Residents want UD to be accountable

By E. Fine
Post Staff Writer

Fed up with the University of Delaware's freedom from many of Newark's zoning codes, some determined residents introduced an old state law to the city council and suggested that it might force the school to be more accountable to the community.

"Our impression is that many people have the perception that the university can do as it pleases," said David Robertson, of the Concerned Citizens for Newark, on Monday. Robertson holds the university responsible for increased traffic and the loss of neighborhood integrity; he sees the situation worsening if university officials succeed in building a second student center.

By defining the university as a state agency, the 1978 law requires university officials to notify city officials 30 days before attempting any action involving land use, Robertson said.

He said the law also empowers city officials to schedule a hearing if one isn't scheduled by university officials and require the school to publish its plans 30 days prior to the hearing date.

Robertson believes this stipulation of the law will be essential to residents. "As citizens, we lack the knowledge of experts," he said. "We need to have the time to look at the plans and figure out what they mean."

Though a 20-year-old court decision gives university officials the right to take land development action without consulting the city, Robertson said they can't exercise the power unreasonably and arbitrarily.

Rep. Steven Amick, a lawyer, said although Robertson's interpretation of the law was fairly accurate, there was still nothing preventing university officials from doing whatever they want provided they relate their plans to education.

However, Amick (R-Newark) objects to university officials using their freedom from city building codes for constructing office buildings and industrial parks. Examples of this include the Girl Scouts building on South College Avenue, the Girls Club building on Wyoming Road and the soon to be completed Delaware Technical Park at Marrows and Library roads, which officials treated the same as building classrooms and laboratories.

In the case of these three buildings and the proposed student centers, university officials will be playing the role of landlords, leasing out space for profit, he said.

"I'm not surprised that people are looking for ways in which to raise these issues," he said, adding the proposed student center occupied center stage for residents.

"Is that university related or not?"

Moreover, he said the city's impact on the university wasn't governed solely by the court decision. "It takes the city wanting to be involved."

Councilman Tony Felicia said the law could give a committee he

Addition to 18th century building proposed

By E. Fine
Post Staff Writer

A plan for renovating the University of Delaware's Elliot Hall is being reviewed by Newark city officials. The building is on Main Street next to Treats Cafe.

University officials want to build a 2,700 square foot addition on to the rear of the 18th century building, which has been vacant since last November.

Formerly used by the psychology department, the building will be used for offices.

City officials are requiring university officials to satisfy city building codes before constructing the addition.

David Hollowell, a university administrator, said a sprinkler system, an alarm system, handicapped access, including an elevator, are among the items the city is requiring the university to provide. Contractors recently began to remove asbestos from the building, he said.

Renovation will begin as soon as the plan is approved by the city, he said. The project, which will cost the school just over $1 million, should be finished by July.

Junie Mayle, the city building inspector, said the university submitted a second draft of the plan this week. He said a decision would be made on the plan's status by the beginning of next week.

The picture of Paul Guarino that originally appeared in the pages of The Post last fall is now on the doors and windows of many stores on Main Street and in the College Square Shopping Center.

Guarino, 35, who moved back to Newark last spring after living on the West Coast for five years, was reported missing on Jan. 19.

A member of Glasgow High School's first graduating class in 1976, the Kells Avenue resident said he was a part-owner of a Los Angeles food business which provided catering services to those involved in the film industry. He said he was involved with the business for five years.

The Post published a feature about Guarino in November while he was working as a hot dog vendor on Main Street in front of Wilmington Trust.

"I have no idea what happened," said Tony Triboletti, who had agreed to let Guarino share the spot with him. "It's very confusing."

Triboletti said that though their partnership lasted only a short time, their friendship spanned about 17 years. "I couldn't sleep last night," Triboletti said last Friday, adding that he didn't believe his pal was suicidal.

"It's not like him," he said. "This is not his behavior. He had to have run into someone."

His roommate, Ed Scully, was just as baffled by Guarino's disappearance.

"He just left the house. I didn't pay any particular attention to it," said Scully, who met Guarino about three years ago through Triboletti. He said Guarino had left their rented house in mid-afternoon.

He said he first thought that Guarino had taken an impulse trip to Atlantic City before it occurred to him

Preservation on NBA agenda

By E. Fine

The Newark Business Association will feature a speaker from a nationally recognized preservation and development organization when it convenes for its annual meeting this week.

Mac Nichols, of the Washington, D.C., based National Main Street Association, will address Newark business people and others Wednesday morning at the University of Delaware Student Center, beginning at 7:30 a.m.

The 10-year-old Main Street association is dedicated to preserving a city's older buildings by finding business uses for them. The association provides architects, marketing specialists and others who evaluate a community and initiate planning efforts.

Funding comes in part from the state, the city and area business people.

Marguerite Ashley, who is charge of economic development for the Newark Business Association, said the program was adopted by Dover city officials in December and has attracted attention from officials in Georgetown, Milford, Laurel and Smyrna.

"With Dover being the pilot city, it's probable that the state will reach out next year and support other cities," Ashley said. "It behooves us to inform ourselves."

Ashley said the plan was recommended in the city's comprehensive plan. Mayor Ronald Gardner, City Manager Carl Luft, Sen. James Neal and Rep. Steven Amick are among those who have said they will attend the meeting.

"Preservation is good business and that is something Newark needs to fully understand," she said.

Tickets for the meeting, which includes breakfast, are $10.50 and $12.50. Call 366-1680 for further information.

Glasgow road to close for 3 weeks

By Alfred T. Erskine Jr.
Special to The Post

GLASGOW - Melody Meadows residents now have only one way out for a while.

Except for weekends, James Julian, Inc. has shut down Cann Road for three weeks. The closure, which began Tuesday, is caused by the placement of sewers into Melody Meadows.

Cann Road is one of only two entrance roads into the development.

Originally, Julian had planned to close the road only during work hours, but according to Gene Giuliani, general superintendent for Julian, that plan was unacceptable because workers would lose four hours a day setting up and breaking down equipment.

Julian was also concerned that by utilizing the open and close method, residents along Cann Road, plus the entire neighborhood, would be affected for a considerable amount of time. Also, Giuliani wants to complete the Cann Road part of the project before the Canal Little League season begins and the ball field located off of Cann Road comes into use.

Giuliani said Julian will be contacting all the residents along Cann Road to assure they are aware of the road closing. He said the work would not block residents' drive-ways after work hours.

While the work is being completed, residents on the development side of the work area will exit via Dolphin Drive, while those residents on the Business Route 896 side will use Cann Road to exit.

Giuliani also said the work will not affect any existing wells in the development.

In a letter to DelDOT, Giuliani also mentioned Julian would "continue to update the 911 Center, the Christiana School District and the residents of Melody Meadows about any new traffic patterns."

Vandals hit 10 cars in overnight Newark spree

By Diane Heck
Post Staff Writer

More than 10 cars in Newark were vandalized between Saturday, Feb. 6, and Sunday, Feb. 7, Newark police said. In addition, three cars and a license plate were stolen.

Cars parked on Cheltenham Road, Kenilworth Drive, Sue Lane and other streets had their windows smashed and their items, mostly car stereos, radar detectors and CB radios, removed. Hondas were the most popular car hit.

Property loss and damage to the vehicles are estimated at a combined $1,500, Newark police said.

Also Saturday night, a 1989 Honda was stolen from Country Street, and two motorcycles were taken from homes on Lehigh Road and Duke Street.

A license plate was removed from a car at the rental agency in Newark Shopping Center around the same time.

POLICE BEAT

Theft at Pathmark: On Saturday, Feb. 6, at 6 a.m., a black male, purchasing a pack of gum at the Pathmark in College Square Shopping Center, reached into the cash register and took $120 in twenty dollar bills, Newark police said. The cashier called for the manager but the man ran out to the parking lot and fled in an older-model, two-door, blue car.

Items removed from cars via sunroofs: On Thursday night, Feb. 4, a sun roof was pried off a 1986 Honda CRX parked on the unit block of Marvin Drive, and a radar detector and 20 cassette tapes, valued at $350, were taken, Newark police said. Damage to the car is estimated at $1500.

Sometime between Wednesday, Feb. 3, and Thursday, Feb. 4, on the unit block of Marvin Drive the sunroof of a 1989 Chrysler LeBaron was shattered and a CB radio and antenna, valued at $100, were taken, Newark police said. Damage to the car is estimated at $300.

Car stolen, recovered: A 1988 Buick Park Avenue was stolen on Thursday, Feb. 4, from outside the Blue Hen Bowling Lanes in Newark Shopping Center, Newark police said. The car was recovered a few hours later in the Chestnut Hill Shopping Center with the ignition jumped and the steering column torn out, resulting in $200 damage.

