert on plant diseases, was also received and accepted. Dr. Lankey has spent the last three or four years at Delaware conducting experiments on important phases of plant diseases and has established some very valuable data, which he will submit to the department before leaving.

Miss Sarah Churchman, dietitian at the Women's College, will leave her post this year. Miss Churchman has been in service since the opening of the college. She was ordered tendered a gift of $300 for her valuable services.

Many Resolutions

The meeting, which lasted from 11.15 a. m. until 2 p. m., was devoted for the most part to a discussion of the President's report, and the passage of many resolutions in which a wealth of detailed business was disposed of.

One resolution, heartily endorsed, directed that the Business Administrator, A. G. Wilkinson, be complimented on his work, and that letters of appreciation be sent by the Trustees to D. Lee Rose, Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings here, to Herman McKay, Engineer, and to their assistants, complimenting them on the splendid condition of the grounds and buildings of the campus this year. The resolution in part read, "that the grounds and buildings of the University present a better appearance this year than at any time in the recollection of the Trustees."

Several new members of the faculty of the Women's College were elected and will take up their work in September. Miss Lulu M. Richardson, of Baltimore, a graduate of Goucher College, was elected assistant professor in French.

Miss Mary Harding, a former teacher in the art department in the Binghamton, N. Y., high school, was elected assistant in art to succeed Miss Anne Ritz. She will be on part time, the other time to be taken up in work in the Newark high school.

Miss Rena Allen, of Woodbridge, N. J., graduate of Teachers' College, Columbia, elected to be assistant professor in the school of education, succeeding Miss Grace Eckman.

Miss Mildred Congdon, graduate this year of Mount Holyoke, to be assistant in chemistry, succeeding Miss Ada Willim.

Following the meeting the Trustees were guests at dinner at the Women's College.

Dr. Walter Hullen, president of the University, in his report gave the total enrollment at Delaware College as 302 with 11 graduate students.

President's Report

Dr. Hullen's report in part follows:

"At the risk of wearying the Board by repeating the words of my report I desire to call attention again to the serious effect of the reduction of the appropriation by the General Assembly at its 1922 meeting. It will be recalled that a reduction of $13,000 in our annual appropriation was made. In the President's report last June the grave results of this reduction were forecast. The institution during the current session has been realizing those results.

"The work in French, German, and Spanish has been greatly curtailed through the necessity of releasing one member of the modern language staff. This is peculiarly unfortunate at a time when our foreign study experiment is attracting national attention, and when, in consequence, our modern language department ought to be maintaining the highest possible standard of efficiency.

"The work in mathematics and physics has been similarly injured. The reduction in the staff in mathematics and physics has resulted in over-crowding in several sections, the omission of the course in astronomy in Delaware College, and of physics in the Women's College.

"The injury to the School of Agriculture and the farm caused by a cut of $2,500, and to general maintenance by a cut of $2,000 has been spread through all of the varied activities and parts of the work concerned but is none the less serious and will ultimately result in expense to the State greater than the amount saved by the cut. For this cut makes it impossible to maintain the property properly with the painting, repairs and replacements essential to economical upkeep and management.

"It should also be borne in mind that still further injury would have been done by the reduction in the appropriation, except for the generosity of Messrs. Pierre, Irenée, and Lamot duPont who turned over to the University a $4,200 balance of a teacher-training scholarship fund established by them which balance under the terms of their gift was to have reverted to them upon the establishment of teacher-training scholarships by the State. This gift of $4,200 is to be divided between the current year and next year and relieves our annual budget for each of those years by $2,100. Without this gift our teaching program would indeed have been disastrously curtailed and after the coming session this relief will no longer be available and still further reductions will have to be made in the teaching staff unless the Legislature restores our former appropriation.

"The members of the board should keep this situation in mind, for, unless our budget is restored at least to what it was, the University must make radical readjustments in its permanent program that will mark a definite step backward.

Needs of University

"In view of the necessity of preparing our budget for the Legislature which convenes during next session, it is advisable that the Board review the situation now existing and consider all of the needs of the institution in order that wise decisions may be made to the items that should be included in the request for legislative appropriation.

"It is important that the Legislature be provided with a perfectly clear statement as to the order of importance of the various items of primary importance and cannot be reduced without great damage to the efficiency and reputation of the institution; that a reduction in the budget for maintenance and upkeep must be made up later by the State and in the long run costs much more than the reduction saves, and that after the general teaching and maintenance budget the items are given in the order of their importance to the institution. It would not do the University any good, for example, if anything is deducted from the teaching and maintenance budget which is already below what is needed for the students we have.

"Always of first importance in an institution of learning is the provision for its purely educational needs. It may be only a truism to say that with an adequate teaching staff this could become a great institution of learning without a single fine building, and that the finest group of buildings in the world could not make it great without teachers adequate in number and training for the courses that must be given, yet we should keep this steadily before our minds if the temptation should come to barter force for buildings.

"Our greatest need at the University of Delaware is a teaching staff large enough to offer the courses every first class college ought to offer, and more complete teaching equipment. Both Dean Dutton and Dean Robinson have called attention to the grave damage done our curriculum through the reduction in the teaching staff forced upon us by the reduction in our income for this biennium. But even with the restoration of the teachers released on account of that reduction our condition would be far from satisfactory; we should still be unable to offer the boys and girls of Delaware in several of the departments what they could get in any of the first class colleges of the country.

Instructional Equipment

"No appropriation by the Legislature for instructional equipment has been asked for eight years. The inadequate equipment was provided many years ago for one-third the present number of students has been supplemented year by year from the meager allowance for current expense allotted to each department, and in some instances from the private funds of the instructor, but in some of the laboratories and shops the gap between what we have and what we ought to have is being closed so slowly that the time seems to have come when it is imperative that we lay the situation before the Legislature and ask for a lump sum, in addition to the appropriation for maintenance, in order to equip our physics and engineering laboratories properly for instructional purposes. After being given the necessary permanent equipment we can maintain them and secure the small current additions that will be necessary from the fees charged for work in them.

