ELECTION '86

Newarkers will select mayor, councilmen

William Redd

Hugh Ferguson

For incumbent Newark Mayor William Redd, the current campaign against challenger Hugh Ferguson is much more than just another election — it is a crusade.

It is a crusade, Redd said, to preserve the basic precepts upon which the city's current form of charter government was established in 1965.

Redd said the charter, based on the federal Hatch Act, set up a strict division between City Council and city employees. The intent was to keep elected officials from having direct impact on employment and promotions, and to keep employee groups from having direct impact on legislative workings.

"That," Redd said, "is the principal reason we have had the best run city in the state."

However, he charged the principle is being put to the test by the active involvement of Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 4, which represents city police officers, in Ferguson's campaign.

Newark residents will go to the polls Tuesday, April 8 to select a mayor and three councilmen. Profiles of the candidates in the mayoral and Third District councilmanic races begin here and on pages 6a and 7a. Councilmen Olan Thomas and Ronald Gardner are unopposed

Sitting in an office decorated with memorabilia of the two New York City Marathons he has completed, Newark mayoral candidate Hugh Ferguson recalled a recent conversation with a city resident.

"Somebody said I was giving (incumbent mayor William) Redd a run for his money," Ferguson said, smiling. "I told them I hope to do better than that."

Ferguson, the principal of Shue Middle School, said he has long been interested in civic participation and decided to run for mayor after several friends broached the idea.

Since, he has been building a volunteer organization and talking to voters to get a handle on their concerns.

"The top issue people have talked to me about is the importance of public safety," Ferguson said. "That is overwhelmingly what people are talking about and interested in."

"We do well with trash pick up and parks and recreation," Ferguson said of city government, "but we don't do well with police."

Newark Night plans

Officials hope to draw families downtown

Newark Nights, a proposal to turn Main Street into a pedestrian mall on selected Saturday evenings during the summer, is drawing the support of downtown businessmen.

"There appears to be a significant interest on the part of Main Street merchants in participating in an event of this type," City Manager Peter Marshall reported to City Council Monday night.

The idea behind Newark Nights, Marshall said, is to attract families to the downtown area and to break up the pattern of cruising through the city.

Currently, Main Street is given over to youths on summer weekend nights and many city residents have complained about rowdy behavior.

During a meeting of the newly-formed Citizens for a Safe Main Street earlier this month, it was suggested that the youths would be less likely to misbehave if more families could somehow be attracted to the downtown area on weekend nights.

"We are considering holding the first of what might be a series of such activities on a Saturday evening in June," Marshall said. "The focus would be on the heart of Main Street, with a portion of the street closed to through traffic in order to establish a 'block party' atmosphere."

"We have discussed bringing high school bands and other forms of entertainment downtown, with stores opened to provide a good mix of shopping, eating and activities," he added.

Jo Callison

Teaching has taken CEA president from Alaska to Greece

by Neil Thomas

After 28 years in the classroom and another decade actively involved in pressing teachers' issues, Christina Education Association President Jo Callison retains a freshness and enthusiasm about her job.

"Today, yes," she says, laughing, "You should have seen me yesterday."

Actually, says Callison, sipping tea in CEA's Newark office, teaching is still very enjoyable for her and the reason is the kids.

"Just being around youngsters and trying to motivate them," she says. "You see the potential in them, and you want to see them get as much out of themselves as they can."

"There is something there you enjoy about them, even when you have to yell at them. We've got a lot of good kids, so if you can live through the bad days..."

Callison, who is chairman of the business department at Christiana High School and who has taught at the school since 1969, first became interested in a teaching career as a youth in northeastern Texas.

"All along I wanted to be a teacher," she says. "Come of it was because of the teachers I had. I'm from a small town in northeastern Texas, and we had some very good people who cared a great deal. Plus, I wanted a profession and back in the '50s there weren't too many women could go into."

Callison enrolled in North Texas State University in Denton, little knowing as a freshman that her teaching degree would take her coast-to-coast and overseas.

By her senior year, however, Callison realized that she wanted to combine a love of teaching with a love of travel. "I graduated one evening and took a plane to Alaska the next day," she says. "I didn't want to let the grass grow under my feet."

In Alaska, Callison taught in Sitka, the old Russian capital. On an island and without television, taught Alaskan Indians and Eskimos and found that the people "relied on one another and got to know one another really well."