Fire protection, cancer on minds of Glasgow citizens

By Alfred T. Erskine Jr.
Special to The Post

BEAR - New fire stations and incidents of cancer in the area dominated the Bear/Glasgow Council of Civic Organizations February 2 meeting.

Karl M. Walters, president of the Christiana Fire Company, and Tony Suppe, past president, addressed B/GCCO to discuss the Fire Company's plans to open a new fire station in the area.

The new station, located on Salem Church Road, will be Christiana's third station.

Suppe told the meeting, "Our location is Salem Church Road and basically it is a residential area, so we are looking at building something that will blend into the residential area." Suppe also said that he anticipates 25 to 30 volunteers working out of the new station, but is not yet sure what equipment is going to be housed there.

According to Suppe, for the past 4 or 5 years the Christiana Fire Company receives approximately 4,500 calls a year. That averages out to about 12 calls per day which also includes ambulance runs.

Christiana is going to borrow the money for this project. The fire company has a commitment from two banks that are willing to lend them the money. The projected cost of the new station is between $350,000 to $400,000. Plus, $200,000 to $250,000 alone will be needed to purchase one truck and about $80,000 will be needed to purchase an ambulance. Suppe said that, "We'll get that money from donations, from people who live in our district and we get some money from the state and county."

Since Christiana is a volunteer organization, no presentation would be complete without an appeal for new members. Suppe said that they are looking for volunteers, 18 years and up, to work out of this and other stations, "There are a lot of jobs in fire crews, other than fighting fires."

Suppe equated it to, "any other business, except that you don't get paid."

Suppe related how Christiana was organized in 1921 by a group of people who felt a fire company was needed in the village of Christiana and the surrounding area. At that time the area was mostly farmland. Now, however, the Christiana Fire Company district has a population of approximately 90,000 people with 30,000 single family homes. The district also includes four high schools and the Christiana Hospital.

Relating the size and density of the district Suppe said, "That is why we are in need of a third station."

After Suppe was finished, the B/GCCO turned to other matters. The group heard from one member that related how his neighbor had contacted their state senator, Senator Connor (R), because they were concerned about low-voltage radiation. The call was prompted because of an incident of leukemia in the neighborhood. Ed Malin, Chairman for the Environmental Committee, spoke up and asked for authorization to write to the Delaware Board of Health and request that they "conduct a study on [cancer] incidents in different areas." Malin felt that a study needed to be completed to identify the different locals where cancer incidents were found. The purpose was to identify any areas that could possibly contain higher than normal levels of incidents of cancer.

A motion was introduced and passed to, "Allow our [B/GCCO] Environmental Committee Chairman to write a letter, asking for a study to be done on cancer in this particular area."

Other items that were raised at the B/GCCO meeting were the lack of local recycling 'igloos' and particularly the absence of any near-by oil recycling locations.

Brookside plan to extend school day gets 'go ahead' from Christina board

By Diane Heck
Post Staff Writer

A plan to restructure the school day at Brookside Elementary to allow more learning time for both teachers and students was endorsed by the Christina Board of Education at a meeting Feb. 9. The plan will now move to the State Board for approval.

This Brookside Banking Plan proposes to add (or bank) 15 minutes to each school day allowing for 6.5 more teacher inservice, or staff development, days from that banked time as well as more academic learning time for the children. The Parent and Teacher Banking Time Committee would like to begin this schedule in the 1993-94 school year.

Marlene James, principal of Brookside, said,

"We studied the students' class schedule and realized there was too much disruption." The group found that only four hours out of a 6.5-hour school day were actual learning time. The added 15 minutes would make a less disruptive schedule.

"We have a block schedule where 2.5 hours are dedicated to the language arts and only 1.5 hours are for our hands-on math and science program. By adding just 15 minutes to that block, another whole activity can be done," James said.

When Brookside first brought their proposal to the board a year ago, people were confused. "Some thought teachers were just looking for more days off," James said. They were then given a year to do more research on the idea. The committee met every week since May.

Day care, transportation and costs concerning the new plan was looked into, and found there would be no problems, James said.

Earlier in the meeting this week, an education official suggested that a similar plan be adopted throughout the district. Others felt Brookside should wait and see what happens with the district's plan first. However, Dr. Iris Metts, superintendent, said Brookside should have the go ahead and act as a model.

Peggy Majors, a Brookside parent, felt flattered by the district jumping on the bandwagon. "It is obviously a good idea. We are willing to be the guinea pig," she said.

Jim Brey, president of Brookside's PTA, said, "We are the school that's breaking the mold." Brey and 14 others stood at the meeting in support of the plan.

YOU ASKED

A feature devoted to discovering the answers to curious questions about people and places in Greater Newark.

BY NANCY TURNER

Why do we pronounce the name of our city as two words rather than one, as in Newark, New Jersey?

There are nine towns and cities named Newark in the United States. In addition to Delaware, they are located in Arkansas, California, Illinois, Maryland, Missouri, New York, Ohio and Texas. With all due respect to regional dialects, the states which pronounce "Newark" as two words are Arkansas, Missouri, Texas, sometimes Maryland and Delaware.

There are a couple of theories about how we came to pronounce the name of our city, but as far as an absolute and definitive answer, historians are still looking. Even the origin of name "Newark" is elusive and obscure.

The name "Newark" was officially given to the community in 1758 when it was recognized as a market town by King George II.

I like what local historian James Owen says about Newark's origins. He explained that among the founding fathers of the market town were Reynold Howell and his son, Ebenezer. Ebenezer owned the Three Hearts Tavern that was located where Klondike Kate's Restaurant stands now. Ebenezer Howell married a daughter of the Bond family from an area near what is now known as North East, Md. Before coming to America, the Bond family lived near Newark on Trent in England. Therefore, it would be reasonable to imagine that the wife of Ebenezer Howell might have suggested duplicating the name in the new land.

As for the pronunciation of Newark, this is where the story makes a few interesting flip-flops.

The first settlers of Newark were mainly Irish and Welsh. Owen, who is currently researching the names of Newark streets, said, "a map of Newark made in 1763 shows Newark written as one word, as it was used to define Newark Street (what we now call Main Street). All the maps that General George Washington used show Newark as a single word.

"Somewhere between 1800 and definitely 1821, for whatever reason, people began to use it as two words," he continued. "Newark was written as two words, 'New Ark' from about 1795 to about 1845. The change may have been attributed to the strong Presbyterian influence in the community that began around 1790 and continued through the founding Newark College."

In Biblical history, the Ark referred to the "Ark of the Covenant." According to the Bible, the Ark of the Covenant was a wooden box or chest in which the "testimony" or the two tablets of God's laws were kept by the Israelites. The Covenant code was intended to regulate the life of the community.

My guess is that any village, hamlet, or town named Newark or New Ark got its name from the Bible.

In our Newark, by writing and pronouncing both words separately (New Ark), the early Scottish Presbyterians may well have been proclaiming that their new home was the "New Ark of the Covenant," a place where God's will would be honored and his commandments and regulations would be safely kept.

According to Owen, by 1860, Newark was written as one word again on maps; although, its pronunciation as two words stuck with us. "It just goes to show you the amount of influence that the Presbyterians have had around here," said Owen.

If anyone has a theory about the origin or the pronunciation of the name of our city, please let us hear from you. Write: "You Asked," The Post, 153 E. Chestnut Hill Rd., Newark, DE 19713.

Have you ever wondered about the origin of or reason for some everyday occurrence or landmark in the Newark area? Want to dispel a rumor? Send your curiosity to: "You Asked," The Post, 153 E. Chestnut Hill Road, Newark, DE 19713 or fax 737-9019. As space and time permits, we'll discover the answer.

KLM And Cecil Whig, Announce European Tour

MUNICH, LIVELY CITY IN THE HEART OF BAVARIA

This is one in a series of articles about the cities and places to be visited on a 10-day tour, "Romantic Europe," being offered by Chesapeake Publishing Corporation, The Post, and KLM Royal Dutch Airlines.

Capital of Bavaria, and third largest city in the Federal Republic of Germany, Munich was founded by monks in 1158. In 1180, the Duchy of Bavaria passed to the Wittelsbachs. Through territorial division, Munich became their residence in 1225 and remained closely connected with the fate of this art-loving ruling family until 1918.

The Wittelsbach Dynasty ruled Bavaria for more than 800 years, leaving its mark on the land, its art and culture. They provided the start for the city's most important collections, appointed renowned musicians, supported the fine arts and promoted the city's building activity.