"The following are the amounts still needed to equip these departments properly for instructional purposes: Physics laboratory, Delaware College, $1750; physics laboratory, Women's College, $1500; civil engineering, $1100; mechanical engineering, $2800; electrical engineering, $850; chemistry, $1000; biology, $1000; total, $10,000.

"The outlay necessary for the increases in the teaching staff and for equipment above-mentioned would not be a very great one. The equipment totals $10,000 and the increase over the University's 1920-22 budget for instruction and maintenance would be only about $15,000 a year. Such an increase would put our instructional work on a par with that of other reputable colleges and would give Delaware boys and girls who attend their State University opportunities substantially equal to those enjoyed by the boys and girls attending other state colleges or privately endowed institutions. The State of Delaware has gone so far in providing higher education for her sons and daughters that it seems a pity for her to stop short of real excellence when the amount necessary to accomplish this result is so small a fraction of the whole amount appropriated.

"With these additions the University could operate successfully for from four to six years without further increases in the instructional budget, unless the increase in number of students should be much more rapid than it has been in the past. This seems unlikely as the point of saturation is apparently being approached and increase is likely to be at a slower rate as we approach the maximum to be expected from the population of Delaware.

Need New Buildings

"Other buildings badly needed are an auditorium and Engineering Building on Delaware College campus and a Y. W. C. A. Building on the campus of the Women's College.

"The only auditorium we have is that in Wolf Hall. It seats only 420. Our student body and faculty this year, including the Rehabilitation Division number 750. It is therefore impossible to hold a meeting requiring the attendance of both faculty and students, much less is there any place in which any meeting to which other people of the community may be invited, if the faculty and students are to be present. We have no proper place in which to present dramatics, recitals, or lectures to which the general public may be invited. The outdoor exercises at Commencement are the only one to which the public can be invited and the space for these exercises is very inadequate even though many of the undergraduates have at that time returned to their homes, thus reducing the number of people for whom provision must be made.

"The need of an Engineering Building has been previously discussed with you. The temporary buildings are in very bad repair and none of the buildings assigned to this Division are large enough to afford adequate space for the equipment we now have, to say nothing of what we must add as time goes on.

"The Y. W. C. A. Building at the Women's College for student organizations, an art museum, music rooms, and an assembly hall, would strengthen greatly the department of fine arts and broaden the scope, influence, and value of the worth-while extra-curricular activities which are now so hampered and restricted by lack of space. This building would be in certain degree the counterpart as to its use of Old College Hall at Delaware College but would serve an even larger number of purposes.

Must Come As Gifts

"These three buildings, badly as they are needed, cannot be asked for by legislative appropriations at this time. In fact, considering the present status of the State's income and the demands made upon it, it does not seem likely that any one of them can be built by the State for many years to come. They can only come to us through the generosity of public-spirited men and women of means who, knowing of the need, may be unwilling that this State institution with its fine promise of usefulness and its admirable record of accomplishment shall have to wait indefinitely for the buildings necessary to make available to Delaware boys and girls the full fruition of college life and training. In all parts of the

EXTRACTS FROM DEPARTMENT REPORTS

Pertinent Points Mentioned in Annual Reports from Various University Interests, Which Were Combined into the "General Report"

The following excerpts are from reports of the year's work from various University Committees and Heads of Departments. They are authoritative and official:

DEAN'S REPORT

PROF. GEORGE E. DUTTON, Dean

"As Dean of the College, I have directed my energies chiefly with, I feel, a fair measure of success—to raising the standard of scholarship of the students of the Arts and Science school, which school more than half the teaching of the college is done. To this end I have had the cooperation of the members of the Faculty almost without exception. More work and better work is not being required in the Arts and Science school than ever before, but there is still room for great improvement. In spite of the fact that a higher grade of work is now demanded, fewer students have been dropped this year on account of poor scholarship than usual. Instructors are checking upon the work of their students frequently, and in cases of delinquency parents are immediately notified and the students themselves are interviewed by the Dean.

The work of instruction at Delaware College is hampered to an appreciable extent because students who come to us from our state high schools are notably weak in Mathematics and English. Results of a recent study of the records of those students who have been dropped from college for poor scholarship during the past five years show that, although our students from Delaware schools are better prepared in general than those who come from outside, they are more poorly prepared in these two subjects. At the meeting of the state high school teachers at Newark on May 10, 1924, a committee was appointed to study this matter with regard to English, of which committee the Dean was made a member. This study should pave the way for the solving of a serious and difficult problem.

Social Activities

For some time a feeling has existed at the college that student dances and other affairs were too frequently and too expensive for the good of the students, especially such affairs given by fraternities. At various times during the year I have talked this matter over with heads of fraternities. I have also refused to lend money from the Student Loan Fund to members of country it is coming to be realized that State institutions can never equal the beauty, equipment and standing of the privately endowed institutions, unless the wealth that has been poured out with such lavish hand upon private institutions recognizes the even larger opportunity for service presented by the State institutions.

Character in Education

"Two years ago in a report to you I spoke of what seemed to me to be the failure of colleges, especially state colleges, to consider character building as one of the fundamental purposes of all education, and the consequent failure to study the question of the possibility of the molding or influencing of character among college students through the medium of the instruction given. These remarks were made in advocacy of the establishment of a course in ethics which at that time was not given in either college. That course has been established and is taken by a considerable number of students. The professor who teaches this subject has also conducted this session the 'Round Table,' established by the Rev. Edgar Jones, a forum for discussion of moral and sociological questions, attendance at which is voluntary but which has brought together as many as sixty or seventy students at some of its meetings.

"Details of the working out of the foreign study plan were given in my report at mid-year and to this there is little of interest to add at this time. Prof. Kirkbride has been back for a brief visit during the past two weeks but is returning at once to be with the party at the time of their final examinations the last of this month. They will return early in July.

