Council Can Erect Crossing Gates At Railroad's Expense

Section 42, Town Ordinances, Gives Town This Power. Street and Light Conditions to be Improved. Election April 10

SEWER COSTS

At the regular monthly meeting of the Council of Newark, held Monday night, it was announced by Mayor Frazer, that Section 42 of the town ordinances provided authority by the town to erect gates at any grade crossing, provided any railroad company did not erect such gates, within a period of two weeks after it was requested to do so by the town. The cost of erection and maintenance of such gates would be a bill due the town from the railroad and collectable by the town under definitely defined legislation.

As no word has been received from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company relative to their decision on the North College avenue crossing, a letter will be sent to the railroad company, carrying a copy of section 42 of the town ordinances, and requesting that an immediate answer be given to the Town Council as to what the company was prepared to do in the matter of the College avenue crossing. At a conference held February 28, with F. G. Hoskins, chief engineer of this division of the B. and O., the council was promised an immediate decision on this crossing problem.

Section 42 of the town ordinances reads as follows:

"The Council of said town shall have power and authority by ordinance to require the construction, erection, repair and operation of gates at all railroad crossings within the limits of said town, and in case any railroad company upon such request to construct, erect, repair and operate such gates (shall) for the space of two weeks after demand made aforesaid (refuse to construct, erect, repair and operate the same) the said council may have gates constructed, erected, repaired and operated, and the expense of the same shall be a debt due from said railroad company to said town and collectable from said railroad company by the same proceeding proceedings as are herein provided for the collection of amounts due from property holders for paving, etc., of sidewalks, by said council in front of property of said owners."

MOTOR COMPANY EXPANDS

Within thirty days the Dennison Motor Company will start construction of a modern, fireproof garage and showroom on the old Haines property on East Main street. The property will be purchased by the Dennison Motor Company from John F. Richards, present owner. The old house now standing on the property will probably be torn down.

The new building will measure approximately 65 by 100 feet and will include showroom, garage and service bays. The Dennison Motor Company, which has had unusual success during the past year as agent for Buick cars, has found it necessary to expand and to provide additional service facilities. In addition to the Nash cars it will also take the agencies for Cadillac and La Salle automobiles.

HEARING TONIGHT

There will be a hearing tonight, in Judge Thompson's office of a charge of assault and battery brought against Alfred Finkernagle by Amos J. Ely. The two men had an altercation last week which ended in a physical fight, in which Ely was knocked down and his glasses broken, but it is charged that he came on Finkernagle's premises, and was the original aggressor.

TWO FIELD FIRES

There was a field fire in a lot back of the residence of J. Pearce Cann, on Monday. Both machines of the Aetna fire company responded to the call, and the fire was quickly extinguished. At noon today the Aetna fire company was called to subdue a field fire in a meadow. There was no damage.

Town Elections

The annual Town elections will be held on April 10. This year the terms of four Councilmen will expire and these vacancies will be filled. The term of office of Mayor Frazer will not expire until 1929.

The two-year terms of Councilmen Grier, Handoff and Widdoes will expire this year, and the term of Councilman Lovett, who is filling the unexpired term of Councilman Buckingham, resigned, will also be complete. Candidates for these vacancies must file notice of candidacy ten days prior to the day of election.

The judges appointed for the coming election are R. C. Levis and Carl Rankin.

Conowingo Power Was Turned On Thursday

Second Largest Power Plant in Country Sent Out First Current 3 Months Before Expected

Last Thursday, promptly at one minute after midnight, power from the huge hydro-electric plant at Conowingo, Md., was sent to Philadelphia over 65 miles of high tension lines for the first time. Today this power is being used as a part of the Philadelphia Electric Company service, is running street cars, driving motors in mills and factories, lighting buildings and streets and in performing many hundred other services.

The big project, which is second only to Niagara Falls, and considerably larger than the much-discussed Muscle Shoals plant, is three months ahead of schedule and is all but completed. Two of the initial installation of seven units are now operating and the other five will be installed and will be operating during the next few months.

President William H. Taylor, of the Philadelphia Electric Company, issued the following statement:

"The great Conowingo hydro-electric project of the Philadelphia Electric Company is practically completed, three months ahead of schedule. On Thursday, March 1st, two units, of the seven that will shortly be in readiness, were placed in service supplying electric energy to Philadelphia.

"The metropolitan district of Philadelphia has witnessed an astonishing growth in its electrical energy requirements during the past few years—it will experience the greatest development in its history during the next decade. Hence in line with this company's practice of not only furnishing adequate electric service in the present, but preparing for future requirements, this great project was conceived, financed and promptly executed.

"The Philadelphia Electric Company is furnishing a reliable and exceptionally complete, well-balanced service to the community. The extent of this service and its importance to all of our citizens is better realized (Continued on Page 4.)

RUTH WILSON BROADCASTS

Miss Ruth Wilson, aged 7 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Wilson, played a piano solo, "The Hungarian Dance," at a concert given in the Gold Ballroom of the du Pont-Biltmore, by Prof. Charles R. Edwards, which was broadcast by station WDEL, Sunday afternoon. Ruth, who started her study of the piano when she was 5 years of age, is already an accomplished performer, and shows promise of exceptional talent.

SALE OF HOUSES

The Farmers' Trust Company reports the sale of the property comprising the double brick houses on South College avenue, owned by Mrs. R. J. Colbert, to Ralph Smith, of Christiana. Mr. Smith will take possession of his new property April 1. The houses are tenanted by Roy Whitney and Claude E. Phillips.

REMODELS APARTMENT

Louis Handoff has just completed remodeling the apartment on the second floor of the building occupied by the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company store. The apartment of six rooms and bath has had new floors laid throughout, and all the plastering in ceilings and walls has been renewed.

Spelling Bee Plans Are Finally Complete

Every Evening Statewide Contests Will be Held in Various School Districts

All is in readiness for the Every Evening Statewide Spelling Bee. The state superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Harry V. Holloway, of Dover, and David A. Ward, superintendent of Wilmington Public Schools, conferred recently, and final plans were made for the bee.

There will be elimination bees for Sussex county, Kent county, rural New Castle county and the city of Wilmington, with the final to select the state champion to be held in Wilmington.

The Sussex county final will be held at Georgetown, the Kent county final at Dover, the rural New Castle final at St. Georges.

Twenty spellers will compete in the statewide bee. There will be four representatives from Sussex county, four from Kent, four from rural New Castle, eight from Wilmington. These numbers are based on the proportionate number of children in the city and rural schools. The Delaware champion will be given a free trip by Every Evening, with a chaperone, to Washington, where he or she will compete in the National Spelling Bee. The winner there will be crowned the champion speller of the United States, and will be awarded $1,000. There will be $1,500 in additional prizes for the other contestants.

Firemen Meet

About fifty members attended the regular meeting of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company, held last Friday night in the Firehouse. Five new members, Loring Cordrey, John Cunningham, Jr., Waldo Lovett, Herbert Henning and Herbert Murphy, were taken into the company.

Mr. Fatsinger, a member of the State Forestry Department, addressed the firemen and asked them to cooperate with the Forestry Department in preventing and subduing forest fire. He told of the enormous damage done the state forests by fires, and the amount of time taken to reforest a burned area.

The fire company has reopened the school of instruction for members who wish to become familiar with the latest methods in fire fighting. The school meets every Monday night from 7 to 9.

Three new drivers were appointed at the meeting. They were William Clancy, Wellington Palmer and Alfred Ewing.

Beginning at the next meeting, Friday, April 6, the old fire bell which hung for years on the old firehouse, will be tolled at 7:30 every meeting night to call the firemen to meeting.

On Saturday, a bowling team representing the Aetna League will go to Bridgeton, N. J., to compete with the Bridgeton firemen. All members wishing to go are requested to sign up for the trip. This is a return engagement. Bridgeton came over here two weeks ago and was defeated by Aetna.

COLLEGE DANCES

The Phi Kappa Tau Formal which was held in Old College last Friday evening, was one of the most delightful dances of the season. The patronesses were: Mrs. Hulihan, Mrs. Dutton, Mrs. Manns, Miss Elizabeth Kelly, and Miss Beatrice Hartshorn. About seventy-five couples attended the dance.