The artistic sense of King Ludwig I had the greatest influence on the image of the city. His motto was, "I want to make out of Munich, a city that is such an honor to Germany, that no one will know Germany until he has seen Munich."

A versatile and vital town, Munich absorbs the present into the fabric of its past. Glass walled palaces and churches and handsome shopping boulevards lead into the dignified main thoroughfare of Ludwigstrasse, where the spacious English Garden offers a splendid wooded city oasis.

Munich's main landmark is the Frauenkirche, Church of Our Blessed Lady, which has two impressive 99 meter high towers crowned with so called "Italian caps," after the fashion of Italian Renaissance cupolas. The late Gothic cathedral, which is the largest building of the medieval city, was the work of the citizens - an expression of their self-confidence and pride.

Each day, shortly before 11 o'clock, residents and visitors alike, take up positions in front of the Rathaus (City Hall). Here at the center of the Marienplatz, everyone wants to see and hear the glockenspiel at 11 o'clock sharp.

Thirty-two almost life-size figures on two levels represent a knightly jousting tournament and the dance of the Schaeffler (a group of medieval folk dancers) - here, as before, courtly and middle-class life combine.

Situated on the edge of the city is Nymphenburg Palace, site of the 1972 Olympic Dressage competition. A gift from King Ferdinand to his wife, this former royal summer residence is today the elegant setting for frequent candlelight concerts.

The Residenz, a few blocks from the Marienplatz, was the palace of Bavarian rulers from 1384 to 1918. Its most attractive feature is the Civillies Theater, a white and gold rococo gem where Mozart directed the first performance of "Idomeneo" in 1781.

The city is a most fascinating blend of business history and fun, a unique synthesis of cosmopolitan sophistication and traditional old-time Bavarian charm. Munich is a sparkling, friendly city that welcomes guests with an inimitable brand of hospitality and zest for living.

Phish swims into town this Saturday

By Diane Heck
Post Staff Writer

A new sound, a new feeling, a new flavor is coming to the Bob Carpenter Center on Saturday in the form of Phish.

The alternative band that met in Vermont combines a variety of musical influences into a unique sound of Grateful Dead-ish guitar melodies with witty lyrics and a playful, theatrical spirit.

The new release, Rift, takes listeners on a wild ride through a man's night of dreaming. Their three previous releases are equally as entertaining, but it's their live show that is most talked about.

In a phone interview on Wednesday when the tour found the band in Rochester, N.Y., Trey Anastasio, frontman and guitarist, said playing live is one of his favorite things to do, and this comes from a man who has been on the road seven months a year for the past several years.

"There is nothing like it. I love the interplay, the energy between the band and audience. It's a totally spontaneous experience that makes you feel really alive."

Phish toured long before putting out their first album. "It was sort of a word-of-mouth, underground thing," Anastasio said.

He said Phish doesn't tour an album like most bands do. "We have songs that are not recorded anywhere, that we just sing in concert." The Carpenter stage will be adorned with a grand piano for this tour, and the band usually endures for a long three hours.

The four members of Phish have been together now for about nine years, and are like a family except Anastasio said they never argue. And an answer to a question that just had to be asked, "Yes, I love fish."

Phish will perform at 8 p.m. There will be no opening act. Tickets, at $18 for the general public, $16 for university faculty and staff and $14 for university students, are on sale at the center or call 984-2000 to charge.

Phish will perform at the Bob Carpenter Center.

Ugly, unwanted art

THERE'S A NEW EXHIBIT IN Newark that opened a little more than a week ago. Main Street shoppers have no doubt seen the exhibit; it's in full public view. It's an uninspiring creation made at the expense of Main Street businesses that unwittingly provided the "palate" for the exhibit's creator.

Is it artwork? Not at all. It's graffiti. And it's not even good graffiti, if there is such a thing. It's really nothing more than the word "Nedge," whatever that means, scrawled in spraypaint on exterior walls along the street. Thanks to "Nedge," Newark now has a taste of the same sort of ugly scribbling that has become an unwanted symbol of our inner cities.

The shadow cast by "Nedge," however, didn't manage to dull the many good things happening in our community this week.

One of them involved a get-together by the SPAACE club of Christiana High School. Members of the club, whose name stands for "Students Promoting African American Culture through Education," hosted their second-annual Multicultural Food Sampler.

The event, held in the school cafeteria, featured students from many different ethnic backgrounds serving a wide variety of foods from all over the world to their classmates. There was everything from chicken curry to Egyptian snacks to Maryland crab soup.

Along with giving everyone the opportunity to share in ethnic diversity, the food sampler helped deliver the message that it's OK to be different — there's so much we can learn from each other if we're willing to open our eyes to all that's around us.

'ACLU should not interfere with excellent police work'

By Elbert Chance
Post Columnist

I have never met Sgt. Robert Duman of the Delaware State Police, but I'd be proud to shake his hand.

He's the officer who has made life miserable for the mules of the Colombian drug lords as they traversed the 12-mile strip of I-95 between the Maryland state line and the Delaware Memorial Bridge. Sgt. Duman and his fellow officers have confiscated hundreds of pounds of illicit drugs valued in the millions. Every stop made by these officers involves the risk of their own lives and prevents untold misery for those who otherwise would receive the contraband they intercept.

The Delaware State Police have received many commendations from the judiciary, government officials and fellow law enforcement professionals for their achievement, but what tells me they are really good at what they do is that they have attracted the attention of the American Civil Liberties Union. That collection of left-wing zealots has charged that the police have made drug stops based on profiles that may be racially based and, therefore, are discriminatory. These protests apparently have compelled the police to change their criteria for stopping suspects to ensure that it cannot be claimed that race was a determining factor.

Well, folks, if I were charged with organizing a choir, I wouldn't waste time on monotonies. If I were recruiting basketball players, I wouldn't pay much attention to athletes five feet, six inches tall, and if I were looking for drug dealers, even though I have no crime-fighting experience, I wouldn't waste time on elderly ladies driving

A motor truck train, made up of forty-three machines and eighty-seven men, commanded by Captain George E. Gray of the 23rd United States Engineers, reached Newark about six o'clock Sunday evening, the men at once busying themselves in digging out the snow along the side walks, in the center of town, preparatory to parking for the night. Mayor Frazer, upon being notified of the presence of the soldiers, hastened to extend the courtesies of Newark, and acting in cooperation with the college authorities invited the train to park on the Joe Frazer Athletic Field. A hot supper was served in the Coverdale Restaurant after which the college gymnasium was thrown open to the men. The pool and hot showers were put at their disposal and warm sleeping quarters provided for everyone.

• Ordinance Prohibiting Pigs Amended

Town Council at the meeting Monday night gave the first and second reading to an amendment to the ordinance prohibiting the keeping of pigs within the town limits. Last year an ordinance was adopted as a health measure prohibiting the keeping of pigs in the town. It is now amended and especially by a large number of the colored residents of the town that just at this time when the cost of living is so high the ordinance is working a hardship.

Members of Council after considering the matter have decided that it would possibly be best under existing conditions to amend the ordinance so that persons could keep pigs under certain restrictions. The amendment provides that anyone keeping pigs within the town limits must first get a permit from the town board of health.

THIS is the time of year when my grandmother always visits our house. When most seniors are heading to Florida and warmer climates, my 81-year-old grandmother trades Dixie for Delaware every February.

Although the northern wind blows outside, we working girls concur, "if we are going to be winter-bound indoors, we might as well be so together."

With my lahsa apso, Brandy contently curled up in a warm spot on the sofa next to her, grandma knits and I type on the computer. It's a toss up as to whose fingers move faster.

The half-century gulf between our ages makes the generation gap look like a hairline crack. And we have never have a problem stepping over it.

We speculate on world politics with the same enthusiasm that we express our delight that ready-made buttermilk biscuits recently appeared in the grocer's freezer.

At some point in her visit, we always address changing family life in our country.

In spite of all our sophisticated technology, grandmother says Americans seem to be working harder than ever. There is not enough time for exchanging good food across backyard fences or good stories on front porches she says.

We understand that many families cannot buy food and clothing with one income, but we don't like the idea of dispatching children to day care centers or leaving them without supervision so that a second income can be used for luxuries, or to purchase a home in the best neighborhood... a home that no one has time to enjoy.

We wonder why motorist courtesy has gone to hell in a handbasket and how aggression slipped into an otherwise pleasant experience of driving across town.

"We just don't take time to be kind to one another," grandmother says.

An interesting thing happened during grandmother's most recent visit.

