Bing's celebrates 65 years in Newark

Over the years, Newarkers have seen many businesses come and go from the downtown area. Though the economy has improved recently, it's still not a guarantee that a company can keep itself afloat. That's why it is encouraging to see Bing's Bakery succeed for over six and one-half decades, with no signs of slowing down.

Last Saturday, Bing's held a 65th anniversary event and rolled back prices for cupcakes to $.10 a piece to show their appreciation to the thousands of customers that have made them "Delaware's longest running bakery."

Bing's Bakery was opened on May 15, 1946, by husband and wife Russell and Selina

Bing at their original location on East Main Street, between the Methodist Church and the State Theater. In the early 1950s, the Methodist Church sold their parsonage, at 253 E. Main Street, to the Bings, who moved the business to its present location. In 1954, renovations opened up the rear of the building, housing the ovens and preparation areas.

Bing's would see increased prosperity as Newark's population exploded in the mid to late 1950s, as the Chrysler Assembly Plant opened, changing the landscape of Newark and the area.

The bakery offered cookies, cakes, pies, and other baked delicacies to the city, but also was, and still is, one of New Castle County's best places to design and purchase a wedding

Residents confused over decision to cancel parade

By MARK CORRIGAN

MCCRIGAN@CHES PUB.COM

When it came to Sunday's Armed Forces/Memorial Day event, a number of parade-goers looked to the skies, rather than the Internet and came away disappointed.

The annual event brings together military groups, bands, community organizations, and special guests, from around the state and surrounding area, to honor veterans, especially those who gave their lives for their country.

According to Dana Johnston, community affairs officer for the City of Newark, the Memorial Day Committee, the organizing body for the parade, made the decision to cancel the scheduled 1 p.m. event at 9:30 a.m. The commemoration event was to be held on the Green at the University of Delaware, next to Memorial Hall. The parade had been slated for 2 p.m., on Main Street, following the ceremony.

Statements from Johnston and a member of the committee said that the cancellation was posted shortly after the decision was made on the city's website, www.cityofnewarkde.us, Twitter, the Newark Parks and Recreation Department's Facebook page, the Leisure Time Hotline, the News Journal's website, www.delawareonline.com, and Comcast Cable Channel 22, which lists events and happenings in New Castle County.

But a number of parade-goers and even a couple participants figured that as long as the weather held, the parade would go on.

A technician with the company handling the public address system set up outside of the memorial at East Main and Academy streets did not break down his equipment until

Apple store not a done deal

By DOUG RAINEY

DRAINEY@CHES PUB.COM

An Apple store at the new University of Delaware Bookstore is by no means a certainty. The store came up in a Board of Trustees meeting earlier this month and speculation that the technology giant might be part of the new Main Street bookstore has been around since work got under way last year on the site. The bookstore is slated to open in August well ahead of the original fall target.

David Brond, acknowledged that the store was brought up at the meeting, which was reported in last week's Newark Post. But the vice president for communications and marketing at UD stressed that no contracts have been signed with technology company, now the second most valuable corporation in the world, based on the value of its stock.

Several blogs that follow every move and rumor surrounding Apple also featured the news. The website ifoAppleStore.com reported last week that trustees had announced the store, but seemed to show some skepticism over the news, with the headline, University Claims 'Apple Store' Coming to Bookstore.

Apple operates its own retail stores, including a store at Christiana Mall, a short drive up I-95 from Newark. The Truck tailgate taken from dealer's lot

Newark Police are investigating the theft of a tailgate from a gold 2011 Ford F350 truck that was parked in the lot of Porter Ford, located at 600 Ogletown Road.

Employees with the dealership told officers that the truck had been on the lot since late March and that few customers have looked at the vehicle. The truck was located next to the fence that is adjacent to the Aetna Fire Hall parking lot.

The tailgate contains a camera in the handle that shows the driver what is behind them when they back up. It is worth approximately $2,295.

Porter Ford employees stated that the tailgate can be removed without touching the truck. An investigation by officers showed that the unknown suspect had disconnected the wires to the camera system before removing the tailgate. A single fingerprint was lifted and is being processed to determine a suspect.