The Derelicts, an honor society of the Senior Class of Delaware College, gave an informal dance in Old College on Saturday evening. The patronesses were: Mrs. Houghton, Mrs. George L. Townsend, Jr., Miss Rena Allen, Mrs. Bonham, and Miss Mary Gillespie. The dance was largely attended. Many alumni returned, and there were many Haverford and Lehigh students among the guests.

TO TALK ON AFRICA

Dr. L. Ernest Smith, a missionary from West Africa, will give an address with lantern slides, telling of his work there, at Pender Presbyterian Church, Glasgow, Sunday evening, March 11, at 7.30. Everybody is invited.

School Children To See Safety Films

Two Films Will Be Shown By Delaware Safety Council; Baking Prizes Awarded

The Delaware Safety Council is exhibiting before the school children throughout the State a one-reel motion picture film printed on safety stock entitled "How Jimmie Won the Game." This film, prepared by the Institute of Makers of Explosives, contains a fascinating plot and is designed to bring home to the children the dangers of playing with blasting caps. Blasting caps when properly used are important auxiliaries in connection with explosives, but when improperly used are dangerous things to handle and may cause serious injury or death to the child who plays with them. A recent survey conducted by the Institute throughout the Nation disclosed that approximately 500 children are maimed or killed annually by playing with blasting caps and that most of these accidents occur in rural districts. The Delaware Safety Council is, therefore, particularly anxious that the school children in the rural districts are afforded an opportunity to see this film.

The film has the approval of Dr. H. V. Holloway, State Superintendent of Education in behalf of the public schools, and of Bishop Edmund J. Fitzmaurice of the Roman Catholic diocese of Delaware in behalf of the parochial schools. It has been shown to many schools in Wilmington and in nearby districts and has been received with enthusiasm.

Chief Keeley Calms 3 Fighting Negroes

Chief of Police Keeley had an opportunity to apply his A. E. F. training, Saturday night, when he was called on to arrest three drunk and pugnacious negroes who were raising a disturbance on Main street in front of the residence of Daniel Stoll.

Arriving at the scene of the disturbance, Chief Keeley found John L. Johnson, Isaac Gaddis and George Fooks, all drunk and all disorderly. Gaddis and Fooks were standing on the sidewalk and Johnson was seated on the inside of the sidewalk. Keeley searched Gaddis and Fooks, handcuffed them together and put them in the custody of Harold Wivel, a bystander. He approached Johnson and was searching his pockets for weapons, when Johnson dealt him a heavy blow in the face and started a spirited fight for his liberty. The Chief, who earned a number of medals for wrestling and boxing when he was overseas, used only his bare hands, but in a few short minutes Mr. Johnson was a completely subdued and arrested colored man.

Keeley took his prisoners before Magistrate Thompson, where Gaddis and Fooks were each fined $10 for being drunk and disorderly and Johnson was fined $10 each on charges for being drunk and disorderly, and assault and battery on an officer. All three paid their fines and were released.

AETNA CARD PARTY

The committee on the card and bowling party, to be held in the Firehouse, tomorrow night for the benefit of the Aetna bowling alleys, reports that nearly fifty prizes have been donated by local business men, all of them useful and valuable. The first prize will be a ton of coal and the winners of the high scores in 500 and bridge will draw to see who takes it.

Title Games Tonight

Tonight at 7.30 o'clock, in the University of Delaware Gymnasium, the Newark High School girls will oppose the Caesar Rodney girls, and the New Castle High School boys will meet the Caesar Rodney boys to decide the semi-finals of the D. I. A. A. basketball championship. The four teams are respective winners in the Northern and Southern sections of the Northern division of the D. I. A. A. The winners of tonight's games will meet Laurel, Southern division winners, for the State championship, in Dover, on Saturday, March 17.

Attacked By Rooster

Miss Nora A. Lindell had a harrowing experience last Friday morning, when she was attacked by a large and pugnacious rooster, knocked across a ditch and, severely belabored by the enraged bird's bill and spurs.

Miss Lindell was on Cleveland avenue, on her way to work, when she received an unexpected and hard blow in the back, which knocked her off her feet and over a small ditch. As she fell she saw her assailant was an enormous rooster. The bird after knocking her down, flew at her legs and concentrated his attack on them. Miss Lindell finally managed to beat the bird off and make her escape.

The attack was entirely unprovoked as Miss Lindell had never seen the fowl before. It is thought that the feathers on Miss Lindell's hat may have caused the rooster to become envious.

Girl Reserves Work Of Great Benefit

Local Group Well Organized; Movement Highly Worthy of Support

There is an organization of young people in this state that is not as well known as it deserves to be. We refer to that branch of the Y. W. C. A. known as the "Girl Reserves".

The Girl Reserves is composed of two groups: one that corresponds to the seventh and eighth grades of our public schools and one of girls of High School age. The organization is non-denominational, non-sectarian. As the name implies these girls are the fresh source of supply of leaders for our great girl movement.

Any one familiar with the traits of young people knows that it is during this period of youth that the club instinct is predominant. The Girl Reserve movement is an effort to capitalize this natural desire for organization and to do for girls what the Boy Scout movement is doing for boys. Instead of forming cliques with no other object than having fun, which may degenerate into mischief or worse, these girls form circles which meet in wholesome surroundings, and with a purpose that challenges them to be and to do their best. For example, their slogan is: "I will try to face life squarely." Purpose: "To find and give the best." Code: I will try to be

Gracious in manner
Impartial in judgment
Ready for service
Loyal to friends
Reaching toward the best
Earnest in purpose
Seeing the beautiful
Eager for knowledge
Reverent to God
Victorious over self
Ever dependable
Sincere at all times.

Newark has a wide-awake group of Girl Reserves that meets at the homes of its respective members every two weeks. The programs for these fortnightly meetings are planned with a three-fold purpose in mind, namely, to help minister to the spiritual needs (Continued on Page 5.)

SNIPER SCARE

Newark had its own sniper scare yesterday morning when two windows were mysteriously broken in the home of John E. Lewis, on East Main street. One window was on the first floor and one on the second floor. No sound was heard except the shattering of the windows, and for a time there was considerable agitation in the neighborhood, for it was believed that a sniper was operating. However, an investigation by the State Police brought out fairly conclusive evidence that the windows were broken by air rifles in the hands of small boys, who were gunning for sparrows. None of the youngsters were apprehended.

COMMUNITY MEETING

There will be a community meeting under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association and the Delaware Citizens Association in the Assembly Room of the Newark High School on Tuesday evening, March 13, at 8 o'clock. There will be music by the Choral Club of the New Century Club and the School Orchestra. Every one is urged to attend.

New Pool Formally Opened Last Night

Delaware Defeats Temple In Dual Meet, Brown Breaking Back-Stroke Record. Special Tribute Paid Alex. Taylor for His Efforts in Behalf of Building

The new swimming pool, recently completed in the new addition to the gymnasium of the University of Delaware, was formally opened last night at the time of a dual meet with Temple University. The Delaware team, to show its appreciation of its new facilities defeated Temple, 34 to 24. Bill Brown, Blue and Gold ace, displayed special appreciation by breaking the Eastern Intercollegiate 150-yard backstroke record.

Invitations had been sent out to contributors to the fund for building the new addition, and a record crowd was on hand. Dr. Walter Hulihan, president of the University, gave a short address prior to the starting of the meet in which he paid special tribute to Alex Taylor, Wilmington engineer, who was responsible for the rapid completion of the gymnasium, and who gave much of his time and effort toward raising the money for building it. Dr. Hulihan also spoke of the work of the student committee, which had conducted the campaign for raising the funds.

James Wilson, president of the Student Council, presented Mr. Taylor with a wrist watch as a token of appreciation of the student body and the alumni. There has been much agitation to name the gymnasium, Taylor Gymnasium, inasmuch as Mr. Taylor's efforts are largely responsible for the new addition.