After two years, Callison felt the grass growing and headed south to New Mexico, where she taught in Albuquerque at a Presbyterian-affiliated school.

From New Mexico — having spied an advertisement in a professional journal — she found her way to the city of Thessaloniki in northern Greece. There she taught business education in a large private school, training local residents for work in a growing industrial economy.

Callison remained abroad from 1961-67, then returned to the United States to live on Long Island. She had friends in this area and, finding northern Delaware to be convenient to major cities and to have strong school systems, moved here in 1968.

Callison has been teaching business education courses at Christiana High ever since.

Soon after joining the school faculty, she became active in the teachers' organization. It is work she enjoys because "it is a sharing organization. The Association is basically teachers working for teachers. We're fortunate in this district to have teachers who want to help each other."

Callison has held a variety of positions in CEA and its predecessor, the Newark Education Association. She has been involved in membership activities and in negotiations.

In fact, Callison chaired the committee to consolidate 11 separate school district's teachers' contracts into one single contract during desegregation in 1978.

"I dropped out (of the organization) for a couple of years to sort of recover from that experience," she says. But with the formation of CEA in 1981, Callison once again became active and was elected president in July 1985.

"So far," she says, "it has been much more enjoyable than I thought it would be. I hate to run meetings."

But Callison says she has received a great deal of help from her fellow teachers, something she finds special to the Christina School District. "Most of the teachers in this district really enjoy teaching," she says. "They are willing to pitch in and help make it a better district."

"The philosophy is that if you are going to work in a district, work to make it the best you can. Sitting around complaining doesn't do the trick — you've got to work."

That is true whether it means working with administrators, other teachers or the students. "It gets kind of tough sometimes, because you see a lot of kids who are not motivated," Callison says. "But you've got to keep on them about setting long-range goals. They are our future. It's a cliché, I suppose, but it is the truth."

Jo Callison prepares a newsletter to be sent to CEA members.

Rezoning plan riles residents

Newarkers, city oppose proposal for Elkton Road shopping center

by Neil Thomas

Fearing the possible "Kirkwood-ization" of Elkton Road, more than 150 Newarkers jammed City Council chambers last Wednesday night to oppose a $25 million development proposal.

The developer, Bellevue Holding Co. of Wilmington, hopes to build an office complex, shopping center, motel and automobile dealership on 87 acres which surround the T-intersection of Elkton Road and Christiana Parkway.

To begin development of the commercial areas of the tract, Bellevue must convince New Castle County planning officials to rezone 40 acres as commercial. Deed restrictions must be removed from an additional six acres. The remaining 41 acres are currently zoned for construction of the office complex.

Although the land lies within county jurisdiction, city officials and residents oppose the proposal because of potential traffic problems and adverse effects on the environment and quality of life in Newark's surrounding communities.

Wednesday's meeting was called by County Councilman Michael S. Purzycki, in whose district the entire parcel lies. Purzycki said he was aware of city officials' objections to the proposal but wanted a meeting in order to gauge the feelings of area residents.

Those residents were clearly against the proposal. After listing the names of surrounding commercial developments, Edward E. Schweizer of Indian Road said, "I think what we don't need in this city is another shopping center." His statement was greeted with loud applause.

Paul McCormick of Oaklands expressed concern about the impact on traffic. "This city is strangling today on traffic," he said. "If they do this, there will be only two routes out of town — New London Road and Nottingham Road."

Quality of life issues were raised by Kenneth Smith of West Park Place, who asked "What will stop the developers? When every parcel of land between the Kirkwood Highway and the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal is completely filled with something?"

"What happened to the concept of open space?" he added. "I want to live someplace where there is more to open space than parks and National Geographic magazine."

Al Root of Beverly Road said he understands that the land will be developed and suggested the developers plan a beautified shopping area with an access road off of Elkton Road to ease traffic problems.

Because Bellevue representatives several times mentioned that the shopping center would be similar to their University Plaza complex off Del. 273, Root said it is "ridiculous to come here and brag that it will be just like University Plaza, where you've got two football fields of asphalt."

Murray Sawyer, Bellevue's attorney, said the proposed shopping center would be similar in size — not appearance — to University Plaza.

Because a portion of the proposal calls for construction of motel on the western side of Christiana Parkway and an automobile dealership on the eastern side, Hugh Ferguson of Woodmere expressed concern that a truck stop such as several in nearby Maryland could result. Ferguson is a candidate for mayor in the April 8 city election.

