Residents warned after convicted killer seen here

NEWARK POLICE ADVISED residents in the area to lock their doors and windows and be aware of their surroundings when out in public following a reported sighting here of fugitive Norman Johnston around 9:50 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 16.

Pennsylvania State Police confirmed on Tuesday that a fingerprint matching Johnston's was found at phone booth outside the Eagle Diner on Elkton Road. However, as of deadline, no further sightings were confirmed in Delaware.

According to Newark Police Officer David Martin, a citizen flagged down a University of Delaware officer and told him that a man at a payphone in the 100 block of Elkton Road resembled the convicted killer who escaped from a Pennsylvania prison on Aug. 2.

When the University officer drove toward him, the suspect walked in the side door of the restaurant and ran out the front.

The University officer pursued him into a thicket near the CSX Railroad tracks and tackled him but he managed to break free. Newark, New Castle County and Delaware State police departments searched the area around Elkton Road for over two hours on Monday night with K-9s and the state police helicopter with negative results.

It is unknown if Johnston is armed but police said he should be considered dangerous. Call police immediately at 911 if you have reason to believe Johnston has been seen, but do not approach him.

New regs apply to kindergartners and seventh graders

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

IF KINDERGARTEN and seventh grade students do not receive the first of three state-required Hepatitis B shots before late September, they may be sent home by the school district until they do.

According to the state regulation, a student must have at least started the series by the beginning of the 1999 school year, and must receive the second dose at least one month after the first shot. The third dose must be done at least four months after the first shot.

Tom Downs, student services supervisor for Christina District, said there will be some leeway for students who have not gotten the shots required for the first time this year, but the district will have to draw the line somewhere.

Water savings being found

City, UD working on all possibilities

CITY MANAGER Carl Luft said even if the University of Delaware students came back this week, he believes Newark would have enough water to supply city customers in the drought.

"It would mean higher costs and purchasing supplies from other agencies, but I believe we could do it without going to more stringent restrictions," said Luft on Wednesday.

Luft added that sudden new operational or supply problems could still derail this hope. "But the plan we have drafted at the request of the Delaware River Basin Commission takes the return of the University students into consideration," Luft said.

Luft said the University of Delaware, which gets all of their water supplies from the city of Newark, has been very cooperative already in reducing water consumption.

Aetna fire truck's license plate taken

Aetna Fire Company personnel told Newark police that unknown persons removed a license plate from a fire truck sometime on July 29. The plate with license number FD70 was missing after the truck came back from a fire in Hockessin.

Teen raped in car

A 16-year-old girl told Newark Police she was raped sometime between 11:30 p.m. on Aug. 9 and 1 a.m. on Aug. 10 by a man she met on Main Street. According to the victim, she went to a house at an unknown location with three men where they drank half a bottle of vodka. The girl and one male went out to get more alcohol to drink and she fell asleep in the car. She awoke to find the man, described as a black male, 6 feet tall, with muscular build, very short hair, crooked teeth, and wearing orange shorts and a T-shirt, assaulting her. She said the man then drove her to her home. Police are investigating.

Teenage girl cut with bottle during fight

Newark Police report that on Aug. 13 around 11 p.m. a 16 girl was struck in the face with a bottle while she was attending a party on East Cleveland Avenue. The girl told police a large fight broke out during which she was pushed to the ground and then hit by a 20-year-old unidentified white male. The girl suffered multiple lacerations to her face. An arrest is pending.

Fire suspicious at Embassy Suites

On Aug. 14 around 4:30 a.m., a security guard discovered a fire at the Embassy Suites construction site on South College Avenue. Police said the guard told them he had just done a walk-through when the electric went off and he smelled smoke. The fire, in an area where paint cans are stored, is being treated as suspicious.

Brookside home has armed robbery

New Castle County Police report that on Aug. 9 around 3:40 p.m., three armed men invaded a home on Martell Road in Brookside. The suspects ordered the home occupants to the floor and removed $2,000 from one of them before fleeing. One suspect, Timothy Lancour, 18, of Newark was arrested and charged on Aug. 11 with robbery, possession of a deadly weapon during the commission of a felony, attempted robbery and conspiracy. Another suspect was identified as Arnold Tucker, 35, of Newark. Anyone with information about the suspects or their whereabouts is asked to call detectives at 571-7924.

Home burglarized on Nottingham Road

Sometime between 9 a.m. and noon on Aug. 11, unknown persons broke into a residence on Nottingham Road and removed unknown amounts of cash. Police are investigating.

virus which is present in the blood and body fluids of an infected individual. Symptoms include loss of appetite, tiredness, pain in muscles, joints or stomach, diarrhea, vomiting and yellow skin or eyes. The virus can also cause severe infections leading to liver damage, liver cancer and death.

According to Downs, almost 40 percent of students in kindergarten and seventh grade required to be inoculated against the disease by September of this year have not supplied the district with proof of receiving the shots.

State coordinator Laura Gannon said only these two grades must have the shots this year for several reasons. "It is so much easier to manage (just two grades at a time) and money-wise it is easier for the families if they were to have two or three children in the school system," Gannon said.

For kindergartners, getting the new shot fits into the schedule of other vaccinations already required. Seventh graders are the youngest of those students who missed the Hepatitis B vaccinations that began routinely for infants in 1991.

Another reason that seventh graders were chosen is because of their behaviors.

"We wanted them to get (the inoculations) before becoming involved in high-risk behaviors," said Gannon.

Activities involving bodily contact and needles, such as sports, fighting and body piercing, are considered risky. Infection can occur through unprotected sexual intercourse, unsterilized needles, household contacts, and from child to child, as well as from mother to infant at birth.

By the year 2005, all K-12 students will be required to show proof of the vaccination.

Gannon said that despite the new regulation, she is not aware of any clinics being inundated with requests to obtain the shots. "Even with questions, it's been very quiet," she said.

Since last year the district has sent home notices and published information in newsletters and the "Christina Communicator," to inform parents of the requirements.

Downs hopes that many parents will send proof of inoculations with their kids on the first day of school. "I'm pulling in three visiting teachers to work at the schools to telephone parents," Downs said. "But if we do not get a good response, home visitations will be our next step."

The shots, that can cost as much as $90 in addition to doctor fees, are usually covered by medical insurance. Alternative resources also are available if parents are unable to pay the bill, said Downs.

Statewide 800 megahertz system has problems in Newark

Councilmember said a UD tower should have been installed

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark city councilmember John Farrell said he has been doing a "slow burn" ever since 1996 when the city denied permission to install a 275-foot telecommunications tower on University of Delaware land off Route 72.

"I could not believe they didn't understand the importance of having it there," said Farrell, who was fire chief for Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company at the time. "I don't want to wag a finger or point fingers, but if it ever comes up again before council, I would ask that they not be so quick to say zoning won't let it happen."

In March 1996, city council tabled the proposal, which was later abandoned by the state, noting conflicting statements from state and Comcast representatives about whether a tower at that location was necessary to make the statewide 800 megahertz system work.

The state subsequently decided to use a tower which was installed at the Interstate 92 toll plaza near the Maryland/Delaware border.

Farrell, who worked for New Castle County Emergency Management Services then and now, said he told council that tower site was necessary when he addressed them in a public hearing. "If it ever comes up again and the state offers an opportunity to enhance the system in the city, I would ask them to think about it, at least," said Farrell this week.

Farrell said emergency medical personnel and firefighters have noted numerous "dead areas" on the western side of Newark. "Everything west of Casho Mill Road has problems," he said. "Fire apparatus in that area has experienced 'dead areas.'"

Governor Thomas Carper and other state officials have told Motorola, which installed the system, to correct the flaws after discovering the statewide coverage is not providing universal coverage.

Farrell

However, another problem became evident when agencies in the state discovered the system was not designed to work inside buildings. "We believed it would work inside buildings when it was discussed (in 1996)," said Farrell.

Newark Police Officer David Martin said his department also believed it would work inside buildings. "It still works better than the old system," said Martin. "Our officers are trained not to go inside buildings alone, so that's not as big an issue for us."

Farrell said he does not necessarily believe the tower on Route 72 would have solved the second problem, but he believes it would have helped. "I have noticed I can go out of range when I travel from downtown Newark to my home in Woodbine," said Farrell. "When you're going by feel inside a burning building, you need to be able to communicate by radio."

Farrell said paramedics could not talk to the doctor when a neighbor of his had a medical emergency inside his home. "At another house in Woodbine, the fire chief had to walk outside to the truck because he could not talk to the county communications center from inside the burning house."

Newark Police Chief Gerald Conway said he personally went out and tested the radio communication in buildings recently when he started getting calls from news people. "I did not find a problem — it worked when I was inside Christiana Towers, for instance," said Conway this week. "I also told my officers to report any problems, but so far there have not been any complaints."

Shopping center sold

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Newark Shopping Center, run by the Krapf family since 1988, might have a new owner as of this week.