Delaware took the lead in point scoring by winning the relay. In the second event, fancy diving, Russo lost first place by an unfortunate error in calling the events. Reese won the 50-yard free-style for Delaware, and Taylor took the 440 with ease, leading his nearest competitor by two lengths. Nobis took the century, free-style.

AMBULANCE CALLS

On Saturday, a boy by the name of William B. Cullen, from Milford Crossroads, was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital in the Newark Ambulance by Edwin Shakespeare, Bert Crowe and Charles Tasker. The boy was suffering from a fractured thigh.

On Sunday, Mrs. Willard Wilson, living on the Lincoln Highway, was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital by T. J. Springle, Charles Tasker and Bert Crowe.

Yesterday, William MacAllen, of Snow Hill, Maryland, who has been a patient in the Methodist Hospital, Philadelphia, for several weeks, was brought to the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. L. Holloway, where he will remain until he has recuperated. Alfred Ewing, Edwin Shakespeare and Bert Crowe attended the ambulance on this trip.

KIWANIS DELEGATE

At the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Wilmington, held in the du Pont-Biltmore, last Wednesday, Arthur G. Wilkinson, president of the club, and business administrator for the University of Delaware, was elected delegate to the Kiwanis International Convention, to be held in Seattle, Washington, June 17 to 21. At the same meeting it was announced that the annual pilgrimage of the club to the University of Delaware would be made on April 21.

OFFICIALS CONFER HERE

Dr. Frank Cushman, of the Federal Board of Vocational Education, Washington, D. C., and Dr. R. O. Small, of Boston, Massachusetts, State Director of Vocational Education, are in Newark today in conference with Professor R. W. Heim, Delaware State Director of Vocational Education. They are on the program of the annual joint banquet of the Wilmington Vocational Trade Advisory Board, which will be held this evening in the du Pont-Biltmore.

AUXILIARY MEETING

The Women's Auxiliary of the Newark Parish will meet at the Parish House, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

ing. During the business meeting, notice was given of the visit of Harmony Grange to Center Grange this evening. A report was made that many members of Harmony Grange attended the meeting of Pomona Grange in Odd Fellows' Hall, Wilmington, last Thursday. A number of Kent county grange members also attended the Pomona.

The Grange voted that flowers should be sent to W. P. Peach, who has been ill with grippe.

The business was closed to admit visitors. The program, in charge of Miss Bell Chambers, included music by the orchestra composed of students from Krebs School, Newport. The players were directed by Mrs. McCoy, principal of the school, and their music was greatly enjoyed. The orchestra included four violins, one banjo, one mandolin, one harmonica, two drums and piano. Miss Grace Baird, of Wilmington, gave several recitations. The Grange gave the entertainers a rising vote of thanks. The Hospitality Committee served bananas and home-made cake.

Personals

Raymond Wivel is improving and is able to be out again.

William P. Peach, who has had la grippe, is better.

The condition of Heisler Chambers remains about the same.

Bancroft Peach and his dinner guest, Martin Pennington, visited Conowingo on Sunday.

Mrs. Buford Eastburn is spending some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Crossan, at Penny Hill.

Miss Helen Pennington was home from Morrisville for the week-end, and with her parents and brother, called on her grandfather, James H. Walker, at Mrs. Walter's Hospital, in Wilmington, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker Pennington, Mrs. Peach, and Bancroft Peach called on Dr. Garrison, who is a patient at the Homeopathic Hospital, on Sunday.

W. Paul Peach was home for the week-end.

The Young People's Society of White Clay Creek Church had a splendid meeting at the home of Miss Madeline Johnston, near Milltown, last evening. The next meeting will be held the first Tuesday evening in April, at 8 o'clock, at the home of John Murray, on Capitol Trail.

These books will be in circulation at the end of this week.

SALE CLOSES SATURDAY

The Eighteenth Anniversary Sale of the Louis Handloff Department Store, which has been running since February 24, will come to a close on Saturday night.

This has been one of the store's biggest holidays and prices have been cut to the quick in the way of celebration. Long before the event took place, special purchases for this sale had filled the shelves, and bargains had been planned that would be startling in their values. While the sale has been a tremendous success, the people of the community have taken advantage of the many

Book Britannica Has 160th Anniversary

The Encyclopedia Britannica—cradled in Scotland, developed in England and now being continued in the United States—celebrates its 160th anniversary this year.

The Britannica has evolved from what was first a series of unbound paper "numbers" or parts, whose first "bound" edition comprised but three volumes. The latest edition is in thirty-two volumes. Besides being an internationally accepted compendium of knowledge, the Britannica also represents one of the great romances of book-making.

In 1768 three far-seeing Scotchmen in Edinburgh, when that Scottish city was a famous seat of learning, were the joint fathers of the Britannica. Their sense of integrity toward their new "dictionary of arts and sciences" was so austere that one of the trio dropped out in a huff because the second edition was enlarged to include history and biography, refusing to be a party to such "jazzing" of the encyclopedia, according to the legend. This editorial honesty has been the aim down through the years and has helped the encyclopedia to keep faith with its original avowals of independence, non-partisanship and freedom from bias.

Places of Publication

Britannica's several stepfathers have taken it successively from Edinburgh to London, to Cambridge University and, during the World War, to New York. Now it is not only published in America, but is owned and largely supported by Americans, and this Americanization of the erstwhile British institution has been one of the most remarkable developments in its long career. The editorial direction, nevertheless, still remains British in the person of James L. Garvin, editor of The London Observer, who is editor-in-chief. Mr. Garvin is recognized as one of the trustworthy interpreters in Great Britain of the American point of view.

Another feature of Britannica its subscribers seem to dwell upon is its vitality. Though squaring itself to meet current requirement continuously throughout 160 years, it aims to be a living and growing organism. For example, material about the Civil War is reduced in space with the passage of time. Likewise, less will be carried about the World War as it affects fewer people. Also, when theories are exploded—as in medicine—they are dropped, new ones taking their place in the degree that they command support.

Selection of Authorities

Authors of monographs in the encyclopedia are chosen for their recognized knowledge; not merely for the weight of their names. Often, of course, names and knowledge are co-existent, which is to be expected. One of the favorite bits of Britannica history is the story of one of its authors, a department head with the United States Government whose fame as an authority was largely confined to his immediate speciality. When the encyclopedia sent its cheque for the ex-savings that have been offered during the period of the sale, exceptional bargains still remain in every department, and they will still be there up to closing time Saturday night; for as fast as the shelves were emptied of bargains, fresh stocks of merchandise were rushed in to make replacements.

Don't forget, Saturday night will close the sale and there are only three more days in which to take advantage of these unusual bargains. —Adv.

pert's monograph on this subject, he declined to accept any recompense. All his knowledge had been acquired in the Government's employ, he said, and he did not feel morally free to trade on it.

In the current edition Henry Ford was obtained as the best posted man to write on "mass production." Similar considerations governed the selection of Mme. Curie for radium, George Eastman for photography, George Bernard Shaw for socialism, and Gustav Stresemann for the Locarno Conference, to mention but five of the 2,500 contributors. This practice was merely holding to well established precedent. Sir Walter Scott laid aside "Waverley" to write on chivalry for one of the early Britannicas, and followed with monographs on drama and romance. Macaulay, Kingsley, Hazlitt, De Quincey, Sir John Herschel, Matthew Arnold, Peter Mark Roget, John Bigelow, Walter Besant, William Crooks, Henry Drummond, Edwin Ray Lankester, Goldwin Smith, James Bryce, John Burroughs, Cardinal Gibbons, John Hays Hammond and Sir Oliver Lodge are masters in their own field who did not resist the implied compliment of being asked to write for Britannica.

Reducing the Bulk

Another outstanding accomplishment in the career of Britannica, albeit more of technical interest, was the reduction in its size. When the growth of contents made the encyclopedia unwieldy, the editors utilized the thinner India paper made of flax, reduced the size of the pages themselves and reprinted the entire edition in a smaller compass. A way was found to save the expense of complete resetting by photographing the old pages and then making plates. As a result, the tenth edition compressed 50,000,000 words into thirty-five inches of shelf-space, as compared with the 30,000,000 words which made the ninth edition eight feet long.

