11,000 NEW LOANS ARE ADVANCED BY BANKS

A. B. A. Counters Assertions That Houses Are Not Lending In 1939

Countering assertions that banks are not lending, the American Bankers Association published this week the results of a survey of bank lending activity in Delaware showing that the banks of the state made 11,000 new loans totaling $21,000,000 during the first six months of 1939, and renewed 45,000 outstanding loans totaling $32,000,000.

The survey also indicated that less than half of the "open lines of credit" maintained in the books of the banks for regular established business borrowers is being used by these borrowers.

These figures are based on reports from 16 commercial banks, or 37 per cent of the banks in the state holding membership in the A. B. A., and allowance is made for the concentration of bank lending activity in the metropolitan area of Wilmington.

The 16 banks replying to the association's questionnaire reported that they made 6,567 new loans totaling $17,761,571 between January 1 and June 30, 1939, renewed 24,194 outstanding loans aggregating $24,064,289, and made 148 new mortgage loans totaling $996,929.

Average Loan $2,705

The average number of new loans per bank was 410 for an average amount of $2,705 per loan.

The average number of renewals per bank was 1,512 per bank, and the average renewal was for $995.

The average new mortgage was for $6,750, and the average number of new mortgages was 9 per bank.

In addition to making loans on individual applications, banks in the state have "open lines of credit" on their books, available to regular business borrowers at all times.

Four banks in Delaware reported they maintain these open lines of credit in the aggregate amount of $9,671,700. However, they stated that only $4,032,825, or 41 per cent of this credit, was in use on June 30.

"Delaware Day" Being Marked; Constitution Ratified In 1787

December 7, 1787, one hundred and fifty-two years ago a group of Delawareans met in Dover and ratified the proposed Constitution of the United States ranking Delaware as the "First State" in the new Union.

Governor Richard C. McMullen has issued a proclamation commemorating the event and designating December 7, 1939, as official "Delaware Day" and requesting its observance throughout the state.

Delawareans are justifiably proud of their ancestor's actions of a hundred and fifty-two years ago and will rally to the observance of "Delaware Day."

TELEPHONE RATES ARE DROPPED

Public Expected To Save $35,000 By Decrease

Telephone rates will be reduced for residence subscribers in Wilmington, Hockessin, Holly Oak and New Castle, effective with the dates of the December bills. It was announced today by Donald M. Huber, district manager for the Diamond State Telephone Company.

The monthly rates for the individual residence lines will be reduced from $3.25; the two-party line, from $2.75 to $2.65; and the four and multi-party line, from $2.50 to $2.25. The charge for residence extension telephones will be lowered from 75c to 60c a month.

Other Changes Made

Certain other miscellaneous rate changes are being made in these and in other parts of the State. These include reductions in the charges for extra directory listings and for extension telephone bells.

The combined effect of all the changes will be an annual saving to the public of $35,000 a year, Mr. Huber said.

"The trend of the business during the past year or so," Mr. Huber continued, "indicates that reductions of the order named are possible at this time and are made in conformity with the company's policy of giving the best possible telephone service at the least possible cost to the public. The rate adjustments have been worked out with the object of further perfecting the rate schedule of the company so as to price the service in the fairest manner for all customers in the State."

CORROSION PROBLEM STUDIED

Council Hears Report On Aeration

George L. Baker and Gerald Gilligan, of the University of Delaware Chemistry Department, reported to members of the Town Council Monday night their findings resulting from experiments conducted to determine what treatment could best be used to eliminate the element of corrosion present in house service pipes carrying water from the town mains.

Their report disclosed that aeration in some form would tend to reduce the carbon dioxide content of the water and thereby be of great benefit.

Reduction of the carbon dioxide would eliminate, to a great extent, the corrosion problem with which property owners are faced. While no definite action was taken by members of the council they have the matter under consideration and after further investigation will undoubtedly take steps to install the most satisfactory type of aeration system.

Analyses of the town water supply have proven it to be of excellent quality, purity and clear of iron content.

THREE NEW TRAFFIC LIGHTS PROPOSED

Reports Show Town Affairs In Excellent Condition

Two speed control lights are soon to be installed at the Eastern end of the town limits and one on the Western line, it was reported at the regular monthly meeting of the Town Council Monday night.

