NEWARK POST, NEWARK, DEL., SEPTEMBER 17, 1919

NUMBER 28

Will Organize Local Post of American Legion

Meeting to be Held Friday Night
Aims and Purposes to be Set Forth at the Armory

All ex-service men, soldiers, sailors, marines, and women too, if they served honorably in the armed forces of the United States between the dates of April 6, 1917 and November 11, 1918 are eligible for membership in the American Legion, and are requested to report at the Armory next Friday evening, September 19th at eight o'clock. At this time a local Post will be organized. Newark is a little behind in her representation, and local pride together with patriotic enthusiasm should let nothing prevent the attendance of all eligibles. Any other persons interested are cordially invited to be present.

Richard R. Whittingham, at the request of State Headquarters, Wilmington, has undertaken to get things started and will explain in plain language the aims and object of the organization; at the same time showing how any veteran of the first war can ill afford not to join and how the privilege of becoming a Legioner.

When this organization is, as stated by Mr. Whittingham in an interview follow: "What is the American Legion?" for the information of all concerned, as they tend to say in general terms, it is a non-partisan and non-political organization of American veterans of the World War. It is a civilian organization, not military nor militaristic. It makes no distinctions of rank and no distinctions between overseas and those who did not get overseas. An ex-buck private's vote carries just as much weight in the affairs of the Legion as a former major general's. In other words, we are all patriots now but glad to point out the fact that we were the first class fighting men under the colors of the greatest country in the world.

As an instance of what the Legion will do, note the proceedings of the 80,000th meeting held May 10, 1919.

It demanded investigation of pay and subsequent honor discharge by War Department conscientious objectors. It strongly condemned the activities of the I. W. W.'s, the anarchists, and the Internationalists.

It recommended that Congress should take over and reclaim arid, open and cut-over timber lands, exempt ex-service men an opportunity to establish homes for themselves and a fitting place in the restorative work of the country.

It demanded of Congress the disability pay for men of the United States National Army who met to those in the Regular establishment.

It initiated a campaign to see to service men their rights and losses under the War Risk Insurance Act.

It demanded that Congress should desert to their own country those aliens who refused to the colors at the outbreak of war, and pleaded their citizenship in other countries to escape draft.

It undertook to see that disabled soldiers, sailors and marines should be brought into contact with Rehabilitation Department of Government, which department is them to learn and gain lucra- tions.

It demanded that nationalized and convicted under the espionage act shall have their citizenship withdrawn and shall be deported. It authorized the establishment of a bureau to aid service men in re-employment; and of a bureau to help them get from Government their overdue pay allotments. These two bureaus are in active operation.

You can't afford NOT to join American Legion, and incidentally you can't afford to miss the meeting when important business will be transacted. Come and your friends.

FAMOUS WAR HERO TO BE IN NEWARK

Harry C. White, Y. M. C. A. Worker Will Tell of Thrilling Experiences

Arrangements for the opening night of the Y. M. C. A. are rapidly nearing completion. Equipment is being secured and installed as rapidly as circumstances will permit. W. Paul Bebout has secured for the opening night, Mr. Harry C. White, a professional entertainer who has had sufficiently thrilling experiences overseas to satisfy the most ardent seeker after excitement. He was one of the 57 secretaries aboard a vessel which was torpedoed off the Irish coast. He was gassed and came near dying because he waited to put on his mask until he had sounded a warning to 184 men. For this and similar types of service he was decorated by the French government. Most of his entertaining overseas was done in gunpits, dug-outs and so on, many times thirty feet under ground.

Mr. White has a wonderful story of his experiences in the trenches and he tells it in such an interesting and entertaining way that he has been greeted with capacity houses ever since his return from the war zone.

He is a special favorite with the boys and girls and while he is here there will be a special meeting for them, at which time he will tell of his experiences and will give one of the entertainments which he was accustomed to give to the boys in the trenches.

Supper and Dance at New Century Club

On Thursday, October 9, a supper and dance will be given at the New Century Club rooms from 5:30 until 8. Tickets are now on sale and the committees have in most cases chosen their aides and disposed of a great many tickets for both the supper and the dance which takes place from 8 to 11.

In connection with the supper and dance there will be a needlework table with attractive and useful articles, a cake table with cakes made by famous cake bakers of Newark and a candy table with candy made by well known candy makers. Ice cream will also be sold.

Meeting of Chautauqua Circle Tomorrow Night

A meeting of those interested in the formation of a Chautauqua circle or study club will hold a meeting on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. E. V. Vaughn on South College Avenue.

Spring Chickens Make Envyable Record

J. W. Suddard is getting a dozen eggs a day from Barred Plymouth Rocks hatched the last of March. Mr. Suddard sets bear traps around his hen houses at night, so that predators are kept at a safe distance.

Colored Soldiers Given "Welcome Home"

Friday was a red letter day for the colored soldiers of Newark and vicinity. Under the auspices of the women's club an extensive program was arranged and carried out as a "welcome home" celebration in honor of the men of their race who have returned from the service.

A reception was held at the church in the afternoon to which were invited the soldiers, their wives and their mothers. From five o'clock until eight a banquet was served to returned soldiers from Newark and from all parts of the State. In the evening a dance and reception to which friends of the soldiers as well as their families were invited was held in the hall. A six piece orchestra furnished music and Charles Colburn of Wilmington spoke eloquently of the colored soldiers' contribution to the various wars in which the United States and the colonies took part. It was estimated that there were present from Newark and elsewhere in the State, 86 returned soldiers.

New School Code is Constitutional

Judges Render Unanimous Decision Declaring Validity of Law

Submit to Governor Townsend Written Views Setting Aside Objections Raised by Opponents

After several days given to consideration of the new School Code and to the arguments pro and con set forth on Friday, the Delaware judiciary yesterday rendered a unanimous decision declaring its constitutionality.

The judges submitted a written report of their opinion to Governor Townsend yesterday afternoon but owing to the fact that he was out of town and could not reach Dover until this morning, the decision was not made known until after his return about ten a. m.

In this report the judges answer the objections offered by the opposition and dwell at length on the six points upon which they contested its constitutionality:

1. Because the Code did not receive the concurrence of two thirds of all the members elected to both Houses of the General Assembly.
2. Because it delegates legislative power to the school districts of the State.
3. Because it requires the assessment and collection of capitation taxes that will not be uniform in the county in which it is to be levied, and property taxes that will not be uniform within the territorial limits of the authority levying the same.
4. Because it impairs the obligation of contracts.
5. Because it requires collection of taxes based on an assessment from which taxables are given no right to appeal.
6. Because it treats of two subjects only one of which is expressed in the title.

The decision in full could not be secured in time for publication in this week's issue but will appear at a later date.

In conclusion the judges state: "After a most thorough and careful examination we have been able to give to your question in the time we thought was proper, under the circumstances we are of the opinion that the law known as the School Code is constitutional and valid." The decision was signed by the Chancellor and all of the judges.

They also declared it to be their opinion that the Code is a law binding on all districts irrespective of whether they have accepted it or not.