The trio of original Scots who fathered Britannica were Colin Macfarquhar, publisher, Andrew Bell, engraver, and William Smellie, editor. Macfarquhar brought out the work; Bell helped finance it and did all the engravings, and it is often noted that his copper plates are superior to the average line work appearing today. Smellie, originally a proofreader, was employed to write many of the articles in the first edition and to prepare the whole work for publication. It was Smellie whose feelings were hurt by the later inclusion of history and biography, and who threw away his chance for a fortune in the form of a one-third interest Macfarquhar and Bell offered if he would remain.

Archibald Constable, of London, took over the publication with the fifth edition, paying between $65,000 and $70,000 in 1812 for all rights to Britannica. Constable failed in 1826 and the copyrights were bought at auction in 1828 for $30,750, and passed eventually into the sole control of Adam Black. The Black interest was in turn taken over by The Times of London, whence the copyrights and control passed to Cambridge University, about 1910. There the eleventh edition was brought out by the University Press. The twelfth edition in 1922 and the thirteenth edition in 1926 were brought out under American auspices.—N. Y. Times.

The Board of Directors of the Community Fire Company, North East, voted at their last meeting to purchase a second fire truck, as an added protection. This was deemed necessary owing to numerous calls throughout the surrounding country. The American La France Engine, type 91, was decided on, and an order given for the same, and delivery is expected about May 1.

Worried Over Finances Man Takes Life

With a .32-calibre revolver tightly clasped in his right hand and two bullet wounds in his body, Michael Lipman, aged 56 years, well known Elkton business man, was found dead on the floor in the kitchen of his apartment, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Death had been evidently self-inflicted and financial difficulties were advanced by his friends as cause for suicide.

Lipman conducted a men's furnishing store on Main street and lived in an apartment over the store. He did not employ any help and neighbors became suspicious when the store was not opened for business Saturday morning.

Climbing in through a second story window Chief of Police George Potts discovered the body. Lipman had been dead for several hours and there was a bullet wound in the temple and one over the heart. His funeral was held on Tuesday in Philadelphia.

Lipman, who came from Philadelphia, had lived in Elkton about 25 years and was well known throughout Cecil county. His wife died several years ago. He is survived by his mother, two brothers and a sister living in Philadelphia. He was a member of the Elkton Volunteer Fire Company.

Strickland Shot, His Wife Injured

Thrown Through Windshield In Crash While Taking Husband to Hospital

Suffering from a bullet wound in his throat and said to be in a serious condition, William Strickland, aged 35 years, of East Nottingham, Pa., is a patient at Union Hospital, Elkton, following a shooting affair at the restaurant of Joseph Gray, aged 32 years, about one mile from Rising Sun. Mrs. Strickland is also a patient at the same hospital suffering from numerous cuts about the head and face, the result of having been thrown through the windshield of their automobile when it collided with another machine. Gray is held in Elkton jail, awaiting the outcome of Strickland's injuries.

From what the police have been able to learn about the case, Mr. and Mrs. Strickland drove to Gray's home about midnight Sunday night. They are alleged to have asked for liquor. Gray told them he did not have any. An argument ensued during which Gray is said to have struck Mrs. Strickland. Her husband and Gray are reported to have drawn revolvers about the same time, but Gray, the police say, fired the first shot and the bullet struck Strickland in the throat.

Strickland's wife assisted him into their automobile, presumably to take him home or to a physician. She started to drive away and in her haste their automobile crashed into another car in which were riding four young men. Mrs. Strickland was thrown through the windshield in the crash. The occupants of the second car, which was badly damaged, disappeared.

Mrs. Strickland and her husband were found by occupants of another car and taken to the hospital in Elkton. The police were notified and arrested Gray.

Strickland's account of the affair is different from this. He says a friend of his and Gray got into an argument and he, Strickland, started to interfere when Gray shot him. Strickland denies that he had a revolver.

BILL SWAYNE HELPS WOODLAWN KEEP AHEAD

One hundred and ten shooters faced the traps of the Elkton Gun Club at the fourth shoot of the Pen-Mar League 1928 schedule on Saturday.

Although a strong northwest gale was blowing over the shooting ground which kept the scores far below normal, a few good scores were turned in. The Woodlawn Club increased its lead in the league race by winning the shoot with a score of 446x500. Rising Sun finished second with 434, Elkton, third with 431 and Oxford fourth with 411.

Wm. Swayne shooting with the Woodlawn Club topped the list of marksmen with 49x50. W. B. Cochran of the same club was runner up with 47x50.

A Sign of the Times

The Associated Press has sent out a notice to division points urging greater care in filing of crime news. The note to editors says that care should be used in not making it appear that general interest has been centered in some crime story, when the interest is largely local.—Editor and Publisher.

N. E. A. Meeting

Professor Ira S. Brinser, Superintendent of the Newark Schools, who was a delegate to the Convention of the Department of Superintendents of the National Education, held last week in Boston, has reported on the significance and the main points of the convention. His report follows:

"In size and importance the convention of the Department of Superintendents in Boston last week undoubtedly surpassed all other educational gatherings of the year. Nearly 15,000 educators from every state in the Union and from outlying territories were in attendance.

"True to American ideals, the department opened its convention with a service, which was held in six of the old historic buildings of Boston: King's Chapel; St. Paul's Cathedral; Arlington Street; Park Street, where 'America' was first sung on July 4, 1832; the 'Old North Church,' from which the signal lantern of Paul Revere was hung 'on the 18th of April, '75; and Faneuil Hall, 'the cradle of Liberty.'

"The themes of the vesper services were: Religion and Education; Responsibility of Church, School and Home; The Official or the Man; Good Will Among Nations; and Education that Glorifies the Commonplace. All these messages were given by presidents of New England Colleges; and through the week, President Lowell of Harvard, President Faunce of Brown, President Angell of Yale, Governor Fuller of Massachusetts and many other speakers discussed vital problems and current practices dealing with American Education.

"The colleges desire from the public schools," said President Lowell, "precisely what they themselves are trying to cultivate in their students, a greater sense of responsibility for their own education, and a willingness, nay a desire, to make the effort required to the best of their ability."

"Effort is indeed stimulated by interest, but interest is no less generated by work for most people are interested in that in which they bestow labor, and at least up to the point of fatigue—in proportion to the labor they bestow—the greatest of all interest comes from a sense of mastery." President Lowell's theme was: What the College Expects from the Secondary School.

"Speaking on 'What American Business Expects of the Product of the Schools,' Governor Fuller said in part, 'The public school should help the pupil to understand his obligations to his community of his life and is to be a part, and his duty to himself, as the English would put it, to "play the game."'

"A pupil develops his attitude toward the task of adult life exactly as he develops an attitude toward the tasks of the school. If a pupil, as a pupil, is slovenly in his thinking, it is difficult to see how he will develop at once the opposite characteristics when he goes out into business life. It simply can't be done." Continuing, he said, 'the school should at all times create a respect for all types of worthy work as well as to create a laboratory throughout the school in which the pupils actually practice daily work, daily thinking, decisions and judgments through properly planned tasks and problems.'

"The year book of the Department of Superintendents is devoted to a constructive study of the high school and its place in American Education. The fundamental issues considered are: the needs of American youth; the objectives of secondary education; an analysis of curricula found in American Secondary Schools; problems of the small high school; courses for pupils not going to college; relationship between school and college; college admission requirements in relation to curriculum revision; school counseling evaluation of extra-curricular activities; and the high school teacher.

"Researches as to better ways of organizing, teaching, and measuring the results of high school education are presented for all subjects in the high school curriculum. This probably is the most valuable phase of the book for it presents a thoroughgoing investigation of affairs as they are, and deals with desired ends to be attained by constructive measures as actually practiced in the best schools of the country."

"An especially helpful phase of the convention was the living exhibit which was in progress morning and afternoon, showing the finest and best things which the schools of Boston and vicinity in more than thirty different fields of public education."