"A party of five or six boys and three girls will leave at different times during the summer to spend a year in study in France under Prof. Kirkbride's supervision, following the same general plan as has been carried out this year. One of the boys and two of the girls are graduates so that there will be only five undergraduates this year as compared with eight during the current year.

fraternities who expected to give or had given elaborate social functions. Every man with whom I have talked has said that his fraternity dances were costing more than the members of the fraternity could conveniently pay, and that his fraternity would give simpler and less expensive dances, provided other fraternities did the same thing. Last week the Faculty Committee on Social Affairs met with representatives of the fraternities and discussed the matter in detail. As a result it is altogether likely that the fraternities will of their own accord bring down the cost of their social activities to a point where the financial resources of those who participate in them will not be unduly taxed.

Condition of Certain Departments

Modern Languages—This department is in no condition to do the work that is expected of it. At least two courses in a modern foreign language are required of every student in the Arts and Science school and at least one course of every student in the school of Engineering. Because of poor preparation in the subject, many students must take three courses in a modern foreign language. The teaching force of this department comprises two men at Delaware College, who also teach at the Women's College, and one woman at the Women's College. There is a student assistant, a native of France, at each college, who aids in the teaching of conversational French. Since the teaching of a modern foreign language involves the reading and correcting of a great number of papers, and since the classes (especially during the first term) have been unusually large this year, it was necessary to allow about 18 students to omit a foreign language from their schedules in the hope that it would be possible for them to take it next year. But present indications point to a larger class next year than this year. At the present time only two really college courses can be offered in French at Delaware College, and only one course (Elementary Spanish) can be offered in Spanish. No courses can be offered in German. I am informed by the men who are teaching sciences that students attempting advanced work are handicapped by their inability to read books of reference and journals published in the German language. Again, students who after graduation go on with graduate work are required to have a reading knowledge of French and German. For these reasons I feel that at least two years of instruction in the German language should be given at Delaware College. The advanced course in French at Delaware College (Modern Language 7 and 8) has had to be abandoned, or at least changed, in order to establish what is really a coaching course for boys who expect to go to France under the Foreign Study Plan and whose preparation in French is not sufficient to enable them to do so.

Who sailed Saturday last for Paris where he will superintend the closing of the work of the first year Delaware's Foreign Study Plan. He will welcome the second batch of students early in July.

Mathematics—The condition of department of Mathematics is almost as bad as that of Modern Languages. There are two men teaching in the department, one of whom also teaches at the Women's College. It is impossible for them to offer any advanced work in Mathematics, and it is the more impossible for any student either college to major in this subject. This fact is especially serious because some of the students at Women's College expect to major in Mathematics in the public schools of the state. One of the instructors in Engineering is giving a course in advanced mathematics at Delaware College to engineering students, but, course, being technical, does not fit the situation in the Arts and Science school.

Physics—Under present conditions courses in Sophomore Physics can be offered at Delaware College and no courses in this subject can be offered at the Women's College. There is only one professor in the department, and he has all the work that he can do. He is also handicapped by a lack of equipment. I refer you to his report for further information concerning the difficulties that he is encountering in his department.

In these three departments of Modern Languages, Mathematics, Physics, then, Delaware College is offering no courses above those of Sophomore year. It is impossible for a student to major in a subject in any of these departments. The University of Delaware is to be

Newark High Nosed Out By Harrington

Locals Lose State Title 3-1 in Snappy Game Friday Last in Dover

Although a fighting uphill game earned them a tie in the seventh inning, Newark High went down to defeat in the deciding game for the State D. I. A. A. championship in baseball last Friday afternoon in the Dover baseball park, score 3-1, against Harrington.

The score or more of Newark rooters were exuberant when J. Jaquette brought in the tying run in the seventh. The excitement was short lived, however, as the Harrington boys went to work and pushed over two runs in the eighth, enough to win the game.

Although eight errors were registered by the two teams, the game was fast and at times sensational. It was at all times worthy of a title struggle. A great crowd of people witnessed the battle between the two best High School teams in the State.

Rose and Ryan staged a pretty pitchers battle all the way and came out with honors even in the matter of hit. Both teams hit safely five times, and Rose struck out two more men than Ryan. It was a hard game for Newark to lose, after their splendid showing in the series with the strong Caesar Rodney team. Coach Elder and the local boys took their defeat in true sportsmanlike fashion, however, and the rooters are already confidently hoping for the title next year.

Hopkins was the star performer for Newark at the bat, gathering in three solid hits, one of which was a double. Rose fielded his position in fine style. All four of the Newark errors were made in the infield, with Patchell the chief offender with two.

Masten, of the Harrington team, had a busy day at second base accepting seven hard chances without an error. The whole Harrington team played with confidence and energy. The score:

MAKING PLANS FOR du PONT CELEBRATION

The Executive Committee of the State Highway Commission, of which Governor Denney is chairman, met in the Governor's parlors recently to consider plans for the proper observance of the formal acceptance of the du Pont Boulevard, fixed for Wednesday, July 2, the exercises to be held on Dover Green.

The committee has appointed Edward D. Prince, of Wilmington, as director in organizing the different towns to prepare for the event. One of the features will be the presentation to General T. C. du Pont, a book memorial, including the names of all persons who desire to express their appreciation of his generosity. Invitations will be extended to President Coolidge and his Cabinet and the Governors of several States.

CLUB STANDING

Providence defeated Charlestown Saturday in a Cecil County League game by the score of 5-4. Both teams played airtight ball in the field. Scarborough led the attack for the visitors with three doubles and a single, while Jones with two doubles and two singles was the leading hitter for the home team.

A triple play by King, Dean and Spence featured the game. The score:

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS GIVEN BY DR. BAKER

sity, that the good things of this life are not necessarily the rewards of industry, intelligence, and thrift. One can have his cake, and eat it too. In other words, radicalism is not infrequently an excuse for laziness. The unintelligent, the ineffective, the indifferent, are claiming rights that are not commensurate with what they deserve, according to the usually accepted standards of justice and propriety. But we are merely at the beginning of the machine age. We must adjust ourselves to the new conditions that it is creating. Its onward sweep cannot be stopped and it will crush humanity unless we can control it and direct it. It is no time for slackness. It is a time when intelligence should be at the helm to guide us in the course which we must pursue and upon which past history throws but little light.