This decision will undoubtedly secure for the new law what fair minded people everywhere have agreed it that should have—a fair trial, and its sponsors what they should have—a square deal. No partisan however bitter has dared claim that its provisions were not drawn for the best interests of the children of the State; and no one who is a friend of education will doubt but that it is for the best interest of the State.

Harvard Club Awards Scholarship to Wilmington

The Harvard Club of Delaware has awarded a scholarship worth $300 to Edward S. Cannon of Wilmington a graduate of Delaware College, 1918. He will take up graduate work in the Arts and Science course.

Mr. Cannon visited Newark yesterday and left for college this morning. A number of Delaware men have matriculated in the New England schools and colleges and expect to form a Delaware Club there.

Tourists Wreck Machine On Weed Covered Abutment

While A. Kaminsley and family of Washington, D. C. were motoring on the Lincoln Highway near the Huber Farm just east of town on Sunday evening, their machine struck a concrete abutment over a culvert there. The occupants of the car were shaken up considerably and their automobile damaged to such an extent that it had to be towed into town. The family remained here until Tuesday while it was undergoing repairs at the Strahorn garage.

Mr. Kaminsley will register a complaint with the county and with Bureau of Highways at Washington that a rank growth of weeds is permitted to cover the abutment and that it is not painted white as such abutments should be.

Soloist at Presbyterian Church Sunday

Services at the Presbyterian church next Sunday promise to be of unusual interest. Miss Marion Kellogg of New York has been secured as soloist and some very good music is promised.

FINDS CROIX DE GUERRE AWAITING HIM AT HOME

Captain J. Wilson O'Daniel Honored By French Government

Captain J. Wilson O'Daniel surprised his relatives and friends somewhat on Thursday evening by coming home for a stay of several days. It had been thought that the men of "the Famous First" would not have an opportunity to get "leave" until after they had reported with Pershing at Headquarters in Washington.

Captain O'Daniel expressed keenest pleasure at the sight of familiar faces at the railroad station where he was accorded an impromptu reception by some friends who happened to be there. Upon his arrival at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Wilson, which has been his home for several years, he was surprised to find awaiting him there the Croix de Guerre which had been awarded him by the French government. He had not known of the award previously and was not sure for what service it was given, since the citation has not arrived. He had previously been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for valorous action in leading his men after he had been wounded, until forced to submit to complete exhaustion. By a curious coincidence he spent at home the anniversary of the engagement in which he received the wound which has left a scar on the left side of his face. Excellent treatment in a hospital overseas has prevented any more than a slight marking where the wound was received. As a result of this injury Captain O'Daniel was in the hospital for a month when he rejoined his regiment and was in the thick of the fighting until the armistice was signed. He was promoted to the rank of captain and transferred to command Co. H, Composite Regiment (Pershing's own).

Captain O'Daniel rejoined his regiment to take part in the parade in Washington today. They will be sent to Camp Meade on Thursday to be mustered out but Captain O'Daniel will remain in the service.

Head of Christiana Services

The Communion service at Head of Christiana was well attended and two members were taken into the church.

Services next Sunday will be at the usual hours: Sabbath School at 10, Public Worship at 10:45, and Christian Endeavor at 8.

Ivy Castle to Hold Initiation Service

Next Saturday week, Ivy Castle, No. 23, will hold an initiation service when it is expected that twenty or thirty young eaglets will get ready to try their wings. To prepare them for the initial flight and to prepare the old birds for further strenuous activities refreshments will be served.

LET'S STICK TOGETHER

A meeting of service men and women their friends and all interested in the formation of a local post of the American Legion will be held at the Armory on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Spirited singing of patriotic songs and those that were army favorites will be led by Irving Casler, director of Community service singing in Wilmington. The aims and purposes of the meeting will be set forth in informal talks and a real get-together spirit for ex-service men will prevail.

"Let's Stick Together" is the slogan adopted by the Legion, and this get-together meeting is the initial step toward union with this organization which has 400,000 members already enrolled.

Every service man in Newark and vicinity is urged to attend the meeting.

Colleges Ready for Tomorrow's Opening

Many Students Already Here

First Assembly at Old Delaware will be Welcome for Soldier Students

With unusually strong faculties and with prospects for the most successful year in their history, both Colleges will open formally tomorrow morning. The first assembly at Delaware College will take place in Wolf Hall at 9 o'clock when President Mitchell will address the students and both the faculty and student body will extend a cordial welcome to soldier students, many of whom left college when war was declared in 1917 and are returning this year after service at home and abroad. The students have been arriving since the last of the week. The football squad and a number of freshmen who had examinations to take, arrived yesterday morning. Every train today brings additional students and the streets have taken on their usual winter appearance with groups of "Rah, Rah," boys everywhere.

A few students in the upper classes arrived at Women's College yesterday and others are arriving today. The reception committee of former years has been abolished and instead each upper class student will act the part of "big sister" to the incoming freshmen. This will be an unusually large class numbering more than 80. Every inch of space has been utilized in the dormitories and in Science Hall. For the regular four year course 52 have registered and for the two year Teacher-training course 30 have registered.

The faculty members have all arrived and everything is in readiness for the formal opening tomorrow.

Will Hold Bake Saturday

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will hold a bake at the residence of Mrs. Charles Strahorn on Saturday beginning at 11 o'clock. All sort of home made dainties will be on sale. Proceeds for the benefit of the church improvement fund.

Discharged After Service in the West Indies

Raymond Fader and Walter Holton who have been in the Marine service stationed in the West Indies for the past nine months or so were discharged on Wednesday and returned to their homes here.

Mr. Fader was stationed at Port-au-Prince, Haiti, and Mr. Holton in San Domingo where they served with troops sent to keep order in the islands. Here they endured hardships from fever, heat and conflict fully equivalent to that endured by those who served overseas.

MISSOURI TOWNS RIVAL CLAIMANTS FOR BIRTH PLACE OF PERSHING

Laclede and Meadville Claim Honor Says Everett Tomlinson in Leslie's

General John Joseph Pershing was born September 13, 1859, near Laclede, Mo. The old quarrel of the seven states as to the honor of being the birthplace of Pershing threatens to break into a new form over the place where Pershing first saw the light. The towns of Laclede and Meadville, Mo., are both claiming the honor of being the birthplace of Pershing. Laclede is a small town in the northwestern corner of the state, and Meadville is a small town in the southwestern corner of the state. The towns are both claiming the honor of being the birthplace of Pershing. Laclede is a small town in the northwestern corner of the state, and Meadville is a small town in the southwestern corner of the state. LAWYERS ARGUE VALIDITY OF SCHOOL CODE

Seven Objections Voiced By Opposition; Judges to Give Opinion Soon

Although much local interest centered in the School Code hearing held in Dover on Friday, few persons from the town heard the arguments on that day as far as could be learned. Very little enthusiasm was evident on the part of those who in the past have allied themselves with the opponents of the Code. Both sides, however, were anxious to hear the outcome and watched the papers intently to learn whether or not the threatened demonstration became a fact. Many followed the arguments with keen interest, although public meetings and newspaper reports published at the time was considering the acceptance of the Code had made the public familiar with the arguments pro and con.