Mayor William Redd said the city is in favor of use of the site for offices and/or a research center with light commercial development to support such a complex.

The city does not approve of Bellevue's plans to seek commercial rezoning for 40 acres and removal of deed restrictions on another six acres to build a shopping center. Such development is viewed by the city as over-commercialization.

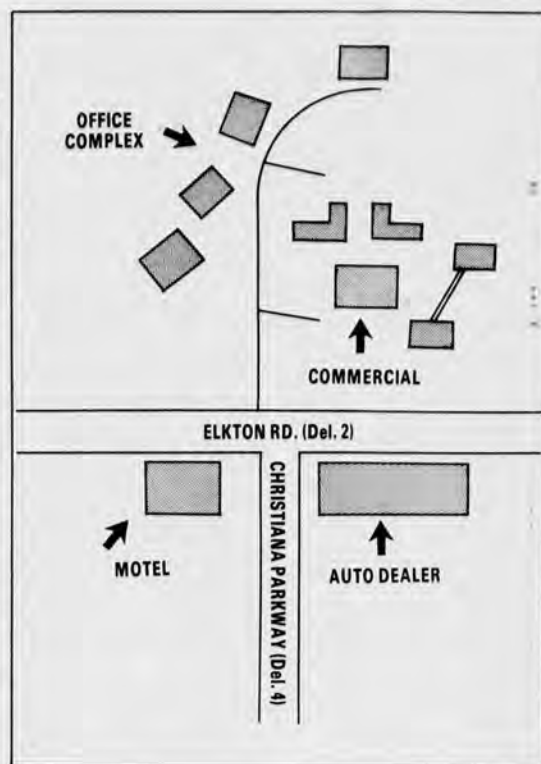

Sawyer said Bellevue hopes to construct a 200,000 square foot shopping center, anchored by one major store.

Should the county grant rezoning of that level of commercial intensity, city officials believe other parcels along the road could follow.

"If there is one thing the Planning Department is most concerned about, it is the long-run impact of that intensive level of commercialization," said Roy Lopata, Newark planning director, prior to the meeting.

Lopata added that a concern about a Kirkwood Highway situation developing on Elkton Road is "a fear we all share."

A public hearing on the rezoning is scheduled at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 1 by the New Castle County planning department. It will be held in the City/Council Building in Wilmington.

The Bellevue parcel includes land on all sides of the intersection. Proposed are a motel, auto dealership, shopping center and office complex, as shown on map.

City to flush water mains

As University of Delaware students prepare for spring break, Newark water department crews begin planning for the fifth annual flushing of water mains throughout the city.

Water main flushing will begin Monday, March 31 and end Friday, April 4, according to Water Department Director Joseph A. Dombrowski.

The flushing is held during the University's break because more water is available to complete the process when students are out of town, he said.

During the flushing period, residents can expect loss of water pressure, Dombrowski said. Also, turbulence resulting from the flushing process will turn water rust colored.

Dombrowski urged residents not to use water when mains in their neighborhoods are being flushed.

The schedule is as follows:
• Monday, March 31 — The southernmost section of the city, including Arbour Park, Silverbrook and Yorkshire.

• Tuesday, April 1 — The central residential district bounded on the south by the Penn Central Railroad tracks, on the east by Chapel Street, on the north by Elkton Road and Delaware Avenue and on the west by Apple Road.

• Wednesday, April 2 — The area straddling Casho Mill Road and including Devon, Binns, Westfield, Cherry Hill, Elan, Pheasant Run and parts of Woodmere.

• Thursday, April 3 — The northeastern sector including Main Street, Cleveland Avenue, Paper Mill Road and North College Avenue. Residential areas include George Road Village and Lumbrook.

• Friday, April 4 — The northern residential area including Fairfield, Fairfield Crest, Nottingham Green and Oaklands.

Cooch's Bridge Road closing tabled

City will await action by Texaco station owner, word from state

Newark City Council has tabled a proposed bill to prohibit truck traffic on the northernmost stretch of Cooch's Bridge Road pending receipt of information from state highway officials.

Council first took up the bill last month after residents complained that trucks were using the road as an impromptu parking lot while waiting to get diesel fuel at a nearby Texaco station.

The trucks were blocking driveways and emitting loud noise and unpleasant fumes, residents said.

