ANNUAL REPORT OF TOWN SHOWS NEWARK HAS EXCESS OF ASSETS OVER LIABILITIES OF $166,876

Statement of Town Council Shows Growth of Town in Size and Wealth; Economies Instituted Cut Operating Costs;
Many Improvements During Year

STREET IMPROVEMENTS TOTAL $320,610

An excess of assets over liabilities for the Town of Newark for the fiscal year ending February 28, 1931, amounting to $166,876.70, is shown in the annual financial statement prepared by the Town Council, and released as public information in the Newark Post. The statement also shows a substantial cash balance to the credit of the town in local banks, and shows that Newark, as a town, is in excellent financial condition.

The number of improvements made to the town during the past fiscal year are of interest. Street paving and improving has progressed steadily under Town Engineer Merle S. Sigmond, and the installation of water and power and light equipment has been speeded up until the town is better provided with such equipment at the present time than it has ever been before.

The report shows that Newark now has seven and one-quarter miles of hard surfaced streets within the town limits, with one and thirty-one hundredths mile of streets improved with cobble and guttering. The total amount spent by the town to date for street improvement is $320,610.00 of which $187,500 has been spent in the past three years. The cost of maintaining, repaving and patching these streets amounted to $29,326 last year, while $27,200 was spent for cleaning streets and keeping the town in a sanitary condition.

Street lighting was accomplished during the year by a total of 287 lights throughout the town, and the number of light consumers increased from 950 to 1006, an increase of 5.9 per cent for the year. Power consumers increased from 53 to 67, an increase of 26.4 per cent.

The number of water consumers increased from 587 to 1018, and the average daily water consumption was 1,660,000 of a per capita consumption of 104 gallons per day, based on the 1929 census.

After fire protection was given the year during the year, as two additional fire plugs were installed. The total number of fire plugs now in service is 105, with 66 main line hydrants installed. 51,513 feet of water pipe are in service throughout the town, or a total of more than nine miles.

A reduction of 40 per cent in the cost of pumping sewage was made during the year by the installation of a new pump and motor. Sewers in the town total 30,020 feet.

The complete financial report for the fiscal year is as follows:

40 U.O.F.D. MEN GET COVETED SPORTS LETTER

University "D" is Awarded Football, Basketball, Swimming Teams

DR. MERCER SPEAKER

The presentation of the coveted letter "D" to University of Delaware athletes who played football, basketball or were members of the swimming team this past season was made at the annual Athletic Council dinner Monday night in Old College Hall. A total of 40 letters were awarded the men who represented their school during the year in these sports. The letters for the rifle and fencing teams were not awarded at the dinner, as the seasons for those sports had not been completed at the time of the meeting of the council, but these letters will be awarded at the dinner next year.

Dr. E. Leroy Mercer, dean of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania, was the principal speaker of the evening. He was introduced by Dr. Walter Hüllihen, who presided at the dinner and acted as toastmaster. Dr. Mercer spoke of the new system at Penn., stating that it gave every indication of proving an extremely wise step. It tends to eliminate the commercial aspect from intercollegiate athletics, he told the group of 200 persons assembled for the banquet, and leads to more enthusiastic participation by the student body.

The appealing thing about intercollegiate athletic relations among the smaller colleges and universities such as Delaware, he said, was the sportsmanship almost invariably displayed by the contestants. The new plan at Penn is featured by an extensive inter-mural program which is calculated to draw far more undergraduates into active participation in athletics than ever before.

FIREMEN BATTLE FLAMES IN ELK MILLS FACTORY

Saturday night about nine o'clock Newark and Elkton firemen responded to an alarm from Kay and Todd textile plant at Elk Mills, and their prompt work with chemical tanks confined a threatened disaster to the loss of a few hundreds of dollars. The fire had originated among machinery, and spread to oily bases. The high ceiling of the mill saved the plant, as a low ceiling would have caught fire and been almost at once beyond control.

ROGERS NAMED HEAD FOOTBALL COACH AT U.O.F.D.

Bill for Chair of Physical Education Passed by Legislature

ZEIGLER TO RETURN

The appointment of Charlie Rogers as head coach of football at the University of Delaware, and the announcement of the passage of a bill by the State Legislature to provide for a Chair of Physical Education at the University, made a fitting climax to the annual dinner given by the Athletic Council of the University Monday night, at which the letters won by members of the football, basketball and swimming teams were awarded.

Rounds of applause greeted the announcement made by Dr. Walter Hüllihen, president of the University of Delaware, that Mr. Rogers had been appointed head coach. The former University of Pennsylvania star backfield man—one of the greatest players ever produced at that school—came to the University of Delaware last fall under the reorganization of the coaching staff as coach of the backfield, and worked with Gus Zeigler, another Penn star and veteran coach, in building up the most outstanding football team that Delaware has had in many years. Another announcement by Dr. Hüllihen that Mr. Zeigler would also return to Delaware next season in a supervisory capacity in athletics was enthusiastically received. Mr. Zeigler and Mr. Rogers, besides having built up a football team, from green material, that was the best seen here for several years, are very popular with the boys at the University, and their return next year will be highly satisfactory to everyone.

The establishment of a Chair of Physical Education will enable the University to offer academic courses in Physical Education leading to a degree in that field of work. It will allow for the training of teachers of Physical Education for schools throughout the state, and for men interested in choosing athletic coaching and directing as a profession. It is not known who is being considered to fill the chair when the position is created, but it is expected that some choice will be made before the next school year.

Newark Beats Commodore

MacDonough, 28-2

Newark won an overwhelming victory from Commodore MacDonough School at St. Georges in a three and one-half inning game on Monday. This was largely due to a quarantine which was placed on the school a short time ago, thus preventing them from having practice. The pitcher and catcher were also absent. The Newark lineup was as follows: Clinton Kennedy, catcher; Jack Truitt, pitcher; Robert Egnor, 1st base; Eric Mayer, manager, 2nd base; Jack Daly, captain, shortstop; Howard Cage, 3rd base; Renard George, right field; Ernest George, center field; Benet Todd, left field.

At the beginning of the third inning, Coach Phillips changed the lineup to the following: Guy Wharton, catcher; Jack Daly, pitcher; Clinton Kennedy, 1st base; Eric Mayer, 2nd base; Edwin Knass, shortstop; Oliver Henderson, 3rd base; Robert Hancock, right field; Ernest George, center field; Joseph Maxwell, left field.

The next game will be played Wednesday on the Condico-Diamond with Krebs.