In opposition to the Code, Robert G. Harmon, former Congressman L. Irving Handy and City Solicitor John W. Huxley, of Wilmington, and James H. Hughes, of Dover, presented arguments attacking the constitutionality of the Code by voicing seven objections:

First—It delegates legislative power.

Second—It was not passed by a two-thirds vote.

Third—It requires a capitation tax that is not uniform in the county in which it is levied.

Fourth—It requires taxation on real and personal property, that is not uniform in the county, viz. in the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax.

Fifth—It provides for the creation, change and abolition of school districts in a manner that is not by general law.

Sixth—It treats of two subjects, one only of which is expressed in the title.

Seventh—It divests vested rights and impairs the obligation of contracts, viz. in changing, lessening and taking away the security of the holders of school bonds without their consent.

Another objection offered by James H. Hughes was to the effect that it is in violation of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that "no one shall be deprived of life, liberty and property without due process of law."

Arguments in support of the constitutionality of the new school legislation were heard from Henry Ridgely of Dover, who was the chief speaker in its support and who, in his brief, went into an exhaustive and thorough examination of the legislation, and presented what is believed by some of those who heard it from the floor, to be convincing and irrefutable arguments in support of its constitutionality.

Others speaking in the afternoon were: Attorney William S. Hilles, of Wilmington, and Attorney General David J. Reinhardt, who appeared for the State in support of the code.

At the conclusion of Mr. Reinhardt's talk, which was brief, Robert G. Harmon spoke for about half an hour in rebuttal, and the case was in the hands of the court for determination.

The chief argument in the afternoon was made by Henry Ridgely, of Dover, in support of the code. He said that Article 10 of the State Constitution was the storm center of the whole proceeding. Referring to the proceeding of the convention at which the State Constitution was adopted, he said that one of the delegates in discussing school matters said that any general school law was necessarily a conglomerate piece of legislation.

Mr. Ridgely's brief went exhaustively into constitutional and technical questions. He said that Article 10 of the Constitution was the Alpha and the Omega of the school proposition in the State, and that Article 9 has nothing to do with the free public school system of the State. Referring evidently to the manifestation of sentiment against the code, Mr. Ridgely said that the real party in interest, the little boys and girls of Delaware, were not in the court room or in Dover.

Mr. Ridgely was followed by William S. Hilles, of Wilmington, who said that the question before the court was the most momentous and important that had come before the courts in Delaware in his time, and that the welfare of the school children of the State was involved in its consideration and determination. Referring to legislative acts in general, he said that high courts did not examine them with microscopes to find technical flaws, but examined them to ascertain what they stand for. He said he was convinced after hearing the arguments of the other side during the morning hour, that if they had said all that could be said against the constitutionality of the code, and he believed they had, knowing how diligent they were, after hearing all that they had said; he was more convinced than ever that the act was above constitutional attack.

Referring to the contention that it was unconstitutional because the Legislature in its enactment had tried to delegate legislative power, Mr. Hilles said that the act made no attempt to delegate power, and that the contention was ridiculous. On the point made by the opposition that the Legislature had created a corporation and that a two-thirds vote was necessary and had not been received, he said that by no stretch of the imagination could it be construed as a corporation in the sense of the term meant by the counsel on the other side. He also replied to and disposed of the argument of City Solicitor Huxley that it was unconstitutional because in its provisions it impaired the obligations of contracts in leaving no provision for the levying of taxes where school districts and school boards had been abolished or absorbed. He said that it repealed all school legislation in conflict with the provisions of the code but all other was left on the statute books.

Attorney General David J. Reinhardt filed no brief and made only a short address as the representative of the State. He said that Article 10 of the Constitution contained everything in reference to free schools in the State. He cited many cases in support of his contention that the act was constitutional, and referring to the size of the code, the great labor in its compilation and preparation, said that it would be remarkable if in its administration it did not work hardships on some communities and individuals; but these could be remedied, and would be, in the course of time, and were not sufficient grounds for declaring the whole act invalid. He said it was one of the best and most progressive pieces of legislation he had ever seen, splendidly drawn, and clear in its provisions. Mr. Reinhardt's address concluded the presentation of the case for the supporters of the code.

Robert G. Harmon, who opened the discussion in the morning against the code, took about half an hour in reply to some of the arguments presented by the other side, devoting a large part of his rejoinder to the remarks made by Mr. Hilles.

Other Briefs Filed.

In addition to the arguments made yesterday on the school code by Messrs. Harmon, Handy, Huxley and Hughes against the code and Messrs. Ridgely, Hilles and Reinhardt for the code, there was filed with the judges sitting in the case, in their chambers, briefs in favor of the code by Caleb

Americanization in The National Government

There are three bureaus in the natural government officially concerned with the foreign born—two in the department of labor, and one in the department of the interior. In the department of labor the bureau of naturalization is concerned only with the process of becoming a citizen. The bureau of immigration is concerned with admittance, exclusion, and deportation. More than ten years ago a little division was created in the bureau of immigration for the purpose of distributing the foreign born so that they would not all stay in the city, but would go out to the land. This was called the division of information, but since it could not pay the carfare of the foreign born out to the far west, it was not able to do very much distributing.

The bureau of education has had for several years a division of Americanization or of infant education, but in spite of its tremendous task, it had merely administrative powers; and it never had any funds whatever, except those contributed by private organizations, until the last year when it has had a certain war appropriation.

Even yet a great many Americans see Americanization in terms of night schools, and the English language, and naturalization. But herding the foreign born into the night school will never solve the problem of Americanization. Other things come first. For instance, the foreign born point of view of America is determined by what he finds in the job. If the industry has an elaborate employment for the native born, and gets the foreign born by the bulk through the padrone; if it has "company houses" for the native workmen, and tar paper bunks or detailed box cars and shacks for the foreign born, that industry cannot produce Americanized workmen.

"Unless the home and neighborhood make for Americanization, the school has a poor chance." In one state very near Delaware, there are seventy towns with a very large foreign born population. Forty-seven of them still have surface drainage in the foreign section; only twenty-two of the seventy have garbage collection in the foreign born section; forty-two of the seventy still have no sanitary facilities in the foreign born section. In towns like that the first Americanization task is not getting the foreign born into night schools, important though that is."

The Englishman, Blatchford, was right when he said that conscience is:

1. Geographical: that it is not the same in one country as in another.
2. Historical: that it is not the same in one age as in another.
3. Personal: that it is not the same in one person as in another.
4. Changeable. It alters with its owner's mind.

FARM BUREAU EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE HEARS REPORTS

Will Urge Congressmen to Vote For Hersman Bill

At the monthly meeting of the Executive Committee of the New Castle County Farm Bureau held the evening of September 12, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Dickey, of Stanton, County Agent R. O. Bausman and County Club Leader Agnes P. Medill, reported on the progress of the work during the month, and project leaders discussed projects completed and those proposed.