No video footage was recovered at the scene and authorities are interviewing a security guard that was on duty at the time of the theft. A search of various internet sites, such as Craigslist and eBay has shown that the item is not being sold locally.

Gas taken from business

Representatives from Turf Pro, located at 103 Sandy Drive, reported that a small amount of gasoline was removed from one of their storage tanks.

Officers found two cuts in the chain link fence surrounding the area, one near the fuel tank and another where the fence runs parallel to Otts Chapel Road.

Physical evidence was negligible, but two five-gallon fuel canisters were recovered from the dumpster at a nearby business.

No known suspects have been named and no witnesses were found. The canisters were taken into custody for processing.

More than 30 burglary attempts

Delaware State Police say a duo believed responsible for nearly three-dozen burglaries since February made one too many attempts last week.

The suspects were identified as David Lawhorn, Jr., 32 and Brandon M. Sands, 21, both of Wilmington.

Troop 2 burglary detectives earlier identified both Lawhorn and Sands as suspects in a string of burglaries in which the suspects had gained entry into area businesses by disabling the alarm and then knocking holes through the walls of the targeted business. Once inside the suspects stole cash, cigarettes, and other items.

On May 12th at approximately 3 a.m. Sands and Lawhorn were apparently preparing to burglarize the Valero Gas Station located in the 700 block of Old Baltimore Pike, Newark. However, they fled after a marked Delaware State Police vehicle drove by.

Sands and Lawhorn then drove to the Pleasant Hill Bowling Lanes in the 1000 block of West Newport Pike, west of Wilmington.

Sands and Lawhorn were subsequently arrested and charged with a total of 144 crimes including those linked to the Valero and Pleasant Hill cases. They were both arraigned at JP Court 11 and then committed to the Howard Young Correctional Center for lack of $145,000 bail.

Detectives are continuing their investigation into other commercial burglaries in New Castle County.

Police respond to bomb scare

Authorities with the Newark Police Department and the Delaware State Police Bomb Squad responded to a possible bomb threat last weekend at a residence on Radcliffe Drive.

A caregiver at the address stated that she had been cleaning in the basement of the house. As she moved a large cabinet, she found two small pipes wrapped in green electrical tape, believing them to be possible pipe bombs. She immediately contacted the police.

After neutralizing the possible bombs, authorities determined that the items were improvised hand weights, containing lead weights, metal weights, and sand.

Shoplifter arrested carrying DVDs

John Zingone, 51, from Wilmington, was arrested after he was seen concealing 14 DVDs upon his person at K-Mart in the College Square Shopping Center.

A loss prevention employee with the store recognized Zingone from a previous shoplifting incident at the store and kept a watch on him. Zingone was reported to have taken the DVDs from the electronics department and attempted to conceal them under his shirt. Loss prevention stopped him as he was leaving the store and confiscated the items.

He was taken into custody by Newark Police, whereby a criminal history check showed that Zingone was wanted for three active capias: two from New Castle County Court of Common Pleas and one from New Castle County Superior Court.

Zingone was issued a criminal summons for shoplifting and told not to enter the K-Mart or he would be arrested for trespassing. He was also arraigned on the three outstanding capias and given $1,000 secured bail for one and a $1,795 cash bond for the other two. He was later transported to the Howard Young Correctional Facility.

Room haggle turns violent

An employee with Howard Johnson Inn & Suites reported that a 34 year-old Wilmington man had asked about a lower price for a room at the hotel. When he was refused, the man threatened the employee.

The incident occurred early last Monday morning. The employees stated that the man had come into the business asking for a room. He handed over his license, which was checked through the hotel's system. The suspect then asked if he could have the room for $50, a lower rate than the hotel charges. The hotel employee refused the new rate, where the suspect became upset and threw water from his water bottle at the employee.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic item is a late 1960s photograph of two major Newark businesses located on Ogletown Road. The larger is the Avon Products Distribution Center. The smaller to the left is the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company box plant. Avon, a distributor of cosmetic and household products, came to Newark in 1952 to a building on South Chapel Street at East Park Place that is now used by the University of Delaware. There they assembled and sent out products ordered by their hundreds of part time sales people across the eastern region. As business grew, they built the new facility shown here. This site was recently closed. WESTVACO came to Newark during the industrial development along Ogletown Road in the late 1950s and 1960s. The plant produced printed cardboard packaging products used by companies such as Avon for consumer goods. The site is now occupied by Lowe's Hardware.