HEAT FROM COLD LUNCHESES

Food need not be hot to give heat. This statement is one of vital importance to the thousands of women who find it necessary to provide school lunches for their children. Children are active little bodies, and so need relatively large amounts of fat and starches and sugars.

Prepared Fish Sandwiches

That is one reason why the omnipresent sandwich is so satisfactory. Its bread contains starch; the butter or mayonnaise, fat; and the filling provides other needed elements. But sandwiches get to be an old tale in time; so for variety some of the prepared fish are delicious. Sardines are perhaps the best known. They are packed in oil, tomato sauce, and mustard, thus providing a variety of their own.

Meat, fish, and bean loaves can easily be sliced and wrapped in waxed paper for the luncheon. Salmon loaf, because of its white sauce and egg is unusually nutritious, and, more than that, it is well liked. Sliced meat and any fowl can well be packed without the protection of bread if wrapped in wax paper.

Desserts and salads are particularly desirable occupants of the lunch basket because they afford an opportunity for the use of vegetables, fruit, and milk. Gelatin salad made with the ready-mixed fruits or vegetables that come in cans looks so pretty in a glass container, and tastes so good, too, that the child is delighted to eat it. Fruit custards, too, are excellent and can be made all year around now that so many healthful fruits are canned.

tion of Louis Handloff, owner of the Newark Opera House, and Prof. Ira S. Brinser, principal of Newark public schools, the children of Newark will have an opportunity to see this film next Friday, March 9. At the same time another film of the Council's, "Resuscitation" will be shown. This film tells the hazards incident to victims of electric shock, drowning, gas asphyxiation, poisoning, and carbon monoxide.

This morning, at assembly, Mr. Robert E. Fletcher, local manager for the gas company, awarded prizes to the girls in the home economics department of the junior and senior high schools. Three prizes were awarded to each class for samples of baking submitted in a contest sponsored by the gas company. The prizes in both cases were $5 for first, $3 for

THE ART OF SEEING

The painter will produce pictures of little merit if he takes the works of others as his standard; but if he will apply himself to learn from the objects of nature he will produce good results. This we saw, as the case with the painters who came after the time of the Romans, for they continually imitated each other, and from age to age their art steadily declined.

After these came Giotto, the Florentine, and he—reared in mountain solitude, inhabited only by goats and such like wild beasts—turning straight from nature to his art, began to draw on the rocks the movements of the goats which he was tending, and so began to draw the figures of all the animals which were to be found in the country in such a way that after much study he not only surpassed the masters of his own time but all those of many preceding centuries. After him are again declined, because all were imitating paintings already done; and so for centuries it continued to decline until such time as Tommaso the Florentine, nicknamed Masaccio, showed by the perfection of his work how those who took as their standard anything other than nature, the supreme guide of all the masters, were wearying themselves in vain. Similarly I would say as to these mathematical subjects, that those who study only the authorities and not the works of nature are in art the grandsons and not the sons of nature, which is the supreme guide of the good authorities.

Mark the supreme folly of those who censure such as learn from nature, leaving uncensored the authorities who were the disciples of this same nature!—Leonardo da Vinci.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

PLACE CREDIT WHERE IT IS DUE

Newark, Del., March 6. We may lay emphasis on the various officers and well conducted affairs of our Town. This would be a lengthy article should we single out separately the problems our Town Fathers have to contend with. However, we feel as citizens some thought and appreciation should be credited to our water system. We know through untiring efforts of our water committee they are responsible for a healthy, sanitary supply of water. A visit to the city pumping plant should be sufficient evidence of sanitation. We find this an immaculate plant, and well conducted under the supervision of Arthur Sagers, who takes great pride in beautifying. We find the equipment well cleaned and attractively painted. A large American Flag floats over the machinery, showing the spirit of confidence and loyalty to safe-guard the purity of our greatest stimulant—Pure Water.

A Citizen of Newark.

Knowledge is the distilled essence of our intuitions, corroborated by experience.—Elbert Hubbard.

The Minister's Task

"It must be hard to please so many." It is always interesting to hear another person discuss your work. To see yourself in action through the eyes of other people is often helpful, sometimes disconcerting and occasionally amusing. The best of us get into ruts, although we may feel we are moving along in a fairly wide plain. Friendly criticism is valuable, and a man who makes progress has a ready ear for it. You will often realize that your critic does not understand your problems; for real problems are seldom superficial. The minister can rarely give the plumber any valuable trade advice. Sometimes your friend will drop a remark that reveals he does not understand your task at all; that he hasn't been behind the scenes or sensed the big task of your work.

Not so long ago I was sitting on a box with a good friend. It was his box, and we were discussing his work and the future that seemed to be opening. If I made any remarks that were born of ignorance it was his own fault for he was asking me questions and soliciting my opinions. But if so, he returned the compliment; for on that same box he discussed my work and problems. It was interesting for it was a revelation of the misconception an intelligent man, a member of the Church, can have about the task of a minister. He had not the slightest idea of the magnitude of the pastoral work, the task that presses upon every square inch of the pastor's soul with the consistency of gravitation. He thought the pastor's task was for the most part limited to Sunday; six days of rest after one of labor! But perhaps his most vital misunderstanding was revealed in the remark, "It must be hard to please so many people." I suppose he had been hearing some criticism, that bit of condemnation or withheld commendation which forms so easily in public speech about public men. It had aroused sympathy in his mind for me; my task was so impossible!

He seemed surprised, perhaps a bit shocked, when I told him I did not try to please people; that it had never appealed to me as a thing to be done. "Men-pleasers" is not a term synonymous with servants of Christ. It would be a task suitable for some sort of superman who could be all things to all people and please everybody. But surely the Head of the Church never gave any such motive. Think of Paul trying to please the people of Corinth, or Phillips Brooks trying to please the people of Boston. Think of any minister anywhere with any such motive. The minister fortunately has but one to please. That fact is the minister's secret of a happy pastorate. It was Paul who said, "If I please men I should not be the servant of Christ." Any minister who seeks to please others than Christ is the prophet of some false god. I have wondered whether it was this danger that Jesus had in mind when he said, "Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you." Surely there is nothing in His commission about pleasing people, few or many.

Yours for pleasing Him,
—Wm. M. Curry, Pastor Ninth Presbyterian Church, Phila.

of Delaware avenue asking that the drainage system at South College avenue and Delaware avenue be changed to take off surface water that backs up after every storm. The matter was referred to the street committee with instructions to rectify the condition as soon as possible.

Several applications for rebates for curbing were read, and it was decided that applicants should present original bills for curbing and that measurements be made of curbs in question. Where the curb was in proper condition, $1.00 per foot will be allowed, excluding driveways.

The secretary was instructed to write Guy R. Ford to replace or remove a real estate sign that has blown down on the lot opposite Leak's garage.

It was announced that the Town election would take place on April 10, and C. R. Lewis and Carl Rankin were appointed judges.

Mayor Frazer reported that the lights on Orchard Row were not satisfactory, and Councilman Wilson replied that as soon as cable that was ordered, had arrived, the condition would be improved.

Councilman Lovett reported on two residences on South College avenue, which had no sidewalks. Thomas Spence, the owner of one property, was quite willing to co-operate and promised to have a sidewalk put down as soon as weather conditions would permit. In the meantime, he agreed to put down a path of cinders. Walter Fulmer, the other property owner, was not inclined to do anything and seemed to feel that Council would be unreasonable in expecting him to. If the Council puts in a curb, it can lay sidewalk itself at the property owners expense. It does not want to curb this section of South College avenue, as a curbing would kill many of the beautiful shade trees lining the street.

The treasurer reported a balance of $2,900.12 in the treasury. Alderman's fees amounted to $6.00.

Sewer Costs

It was announced that the costs of the new sewer system had been made public. The total cost has been $61,672.39. The total assessable footage is 33,336 feet, making the cost per foot $1.85. The itemized statement is as follows:

Conowingo Power

when we consider that on it depend such vital other utilities as transportation, telephone communication, illumination of the city street and high pressure water supply and, also, that our service furnishes the power for a very large percentage of all industry in the Philadelphia district and furnishes illumination and electrical labor-saving facilities to 90 per cent of residential homes.