We were settling down to do some knitting and writing in the family room. Grandmother attempted to relax her feet on an ottoman that my lahsa apso, Brandy, had already staked out for a nap. Being both an animal psychologist and purveyor of pet etiquette, grandmother leaned over the ottoman and addressed Brandy, "Share."

Brandy cocked one eye without so much as tilting her head.

"Brandy, please share," grandmother repeated in a pleasant, but firm tone while raising one foot to the edge of the ottoman.

Suddenly, in the time it took for a large white incisor to emerge from between two shiny black lips, grandmother was minus a corn on her fourth toe.

When the dust settled and the band-aids were in place, grandmother surveyed, "I just can't understand it. Brandy and I have always gotten along fine. What do you suppose it was?"

"The word is 'move,' grandmother," I said. "She didn't understand 'share.'"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reader says 'Let's get real'

To the Editor:

I read that Congressman Castle has filed suit in federal District Court in Washington, seeking to stop a scheme by the majority of the House to give equal voting rights to delegates from five U.S. territories.

Castle believes it is not only unconstitutional, it also dilutes Delaware's vote. In effect, Samoa's 47,000 people will have equal voting power with 679,000 in Delaware. My guess is he will prevail. As he should.

Question: Why didn't then-Governor Castle view the Delaware Compensation Commissions recommended increase with the same logic?

Simple logic instantly perceives the ridiculousness of suggesting the pay of a line foreman in the assembly plant be equal to the plant manager with 5,000 people. Hence consistency demands that the pay of Delaware's hierarchy be based on the number of people in Pennsylvania or New York (about 13 million each) as opposed to Delaware's 679,000.

Clearly, the Commission chose to base the pay on status. Indeed the News Journal (12/30, 1984) extended itself support. Let's get real.

Examples: Pennsylvania Department of Transportation versus Delaware Department of Transportation.

Miles roads: Pennsylvania approximately 112,000 including 3,700 dual; Delaware approximately 500 including 170 dual.

Bridges: Pennsylvania over 31,000 including dozens spanning major rivers; Delaware 686 as of 6/15/82 over creeks and a few rivulets.

Newark acquires wooded tract for parkland

Newark City Council has unanimously approved the purchase for open space of a 5.664 acre parcel owned by the Coleman family on the east side of Valley Road, north of the Country Hills development. The city will pay $180,095 for the property. The parcel is the second acquired by the city through its Open Space and Parkland Acquisition program, authorized by Newarkers in an April 10, 1990, bond referendum. The wooded tract will be known as "Coleman Park." According to Newark Parks Director Jim Hall, the park will be used for a variety of recreational purposes, and there will eventually be a footpath for public access from Country Hills Drive, off Barksdale Road. The site contains a small stream that flows under Valley Road from Maryland to the Christina Creek east of the nearby Elan development. As part of the city's participation in the State of Delaware's Open Space and Parkland Trust Fund, 50 percent of the funds for the Coleman Park purchase will be provided by the state. The 1990 bond referendum called for issuing $2.9 million in bonds for parkland and open space acquisition, as well as $1.6 million for the soon-to-be completed Newark police station and $1 million for a recently completed water treatment facility along the White Clay Creek. The Parkland Acquisition Program is intended to preserve the fragile resources of the white Clay and Christina creeks, to establish buffer areas between new development in existing neighborhoods, and to help meet the future recreational needs of the Newark community.

Carr named Assistant Principal of the Year

The Delaware Association of Secondary School Principals has chosen Michael Carr, assistant principal at Newark High School, as Delaware Assistant Principal of the Year.

Carr was unanimously chosen by the selection committee, which included the two past recipients of this honor, Rachel Ali (St. Mark's High School), and Dr. Rita Ryan (retired from Caesar-Rodney High School).

"Mickey," as Carr is better known, has been an assistant principal at Newark High since 1990, moving to that position from a similar position he had held at Christiana High School since 1988. Prior to that, he had served as an assistant principal, principal, psychologist and teacher. He holds a Bachelor's degree from Cathedral College (N.Y.), a Master's degree from St. John's University, and is working toward an Ed.D at the University of Delaware.

The Delaware Assistant Principal of the Year program is jointly sponsored by the Delaware Association of Secondary School Principals, the National Association of Secondary School Principals, and the McDonald's Corporation.

Key Students inducted

Seventy-three students were inducted into the Key Club at Newark High School on Feb. 3. The induction marked the first time for a coed Key Club chapter at the school; an all-male chapter existed in the 1950s. The club, and international service organization sponsored by The Kiwanis Club of Newark-White Clay, has done a variety of community projects, including painting donated school trash cans, sorting food for the Delaware Food Bank, serving food at Hope Dining Room and working with the Delaware Humane Society, giving the animals attention. Pictured (back row, left to right) are Key Club directors: Natasha Colton, Tina Houghton and Crystal Smith; (front row, left to right) are club officers, including: Greg Grube, secretary; Elizabeth Kang, president; Renee Clement, vice-president; and Greg Munson, treasurer. Stacy Fisher, a director, is not shown.

Two people escaped injury when their car was struck by a train Wednesday, Feb. 3 near the Deer Park Tavern in Newark.

According to Newark police, one man from Wilmington was driving on West Main Street, near the Deer Park, when he became disoriented and drove onto the B&O railroad tracks.

University of Delaware police officer William Jamison arrived on the scene and observed the car was stuck on the tracks. Jamison and another unidentified person pulled the passenger from the vehicle shortly before the car was struck by a train. No one was hurt in the incident. "The vehicle, pushed 50 feet by the impact, was destroyed. The train was not damaged.

•Glasgow residents must be vigilant

Glasgow area residents need to be vigilant in expressing their opposition to uncontrolled development in southern New Castle County, according to County Councilman Mike Purzycki.

"I think the Glasgow residents, more than any other group in this county, have got to get organized to have more input," said Purzycki.

Glasgow residents are upset over county development decisions they believe have been detrimental to their area.

The neighborhood civic associations have banded together to form the Greater Glasgow Civic League. In an effort to get more control over development in the area, the GGCL has been considering seeking annexation to Newark or incorporating Glasgow as a city.

In fact, in view of the extremely poor quality of performance by Delaware Department of Transportation, I say discharge the entire incompetents.

bers, is once again getting disproportionate attention for its views. The ACLU membership, peppered with sleazy ambulance chasers seeking notoriety, has sanctimoniously described its organization as a defender of "unpopular causes and unpopular defendants." That description, like many of the group's pronouncements is misleading. What the ACLU does is use every devious tactic the legal system offers to support evil and evildoers under the guise of protecting freedom for everyone. It is a clever mechanism for deflecting criticism.

I am reminded of the old one-liner about the honest citizen who finds on his doorstep a man who says, "I'm from the I.R.S. and I'm here to help you." That kind of help most of us would prefer not to receive, and I, don't recall asking the ACLU to protect my freedoms.

Instead, I find reprehensible an organization that would advocate approval of an American Nazi Party parade through Skokie, Ill., a community with a large number of Jewish residents, some of them Holocaust survivors. Support of a Ku Klux Klan parade in Elkton ranks as does ACLU enthusiasm for rapper Ice-T and ACLU interference in the excellent work being performed by our State Police.

During the recent election campaign, every political candidate, local or national, included drugs among the crucial issues facing our nation. Not only are the drug trade and drug use major problems, but the crime and misery generated by drug use compound the problem. To make the job of our law enforcement agencies more difficult by the unwarranted use of legal technicalities is unconscionable.

But I'm sure some smooth-talking ACLU sophist will claim that I don't understand the virtues of the organization and that views like mine threaten to shred the fabric of America's freedom.

TREAT YOURSELF.

Exactly what does an artist wear to her first exhibit? Pearls are always a safe bet. To think that my dabbling has led to this! Before I moved to Cokesbury Village, I lacked the time, confidence and inspiration to really cultivate my artistic talent. Here, services such as maintenance and housekeeping leave me all the time in the world. Having my meals prepared daily is a real treat, too.

But what's really wonderful is the encouragement and support of all my friends and neighbors here. My confidence has never soared quite so high! Cokesbury residents have a variety of diverse interests and talents, but all share a deep respect for accomplishment and friendship. They're just enthusiastic about life, in general!

And as for inspiration, well, that comes from my view of the Village gardens, ponds, and woodlands.

Some fairy tales do come true

By Tonja Castaneda

I BELIEVE there is someone out there for everyone. You just have to find each other. As I celebrate Valentine's Day with my husband, I am reminded of how fate brought us together.