After calling the meeting to order President Frank Yearsley called for the report of the County Agent. In commenting on the farm bureau exhibit at the State Fair, Mr. Bausman stated that the exhibit was designed with the purpose of setting before the farmers of the county, in an attractive and emphatic manner, the most important project which the farm bureau had been pushing during the year. He stated further that during the month a carload of pure bred Holstein cows, averaging 1400 lbs. in weight had been purchased and distributed at cost among the farmers of the county through the co-operation of local banks. The attendance at the annual meetings of the two cow testing associations held in conjunction with the district shows of the Boys' and Girls' Pure Bred Cattle Club, although not large, was gratifying. The addresses by Dr. H. Hayward, of Delaware College, and Mr. J. C. McDowell, of the U. S. Dairy Department, and the Boys' and Girls' Heifer Shows were very interesting features of the two meetings.

Due to the splendid showing made by the boys in the dairy cattle judging contest at the State Fair it was proposed that a judging team be sent to the National Dairy Show to be held in Chicago in October to enter the national boys' judging contest, but upon receipt of the rules of the contest it was found that boys from Delaware were not eligible this year, but would be next year. A team will doubtless be trained and sent next year.

In reporting the meeting of the State Bankers' Association, Mr. M. O. Pence stated that the bankers of Delaware are behind the county farm bureaus and that they have guaranteed an appropriation to aid in financing a farmers' short course which will probably be held at Delaware College this winter.

A motion was made and carried that the secretary be instructed to write to the Delaware Senators and Representatives, urging them to vote for the Hersman Bill, which exempts farmers from criminal prosecution under the Clayton anti-trust law.

Red Men Have Quiet Home-Coming

The best of weather for an outdoor gathering favored the annual Home-coming at Red Men's grove on Saturday. Early in the morning a brilliant poster done in the national colors bade a cordial welcome to the visiting tribesmen and their families, who began to arrive before lunch time. Tables had been spread under the trees and here joyous reunions were held while they awaited the others who could not come until afternoon.

Officials of the order from Wilmington had planned the exercises and expected with a large delegation from that place to arrive here in trucks early in the afternoon. They were to be escorted to the grounds by the Unhehaha Band. These turned out a man, but when the appointed hour for the arrival of the Wilmington delegation arrived they failed to put in an appearance. The band marched to the grounds and relieved the tedium of the waiting by playing patriotic and other airs. The younger members of the order and the papooses played ball, tag, and other games. About 3 o'clock a few Wilmingtonians came by train and stated that owing to a hitch in the matter of securing conveyance the others would be unable to attend. These already on the ground made the best of the situation and threw themselves wholeheartedly into the sports.

Many of the visitors inspected the house and grounds and were much in their praises of the splendid condition in which things are kept and of the comforts which are provided for the residents of the home.

WHAT IS THE BEST VARIETY OF WHEAT FOR SEEDING?

Bearded Variety More Resistant to Disease and Weather Changes Says Agronomist

The result of growing a large number of varieties of wheat at the Delaware Station during the past 12 years has shown some interesting facts with reference to the performance of bearded versus smooth varieties of wheat. It has been found that the bearded wheats have a tendency to fill more freely than the smooth. At the same time the bearded wheats as a group have yielded as an average for the twelve years between three to four bushels more than the smooth wheats. This is largely due to the less variation in yield from year to year with bearded varieties. It seems that the smooth wheats are more sensitive to more unfavorable conditions of culture or season, than are the bearded. This has been noted for some time past in the study of varieties of wheat which were grown the same year on fertilized and unfertilized land. This season the results secured by farmers throughout the state indicate that the bearded wheats were more resistant to disease and were less affected by the unfavorable weather conditions than were the smooth. It is not to be supposed that the smooth wheats will not yield as well, or sometimes a little better than some of the bearded wheats, under extremely favorable conditions. This year on the fertility plots the quality of the smooth wheats was badly affected in almost every instance except where the proper balance of fertilizer was used.

The bearded variety was far less affected in the size of kernel than Leap Prolific, the smooth variety. The same general trend was noted in the samples of wheat secured from various farms in the state this season. Often in the same field the bearded wheat would produce plump, sound kernels, while the smooth wheats were small or badly shriveled.

Smooth wheats will generally do well on land that is fertile, that is, provided with the proper balance of plant food. If nitrogen is in excess the quality of the grain will be more affected than a bearded variety under the same conditions. As a result of close observation and study the Station recommends the following varieties of bearded wheat as most satisfactory for Delaware conditions:

Dietz Amber Red Wonder
Gypsy Reliable
Mediterranean Rudy
The smooth varieties which have given best results are:
Currell Prolific Leap Prolific
Harvest King Poole

A menace to a good yield of high quality wheat is the presence of "bunt" or "stinking smut." This fungus disease can be easily controlled if the proper measures are taken to treat the seed. If the grain is carefully screened and fanned and given the formalin treatment the chances for a large yield of prime quality are greatly increased. The following method is used for combating stinking smut:

Spread the seed on a clean floor or canvas and sprinkle with a solution of one pound (pint) of formalin to fifty gallons of water until thoroughly moist, but not wet enough to drip. Stir the seed repeatedly to distribute the moisture evenly, then shovel into a pile and cover with sacks or canvas for two hours. Spread in a thin layer on dry, stirring frequently. Sacks, drills, or other receptacles should be disinfected with the same solution before filling with the treated seed.

One pound (pint) of formalin when made up with water, will treat forty to fifty bushels of wheat.

Have Community Meeting to Discuss Code.

A community meeting was held in the auditorium at Lewes Friday evening in the interest of the School Code. Miss Leah Burton presided and Pierre S. duPont of Kennett, discussed almost every phase of the code and urged the people to give it a trial for at least one year and see what the effects would be.

Dr. Odell spoke on Child Welfare. A number of local people changed their views in reference to the School Code after having attended the meeting. The house was packed and a great many farmers were in attendance.

Engagement Announced.

Mrs. Frances Scott, of Lewisville, Pa., has announced the marriage of her daughter, Margaret Frances, to J. Robinson Simmons, of this city, August 16. Mr. and Mrs. Simmons will be at home after today at 1315 duPont street.

Do This With Your Liberty Bonds

As a Liberty Bond owner you will be constantly besought to make trades for "securities" of doubtful nature, for luxuries, and for cash at a sacrifice.

Here is a suggestion for making your Liberty Bonds the basis of a permanent, growing fortune.

Adopt the "Equitable Trust Plan." With your Liberty Bond as the nucleus, your estate will grow with the addition of periodical cash contributions which your Liberty Bond buying experience has demonstrated your ability to make.

Our booklet, "The Equitable Trust Plan" is very interesting to those who seriously desire to accumulate an estate. We want you to have a copy.

William J. McAvoy, who for ten years held the position of athletic director at Delaware College, has accepted a position with the sales force of the White Motor Co., at Wilmington. He is at present making his home at the Lafferty summer home just south of Newark and is commuting to Wilmington.