Today, eight hours is the usually accepted period of a day's work. A hundred physicists in a hundred laboratories in different parts of the world are exploring that infinitely small microcosm, the atom. Tomorrow we may read that some one of them has found in it a new force that will move the machinery of the world with half the expenditure of human effort. The four hour day may become the standard of labor. We may pause and ask ourselves whether such an apparent boon to humanity would be a real benefit if it were to mean that the added free time would be used only for pleasing ourselves, if self-indulgence, the unreasoning pursuit of amusements, the setting aside of individual responsibility, should control the new order. Such a discovery would create a new industrial world. It might create a new philosophy of morals.

Modern inventions increase the opportunities of people to get what they want, or at least what they think they want. They can satisfy their curiosity concerning a wide range of things. Great pictures may be brought into every household through inexpensive reproductions. Music by eminent artists can be heard everywhere and by any one by means of mechanical devices. The newspaper is a universal medium for disseminating information and entertainment. The radio makes it possible for the expressions of the most distinguished minds to be transmitted to every corner of the world for those who wish to hear them. It is as though the table that is spread for the humblest man were today weighted down with the choicest fruits of the mind and the spirit. But will he choose the best from this store, or will he push aside the rarer things and select what will appeal to an indiscriminating palate? In other words, does this very rapid and convenient broadcasting of ideas and artistic treasures mean that the great audience which is always listening in, will be interested in what is best, or will it prefer to pay attention to the banal, the cheap, the trivial?

The public at large will not care for these things that require mental effort. It prefers to be amused rather than improved or instructed. This will always be the case, so that while the applications of science give a quick access to the great products of the human mind, they also make it easy to satisfy the popular interest in those things that are ephemeral and are without any significance except as means of passing the time. Art, through the cheap reproducing devices and even literature through the inexpensive processes of printing, become items in the growing list of comforts and luxuries and diversions.

Science is an instrument for the propagation of what is good, but also of what is worthless or even bad. The standards of intellectual accomplishment are set by the masses in a sense that was never known before. The audience that listens to and passes judgment upon what men think, is growing larger rapidly. In this sense, applied science is the handmaid of democracy in that it makes it possible for the plain man to know about and to criticize things which in former generations never came to his attention. He has grown, not only in political importance but also as an arbiter of art and letters. The intellectuals have lost some of their influence in determining what the world shall think about, and what it shall enjoy. All this is one of the indirect results of putting modern scientific discoveries to practical use.

What will be the effect of this change, this greatly enlarged jury, upon the intellectual life of the world? One hesitates to hazard a guess, but one may suspect that we may run into the danger of becoming hearers of the word rather than doers. That, what was formerly a serious intellectual exercise may become a more pastime. Furthermore, it is clear that the man or woman who can please this infinitely vast audience will secure rewards out of all proportion to his intrinsic worth. For example, the popular moving picture actor receives in a year for his performances more than the Shakespearean actor, Edwin Booth, earned in his whole lifetime. The writer of a successful song is a greater man measured in dollars and cents than Beethoven with his nine symphonies. The popular journalist with his daily article in several hundred papers reaches a crowd (and is rewarded accordingly) that Milton could never reach. Increase the size of the audience, give to this great crowd what it wants and you have a situation that has never risen before. The influence of the public's favorite is without parallel. The temptation, therefore, to follow the demands of the people and not to attempt to lead them is greatly increased. It is true that in the past, great thinkers have rarely been able to reach the masses, at least directly, but the disparity between the size of the audience that listens to the popular idol today and the audience made up of the elect has never been so overwhelmingly great, and the means of reaching the masses are likely to increase rather than to diminish, so that the voice of the crowd will become more insistent, and the resulting disparagement of serious thinking may become more pronounced.

But it may be asked will not the increased opportunities for self-improvement result in an elevation of taste? I don't know. This is a fundamental consideration in the discussion of the race's future. So far our amusements and diversions have been multiplied and our comforts increased but Disraeli has said "We mistake comfort for civilization." Moreover, it is so much easier and more profitable to give the public what it wants than to attempt to promote a higher form of thinking that the pandering to baser interests may neutralize apparent advantages.

Education has ceased to be exclusively a form of training for the intellectual life. Much confusion exists. Ask the man in the street what is the purpose of education; he will give you one answer. Ask the school man; he will give you another. Ask the engineer; still another and a different reply will be made. But most of the responses will be hesitating and indefinite, if the inquiry is continued. And as we go along in our search for a definition, it will be observed that one of the most favorite phrases that is employed is to prepare men for life. This often means to prepare men for a livelihood, a vocation, a profession. Education has been democratized. The man of no great mental endowments is no longer denied his chance in the schools or even in the colleges. It is a fine conception, which is rapidly bringing about the eradication of illiteracy. But we may exaggerate its importance in creating enlightenment and lofty standards of thinking. Our hope that the minds of our pupils may be enfranchised by what they learn in the schools is vague. It is a very worthy purpose to train young people for greater economic independence, but we should not confuse this with the higher intellectual aims of education.

Accompanying the extension of educational opportunities and as one of its results we observe a form of bookishness. All manner of people write whether they have anything to say or not. This growth in the literary output is significant in several ways. It shows that the schools and colleges have aroused a kind of mental curiosity. It signifies also an increase in leisure. It denotes certainly a craving for diversion which in turn means that people need more and more help from outside sources to keep them from being bored. We are growing less and less independent in the business of living and we are becoming less independent in our ability to amuse ourselves. The growth of interest in ephemeral literature is an illustration of this state of mind. It seems unfair to couple literature with football, baseball, golf, and automobiling, but a good deal of our reading is purely for diversion. The flood of books that issue from the presses does not indicate necessarily an enthusiasm for literature. The fact that nearly all these publications are very short lived, shows that one literary thrill must be followed quickly by another. One best seller follows on the heels of another. The intensity of its success is usually an index of the quickness of its oblivion. The enterprising publisher whips up an excitement about a certain book and the public seizes upon the new sensation. There is thus created a literature for the undiscriminating which embraces the scores of popular magazines and novels and even many books that present a non-serious purpose.