Tickets For Sale

As regularly as the springtime and the budding of the leaves, comes the annual senior play. The people of Newark not only expect one, but we hope, look forward to it. We intend to meet their full expectations this year with our comedy, "Nothing But The Truth."

We appreciate the constant support of the Newark citizens, and we fully realize that it is only through their cooperation that such activities of our school as the senior play and the "trip to Washington" are made possible. For many years parents and friends of the school pupils have attended our plays. In all cases the plays have been successes, viewed impartially from the public's point of view and ours—financially and aesthetically, successes.

To those outside the cast of the play, the most important work now is ticket-selling. The tickets for the play have been printed, and all seniors are busy filling the role of salesman. Each has been given ten tickets—and can have as many more as he wants. Reservations begin the 27th; the play is dated for the 30th. When we hear those ripples of laughter that must follow inevitably after our hero speaks, we expect to hear them surge from the front row to the back without a break. Every seat must be filled.

In order to arouse a little more curiosity, and as a means of advertising the play a little more, the cast, with their coach, has decided to give one of the more hilarious scenes in assembly before the student body. From time to time we have heard reports of the play's progress, and it has all been very encouraging. Every character is portrayed with all the pep and realism that could be hoped for. Everyone enjoys, and seems well-satisfied, to his part.

Every senior has a definite task ahead of him, and the immediate aim of it all is to make "Nothing But The Truth" successful.

Vernona Chalmers, 31.

Assembly

April 9—In assembly this morning, we were all convinced that "spring is here. We can all be sure of this because everyone sang Rubinstein's "Welcome, Sweet Springtime" as though he meant it. Mr. Gillespie wants everyone to do something on Field Day, or at least he wants us all to go to our respective coaches and find out what they want us to do.

April 14—If anyone doesn't believe the High School people can sing he should have been in assembly this morning when we sang "Santa Lucia." The group of popular songs played by Myra Hall was certainly a diversion. Oh! yes, boys, don't forget to send in your applications for the Citizens' Military Training Camp." As Colonel Tanner said, "Delaware certainly wants to be represented. Remember it's free."

Newark Defeats Middletown

Newark High School opened their D. I. A. R. season in baseball by defeating their long-standing rival, Middletown High School, by a score of 11 to 1. The victory was largely due to the excellent pitching of Whiteman and Jackson.

Whiteman's home run in the third inning with two men on bases and Willis' home run in sixth with none on, caused the downfall of Middletown. Edmanson's error in the seventh gave Middletown their only run of game. The game was thrilling throughout with the batting and fielding. Score:

What's In A Name?

When names were first given, each one meant something. John the Miller was shortened to John Miller, Harvey the Goldsmith was shortened to Harvey Goldsmith, and so on. If a certain person, Grace by name, was closely associated with a certain meadow, she was called Grace of the Lea, or Grace Lee. And if a man, Harold by name, lived in a woods, he was named Harold of the Forests, or Harold Forrest. Sometimes people derived their surnames from nicknames given to them by their fellow-townfolk, as John Drinkwater or Paul Streetnatter. Today, unlike then, names mean nothing in themselves, other than a means of differentiation between members of a family, and to show, by the surname, from what family they originated.

A name, to mean something in the world today, must be earned. Professor Silliman has a long list of scientific achievements to his credit, and he comes from a family that has been noted for such achievements for many generations. To judge by his name, one would think that he was incapable of such attainments. "A good name is more to be desired than great riches." It can neither be bought, nor claimed—it must be earned. Sometimes the father hands down his good name to his son, but unless the son be worthy, the father's labors went for naught.

The names we make for ourselves in high school mean a lot to us in life afterwards. A bad name can sometimes be lived down—but how much easier it is to live up to a good one! A good name may mean "good" in the sense of industry, country, or cooperation; it may mean "good" in the sense of our power to have and to hold friends, to forgive and to love our enemies, to know and obey our parents, and to respect our elders.

The worth-while things in life are those which usually come only after a hard struggle. When we have acquired a good name for ourselves, we will not only be proud of it, but we shall have a greater feeling of content that we are able to pass on to our progenies, that much to be desired—a good name!

Percival R. Roberts, 32.

"Nothing But the Truth"

What It's All About

The truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth for twenty-four hours, is the basis of a wager for $10,000, placed by our friend, Bob Bennett, who has been given this sum to invest by his sweetheart, Gwen.

An easy wager to win, you may say, but listen! Even white lies are tabooed by the conditions of the wager, and many are the unpleasant truths that are told. After a few hours of absolute truth-telling, our hero exclaims: "If you think it's easy to tell the truth, just try it!"

He tells the truth to the cook, to the traffic officer, to his friends, to his sweetheart, and to Mrs. Ralston, his hostess. He courts trouble from the start. Absurd situations arise; unbelievable complications pile up; unblemished reputations are besmirched. And all because Bishop Doran is so liciting funds for his new Seaside Home for Children—and philanthropic (?) Mr. Ralston offers to double a prohibitive sum if his daughter raises it in a specified time. As for the rest? April 30 is the date for this, the supreme of all senior plays!

Junior High School Baseball Team

The Newark Junior High School plays its first game of the season on Monday, April 13, with Commodore MacDonough School. Their future schedule is as follows:

April 15—Krebs at Newark.
April 22—Newark at Stanton.
April 29—Newark at Krebs.
May 6—Stanton at Newark.
May 11—Commodore MacDonough at Newark.

Although the boys have had very little practice, members of Junior High School have great confidence in them. They have elected Jack Daly captain and Eric Mayer manager. Three coaches have been appointed. They are Mr. Miller, Mr. Phillips and Mr. Boone.

Helpful Suggestions for Would-Be Journalists

A Journalism Report was given at the meeting of this committee, April 8, by Dorothy Barrow. The first topic she spoke about was "Newspaper English versus Jargon." She stated that Journalism demands vivid, forceful, objective writing so that all may understand. This is acquired through short words, sentences and paragraphs.

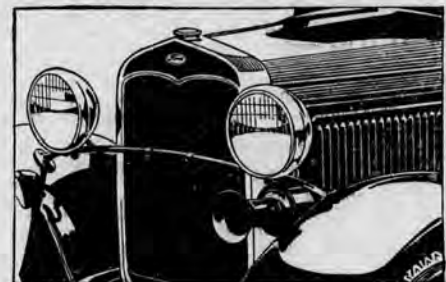

"Use words that can be seen or pictured" was the most important statement under "Concrete Nouns." Live words should be used and the paper should sparkle with fresh news.