According to site manager Bill Burris, the Krapfs sold the shopping center to the First Washington Real Estate Investment Trust of Bethesda, Md.

First Washington's vice president of marketing, Chris Schaff, confirmed the deal was to settle this week.

In recent years, there have been rumors of a sale but Burris said this was the first serious offer the Krapfs considered. Burris said he handled the sale and Gary Betty of Deaton McCue helped with valuation of the leases.

Schaff said First Washington already owns the Shops of Greylin on Silverside Road and First State Plaza in Stanton.

"First Washington owns and manages 56 shopping centers from Delaware to North Carolina," said Schaff. "Another 25, they just manage."

Marilyn Minster of Minster's Jewelers, the first business to open at the Newark Shopping Center in 1954, said she has not yet talked to the incoming management. "The Krapfs told us they were pleased with the way First Washington handled the deal," said Minster. "I've been to the shopping center at Greylin Crest and that seems to be clean and well-managed."

Minster, who calls her Newark store the "original of the original," said it's a matter of becoming familiar with each other when a new owner takes over. "I don't really foresee any problems," she said. "We want to help each other."

The Newark Shopping Center was developed and operated by Jack Handloff from 1954 until the sale to Krapfcandoit. "For the past 10 years, the Krapfs have been going more into assisted living and retirement communities," said Burris. "They currently are developing another one in Alabama where they already have 19 of them."

Burris said First Washington has their own management team which will take over in the center. "They're having a brunch for the business owners in the center during the first week in September," Burris said.

Burris said he will probably spend more time at Krapf's facilities which he already manages in Alabama. "Krapf also has a development of single-family housing in downtown Milton, Del., that I imagine will get going more," said Burris.

The only other property operated in this area by the Krapfs, who are in the construction management business in New Castle County, is a shopping center on Concord Pike, said Burris.

CLASSIC CORVAIR FINISHES FIRST

Dave Ziegler put the final touches on his 1964 Corvair Monza convertible just before judging Saturday at the First State Corvair Club's annual show here. His wife, Patsy, president of the local group of Corvair enthusiasts, was behind the wheel.

The car shown here, just one of four Corvairs (in various states of restoration) they own, placed first in the "survivor" category, which is for cars that are driven frequently.

The two-day event included an autocross on Conectiv's Newark lot and drew 35 Corvairs from six states. Chevrolet produced Corvairs from 1960-69. Though they were popular and America's only rear-engine, air-cooled vehicle, the Corvair's fate was sealed in 1965 when a then-unknown consumer activist Ralph Nader published "Unsafe At Any Speed." The book alleged that the vehicles were dangerous. Later, federal studies proved Nader wrong but by that time production has ceased.

The Zieglers, who live in Pilgrim Gardens, have been members of the club for 13 years.

Landmark diner looking for direction and tenant with money

But out-of-state is not an option

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Gus Tsionas has a landmark diner available on Main Street for a willing investor with experience and a little cash.

"I need someone with experience," said property owner Gus Tsionas, "and a little bit of money to put in, so they will share the responsibility, too."

Tsionas said recent tenants of the diner have resulted in a lot of bills and a closed business at present.

As landlord, Tsionas said he pays almost $18,000 a year for utilities, taxes and other expenses, even when he has a tenant. One of his most recent tenants went bankrupt, according to Tsionas, and another was so far in debt he could not continue to operate.

"I had three different people interested in running the restaurant but I told them, they have to put in some money of their own," said Tsionas. "They didn't want to do that."

Tsionas, who owns Space II Pizza and the Astra Plaza Shopping Center on Main Street, already, said he is not sure a diner can be a viable business there, anymore.

"We have a lot of beautiful restaurants now, and a (Mexican-Hawaiian) one coming next door," Tsionas said this week. "I like the diner - it's my baby - but I just don't know if we can keep it as a diner."

Tsionas said he talked to the Newark city officials about moving it to better location out-of-state where it could be run by a person experienced in the diner business. "They said absolutely not," said Tsionas. "So I asked them if I could donate it to the city and they could pay the bills, but they said no, no, no."

Tsionas also offered to donate the property to the University of Delaware, but said they are not interested in acquiring it, either.

"There's no income, and every-day I have another little problem," said Tsionas. "I've had a lot of broken windows and a homeless person in there."

Despite the expenses and problems with tenants, Tsionas he wants to keep the diner in business on Main Street. "My family can not run it ourselves, though," said Tsionas. "You're gonna hear a lot of rumors, but these are the facts."

The Newark Diner originally opened in 1953 and was later called the Hollywood Diner, Jimmy's Diner, and Jude's Diner. Former manager Jude McDonald was honored by the New Castle County Historic Review Board for her maintenance of the diner's period look in 1996.

Two businessmen from New Jersey were the latest tenants to operate the business, opening it again as the Newark Diner in 1997.

City, university work on problems caused by drought

► DROUGHT, from 1

"We've eliminated all watering for horticulture and re-plumbed labs to recirculate water use there," University director of facilities management Richard Walter confirmed.

In addition to using all recycled water, some University operations are running on a four-day week, to save the water that would be used on the other three days.

Low-flow shower-heads are being installed wherever they do not exist already, and facilities management is performing a 100 percent leak audit.

"This is a big task here, we are checking (every type of plumbing) on the entire campus," Walter said.

With approval from city officials, Walter said the University has resorted to watering their football field with contaminated water from a city well on Academy Street in anticipation of the upcoming football season.

In addition, young, growing trees are being watered with recycled spring water pumped from a University-owned water retention pond into green bags or "gaitors," wrapped around the bottom of the tree trunks.

According to Walter, a massive education program will be set into motion as soon as students move into their dormitories.

Signs throughout campus and in locker rooms will warn people of mandated restrictions.

Luft said Newark's water use dropped to a low of 3.4 million gallons a day (mgd) last week but was back up to 3.98 mgd on Monday. "Our normal average is about 4.5 to 5 mgd and the students use about 1 mgd, so we would be back at 'normal' with the students' use," he said.

The stream level in White Clay Creek was up to 16 mgd on Monday and the water department was considering turning on the water plant briefly just to test the equipment, according to Luft.

"Our contract with United Water allows us to use the plant when the flow is 14 mgd," Luft noted.

The city is also negotiating with United to get additional water through two interconnections used in past droughts.

"United gets about 3 mgd from the Hoopes Reservoir in Wilmington, so we believe they would be able to sell us additional amounts," said Luft.

Other additional supplies could be available by Sept. 1 if the city gets two more wells in operation. "We're trying to work quickly with the state to get the one on state property near Glasgow High School in use," Luft said. "Another problem is that there are not that many well diggers around on short notice, but we also expect to have Well 11 (which has high iron content) in commission soon."

The city could also purchase more than their current 100,000 mgd from Artesian Water. "But their water's expensive," said Luft.

Delaware educator dies in Pennsylvania

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Wilmer Eugene Shue, 92, superintendent of the former Newark School District from 1945 to 1968, recently died in Johnstown, Pa., where he and his wife of 54 years, Marian, had lived since retirement.

Shue, one of 10 children, was born in Shirley Township, Pa., on Jan. 3, 1907. His baccalaureate degree was from Franklin and Marshall College and his masters degree from Columbia University.

He began his teaching career in the one room Colgate School near his home. When he arrived in Newark in 1945 the school system consisted of one three-story elementary school on the corner of Delaware Avenue and Academy Street and a junior/senior high school a little further down the block with a total enrollment of about 800 children.

His first new school here was Central Elementary on property now owned by the University of Delaware. He guided the Newark District through the tremendous post-war growth years and a building program which for several years required a new school a year, and once, two schools in a year. The local enrollment when he retired was in excess of 11,000 students.

He had a strong belief in the importance of the arts that was reflected in the fact that the first subject-matter supervisor he hired in Newark was in music. There was no music program in the one room school where he began his career so Shue would take a private music lesson at night and return to the classroom the next day to teach what he had learned to the children.

He also was very active in the Newark United Methodist Church and was one of the earliest supporters of the Newark Symphony Orchestra.

Shue

Many educational innovations came to the Newark schools during his tenure as superintendent. He was one of the early supporters of educational television and worked for the establishment of WHYI. One of the highlights of his career came in 1958 when he was selected as a delegate member of the American School Superintendents visit to the USSR.

Shue was known throughout the state for his work with the appointed school boards, and, when the law changed, with the elected school boards he had in Newark.

In his final year in office, the Newark Board named the middle school then under construction in his honor. That Tuesday night in the Board Room at 83 E. Main St. in Newark he was, in his words, "Speechless, humble and profoundly grateful."

Known now as the Shue-Medill Middle School in the Christina School District, the facility is located on Capital Trail in Newark.

Surprise! Emergencies happen indoors, too

IT MAKES ABSOLUTELY NO sense to have a statewide emergency communications system that only works consistently outside buildings. Yet, state of Delaware and Motorola officials claim the 800 Megahertz system connected by towers throughout the state was never designed to work inside. Such a system would have cost much more money, they say, and planners knew this.