The lights will be of the trip variety. Motorists must approach the trip at a speed not greater than twenty miles an hour in order to change the signal from red to green. The lights are of the same type as the one at Summit bridge and other points throughout the state.

Installation of the two lights at the eastern entrance to town will probably be made on each side of Leek's Garage, on State route 273 and 2, by the State Highway Department. The light at the West side of town will be installed at the corporate line by the Town Council.

All Members Present

All members of the Town Council were present at the Monday night meeting which was presided over by Mayor Frank Collins. Police Chief William H. Cunningham reported twenty-two arrests made during November with total fines assessed and collected by Magistrate Eubanks amounting to $107.00.

Reporters Read

Readings of the Treasurer's report showed receipts for the month amounting to $13,366.59 as against general disbursements of $12,351.92 leaving a cash balance of $7,295.73 which is $1,660.67 more than the cash on hand at the end of October.

Water consumption for November showed an increase of 10.8 percent over the corresponding period in 1938 and an increase of 1.5 percent over the previous month, according to the report of Town Engineer G. C. Price. Five street lights were installed on Townsend Road during the month.

Clean-up Days

Wednesday and Thursday, December 20 and 21 were designated as clean-up days by Mayor Collins. A resolution commending the Town Council for street lighting improvements on Main street was received from the Newark Lions Club.

MOTORISTS PAY HUGE TAX BILL

Billion Dollars Paid During 1939 Is Report

The first billion dollar gasoline tax bill in history will be paid by motor vehicle owners during 1939, according to a statement issued today by H. V. Daniel, Secretary, Associated Petroleum Industries of Delaware.

"An analysis of state motor fuel taxes for the first six months of 1939 clearly indicates that American motorists will pay their first annual billion dollar gasoline tax bill," Mr. Daniel stated. "As reported by official taxing authorities, state gasoline tax revenue for the first half of 1939 has increased six per cent over the comparable period for 1938. If this rate of increase is maintained for the balance of the year, state gasoline revenues will top $810,000,000. Federal gasoline taxes for 1939 have shown a remarkable increase for the first nine months, the increase being 11 per cent over the same period in 1938. The total of federal gasoline taxes for the year is estimated at being about $215,000,000.

"During the first six months of 1939, Delaware motor vehicle owners paid in gasoline taxes over $1,000,000, a gallonage increase of 4.52 percent over the same period in 1938.

"In view of the magnitude of these figures, Delaware motorists are convinced that state gasoline taxes could be reduced and that the diversion of motor tax revenues to purposes other than highway use must be stopped. Lowering state gasoline taxes one cent, they point out, would produce more funds than are now actually used on highways if diversion of approximately one cent of gasoline taxes is stopped and the state benefits by the natural increase of gasoline consumption incident to the lowering the tax to the proposed level of 3 cents."

REACTIONS TO THE GOOD NEWS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 11:28-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.—Matthew 11:28-30.

The response which men and women make to the preaching of the gospel today determines their destiny for time and eternity, just as it did when Jesus was first sending out His disciples to preach.

How do you react to the gospel message? Indifference will keep a man from Christ just as effectively as open rejection. A childlike faith, on the other hand, will bring a man into delightful fellowship with Him in both life and service. The Lord gives rest for the soul and companionship in the yokefellowship of Christian service.

I. Childlike Dissatisfaction (vv. 16-19).

Jesus, who was skilled in the art of teaching, took a familiar scene from the daily life of the people to show how utterly childlike was the criticism of His enemies. Children at play, trying to interest their companions, present a wedding scene of great joy with no response. They then try the opposite with no better result.

The enemies of Christ were just like such children, and His enemies were the same today. Opposition to the gospel likes to clothe itself in learned phraseology and express itself in the terms of dignified logic, but in fact it is but an expression of personal feelings encouraged by the devil and altogether like those of disgruntled children. Not often does it show its true nature in a forthright expression of unbelief and hostility, for it prefers to hide behind some self-righteous criticism which it can level against Christian people or against their faith.

Why not be honest, unbeliever who reads these lines, and tell the truth about your reasons for failing to accept Christ. When you do that you will find that they are not reasons at all but only excuses, and there will then be hope for your repentance and conversion.

II. Deadly Indifference (vv. 20-24).
Rejection of Christ may be and all too often is simply indifference to His holy person and work. Jesus pronounced an awful judgment on the cities which had been honored by His presence and His great works, and which should have been awed by His message and power but which had passed Him by in bored indifference.