Straightforwardness and simplicity is one of the topics Miss Barrow discussed. The News-Story should be known and practiced. The aim of Journalism is to make things clear.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF FORD VALUE

Bright, enduring RUSTLESS STEEL is used for many exposed bright metal parts of the Ford

WHEN YOU BUY a Ford you buy enduring beauty. The body finish is made to last for the life of the car and practically all exposed bright metal parts except the bumpers are made of enduring Rustless Steel.

This Rustless Steel has great tensile strength. It is the same bright metal all the way through. A salt test equivalent to forty years' service under the severest weather conditions failed to have any effect on its brilliance. It never requires polishing. All you do is wipe it with a damp cloth, as you do your windshield.

This is just one of many features that show the substantial worth of the Ford. In speed, comfort, safety, economy and long life—in the richness of its finish and upholstery—it brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

Call or phone for demonstration.

LOW FORD PRICES $430 to $630

Historically Correct Sketches
By CALVIN FAIRBANKS

Here, surrounded by unbroken forests and untrod valleys, except for the Red man, the boy surveyor began his work for Lord Fairfax. Two small slabs of foundation stone, encircled by the trunks of dead trees, are the only objects that remain to mark the site of the original Greenway Court.

In this outpost of civilization, standing near the rear of Greenway Court, the boy Washington recorded the findings of his instruments in the field. The building, known to folks roundabout as "Washington's Office", remains in good condition today. To the right is the "Powder Horn" where arms and munitions were kept to repel Indian attacks.

WASHINGTON WAS THE FATHER OF WEST POINT

His Dream of a Great Military Academy Will Be Fully Realized In 1932

Another project dear to George Washington will take on final form with the addition of 15,000 acres of land to the reservation of the United States Military Academy at West Point. The dedication of this additional land has been learned by the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, has been most appropriately set for next year, 1932, the two hundredth anniversary of Washington's birth.

Probably no military locality figured more often than West Point in Washington's mind during the War of Independence. He early had seen the importance of the Hudson River, and that waterway by the end of the war would have cut the Thirteen colonies in two. Command of the river by the patriots meant dominance of the military situation and was necessary to victory in the war. West Point was the key position on the river.

A full appreciation of this fact, Washington was commissioned in 1778 to plan fortifications for West Point. He would make it "the Gibraltar of the Hudson."

Washington, however, saw in West Point a utility to his army beyond its strategic importance. None was better than the commanding general's scarcity of well-trained men in his ranks, and the situation at West Point seems to have impressed him even then as a good one for the establishment of the needed military school.

Washington's recommendation, which was appointed a committee to draw up plans for such a school and to select officers not able to perform field service was organized in Philadelphia. In 1781 this body was to West Point "to serve as a military school for young gentlemen preparing to their being appointed to military regiments."

Congress had thus found time to honor Washington's idea, and such were the beginnings of West Point. Three rough buildings had been erected, to house a library, an engineers' school, and a laboratory. Preliminary practice in gunnery also was set up. That Washington had in mind the future development of West Point is shown by the fact that at Newburgh, in 1783, he laid before his generals further plans for a more extensive academy there, for artillerymen, engineers, and cadets. But not until after the War, when he was President, had he the time or the authority to give effect to his ideas.

In 1794, during his Administration, he recommended to Congress suggestions for the rebuilding of a school for thorough and complete military training at West Point. The school was not without its vicissitudes, however. A fire destroyed what Congress had already accomplished and the academy, as it then was, was wiped out and forgotten for six years.

Still, Washington's idea survived, and in 1802 President Jefferson took up the plan and rebuilt West Point. True to his own sense of the fitness of things, President Jefferson saw to it that July Fourth should be the date of reopening. On that day West Point as we know it today got down to its work with an enrollment of ten cadets. Since then nothing has impeded its work but cramped quarters and not always ample appropriations.

Certainly the American people have never lacked interest in West Point. Each year it is visited by more persons than any other Government military undertaking. Now the seventy-first Congress has authorized a move long indicated and urged, in order to carry out Washington's original purpose. General Washington had placed training in gunnery foremost in its teaching. At last, with 15,000 acres of additional land, the Academy is to have this needed artillery range, and also a training field for aviation. And no one will question the fitness of opening this new and larger West Point during the year when the nation pays its homage to Washington.

Thomas Jefferson's 188 Anniversary

In the picturesque and dramatic period just before, during and immediately after the Revolutionary War, there are probably but few figures who stand out in American history as does Thomas Jefferson, third president of the United States, and the most conspicuous apostle of democracy in America, according to the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

April 13, 1931, will mark the 188th anniversary of his birth at Shadwell, Albemarle County, Virginia. By a strange coincidence he died on July 4, 1826, the fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, on the same day as John Adams, the second president of the United States, and (with one interruption from 1795 to 1809) life-long friends.

No American of this time had such versatility or such diversified interests. Jefferson was asked to draft the Declaration of Independence because of his reputation as a writer. Adams thus tells the story: "He brought with him a reputation for literary science and the happy talent for composition. Writings of his were handed about, remarkable for the peculiar felicity of expression. It was the 'Summary View' which elicited the admiration of Edmund Burke."

Jefferson was a student of William and Mary College at Williamsburg, Virginia. In addition to excelling in other studies, he had a good knowledge, accomplished and very fond of music. Their married life was exceedingly happy, and Jefferson never remarried after her early death. Of six children, two daughters alone survived infancy. Jefferson was emotional, and very affectionate at home, and his generous and devoted relations with his children and grandchildren are among the finest features of his character.

In 1779, at almost the gloomiest stage of the war in the Southern states, Jefferson succeeded Patrick Henry of Latin, Greek and French, to which he soon added Italian and Spanish. He had an artistic temperament, loved music and was an exceptionally good violinist. He was proficient in outdoor sports, and an excellent horseman. Thoroughbred horses to him were a necessary luxury.

Soon after leaving college, he entered a law office, and after five years of close study, was admitted to the bar in 1775. His thorough preparation enabled him to compete from the first with the leading lawyers of the colony.

On January 1, 1772, he married Martha Wayles Skelton, a childless widow of twenty-three, very hand-

Henry as Governor of Virginia, being the second to hold that office after the organization of the Government. In his second term the state was overrun by British troops, and Jefferson, a civilian, was blamed for the ineffectual resistance. Most of the criticism of his administration was grossly unjust. His conduct being attacked, he declined reelection to the Governorship, but was unanimously returned by Albemarle as a delegate to the State Legislature.