Visit the Newark History Museum located at the historic passenger train station on South College Avenue. The museum will be open Sunday afternoons from 2 to 5 p.m. April through November. Individuals, groups, clubs, or organizations are welcome at other times by appointment. Call 368-9845 for arrangements. Planning your child's summer

By CAROL SCOTT

UD COOPERATIVE EXTENSION

It's hard to believe spring is here, the weather is slowly warming up, and the full week of school spring vacation has finally arrived. For a child, spring break is an eagerly awaited break from daily school routines. For parents, it is a reminder that the long summer break is not that far away and the question becomes, "What am I going to do with the kids for ten long weeks?!" This year when the kids head back to school from spring break, it will only be eight weeks until summer begins, so make sure to start now to fill in your calendar with activities to keep your children busy during the summer months.

Summer calendars for children are often a patchwork of activities. A typical schedule might include a week at a sleep-over camp, a week or two at a theme day camp, perhaps a week of vacation bible school, and visits with grandparents, non-custodial parents and family vacations. The summer schedule becomes a juggling act and a budget challenge to plan for a safe and fun ten weeks on the summer calendar.

For working parents, the choice is often a summer day care camp or theme day camps with extended day before and after hours. Often, parents must carefully budget for these programs and finding good programs becomes a balance of meeting the interests of the child while staying within a tight budget. Besides fun activities for your child, another important factor to keep in mind when planning is that while summer may seem short for your child, it actually is a long time to be away from a school learning environment. Research shows that many children without a variety of enriching activities during the summer experience a fair amount of "summer learning loss" in skills they had gained during the school year.

A good place to check for options is your child's school. Some schools host a free program that is a combined academic and enrichment program. It is designed to serve children who need to improve their grades over the summer, as well as others who are looking for extra enrichment linked to academic subjects. Other school-based programs and local colleges host theme week camps, at relatively low costs, that explore arts, science, or career exploration topics. And don't forget to check out local city, county, and state parks, nature centers, and museums for a variety of listings from half-day playground site activities to full-week programs featuring outdoor nature themes, living history and service learning programs.

With these factors in mind, start now to get the best information for programs available in your community. Check with your child's school or school district to see if they are hosting summer music camps, arts programs, or sports camps. Keep an eye out for the annual camp section in the newspaper and check for brochures at the local libraries and community centers. Look for camp fairs at community events or workplace events. Many colleges and universities often operate or host summer programs. Take a look at the "Summer 2011 at UD" website <http://www.udel.edu/camps> for listings of a wide variety of camps, campus facilities such as the outdoor pool that is open to the public, and free UD events during the summer. The camp search page lets you focus the search selection to your child's age and interests. New Castle County 4-H Camps at UD are detailed here: <http://ag.udel.edu/extension/ncc/4h/4hcamp.html>. With careful planning and some research, you will be able to put together a safe, fun and productive summer for your children.

and entered his vehicle. The victim believed the suspect was retrieving a gun, fled back into the hotel and locked the front door.

The suspect kicked at the door, damaging it and causing the frame and glass to break. The victim grabbed a piece of the frame to defend himself. The suspect re-entered his vehicle and fled the scene.

Police retrieved information on the suspect from the hotel's computer system and several fingerprints from the water bottle that was dropped in the lobby.

A warrant was issued by JP Court 11 and officers are looking for the suspect's whereabouts.

Red Lion football coach leaves mixed legacy

By JON BUZBY

JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

Red Lion Christian football coach Eric Day announced his resignation last Friday after turning a woeful 1-9 team his first season into a state championship-caliber program last fall.

"My resigning was based on me and the development of me," Day said the morning after his announcement. "It was a tough decision, but in order to be a strong Christian leader you have to constantly evaluate where you are in your own personal relationship with Christ."

Day's four-year tenure at the Bear private school included players receiving Division I scholarships, having his phenom quarterback David Sills IV make a verbal commitment to Southern California as a seventh-grader, and turning the program into one of the state's best with plans to make it a national power.