While some of us are excited that we have a significant other to be with or think about on Valentine's Day, others wish this holiday which seems to be for couples "only" would go away.

For those who are not looking forward to Valentine's Day, I would say to remember that you never know what fate has in store for you. You don't know when you will meet that special person.

My husband and I met through Dear Abby's column. It is a unique love story.

I was 19 and a college student in St. Louis, Mo. He was 20 and a sailor aboard the USS Coral Sea, an aircraft carrier deployed in the Mediterranean sea.

In Dear Abby's column, she published six addresses to write to servicemen and women who would be away from their families and the U.S. during Christmas. She asked people across the nation to write and send holiday cheer from the states.

I decided to send a Christmas card to each of the addresses. I wrote because I had always wanted a pen pal and I enjoy writing letters.

It's funny because my boyfriend and I had just broken up a few months before, and if I would have had a relationship I probably wouldn't have written because it would have been a threat to him.

But as it happened, I was unattached and sent my six Christmas cards. I don't remember what I was expecting to happen, but I received my first response around New Year's. I got responses from three servicemen. Eric, a sailor stationed in California, Mike, a marine stationed in Okinawa and Ken, my future husband, stationed in Norfolk, Va.

They were my age, except Ken who was a year older than me. I wrote back and forth and exchanged pictures with all of them.

I did find out later that when the "Operation Dear Abby" mail was flown onto Ken's ship that he didn't go and pick out my letter addressed to "Any sailor," but his friend, Dennis, put two letters on his bed. One of them was from me.

I don't know when Ken became more special than the other two. Maybe, it was how in his letters he told me I had awe-some eyes. He was so honest and straight forward with me. When I wrote to him that I had started seeing a guy, he wrote back and said even though he shouldn't, he felt jealous and wished that I was his.

In April 1988, Ken's ship pulled back into Norfolk and he flew home to Denver.

When he was home on leave he called me and we heard each others voices for the first time. I remember, I kept asking him to repeat himself because I couldn't understand his accent.

Ken decided to drive his car from Colorado to Virginia, lucky that we were, I lived right in the middle of his trip off of Interstate 70. We still joke that if I hadn't been on the way, we wouldn't have met.

I remember being so nervous, when he called me from Kmart in my hometown. My mom drove me there and I was so excited that I screamed as we drove into parking lot.

When we met face to face, we were both very shy. I got into Ken's car and he drove me back to my house. My mom later told me it was one of the hardest things she did was to drop her daughter off to get into an unknown sailor's car.

We spent the day sightseeing in St. Louis. We had our first kiss under the St. Louis Arch, where we were sitting and talking.

Ken stayed the weekend and we started to fall in love. Before Ken left, he asked me to be his girlfriend and I said Yes.

I went back to college and he went on to Virginia. We didn't know each other that long and didn't know when we would see

Historic day for love birds

Valentine's Day may have evolved into one giant orgy of chocolate and greeting cards, but its origin is as natural as the birds and the bees.

In the Middle Ages, it was a common belief throughout rural Europe that birds began their mating season on Feb. 14.

While the day has been named, most decidedly, after at least two Christian martyrs, a priest and a bishop, who lost their lives in the second half of the Third Century, details of their lives have been lost in the intertwining of legend and myth.

In The American Book of Days, Jane Hatch writes: "Those who do not think that the old opinion about the mating of the birds on February 14 is sufficient to explain the connection between St. Valentine and lovers suggest that the association grew out of the similarity between the Norman word galantin, meaning a lover of women and the name of the saint. They think that Galantin's

Day, with the initial g frequently pronounced as a v led to confusion in the popular mind."

In ancient Rome, on February 14, the day before the ancient Roman feast of the Lupercalia, there was an interesting practice. The names of single young women were put in a box and drawn by chance by would-be suitors. The young man would become the gallant of the young woman for the next year, or at least be her partner for the duration of the festival.

"Scholars have thus related the customs of choosing a Valentine's Day sweetheart to a primitive game symbolizing the selection process, and mating season of birds in spring," wrote Henry Cohen and Tristram Coffin in The Folklore of American Holidays. "In any event, birds, love birds particularly, are associated with Valentine's Day."

Favorite fish dishes: More than a flash in the pan

Two thousand years ago, at the time of the Roman Empire, the Chinese were raising fish in ponds and tanks. They must be credited with the invention of the fish farm, a method of raising food that is now popular in our culture.

The peoples of the Mediterranean also contributed a great deal to our knowledge of fish. The Greeks have always enjoyed fish — from the beginning of recorded history.

In the fourth century B.C., Aristotle, the great Greek philosopher, wrote exhaustive biological studies on fish that overshadowed any other work done on fish until the 16th or 17th century.

We have our Chinese and Greek ancestors to thank for the following fish dishes. I think you will enjoy them.

STEAMED FISH WITH SOYBEAN CONDIMENT AND BEAN CURD (serves 4 as a part of a Chinese meal)

In this simple dish the bean curd picks up the wonderful flavors of fish, ginger and the soybean condiment.

1/2 pound whitefish, boneless fillet, cut into thin slices (cod or sea bass will be fine)
1 cake bean curd, cut into 1/2-inch slices

SAUCE

1 clove garlic, crushed
1/4 teaspoon finely grated fresh ginger
2 tablespoons peanut oil
1 tablespoon Chinese rice wine or dry sherry
2 tablespoons light soy sauce
Pinch of sugar
Pinch of MSG (optional)
1 tablespoon soybean condiment ("mein see," available in Oriental markets)

GARNISH

3 green onions, slivered

Cut the bean curd and arrange on a large steaming plate. Arrange the fish on top of the bean curd.

Mix the sauce and pour over the top. Garnish with the green onions and place in a bamboo steamer.

Steam for 20 minutes or to your taste.

BRAISED FISH OI MANN

Oi Mann is a wonderful restaurant in the New Territories, on the mainland just west of Hong Kong. The fish is raised in tanks in front of a long alleyway of restaurants and peddlers. You pick out what you want and the owner carries it, live, into his restaurant and prepares it for you.

1/2 pound whitefish fillets, boneless and cut into 1-inch-square pieces

FRYING BATTER

1 egg 1 teaspoon baking powder
3/4 cup cornstarch
4 cups peanut oil for deep-frying

SAUCE

1 tablespoon peanut oil
1 large clove garlic, diced very fine
1/2 teaspoon fresh ginger, cut into fine julienne twigs
1 teaspoon soybean condiment ("mein see")
1 tablespoon oyster sauce
1 tablespoon light soy sauce
1 tablespoon Chinese rice wine or dry sherry
1/4 cup chicken soup stock, fresh or canned
Pinch of sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch dissolved in 1 1/2 tablespoons water

GARNISH

Green onion, sliced, or celery leaves, chopped

Heat the oil for deep-frying in a wok to 360 degrees.
Mix the egg with the baking powder and add the fish to the batter.

The Frugal Gourmet

By Jeff Smith

Put the cornstarch on a plate and remove the fish pieces from the batter and dredge each in the cornstarch.

Deep-fry, in two batches, until the fish is golden brown, about 5 minutes. Be sure to keep the oil up to temperature.

Drain the fish pieces on paper towels.

Heat another wok and add the 1 tablespoon of fresh peanut oil. Chow (stir-fry) the garlic and ginger together for a moment, then add the soybean condiment.

Chow for a moment and add the remaining ingredients for the sauce. Thicken with the cornstarch.

Add the fish to the sauce and toss just until all is hot. Garnish and serve.

HINT: If your deep-frying oil smells of fish simply deep-fry a few slices of fresh ginger in the oil for a few minutes. You will be amazed at how the ginger will clean the flavor and odor of the oil.

BAKED FISH ARCHESTRATUS (serves 4-5)

Archestratus was a Greek from Syracuse who wrote one of the earliest known cookbooks.

His recipe for baked fish gives the following advice: "Buy the best fish you can find, preferably from Byzantium. Sprinkle with marjoram. Wrap the fish in fig leaves and bake. Have slaves serve it on silver platters."

1 pound whitefish
1/2 teaspoon marjoram

Salt and pepper
Juice of 1 lemon
4 green onions, sliced the long way into 2-inch pieces
12 fig leaves or 1 small jar grape leaves, drained and rinsed
1 cup dry white wine

Cut fish into 1-inch-square pieces. Sprinkle with marjoram, salt and pepper and lemon juice.

Pour hot water over the fig leaves to soften, or rinse the canned grape leaves in cold water.

Spread leaves out one by one. Place a piece of fish and a bit of green onion on a leaf and wrap it up, tucking in the sides as you roll.