From 1784 to 1789 Jefferson was in France, first under an appointment to collaborate with Benjamin Franklin and John Adams in negotiating treaties of commerce with European countries, and then as Franklin's successor as minister to France. He was exceedingly popular as a minister. During this time he assisted in negotiating a treaty of amity and commerce with Prussia and one with Morocco, and negotiated with France a "convention defining and establishing the rights and privileges of consuls and vice consuls."

When Jefferson left France it was with the intention of soon returning, but President Washington tendered him the Secretaryship of State and he reluctantly accepted. Alexander Hamilton was Secretary of the Treasury. These two men, antipodal in temperament and political belief, clashed with irreconcilable hostility, first on the financial proposals of Hamilton, which were adopted by Congress against the protests of Jef-erson, then on the questions with regard to France and Great Britain, Jefferson's sympathies being predominantly with the former, Hamilton's with the latter. They formed about themselves two great parties, which took the names of Republican and Federalist. The schools of thought for which they stood have since contended for mastery in American politics. The name Republican was dropped at the time of the War of 1812. In 1853 it was revived for a new party of very different political principles.

Jefferson was elected President, entering upon his duties March 4, 1801, and reelected in 1804. His administration was distinguished by the simplicity that marked his conduct in private life.

When, on March 4, 1809, he retired from the Presidency, he had been almost continuously in the public service for forty years. He refused to be reelected, for the third time, though requested by the legislatures of five states to be a candidate. Thus, following Washington's example, he helped to establish a precedent deemed by him of great importance for preserving a democratic spirit in the Presidency.

When he died, he chose for his tomb the epitaph: "Here was buried Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom, and Father of the University of Virginia."

Family Food Guide

Every meal—Milk for children, for all.

Every day—Cereal in porridge or mince, potatoes, tomatoes (or oranges) for children, a green or yellow vegetable, a fruit or additional vegetable, milk for all.

Two to four times a week—Tomatoes for all, dried beans and peas or corn, eggs (especially for children), lean meat, fish or poultry, or cream.

One of the most important and palatable of the ways of getting inexpensive foods and for reasons are indispensable to a balanced diet, according to the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. They can frequently make up the bulk of the meal, but the bureau for this purpose they must be used with vegetables, whether made with meat stock or not. With the addition of bread and butter such a meal or supper is satisfying and has added value of being suitable for children and adults.

The bureau advocates following, in far as possible, the practice of European housewives in their manner of using the appetizing soups, for which they are famous. They keep a pot on the back of the stove all the time, but the bureau continuously, but the bureau for then the vitamins will not be destroyed by heat and the valuable minerals that give flavor will not be evaporating. Into the pot put all water in which vegetables have been cooked, except the very green ones, as well as left-over meats and bones. With this as a foundation they proceed to develop many different kinds of soups, with the exception of the cream soups and clear the foundation of those soups that are made from meat stock. By slow cooking the flavor is extracted from the meat which, together with the mineral salts and soluble vitamins, is retained within the body of the soup. It is all eaten, with the exception of the bones, and even they have given up considerable nutriment from the marrow and cartilaginous portions before being discarded.

The extractives derived from soup meat are left in the liquid. They give flavor and are slightly stimulating. This means that most of the flavor has been taken out of the meat but a great deal of the nutritive value is left. Meat from the bones can be ground and served with the soup or used at later meals in combination with highly flavored foods, such as tomatoes, onions, and green peppers.

Of the two types of soups, clear and thick, the former's function in the diet is to stimulate the appetite and to improve digestion. But for the purpose of single dish meals, thick soups are all that need to be taken into consideration. They are the means of introducing into the menu a variety of starchy foods such as rice, noodles, tapioca and barley, the quantity of which increases materially to lower the cost of the diet. Surplus bread can be utilized in the form of croutons, and dumplings can be added.

Cream soups and chowders instead of being made with meat stock have milk as the basis for the former, and salt pork with or without milk for the chowder. With vegetables of all sorts, dry legumes, salt pork, dried, evaporated, or fresh milk, we have the means of providing soups of high nutritive value. When meat stock is used the bureau advocates the proportion of one pound of meat and bone to one quart of water. The shin-bone of beef with meat is one of the best cuts because of the large amount of marrow it contains. A knuckle of veal is necessary for jellied soups.

Some of the requisites for making vegetable soups are outlined by the bureau as follows: Cut meat in small pieces; saw or crack bone; soak meat and bone in cold water for 30 minutes or more before cooking; simmer for three to four hours; don't skim off the protein which coagulates and floats to the top as a brownish scum; add spices, herbs and vegetables toward the end of cooking period—allowing only time enough to cook vegetables until tender; cook stock quickly; keep in cold place and do not skim fat off until ready to use.

A Family of Seven

A family of seven, including father, mother and five children should buy every week: Bread, 16 to 22 pounds; flour, 3 to 4 pounds; cereal, 6 to 8 pounds; whole fresh milk, 30 to 42 quarts, or canned unsweetened milk, 30 to 42 tall cans; potatoes, 20 to 30 pounds; dried beans, peas, peanut butter, 1 to 3 pounds; tomatoes, fresh or canned or citrus fruit, 9 pounds; other vegetables (including some of green or yellow colors), and inexpensive fruits, 20 to 25 pounds; fats, such as bacon, butter, lard, margarine, salt pork, etc., 4 pounds; sugar and molasses, 5 pounds; lean meat, fish, cheese, eggs (8 eggs approximate 1 pound), 7 to 10 pounds; eggs (for children), 8 eggs; coffee, 1 pound; tea, ¼ pound.

The following recipes serve five persons.

Vegetable Soup

One large soup bone with meat (cracked), 3 quarts cold water, 4 tablespoons fat, 1 green pepper (chopped), 1 cup chopped onion, 1½ cups chopped celery and leaves, 1 cup finely diced carrots, 1 cup finely diced turnips, 2 cups finely diced potatoes, 2 cups tomato juice and pulp, 3 teaspoons salt (or to taste), ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Wash the soup bone and be careful to remove all small loose pieces of bone. Put the bone in a large kettle, cover with the cold water, and simmer for two hours. Remove the bone from the broth. Cook all the vegetables, except the tomatoes, in the fat in a skillet for about ten minutes, stirring frequently. Add the vegetables, tomato, salt and pepper to the broth and simmer until the vegetables are tender but not broken. Serve the meat with the soup or save it for hash or croquettes.