Another Automobile Accident on Main Street

Another automobile accident was added to the already long list of those occurring in Newark and vicinity during the last few weeks when on Thursday evening a collision occurred at the corner of Main street and Couth College avenue between Miss Edna Chalmers' car and one driven by a young man from Chester, Pa. The latter car was damaged considerably but Miss Chambers' car escaped with scarcely a scratch. None of the occupants were hurt.

Miss Chambers was proceeding westward on Main street when the Pennsylvania car coming at a good rate of speed in the opposite direction, made a wide detour to make the turn down South College avenue, the cars struck with a glancing side blow which shattered the running board of the Pennsylvania car.

General Pershing Passes Through Newark

When it was learned definitely on Thursday that General Pershing's train was to pass through Newark, the young people, particularly the school children, began to wonder if some strings could not be pulled to have the train at least slow up in Newark so that they might get a glimpse of the great man.

Superintendent Morris appealed to State authorities, who made an effort through communication with Mayor Smith, of Philadelphia, to bring this to pass. No reply was received and the proposed trip to the station was abandoned. A dozen or so of the curious among the adults, however, journeyed to the station and "hung around", hoping that by some turn of fortune or misfortune the train might stop or slow up. When the special hove in sight at 1:25, just in time to the dot, even the usually blasé railroad folk evidently had a glimmer of hope, too, for they joined the crowd at the rail. The special, however, shot past so fast that only the engineer and fireman could be distinguished clearly and as far as the watchers knew neither of these was the famous "Black Jack." The youthful fireman did the honors to the best of his enthusiastic ability, waving his one-time white sailor hat with an energy worthy a better cause. He was accorded a cheerful greeting from the assembled Newarkers.

At intervals all day huge motor trucks, mounted guns, touring cars and motor cycles passed through town on their way to Washington. They were accorded cheers and smiles all along the route. The main body of the troops and the greater part of the equipment passed through on the B. & O. A great deal likewise, was conveyed over the Pennsylvania line.

Security League today in making public final plans for the celebration of "Constitution Day," which will be the climax of the great Constitutional educational campaign which the league has been conducting throughout the country for some months in association with the other leading patriotic societies.

"Constitution Day" will be observed by the loyal citizens of cities and towns, large and small, in all parts of the country. The governors of twenty-two States are members of the National Constitutional Celebration Honorary Committee, which has been assisting in the promotion of this movement to combat un-American radicalism through the popularization of the Constitution of the United States.

This movement for a nation-wide expression of Americanism as a protest against present day radicalism has been promoted by the National Security League through a notable Constitutional Celebration Organization Committee.

The campaign and celebration has been carried out through an elaborate organization consisting of State directors in the various States, assisted by county directors in each of the counties of their States. All of the many local branches of the affiliated societies have co-operated in the organization of "Constitution Day" meetings. Further assistance has been given by the National Constitutional Celebration Honorary Committee, which includes, in addition to the governors of twenty-two States, the mayors of over one hundred large cities, in all parts of the country and prominent citizens in both public and private life in practically all the states.

The Y. M. C. A. is actively co-operating and "Constitution Day" meetings will be held in its buildings from coast to coast. The local organizations of the American Legion in several States are also participating.

The educational authorities of 38 States have directed the holding of appropriate exercises in the schools on "Constitution Day" and hundreds of ministers of all denominations either preached special Americanism sermons last Sunday or will do so next Sunday. This day was declared a holiday recently by the State Board of Education.

REGULATION FOR NEW INSURANCE TAX ISSUED

Becomes Effective April 1, But Does Not Apply to War
Risk Kind

"Regulations 58," relating to the tax on insurance policies have been issued by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The tax on life insurance is 8 cents on each $100 or fractional part thereof the amount for which the person is insured, except in the case on insurance on the industrial, or weekly or monthly payment plan, or group life insurance.

Insurance by which a life is insured not in excess of $500 on the industrial or weekly or monthly payment plan is taxable upon the issuance of policies and the tax is measured by the first weekly or monthly premium charged in an amount equivalent to 50 per cent. of the first monthly premium. Where the policy upon the industrial plan exceeds $500, the tax is eight cents on each $100 or fractional part of the amount for which the life is insured.

In the case of group life insurance covering groups of not less than 25 lives in the employ of the same person for the benefit of persons other than the employer, the tax is equivalent to four cents on each $100 of the aggregate amount for which the group policy is issued, and of any net increase in the amount of insurance under such policy.

In the case of life, health and accident insurance combined in one policy by which a life is insured not in excess of $500 on the weekly or monthly plan, the tax is imposed upon the issuance of all policies of either plan, and is measured by the first weekly or monthly premium or 20 per cent. of the first monthly premium.

The tax on marine, inland and fire insurance is measured by the premium charged under each policy of insurance, and is equivalent to one cent on each $1 or fractional part thereof the premium charged, and of any additional assessment or charge in the nature of a premium upon insurance made or renewed.

The tax on casualty insurance in the nature of indemnity for loss, damage or liability is one cent on each $1 or fractional part thereof, of the premium charged.

The insurance tax does not apply to soldiers' and sailors' insurance written by the War Risk Insurance Bureau. Monthly returns of the insurance tax are required of every person issuing policies of insurance.

The insurance tax became effective April 1.

Dobbin on the Meat Block Will Be "Wearin o' the Green"

Dobbin, in his lifetime, may have worn black or white or tan, or even red, but when he passes over the meat block and presents himself to the housewife in the form of steak or roast or anything like that, he will be decked in green. The meat-inspection service of the United States Department of Agriculture, in order to comply with the provision of the law that horse meat shall be conspicuously marked, has decided to stamp the meat with a harmless green ink. The Bureau of Animal Industry stamp is distinctively six-sided and bears the words "Horse Meat."

Horse meat is likely to be on the market in appreciable quantities shortly. A report has been received at the Department of Agriculture from Billings, Mont., that the initial shipment of a lot of about 2,000 range horses has been received for slaughter. A report from New Mexico says that 50,000 range horses in that State should be slaughtered.

An agricultural journal, recently commenting on the slaughter of horses for meat, said that the elimination of undesirable horses not only will save feed for more worthy cattle and sheep but will add hides to the leather supply and increase meat stocks. Department of Agriculture experts say that hides from range horses that have lived in the open should be of excellent quality.

According to one supposedly good authority, the shoes for which we now pay $20 will cost us $30 next year. There are two perfectly good reasons why this prediction will never come true. In the first place we have never paid $20 for a pair of shoes, and in the second barefooting is much cheaper, and incidentally much healthier, so we are told. It might be suggested to the shoe profiteers that sandals have not entirely escaped the memory of the race and there's no telling what an infuriated man will do if pushed to the wall.—Galveston Tribune.

THREE PROMINENT DELAWAREANS FAVOR CODE

Henry P. Scott, John S. Mullin
and Daniel Hastings Praise
Its Provisions

Henry P. Scott, member of the commission which prepared the new school Code, and presented it to the Legislature, has the following to say about the code, the needs it fills, and the character of the opposition to it:

"The ignorance, abuse and misrepresentation which the new School Code is meeting in some parts of the State is the best possible proof of its need. They certainly bear out the very low educational standards which were found to exist in the State by the survey recently made."