Yet despite his successes, Day's legacy at the school forever will be tainted by the events of last season when his top-ranked team was barred from the state tournament after the program was found by the Delaware Interscholastic Athletic Association to have held excessive practices and played too many games. The school also came under fire for its admission standards, tuition scholarship disbursement and questionable recruiting practices. Both Day and the school were placed on a one-year probation by the DIAA, and according to DIAA executive director Kevin Charles the school remains on probation and that includes interim coach Dwayne Thomas, who came to Red Lion along with Day in 2007 and has served as associate head coach.

Day said he is no longer working at the school but that he will stay involved in the operations aspect of the program. He has not set a timeline for a return to the sidelines, but said he will "if it is in God's will and plan."

The former Delaware State University assistant said he has no regrets, but did become frustrated this past year with all the controversy surrounding the Red Lion program.

"The biggest frustration over the last year has been people who do not know me or the people intimately involved in our program who question our motives and actions," he said. "Our goals have been consistent since I arrived at Red Lion: We want to get our kids in college and closer to Christ."

In its effort to establish itself as a national power, Red Lion Christian has put together a 2011 schedule that currently does not include any Delaware schools. The Lions open up Sept. 10 against Annapolis Area Christian in a game that will be played at Navy-Marine Corps Stadium at the U.S. Naval Academy.

The experience this team had this year and the effort they gave day in and day out ... it was tough getting the words out after the game."

New owners added to selection bakery items and options cake: a service that has earned the business a host of awards over the years.

In 1996, Mrs. Bing hired Tom Guzzi to become her head baker. Tom and his wife Carla had moved to the area from Staten Island, N.Y., bringing with them a new perspective and a host of new recipes.

Mrs. Bing had continued to run the company after the death of her husband, but decided to sell the business to the Guzzis in 2005.

Tom and Carla operate the bakery the same way as their predecessors, with Carla running the operations in front and Tom continuing as head baker.

The transition of taking over an establishment with a legacy like Bing's was not easy for the new owners. As the couple tried new ideas, a few customers first balked at the idea of changing the menu, but quickly warmed up to the new items, including New York-style cheesecake and cannolis. The business has since doubled the amount of offerings. The number of accounts has doubled as well as the bakery attracts new customers.

"We had to manage the change process. Certainly anything Bing's Bakery had that worked, we kept, and then we did a hard-line 'what didn't work' and we cut," said Carla Guzzi. "We added what we thought would diversify our business." She continued by saying, "I'm really proud of our clientele."

With years of experience in human resources for JP Morgan Chase, Carla used that knowledge to transform the business from a small, quaint neighborhood bakery into a thriving and innovative enterprise.

Utilizing a philosophy of "cheaper, better, faster," Carla instituted a cross-training program where employees no longer performed only just one function, thus creating a more efficient atmosphere.

A website, www.bingsbakery.com, was developed to increase awareness of the bakery and also to inform customers of new items being featured. A cake order page was added that lets you design your own cake and schedule a pick-up time.

Another website, www.campusbirthdaycakes.com, is geared toward cake and dessert deliveries to college campuses, such as the nearby University of Delaware.

A new logo and signage are expanding the new image of the business, which continues to keep up with the changing culture, ethnicity, population, and economics of Newark and the surrounding area.

In 2009, Bing's expanded operations by opening a second location, a retail outlet, on West Green Street in Middletown, across the street from the town's Municipal Building. The Middletown location does not bake on the premises, but features items made at and delivered daily from the Newark site. Wedding cakes can also be designed and ordered from the outlet.

Though the business has seen a lot of changes in recent years, Carla and Tom still rely on the institutional knowledge of their staff to keep things going. Five of the employees still there were hired by Selina Bing, including Norma Adams, who will be retiring this year after 49 years as a cake decorator with the bakery. She was awarded the title of Mayor for a Day on April 23, 2009 by Mayor Vance Funk, after taking only three sick days off in a then 47 years with the company.

Adams remarked about the changes that Main Street and Newark have undergone since her time with Bing's. While admitting that the opening of Chrysler was significant for the city, she said that the opening of the Newark Shopping Center, across the street, held a greater impact for Bing's, by bringing in a vast amount of foot traffic.

She says she is still amazed by stories from people that come in to say that their parents and grandparents had also bought wedding cakes that were decorated by her.