I fear what I have said may appear to you to disclose a picture of the world that is too sombre. I may seem to you to be too dejected. There have been at all times men ready to cry "wolf," and rarely does the menace appear. It is an age of apprehensiveness, but it is also a period of great pride in the material progress of humanity. We are apprehensive because of the intricacy of our machinery of existence. The form of government has become excessively complicated and unstable. We are concerned at the growth of the influence of unthinking and self-seeking leaders. On the other hand we are proud of the prodigious triumphs of science over nature—of our increasing control over natural forces and the comforts and diversions that it brings to us. And as Americans we are particularly proud that our nation has become the most powerful state in Christendom. Our nation, which less than a generation ago was regarded as a somewhat radical experiment in democracy, today is the world's chief defense against bankruptcy and the submergence of what is traditional in government.

So you men and women are entering upon your careers at a moment of perplexity and of exaltation. You do not share the uncertainty of the alarmists, and it is well that this is true. You have courage, confidence, strength. You see the mountain peaks of achievement and you can well forget the distance that you must traverse and the hard roads that you must follow. These words that I have uttered are not intended to bring you a moment of discouragement or hesitation. I wish only to point out certain signs of the times which I hope may be recognized by you as you go along your way of progress. As a college man and woman a special privilege is yours in being trained to look beneath the surface and recognize what is genuine and what is fictitious. You will understand that haste, that speed, and restlessness are not proofs of advancement.

I would have you select a higher ideal than that of merely pleasing the public. I would not have you sceptical about art and literature and education or even about politics, but I would urge you to discriminate between what is created to satisfy a restless popular mood and what is the result of inspiration. Artists and poets of other ages also had to deal with a heedless public. Shakespeare himself, was willing to cajole his audience by episodes that suggest the slapstick, but he did not sell himself merely to please.

A great menace to progress is the decline of the sense of individual responsibility and the increase in the belief that happiness and success are gifts which have little to do with the individual's efforts or merits. I believe therefore, that you college men and women have no higher obligation than to oppose yourselves to this devastating infidelity concerning the virtue of intelligence and honest effort. I consider it to be your duty to do what you can that right thinking shall prevail. There is no worthier task for young men and young women than to dethrone the incompetent and indolent. You can not all be great leaders but you can school yourselves to appreciate true greatness and to give it the support that it must receive in order to rule. It would be senseless for me to gloss over the difficulties that will confront you, but I believe that you will accomplish most if you struggle to maintain the rights of the intelligent against the encroachments of those who can not think and who do not wish to work.

FINANCE

HON. CHARLES R. MILLER,
Chairman

"The budget for the year 1924-25 was presented. It was explained by Dr. Hullen that this was practically the same as the previous year, the only changes being several deductions and increases in the cost of instruction which, however, made no change in the total cost of the instructional salary budget.

These changes having been approved by the Committee on Instruction, the budget as submitted was approved. The recommendation of the Committee on Instruction, that certain raises offered during the past half year be accepted, was approved.

The recommendations of the Committee on Agriculture, in so far as they related to finances, was approved.

Grounds and Buildings Committee.—The resignation of Miss Churchman, was announced, as dietitian of the Women's College. Resolution was passed authorizing the Business Administrator to add $300, available from Dining Room funds, to her salary of this year in recognition of ten years efficient and faithful service.

Insurance on Students' Property.—A resolution was adopted authorizing the Business Administrator to take out necessary fire insurance on students' property while in Dormitory.

Liability Insurance.—A resolution was adopted that the Business Administrator procure necessary data relating to Liability Insurance and report to a later meeting.

The consideration of the question of audit of accounts was postponed to a later meeting.

Disposal of Ground at Back of Armory.—It was stated that inquiry had been made for a portion of this land. A resolution was adopted authorizing the President of the University, the Treasurer, and the Business Administrator to look into the question of real estate values and report."

MAINTENANCE

(Business Administrator's Report)

"Safety devices have been placed on all motors. The electric current in the town being erratic at times and the shutting off and sudden pick-up of the motors cause them to burn and this has been quite an expense in the past.

The motor lawn mower which had been run for about twelve years was found to be useless and a new one has been purchased of a later type. This is giving satisfaction in rolling track and tennis courts and mowing.

Old College Hall.—This building has been painted and put in good condition prior to Commencement. The new electric fixtures have been installed in the main dining-room, the entire expense being borne by Mr. H. Rodney Sharp. The furniture in the students' lounge room has been recovered. Several interior repairs have been made.

Wolf Hall.—A new soapstone sink has been installed in the Bacteriological Laboratory to permit accommodation to the number of students taking this course.

Campus.—The campus between the Women's College and the new Library has been ploughed and soy beans will be sown, as a means of putting the grounds in condition for future planting. The cost of this being borne by Mr. H. F. du Pont. Blue Prints and Plans are now ready, showing the planting development and exact position and names of trees to be planted.

Sale of Heiser House on Main Street.—Acting in conjunction with the Committee, this house was sold for $800 cash, which has been paid and the purchaser has removed the house.

WOMEN'S COLLEGE

As a result of a conference with the Dean of the Women's College, certain changes are necessary and I would recommend the authorization of the following:

Library.—That the present room used as Library be divided into three rooms, two laboratories and one office.

Physics Laboratory.—That this laboratory be divided by a partition leaving sufficient space for the Physics Department and providing an additional room, which is necessary.

Rooms 6 and 8 now divided by slide partition. That these rooms be divided into three by two permanent partitions.

Storage Room.—Present room used as storage to be divided in order to provide store-room of sufficient size GAL 2—Extracts from Dept Rep HG and a reading-room where magazines, etc., might be placed.

Administration.—The accommodation for administration has become very crowded. I would recommend that the present office, occupied by the Dean, be given over to the Business Office, this on account of its being equipped with safe and stationery closet. That room No. 9 be made the office of the Dean and her Secretary. These changes will not entail a great expense and will greatly facilitate the operation of the administration.

It is also suggested that mailboxes be installed in connection with the Business Office, similar to those at Delaware College. This latter expense will be taken care of by mail box rentals.