"I have the greatest sympathy with the farmers of this State because of the succession of crop disasters of the present year. I know how difficult it is for them to spare funds for additional taxes, particularly this year, and that too they require the help of their children; but I do believe the real men and women of Delaware, when they understand the code, will be willing to sacrifice themselves and their funds for the great good of their children."

"Our children must have as good educational training as that given by any State in the Union. They shall not be handicapped in their competition in life with the children of other States."

"As for the queer minded politicians who are attempting to misrepresent the code to gain, as they foolishly think, some personal or party advantage, I have nothing but contempt. They are fooling with a boomerang."

John S. Mullin, another member of the commission that drew up the code, is an enthusiastic supporter of it, as is evidenced in the following statement:

"Does any one claim our old school system did not need revision?"

"Does anyone claim we do not stand thirty-third in the list of States educationally?"

"Do we want to continue thirty-third or give to our children what should be the greatest and dearest heritage possible—namely, a public school education equal to the best?"

"The new School Code was prepared by the acknowledged experts of the country, and is considered by the United States commission of education as the most improved code in existence."

"The new code in Maryland, although passed with much opposition, after two years' trial was not even amended by the following legislature."

"Why not give ours a trial?"

"With an ideal rural situation of Delaware, and an ideal industrial situation of Wilmington, we present the greatest opportunity for development in our country today, but we will never get anywhere as long as we listen to the selfish cry of down country and up country, city against the State and like phrases."

"Is it any wonder that even the citizens and taxpayers of Wilmington do not rise up and demand sufficient and capable school facilities for our children?"

"Let us try agreeing on something and what better than the most important of all—the education of our children?"

Judge Daniel O. Hastings expressed his approval of the new School Code as follows:

"The adoption of the new School Code is the longest stride Delaware has ever taken in educational affairs. If given a fair trial, followed by such amendments as may be found desirable, it will raise Delaware's educational rank among the other States from thirty-five to somewhere near the top. This law will never be repealed if given a fair trial. To repeal it would be to deal a death blow to progressive educational legislation in this State for years to come."

"There isn't much hope for a community that doesn't give its boys and girls a chance. They haven't much chance without good schools and an opportunity to attend. We have left the teacher to the tender mercy of the Almighty entirely too long. It's time for us to give them a helping hand."

It Takes Courage—

To live according to your convictions.

To be what you are and not pretend to be what you are not.

To say "No" squarely and firmly when those around you say "Yes."

To live honestly within your means and not dishonestly upon the means of others.

To speak the truth when by a little prevarication you can get some special advantage.

To refuse to knuckle down to and bend the knee to the wealthy, even though are poor.

When mortified and embarrassed by humiliating disaster, to seek in your ruins the elements of future success.

To refuse to do a thing which is wrong because others do it, or because it is customary and done in trade.

To stay home evenings and try to improve yourself when your comrades spend their evenings having a good time.

To remain in honest poverty while others grow rich by questionable methods which you could easily use yourself.

To refrain from gossip, when others about you delight in it, and to stand up for an absent person who is being abused.

Not to bend the knee to popular prejudice, but stand firmly erect while others are bowing and fawning for praise and power.—The New Success.

Two Popular Words of the Slang Lexicon Explained

Two popular members of our slang lexicon are "cinch" and "soft snap." The latter is an obvious metaphor referring to the ease of snapping softly, as a snap of the fingers, which, except for the click, requires no effort.

But "cinch" is not synonymous with "soft snap." Upon investigation of its origin it develops a different shade of meaning.

Before railroads had penetrated our great Southwest or even the old stage made its bow, pack mules carried into regions unsurveyed the household goods of the traveling homesteader or pioneer, as well as the family itself, or the goods and person of the itinerant merchant. Along the untrodden trails which it was often necessary to traverse, traveling was not always smooth and steady. Mules were prone to leave their burdens by the wayside. To insure that all one's belongings come in at the finish, it was necessary in loading the mule to carefully tighten the girth to get a good cinch, which gave a sure, safe hold.—Rocky Mountain News.

Has Surprisingly Good Tomato Crop.

Last autumn, Joseph Rodgers, a truck grower, went to the canning house and hauled to his farm a load of tomato skins, having been told they would make a good fertilizer. After he had covered his land with them, he planted his wheat crop. To his surprise, upon cutting his wheat he found that his ground was covered with young tomato plants which had come up from the seed from the skins that he had got from the canning house. He did nothing further with the land but let the plants look after themselves and now he is picking every day tomatoes for which he is receiving the highest market price. He expects to pick from this piece of land about 400 baskets of tomatoes for which he is getting one dollar a basket, and from a patch that had been given no attention.

Consider the Other Fellow's Rights on the Road

Remember to give the other car more than half of the road if you are going down hill and it is coming up. It has the heaviest load, and if you force the driver to slow down, gears may have to be shifted.

Consider the rights of the people who are walking along muddy roads, by slowing down instead of trying to see how much mud you can throw on them in passing.

Slow down as you approach a culvert or a bridge, and let any motorist coming from the opposite direction pass first, if there is any chance of your meeting on it.

When passing a slower car on a dusty road, continue past at a good speed, getting far enough ahead to avoid giving the occupants of the car a "dusting." Unless you intend to travel fast enough to keep ahead of the slower car, do not pass it merely to escape dust.

As you approach another automobile at night, dim the lights of your car.

Hog Growers Should Select Brood Sows Now

Early fall is the time of year when hog growers should select from the spring crop of pigs the sows to be used as next year's dams. From now on until the breeding season these sows should be fed in a manner different from the way they were to be fattened for market purposes. Good forage crops are practically a necessity. A self-feeder containing a good quality of thrashed oats makes good feed for these sows. In addition, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, they may be fed a small amount of corn and some shorts or middlings, and fish meal or tankage.

Careful attention should be given to the selection of sows for breeding purposes. First, they should be selected from a good sized litter and from a litter whose dam has good suckling qualities. The brood sow should be of a good rangy type, with a good, strong arched back, deep sides, rather thin neck, and not too broad in the face. By all means she should be a "good footed" animal with good, strong legs and pasterns and rather upstanding from the ground.

The sow that takes plenty of exercise freely is the one that is most likely to make a desirable brood sow. Do not select a sow from a litter whose dam is cross and irritable. The sow should be gentle and easily handled.

Attention should also be paid to the eyes. A blind sow is likely to step on and injure her pigs. Careful attention to these details at this time will have a tendency to add to the value of the breeding herd and to the number of pigs that may be brought to maturity.

Uses Paraffin to Protect Silo Interiors

An experienced stockman reported to the United States Department of Agriculture that five years ago he coated the interior of his concrete silo with paraffin and that this material has efficiently protected the silo ever since, with indications that the protective covering will be good for several years more. This stockman used 40 pounds of melted paraffin in painting the interior of his 110-ton silo. The paraffin was applied hot with a large paint brush. Care should be taken to avoid splashing since hot paraffin causes severe burns on bare flesh.