Place the rolls side by side on an oiled baking pan and pour the wine over all. Bake in a preheated oven at 350 degrees for 20 minutes, uncovered.

VELVET PRAWNS (serves 3-4 as part of a Chinese meal)

The process of "velveting" a food is a Chinese invention of great importance. The flavor of the food is preserved, the texture is enhanced by the process and the end result will just blow your socks off!

1/2 pound large prawns, 30-35 count per pound

THE BATTER

2 egg whites
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/8 teaspoon salt

4 cups peanut oil for deep-frying

Peel the shrimp, leaving the tail attached. Cut the shrimp down to back side so they can be opened and "butterflied."

Mix well the ingredients for the batter. Marinate the prawns in this mixture, refrigerated, for 30 minutes.

Heat the oil to between 280 degrees and 300 degrees and deep-fry the shrimp. When the shrimp turn white and float they are cooked. Do not overcook them; they will not turn the least bit brown at this temperature.

Drain well and serve.

SHRIMP AND OYSTER SAUCE (serves 4-5 as part of a Chinese meal)

This is a regular dish on the menu of really good Chinese restaurants in this country, and it is just as popular in Hong Kong.

You may have seen this dish called "Shrimp and Lobster Sauce," since the sauce can also be used on lobster. Who can afford lobster? Try this one with good shrimp or prawns.

1 pound shrimp, 30-40 count per pound
1 tablespoon dry sherry or Chinese rice wine
1 tablespoon light soy sauce
1 tablespoon peanut oil for chow-ing
1/4 pound pork, coarsely ground

2 cloves garlic, chopped fine or crushed

2 slices fresh ginger, each the size of a 25-cent piece, cut julienne

2 teaspoons fermented black beans ("dow see"), rinsed

3 green onions, chopped

Dash of MSG (optional)

1/4 teaspoon sugar

2 tablespoons oyster sauce

1/2 cup chicken soup stock, fresh or canned

1 teaspoon cornstarch mixed with 1 tablespoon water

1 egg, beaten

Peel the shrimp and marinate in the soy and wine for 15 minutes

In the meantime, heat a wok and add 1/2 tablespoon of the oil. Chow (stir-fry) the pork and remove the meat to the serving dish, leaving the oil in the wok.

Heat the wok again and add the rest of the oil. Chow the garlic, ginger and black beans for a moment, then add the shrimp, drained of the marinade.

Chow on high heat until the shrimp have changed color and are just barely tender, about 3 minutes.

Add all the remaining ingredients, including the cooked pork, with the exception of the egg. Stir until a sauce forms, then stir in the egg. Serve immediately.

FAIRY TALE/from 8A

each other again. We both took a chance on each other.

Almost everyone I knew told me I was crazy. They said all sailors have a girl in every port. I told them thank you very much but to please stay out of my relationship.

Ken and I talked on the phone once a week when his ship was in port and we saw each other a long four months later in August, when he had five days leave.

For Ken where to take leave, was a big decision because he had to decide whether to go on leave to see his family in Colorado or see me in Missouri.

We continued to go out together for two years, seeing each other every four months. I moved away from home to continue college at a four-year school and Ken went on another six month cruise to the Mediterranean.

We decided we were ready to get married in November 1989. I told Ken that I wanted to get married but to stay and finish college in Missouri after our wedding.

We finally made our dream come true, by having a beautiful outside park wedding in June 1990. We honeymooned in San Diego for five weeks, while Ken was there going to a Navy school.

August came and I went back to college almost a senior. Ken was transferred to the USS Aylwin, a fast frigate in Newport, Rhode Island.

While in school, I lived in the dorms and was on the residence hall staff. People thought I was strange being married and living in the dorm.

I was determined to finish college. I couldn't be with Ken if we did live together, because he had just left for a six month cruise around South America.

I graduated from college in December of 1991 as Ken was finishing up his cruise. He flew out with early leave from the ship's last port of Puerto Rico and was able to see me get my diploma. The moment we were both waiting for, so that we could start living together.

We moved to Rhode Island where Ken was stationed and we have been living happily together since. Ken is out of the service now and we live here in Delaware.

I did write to thank Dear Abby for helping me find Ken and she printed my letter in her column.

So, this Valentine's day if you're feel like that special person for you just does not seem to be out there, remember that you don't know what destiny has in store for you.

I know how I met my husband seems like a fairy tale now, but that is how we got together. It wasn't easy being apart for so long, but sometimes taking chances on love really pays off. It did for us.

Do something really special for the one you love this Valentine's Day and if you aren't attached this year, remember you could meet your mate anyway, time or place.

You just never know. I sure didn't.

Egyptian figures come to life at University Museum

THE ARTS Phil Toman

Did you know Egypt had a rival on the same continent 3,000 years B.C.? I think I vaguely remembered ancient Nubia from my undergraduate days, but I know much more about the civilization now thanks to my source on things archaeological, The University Museum, in Philadelphia.

The diverse and sophisticated Nubian civilization, which flourished from about 3100 B.C. to 400 A.D., is the subject of a major new art, cultural and historical exhibition called "Ancient Nubia: Egypt's Rival in Africa." It is on now through October at the University Museum.

I must admit I didn't count them, but the museum's great PR director, Pam Kosty, told me that there were more than 300 artifacts and art works in the exhibit. The items were selected from the museum's huge Nubian collection, one of the finest in the world. The new show traces the 3,500 year history of Nubia and provides a new perspective on Nubia's volatile relationship with Egypt.

In case your geography of that part of the world is a little weak, the center of the Nubian culture was on the Nile river, south of Egypt. Much of Lower Nubia is covered by the reservoir for the Aswan dam. The ancient boundary between Egypt and Nubia is just north of the dam. The modern boundary between Egypt and Sudan runs near the center ancient Nubia.

Lovers of ancient art will have a field day at the exhibit because it is as diverse as the culture it came from. A wide variety of artifacts including ceramic vessels, jewelry, statuary and funeral ornaments are there to be seen. These items do double duty. They are a joy to art lovers today and, when used by archaeologists, help document the rise and fall of a series of Nubian kingdoms.

The wide range of pieces on display is amazing. There are extraordinary eggshell-thin painted wares. They are the most delicate ceramics I have ever seen.

Pottery in the show was made by using many different techniques. It is decorated with animal motifs such as birds, frogs and giraffes, as well as plant motifs such as grapes, palms and acorns. Some vessels and personal jewelry were made of glass, bronze and inlaid wood.

The University Museum holds over 7,000 items from the Nubian culture in its collection. The museum was one of the major institutions involved in the salvage of art and other important archaeological finds when Egypt began turning most of lower Nubia into a reservoir for the Aswan dam. Staff members rescued many treasures which would otherwise have been lost to the rising waters.

As part of the University Museum's exhibit, "Ancient Nubia: Egypt's Rival in Africa," several ushabtis, or funerary figures, are on display. They are inscribed with magic spells to help the dead in their afterlife.

In our country the University Museum's only rival for Nubian memorabilia is the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and the two of them are cooperating to make this exhibit even more exciting — the cream of both collections is there for us all to see and enjoy.

While the University Museum is offering the premiere of the exhibit, it will travel across our land to seven other museums and there are 20 more museums trying to get on the schedule. We have quite an opportunity to see it first and enjoy it.

On Saturday, Feb. 20, the museum will celebrate a world culture day with arts, crafts, music dance and children's activities from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. There is no charge to take part in these interesting, educational and fun-filled events.

Special guided tours of the Nubian treasures, also free, are set for Sunday, March 21; Saturday, April 17, and Saturday, May 8. The tours begin at 1:15 p.m., just inside the main entrance of the museum.

The University of Pennsylvania's University Museum of Archaeology and Anthropology is located at 33rd and Spruce streets in Philadelphia and is easily accessible via your car, SEPTA or Amtrak. If you are driving, go north on I-95 and west on I-76. Get off at the Civic Center exit. Drive past the Civic Center to the first traffic light, turn right and there you are. There is some on-street parking but it is very close to security patrolled parking as well.

By train, take Amtrak or SEPTA to 30th Street Station. It is only a short walk to the museum, but you may ride bus numbers 21, 30, 40, 42 or 90 if you prefer.

University Museum hours: Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. The museum is closed Mondays. If you would like more information, you may call (215) 898-4000. I think it would make a wonderful family trip, especially this time of year when we need indoor activities.

"Ancient Nubia: Egypt's Rival in Africa," another great way to fight the winter doldrums. Thanks, University Museum!

Scott suspension questionable

Glasgow football coach Dave Scott was suspended last week for the first three games of the 1993 season by the Christina School District.