Well, not many others in the state did, apparently. Towers for cellular communications, also used for the new system, received wide public scrutiny in New Castle County in 1995 and 1996.

Residents of Newark attended meetings in schools as well as in city council chambers for months to argue about the towers and health risks of cellular transmissions as well as the merits of the then-proposed 800 megahertz system.

Representatives from local police and emergency services spoke about the benefits — being able to communicate with each other instantly, anywhere, anytime in the most adverse circumstance was presented as the goal.

Well, believe it or not, firefighters have to enter burning buildings and paramedics called to attend people with heart attacks or other medical emergencies, very often find their patients inside a home.

These are common, everyday emergencies that require communication with other firefighters, doctors, and in the cases involving possible hazardous materials, experts outside the immediate and interior scene of concern.

Newark Police have not yet found a problem with their use of the system in the city and claim it still surpasses the old one. That is certainly good news.

Volunteer firefighter, emergency services employee, and current city councilmember John Farrell has experienced a different side of the situation. He has seen incidents where critical communication was delayed when it should not have been.

Does it make sense for a paramedic to leave the side of a man having a heart attack to go outside to get instructions from a doctor? Does it make sense for a fire chief to excuse himself from the middle of a fire to go outside to talk to the emergency communications center?

The worst-case scenario presented at those past meetings involved a major catastrophe with all types of police and emergency workers responding to assist over a large geographic area. At no time was such an event defined or described as one only occurring outdoors.

It would have made no sense, right? The state needs to re-examine the 800 megahertz system as soon as humanly possible and determine the best-case scenario to make it work as expected by those who need it most, today and tomorrow as well as in the event of extreme emergency.

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

FOUR DECADES AGO DURING my early years in the University of Delaware's Alumni Office, the late Thomas E. Brittingham Jr. of Wilmington and his wife made a generous offer to President John A. Perkins. Mr. Brittingham's travels had taken him to the Scandinavian countries on several occasions and he was favorably impressed by the young people he encountered there. Conscious, too, of the need to create better understanding among the peoples of all nations, he offered to support a scholarship program to bring promising students to Newark for one or more years of study.

The first students chosen for this pioneering program were: Jorunn Edwardsen, Norway; Gunnar Engilbertsson, Iceland; Carl Olaf-Homen, Finland; Anton Jansen, The Netherlands; and Hans C. Jondal, Sweden.

All of these Brittingham International Scholars, as they were known, appear to have been successful. Jorunn Edwardsen Jebsen became vice president of a firm in Osterdalen, Norway. Anton Jansen is an advertising consultant in Bunschoten, The Netherlands; and though I am not aware of Mr.

Engilbertsson's occupation, he lives in Reykjavik, Iceland's principal city.

The fifth scholar, and the one with whom I have maintained a friendship since his graduation, is Carl Olaf-Homen, a man who has enjoyed a brilliant career and today lives at Esbo on the Gulf of Finland not far from Helsinki.

In addition to the academic qualifications that brought him to Delaware, Carl was a runner of exceptional ability. He quickly became a member of the unbeaten 1960 Blue Hen track team and was an unbeaten, record-setting cross country runner. In the 1960 Middle Atlantic Conference track and field championship meet, he broke the two-mile record that had stood for 39 years and after returning to his homeland, he won both the 1,500-meter and 5,000-meter events in the Academic Championships of Finland.

Mr. Homen earned a bachelor of law degree at the University of Helsinki and just this year was awarded an honorary doctorate by Abo Akademi, Ostrobothnia.

He has held administrative positions with the Finnish Employers' Confederation, the Employers' Federation of Woodworking Industries, and the Industrial Insurance Co., Ltd.

In addition to membership on the boards of directors of major Finnish and international companies, he served for a year as his country's Secretary of State for Defense and continues to serve as a member of the High Court of Impeachment and as president of the League of Finnish-American Societies.

Fire sweeps barn and buildings on Gray Lomax farm

In the worst fire this section has seen in several years, the barn and house on the Gray Lomax farm, along the Cooch's Bridge-Elkton turnpike, about four miles from Newark, were totally destroyed late Monday afternoon.

Two large silos, a granary, implement shed, and other outbuildings were also consumed. After the smoke had cleared away, a small chicken house was all there remained of the group of buildings. A motor truck was saved.

Newark power bills are going down

The average Newark electric customer will be saving between $4 and $7 a month on his electric bill beginning in September once city council adopts an ordinance affording all electric customers here an 8.2 per cent reduction in their electric rates.

According to a spokesman for Newark's finance department, the average electric customer — like those having single homes in the Nottingham Green area — uses between 900 and 1,400 KWHs per month at a cost of between $50 and $75.

With the reduced rate, the average residential user would save between $4.10 and $6.15 per month, the spokesman said.

Pressure mounts...the latest PSC rate action has boosted citizen demands for a Public Advocate's office.

Public sentiment is churning up for a public advocate to represent the consumer interest before the Public Service Commission, in the wake of the $26 million electric rate increase granted to Delmarva Power Friday.

With the PSC's decision to grant the utility all of the increase it asked for, citizen interveners in the rate case are considering a push in the General Assembly to establish an office of a public advocate.

Relief due at Rt. 40 lights

The intersection of U.S. 40 and Del. routes 1 and 7 — given a failing grade by the Delaware Department of Transportation — may soon benefit from the entities that have apparently fueled the congestion.

The light on U.S. 40, which signals cars in and out of Eden Square, where Super G, Happy Harry's and Lowe's are located, was scheduled to be removed July 1.

The light is still there, but DelDOT has plans to provide relief.

Changing the timing of traffic signals along U.S. 40 and adding a third lane as an extension of the Del. 1 off ramp should help alleviate some congestion, according to Michelle Ackles, manager of public relations for DelDOT.

Canal beats Canadians in World Series finals

It would've been hard to find anyone three weeks ago that could've envisioned the Canal Senior All-Star softball team still playing this late in the summer, let alone winning the first two games of the Senior Softball World Series and advancing to Thursday's winner's bracket final.

That, however, is exactly what this team has accomplished.

Canal ripped West Portage, Mich. 10-3 Monday and survived a 8-3 scare against Canadian national champion Duncan, in British Columbia Tuesday to advance to Thursday night's contest against Pinole-Hercules, Cal., who defeated five-time defending world champion Naples, Fla. 1-0 Tuesday. The winner will play for the world title Saturday, needing just one more victory for the championship.

New Castle County begins 'Don't Clog Our Arteries!' campaign

Whether it's in our bodies or in our sewer pipes, too much grease is not good. So the New Castle County special services department, which maintains the county sewers, is beginning an informational campaign for residents and business owners to explain how grease clogs sewer lines and can cost county residents money.

"Most people think that the county maintains the sewers and is responsible for any costs involved when back-ups occur," said County spokesperson Linda A. Gould. "But since most blockages happen between the sewer main line and the house or business, it is actually the property owner's responsibility to maintain and clean it. That can be quite expensive!"

According to the County's brochure, grease is a major cause of blocked sewer lines and subsequent back-ups. The preventative measures minimally affect the individual's or business' lifestyle, but make a substantial difference to the amount of grease that collects in the sewer lines.

"The purpose of this campaign is to save money for New Castle County residents," said County Executive Thomas P. Gordon. "It helps residents save money two ways directly, by limiting the likelihood of a costly sewer problem on their property, and indirectly, by avoiding unnecessary spending of tax dollars on sewer main repairs."

Gould said that all residents and businesses can make a difference in the amount of grease entering the sewer lines. Households, industrial kitchens, restaurants, schools, fire halls and any facility that uses grease can receive a brochure explaining County Code limitations on grease outflow and what they can do to limit it.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

From: Marcia Adams
Newark

A standing ovation to Cindy Genau for her article in the Aug. 13th issue of the Post entitled "Would You Risk Your Life?"

I would also applaud the Post for their printing of the article when in recent weeks there has been much sensationalism in printing negative articles attacking the local police department. In a rush to judgment and an eagerness to reap profits, other newspapers seem to take great delight in focusing on a story when they do not have all the facts.

The officers of the Newark Police Department are the most professional and dedicated officers that you will find anywhere in the United States. They sacrifice time with their families to make sure that your families are safe. They are cursed at, spit upon, and assaulted with bottles.

We all owe a great deal to these men and women who work 24 hours a day, every weekend and every holiday.

If you think their job is easy, before you go to work tomorrow, put on a bullet-proof vest and kiss your family goodbye and hope you'll come home at the end of your shift.

UD should be proud of international students

► CHANCE, from 6

He is the author of the book, "The Finnish-Swedish Labor Market Dictionary."