These again are typical of countless thousands who today comfort themselves by saying, "I do not oppose the Church; I'm not against Christianity. I just don't take any position either for or against." By so doing they have declared themselves to be against Christ. Jesus said, "He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad" (Matt. 12:30). Let not such think for a moment that their judgment shall be less severe than that of the cities of Chorazin and Bethsaida!

III. Childlike Faith (vv. 25, 26).
God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ have a great and loving interest in the touching beauty of the faith of a child. The unquestioning dependence, the absolute assurance of the child heart, these are the things that receive an answer from the Almighty.

This is not intended to reflect in any way on those who may have learning, wisdom and power but who with all have maintained a childlike humility. God knows them and honors and uses them. The point we do want to make is that all too often learning and standing in this world are a barrier between men and God simply because men put their trust in these things and not in Him. It is always a serious matter when a man permits his God-given ability to think, to come between him and God. What folly it is to expect the infinite and eternal God who made all things, including the brain of man, to in turn pass through the narrow compass of finite thinking.

IV. Restful Companionship (vv. 27-30).

A study of the theories and philosophies of this world leads only to unrest. Bewildered and unhappy is the man who puts his trust in them. But in Christ the weary and beleaguered human soul will find perfect and eternal rest. Why then does the mass of men reject Him to go on to wander in despair?

The rest which we find in Christ is not a useless and inactive repose. Far from it. It is a blessed yokefellowship with Christ in carrying forward His work. Here man finds his real usefulness, for only here is he liberated from the limitations of sin and self and joined in a yoke with the One in whom dwells all wisdom and power.

Hollywood Challenged On Lack of Faith

WAKE up, Hollywood, you may have every reason to feel proud of your fifty-billion-dollar name, but you lack common sense in the way you make pictures. You have all the talent and money you need, the best writers and directors, but you have no faith—or courage. No faith in the individual man. You're afraid to let one person go ahead and do a job by himself. You reason that six men—by sheer weight of brain, even though they vary in talent, taste and style—can do a better job than one. That's where you err, and your "super-colossal" pictures are pretty good evidence of the fact.

Mary Hamman throws this challenge right in the faces of Hollywood executives, in the October issue of Good Housekeeping. "Things move so quickly in Hollywood that at times panic besets the executive," says Miss Hamman. "He howls for advisers, for panaceas, for more and more vice presidents, for supervisors, for investigators, and statisticians. Jittery about spending so many millions, he surrounds himself with myriads of assistants on the theory that there is safety in numbers."

An example of what a talented man can do in Hollywood when let alone, Miss Hamman cites Leo McCarey, producer-director-author of "Love Affair," a smash hit. "If you want to get something done, sit down at your desk and do it," is his simple, workable doctrine. "Don't hire eight other men."

There it stands, Hollywood can go to town only when she takes the fetters off her gift: people and lets them go ahead without restraint.

"The Child's First School Is the Family"—Froebel

Issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York City. These articles are appearing weekly in our columns.

THE FAMILY TRAIL

A "family trail" is well worth making. Preferably, select some path that leads through the fields, by the roadside and through the woods. Select unmistakable signs so there will be no possible way to take wrong paths in the dark. Travel this trail all together in the daytime, over and over again. Get the children familiar with the trees, the bushes and the rocks. Then take a walk there just before dark, and at another time just after dark, and then some evening after the darkness has settled into night.

The "Family Trail" Travel this "family trail" at different seasons, month by month. Go out in the early winter morning and study the footprints of night-hunting animals. Do this again in mid-summer after a rainstorm, while the ground is muddy and impressionable to footprints. Fear of night noises, fear of night creatures—unless you live where dangerous ones prowl—fear of shadows, will all be forgotten in the fun of traveling together and finding treasures of the nighttime, on your own special trail that you have made together and found interesting at many different times of year.

"Knowing why" is a good game to play at any season, and to appreciate the many activities of nighttime we must explain to our children that Nature needs workers in the darkness as well as in the light. They will be delighted after examining pictures of the owl to go out at night and hear him maybe see him at work. They will like to study with you the foods of different night-prowling creatures and the way they defend themselves.