With the moving of Formal Affairs and Gamble's Newark Florist to the building next door to Bing's, the East Main Street area can now offer one-stop shopping for those planning a wedding, an idea that Carla used to organize a one-day wedding showcase last March. She stated that another event is tentatively scheduled for August and that she hopes other Main Street businesses will join in.

The wedding cake side of the business has remained pretty much the same, though television shows such as "Cake Boss" and "Ace of Cakes," have created demanding challenges for cake designers. Carla said that her business may not have the innovation of those designs, but it doesn't carry the high prices that also come with it. She said that her focus is on providing a high-quality cake that is affordable.

Though the business is not the same as when the Bings opened up back in 1946, the Guzzis are looking forward to challenges that will meet them in the future. The changing nature of Main Street, according to Carla, is the catalyst that is propelling Bing's Bakery in the years to come.

"I love Main Street. I think it's always alive. There's so much you can do."

Rain did not come until later in day

well after 1 p.m. A member of the Knights of Columbus, who arrived late in full regalia, registered a look of surprise when no one was seen at the assembly area.

Some residents had put out lawn chairs on Main Street as early as 12:45 p.m., to save a good spot for the festivities, while others were waving flags on Main Street later in the day. A few families wandered around the Green, wondering if the event would still take place.

One family of four, including two small girls, showed their disappointment and displeasure as they viewed the cancellation notice on the city's website via a citizen's smartphone. The family said that they had visited the same site earlier that morning and had not seen the cancellation. They noted that they had been to other Memorial Day Ceremonies that had gone on even though it was raining at the time.

In an e-mail to The Newark Post, one resident expressed his opinion, saying that the cancellation was "ill-advised," with the Korean War veteran noting that "we never got a day off in Korea due to the weather."

Mayor Vance Funk also stated his disappointment in an e-mail to The Post and wrote, "Maybe it's time to move the parade date back a week so it is closer to Memorial Day." The mayor went on to talk about "why they [the committee] waited until all the overtime employees reported for work to cancel the parade when it was known thunderstorms were forecast 48 hours in advance."

An inquiry asking what was the cost to the city in canceling the event went unanswered at the time of this story.

average Apple Store generates $34 million in sales per year, according to company figures.

Apple computer systems are on display at the UD Technology Center at Smith Hall on Newark, although the University of Delaware was not listed as a retailer in a recent back to school promotion for bookstores. At many other university bookstores, sales of computer systems are limited to students and staff.

An Apple retail outlet, even one with sales limited to the university community, would provide another boost to a thriving Main Street, which was named a semi-finalist in national competition sponsored by the National Main Street program and now has a retail vacancy rate below 4 percent.

Apple did not respond to an e-mail request for comment on a possible Newark store.

"Garden for the Community"

Volunteers from the University of Delaware and Food Bank of Delaware planted a "Garden for the Community" on Friday, May 13. The garden, now in its third year, produced more 6,000 pounds of fresh produce for the Food Bank of Delaware's hunger-relief efforts last growing season. Located on a third of an acre of land at the Wilson Farmhouse, behind the Girl Scouts facility on Route 896, on the University of Delaware's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, the garden pro-

The group plans to hold a harvest celebration event in August at the site, which will feature food, games, and music.

ROADSHOW COMES TO PENNSVILLE NEXT WEEK!

By Jason Delong
STAFF WRITER

Got gold? Next week, visitors can cash in on antiques, collectibles, gold, silver, coins, etc.

Clean out your attics, closets and lock boxes, because the Treasure Hunters Roadshow is coming to Pennsville. Roadshow specialists are in town examining antiques, collectibles, gold and silver.

The Roadshow will be focusing on: gold and silver coins made before 1964, military items, toys and trains, musical instruments, pocket and wrist watches, and scrap gold.

"U.S. COINS MADE BEFORE 1964 ARE THE MOST SOUGHT AFTER BY COLLECTORS. COINS MADE BEFORE 1964 ARE 90% SILVER, AND VALUABLE BECAUSE OF EITHER THE SILVER CONTENT OR EVEN MORE VALUABLE IF ONE HAPPENS TO BE A RARE DATE."