This makes a rather large quantity of soup, but it is equally good reheated and served another day.

Corn Chowder

One quart diced raw potatoes, 1 pint boiling water, 4 tablespoons diced salt pork, 1 onion (chopped), 2 cups canned corn, 1 pint milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley or celery leaves.

Boil the diced potatoes in the pint of boiling water for ten minutes. Fry the salt pork and onion for about five minutes, and add these and the corn to the potatoes. Cook until the potatoes are done. Add the milk and the salt and pepper, bring the mixture to the boiling point, and add the parsley or celery leaves. Serve very hot in soup dishes and place two or three crackers in the dish before pouring in the chowder.

Cream of Spinach Soup

One cup raw ground or finely chopped spinach, 1 quart milk, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons melted butter or other fat, 1 teaspoon salt.

If the spinach is ground, place a bowl to catch the liquid which runs from the grinder and add to the spinach. Heat the milk in a double boiler and add to it the flour and fat, which have been well blended, and the ground spinach and salt. Stir until thickened, and cook for about ten minutes.

Onion Soup Au Gratin

Six medium-sized onions (chopped fine), 2 tablespoons butter or other fat, 1 pint boiling water, 1 quart meat broth, 4 tablespoons flour, 4 tablespoons cold water, salt to taste, pepper, toast, cheese (finely grated).

Cook the chopped onions in the fat until yellow, add to the hot water, and simmer for twenty minutes, or until tender. Add the meat broth. Blend the flour and cold water, add some of the hot liquid, mix well, and stir into the soup. Add the salt and pepper, and cook for a few minutes. Pour the soup into bowls or soup plates, place on top of each a slice of toasted bread, sprinkle the cheese over the bread and soup, and serve at once.

orchards, which will be in full bloom. A trip down the new highway as far as Selbyville or Bridgeville will give one an opportunity of seeing these orchards.

Newark—A Town of Beauty

Now that Spring is rolling around again, when trees and shrubs are beginning to bud and release their small leaves over our heads, it is time for all of us to consider how we can make our town even more beautiful than it is now. For, while the long avenues of trees attract and hold our admiration now, a closer examination will reveal that Newark is in danger of losing many of these trees within a few years, and that with the loss of them, our town will lose much of its charm, its appeal, and its beauty.

The beautiful old trees lining South College avenue make that street one of the most attractive in the state, yet each year one or more of these trees are dying or are being broken down by storms, and no trees are being replanted in their place. The large trees along Main street have, in the large part, been cut down and removed, leaving the street with a rather glaring appearance. The trees on West Main street are rapidly going, and are not being replaced. Soon—in a few short years—Newark will lose, at the present rate, its most attractive feature, and will become like many other small cities—merely a group of houses, stores, and barren streets.

The beauty and attractiveness of a town is probably its greatest asset. Strangers in Newark remark on its beauty—its tree shaded streets and long avenues under archways of leafy boughs—its homelike homes, with green lawns, green shrubbery, colorful flowers, and tall trees. Should we allow our town to become impoverished in beauty?

Every citizen in Newark should take pride in our town, and should fight to maintain its charm. Home owners should make their homes and lawns small garden spots. Each property owner should protect the trees he now has, and should plant more of them. Civic clubs, organizations, societies and groups in general should unite in a program to keep our town growing in beauty each year.

Paved streets, water mains, and other material things are necessary in a town, of course, but Town Council could spend a sum of money each year in no better way than in preserving the attractiveness of the town. An appropriation of $500 or $1,000 a year for the next few years would allow for tree surgery, replanting and care so that Newark would be assured of its trees in the future. Each resident of the town should take it upon himself as a civic duty to express his approval to the Councilman from his district on any constructive plan for the caring of our trees by the city. Town Council should make it a duty for each property owner to do his share in keeping our town noted for its beauty. Every citizen should make every effort to make Newark a better and a more pleasant place in which to live.

The Conceited Driver

Conceit, which often finds expression in thoughtlessness, rudeness and selfishness, is considered of prime importance as a cause of automobile accidents, by Dr. Paul Schroeder, Illinois State Criminologist.

"An appreciation of the rights of others on the highways appears to be a more important qualification of a driver than even normal intelligence," he says.

Dr. Schroeder's opinion is backed up by statistics. He recently made a study in Detroit of 100 prisoners convicted of manslaughter with an automobile. Only three had serious physical defects, one was subject to epilepsy and one was insane. The old idea that anyone in good health and with reasonable mental qualifications can drive an automobile safely no longer holds water. The egocentric driver, disregarding all but himself, taking chance after chance, whether he be mentally a genius or a moron, is a constant menace to life and property.

A little old-fashioned courtesy, which amounts to regard for the rights of others, is the individual cure for the conceited driver. He presents a problem that must be solved as he is responsible for a large part of motor accidents.

The year 1931 opened with a record-breaking motor fatality toll—2,410 deaths in January, an increase of 30 per cent over January, 1930. Here is grisly proof of the need for thorough-going investigation into every phase of the accident situation.

History Can Repeat Itself

Last December the Treasury estimated a deficit of $180,000,000 at the end of this fiscal year, June 30. The estimate has been raised to $500,000,000 or more.

There seems to be three ways to meet this deficit: First, increase in Federal income tax; second, suspension of sinking fund payments for reduction of the national war debt; third, a slashing of public expenditures.

The seventy-first Congress appropriated $10,200,000,000 of public money during the greatest depression in nearly 40 years. Many states have followed the lead of Congress in appropriation expense records.

Minority blocs of voters and public officials have for the past decade sought to put the government into business at the expense of the taxpayer and private enterprise who must furnish the taxes to carry on government. Only in degree is the policy different from the Russian system which confiscates wealth and then finds itself without capital to carry on its activities.

In an editorial entitled "Enemies of the People," the Saturday Evening Post of March 28 says:

"In our opinion, the real enemies of the people are those who try to foist upon them added burdens of debt and inflation. We do not believe there is any opposition between sound finance and humanity. This does not mean that every banker or captain of industry who opposes extravagant legislation looking to an enormous increase in debt and taxation, is necessarily a wise man in all respects. There are short-sighted bankers and financiers. But the banker or prominent business man who has the courage to say 'No' when irresponsible headline seekers demand that the government appropriate large sums of money for whatever form of relief or job promotion happens to be on the front page at the moment, is performing a real public service which should be recognized and commended."