The suspension stems from Scott's actions and the actions of his players (four were ejected for arguing with officials) in the Division I state semifinal game against William Penn on Nov. 27.

The on-field officials working the game didn't deem it appropriate to eject the Glasgow coach from the game, but administrators and board members, most of whom weren't even at the game, felt it necessary to suspend Scott for three games next season.

Whether Scott should have been punished in this way is arguable. In my opinion, I think the sentence was a little harsh.

However, what is most concerning is the way the Christina School District and DSSAA (Delaware Secondary School Association) went about its so called investigation of this matter. This is what should be worrisome to all other coaches out there.

First of all, the situation — and all the innuendoes and accusations that went with it — dragged on for far too long. It's February for goodness sake. The game was on Thanksgiving weekend.

According to Scott, DSSAA, which dropped its dealings with the matter after the district made its decision, was upset with the language the coach used with the media following the game.

Remember, this was a state semifinal game that was influenced by a very controversial call late in the contest. I was one of the members of the media that heard Scott's explanation. It wasn't that different from any other coaches' diatribe after a loss, much less a tough state tournament loss. I know I wasn't asked what was said by anyone investigating the matter.

The esteemed governing body of Delaware High School athletics was also upset that Scott told his team to allow William Penn to score late in the fourth quarter. The touchdown pushed the Colonials' lead from 14-8 to 22-8. Scott's explanation was that he had no timeouts left and wanted to get the ball back. His team had no chance to win if William Penn ran out the clock. He felt his only chance was to get the ball back, score quickly and take his chance with an on-side kick.

Whether anyone agrees with the strategy is not the point. The point is, he made the decision based on trying to win the game, not lose by a close score. Anyone can second guess the decision. But how can a group try to discipline a coach for doing what he thought he had to do to win.

Basketball coaches aren't subject to scrutiny after fouling the opposing team when trailing late in the game. This

Wm. Penn topples St. Mark's

Upper weights help Colonials to victory

By Marty Valania

NEW CASTLE — It was a cold, snowy, February Saturday and bundled fans trudged their way to a big wrestling match between two of the best high school teams in the East. This match, however, wasn't in a small Pennsylvania town. It was the annual St. Mark's-William Penn renewal right here among the sprawling suburbia of New Castle County.

The powerful Colonials (11-0) topped the Spartans 34-15, but the vocal, sold-out throng of 1,000 got their money's worth. William Penn was the better squad Saturday but the tight match wasn't decided until Jeff Whitmarsh pinned Frank Broomall in the 189 pound bout. Seven of the 13 bouts, all wrestled under a single spotlight in an otherwise pitch-dark William Penn gym, were decided by four points or less — six of those went to the Colonials.

Under a unique atmosphere reserved only for special rivalries between elites, William Penn got a pin from Wayne Wallin at 103 pounds to jump to a 6-0 lead. The 112 and 119 bouts were tight ones — a 9-7 Joe Bond decision over Joe Amon and a 2-1 Daryl Mergenthaler victory over Mark Dyer — that improved the Colonials' lead to 12-0 and whipped the already emotional crowd into a frenzy.

"The first three matches were three that could've gone the other way," said St. Mark's Coach Steve Bastianelli whose team fell to 9-3 in dual meets this season. "I thought we wrestled well, but they just didn't go our way."

Defending state champion Kevin Butswinkas gave the Spartans their first win with a 20-7 major decision over Mike Snow at 125. William Penn's Nick Dellicompagni answered with a 9-5 decision over R.J. George at 130 to push the lead to 15-4.

St. Mark's, behind an impressive 14-1 major decision at 135 from Mark Bosick and another major decision by Max Matthes at 140, pulled within 15-12 and temporarily halted the Colonial-fest.

"We expected a lot of close matches," said Colonials' senior Whitmarsh. "Their big guns came through in the middle."

The Spartans' momentum appeared to continue at 145 with Stan Spoor looking as if he picked up an overtime upset win over William Penn's John Stutzman. However, the official waved off an already-given takedown by Spoor and, amid an entanglement of limbs, Stutzman came back to score a takedown of his own to win a controversial 10-8 decision.

"Stan Spoor did a great job and I'm not arguing whether it was a takedown or not," said Bastianelli. "But put yourself in Stan Spoor's MILLTOWN — At St. Mark's High, taking care of business means working overtime.

The Spartans turned in more than a day's work and punched out longtime parochial school rival Ursuline 62-55 in overtime Friday night in Catholic Conference girls basketball action.

Jen Skinner hit 5-of-6 free throws and Andrea Beccaria and Alexis Crkvenac each added two foul shots apiece in OT to propel the Spartans to their second straight conference win in three days.

"This was our best week in years," said Spartan Coach John Fiorelli, coming off a 55-44 win over Padua earlier last week. "(Friday) I thought both teams played a good game. We were up at least two times by seven and nine points, but Ursuline kept fighting back. They had a good chance to win at the end (of regulation), but two- or three-footer rolled off the rim."

After rallying from a late fourth-quarter five-point deficit, Ursuline tied the game 50-50 with 2:04 left in the game, and then evened the score 53-53 to send the game into overtime.

But the Spartans nailed 9-of-11 free throws and outscored Ursuline 9-2 in overtime to win the game and avenge a one-point (41-40) loss to the Raiders earlier this season.

"There was no big pressure; we just kept thinking about the first game (against Ursuline)," said Skinner, who led St. Mark's with 24 points. "We didn't want to blow this game; it was our game; we wanted it more than they did."

"We hung tough," Fiorelli said. "Usually when you blow a lead, the momentum switches to the other team; it fires them up. But we hit our shots from the foul line; that was the difference."

"Plus Ursuline didn't get off many good shots. As soon as they got behind by two points, they fouled us right away; we kept making them That didn't give them many good opportunities."

The victory thrusts St. Mark's (3-2 conference, 13-5 overall) into a three-way tie atop the conference with St. Elizabeth and Padua, with remaining away games against SE, Padua and Archmere, and one home game against William Penn. Ursuline is 8-8, 3-3.

"A lot of things can happen in the next few weeks," Fiorelli said. "We have to be more concerned at this point about our remaining games in Catholic Conference. It's those away games that get us ready for the (state) tournament."

"We've been struggling a little bit. We play a comparably weak schedule before we begin conference play. The league is much tougher. Padua had been playing well and Ursuline beat us the first time, but I still thought we had the better team."

Canal starts umpire program for youths

By Marty Valania
Post Sports Writer

It's 6:10 p.m. on a hot June evening. The young ball players are standing around waiting as managers and administrators are scurrying trying to find umpires to work the game. Have you ever seen this happen?

It's an altogether too familiar scene at youth baseball fields during the spring and summer.

Pleading for parents to come out of the stands and umpire Little League baseball games will, hopefully, be a problem of the past at Canal Little League.

Canal, under the guidance of Umpire in Chief Jim French and assistant Mike Marine, will start an umpire training program this spring. The goal of the program is to teach more people involved in the league to be more comfortable, professional and proficient when umpiring.

"We're hoping to recruit umpires," said French a long-time official in baseball and football. "We've had problems in the past of having umpires to cover all the games. We've sometimes had to pull reluctant parents out of the stands just so we could play a game."

"We want to recruit and sell people on umpiring. We hope to generate enthusiasm and make people comfortable when they get out on the field."

At this year's Canal registration (Feb. 13 [10 a.m. - 2 p.m.], Feb. 18 [6-8 p.m.] and Feb. 20 [10-2]), French and Marine will have a table set up expressly for prospective umpires. The two hope to get senior league players involved in umpiring as well. The 13-15 year-olds will be able to umpire minor league level games within Canal.

French, along with Marine, has developed a complete umpire train-

Youthful St. Mark's upsets arch-rival Salesianum 51-40

By Marty Valania
Post Sports Writer

WILMINGTON — The little-known secret is now out of the bag.

The St. Mark's High boys basketball team showed everyone in the state what it already knew with a 51-40 upset win over host Salesianum before a large and spirited crowd Friday night. The win, which ended a seven-game, four-year drought against its arch-rival, was the biggest at St. Mark's since its 1989 state championship. It also improved the Spartans' record to 11-6 and almost ensured their entry into the state tournament.

"We knew we were pretty good," said St. Mark's first-year Coach Lee Sibley. "But we hadn't beaten a really good team yet. I told the kids that talk was cheap, we had to finally beat someone and we did."

"This was a great win. It should do wonders for our confidence."