However, station owner Tom Halladay of Bear told Council Monday night that "there is a problem back there at times, but I believe it is blown out of proportion."

Many of the truckers who park on the road are not his patrons but come from a nearby industrial park, he said.

Halladay and his attorney, K.W. Lewis, asked Council to give them time to work out an amicable solution to the problem. They hope to work out a deal for land adjacent to the station which might enable reconstruction and the inclusion of a holding lane.

Several Maryland truckers were present to air their views. They urged Council not to act against the station because it is the only one in Newark which provides diesel fuel, and Delaware law requires out-of-state truckers to purchase about 60 percent of their fuel here or face a tax penalty.

Council tabled the ordinance pending the receipt of information from the state. The road is a state road and not under city jurisdiction, although the city can request that the road be closed to trucks.

In other action Monday, Council:

- Approved the rezoning of the 1.3 acre Delaware Tire parcel on South College Avenue from business limited to general business. Rezoning was requested because the state is widening South College Avenue and may take part of the Delaware Tire parking lot. If that happens, the owners may have to reorient the business on their parcel to provide adequate space.

- Approved an ordinance to require the city's street peddlers to have a minimum of $100,000 of insurance to protect themselves and the city from claims.

- Approved establishment of a tow away zone on Wharton Drive in Paper Mill Apartments. The area is often overcrowded with cars when college students hold large parties, and the tow away zone will enable city officials to maintain routes for emergency vehicles into the complex.

- Passed first reading of bills to alter downtown parking requirements for businesses and amend city street standards. The public hearing and second reading will be held April 28.

- Passed first reading of a bill to change the stop sign to a yield sign at Minquill Drive and Park Place.

mosphere we have already seen. Until Main Street is cleaned up better than it is now, this may be just adding to the fire."

Thomas fears Newark Nights will draw the wrong kind of people downtown despite its good intentions.

"I see it as a kind of extension of the Ann Brown (Citizens for a Safe Main Street founder) concept of bringing more Newark families to Main Street," said Mayor William Redd. "It could conceivably go either way. I'd like to give it a shot."

Councilman John Suchanec suggested in jest that Newark Nights could serve as a test case for those who have long called for a permanent pedestrian mall on Main Street.

NIGHT/ from 1a

Costs for Newark Nights would be shared by the city and the local business community.

Initial planning has been carried out by Dr. Jeff Miller, a University of Delaware economics professor on a public service fellowship with the city; Roy Loptata, planning director; and David Fitzgerald, human services director.

City Council voted to allow planning to continue, but Councilman Olan Thomas expressed reservations about the idea.

"I am somewhat leery of this proposal," he said. "I agree with the concept behind it, but this is close to the party, resort at-

COVER STORY

Hutchinson has promoted city parks

If there is any one issue with which Newarkers identify Third District City Councilman Betty L. Hutchinson of Apple Road, it is parks.

During two and one-half terms (1977-80 and 1984-86), the native of western Pennsylvania has been an outspoken proponent of the need to develop additional parks and preserve open space in Newark.

"Open space and parks are a good investment for any community," Hutchinson said.

While Hutchinson praises the city's current parks system, Parks and Recreation, she said "my only concern is that we don't stand back and just go with what we have. In light of all the new development, we have to preserve open spaces. As Newark spreads out, I would like us to maintain our identity if we could."

Parks was one of the first issues in which Hutchinson became interested when she and her husband, a University of Delaware professor, moved to Newark. The city did not have a Department of Parks and Recreation at the time and instead depended on a local citizen's organization for the provision of programs and activities.

As a member of the League of Women Voters of Greater Newark, Hutchinson testified before Council on the need for a parks program. A department was eventually established by the city.

After sitting through numerous meetings on behalf of the LWV, Hutchinson found herself drawn to the local political process. "I sat through hours and hours of discussion on sewer problems," she said "and the bottom line is that I got interested in the other aspects of city government."

She served on the Newark Housing Authority, Newark Beautification Project and Mayor's Revenue Study Committee before joining Council in 1977.

Today, Hutchinson is heading the city's Clean and Green Committee. The Committee is promoting awareness of the need to maintain the neat appearance of Newark.

Although parks are her chief concern, Hutchinson is also working on the traffic problems which have become a growing issue in the southern section of the Third District.

The District includes the communities of Silverbrook and Arbour Park along South College Avenue, where the opening of the Christina Parkway connector between Elkton Road and Chestnut Hill Road has created an upsurge in truck traffic.