Buyers for the roadshow have noticed a tremendous increase in the amount of gold coming to the Roadshow, and for good reason. Record gold prices have Roadshow guests cashing in on broken or outdated jewelry and dental gold with our fair and honest purchase offers.

The Roadshow encourages anyone planning a visit to take a minute and examine their jewelry box or their lock box and gather anything that is gold. If you are not sure if something is gold, bring it anyway and the Roadshow staff will test it for free.

Archie Davis, the Roadshow's toy specialist, spoke about some of the top toys getting great offers. "Old tin wind-up toys from the late 1800's through the 1960's are in great demand right now" said Davis, "especially those that are character related. Mickey Mouse, the Flintstones or any other character toys are sought after." Basically any toys made before 1965 are wanted. Train sets made by Lionel, American Flyer, Marklin and others have the potential to fetch a large sum. Davis also stressed, "Toys with boxes and in mint condition bring sensational prices. Most of the toys that come to the Roadshow are not in perfect shape, but can still bring good prices from collectors."

When specialist Tom Fuller was asked what he enjoyed most about working at the Roadshow, he was quick to answer, "Old coins and paper currency—for as long as I can remember, I have been fascinated with collecting coins. I would go through the change in my parents' grocery store, looking for rare dates and errors. Once, I found a silver quarter that I sold for $300. Not bad for an 8 year old." Fuller went on to explain that any U.S. coins made before 1964 are the most sought after by collectors. Coins made before 1964 are 90% silver, and valuable because of either the silver content or even more valuable if one happens to be a rare date. Fuller explained, "We help people sort through their coins for unique dates. We buy all types of coins at the Roadshow—from single items to entire truckloads. See you at the Roadshow!"

Staycation Tips

Make your 2011 staycation the best ever

By WENDY GILBERT

WGILBERT@CHES PUB.COM

Soaring fuel prices and a sluggish economy signal a return to the staycation for the Memorial Day weekend and beyond. According to the website TripAdvisor, about half of Americans are changing their travel plans for this summer for just those reasons.

Many are staying within easy driving distance of their homes in an effort to reduce cost and stress.

There are a few things to keep in mind when planning a successful staycation. It's not going to be much fun for anyone if you just declare a "no go" week and walk out the back door.

Like any great vacation, your staycation deserves to be planned with care.

First, plan the official start and end dates. Mark it on all the calendars — computer, kitchen and phone. Some families go as far as recording check in (Friday at 5:01 p.m. perhaps?) and check out times, patterning their event on past trips to resorts.

Visit your favorite long-range weather forecasting site and rough out your (always flexible) indoor and outdoor activities.

Dining Options

If the chief cook in the household is going to enjoy this staycation as much as everyone else, plan on dining out for at least one meal each day. Many find staging an evening meal prep event a couple of weeks ahead of time to be very beneficial. Bring in your sous chefs (aka kids and husband) and have them assist with chopping, mixing and assembly.

Make batches of taco filling, chicken and white bean chili, spaghetti sauce with meatballs, breakfast casseroles and other freezer-friendly meals. The goal is to reduce "day of" preparation and clean up as much as possible.

There's something about massive amounts of food and activity that often makes this preparatory event appealing to the whole family. Research meals and techniques online or check out Once-A-Month cookbooks from the library.

Once you've got your meals in the freezer, plan and post your menu for the week.

Purchase salad makings, prepared picnic salads (unless of course you'd prefer to do them yourself), fresh fruit, rolls and meat to grill a couple of days before your start date.

To make your dining in experience a bit more special, purchase a few new products to sample and avoid too much of the old tried and true.

Sort through the newspaper coupons and save a few pennies while you're at it. Many coupons are for new products — why not try them on the cheap?

Eat outdoors as often as possible and enjoy the change of scenery.

If you aren't going to be dining out very much, be sure and treat yourselves to at least one spectacular meal (steak and steamed shrimp perhaps?) or pick up steamed crabs on your way back from the park on the last night of your staycation.

Have a Choratorium

Declare a moratorium on all but the most basic chores until the morning of your "check-out" time. By all means keep the pets fed and the garbage moving out, but take a break from the rest.