The young (two freshman, two sophomores and a junior in the starting lineup) but talented Spartans' executed their half-court offense well in the face of Sallies' defensive pressure on their way to shooting over 50% (19-of-37) from the field. Conversely, St. Mark's stifling defense (man-to-man and some second-half zone) limited highly-ranked Salesianum to under 30% shooting (17-of-57). The Spartans', led by the inside play of Geoff Bock and Geoff Wikel, also controlled the boards outrebounding the Sals nearly two-to-one. Sallies was limited to just one shot at the basket most of the night.

"We're old-fashioned," Sibley said of Bock and Wikel. "We still like to block out. Those two did a great job underneath."

With the score tied 24-24 early in the third quarter, St. Mark's behind seven points from freshman guard Gene Kelly went on a 10-0 spurt to take command of the game.

"The key is when they came back to tie the game we were able to come right back," said Sibley. "Kelly hit some big shots for us. He had a great game."

Kelly, along with backcourt mate freshman Alex Karlsen (seven points), handled Sallies' full-court pressure well and withstood the Sallies' comeback attempt. The Sals never got closer than four points during the fourth quarter.

"This definitely raises our confidence," said Kelly, who scored 15 points. "We're just looking forward to more games now."

John Gordon, only a sophomore, led the Spartans' with 16 points — six coming in the last three minutes of the game to help fend off the Sallies' run.

"I didn't expect this year to be this good," said Gordon. "I knew

Krug moves to Delaware

By Marty Valania
Post Sports Writer

Former Caravel baseball Coach Don Krug has accepted a volunteer assistant coaching position with the University of Delaware baseball team.

Krug, who led the Bucs to their finest season ever last spring, will start his new duties under Delaware Coach Bob Hannah immediately.

"It's a great opportunity to work under a great coach," said Krug. "I learned a lot under Paul [Niggebrugge] but this is a unique opportunity."

Niggebrugge, who previously headed the Bucs' baseball program but stepped down to assume the role of athletic director last year, will return as head coach.

"Paul's 100% behind me," Krug said. "It's tough being at a school so long and leaving. I'm certainly going to miss the kids."

Krug will be in charge of the outfielders and catchers for the Blue Hens.

"I'm pretty pumped up," he said. "I'll dress for home games, keep stats and have some duties during the games here."

Last season Krug directed Caravel to the best record in the state entering the state tournament. The Bucs, however, were upset in the first round by Brandywine.

At Delaware, Krug will be entering a program with a strong tradition. Last year, the Blue Hens won the North Atlantic Conference championship and played in the NCAA Tournament.

Christiana cagers shot down by powerful William Penn

By Marty Valania
Post Sports Writer

CHRISTIANA — The Christiana High basketball team found out why many observers regard William Penn as the best team in the state.

The Colonials (16-1 overall, 10-1 Flight A) springboarded from a 32-point second quarter to an 81-73 Flight A victory over the Vikings Tuesday night. The win enabled William Penn to stay alone atop the conference standings. Christiana fell to 12-7 overall, 7-4 in the league, good for third place behind the Colonials and Glasgow.

Christiana was the team that started the game on an up-note, connecting on four of its first six shots to take a 9-3 lead. William Penn, which hit on just one of its first 11 field goal attempts, battled back to tie the game 14-14 after the first eight minutes.

The second quarter saw the Colonials click on all cylinders.

Trailing 20-18 with 6:24 to play before halftime, the Flight A leaders outscored the Vikings 28-2 before intermission. William Penn hit an amazing 75% (12-of-16) of its shots during the stretch including five three-point bombs.

"Unbelievable," said Christiana Coach Ron Hollis. "That was the hottest outside shooting I've ever seen in all my years of high school basketball. They weren't just normal outside shots either. They were from long-range."

"Their athleticism is incredible. Right now, they're definitely the best team in the state — in my opinion."

The Colonials did everything right in that last six minutes of the second quarter. They hit the outside shot, they fast broke efficiently and they played great defense. The Vikings went 4-26 without scoring a point and trailed 46-22 at halftime.

"There's really nothing you can do," said Christiana senior Kip Rensburg, who scored 21 points. "You just have to sit there and watch. Maybe not enjoy it, but you have to give William Penn a lot respect."

wasn't exactly the same situation, but the theory was.

To top it off, some administrators in the district offices were upset that Glasgow Principal Bob Anderson and Athletic Director Bill Conley would say anything — no matter how mild — about the suspension. These two are obviously caught in the middle. But how can anyone expect two educated people, who have been in the education business for many years — and saw the incident first hand — to not express an opinion. What is this, a dictatorial district? Just go along with what we say no matter how you feel about it. That's a nice message.

Due process that leads to a suspension is one thing; this is another.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Jen Skinner — St. Mark's

By John Holowka
Special to The Post

MILLTOWN — One of the things Jen Skinner likes about St. Mark's new run-and-gun offense is that she's the one who usually gets to pull the trigger.

The third-year senior helped the Spartans knock down Catholic Conference rivals Padua and Ursuline last week by scoring a combined 47 points, including hitting 5-of-6 clutch free throws in the 62-55 overtime victory against the Raiders.

"I like it that I'm the one to go to; the fact that I can win the game and have a part in the outcome," said Skinner, a 5-foot-9 center, who also plays varsity softball and volleyball. "I've been on the team for three years, so I guess I have the most experience in important games. I know that I'm the go-to person in tight games."

"And we've changed our offensive look. We're trying a run and gun. We're pressing after everything, and instead of play by play, we're looking for the fast break option first."

Skinner led the team last year in scoring with 12 points per game and leads the team with 14.7 ppg and 265 points in 18 games this season.

"Last year I was bad at foul shooting," she said. "I worked on it and it's improved. This year I'm trying to take more control of the team. As a senior, it's my last chance."

"As a team we have a little more experience under our belt. We're used to playing with each other now; we know what each other can do and what to expect at the right time."

"I think she's been overlooked," said Spartan Coach John Fiorelli. "Anyone who knows basketball around the state will tell you she's one of the best. She hasn't gotten a lot of credit; she's due some recognition."

"Jen does everything; she does brings the ball down; she gets to the post for a big play when we need it; she makes good passes. She's a good all-around player. With all these over-specialized players, that's something you don't see a lot of. She can do it all."

position. It's overtime and the official signals a takedown. We teach our wrestlers to get off the mat at that time. It's supposed to be over. He clearly gave two and then took it away."

The decision, instead of tying the match 15-15, put the Colonials ahead 18-12.

Adam Pietlock then recorded a big 7-6 victory, with the winning point coming on a stalling call as time ran out, over John Skinner in the 152 pound bout to pull the Spartans within 18-15. A score which could've been reversed if Spoor's takedown would've stood.

The Colonials took over the match from that point, dominating the upper weights. Deon Jenkins earned an 8-5 decision over Phil Manalokas at 160, Damien Craighton picked up a major decision over Jamie Iudica at 171, Whitmarsh's pin at 189 and a 16-12 Bubba Skinner decision over Rick Houck at heavyweight.

"We felt confident coming in," said William Penn Coach Jack Holloway whose team recorded its 60th win in its last 61 dual meets. "We felt, similar to last year in that if St. Mark's wrestled its best there was nothing we could do to win, that if we wrestled our best we would win.

"Fortunately, we wrestled well in some places, but we didn't in others. I can't believe that a William Penn wrestler would show up for a St. Mark's match and just hang around. We do have a strong lineup, though, and that helps us on a day like today. Someone has to pick up somebody else."

"You have to give credit to St. Mark's. Some of their guys took it to us and some of our guys took it to them."

Although the final margin was 19 points, the teams — on Saturday ing program. There will be four training sessions from 7-9 p.m. (March 1, March 8, March 11 and March 15 [7:30-9]) to help people prepare for the upcoming season.

"We'll go through things that are unique to little league baseball and things that we see, as managers, that are consistently called wrong," French said.

The idea of having teenagers umpiring games is one that appeals to both men.

"I think it will add a lot to the little league experience," said

French. "It will instill some professionalism of behavior and maybe make some of them think before barking at an umpire in one of their games."

French realizes that things might not turn around overnight but thinks that over a span of a few years it can be a program that yields many quality umpires.

"This is a building process," he said. "We don't think things will get better all at once but we can make some progress."

St. Mark's ranged out to a 15-7 lead midway through the second period, but the Raiders battled back to tie the score 19-19 and trailed 27-24 at halftime. The Spartans led 46-40 starting the fourth period.

Crkvenac scored 19 and Beccaria added six for St. Mark's. Laura Houle chipped in with four points and Debra Krajewski and Liza Stapleford each scored two points.

Megan Gardiner led Ursuline and all scorers with 28 points.