Driveway and Walk in Front of Women's College.—The present board-walk leading to the buildings is a continual expense and I would suggest that the Committee consider the advisability of raising sufficient funds to put in the permanent driveway. A rough estimate has been made by our Engineering Department of $5000, which would provide the driveway and permanent walk.

GENERAL REPORT

I would like to report the splendid cooperation received by all Administration employees. I feel that the condition of the campus is worthy of commendation to our Superintendent, D. Lee Rose. I also wish to commend the work of Mr. H. B. McKay, our Engineer. Many large items of installation and repair, which in the past were given to outside contractors, have been done by him with splendid results and saving of funds. Our heating and plumbing repairs are kept up to date to the satisfaction of all Departments.

Dining Halls.—Miss V. H. Huntley resigned her position as Dietitian and left at the Easter vacation. The work has been carried on by Miss Ruth King with a marked success. The many banquets held at this time of the year are under her full charge and already I have received very warm praise.

I think we are fortunate in having secured Miss Marion Skeewis as Dietitian for Delaware College next year. Miss Skeewis was assistant during 1922-23 and has spent the last year at Cornell University, where her work has been praised very highly."

WOMEN'S COLLEGE

DEAN WINIFRED J. ROBINSON

"The Women's College completes its tenth year in June, 1924. The original appropriation of $125,000 was made March 31st, 1913, to provide for the site, construction and equipment of two buildings, one of which was to be a dormitory to accommodate 50 persons. The act of establishment authorized the borrowing of $100,000 and the appropriation of $30,000 annually for five years by the State Legislature for the payment of interest upon this loan and principal also. Fortunately Governor Charles R. Miller, the chairman of the Women's College Commission, negotiated this loan before the opening of the Great War so that the purchase of a site and the work of construction proceeded. In the report of the Business Administrator for 1923 the value of the buildings and grounds is estimated at $380,874.27, to which will be added the cost of the third temporary dormitory, erected this year; also the value of the building used as a practice house by the Home Economics Department, which was included in the gift for the purchase of property uniting the campus of the Women's College with that of Delaware College.

The sources of this increase in the value of the plant are the appropriation by the State Legislature in 1917 of $125,000 for the building of Sussex Hall; grants from the Delaware School Auxiliary to provide necessary dormitory, dining-room, and kitchen space to meet the additional needs when the two-year education course was introduced to prepare and organizations; and the gradual addition of permanent equipment which the business administration policy of the University fosters.

The number of students regularly enrolled for the first year (1914-1915) was 48; for the tenth year (1923-1924) 223, the total of the successive enrollments for the longer or shorter periods being 634. Degrees have been conferred upon 129, which number will be increased to 160 when the present senior class has been graduated. The teacher's elementary school diploma has been granted to 50 and 28 will be added to this number when the work of the two-year course in education is completed in June. Graduate and professional study has been undertaken by 22 alumnae at Columbia University, University of Pennsylvania, and elsewhere.

Of the alumnae and former students 151 are now in positions as teachers; 32 are in business positions; 5 are registered nurses; there is 1 physician; 1 dietitian; there are 3 chemists; 3 librarians; 3 social workers; 22 have been transferred to other institutions with full credit; 57 are at home, not engaged in gainful occupations; 112 are married; 4 are deceased."

AGRICULTURE

DEAN C. A. MCCUE

Collegiate Instruction

"For a considerable time it has been evident that there is a need for a careful reorganization of the course in Agriculture. Accordingly several months ago the Dean appointed a committee to thoroughly go over the situation and report back to the School of Agriculture. This committee was composed of 5 members, 3 representing the technical agricultural subjects. This committee has practically completed its labors and within a short time will submit their report to the Dean of Agriculture for his approval and through him to the Faculty. The committee has found that due to shortage of teaching force in some of the Departments of the Arts College it could not incorporate some courses deemed desirable. The committee has striven and rather successfully to build a curriculum that is flexible enough to admit new technical agricultural subjects from time to time without a general reorganization of the entire curriculum.

Several glaring weaknesses of the agricultural course continue to be apparent. Among the most outstanding of these are: First—the situation as regards poultry instruction. Poultry is one of the leading agricultural industries of the State. In two intimate farm community surveys conducted by the Extension Division it was forcibly brought out that poultry and poultry products are strong links in the farm operations of the most successful farms in the regions studied. Thorough instruction in poultry should be offered as a major subject to Agricultural students and in time be raised to the dignity of a separate department in the School of Agriculture. Secondly—The economics of the farm business is a broad field that is touched only in a casual and disorganized way by the present course. There should be established in the School of Agriculture a department of Farm Management or Agricultural Economics. In such a department the following courses would be pertinent: Farm Management, Marketing and Transportation of Farm Products, Farm Accounting, Grades and Standards for Farm Products, Agricultural Statistics, Cooperative Marketing studies, etc. Thirdly—the Horticultural Department should be reorganized by the appointment of a Professor or Associate Professor who could give his entire time to teaching. Ever since the appointment of the Professor of Horticulture to the office of Dean and Director, the Horticultural Department has been short handed and has been unable to do full justice to either instruction, experimental, or Extension work. The surprise is that it has been able to accomplish its work as well as it has.

The Experiment Station

The work of the Experiment Station has been functioning as well as our limited resources would allow. Some outstanding features of the work since the last meeting of the Board have been: First—the completion and publication of studies of the Chemistry Department on the role of sugar in jelly making.

Second—the application by the Chemistry Department for a patent on a new pectin product to be employed in jelly manufacture. Owing to possible legal difficulties and possible litigation the application for this patent is being handled by the solicitor's office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the patent will be dedicated to all of the people of the United States. This arrangement places upon the U. S. Department the duty and expense of defending the patent against possible litigation, and relieve the Inventors, the Station, and the University of that possible burden.

Third—the past 15 years results in experiment on crop rotations and fertilizers have been compiled by the Agronomy Department and are about ready for publication. It is expected to have this bulletin in press before July 1st. Owing to the extremely technical processes necessary in the compiling of results and drawing conclusions, it has been deemed advisable to publish two bulletins. One a technical bulletin of small edition and limited distribution, and to following with a popular bulletin for general distribution throughout the State.