Our public men and public servants should be racking their brains to find ways and means to bring taxation, legislation and regulation back to normal along with commodity prices, production and employment.

Excessive taxation resulting from the craze for political privilege and power, has wrecked many industries and many nations, as history will prove.

EXPECT TRACK RECORDS TO FALL AT MEET SATURDAY

No less than four Delaware records will be endangered here Saturday in the dual track meet with Drexel on Frazer Field.

"Boo" White, the Blue and Gold's new sensational sprinter, who was largely responsible for placing Delaware near the top in the triangular meet with Swarthmore and St. Joe's last Saturday, will try for three of these records and has more than an even chance of beating them.

Preparations are being made for a large throng of spectators. The meet will be Delaware's initial appearance on its home field this year and hundreds of persons throughout the State have expressed their intentions of seeing the large collection of new material in action.

It is understood that members of the State Legislature will be invited to attend the meet so as to give them an idea of the work that is being done in this Department of Physical Education at the University.

able or possible in this day of swiftly moving events."

"Probably 97 per cent of potential criminals could become good citizens, if teachers, parents and communities realized the significance of helping children make wholesome social adjustments to their many perplexing problems."

In conclusion, Miss Peabody explained the organization of Parent Education classes in New York State which are recognized as outstanding.

Miss Etta J. Wilson, executive secretary, Delaware Parent-Teacher Association, who introduced Miss Peabody, reported for the State Program Committee which has this year presented for the first time a series of six Parent Education programs for the use of local associations.

The program of the Convention emphasized the State's new department of music, in order to give parents in attendance an opportunity to see the enrichment which music may bring into the lives of Delaware children.

Glenn Gildersleeve, director of the State's new music department, expressed his appreciation to the various Parent-Teacher Associations for the musical equipment which they had provided. Mr. Gildersleeve declared his firm conviction that Delaware children, given the opportunity, may become as musical as any children, although he had found a surprising lack of music appreciation in some of the schools which he had visited. Repeated expressions of delight on the part of parents were heard after the singing of the All-State High School Chorus which made its first public appearance, led by Mr. Gildersleeve, with Miss Helen Martin, State Supervisor of Music, accompanying.

State President Howard T. Ennis, in his report, plead "for the conservation of the fine group energy which has been a conspicuous feature of the one-teacher schools which are passing and merging with larger districts."

A significant report was submitted by Miss Elizabeth H. Menick, man of the "Summer Round," movement initiated by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, send every First Grader to time, is to participate in this movement.

Dr. A. C. Jost, who brought the Board of Health, promised to all the services of the Board, disposing of those who ask for carrying out the Summer Round. Dr. Jost declared that the health of the State could not be maintained without the whole-hearted cooperation of the people.

being that Samuel R. Boggs, of Philadelphia, was prevented by illness from being present at the Sunday afternoon session, and the address was delivered by Hon. John A. McSparran, of Pennsylvania, who was also the principal speaker Saturday evening.

An addition to the program was a short address Saturday afternoon by Dr. W. W. Davis, of the Lord's Day Alliance.

The address of welcome by Mayor Taylor W. McKenney, of Elkton, was brief but cordial and exactly to the point, and the address by Hon. T. Alan Goldsborough, on "Who Is My Neighbor," was inspiring and convincing.

The election of officers resulted in the re-election of the incumbents in the principal offices, including Milton A. Polster as President; Harold Day as Treasurer, Ralph Miller as Secretary, Howard C. McClintock as Executive Vice-President; and C. Ellis Deibert as Vice-President for the Northern Section.

The banquet was served Saturday evening by The Gleaners of the M. E. Church and the Westminster Guild of the Presbyterian Church in Elkton. Over three hundred persons enjoyed the banquet, which was a most excellent one and served with a promptness and efficiency which completely surprised the visitors, who were high in their praises of the treatment they received while in Elkton.

The principal address Saturday evening was by Hon. John A. McSparran, Secretary of Agriculture of Pennsylvania, and was one of the most eloquent and stirring appeals for the preservation of the Sabbath and the enforcement of law ever heard in this section.

Sunday morning visitors conducted services at the Methodist Episcopal and Presbyterian Churches, both of which were filled by congregations which enjoyed the Bible Classes and sermons.

The closing session was held Sunday afternoon, and was attended by upward of five hundred people. Mr. McSparran's lecture "What Price Power," was greatly enjoyed, as was the entire program.

Delegates and visitors left town full of praises for the reception they had been accorded, and the people of the town felt greatly inspired by having had such a number of earnest Christian workers among them.

The invitation to meet in Hagers-town next year was accepted, with recommendation that Salisbury be selected for the 1923 Convention.

AUTO LICENSE FEE REDUCTION IS NOT LIKELY

Automobile Club Head Urges
Motorists to Take Action
at Once

TWO BILLS OFFERED

With less than two weeks remaining before the Legislature adjourns, it seems that the plea for the reduction of license tags will remain unanswered unless the motoring public informs its representatives at Dover of the necessity for immediate action, according to a statement issued by Linnaeus L. Hoopes, Executive Secretary of the Delaware Automobile Association.

"The Association has prepared two bills on the reduction of the license tag cost for pleasure cars," says Mr. Hoopes. The first, which is known as House Bill No. 122, changes the basis of license fee computation from a weight to a horse-power standard. This would mean an annual average saving of 25 per cent to the motorist."

"It was feared, however," continued Mr. Hoopes, "that if House Bill No. 122 would be reported unfavorably, the bill might have been defeated because such a reduction would involve a change in the present system of registration. Consequently, in order to forestall such a decision, the Association presented a second bill recorded as House Bill No. 123 which requested a flat reduction from $2.00 to $1.50 for every 500 pounds or fraction thereof. This would assure a 25 per cent reduction to each motorist."

The statement also pointed out that such a reduction would not interfere with the highway construction program. In fact, even with the decrease of $1.50 on the operator's license, and a 25 per cent saving decrease on the license tags for pleasure cars, the income to the Highway Department from the operator's licenses, car licenses, and gas taxes will be greater in 1932 than it is today.

For the year 1924, the income from these sources amounted to $999,871.15. Six years later, in 1930, this income from the same sources amounted to $2,059,045.49, or more than double the amount collected in 1924. The average income for each of these years amounted to approximately $176,000.00 over the previous year. Taking this average increase as a natural increase for the coming two years—the income in 1932 would amount to approximately $2,587,000.00. The decrease to $1.50 on operator's license for 60,000 licenses would amount to approximately $90,000.00.