Watch Nature

Take the boys and girls out at twilight some summer evening and watch the toad do his work for Nature. Explain how he uses his tongue. Talk about the tools that each different animal has had given him, in order that he may do his work the best way. "Knowing why" leads to reading and study, not just along outdoor lines, but along every line all through life. It is a good game to start together as a family.

It is interesting to learn to distinguish the many different night

Channel Blasted For Sportsmen Where Pirates Once Held Sway

THE roar of dynamite, instead of the roar of pirates' guns, is now heard off the keys on the Florida Coast where expert explosives men are engaged in the constructive work of building channels so that boats may come safely to anchorage without the risk of running aground. Sea Horse Key, an island four miles off the upper western coast of Florida in the Gulf of Mexico, once rumored to be a pirate lair and afterwards renowned as a terminus for the slave-running trade, is now a headquarters for sportsmen and fishermen. It was recently the scene of some expert dynamiting when it was necessary to deepen a tortuous channel which was so shallow that, at low tide it was difficult for boats to get in and out.

Dynamite is the most economical and efficient agent that can be used for work such as this. Digging by hand would have been both costly and impractical because of the depth of the water; dredging operations employing mechanical equipment would have been prohibitive because of cost. The improved methods of blasting with dynamite, which have now been developed, make the job one which the explosives experts did economically.

Preparatory to blasting the channel, two lines of holes were put down three feet apart. Individual holes were spaced eighteen inches apart and were loaded with cartridges of sixty percent straight dynamite. When the dynamite was detonated, sand, rocks, and other debris were thrown up and off to the side in a great explosion which resulted in a channel approximately four feet deep and fifteen to twenty feet wide. Near the pier where the boats were landed, however, the water was shallower, so they ment would have been prohibitive because of cost. The improved methods of blasting with dynamite, which have now been developed, make the job one which the explosives experts did economically.

FOOD for THOUGHT

By CHARLOTTE SPENCER
Nutritionist, State Board of Health

The average housewife is bound to be confused by the rapid advances which are being made in the chemistry of vitamins. She has just learned that dark cereals are particularly good as a source of vitamin B and iron, when she hears a radio advertisement that a certain cereal is very rich in thiamin.

Early Impression Wrong
According to my earliest impression of vitamins they were small living animals which had to be consumed by the millions in order to keep healthy. It was a great surprise to learn later that they are visible chemical substances and in their pure state are needed in the most minute quantities.

Thiamin is the pure crystal form of vitamin B. It dissolves in water and looks something like common table salt.

The well known vitamin C masquerades under the chemical name of ascorbic or cevitamic acid. In the pure form one tenth of a gram is estimated to be the daily adult requirement. When we remember that one gram is about one thirtieth of an ounce, we see how very small a quantity of this substance makes the difference between a good allowance for health and death from scurvy.

"G" Isolated in 1937

The vitamin which used to be called "G" has been shown to contain several different vitamins. Nicotinic acid is the part which is most effective against pellagra. A young scientist from the University of Wisconsin, Dr. Elvehjem first isolated this factor in 1937 and has since received international recognition for his work.

Riboflavin, another portion of the old vitamin G, is the yellow green coloring matter that occurs in many plants and animals tissues. The yellow pigment of skim milk is rich in this factor. The work of this substance is so new that its function for human beings is not very clear, beyond promoting general good health.

Several chemical substances, similar but not identical, have the action of vitamin D in affecting the ways in which our bodies use calcium and phosphorus.

The discovery of these numerous vitamin factors in pure form has emphasized rather than decreased our need for relying upon a well balanced diet rather than upon the costly crystalline forms. The medicinal use of these pure forms is for treatment of people already sick from a lack of these vitamins. The best way to make sure of an abundance of all vitamins, known or unknown, is by a well balanced diet with plenty of milk, fruits, vegetables, eggs, and dark cereals, with cod liver oil when needed.

The fifth and sixth grades are planning a Christmas program in which they will describe Christmas in the different countries and they will sing carols representing these different lands.

The P-T-A membership drive was won by Mrs. Nailor's seventh grade class. The seventh and eighth grade social studies classes took a trip to Wilmington on Thursday afternoon to see the movie, "Drums Along the Mohawk." BOOK SHELF

We have a new and thrilling experience. An author whose manuscript was unable to accept for publication, wrote: "Please destroy the manuscript. I am very thankful you refused publication, for it needs many changes before it is ready for publication."