Many truckers are using Christina Parkway to bypass state-line tolls on Interstate 95, and Hutchinson said "we really have to do something about that." Not only are truckers not paying their fair share to repair the damage they inflict on the highways but there is a fear of serious accident resulting, she said.

Other issues of interest to Hutchinson include:

- Police — Hutchinson supports the hiring of additional police officers to patrol during the city's difficult weekend evening hours. "We can't permit a few troublemakers to take (Main Street) away from us," she said.

paing. "We have a (comprehensive) development plan that was written in 1968," he said. "We need a new plan, that's all there is to it."

He also believes the city planning department should be "more planning and less reacting" to problems which arise. "We need to go out and say this is what we want Newark to be like," he said.

Along with that, Ferguson hopes the city will work on the joint problems of image and economic development.

"Newark is a great place to live and right now that image is not getting through" to business and industry, he said.

"Newark needs some development of the right kind. We're not interested in smokestack industry. We need to go out and look for (the right kind of industry). Now, we're not doing that," Ferguson added.

Instead of responding to crisis after crisis, Ferguson believes the city must do some long range planning.

Ferguson is a graduate of Westminster College and earned a doctorate at Temple University. He has lived and worked in Newark for 17 years, having taught and been an administrator

FERGUSON/ from 1a

If elected, Ferguson said he would attack the public safety issue head on by opening better lines of communications. "The first thing I would do is expand on conversations with a common goal," he said, "to get the police, administration and mayor working together. Things now seem to be working apart."

"The goal of a professional administrator is to have people work together for a common goal." That, Ferguson said, is where his long experience as a school administrator will help make him as mayor.

Ferguson favors expanding the number of full-time officers on the city police force. He opposes part-time officers, saying policemen should be counted on as committed professionals.

"I've talked with a number of policemen and not one has spoken about salaries or wages," he said. "What they do talk about is overwork. They have talked to me more about the need for help than anything else."

Besides public safety, Ferguson believes planning is a key issue in the current cam-

Ed Miller

Miller: Taxes, trucks top concerns

In campaigning for Newark City Council, Third District challenger Ed Miller of Arbour Park estimates he has knocked on 400 doors so far. And he hopes to knock on every one in the District by the April 8 municipal election.

What Miller has found is that "most people are satisfied about Newark, but they're also worried about taxes and about truck traffic."

Trucks are a key issue in the southern section of the Third District, where the state recently opened the Christina parkway linking Elkton Road and Chestnut Hill Road. The new road provides truckers an easy route to skirt the state-line toll on Interstate 95.

"Something has to be done about the truck traffic," Miller said. "It's an accident waiting to happen." And, he added, the situation is worsening as more and more truckers find out about the toll-free route.

"The state is losing money, and we are paying taxes on the road. There has to be some sort of way to control it," Miller said. "I want to know why the state hasn't done something about it already."

Miller, a businessman who owns Peddler's Pub and Peddler's Liquors in Christiana, is also interested in the related issues of taxes and economic development.

"We've got good taxes now. We want them to stay that way," Miller said. "We must protect our tax base with proper development."

Proper development is of special concern in the Third District, where the city recently annexed land and approved rezoning for the Sandy Brae Industrial Park.

"I think the Third District right now needs someone in there to help guide development of the District," Miller said. "It seems like when there is anything being developed, it is on that side of town."

Residents are well aware the Elkton Road corridor is a prime candidate for development. Miller said "What we would like to see is good clean development, office-type development with some commercial."

Miller, a native of West Chester, Pa., who has lived in the Newark area for eight years, added, "I sought out Newark as a place to live, as many others have done. We want to keep Newark as Newark. We don't want it to turn into Wilmington or Dover."

"We realized there will be development. We just want it done right so we can live together in a harmonious way."

The city, he said, needs a good liaison between the county and state governments in such matters. As a businessman experienced in dealing with the various governmental bodies, he added, "I think I can help."

Miller is also concerned about the Newark police force. While the city has "the finest police in the state," he believes the force may need additional staff.

"The police department has not grown over the last 14-15 years," he said. "With the amount of growth in Newark since I've been around, I think something needs to be looked into."

Understaffing is of special concern to the Third District, which is well to the south of center city. "District Three is sort of removed," Miller said. "If there is a problem someplace else in the city and the department is understaffed, what happens if there is a problem out on Elkton Road or 896?"