Athletics have continued to play an important role in Carl's life. Among his many leadership positions have been those of Secretary General of the Finnish Olympic Committee, vice president of the Government Sports Council, president of the Finnish Amateur Athletic Association, president of the European Athletic Association, and president of the Organizing committee of the First World Championships in Athletics.

Everyone associated with the University of Delaware should be proud of the accomplishments of these international students who have so capably represented the University. But special commendation also is due the Brittingham family whose vision and financial support started them on the road to success.

■ The author, when not on the golf course, can be heard each fall as the familiar voice announcing University of Delaware home football games, a job he has done for four decades. Chance is a longtime Newark resident.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor
From: Marcia Adams
Newark

A standing ovation to Cindy Genau for her article in the Aug. 13th issue of the Post entitled "Would You Risk Your Life?"

I would also applaud the Post for their printing of the article when in recent weeks there has been much sensationalism in printing negative articles attacking the local police department. In a rush to judgment and an eagerness to reap profits, other newspapers seem to take great delight in focusing on a story when they do not have all the facts.

The officers of the Newark Police Department are the most professional and dedicated officers that you will find anywhere in the United States. They sacrifice time with their families to make sure that your families are safe. They are cursed at, spit upon, and assaulted with bottles.

We all owe a great deal to these men and women who work 24 hours a day, every weekend and every holiday.

If you think their job is easy, before you go to work tomorrow, put on a bullet-proof vest and kiss your family goodbye and hope you'll come home at the end of your shift.

What Does the tobacco settlement really mean for kids?

EVERYONE in the youth development field is talking about the $206 billion dollars that the tobacco companies have agreed to pay as part of the national tobacco settlement. Most people don't realize that the settlement includes a lot more than dollars.

First of all, the tobacco companies have agreed to limit youth access to tobacco products. This means no more free samples in areas where there are youth.

Several years ago, free tobacco products were being distributed from a booth outside the doors of the 4-H building at the State Fair. The settlement assures that won't happen again.

Also, the tobacco companies won't be able to distribute those free gifts to kids, anymore. No more hats, shirts, coolers or similar products without absolute proof of age. That's pretty good.

Kids, as walking advertisements for tobacco products, are a huge problem in some areas. I always wonder what parents are thinking when their kids walk out of the house wearing a Winston shirt or a Marlboro hat.

The settlement also will remove the tobacco companies from the sports arenas. No longer can they sponsor concerts or events with a significant youth audience or team sports such as football, baseball, basketball or hockey.

Tobacco brand names are also prohibited for stadiums and arenas. The days of Joe Camel are gone also. No cartoon characters are permitted in advertising, promotion or packaging of tobacco products.

Outdoor advertising will take a hit also as anything larger than a poster in arenas, malls, stadiums and the like is prohibited. Will all this work? It had better. More than four million adolescents smoke and about one million use spit tobacco. The prevalence of smoking among high school students increased from 27.5 percent in 1991 to 36.4 percent in 1997.

A national study asked high school seniors who smoked daily if they would still be smoking in five years. Only five percent said they would, but five years later 75 percent were still smoking.

Nicotine is a powerful addiction. I wish I could say that I had complete faith that the portion of the $206 billion set aside for adolescent tobacco prevention would be spent wisely, but past experience tells me to be cautious. Whenever large sums of money are present, strange things happen.

Despite all this we have a golden opportunity to make a significant impact on the health of future generations. The $206 billion can never even come close to making up for the damage done by tobacco, but it's up to us to make sure that we get our money's worth.

Hometown boys bring Maui to Main Street below) The new Maui Tacos opening on Main Street in September will feature decor such as the front of a 1960's VW minibus, walls filled with surfer paraphernalia, and a few rows of surfboards neatly organized on a rack dangling from the ceiling.

on a rack dangling from the ceiling.

"The concept was designed to give people an escape in their day," said McClelland, describing that the purpose of the restaurant is to bring the Maui experience to the everyday customer who may not have the opportunity to visit the island.

In addition to the very Maui decor, the restaurant will provide even more of an escape from the humdrum reality of non-vacation life by piping in daily broadcasts of Maui surf reports through radio and television.

Maui Tacos was conceived in Hawaii in 1993 by Mark Ellman, a nationally-known chef. According to Murphy and McClelland, Ellman moved from California to Maui where he opened a restaurant, but he missed the Mexican food that was so plentiful on the mainland. Eventually, Ellman bought a small taco stand in Maui and created Maui-style tacos.

In 1997, Blimpie International acquired the development rights to Maui Tacos, retaining Ellman as executive chef. They opened the first, of what is to be many, Maui Tacos restaurants in Dunwoody, Ga., a suburb of Atlanta.

Newark, along with Greenwich Village, N.Y., will serve as the second and third locations to house the new concept.

After McClelland was involved in an advertising research project that involved Maui Tacos, he decided to get in on the deal by opening one up in Newark with lifelong friend Murphy.

The two partners believe Main Street Newark is one of the best testing grounds for serving the restaurant's eclectic entrees since there would be no real competition with other restaurants downtown.

"One night someone might be in the mood for our food, and another night they might be in the mood for something different," said McClelland. "The restaurants here offer their own unique qualities and I am confident that Maui Tacos will do well in Newark."

Murphy said that while he and his partner have been traveling with their Maui Taco decorated apparel he has received many inquiries.

"We have run into people who have been to Hawaii and want to know when (the restaurant company) will open one up here," he said.

McClelland added, "Maui is about spirituality and a feeling of the ocean, the waves and a feeling of wholesomeness — a better place in life."

"Our hope is that they can close their eyes and envision themselves in Maui."

Wilma Theater is a unique experience

There are few theaters in the Delaware Valley, or anywhere else for that matter, that are as interesting, intimate and innovative as the Wilma Theater on Broad Street in Philadelphia. It began as a black box on the south side of Sanson Street many years ago.

When I heard they were moving to the prestigious location in 1996 across the street from the Academy of Music, I thought that was the end of this unique theater experience. I was wrong.

Even though they have a great new house on Broad Street with a great marquee and lobby, it still remains THE unique theater experience of the City of Brotherly Love. There is simply not a poor seat in the house of 300 seats and the acoustics are superb.

More important than those things, however, is the plays offered by the Wilma. The announcement of three of this season's four plays is out and you may read on to see for yourself.

The first production, on stage Sept. 8 to Oct. 10, is "The Three Musketeers." It is an adaptation of the work by Alexandre Dumas originally made by Theatre de la Jeune Lune. It was also presented at the Spoleto Festival in Charleston, S.C.

With a playfully witty esprit, the production to be seen next month reinvents the story, altering the setting and the age of the adventurers while still keeping with the spirit of the novel. I am told by my fellow arts writers that it succeeds in "...creating an intoxicating, swash-buckling, celebration of the artistic impulse and the power of human imagination."

I can hardly wait. I am, however, told that I must check my rapier at the door. Dam!

That will be followed from Nov. 10 to Dec. 12 by "The Tin Pan Alley Rag," a musical by Mark Saltzman. It is a fantasy which takes us to an imaginary meeting between two great American composers, Irving Berlin and Scott Joplin.

Each composer will then take the audience on a journey into the other's world. The music will include much of the output of both men. The work will present quite an interesting view of the two: Berlin, the Russian immigrant who couldn't read music or tell a chord from a key and Joplin, conservatory educated by a father born into slavery. There will be plenty of great tunes from the duo to keep you happy all evening long.

The third play of the Wilma season, Feb. 9 through March 12, is the latest play of the two time Oscar-award winning Tom Stoppard ("Shakespeare in Love" and "Brazil.") It is "The Invention of Love."

The play takes as its focus the secretive life and turbulent times of A. E. Housman. It is set in 1936, the year Housman died. It is filled with surprise and wonder as Housman is being ferried across the River Styx and meets with Moses Jackson and a very young Oscar Wilde.

The Stoppard opus equates Hades and the Oxford of Housman's youth. I think I will refrain from comment on that particular item!

The play examines the time when the "high" Victorian "morality" is under siege from the rampant Atheistic movement. It deals with the 1885 Criminal Law Amendment Bill, under which Wilde was tried, and the very nature of love itself.

The fourth play in the season has not yet been announced and is being simply called "The Wilma Wild Card." We know it is scheduled from May 3 to June 4, but not much else. Oh yes, we know it will be good. After all, it is part of the 1999-2000 season of the Wilma Theater.

Ticket prices at the Wilma are far below what one would expect to pay for this quality professional theater.

Student tickets for the entire season begin at only $24. That cost is for all four plays, not for each one. Adult prices for the entire season begin at $80. The prices are not based on the quality of the viewing from each seat. They are based on the night of the week you want to go.

There is a colorful, free brochure with all the prices and other details available from the Wilma Theater, 265 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 19107. Or you may call them at 215-893-0895.

Enjoy!

Mental health mentoring program comes to Delaware

The Mental Health Association in Delaware has received a grant from the Delaware Division of Vocational Rehabilitation for the operation of the "Pathways to Professional Employment" program conceived in Minnesota.