"The Philadelphia Electric Company, as an organization, realizes fully the responsibilities and obligations which such a tremendously vital service entails, and it is our desire always to maintain this service at the highest possible point of efficiency."

Result of Wartime Expansion
Conowingo typifies the tremendous growth of Philadelphia. During the World War one station, Schuylkill, provided the bulk of the power for the big munition and ship-building plants along the Delaware river. A month before the Armistice one of the units at the new Chester station went into operation. Since then three more units have been added to Chester, the Delaware station with six units has been built and the first building unit of the huge Richmond plant, which when it was started, was to have been the largest steam generating plant in the world, has been built. This gives a total steam generating capacity of 541,000 kw. And now Conowingo goes on the line. Philadelphia can well boast of having the finest electric service of any section of the country, and Wilmington, through the Delaware Electric Power Company, now linked with the Philadelphia Electric through the U. G. S. will be greatly benefited thereby.

Work on the Conowingo plant was started on March 8, 1926. The initial installation will be seven 54,000 hp. water wheels or a total of 378,000 hp. with an eventual installation of four additional units for a total of 594,000 hp. It is expected that this initial installation will provide about 1,150,000,000 kw. annually from water power.

The pool formed by the dam ranges in depth from 100 feet to normal river depth. It covers an area of nearly 9,000 acres, impounding about fourteen billion cubic feet of water, varying in width from a mile at the dam to a few hundred yards fourteen miles upstream where the pool starts. The dam, which is of gravity type, is 4,630 feet or 7-8 of a mile between abutments, with a spillway section 2,385 feet long.

The height of the water is 59 feet between the normal pond level and the normal tail water level. Although the dam and powerhouse are in Maryland about half the pool is in Pennsylvania.

Girl Reserves Work

of the girls, to engage in some interesting form of hand work, and to satisfy the play instinct. Mrs. M. M. Dougherty, of Orchard Road, won the hearts of the girls when she taught them to make artistic flowers from felt and yarn. The next project will be mentioned in a later article.

The meetings are planned and conducted by the girls and the projects of the club, such as getting together materials for a Christmas basket for a needy family, are carried out by them. There is an adult advisor in the background who attends the meetings and is ready to render service when the girls want it.

To carry on this work successfully requires trained leadership. This we have for rural Delaware in the person of Miss Martha Good. She gives herself whole heartedly to the work. It is due to her wise direction and power to impart inspiration that the work in the state is a success.

Her office can not be maintained without funds. The work is entirely dependent on the generous support of all friends of the girls. The campaign to secure funds for the maintenance of this work will be put on and completed within the next two weeks. Newark is very desirous of reaching its quota this year. If this is accomplished the friends of this organization must be as generous as possible. If any of the collectors pass you by won't you send your contribution to or notify Mrs. George L. Townsend or Mrs. W. A. Wilkison. Money invested in noble minded youth is the best possible security—it secures the nation of tomorrow.

Spelling Bee Plans

the supervisors. The supervisory districts are as follows:

Northern Sussex—Includes Greenwood, Bridgeville, Lincoln City and Ellendale and the rural schools of that section, under Supervisor E. Paul Burkholder.

Southwestern Sussex—Includes Seaford, Delmar, Laurel, Bethel and the rural districts adjacent thereto, under Supervisor Calvin E. Afferbach.

Southeastern Sussex—Includes Georgetown, Lewes, Millsboro, Dagsboro, Selbyville, Lord Baltimore and the rural schools adjacent thereto.

Northern Kent County—Includes Smyrna, Clayton, Cheswold, Hartly, Leipsic, Little Creek and Caesar Rodney and the schools adjacent.

The Southern district of Kent includes the rest of the county.

Quota for Each County

There are two districts in rural New Castle county, the Eastern and the Western. Miss M. Phyllis Mason is supervisor of the Eastern district, and Miss Ella J. Holley is supervisor of the Western district. The Pennsylvania railroad line downstate is, for the most part, the dividing line of the two districts.

Fourteen spellers will compete in the bee for Sussex county. There will be a first and second winner from each of the four special districts, and a first and second from each supervisory district.

Fourteen spellers will compete in the Kent county final. There will be a first and second winner from each of the five special school districts and a first and second winner from each of the supervisory districts.

Twelve will compete for the rural New Castle county final. There will be a first and second winner from each of the four special districts and a first and second from the supervisory districts.

The superintendents of the special school districts will be in charge in each district. These districts are as follows: Caesar Rodney, Claymont, Alexis I. du Pont, Dover, Georgetown, Harrington, Laurel, Lewes, Milford, Newark, New Castle, Seaford, Smyrna.

The rural supervisors will conduct the bees in their districts, while the principals of the Wilmington schools, under Mr. Ward, will be in charge in the city.

BAKE

The fourth of a series of bakes which have been arranged by the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held on Saturday at the Gas Company's Office, beginning at ten-thirty in the morning. Mrs. J. Frank Elliott will be chairman and will have for sale home-made cakes, pies, breads, candies, potato salad, and cole slaw.

Newark Girls Defeat New Castle For Title

Win Northern Section Championship; Will Play Caesar Rodney Tonight In Semi-Finals; Newark Boys Lose Extra Period Game To New Castle

Last Wednesday night, in the Newark Armory, the Newark and New Castle High School teams fought it out for the basketball championships of the Northern section of the Northern Division of the D. I. A. A. The Newark girls clinched the championship by beating the New Castle girls rather easily, 33 to 16; while after a bitter extra period struggle, the New Castle boys nosed the local boys' team out, 26 to 25.

The Newark girls won all the way and had little trouble in scoring their second defeat of New Castle. They will play for the Northern championship, tonight in the University gym, when they will meet Caesar Rodney. The New Castle boys will play the Caesar Rodney boys for the Northern title at the same time. Ann Chalmers was the star of the New Castle game, scoring 11 field goals and 5 fouls for a total of 27 points.

The boys' game was hotly contested from the first whistle to the last. New Castle, with an undefeated team, was the heavy favorite, but Newark put an inspired team on the floor to match riper experience. The game seemed all the way. First one team held a lead of a point or two and then the other. At the end of the second half the score was tied, 24-24, and the teams played an extra five minute period. The game was finally decided on fouls, New Castle making good two in this period, while Newark caged only one. Bridgewater starred for New Castle, making 11 points; while honors were evenly divided among the Newark players, Newcomb, with 8 tallies led his mates in the scoring. Scores:

Delaware Loses Final Game To Haverford

Blue And Gold Leads For Three-Fourths Of Game; Is Nosed Out In Final Minutes

The University of Delaware basketball team closed its season last Saturday night on its own floor, by losing to its traditional rival, Haverford, 32 to 25. Up to the last few minutes of the game it looked as if Delaware would close what would have been a successful season with victories over both its deadliest foes, Swarthmore and Haverford. The Blue and Gold had downed Swarthmore the preceding Saturday, and in its final game was leading Haverford up to the closing minutes of the struggle, when Haverford sprung a surprising rally that took Delaware flatfooted and won the game by a generous margin.

The first half ended 14 to 10 in favor of the Blue and Gold, and Delaware continued to hold the lead through the first half of the second period, but while Delaware only scored three from the field in the last half, Tripp, of Haverford, in a barrage on the basket yielding him four two-pointers, while his teammates contributed 5 more field goals.

In a preliminary game, Beacom College walloped the Delaware Junior Varsity, 26 to 17. Scores:

Delaware Swordsmen Lose To Lehigh, 9-6

Blue And Gold Team Makes Excellent Showing Against Seasoned Rivals, First Delaware Team In 15 Years

After a lapse of fifteen years, the University of Delaware revived fencing in its first match, held in the Delaware gym, Saturday afternoon, lost to Lehigh, 9 to 6. The Delaware swordsmen made an unusually good showing against Lehigh experts, who have been well seasoned through competition.

Lieutenant Colonel Robert W. Carswell, who is coaching the Delaware team and who was director of the meet Saturday was a member of the 1912 team and since then has gained a wide reputation in fencing. There was a fairly large crowd in the gymnasium to witness the meet and judging from the interest displayed, the sport promises to become popular here.