History Rewritten
History has to be rewritten every generation so that the old prejudices can be taken out and the new ones put in.

One fall publication will be a study of the doctor in French drama. Having noticed that one of the chapters was devoted to jokes, we examined it with the hope that we might entertain you. It seems there once was a lady who went to a doctor for diagnosis and treatment. The medical man wrote her out a prescription and told her to "take it." The lady thereupon ate the piece of paper and immediately became well.

We never realized how inaccessible Utopia was until we looked for it in the index of The College Of The Future and found it listed as being on page 533. There are only 529 pages in the book.

A good carpenter is a man with a full complement of tools and a sufficient amount of experience to enable him to use them with skill. We all know what a carpenter's chest must contain. But what about the tools of learning? What must a man have in addition to experience if he is to be learned? In the same book—"The College Of The Future" we have discovered for the first time an inventory of them.

Besides maturity of interest, any very profitable study of an adequate college curriculum today would require certain minimum tools of learning, sufficient knowledge of English to read and write it readily, and sufficient knowledge of arithmetic, science, geography, and history to grasp the significance of elementary arguments concerning important contemporary problems—as well as a least the native capacity necessary for applying such tools to the study of contemporary problems.

We are told that the movement for the 49th State—South Texas—goes on apace. We must confess, though, that this movement has not as yet created very much demand for our "Social Clefts In Texas," which is a history of the beginnings of this movement.

Two Things Disturbing
Publishers and educators and authors are disturbed about two things: the fact that people don't read more, and that more people don't read. Let's consider an average man. He starts going to bed at ten. It takes him half an hour to get undressed, put the cat out, fix the fire, and go to sleep. He has to be asleep at ten-thirty because he needs eight hours of sleep and has to be up at six-thirty. Give him half an hour to get the cat in, fix the fire and bathe and get dressed. He starts to eat at seven. At seven-thirty he goes to work, and he gets there at eight-fifteen (this is an average man, remember). He works eight hours and has forty-five minutes for lunch. So it is five when he quits, and five forty-five before he gets home. He has half an hour with the children before supper. So he doesn't begin to eat until six-fifteen, and it is seven before he is through. The next hour he spends washing the dishes, putting the children to bed, smoking his pipe and reading the evening paper—so it is now eight. We estimate that the average man also spends an hour a day putting in the house, garden or garage—so he puts up with nine. But he hasn't talked with his wife yet about the bills, how Johnny is getting along in school, where they shall go on Sunday, and about the relatives—this will certainly take half an hour, and bring him up to nine-thirty. Between nine-thirty and ten he can go to the movies, the lodge, the poor man's club, walking, or read a book. If you ask us, the average man hasn't got time to read a book.

But suppose he squeezed out a half-hour here and there, how many books could he read? The average man probably doesn't read more than two hundred words a minute, or 6,000 words in half an hour. If an ordinary book contains 75,000 words, it would take twelve stolen half-hours to finish it. How many times a year could an average man do that?

Weekly Sermon

The Peerless Christ

By Rev. M. A. Darroch, of the Christian Workers Bureau, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

Every country has its peerless leader; every profession or business its peerless personage. Probably every one has some person whom he considers a peerless example, or ideal. But to be truly "peerless" means to be unsurpassed in anything. With all of their superior qualities and marvelous accomplishments, all of our great leaders fall short of this perfection. There is one peerless—without a peer—and only one, the Lord Jesus Christ. When we have seen Him in all His glory, we can never refer to another as "peerless." Christ, the perfect one; the peerless Christ! He is peerless in every quality, but we shall limit ourselves to three aspects.

1. Christ's Peerless Personality.
In His humanity He displayed such a personality that even His enemies "could find no fault in Him." Great men are lauded for their manifestation of love; but of Him it is written, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends," and again, "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us." But in Him is more than a mere expression of love—He is love, the very essence of love, and all other love flows from Him.

Men are judged as to their morality, purity, and holiness. But God says that man's righteousness, at its best, is as filthy rags," while the Scripture speaks of Christ as one "who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth." He is called

Rallying Cry Against TB

For 35 years tuberculosis and health associations and the medical profession have been spreading information that tuberculosis is preventable and curable. A new rallying cry, used by Dr. Thomas Percin, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, is "Tuberculosis can be eradicated from this nation." The techniques are available for reaching this goal. Tuberculosis Christmas Seals are helping to reach these facts about the possible eradication of this disease.

the "holy one of God." He is "without spot and blemish." Dare we call men peerless in the face of such a personality?