The day before your vacation is the time to wrap up the laundry, declutter and give the house a good once-over. Put out your best and freshest linens all over the house. Make the beds and light those scented candles you've been "saving."

Ideas to make your staycation great this year

► STAYCATION, from 13

Part of what makes staying at a hotel or resort so very nice is that everything is clean and fresh. Tidy up as best you can, pick a few flowers or splurge on a bouquet.

Are you one of those people who bring home the leftover soaps, shampoos and lotions when you stay at hotel? Pull them back out and trade out your family-sized bottles for the week.

Plan Ahead

A week or so ahead of time give the kitchen and pantry a good once over as well. Make sure you've got a good stock of picnic gear, especially if you will be lunching at local parks.

Some families pack snacks, fresh fruit and drinks and purchase subs, fried chicken or pizza to share as a way to reduce the cost of eating out by 20 to 40 percent.

Research local events and plan your vacation around your favorite concerts, performances and tours.

Visit local tourism sites online as well as those for your local library, state park and other venues. You might find something you never even knew existed in your home or nearby county.

Love to stretch your legs? Find a run/walk event during your weekends at home. Make it a family affair and buy the T-shirts as a souvenir. Visit races2run.com for events in the tri-state area.

Other staycation hits include both major and minor league baseball games, fishing charters and theater programs. Hike trails, shoot clays and peddle or paddle around. Search for parades, festivals, reenactments, car shows, cruise nights, and other free or low-cost entertainment ideas. Visit a local winery early on and pick up some wine that pairs up well with your menu. After all, you are on vacation! Not a big fan of wine? Visit a microbrewery instead.

Almost every organization has a website and events calendar listing. Make sure everyone gets to choose something that they are especially interested in.

Let the history buff have some time in a museum, but give the shoppers a chance to browse, too. Stop and visit those shops you drive past every workday. Enjoy boutiques, farmers markets and antique malls.

Consider mass transit for city day trips. Let someone else tackle driving around Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, D.C. and New York.

Geocaching is another great way to spend some time together as a family. The modern day treasure hunts have taken off all over the world. Many families find interesting places nearby that they might not have otherwise stopped long enough to discover. The official website is geocaching.com.

Don't have a portable GPS? Most new phones and portable computers offer free GPS apps.

Not much of a planner? Read the daily events listings in the paper and take it from there. Auctions, sales, church dinners and movie listings are just the beginning.

Enjoy some House Time

Not every day needs to be a travel day. Be sure and spend sometime at the house. Pull out board games, decks of cards and enjoy those Christmas presents.

Dust off the badminton set, put some air in the volleyball and get outside and play. Some families stage elaborate backyard olympics. If your family isn't that big, invite a few cousins, aunts and uncles over one night for some fun. Stage a croquet tournament or learn how to play bocce.

Buy a new game for your gaming station or console.

In the evenings enjoy a movie. This might be a great time to invest in that big screen television, surround sound system or a portable docking station for your iPod.

Summer Camp Crafts

A rainy summer day is the perfect time to spend some quality time on your favorite hobbies.

If you don't have one, consider taking a class at a shop like JoAnne's or A.C. Moore. Learn to knit, sew or blow glass. These stores also stock loads of quick camp crafts to keep the kids busy. A dollar store is another great place to find inexpensive projects and craft materials.

Investigate local college and artisan studios for classes as well. Many offer one-day gems that you might enjoy. If your projects turn out well, consider entering them in a county fair. Local state and county fairs offers prizes for everything from floral arrangements to preserves to photographs.

Peruse the premium book when it arrives and you might be inspired to try something new. Challenge the kids to see who can earn the most premium money or enter the most categories.

Hit the Beach

Missing your week's vacation in Ocean City?

The Delaware and Maryland beaches are only a couple hours away. Pack the car and make a day trip of it. Too far? How about a trip to Elk Neck State Park or Lums Pond? Break out the sunscreen, beach chairs and swimsuits.

Document your Days

Don't forget the souvenirs and photographs. Post your adventures daily on Facebook or your blog unless you need an unplugged vacation. In which case, surrender your gadgets before check in time and close down the home office. Resist the temptation to check work emails. Most staycations fail to really take off because of this one little slip-up.

Whatever you do, be sure to relax and enjoy yourself as much as possible.