Lehigh has already defeated Lafayette and Rutgers teams this season so the showing made by Delaware is encouraging to the local team.

The fencing of Captain Williams of the Delaware team was a feature of the meet. Williams not only won four of his team's points but won three of the foil bouts, defeating Captain Bent, who is also coach at Lehigh and rated one of the best swordsmen in college ranks. The only defeat that Williams suffered was in one of the epee bouts which was won by Adams, but Williams defeated Schwitter, of Lehigh, in another epee bout.

"MY BEST GIRL"

Mary Pickford is to be seen at the Arcadia Theatre, Wilmington, for the entire week of March 12th, in the picture of Kathleen Norris's story, "My Best Girl."

It is significant that Mrs. Norris wrote the story first for Mary Pickford and then for publication. She and Miss Pickford worked together on its production and the result is that "My Best Girl" has all the original Norris romance plus the Pickford charm.

"My Best Girl" tells of a little shop-girl, nothing but an errand girl in a cheap department store who has an unfailing good-nature and is the favorite of all who know her. There comes to work in the stockroom at the business a handsome young fellow about whom there is a certain air of mystery. Naturally the two fall in love in one of the sweetest romances that can be found in an age that seems to laugh at sentiment.

Charles Rogers is lead opposite Miss Pickford.

At the White House (1813)

This morning I spent at home, expecting a half hour, which I enjoyed at Madame Bonaparte's. I dined with Mrs. Lear, with Mrs. Custis and Mr. Lear. I had a pleasant time and received friendly attentions. After dinner I returned, and went with my father to be introduced to President and Mrs. Madison. We were shown upstairs to his room, and found him reclining on a settee or couch.

Mrs. Madison is very handsome, of an elegant form and dignified deportment, has a fine complexion high and delicately colored. I sat with Mrs. Madison all the eve and found her of elegant manners, accomplished and easy, and at the same time, possessed of that pleasing dignity which will always command the esteem and respect of every person. She treated me with friendly attention, and more like a son than a stranger. I in turn studied to be polite and attentive and when she had prepared the refreshments, always handed them to the President. I was soon informed by her, that I was second cousin to her, and felt highly honored, and peculiarly favored in being related to a lady, who is not rivalled in excellence and worth. Engaged in the most friendly and pleasing conversation I remained until after nine, with my father, who to my joy, conversed with Mr. Madison. Mr. and Mrs. Cutts, (sister to Mrs. Madison and who resides with her at present) and Mr. Monroe were also with us. Mrs. Cutts showed me the whole house, and likewise gave me an account of everything that related to the family. Mrs. Madison also entertained me with an account of her levees, etc., etc., of similar things, and promised to show the colours taken at Fort George, the next morning, if I would call. In this delightful manner I spent a long eve, and then returned to compare this family to the accomplished and amiable Wilsons. Mrs. Madison was dressed in a yellow silk gown, (or garment whose name I do not know) rather loose and plain, and wore a neat bonnet or hat made of silk and was very plain. She had a cravat around her neck, and spangled (I believe) cloth shoes.

The President's house is a perfect palace. You enter the front door, and are at once in a large hall, which is an entry, etc. Pillars of immense size are dispersed through this; and it is handsomely furnished, etc., and has large lamps for the whole length. On the side opposite to the entrance are doors opening to four rooms. The corner is the dining room and is very spacious, and twice the height of modern parlours and three times as large. This is furnished in the most elegant manner, and the furniture is so large, that Mrs. Custis says, the sideboard would cover the whole side of a large parlour. . . . This room opens by a single door into Mrs. Madison's sitting-room which is half as large. This furnished equally as well, and has more elegant and delicate furniture. Her portrait is here seen. This room, in the same way, enters into the drawing-room, which is an immense and magnificent room, in an oval form, and which form is preserved in those above and even to the cellar. A door opens at each end, one into the hall, and opposite, one into the terrace, from whence you have an elegant view of all the rivers, etc. The windows are nearly the height of the room, and have superb red silk velvet curtains which cost four dollars a year. The chairs are wood painted, with worked bottoms and each has a red velvet large cushion. They are arranged on the side, and are divided into four divisions by sofas. These three rooms are all open on levee nights.

Next to the drawing-room is the President's sitting-room which has no communication with the former and opens to the hall. This corresponds to Mrs. Madison's parlour, and is handsomely furnished. This opens to his cabinet which I did not see. The cabinet is divided by a temporary partition from the grand council chamber which runs the whole breadth of the house, and is more than twice the breadth of common halls. This room is unfinished. Opposite to the dining room is one of the same size for the private secretary, and between that and the door one smaller for the porter, who is always at the door. Lengthways of the house, and through the hall, is a walk, which extends on a terrace at each end for some way. A staircase, arched to admit of this walk, ascends at one end, and this is the grand staircase. It is in the form of an U and has stairs on each side, meeting in the centre. Through the second story is a hall or entry and this opens into all the rooms, which are more numerous and smaller than the lower rooms. The President's communication with others, and this is all the information I can give of the inside of the house.—From "The Diary of Elbridge Gerry, Jr." With Foreword by Annette Townsend.

CLOVER CAMPAIGN

A sweet clover for pasture campaign has been started again in New Castle county for the coming year. This announcement was made recently by Acting County Agent Ed Willim, Jr., of Newark. The campaign for the increase planting of sweet clover pasture will be in the form of letters with advice on the sowing and use of this pasture to all of the dairymen of the county. This will be supplemented also by personal visits to men intending to seed this spring.

Sweet clover pasture is one method of reducing the cost of producing milk. This pasture will carry about twice as much stock on it as the ordinary rotation pasture. It will also last during the year much better than the ordinary pasture which is usually very short during the latter part of July and the month of August. A reduction of 1 cent per quart in the cost of producing milk is the same as an additional cent per quart when the milk is sold.

The second letter, which will go to the dairymen within a few days, will give information on the method of seeding this clover. Sweet clover should be seeded in the wheat just as soon as the farmer can get on the ground. Some times it is sown before the ground thaws out in the spring, and when sown in this manner the seed gets into the ground through the cracks in the soil. The usual application is from 15 to 20 pounds per acre. Before the seed is sown it should be inoculated. Either the soil or pure culture method can be used in inoculating the seed. On most of the farms lime will also be needed before a proper stand of the clover will be secured. About 800 pounds of hydrated lime should be applied before the seed is sown.

The County Extension Agents will be very glad to help any one with

Lodge Notes

IVY CASTLE

Ivy Castle, No. 23, E. G. E., will initiate a large class of candidates next Saturday night. Meet at 7:30 sharp. Quilt games will be resumed the following Saturday night, March 17th.

PYTHIAN SISTERS

Friendship Temple, No. 6, Pythian Sisters were out in full force last Friday evening when the Degree Team rehearsed for a big class they expect to take in E. G. E. Ramsey, captain of the team, was very much pleased with the showing they made and predicts a big future.

On Friday evening, March 16th, the Temple will hold a card party, and have secured a number of good prizes, so get your friends out and make it a big affair. Refreshments will be served.

I. O. R. M.

Minnehaha Tribe, No. 23, held a big get together meeting last night, which was attended by a large crowd including Red Men from Little Bear, Little Elk Tribe, Cherry Hill, Md., and other visiting brothers. The Tribe still continues to take in new members and expects to have some candidates to take to Wilmington on March 17th, to take the Warrior's Degree, when the Great Inchoance, Hon. Robert T. Crowe, of Kentucky, presiding Chief of the Improved Order of Red Men of the United States, will visit the Red Men of Delaware. This meeting in Wilmington is open to the public from 7:45 until 9:00 p. m., after which the meeting will be only for Red Men, when the Warrior's Degree will be put on at the New Century Club in Wilmington.

The quilt team of Little Bear defeated Minnehaha Tribe two games out of three, after which recitations were furnished by Brothers Bolsby, Pratt, and S. W. Crosson, of Wilmington. There was a dancing contest between Brothers Wm. Marrs and Leroy Hafer. Addresses were made by Past Great Sachem Abernathy of Maryland, Past Great Sachem McGraw of Maryland and short talks by members and visiting members, followed by refreshments.