Although this is Miller's first attempt to seek political office, he believes he could help make Newark a better place to live. "I think I have the intelligence, background, and leadership abilities to do the job for the city."

REDD/ from 1a

"Everything Newark stands for is under attack," Redd said. "In the past, elections have been one group of citizens against another group of citizens. Now it is citizens against an organized labor union." He said "this is a new element in Newark elections, and a very disturbing one."

What is particularly disturbing to Redd is the fact that 85 percent of the city's police officers live outside city limits yet are working to elect a city official.

Despite the importance of the issue, Redd believes it is one which may be too difficult to successfully bring home to the voting public. So much time has passed since 1965 that many Newarkers no longer understand the importance of the charter provisions, and some are so young they do not know of the struggle to draft a charter, he said.

Yet, he added, "To me, the non-political aspect of this government is the essence of the good government Newark has enjoyed since 1965."

Redd, who has been mayor since 1973 and who served on Council from 1970-73, said other key issues in the campaign include planning and zoning, the central business district, and finances.

The city, Redd said, is working to assure that Newark gets the proper kinds of businesses and industries to maintain a strong tax base.

"We are trying to the best of our abilities to assure quality growth both within the city and on its borders," he said. Citing a recent case of city involvement, Redd pointed to opposition to an office complex/shopping center proposed for Elkton Road just outside the city's borders. The city believes the plans call for too intense a level of commercial development on the site.

Redd is pleased with the growth the city has seen recently, pointing out the Hidden Valley residential development annexation and the College Square shopping center project.

"We have been successful in growing steadily and by design and we will continue that," he said.

Concerning the problems encountered in Newark's central business district, specifically Main Street, Redd said he believes a "carrot and stick" approach may be a solution.

The "stick" will be the hiring of additional police officers — one full-time and several part-time — to deal with rowdiness on weekend nights. Also in store are continued road blocks to check for intoxication, and cooperation with such groups as Citizens for a Safe Main Street.

Redd said the "carrot" will be several Newark Nights being planned by merchants in cooperation with a city representative. The street will be blocked off for pedestrians and families will be encouraged to attend.

"We hope to break up the momentum of cruisers, make it attractive to come downtown and beef up business a little bit," Redd said.

Redd is a native of Baltimore and a University of Maryland graduate who came to Newark in 1954 to work as a DuPont Co. engineer.

Christina election deadlines

School board candidates must file petition by Thursday, April 10

Persons interested in running for one of the three Christina Board of Education seats which will be contested in the May 10 election have until Thursday, April 10 to file candidacy papers.

Seats which will be contested are in the A, D and G nominating districts.

The A district, on the east side of Wilmington, is currently represented by Cynthia E. Oates of East Fifth Street.

Alfred I. Daniel of Cordele Road in Red Mill Farms represents the D district. It is the eastern portion of Newark which straddles Kirkwood Highway and includes the developments of Windy Hills, Red Mill Farms, Sycamore Gardens, Newkirk Estates, Greenbridge, Kimberton, Newark Oaks and Chestnut Hill Estates.

District G is currently without representation, Phillip W. Darby of Patricia Road in Rutherford having resigned last week. A successor to Darby will be elected May 10.

The district includes the developments of Old Mill Manor, Harmony Hills, Harmony Woods, Rutherford, The Three Oaks area, Tanglewood, Fox Chase, Wellington Woods and the entire Greater Christina area.

Winners in districts A and D will earn five-year terms, while the winner in district G will earn a one-year term. Darby's original term was to run until spring 1987.

Candidates must run from the district in which they live. However, on election day voters from all seven Christina nominating districts will be eligible to vote for the candidates of their choice in districts A, D and G.

In effect, voters will be casting three votes, not just one.

The election procedures, established by a federal judge overseeing desegregation, confuse some voters, according to school district spokesman Phil

Toman. He reiterated that "candidates run from specific areas but all Christina School District areas may vote."

For those persons who are interested in running for the school board, candidacy petitions are available at the Clerk of the Peace Office, 800 French St., Wilmington.

Petitions must be signed by 15 residents of the district who are eligible to vote, and must be filed with the Clerk of the Peace Office by 3 p.m. Thursday, April 10.

To vote in the May election, persons must be at least 18 years old and reside in the Christina School District.