The program matches unemployed individuals with mentors in a professional field compatible with their abilities and interests. In this way individuals can develop "warm" contacts in their chosen profession and learn more about the current demands and the latest technological advances.

"Both mentors and job seekers are finding the relationships rewarding, and individuals are able to learn more information about returning to employment from someone in the field," said Dawn Shupe, community educator at the Mental Health Association. "This experience surpasses doing research at the library or on the internet."

Individuals who have been off from work for some time due to an illness have lost contact with their former colleagues or co-workers because they have not worked for several years. Others lose sight of their abilities, skills, and talents. They don't have the self confidence they once had.

"I chose to be a mentor so that I could help someone else succeed in their goal to return to work after their career has been interrupted due to illness," said Bill Starnes of Delmarva Limited Financial Consultants. "I hope that I can help inspire and restore the confidence a mentee needs in order to obtain career success."

Mentors can help individuals reach beyond their self-doubts and discouragement to obtain career success. In addition to offering support, mentors provide a network into the individual's professional field.

According to a study conducted by the Center for Psychiatric Rehabilitation at Boston University on "Employment Achievements of Professionals and Managers with Psychiatric Disabilities," 163 out of 233 participants (70 percent) reported full-time employment.

Another seven percent of all participants have been self-employed while 60 percent of the participants in the study have held their current position for more than two years. In addition, they felt very confident about their ability to keep their job.

The majority of participants (69 percent) report that their job responsibilities increased since starting their job.

"We believe individuals experiencing a mental illness should be given an opportunity to find employment," said Shupe. "They are still capable of performing a job."

Individuals interested in learning more about how to be assigned a mentor should call the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation office closest to their home: Wilmington 761-8300, New Castle 326-8930, or Newark 368-6980.

Persons interested in becoming a mentor should call Dawn Shupe at 656-8308 or 1-800-287-6423.

Protect your skin from itchy summer rashes

According to Mayo Clinic's Guide to Self-Care, poison ivy and poison oak produce a colorless, odorless oil, called resin, which can cause an allergic skin reaction. Red, swollen skin, blisters and severe itching can develop within two days of exposure, although sometimes symptoms appear after only a few hours.

The rash normally peaks five days after exposure and disappears within two weeks. Allergic reactions also can be caused by poison sumac, heliotrope, ragweed, daisies, chrysanthemums, sagebrush, wormwood, celery, oranges, limes and potatoes.

Tips for avoiding and reducing the itch:

- Learn to recognize poisonous plants. Poison ivy leaves are oval and spoon-shaped. Poison oak leaves resemble oak leaves. Both plants' leaves grow in clusters of three and change from green to red in the fall.
- Wear protective clothing.
- Wash the harmful resin off your skin with soap within five or 10 minutes after exposure. You may be able to reduce the severity of or avoid a reaction.
- Do not try to remove resin by taking a bath which can spread resin to other areas of your body.
- Wash any clothing that may have been in contact with the plant, including jewelry, shoes and shoe-strings. Resin can easily transfer from clothing to skin.

- Be careful around pets that may have walked through irritating plants. Resin easily transfers from pet hair to human skin.

- Try not to scratch.
- Over-the-counter preparations such as Calamine lotion or hydrocortisone cream can help ease itching. Or try a paste of baking soda or Epsom salts in water.
- Applying alcohol can make itching worse.

- Creams and lotions do not help much when blisters are open, but they can be used again when blisters close.

- Cover open blisters with sterile gauze to prevent infection.

If you have a severe reaction, or when your eyes, face or genital areas are involved, contact your healthcare provider.

Easter Seals ranked first

As it has for the past 19 years, Easter Seals National again ranked first among the National Health Council's members representing voluntary health agencies for allocating 94 percent of program dollars, or $346 million, to provide direct client services.

This is more than the total spent on patient services by all other member organizations nationwide.

The National Health Council's annual report on Voluntary Health Agency Revenue and Expenses, "A Consumer's Guide to Wise Philanthropic Giving," provides key financial information on 39 of its member agencies.

Released in June 1999, it reports that American voluntary health agencies spent a record $5.7 billion to combat disease and disability in FY 1997, the last year for which uniform audited data are available.

According to Sandra J. Tuttle, president and CEO of Easter Seals Delaware and Maryland's Eastern Shore, Easter Seals is very fortunate to benefit from the tremendous local support of individuals, corporations, foundations and service clubs. We know the need for the programs and services that we provide to people with disabilities is great, and with the continued support of the community, we hope to meet those needs. We will continue to allocate a large percentage of program dollars directly to the services for those with disabilities."

Blue Hens prep for 1999 season

UD opens
Sept. 2 against
W&M

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

GUARDED OPTIMISM reigned as the University of Delaware football team began practice last week in preparation for its 1999 season.

The Blue Hens, coming off a 7-4 season, were selected second behind defending national champion Massachusetts in the preseason Atlantic-10 coaches and media poll. Delaware has also been selected anywhere from No. 4 to No. 24 in various preseason national rankings.

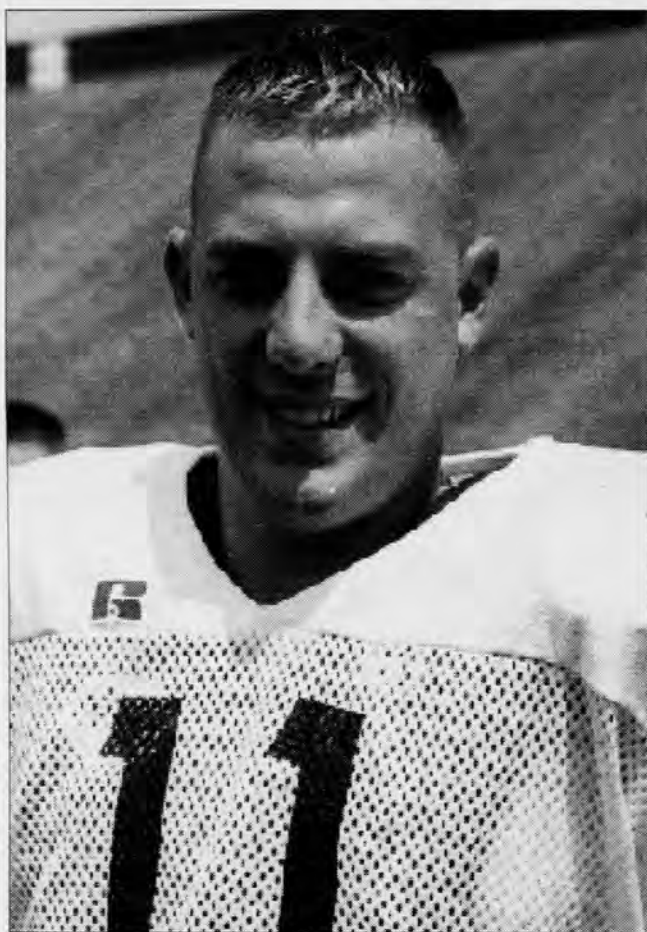

After being left out of the NCAA I-AA playoffs last season, the Hens have returned to Newark with a renewed enthusiasm, something that often appeared missing in last season's play — especially on the defensive side of the ball.

The fall off was most evident in losses to Villanova (34-31), William & Mary (52-45), Maine (39-27) and Richmond (45-6). In all except the Richmond game, the offense scored more than enough points to win.

"In some aspects, a season like last year was good for us," said Delaware coach Tubby Raymond, who enters this season with a 277-107-3 all-time record. "I think last year we had the general attitude that we would just automatically ascend to the playoffs. We were inconsistent, took some things for granted and lost some games we should not have."

Throughout last season, Raymond expressed dismay at the spirit, enthusiasm and intensity of the defense. There is hope and help on the way.

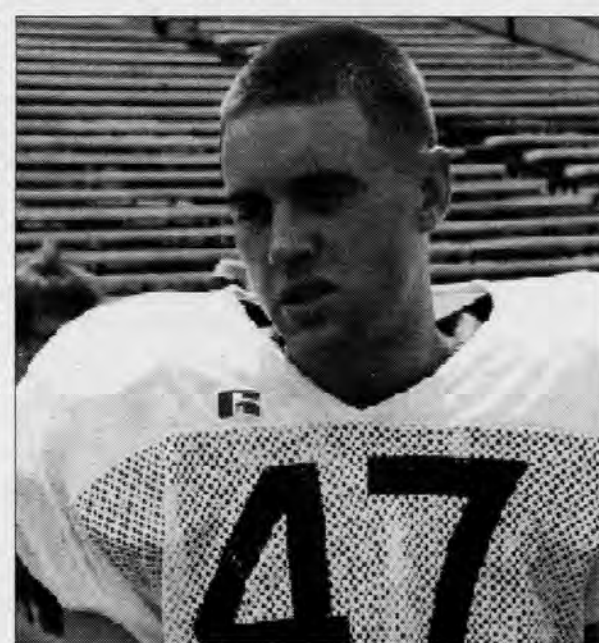

Delaware has added transfers Travis Blomgren (Penn State), Rashawn Dixon (Nassau Community College) and Melvin Steele (Nassau). Blomgren and Dixon play in the secondary while Steele is a linebacker. All should see playing time and all should help.