The taxes derived from pleasure cars in 1930 amounted to $636,215.00. A 25 per cent reduction would amount to $159,000.00. Taking both of these reductions into consideration, the income from these sources in 1932 would still amount to approximately $2,089,000.00, or an actual increase of $30,000.00. The biggest factor in this abnormal increase has been the gas tax. In 1923, $205,064.50 was collected. In 1930, $982,411.99 was collected, or an increase of 476 per cent.

The above information was taken from the state auditor's books and proves that the motorists taxes might be easily reduced.

GIVE SPRING PIGS GOOD START

By Dr. John M. Evvard

In building the superior ration for swine in the heart of swine-producing America, the basal farm grown feeds provide the bulk of the ration, and there are none superior to good old yellow corn, fed shelled or on the cob, with ground wheat and ground barley close competitors, from the standpoint of efficiency.

But all of the basic carbohydrates or starchy feeds are low in proteins, minerals and vitamins, hence they in themselves are insufficient for providing the kind and amount of nutritive elements that the porkers must have to prosper and make money. This means that the basic farm grain, whether corn, wheat, barley, rye, or dry land sorghums, or a combination of these, must be liberally fortified with a high-protein, high-vitamin, high-mineral supplement which is well compounded, rightly blended and properly mixed.

COW OF T. H. LITTLE BREAKS PRODUCTION RECORDS

All monthly records for butterfat production in the New Castle County Cow Testing Association were broken during March by a registered Holstein cow owned by T. Harold Little, of near Milford Cross Roads, according to the March monthly summary recently issued by County Agent E. Willim, Jr., which also showed that 19 herds of 449 cows produced an average of 680.2 pounds of milk and 30.03 pounds of butterfat each during the 30-day testing period.

Eighty-one cows in the association milked over 1000 pounds each with the highest producer giving 2217 pounds of milk, while 43 cows produced over 50 pounds of butterfat each during the first spring month. The Holstein herd of Wallace Cook, of Newark, and Boyd McCoy, of Summit Bridge, led the association with 1331.6 pounds of milk and 44.8 pounds of butterfat for each cow.

During the month the ten highest herds in butterfat production were: (1) Wallace Cook, Newark, Holstein, 44.8 pounds; (2) J. H. Mitchell & Sons, Hockessin, Jersey, 39.9 pounds; (3) Fred Stafford, Montchanin, Holstein, 39.1 pounds; (4) T. H. Little, Newark, Holstein, 35.4 pounds; (5) Wilson Price, Bear, Jersey, 34.2 pounds; (6) Fred Martenis, Elkton, Mixed, 31.85 pounds; (7) J. Wirt Willis, Bear, Jersey, 31.83 pounds; (8) John Mitchell, Hockessin, Holstein, 30.2 pounds; (9) Pusey Passmore, Wilmington, Mixed, 29.1 pounds; (10) Robert Walker, Hockessin, Holstein, 28.8 pounds.

In milk production these ten herds were leaders: (1) Wallace Cook, Newark, Holstein, 1331.6 pounds; (2) Fred Stafford, Montchanin, Holstein, 1099.6 pounds; (3) T. H. Little, Newark, Holstein, 1053.5 pounds; (4) Fred Martenis, Elkton, Mixed, 879.6 pounds; (5) George Danby, Bear,

Such a supplemental feed rounds out the farm grain from the nutritive standpoint, making it more efficient so that the pigs may grow more on a lesser number of pounds of feed per 100 pounds of gain. Such a supplement puts profitable pep into the ration because it provides those essential ingredients of animal nutrition which the pigs must absolutely have in order that they may "make the most of" the farm grown grains; healthier pigs and greater profits logically follow.

It is mighty wise to allow the pigs to have free access to good pastures during the grazing season. Whether the pigs are grown and fattened on pasture or in dry lot, it is eminently good practice to feed both the basic farm feed and the supplement in separate self-feeders; so that the pigs may joyously balance their own rations to their hearts' content as well as provide profit-making joys for the man who owns them.

Mixed, 873.2 pounds; (6) John Mitchell, Hockessin, Holstein, 853.7 pounds; (7) Robert Walker, Hockessin, Holstein, 789.0 pounds; (8) J. H. Mitchell & Sons, Hockessin, Jersey, 701.8 pounds; (9) Granogue Farms, Guyencourt, Mixed, 654.8 pounds; (10) Wilson Price, Bear, Jersey, 645.4 pounds.

Individual high producers of butterfat were owned by: (1) T. H. Little, Newark, Holstein, 106.2 pounds; (2) J. H. Mitchell & Sons, Hockessin, Jersey, 100.7 pounds; (3) Fred Stafford, Montchanin, Holstein, 90.0 pounds; (4) J. Wirt Willis, Bear, Jersey, 84.2 pounds; (5) J. Wirt Willis, Bear, Jersey, 82.3 pounds; (6) J. Wirt Willis, Bear, Jersey, 75.5 pounds; (7) Fred Stafford, Montchanin, Holstein, 70.9 pounds; (8) Fred Stafford, Montchanin, Holstein, 69.7 pounds; (9) J. H. Mitchell & Sons, Hockessin, Jersey, 68.5 pounds; (10) Fred Stafford, Montchanin, Holstein, 68.3 pounds.

The ten highest individual milk producers were as in the herds of (1) Fred Stafford, of Montchanin, who had the first, second, fourth and fifth highest; T. Harold Little, of Newark, with the third, eighth, ninth and tenth high cows; Fred Martenis, of Appleton, Md., with the sixth cow; and J. Howard Mitchell & Sons, of Hockessin with the seventh in the list. All of these high milk producers were Holsteins, with the exception of the Mitchell entry, a registered Jersey.

Another Use of Airplane

Lifeguards at Seaside, Ore., use an airplane in rescue work. The craft carries a torpedo to which is fastened a long rope attached to a life preserver. The crew drops the preserver to persons in distress, and the torpedo carries the line to shore, the method being quicker than boat rescue.

AN EASTER IN GREECE

Miss Elinor Wood Moose in her descriptive story of Easter time in Greece has splendidly succeeded in portraying that spirit which is so picturesque in Greece. The answer to the reality of an Easter Festival in Greece more than in any other part of the world, may be perhaps found in the fact that Christianity was nurtured, reared and maintained in the land for the last 2000 years and the best of its ideals have molded themselves in the very soul of the people. Easter time in Greece can be compared to Thanksgiving time in America when that unexplainable something of divine joy, of appreciation, of contentment and satisfaction becomes a happy part of our very lives.