On next Tuesday evening there will be nomination of officers, and all members are requested to attend and make this one of the liveliest fights in the history of Redmaship.

The Degree Team will be out for adoption next Tuesday night.

K. OF P.

Osceola Lodge, No. 5, on Monday evening gave the Second Degree to a class and on Monday evening, March 19th, will have the Lafayette Degree Team of Wilmington as their guests, when they will confer the third degree on a large class. Every member is urged to be present on this occasion and show the visiting brothers that Pythianism is very much alive in Newark, and is still on the upgrade, as Osceola Lodge takes in a member almost every meeting night. On Monday night the new degree team of Osceola Lodge put on the second degree for the first time, and from the way the work was done, it looks as if they are going to make all the other teams of this Domain take a back seat.

Jr. O. U. A. M. NEWS

The National Jr. O. U. A. M. opened a home for children at Lexington, S. C., last Thursday, March 1st. Definite arrangements for the reception of over 200 children had been made, so that the kiddies' needs could have proper attention without delay.

The Junior Order is to be congratulated that the Lexington Home starts off with complete equipment and with facilities for over 200 children. Every convenience has been provided and everything was ready for them in their new home, with all comforts and privileges to be found in the best regulated Orphan's Home.

The Tiffin Home was started on a very small scale. Until recently the Junior Order had to seek a location for another home as over 1000 children are cared for at Tiffin.

The National Jr. O. U. A. M. is looking forward to their Diamond Jubilee anniversary to be celebrated May 17th. At that time tens of thousands will be admitted to this organization, which upholds the Bible and the American Flag.

Come up to the American Flag Council Chamber any Monday evening and talk it over. We will answer your ring, though you are not enrolled as yet.—A. Neal Smythe.

A. O. U. W.

Anchor Lodge, No. 1, Ancient Order United Workmen, will hold a regular meeting, at Odd Fellows Hall, at 8 o'clock, tomorrow evening.

Christiana Lodge will have initiation next Tuesday evening, and it is expected that a special program of entertainment will follow the business meeting. Members of Anchor Lodge specially invited to attend this.

Tommy's Word

He had brought himself to public scorn for lack of a word. What word? they asked testily, but even now he could not tell. He wanted a Scotch word that would signify how many people were in church and it was on the tip of his tongue but would come no further. Puckle was nearly the word, but it did not mean so many people as he meant. The hour had gone by just like winking; he had forgotten all about time while searching his mind for the word.

When Mr. Ogilvy heard this he seemed to be much impressed, repeatedly he nodded his head as some beat time to music, and he muttered to himself. "The right word—yes, that's everything," and "the time went by like winking"—exactly, precisely, and he would have liked to examine Tommy's humps, but did not, nor said a word aloud, for was he not there in McLaughlan's interest?

The other five were furious; even Mr. Lorrimer, though his man had won, could not smile in face of such imbecility. "You little tattletale-doodle," Cathro roared, "were there not a dozen words to wile from if you had an ill-will to puckle? What ailed you at many, or—"

"I thought of manzy," replied Tommy wearily, for he was ashamed of himself, "but—but a manzy's a swarm. It would mean that the folk in the kirk were buzzy together like bees, instead of sitting still."

"Even if it does mean that," said Mr. Duthie, with impatience, "what was the need of being so particular? Surely the art of essay-writing consists in using the first word that comes and hurrying on."

"I see," interposed Mr. Gloag, "that McLaughlan speaks of there being a mask of people in the church. Mask is a fine Scotch word."

"Admirable," assented Mr. Dishart. "I thought of mask," whispered Tommy, "but that would mean the kirk was crammed, and I just meant it to be middling full."

"Flow would have done," suggested Mr. Lorrimer.

"Flow's but a handful," said Tommy.

"Curran, then, you jackanapes!"

"Curran's no enough."

Mr. Lorrimer hung up his hands in despair.

"I wanted something between curran and mask," said Tommy, dogged, yet almost at the crying.

Mr. Ogilvy, who had been hiding his admiration with difficulty, spread a net for him. "You said you wanted a word that meant middling full. Well, why not say middling full—or fell mask?"

"Yes, why not?" demanded the ministers, unconsciously caught in the net.

"I wanted one word," replied Tommy unconsciously avoiding it.

"You jewel!" muttered Mr. Ogilvy under his breath, but Mr. Cathro would have banged the boy's head had not the ministers interfered.

"The lad is merely a numskul," said Mr. Dishart, kindly.

"And no teacher could have turned him into anything else," said Mr. Duthie.

"And so, Cathro, you need not feel sore over your defeat," added Mr. Gloag; but, nevertheless Cathro took Tommy by the neck and ran him out of the parish school of Thrums. When he returned to the others he found the ministers congratulating McLaughlan, whose nose was in the air, and complimenting Mr. Ogilvy, who listened to their formal phrases solemnly and accepted their handshakes with a dry chuckle.

"Ay, grin away, sir," the mortified dominie of Thrums said to him sourly, "the joke is on your side."

"You are right, sir," replied Mr. Ogilvy, mysteriously, "the joke is on my side, and the best of it is that not one of you knows what the joke is!"

And then an odd thing happened. As they were preparing to leave the school, the door opened a little and there appeared in the aperture the face of Tommy, tear-stained but excited. "I ken the word now," he cried.

"It came to me at once; it is hantle!"—Sir James Matthew Barrie, in "Sentimental Tommy."

VISITING NURSE'S REPORT

The report of the visiting nurse of this community for the month of February shows that she has made 146 visits, 84 of which were nursing cases; 62, instructive.

The kinds of cases were: osteomyelitis, 1; gastric condition, 7; tubercular, 3; tonsil and adenoid, 1; la grippe, 3; pneumonia, 1; mumps, 6; kids, 3; hives, 2; nervous trouble, 2; prenatal, 5; treatments, 48; miscellaneous, 7.

Miss Leak also assisted with two operations at the homes of patients, one for mastoid trouble; the other, hemorrhoidectomy. She was called to the school twice to see sick children. She held five health clinics, with an average attendance of 48. One tubercular clinic was held, with 4 persons present.

IDEALS

Robert McMurdy

To live in the affections; not to dwell in pride.
To cultivate courtesy, which fosters brotherhood and is the manner of the heart.
To be gentle with those who serve, since they are not free to resent.
To avoid arrogance, which corrodes the man and estranges his fellows.
To mingle freely with all classes, and thus to know mankind.
To be mastered by no habit or prejudice, no triumph or misfortune.
To promise rarely, and perform faithfully.
To choose hobbies with care, and pursue them with diligence.
To value people above thoughts, and thoughts above things.
To curb the personal wants, which expand easily but shrink with difficulty.
To forswear luxuries, ever indulged by shunting the cost onto others.
To be just, man's supreme virtue, which requires the best of head and heart.

Four Hurt When Crashes Tree Street Right

Girl Thrown Through And Badly Injured Where Negro Was Two Years

TREE OUTSIDE

Four persons were injured when an automobile crashed into a tree which stands on the curb in the right main street on the south side, just east of the Newark Center station. Miss Vera Brown, 21, Sparrows Point, Md., was thrown through the windshield and seriously injured.

John L. McKinney, Baltimore, Md., lacerated his arm. McKinney was the driver.

Miss Doris Hutchins, Sparrows Point, lacerated her arm.

Ernest Jarrell, 23 years old, was injured to the head when the car crashed.

McKinney was driving the car, coming from the direction of the intersection of the street and the highway.

Miss Brown was the windshield of the car. She was cut in the neck by the jagged vein, and fell. Dr. Wallace Johnson of four and rushed to the Newark Ambulance Hospital, where she was treated.

Charles Tasker attended to the car. At the hospital, McKinney and Jarrell were treated and Miss Brown is still in the hospital.

At first it was thought that McKinney's car was involved.

There are three trees on the street at the intersection. One of them was cut down by a colored man who drove into one of them.

McKinney's car was involved.