The University of Delaware's running game will be aided by Newark High graduates Butter Pressey (2) and Butch Patrick (17) while the quarterback position will be manned by Matt Nagy (lower left). Backup quarterback will be captain Brian Ginn (14).

Newark High's Barry Zehnder is another local player on the Blue Hens' roster this season.

HEIDI SCHEING

"These guys could really help us," Raymond said. "Blomgren plays a notch higher than we're used to. That should help bring everybody else up."

Blomgren's football stock is rich, playing at Central Bucks West (Pa.) in high school and moving on to Penn State before eventually transferring in January.

The additions, mixed in with an already strong group of linebackers and a more experienced defensive front, help make a strong case for the Hens having a much improved defensive unit.

Offensively, Delaware will certainly miss All-American receiver Eddie Conti. However, many of its other weapons return.

Matt Nagy is back at quarterback after an explosive 1998 season that saw him throw for 2,916 yards and nine consecutive 200-yard plus games.

Also back is Brian Ginn, who returns from knee surgery. Ginn was the starter for the first four games before suffering torn ligaments against West Chester. The respect held for him is obvious by the fact that he was elected the team's captain.

"Everybody recognizes Nagy is the starter," Raymond said. "But the quarterback situation as a whole should be better. Last year, we really only had one quarterback after

Reed Construction wins Newark and state titles

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Reed Construction rallied for three runs in the final inning of the nightcap, then held off a New Image/Bud Light scoring bid to win 5-4 and capture the Newark Parks and Recreation's Adult Softball League Blue League playoff title last Monday at Handloff Field.

Reed then capped its season last weekend by posting a 6-0 record enroute to winning the Class D state championship at Delcastle Recreation Area. Reed defeated Diamond Boyz 11-2 in the championship game.

Pitcher Jeff Lewis posted a 4-0 record in that span, while John Permar went 2-0.

Reed, which finished second in the Blue League standings to New Image during the regular season, beat New Image in an early-round playoff game by rallying for 13 runs in the final inning to take a 21-15 lead.

New Image, which won the Class C state championship earlier this season, then scored five runs. But Lewis came on in relief with the bases loaded and got the final two outs.

In the finals, needing to win both games, New Image demolished Reed 18-6 in the opener. New Image's Shane Noonan had a two-run homer and a two-run double and Craig Callahan had a two-run single.

New Image took a 4-1 lead in the second game courtesy of two RBIs from Rob Rash and one from Callahan.

Matt Bonk had taken advantage of some sloppy throwing by hustling home from third in the second inning to make it 2-1.

But a throwing error by New Image pitcher Mike Brogan, who went the distance in both games, put Reed first baseman Bill Brakely on with one out in the final inning.

Keith Stonebreaker and Dan Frank singled home one run during the comeback, and Permar drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly.

In the bottom of the inning, New Image's Mike Clarke singled, but on an ensuing ground ball, was forced out at second. During the play, Clarke collided with Reed's second baseman, drawing vociferous protests from New Image.

Lewis, who went the distance, then allowed a single to put two runners on. But he got out of the jam by getting a 4-6 groundout.

"This is great," said Lewis, a former Fair Hill Auto player until that team folded two years ago. "You play all these years and never get a chance to play in the championship game."

"It was really a pleasure. A great bunch of guys. This team deserves it. We fought hard all year long. Everybody on the bench played."

Lewis said the save in the 21-20 game was the first of his career in the final inning of a game.

"I'm 50 years old. I've been playing ball for 26 straight years and it's the first save where I ever walked right in there (in a similar situation)," Lewis said. "I've come in and pitched a couple games in mop-up (duty). But (Monday) was great."

The game was played under protest by New Image because of the call in the final inning, but the outcome was ruled final.

Delaware foriball coach Tubby Raymond will begin his 34th season as the Blue Hen football coach.

A-10 conference should be the nation's toughest once again

Ginn went down and we really put Nagy in a glass cage. We don't have to do that anymore. We can play with more offensive abandon."

The backfield will feature returning starters Craig Cummings and Derrick Downs with local players Butter Pressey (Newark), Mike Watkins (St. Mark's) and Butch Patrick (Newark) also expected to see playing time.

Patrick played cornerback last season and may play some offensively and defensively.

Sophomore Jamin Elliott steps in as the No. 1 receiving option. He caught 23 passes last season and was a nice complement to Conti. Others expected to contribute at receiver are redshirt freshman Joe Clark, sophomore Mike Medley and freshmen Keith Griesbaum and Corey Howard.

Another local product, Jason

VanKerkhoven (St. Mark's) was slated to be the starting tight end, but a broken ankle this week will force him to miss the opener against William & Mary. The coaching staff hopes for him to return for the game at The Citadel.

The offensive line was hurt by the graduation All-American Brian Cook and tackles Keith Cregan and Chris Nocco. However, center Jeff Fiss returns, as do tackles Chris Phipps and Jim Stull. All have started before.

Letterwinners Ralph Gazzillo, Chris Bechtel, Adam Wachter and Ken McNair should battle for the guard spots.

The schedule appears to be challenging. Delaware opens up Thursday night Sept. 2 at home against William & Mary. Night road games at The Citadel (Sept. 11) and James Madison (Sept. 25) follow.

Defending league champion Richmond visits Newark Oct. 2.

Defending Patriot League champ (and NCAA quarterfinalist) Lehigh is UD's homecoming game Oct. 16. A week later, defending national champion UMass comes to Newark.

Games at Northeastern (Oct. 30) and at New Hampshire (Nov. 6) follow. The Hens close-out the regular season with home games against Rhode Island (Nov. 13) and rival Villanova (Nov. 20).

"Really, anybody can win this conference," Raymond said of the A-10. "It's a very difficult league."

Drought causes turf war at UD

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Considering that the Mid-Atlantic region is in the midst of its driest summer on record, you could excuse someone like University of Delaware sports turf technician Brian Cool if he, well, lost his cool.

After all, when you're an expert in growing lush, firm turf for athletes to gambol on and dive face first into, you'd think weeks of 90-degree temperatures without rain might cause you to lose some sleep.

But Cool and the UD groundskeepers have managed to avoid disaster so far. And thanks to some grass-roots work begun by Cool when he arrived here a year ago, watering until the drought emergency was called, and the purchase of tens of thousands of gallons of well-water, when the Blue Hens open their football season at home Sept. 2, fans will see a sight for eyes glazed over

Charcoal banned

The University of Delaware athletics department has temporarily banned the use of charcoal or gas grills at UD athletic events because of the drought.

The use of any grills is prohibited in the parking lots surrounding Delaware Stadium beginning with the first home football game - 7 p.m. Sept. 2 against William & Mary - and will continue until the state-wide drought restrictions have been lifted.

Edgar Johnson, Delaware's director of athletics, cited the extremely dry areas around the stadium as one reason for the ban.

by the Big Brownout of 1999 - a bright green field.

Cool, a former history teacher and baseball coach in his hometown of Eugene, Ore., began cutting his turf teeth in 1989 for the Kansas City Royals' Class A team there.

He then moved on to groundskeeping jobs in Richmond, Va., for the Atlanta Braves' AAA team, and Florida, where he worked at the Kansas City and Florida Marlins spring training sites.

The latter site, which he was in charge of, consisted of 20 acres of Bermuda grass playing surfaces and 40 acres of outside ornamental areas.

"Last year in Florida was a bigger test for me," said Cool, who got a World Series ring when the Marlins won the title in 1997. "You had wild fires and pretty serious drought conditions."

"You have retention ponds down there, so you're using so-called reclaimed water and what happens is we were competing for water with all the golf courses and some nights you got water and some nights you didn't."

Cool said the main thing that's bothered him since coming to work for Delaware has been relegated to a laborer.

"It's not sour grapes here, but they don't know anything about water management, especially for playing surfaces," Cool said.

He cited prior overwatering of the football field, which didn't allow the roots to force themselves to grow deeper to seek moisture, thus producing a less stable surface for 220-pound linemen, as one practice he's managed to change.

The "root zone" is now a few inches deeper and the surface more stable, Cool said.

In addition, Cool said playing fields in prime condition can also be an excellent recruiting tool.

Despite his desire to do things his way, Cool said he's all ears when it comes to suggestions from the people who get down and dirty on his playing surfaces.

"You've got to listen to the players and the coaching staff, because they're the ones that tell you whether a field is any good or not," Cool said. "They're your ultimate client."

Cool's company, Cool Sports Turf Services, meanwhile, has drawn rave reviews for getting the once-lackluster Eagles practice fields near Veterans Stadium in prime condition. The company is also contracted to take care of the Eagles' training camp fields at Lehigh University.