Rehabilitation Building

It has not been found possible in our budget to provide for the upkeep of the Rehabilitation Building, such as water, heat, light and janitor service. If the building could be kept open it would relieve Wolf Hall of some congestion. If the School of Agriculture ever taken on new activities the building will be needed. I recommend that for the present the building be closed after the discontinuance of the Rehabilitation Division.

At the request of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds the farm has sprayed all shade trees on the lower campus and the campus of the Women's College. Also we have plowed all the land lying between the New Library and the Women's College boundary line and expect to plant it to soy beans. This latter operation has seriously interfered with our regular farm operations. We feel that in the future the superintendent of Grounds and Buildings should assume all responsibility for work on the campus. The farm is willing to cooperate, but we do not feel that we should be required to do such work at the expense of our regular farm operations.

The work of rearranging the hog lots is still going on, and by the middle of the summer we feel that we will have the hog plant in good condition. The crop of spring pigs has been satisfactory. Sixty-seven being alive at this writing.

The cattle herd has been increased since last fall by 5 heifer calves, all daughters of the bull which died last fall. This makes a total of 19 daughters of this bull in the herd.

One of his daughters recently fresh made 23.3 lbs. of butter on seven-day test and for the first two months of her yearly test has given 140 lbs. of butter fat.

Recognition should here be given the prize of $100 offered by the President of the Board, Mr. Henry B. Thompson, for the best plan for the marketing of Delaware farm crops. This prize should be a stimulus to a more thorough study of the economics of marketing."

ENGINEERING

ACTING DEAN M. G. SMITH

"Teaching Force.—According to the records of one of the largest employers of student engineers in the country—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co.—the graduates of Delaware College rank high compared with the graduates of a great many other institutions. (Delaware stands sixth from the head of the list.) The cause of this high standing is certainly not due to any elaborate physical facilities that we have such as fine buildings or expensive laboratory equipment.

The high rating of our product is due entirely to the efficient and faithful work of the instructors who actually teach the young men. Hence if we hope to maintain our high standing compared with other engineering schools we must make every effort to maintain an efficient and satisfied teaching staff. To this end I suggest that those teachers who have rendered satisfactory and efficient service for years be paid as liberally as the funds of the University will permit. Men like Assistant Professors Blumberg and Rankin should now be receiving the maximum salary of Assistant Professors.

I also recommend that, if possible, part of the funds which will be collected next year from the Freshmen and Sophomore Civil Engineers be utilized to pay the instructors who teach summer surveying. I would suggest fifty dollars a week per instructor as fair pay for this work in summer surveying.

Work of Instruction.—All the instructors in the School of Engineering are enthusiastic about their work and are anxious to see the engineering courses successful. They all work incessantly for the good of the College and some of them, Professor Koerber, for instance, even spend their own money for apparatus and the needs of their departments. So far this year Professor Koerber has spent over $50 of his own money for necessary small equipment. Last year he spent over $125 and the year before last he spent $317.

Electrical Engineering.—The Division of Electrical Engineering has acquired considerable new equipment during the year. Besides the new motor-generator set bought out of the Equipment Fund all the money from student laboratory fees—about $500—has been spent for new apparatus.

The division has acquired by gift from the General Electric Company a valuable assortment of lightening arresters valued at between $300 and $400. Mr. Porter, sales representative of the same company also presented the division with a small motor-generator set worth about $75. And Mr. Victor H. Jones, class of 1909, gave the College some direct-current measuring instruments valued at about $200.

A new motor for the machine shop should be secured at once. The present shop motor has seen seventeen years of service. Since its installation the number of machines in the shop has been more than doubled. Hence the motor has become so overloaded that it is impossible for it to do its work satisfactorily any longer. A new motor will cost about $225.

At the same time that a new shop motor is installed the distributing switchboard at the head of the stairs in Mechanical Hall will have to be replaced by a new one. The present switchboard was installed twenty years ago and is now so overloaded and obsolete that it would not pass a fire underwriter's inspection. A new switchboard will cost in the neighborhood of $175."

BUILDINGS

Grounds and Buildings Committee

"Board of Health Building.—That, in as much as it has been repeatedly rumored during recent months that the State Board of Health plans to move the laboratory from Newark to Wilmington or Dover, it would be desirable that the Board of Trustees notify the State Board of Health that the University has great need of the building for instructional purposes and would be glad if a decision could be made before the opening of the session in September.

Rehabilitation Building.—That it is the judgment of the Committee that the Rehabilitation building, after the close of the Rehabilitation work, should be used to meet the most urgent instructional needs in whatever department such need may be found and that the decision in regard to this be reached by conference between the President of the University, the Chairman of the Grounds and Buildings Committee, and the Deans of the several schools concerned."

ARTHUR G. WILKINSON

Mr. Wilkinson, Business Administrator of the University, was a busy man throughout the many events of Commencement time here last week-end. The largest of his problems was the last minute transfer of the seats and platform from the Campus to the Armory for the exercises Monday. The situation was met by his department in truly Wilkinsonian fashion, and the ceremony started on time.

BIG FRUIT CROP IS YEAR'S PREDICTION

Middletown, Del.—Lower Delaware will be blessed this season with an abundance of fruit and vegetables of every description, according to a well-known fruit and vegetable broker who makes a study each year of crop conditions, who says though the season is about two weeks backward, he never saw prospects better. There will be an enormous crop of straw-berries, and if sufficient pickers can be engaged to pick the crop, there will be millions of quarts shipped from this state alone. Growers are now scouting nearby cities and oyster sections of this peninsula, where no fruit abounds, for labor to help gather the crops. Cherries never looked bet-ter at this time of the year. The trees are overloaded. Plums, pears, apple trees are heavy with buds and blossoms and present a beautiful ap-pearance. The blackberry vines are in a very healthy condition and are just starting to bloom with indica-tions of a tremendous crop.

This crop last year was the best paying one raised in lower Delaware, the growers receiving as high as $9.50 for a 32-quart crate, and scarcely did the berries bring less than $5 per crate. The acreage of strawberries and blackberries is con-siderable above last year. Farmers have also greatly increased the acre-age in cantaloupes but it is a little early to make predictions on this crop.