What is Easter to us of the West?

A day of the first spring flowers, fragrance and beauty, a day of glad music, of brave messages of spring and hope, a day of new frocks and gay bonnets! This is the meaning of Easter to us of the West.

But in the faraway land of Greece, where the blue waters of the Aegean croon to the russet hills as they crooned through the ages past, where Olympus lifts its snowy peak in sparkling majesty, Easter is as real, as vivid as that first Easter of long ago when Mary Magdalene, upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning came unto the sepulchre and found the stone rolled away, the body gone and the Christ risen.

The first frail anemones are blooming on the russet hills when the forty days of Lent begin. No gaiety is there now among these gayest of people. Boiled vegetables and meatless days are their portion, and the churches are never without their burning candles as the forty days creep past and Good Friday is upon them.

That day all of Greece mourns. The nation's flag hangs at half mast, the streets are deserted. It is a day of death as it was long ago when the Christ took His last long way over the steep hill to Calvary.

All day in the blazing sun the Christ had hung there, upheld only by the pitying eyes of the women who had remained faithful even to the foot of the cross; futile, faithful women. His was not even the dignity of dying alone. His disciples had fled. His cup of bitterness and agony was full. At the ninth hour He had cried with a loud voice, "Father into thy hands I commend my spirit." The long day was over. The Christ was dead and at the sinking of that fateful sun, Joseph of Arimathea, a godly man and just, and the women who had loved Him in heartbreak and silence took the poor broken body from the cross. They bathed it and wrapped it in cloths of fine linen and as the shadows of night deepened they bore Him away in silence and laid Him in the tomb. The door was sealed with a mighty stone and the mightier arms of the Roman Empire and they left Him there on that Friday of long ago.

It is as vivid, as real as if it were yesterday, and the nation mourns. The Greek night falls swiftly, and now over all Greece each church, no matter how large or how small, in village or city, makes ready the funeral procession of our Lord. Not in silence and secrecy now, for all the people, high and lowly, tonight are marching in His train.

Far down the avenues of Saloniki one catches the first wailing notes of the funeral dirge. It is the procession of Saint Sofia, largest church of Macedonia. The lights of myriads of candles gleam fitfully on the brass instruments of the band which marches first, and from which come the wailing notes of the dirge. They gleam on the wreathed cross, borne aloft by the suppliant acolyte and on the notables of the city who follow—the Governor General of Macedonia, the Mayor, all are there.

To and fro, to and fro swing the incense pots in the hands of the Metropolitan and his bishops, dressed in their ceremonial robes of scarlet and gold. Very patriarchal they look with their flowing white hair and beards, very much the prophets of old.

But the eyes of the onlookers do not see the priests or hear the wailing of the dirge; they are fixed on the casket of the Christ. No lowly casket this, but a thorn triumphant, hung with heavy silk curtains, lighted with thousands of miniature lights and glittering with gold. In this thorn is borne the ikon of Christ as He might have looked when the compassionate Joseph took Him down from the cross. All eyes are upon it until it has passed from view, and behind it walk the entire congregation of Saint Sofia, each bearing aloft a lighted candle—an endless procession of fireflies.

The band ceases its dirge which is taken up by the choir and flung from a thousand throats—a wailing, haunting thing filled with the sadness of a nation that has known only grief. Slowly, majestically the procession winds its way to the church, which tonight is the tomb. The doors are open and reverently the favored few place the casket within. The doors are closed—the tomb is sealed. No one may enter for the Christ is dead. Very softly the bells of Greece take up their tolling.

Saturday dawns. There is suppressed excitement in the air. Full well each believer knows the old, old story and the yearly miracle of resurrection that comes to pass with the blooming of the anemone. Each household makes ready. The lamb, that has been bleating its heart away in the back garden, is sacrificed. Though there will be no food for the family this day, the kitchen is filled with tantalizing odors of roasting meats and baking cakes.

Men talk endlessly in the coffee houses and turn their beads. Children play unheeded in the streets. Small boys throng the sidewalks, selling trays of brightly colored Easter eggs and the hot cross buns and raisin rolls of the season.

Night closes like a blue curtain over the land. Protesting children are led away to bed, for the day has just begun. Very busy now is the housewife, setting her table for the feast. All is in readiness long before the lazy hands of the clock mark eleven. Then from out of the darkened doors stream the faithful on their way to the tomb; for it was very early in the morning—on the first day of the week that Mary Magdalene came unto the sepulchre.

The church is open and gleaming with candle light. But what is the Metropolitan saying? "The body is gone! The body of Christ is not here! Where is the body?" A cry goes up as one after another lights a candle and plunges into the darkness of the night to join in the search. For the Christ neither in heaven or on earth when all the furies of Hell are loosed.

The night is full of dancing lights of light as they search, but the light is not there and as the midnight toll over the waters of the bay the gather back at the tomb. The Metropolitan is coming out. His step is proud; his voice, deep and resonant is heard above the multitude.

"Why seek ye the living among the dead? The Christ is not dead, he is risen."

From the multitude rises the choir and the people go forth to a pean of thanksgiving. The people go delicious with joy and embrace friend and stranger alike, crying, "Christ has risen. He has truly risen." The ancient bells of Saint Sofia ring maddeningly, deafeningly, every church bell in Greece joins the clamor. The guns from the citadel of Yedi Kuli give to this the twenty-one guns. All have gone deafeningly, joyously mad.

Still the Metropolitan is standing and in his hand is a lighted torch, symbolical of the sacred fire of olden times. From this torch fresh candles are lighted, passing from hand to hand. It is over, though the bells keep up their clamor. It is long past midnight and one by one the faithful turn homeward, laughing, calling, and their candles are more points of dancing light. There is laughter and song in the night as stranger lights candles from stranger, for to him who burns his candle to the end with the sacred fire is prosperity in the coming year.

At home the feast awaits them. There will be the cracking of Easter eggs, end to end, and the making of wishes. There will be many meals after the weeks of boiled vegetables. There will be sweets, and always the thick, black Turkish coffee.

The last light has vanished, the last bell ceased its clamor, and another Easter has passed. For still Easter is as real, as vivid as that first Easter morning when Mary Magdalene upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, came unto the sepulchre and found the stone rolled away, the body gone; Christ risen.—The Ahepa Magazine.