2. Christ's Peerless Position.
Men are lauded for their authority and power. Christ said, "All power (i. e., all authority) is given unto me in heaven and in earth." Christ is the Eternal Son of God. Could anyone hold a higher position? He is eternally Kings of Kings, and Lord of Lords. Can we consider any man's position as "peerless" when compared with this?

3. Christ's Peerless Purpose.
His peerless personality and His peerless position make possible His peerless purpose. A man's personality and high position will fade unless he has a purpose in life and unless he accomplishes, at least to some degree, that purpose. God had a purpose in sending Christ to this world, and Christ had a purpose in coming. "For I am come down from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of Him that sent me." "For the Son of man come to seek and to save that which was lost." No higher purpose could have been possible, and above all, He did that which probably no other ever has done—He accomplished His purpose in life.

Men boast of having shaken the hand of notable personages, of having looked upon world leaders. But here is One, the Peerless One, the Perfect One, who is above all rulers and leaders, who pleads for man's friendship—and yet is unrecognized by millions today! He it is who says, in the midst of this world's burdens and problems, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

AERATION vs. CORROSION

Blessed are we who live in Newark by having clear, soft, unadulterated water of exceptional purity.

Unfortunately though this water contains a percentage of carbon dioxide which, harmless enough to persons, is playing havoc with service pipes in homes of our town by corrosion.

Corrosion is a chemical process of gradually eating away the inside of the small, house service pipes—thus accumulating rust within the pipes which gradually narrows and eventually closes the opening of the pipe. This action results in decreased water pressure in homes and, if allowed to continue, will necessitate the replacement of such service pipes.

Chemical experiments conducted by Town Engineer Price and George L. Baker and Gerald Gilligan, of the University Chemistry department, indicate that installation of an aeration system would decrease the carbon dioxide content of our water and thereby eliminate, to a great extent, this element of corrosion.

Installation of aeration is being considered by the Town Council. It is the practical solution to the problem confronting local property owners and while it would represent an expense to the Town Council it would also represent a savings to home owners and minimize an unnecessarily aggravating and costly condition.

FREE FOR THE ASKING

Winter decorations of evergreen are attractive, their presence enhances and makes more cozy the interior of our homes. The use of evergreens is popular and practical, particularly now as we enter the merry Yuletide season.

The approaching Christmas season should bring cheeriness, happiness and "peace on earth, goodwill toward men." No more fitting spirit could commemorate the birthday of Christ, Our Saviour.

At Christmas time especially should we be more thoughtful, more considerate of the rights and feelings of those about us, and we believe that this spirit generally prevails among our citizenry.

But, there are always a few among us who choose to disregard convention—a minority who ignore property rights and the laws of man. We refer to those who are prone to roam the woods at this glorious time of the year picking evergreens, cutting Christmas trees and generally trespassing on the property and rights of others without their permission.

We all want evergreen decorations and Christmas trees for our homes. We all enjoy getting out in the great outdoors and finding these gifts of nature for ourselves. But before we destroy a plant or cut a tree we definitely must have the permission of the owner. In most instances it will be freely given but when it is not the owner's rights must be respected or the penalties of our man-made laws may be inflicted.

Within the present week, we know of an instance where a prominent resident of our community saw two persons carrying some unusually beautiful evergreens. Accosting them, this person asked if the plants were for sale—they were and a bargain was struck. But the person buying them was curious as to where the evergreens came from, and asked that those selling them indicate where they were obtained.

Willingly, the sellers took the purchaser to a nearby wooded section where they had cut the evergreens and which woods belonged to the purchaser himself. Imagine, if you can, this property owners indignation upon discovering that his land had been trespassed upon, his plants ruthlessly cut and himself the purchaser of his own goods.

This is not a remote occurrence. From now until Christmas the woods will be full of people looking for evergreens with which to decorate their homes. The thought is commendable but we sincerely hope that they will first ask and secure the permission of the landowner.

REPORT ALARMS PROPERLY

Response to telephone calls reporting fires has been unnecessarily delayed recently due to persons calling in fire alarms dialing the operator instead of calling the local Fire Department direct.