Delaware for iball coach Tubby Raymond will begin his 34th season as the Blue Hen football coach.

A-10 conference should be the nation's toughest once again

► HENS, from 15

Ginn went down and we really put Nagy in a glass cage. We don't have to do that anymore. We can play with more offensive abandon."

The backfield will feature returning starters Craig Cummings and Derrick Downs with local players Butter Pressey (Newark), Mike Watkins (St. Mark's) and Butch Patrick (Newark) also expected to see playing time.

Patrick played cornerback last season and may play some offensively and defensively.

Sophomore Jamin Elliott steps in as the No. 1 receiving option. He caught 23 passes last season and was a nice complement to Conti. Others expected to contribute at receiver are redshirt freshman Joe Clark, sophomore Mike Medley and freshmen Keith Griesbaum and Corey Howard.

Another local product, Jason

VanKerkhoven (St. Mark's) was slated to be the starting tight end, but a broken ankle this week will force him to miss the opener against William & Mary. The coaching staff hopes for him to return for the game at The Citadel.

The offensive line was hurt by the graduation All-American Brian Cook and tackles Keith Cregan and Chris Nocco. However, center Jeff Fiss returns, as do tackles Chris Phipps and Jim Stull. All have started before.

Letterwinners Ralph Gazzillo, Chris Bechtel, Adam Wachter and Ken McNair should battle for the guard spots.

The schedule appears to be challenging. Delaware opens up Thursday night Sept. 2 at home against William & Mary. Night road games at The Citadel (Sept. 11) and James Madison (Sept. 25) follow.

Defending league champion Richmond visits Newark Oct. 2.

Defending Patriot League champ (and NCAA quarterfinalist) Lehigh is UD's homecoming game Oct. 16. A week later, defending national champion UMass comes to Newark.

Games at Northeastern (Oct. 30) and at New Hampshire (Nov. 6) follow. The Hens close-out the regular season with home games against Rhode Island (Nov. 13) and rival Villanova (Nov. 20).

"Really, anybody can win this conference," Raymond said of the A-10. "It's a very difficult league."

NOTES - Additional local players on the Blue Hen roster include redshirt freshman Barry Zehnder from Newark High, sophomore James Tillman from Christiana High and Kevin Bock of St. Mark's. Offensive tackle Jim Stull, defensive lineman Mike Cecere and linebacker Brian McKenna were named to preseason all-conference first team. Quarterback Matt Nagy was named to second team.

Experience key to Newark soccer

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Buoyed by the loss of only a few players to graduation, Newark High's boys soccer team heads into preseason training camp on an optimistic note.

"We have a real nice group of players coming back," said Hugh Mitchell, who is in his 11th season as the Yellowjackets' head coach.

"We should be solid defensively and through the midfield," Mitchell said. "(Scoring) is one thing we need to improve this year. We only lost three or four games last year and that's where we failed."

One key returning forward is junior Lornny Antwi, whom Mitchell called the team's leading playmaker.

Also expected to start or get major playing time are senior Jason Klein, and sophomores Alex Rawles and Nate Bush.

"We'll be running one, two, or three forwards this season depending on who we're playing and how we're playing," Mitchell said.

At midfield, senior Noah Thomas is a returning first team all-state selection. Also returning are seniors Dave Sylvester and David Von Steuben, and juniors Dale Jones and Andy Donovan, who was the sweeper back last season.

Sylvester's brother, sophomore Alan Sylvester, is a transfer from Wilmington Charter School and will also see some action at midfield along with Klein and Bush.

The fullbacks are sophomore sweeper Greg Slater, seniors Mike Cassel and Brian Parris, and junior Jarrett Morris.

Senior Colin Burns has the inside track to the starting position, while junior Dan Frick should also see some playing time.

Several other unnamed players may also make an impact this season.

"We have a lot of tough sophomores and juniors who will be competing for some playing time," Mitchell said.

Noah and Sylvester are both returning captains, while Cassel and Colin Burns will join them in that role.

Newark's new junior varsity coach is Matt Hammond, formerly of Christiana High, and the freshman coach is Brian Gillespie.

Mitchell said he expects the usual "big four" in Blue Hen Conference Flight A - Christiana, Glasgow, Alexis I. du Pont and Newark - to once again be the favorites.

In addition, Caravel and Milford dropped Newark from its schedule, and tougher Sussex Central and Salesianum have been added.

Add to those nonconference games the usual difficult battles against St. Mark's and Dover and Mitchell had reason to call the upcoming season a "killer schedule."

"We'd better be deep," Mitchell said.

The Yellowjackets start with tough Middletown at home Sept. 16. Other home games are against Christiana, Glasgow, Salesianum and A.I.

Mitchell also said this year's drought has caused him to change some of his training methods because the practice field is harder than ever.

"This year's preseason will be unique in a lot of ways and one of the ways is how we train our kids," Mitchell said. "Hopefully, the coaches will be prudent on how they're going to work them and run them. If you use cleats, you're going to have some ankle and leg problems; flats (sneakers) slipping and sliding because of the dead grass and the punishment your legs are going to take."

"It's going to present problems we've never coached before and that means a lot of rest and a lot of whirlpool treatments."

Mitchell said increased running on a track instead of on a practice field may help cardiovascular-wise, but not tactically.

"You've got to run with the ball," Mitchell said. "It doesn't do much for your touch without the ball or to teach strategy."

Groundskeepers fight drought battle

► DROUGHT, from 16

ey teams, meanwhile, aren't as fortunate as the football team because of the no-water restriction.

Although both their practice fields and game fields aren't as hard and lifeless as the artificial surface of Rullo Stadium, brown is their primary color.

And since watering will only be done to the football stadium field and practice fields, they'll have to rely on Mother Nature to replenish them.

Hens' soccer coach Marc Samonisky said his practice field was in better condition than his game field by the end of last year.

"They're just good," Samonisky said. "If (Cool is) given an opportunity to work on these grass fields he gets them as good as they can be. He's fantastic. We can't afford to lose him."

Samonisky said he's not sure if the fields have become so cement-like that they're dangerous.

"I've already warned the kids," Samonisky said. "It's just going to be hard. We need to pray for a little rain. Do a rain dance, will you?"

Cool didn't mention if a rain dance is included in his tricks of the trade. But he did work for the Atlanta Braves once, didn't he?

Former St. Mark's teacher and coach, Bruce Thompson, won the Super Heavyweight Division at the National Bodybuilding Title in Pittsburgh.

Thompson wins national title

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Bruce Thompson of Newark had been in a lot of big bodybuilding competitions before, and had won everything from a state title to a third-place finish in a national competition.

But all the years of hard work paid off like never before on July 24 when Thompson won the Super Heavyweight Division at the National Title in Pittsburgh.

The 41-year-old Thompson, who entered the competition at 6 feet, two inches tall and 235 pounds, called it the biggest title he's ever won.

Thompson faced competition from about 50 other bodybuilders in the masters division (40-and-older). It was also the first masters bodybuilding title ever won by a Delawarean in national competition, Thompson said.

"For my body, I get real hard and I get a lot of definition at the same time," said Thompson on what his best assets are. "If you get too lean, you look like a string bean. Keeping good size and getting harder than anyone else are keys. A lot of guys are big, but they're not real hard."

Thompson, who owns Training Center Gym near New Castle, has been around training rooms and gyms all his life. He played baseball mainly until he tore a rotator cuff as a freshman at West Chester University.

He then earned a masters degree from the University of Delaware in exercise physiology and became a health and physical education teacher and helped coach three sports, including baseball, for 11 years at St. Mark's High. For the past nine years, he's done the same at Stanton Middle School.

Thompson began competing as a bodybuilder in 1986, prompted by some friends who told him how well-defined he was. He's competed in more than 60 shows and won the Overall Title at the 1993 Delaware State Championships.

"I guess I did a lot of different sports, and was coaching three sports, and I was doing a lot of training," said Thompson, who then cut out every other sport and began concentrating on bodybuilding.

His training regimen of weightlifting and some cardiovascular work can last three to four hours a day, six days a week. When leading up to competition, Thompson begins a 16-week diet that begins with eliminating junk foods, milk products and bread.

Pasta, fruits, rice, spinach, broccoli, egg whites, turkey and chicken comprise much of his diet.

"Once you get into the habit of eating, it's really easy," Thompson said. "You just get up and eat and pack you're whole meal for the day."

In 1990, Thompson won Tall Class at the Mr. USA competition and won Mr. Delaware a couple times. Last year, he finished third at the competition he won this year.

"This year I was really calm and confident," Thompson said. "You just never know who's going to show up. As you get older, you learn to just wait. You don't really worry about anyone else."

"Being a heavyweight, you're always the last the judges see. I've been on at 1 a.m. I left New York at 2:30 in the morning one time."