Children's Day at White Clay

At 11 o'clock a. m. next Sunday, at White Clay Church, the annual Children's Day exercises will be held, including baptism of infants and an address by the pastor, Rev. W. R. McElroy.

The strawberry festival on Thurs-day evening, the 12th, at the Com-munity Grounds, at Stanton, will be given by the committee that had the gates erected at the entrance of the cemetery. The proceeds will go to-ward paying the balance due.

COOLIDGE BOOM HELPED BY HIS ACTS

President Coolidge, by signing the tax measure, has kept his promise to reduce taxes, more especially those paid by the men and women who earn but little. His action means that Con-gress has granted the President's de-mand that a flat reduction of 25 per cent be given for 1923—that is a de-cided victory for the people and for Calvin Coolidge—it means that the interests of the man or woman, no matter whether on the farm or in the city, have been safeguarded by the President—it means that the head of the nation has kept his word to the citizens of the land—it means that Congress has at last realized that the people stand solidly behind the Presi-dent in his fight for a reduction of taxes. It is true that the measure just passed is not exactly what the President desired. He wanted a bill that would mean an even greater re-duction of taxes. There is no doubt that at the next session of Congress the President will insist that the tax bill be revised so as to give even further relief, and by that time the obstructionists in Congress will, no doubt, have been informed in em-phatic terms by their constituents to do as the President desires.

When June 7th was tentatively agreed upon as the date of adjourn-ment, the President summoned num-erous leaders to the White House and flatly told them that farm legislation of remedial character was necessary before the members of the two bodies departed for their homes. If Congress has any sagacity, political or other-wise, it will pass a real farm relief bill before it adjourns.

The McNary-Haugen bill has not met with the approval of the heads of the many farm organizations, many of them claiming that while it might give some slight temporary relief, it was economically unsound and im-practical in application. The people and the President can see no reason why a bill to aid agriculture should not be enacted into law, and at once.—National Press.

BIG INCREASE IN COUNTY PROPERTY

Two Million More Valuation Than In Year Just Closed

County assessment books show an increase for the fiscal year, commenc-ing July 1, of $2,771,223 over the property assessments of the closing year. The greatest increase is in Brandywine hundred, where there is a rise of $1,326,556. Christiana hun-dred is a close second with an in-crease of $1,224,444.

Decreases in property assessments are shown, however, in three hun-dreds — Appoquinimink, Mill Creek and St. Georges.

Comparative figures for the ten hundreds follow:

Appoquinimink, 1923, $2,207,854; 1924, $2,167,474.
Blackbird, 1923, $1,483,592; 1924, $1,530,838.
Brandywine, 1923, $15,739,186; 1924, $17,065,742.
Christiana, 1923, $14,064,232; 1924, $15,288,676.

Mill Creek, 1923, $4,333,509; 1924, $4,310,349.
New Castle, 1923, $5,816,830; 1924, $5,900,988.
Pencader, 1923, $2,050,022; 1924, $2,057,223.
Red Lion, 1923, $1,877,103; 1924, $1,903,830.
St. Georges, 1923, $4,696,802; 1924, $4,683,470.
White Clay Creek, 1923, $4,774,966; 1924, $4,922,725.
Wilmington, 1923, $113,133,482; total, city and rural, $170,193,591; 1924, $115,698,644; total, city and rural, $175,529,966, for the entire county.

The dog tax for 1923 in the county was $1,701.50. An increase in the dog population during the past year, bringing the total number of canines to approximately 4200, has increased the revenue from this source to $1,772. The capitation tax was $10,167.25 in 1923, and is estimated at $10,556 for 1924.

The assessed value of real estate in New Castle county during the past 37 years has jumped enormously, the total assessment, including Wilming-ton, in 1887, being $45,437,927.

Summer Days Are Here! Are Your Clothes in Step with the Season?

IT'S funny how lots of folks figure that their Easter outfit will last all summer. There's quite a difference between the bright breezes of April and the long, hot dusty days of June, July and August. It's another season, and it calls for other clothes. Don't worry along with what you have and be uncomfortable. It costs little more to be at ease, regardless of weather, and surprisingly little if the new things come from Sol Wilson.

The new straws in various shapes and prices; the lightweight summer suits, both Palm Beach and light woolens; sheer shirtings which breathe the Beaches and Terraces; Lightweight Golf Hose; Knickerbockers, and Sun Hats for the Knight of the Fairview; Bathing Suits; Summer Ties and Collars—all these niceties of Dress are a part of the new season—Summer.

There's absolutely no use putting the thing off; you just must throw a little splurge during the hot days—so why not get ready now, when the stocks are new and the variety large. We offer you nationally known garments and haberdashery at less than city prices; we offer you a helpful, careful service; and a desire to please. We have our Summer goods in now, and in greater abundance than ever before.

We are here for the interests of Newark people; and we now offer them the best and latest in Hats, Shoes, Suits, Shirts, Golf outfits, Ties, Sweaters, and everything else a Man needs.

It will pay you to drop in some Fine Day.

SOL WILSON

The Quality Shop

Variety in Haberdashery Helps the Customer

Tastes differ; if it weren't for this fact a clothing merchant's job would be as easy—and about as interesting—as selling postage stamps.

As it is, we always have the greatest possible variety here; if a man wants something in a colorful necktie, we have it; and we are also ready to satisfy the conservative, the man who wants a neat effect in black and white. And everybody in between!

We are proud of the variety of good merchandise in this store. It's one of the main things that hold our customers to us.

When you come in to buy a suit, or a shirt, you will see a large assortment of the finest that America has to offer. You'll find the fabric and the style you want.

ITS THE CUT OF YOUR CLOTHES THAT COUNTS

Society Brand
Clothes

The smart cut in the loose style

Well dressed young men everywhere have taken to the loose, easy styles. They're not only comfortable—they're very smart when correctly cut. Among them, we have seen nothing to compare with the Society Brand Boulevard. It's the two button suit in this style. We have it in the most desirable fabrics; powder blues, grays, neat stripes.