When the operator is dialed she must refer the call to the chief operator who, in turn, puts the call through. This takes valuable time, however, and members of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company have suggested that quicker response would be made if the calls came directly to local fire department headquarters.

This is a worthwhile suggestion and it is recommended that telephone subscribers mark plainly on their telephone directories or near their telephones the number of the fire department which is NEWARK 2017.

The same suggestion holds true, in some respects, in regards to police calls. Many persons calling the police hang up before the patrolman on duty have time to get to the signal and answer the phone.

Chief of Police William H. Cunningham suggests that persons calling for police either hold the line until their call is answered or call back after a short interval. When calling for police dial NEWARK 4801, and if you are not answered immediately bear in mind that often the patrolman on duty has quite a ways to go before he reaches the telephone box.

Members of both the fire and police departments are anxious to serve the public and be of whatever aid they can in the prevention of property damage and personal loss or injury. They are ever ready, day or night, to answer all alarms.

Public cooperation should be given them for greater efficiency and to this end the foregoing article is written. Unjustified complaints may arise from persons calling in alarms to the wrong number or by dialing the operator and asking for the 'fire department' or 'police department.'

Memorize these two telephone numbers—write them in the space provided on the inside front cover of your directory or, if you have no directory, paste them on or near your telephone. This simple precaution may prove to be of great benefit to you or your neighbor when least expected.

Buying The Holiday Bird

By Katharine Fisher

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

Poultry, believe it or not, has changed as the years have gone by. Fancy and choice turkeys, ducks, and chickens, both fresh and frozen, are now being branded by national meat packers. A tag or sticker bearing the packer's name identifies these quality birds, so ask about them when you market. In buying these you pay so much per pound for the full weight of the dressed bird—that is, including head, feet, and giblets.

You should know, too, of the quick-frozen, fully drawn poultry that is steadily gaining in favor, and rightly so. Tender, plump turkeys, ducks, and chickens, selected for quality, are completely dressed and fully drawn (even the pin-feathers are removed), all ready for stuffing. Then each bird, with the giblets wrapped separately and placed inside the body of the bird, is wrapped, labeled with the drawn weight, and quickly frozen at a very low temperature that seals in its original choice flavor, freshness, and food value. When you buy it, it is still solid, and you have only to thaw it by the manufacturer's directions, then stuff.

Just a word about the price of these birds. When you buy dressed poultry you pay for the quick-frozen, fully drawn birds have no waste material, and they are also fully cleaned. Consequently their cost is adjusted to this convenience.

You can now buy turkeys as small as 7 lbs. in weight, so don't pass up turkey for the holidays just because yours is a small family.

How Big Should The Bird Be?

Turkeys, 12 to 14 lb. of dressed turkey (before head, feet and giblets are removed) is a fair allowance per person. For example, a 15-lb. dressed turkey provides about 20 servings. But when you're counting noses, don't forget to allow for second servings.

Chicken or Capon. With birds of 3½ lbs. or over, allow about ½ lb. to ¾ lb. of dressed meat per person. For example, a 4-lb. to 5-lb. bird serves about 6. As for less weighty chickens, a 2½-lb. bird serves 2 to 3 persons.

Duck. Unfortunately for those who love duck, the proportion of meat to bone is small. So don't count on more than 3 generous servings or 4 average servings from a 5-lb. duck.

Goose. A 9-lb. goose serves about 6.

How Much Stuffing Will It Need?

I agree with you, it is a nuisance to get your stuffing all made only to find that you haven't enough. While we have no hard-and-fast guide to offer you, we took careful notes in stuffing the crop and body cavities of numerous birds, using our Plain Bread Stuffing. Here they are:

For drawn turkey (minus head, feet and giblets) we averaged 1¼ c. to 1½ c. of day-old bread crumbs, measured loosely, for each pound of drawn turkey. For example, a 7-lb. drawn turkey took 12 c. crumbs; a 12-lb. drawn turkey 16 c.; and a 15-lb. drawn turkey took 18 c.

For drawn chicken we averaged about 2 c. of day-old bread crumbs, measured loosely, for each pound of drawn chicken. For drawn capon we averaged 8 c. of day-old bread crumbs, measured loosely, for a 7-lb. bird.

By the way, getting dinner will be easier for you if you stuff and truss the bird the day before. If there's any stuffing left over, just tuck it in a covered casserole and bake it with the bird for the last hour.