"You just have to learn to kick back and relax. It doesn't help because sometimes guys burn up a lot of nervous energy and sometimes they're dead (tired)."

Although Thompson is "giving his joints a break," his plate is still full. The school year starts soon, he has to keep his website (muscleforum@aol.com) updated, and he also has a five-year-old television show - Muscle Fitness Forum - on Suburban Cable Channel 28 at 7 p.m. every Wednesday night.

"It's great," Thompson said of television. "You're pretty much on your own and you can talk about whatever you want."

Thompson's co-host is also his training partner, Annie Klépacki, who is gearing up for competition herself.

"She's very strong with every movement and she's there right with me," Thompson said. "I have to keep up or she'll embarrass me."

As for flaunting his championship body at the beach or poolside, Thompson said that's not something accomplished bodybuilders do.

"The first question (from students) is, 'How much can you lift?'" Thompson said with a chuckle.

"A lot of bodybuilders try to stay covered up. I don't walk around the mall with a tank top. After a while, it's nice to know that people recognize you. Sometimes it's 98 degrees out and you're asking yourself, 'Why am I wearing this sweater?'"

"I try to be a good role model, work out and eat well. As a teacher, I think that's important."

ShopRite program will fight hunger in the community

ShopRite Supermarkets has announced a community level program to help local service organizations greatly expand their mission to feed the hungry.

By making a first-year total of more than $1 million available to community kitchens, shelters and care centers for their use at food banks, the ShopRite program will have the effect of putting up to $14 million worth of food on the plates of those in need.

"Hunger affects one out of every nine Americans, including people from all walks of life and in every neighborhood," said Patricia Beebe, executive director of Food Bank of Delaware. "For every $1 that ShopRite puts on account for one of the agencies that uses the Food Bank, we estimate that agency will go away with $14 million worth of food for the people it serves."

Called Partners in Caring, the program fights hunger by donating a total of over $1 million in local communities via the 180 ShopRite supermarkets located in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Delaware.

Each store selects service organizations in its local area to receive credits at a regional food bank of the Second Harvest network, such as Food Bank of Delaware. These credits cover the cost incurred by local organizations in obtaining food from the food bank.

"Partners in Caring rests on the idea that ShopRite is able to give because of the patronage of the customers in our communities," said Thomas Infusino, CEO of Wakefern Food Corporation, the purchasing and marketing cooperative serving ShopRite supermarkets.

Infusino noted that several ShopRite suppliers also serve as partners in the program, including Proctor & Gamble, Newman Products, Progresso, Campbell's, Kraft, Kimberly Clark, Nabisco and Coca-Cola.

He made special note of General Mills, makers of Cheerios and other well-known breakfast cereals, which is producing a special Partners in Caring package of Cheerios to help focus attention on the program.

Wakefern Food Corporation is a retailer-owned cooperative and the wholesale merchandising and distributing arm for all ShopRite supermarkets.

Visit ShopRite's web site at www.shoprite.com or call 1-800-SHOPRITE for more information.

Bell Atlantic recycling phones

Bell Atlantic Mobile has launched a program aimed at putting old and unused wireless phones to work for the good of the community. The Company's "Wireless at Work" Phone Recycling Program will allow wireless phone customers in the Philadelphia, southern New Jersey and Delaware areas to recycle their unused cellular phones by donating their equipment to Bell Atlantic Mobile-sponsored agencies.

Bell Atlantic Mobile will work with non-profit community groups throughout the region to reprogram the donated phones to dial 9-1-1 at the touch of a button, and then will return the phones to the groups where they will help individuals and communities improve security and emergency communications.

"The evolution of wireless phones from analog to digital and the appeal of newer, smaller handsets, have produced a large supply of old, unused equipment sitting in desks, cabinets and even toy boxes throughout the area," said John Stratton, president of Bell Atlantic

Mobile's Tri-State Region. "Our objective is to reclaim those phones and put them into the hands of people who need emergency communications."

The program is open to any qualifying community service organization willing to serve as a collection point for the used phone equipment.

For information about how to participate in the recycling program and become a sponsored agency, please contact Bell Atlantic Mobile's Recycling Coordinator at (215) 638-5585.

Changes at Iron Hill Brewery

Iron Hill Brewery & Restaurant on Main Street announced the completion of renovations to their Newark brewpub which added 35 seats to the restaurant and converted the billiards room to a dining room.

Kevin Finn, one of Iron Hill's partners, said the billiards tables were removed and a mahogany and glass wall was added to separate the room from the bar. They also recreated their signature copper ceiling in the room. "It enables us to accommodate larger parties in a non-smoking dining room," Finn said.

Iron Hill also recently completed a menu change that added new items, including Conch Chowder, Smoked Trout Salad, Maple Glazed Chicken Pizza with leeks, walnuts and Granny Smith Apples, and Rock Shrimp and Andouille Etouffe—a classic Cajun dish served over rice.

"Sharing Christ with each other and the community"

Openings for new Section 8 applicants

For the first time in almost a decade, New Castle County is accepting new applications for the Federal Section and Housing Assistance program. Currently there are 1,613 households in New Castle County receiving Section 8 vouchers and 293 additional will receive assistance.

Current spending on the program is projected to increase from $9 million to $11 million in Federal dollars.

The County's new "Best Neighbor" policy also focuses on the needs of both the client and the community. For the first time, the Gordon Administration has instituted a Case Management System.

"Not only is our goal maximum efficiency, we also want our Section 8 recipients to be great neighbors," said community services general manager Diane Baker.

Two-person teams will work with Section 8 recipients throughout their involvement in the program to ensure that clients are not lost in the shuffle and that a more thorough oversight process is in place.

Upon receiving the application, interested individuals should fill it out and return it by mail to New Castle County no later than Sept. 18. After 4 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 18, no further applications will be accepted.

In addition to filing the application, applicants will be responsible for providing documentation on any criminal history. A history of drug related or violence related crime will disqualify any who wish to participate. Another critical element will be proof of school attendance by school-aged children.

Once the deadline for receipt of applications has passed, the review process should take approximately 60 to 90 days, depending on the volume of applications received.

Interested residents should call 395-5555 to arrange for an application to be mailed to them. Applications may also be obtained at the following locations: New Castle County Government Center, 87 Reads Way, New Castle; City/County Building, 800 N. French St., Wilmington; Section 8 Office, Appoquinimink Library, 118 Silver Lake Rd., Middletown; Bear Library, 101 Governor's Place, Bear; Newark Library, 750 Library Ave., Newark; and Kirkwood Library, 6000 Kirkwood Hwy., Wilmington.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM PUBLIC PARTICIPATION MEETING

The Council on Transportation, the Dover Kent Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) and the Wilmington Metropolitan Planning Organization (WILMAPCO) are jointly sponsoring meetings to solicit public participation and review the MPO's transportation projects and DelDOT's proposed Capital Improvement Program (CIP) for Fiscal Years 2001-2006.

Interested citizens are invited and encouraged to attend these meetings and to provide their suggestions on shaping Delaware's future transportation program. The meetings provide and opportunity to review the adopted CIP for Fiscal Years 2000-2005 and to suggest transportation projects and/or services for the upcoming CIP for Fiscal Years 2001-2006. Input gathered during September meetings is crucial to the development of the draft 2001-2006 CIP, which will be available for review in January 2000.

Each meeting will have an informal workshop session beginning at 6:00 p.m., followed by an auditorium session at 7:00 p.m. A court reporter will be available during both sessions to record formal comments. Interested persons are also invited to submit written comments during the public meeting process and these also will be included in the formal record of the CIP meetings. The meetings will be held:

> New Castle County at the Stanton Middle School, The Audium, 1800 Limestone Rd., Wilmington, on Thursday, September 9, 1999. Workshop Session - 6:00 p.m. Auditorium Session - 7:00 p.m.

> Kent County at the DelDOT Administration Building, North, Center, & South Conference Rooms, 800 Bay Rd., Dover, on Wednesday, September 22, 1999. Workshop Session - 6:00 p.m. Auditorium Session - 7:00 p.m.

> Sussex County at the DelDOT South District office, Conference Room, US 13, Georgetown, on Thursday, September 23, 1999. Workshop Session - 6:00 p.m. Auditorium Session - 7:00 p.m.

The Council on Transportation is composed of citizen representatives from every county in the state. Members are appointed by the Governor. The MPO's are composed of representatives from state, county and local governments, and citizen and technical representatives. Mandated by Subsection 8409, Chapter 84, Title 29 of the Delaware Code, the meetings are designed to ensure that the public has ample opportunity to participate in the planning process.

If requested in advance, DelDOT will make available the services of an interpreter for the hearing impaired. If an interpreter is desired, please make the request by phone or mail to DelDOT. Questions, comments or written material can be submitted to: Michele C. Ackles, Manager, External Affairs, Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 778, Dover, Delaware 19903. or call 1-800-652-5600 or (302) 760-2080.