This man eliminated the need for scaffolding or ladders by applying the paraffin as the silo was filled, painting a strip as high as he could reach all around the silo and then waiting until the silo had filled up sufficiently so a strip of corresponding size could be applied higher up. He reports that on thorough examination during subsequent years the only noticeable damage to the paraffin protection occurred where the tines of a pitchfork had scratched the surface. Otherwise, the covering remained practically intact. A protective coating is particularly desirable for use in silos made of solid concrete, concrete blocks or similar building material of a semiporous character likely to be attacked by silage juices. The smooth paraffin coating also is believed to permit the silage to settle easily and uniformly, thus avoiding air pockets. Painting the interior of the wooden silo with a mixture of coal tar and creosote protects the building against decay and increases its working life several years where the application is repeated every year. The material costs about 20 cents a gallon and approximately 4 or 4 gallons are sufficient for a 100-ton silo.

Obedience Due to the Law Not to the Executive

"Obedience is due to the law and not to the person who administers it. His authority is to be obeyed whether he be a worthy representative of it or not. As a good man cannot make a bad law, neither can a bad man make God's law bad, or his evil life absolve us from obedience to his lawful decisions."—Rev. Walter Elliott.

"The School Code"

To the citizens of the State who are so incensed because of the new School Code and the tactless way in which it is being put into effect we feel that it is not amiss to say that too much should not be expected of the Judges who have been asked to give an opinion as to its constitutionality. It must be remembered that the Judges had nothing to do with the enactment of the law and are in no sense responsible for its consequences. The wisdom or unwisdom of its provisions, the consequences of its operation or the methods of its enforcement play no part in their consideration of the bare question whether it is or is not constitutional. However bad it may be in some of its features, and however burdensome it may be and however unpopular it may be, cannot enter the court room. If no provision of the constitution has been violated in its enactment or by its provisions it is a law and must be declared such. If the Judges hold it to be constitutional it will be the duty of all citizens to obey it and make the best of it. If it is declared constitutional, we hope its administration will be less objectionable and that those in authority will realize that nothing short of the application of a lot of good sense, good judgment and tact will save it from absolute repeal by the Legislature that will meet little over a year from now. No real friend of education wants to see us return to the old system that all must recognize as defective and altogether insufficient to provide for the educational needs of our children. A year's trial of the new law, if constitutional, under management that honestly tries to conciliate the opponents instead of offending and incensing them, should show its good and bad features and result in improvement instead of repeal.—Dover Index.

He who thinks much says but little in proportion to his thoughts. He selects that language which will convey his ideas in the most explicit and direct manner. He tries to compress as much thought as possible into a few words. On the contrary, the man who talks everlastingly and promises, who seems to have an exhaustless magazine of sound, crowds so many words into his thoughts that he always obscures, and very frequently conceals them.—Washington Irving.

TELLS WAR-TIME VALUE OF BAKELITE-DILECTO

Philadelphia Press Writer Lauds Product of The Continental Fibre Company and Patriotism of Management

In a series of articles now running in the Philadelphia Press, is told the story of the mobilization and coordination of industries in this district and their contribution to final victory in the world war. These articles are accurate in every respect, having been attested by the Ordnance Department to which they were submitted.

In last Wednesday's issue appeared an account of Bakelite-Dilecto, a product of the Continental Fibre Co., and a statement of the unique properties which made it especially valuable in war time in wireless operations.

The following account of its composition and manufacture is given:

"Bakelite is an artificial coal-tar product used as a substitute for hard rubber, celluloid or amber, and valuable for its properties of electrical greater resistance to heat and solvents.

The Army Ordnance Department naturally had many uses for material of this nature, and in placing its requirements before the various manufacturers who had allied themselves with the War Department to eliminate the "Rus," the story of Bakelite-Dilecto will be told.

Commends Patriotism of Company.

The peace-time products of the Continental Fibre Company, of Newark, Delaware, are articles known as "vulcanized fiber," and include many articles in common use. When the bugle call sounded "to arms," this firm served its plant, staff of experts and executives and full equipment over to the Army Ordnance Corps of the War Department. During the period of ed and delivered large quantities of these components, which were made from the special material produced by them, and which were, therefore, not obtainable to the Government elsewhere. Besides producing this to a large extent in this plant, a number of other concerns manufactured these products for them on Government account, from their material, as it was evident that it was impossible to supply the necessary machinery to bring production up to the point of meeting the Government demands within a sufficiently short time.

It is believed that the records of the Ordnance and other departments with whom they had business during the war will show in no case was the Government program seriously delayed or otherwise embarrassed on insulation and resistance to heat. This substance was discovered by Dr. Leo Baekeland from whom it derives its name. It is produced by warming equal parts carboxylic acid and formaldehyde, both of which are used commonly as disinfectants, then adding to this a small amount of alkali. After several processes of separation and heating, the resulting compound is a hard, solid mass which has been given the general name of bakelite. It has many uses in commercial and manufacturing processes. It is very hard and elastic, and is an excellent insulator for both heat and electricity, being much cheaper than any product of the same nature, as well as more efficient.

The watery solution which forms in the making of the bakelite is also used in producing many products. Wood soaked in this solution and then heated under pressure becomes treated so that it appears as with a firm and waxy revamp. Cardboard and metal surfaces can also be given a like coating.

It is insoluble in all known solvents and resistant to most chemicals. It is also compounded with asbestos, wood pulp and other fillers, and furnishes strong and accurately molded articles. While not so flexible as hard rubber or celluloid, it gives better results on account of its toughness, and the war ninety-seven per cent of the production of this firm was for direct Government work, or for purposes designated by the Government as necessary to the national welfare.

Used in Manufacture of "Wireless" The most important material produced for the Ordnance Department and the Government directly, was the material of their exclusive manufacture known as "Bakelite-Dilecto," which is used very extensively in the manufacture of wireless apparatus and other requirements of the resistance and other corps. They were under contract with the Navy Department prior to the war for that material, but the effect of the war upon it was that they were required to deliver possibly 100 times as much as in ordinary times.

This required them to install a lot of additional machinery and to force their production to the utmost limit, working nights, Saturdays and Sundays. In all cases, deliveries were made in good time, and in no case was the Government handicapped by lack of deliveries of this material, which, in this particular case, was not obtainable from any other source.

This company manufactured very few complete parts, although they had large contracts for detector components that were used in connection with aerial cables. They manufactured components of any failure on the part of this company to effect quick deliveries and to do almost impossible things in that connection.

In addition to these direct government requirements the special material of their manufacture, namely, Bakelite-Dilecto, was supplied to practically all the important manufacturers of wireless apparatus for Government use, besides large quantities to the manufacturers of special telephone equipment for field service. The records will show that, considering the conditions under which they were working, deliveries from this company were extremely prompt by contract with lots of others.

The Bakelite-Dilecto was also supplied as raw material to various manufacturers to be turned out or molded into various articles for army and navy requirements. The Bakelite-Dilecto products were used in the general ordnance program to the best of satisfaction, and a word of praise is due to the efforts of the Continental Fibre Company along with the extreme loyalty of their employees during the great emergency.

Little Delaware figured in a wonderful extent in the great war game, and too much credit cannot be given to the industry, which assisted in bringing the war to a successful conclusion.

Newark Man Holds High Milk Record For Month

The Diamond State Cow Testing Association has completed the first month of its new year. Due to the excessive rains and the fact that the majority of the cows on test have been in milk for several months, no high records are in evidence, however several cows are making splendid showings. Mr. J. T. Edmundson is to be commended on making a record of 1581 pounds of milk and 50.8 lbs. fat on a cow under the adverse conditions.

In the Middletown Association it is a signal fact that those farmers who give most attention to the rotation of crops and soil fertility, have better pastures and the highest average producing herds. It is also evident that those herds which have received some grain during the summer have demonstrated above all peradventure that it is highly practical to supplement grass with a small amount of grain; that the cows will not only do better during the summer, but that they will go into the winter season in a much better condition for making a creditable record.

The following are the honor lists for the two Associations:

Wolcott Family to Hold Reunion.

Members of the Wolcott family in Delaware will attend the fifteenth annual reunion of the society of the Descendants of Henry Wolcott to be held in Washington, October 7, 8 and 9, at the Hotel Willard. The present officers of the society are Stanley Wolcott Hayes, of Richmond, Ind., president; L. Bruce Wolcott, of Baltimore, first vice-president, and Mary Wolcott Green, of Englewood, Fla., secretary.

The association is nation wide and has a president, vice-president and a State vice-president in nearly every State in the Union. A neat little book just out, entitled "The Wolcott Family in the World War," gives an account of the activities of Wolcott boys in the service of their country. It is an historic fact that the Wolcotts have had a prominent position in this country's history, beginning with Oliver Wolcott, who was in President Washington's cabinet as secretary of the treasury. There were also three of the name governor of Connecticut and one Roger Wolcott governor of Massachusetts. At the present time two of the youngest members of the United States Senate are of the Wolcott line (Josiah O. Wolcott, Delaware, and James Wolcott Wadsworth, New York).

Former Army Man Instructor In Modern Languages

Mr. George E. Britton, of Oxford, Pa., has been elected Assistant Professor of Modern Languages to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Professor Claude C. Spiker. Mr. Britton graduated from Franklin and Marshall College in 1913 and for two years served as principal of the Whitesville High School of New York. He was teacher of Modern Languages at the Mackenzie School for one year and did graduate work in Romance Languages at Columbia University during the year 1916-17. He enlisted in the Army and served in France for two years as interpreter with the A. E. F. After the signing of the armistice he attended the University of Grenoble from March, 1919, to July of the same year.

This appointment completes the faculty of Delaware College for the coming session.

The crime wave that has been sweeping Germany since the armistice is not devoid of some refreshing incidents. Berlin papers tell of the sense of humor displayed by a thief who stole two geese from a farmer at Malsbach, near Heidelberg. A few days later the geese mysteriously reappeared. One of them had a ribbon around its neck to which was tied this note:

Building Contract Awarded.

The State Commission for Public Buildings, Saturday, awarded the contract for the building to be erected on the property recently acquired by the commission, consisting of eight hundred acres of land in Sussex county between Stockley and Millboro, to William M. Connelly, of Wilmington.

The building will cost approximately $120,000, and will consist of a central administration building, with an underground and kitchen in the rear, and two wings which will be used for dormitories. The building will measure 36 by 135 feet. There will be ten stories.

The premium list for the annual exhibition of the Peninsula Horticultural Society, to be held at Chester, Md., on January 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, has been issued and is now available for prospective contestants. The prizes are more than usually liberal, the highest prize offered being $200 for the best general display of fruit. There are also liberal prizes for barrels, boxes, and plates, as well as general collections of fruits. In all $2000 in prizes is offered.

A class of more than usual interest is that provided for amateurs—those who have never won first prize in any exhibit. The rules for this class are the same as for the general class, except that the fruit need not be sent to cold storage, and may be packed at the convenience of the exhibitor.

These premium lists containing the rules and regulations and the score cards by which the judges will be guided in their decisions may be secured from the secretary of the society, Wesley Webb, of Dover.

Chinese Settings For "The Forbidden City"

One of the greatest difficulties encountered during the filming of "The Forbidden City," the Chinese story, in which Norma Talmadge is starred at the Opera House, Monday, the 22d, was in finding a typical Chinese garden for the setting. Joseph Bachman, location expert for all of Miss Talmadge's productions, secured the country and at last found a Chinese garden at Yama Farms Inn, Nanjioch near Ellenville, N. Y.

Mr. P. L. Yuan, the Chinese research expert, who was assisting Mr. Bachman and the technical director in the selection of sets and properties, was called in. Mr. Yuan visited Yama Farms, and after looking at the garden declared that it was closely resembled gardens in China, one would imagine they were walking in the emperor's grounds. Miss Talmadge and her company were busy at Yama Farms Inn for several weeks. All of the outdoor scenes in the early part of the story were taken at this place, and a number of former Pekinese have since declared that the scenes remind them of the famous gardens in their native city.

Football Squad Reports at Old Delaware

The 34 men composing the football squad at Delaware College reported to Coach Shipley on Fraser Field yesterday afternoon. While college does not open formally until tomorrow, the coach is anxious to get the work well under way in order that he could view up the available material. This is Coach Shipley's first year with the sport here and he realizes that the schedule mapped out for the year calls for earnest work and continued efforts and cooperation. He is fortunate in having back this year several "D" men of 1917 who have been in the service, but will re-enter this term. The squad also includes the "D" men and scrums of last year. In addition to these there are good prospects for excellent material from the Freshman class.

Those who reported yesterday include J. W. Anderson, M. W. E. Barclay, F. R. Carter, E. Graves, W. W. Lathrop, H. W. Lowe, P. H. Marvel, G. M. Nelson, F. R. Pool, Jr., W. E. Ritz, H. S. Alexander, C. T. Atlix, J. A. Barnard, J. A. Borty, J. W. McMillen, R. H. McMillen, J. R. Pool, E. C. Tonkin, W. H. Bunnen, G. G. Carter, J. G. Christfield, T. R. Dantz, J. J. DeLuca, R. W. Foulk, O. W. Goffington, J. C. Kavanagh, H. E. Leach, Jr., A. B. McGee, Jr., J. J. Rothrock, R. Stewart, F. K. Willis, R. Stewart, Jr., M. W. Plam and A. E. Marcenetti.

Starting yesterday there will be only three weeks before the opening game, which is with Franklin and Marshall on Fraser Field, October 4. On October 11, Delaware plays Penn on Franklin Field and by that time it is hoped to have the team in at least good physical condition. The complete schedule follows:

Saturday, October 4—Franklin and Marshall at Newark.

October 11—University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.