Gallagher program promotes safety

Parents notified if children fail to report to school on time

A voluntary parent notification program is in place at Gallagher Elementary School because of concern for the well-being and safety of children.

The program was begun in spring 1985 after the Gallagher PTA determined that parents were worried about their children during the daily walk to school or to the bus stop.

Often children are unsupervised and out of parents' view during the walk. Should child abduction occur on the way to school parents feared they might be unaware of the event until the child failed to return home from school later that afternoon, said PTA spokesman Debra L. King.

The Gallagher notification program informs parents if the child has not arrived at school by 10 a.m.

The Gallagher pilot program began in spring 1985. It was well accepted and the PTA chose to offer the program to parents of bus students as well. More than 50 percent of the students are registered and the results have been very positive, King said.

Thirty parent volunteers take turns checking on children's arrival at school. The children must be registered and the parents must be willing to call the school before 9 a.m. if the children will be late or absent.

The parent volunteer checks attendance slips at 9:30 a.m. If a registered child is absent, the volunteer checks to see if the parent has contacted the school. The Gallagher secretary, Maryanne Johns, records the names of those who have called to report absences.

The volunteer then proceeds to call the child's home or first contact number. Each parent must provide three contact numbers. Occasionally a parent will forget to call-in an absent child so the volunteer has to call. Fortunately, most parents value the service provided by the PTA and make a serious effort to follow directions.

At the National PTA Convention in June 1985, a resolution was adopted to support legislation requiring schools to implement a parent notification program. The National PTA provides guidelines for a parent notification program and encourages state and local PTA units to seek legislation requiring local school districts to establish policies for parent notification.

The Gallagher PTA hopes to demonstrate the need for this service by its evaluation at the end of the year, King said.

Film

'Reading Aloud'

"Reading Aloud: Motivating Children To Make Books Into Friends, Not Enemies," an 80-minute film by best-selling author Jim Trelease, will be shown to parents, teachers and general public at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 8 at Gallagher Elementary School.

Trelease is the author of "The Read-Aloud Handbook."

Using an anecdotal style that rings humor and enthusiasm, Trelease traces the need for reading aloud from the cradle to adolescence. He cites dozens of titles and demonstrates the techniques involved in reading aloud. Parents of older children will benefit from seeing this film, as well as those with preschool and kindergarten students.

Trelease warns of the dangers of children "overdosing" on television and offers a simple step-by-step plan by which parents can fend off the TV attack on children's living and learning.

The Gallagher PTA hopes to appeal to parents of preschool and kindergarten parents by opening the film to the public.

Many summer library programs are open to the public, and Trelease's remarks will motivate parents to explore the advantages of summer reading. A list of suggested books will be provided after the film.

Gallagher Elementary School is located near Harmony Road in Newark. Turn onto Harmony Road from Del. 273, and make a right turn at the first red light onto North Brownleaf Road. Gallagher is on the left side after the houses.

from 12:30-3 p.m. Maximum enrollment in each four-year old class is 15.

Parents serve as the administrative backbone of the school and take turns assisting a professional teacher/director in the classroom.

SCHOOLS

Ronald J. Holoviak, science teacher and director of the Young Astronauts Program at the George V. Kirk Middle School, and Jane Barfield, principal of the school, accept 25 Robotix kits from Bradlees department store in the Pike Creek Shopping Center. Making the presentation for Bradlees is Michael E. Hoosan, general manager, and John W. Schweser, sales manager at the store.

Bradlees boosts Kirk

When Kirk Middle School teacher Ronald J. Holoviak was looking for some support for his young astronaut program, he turned to Bradlees, a department store in the Pike Creek Shopping Center.

Holoviak spoke with the manager of the store and asked if there were some way the store might help his students in their study of robotics. The store was quick to respond and recently presented to the school 25 robotics kits, one for each Kirk student enrolled in Holoviak's program.

The Kirk Young Astronauts Program was the first to form in New Castle County and was the 347th chapter of the 1,000 charter members of the Young Astronauts council nationally.

According to Holoviak, the program is multifaceted, covering a wide range of topics including the study and history and actual construction of hot air balloons, the study of aviation and the construction of paper balsa wood radio controlled aircraft.

He said it also includes the study of rocketry and the construction of model rockets, and this year the study of astronomy with special emphasis on Halley's Comet. Holoviak said he is deeply appreciative of the Bradlees' gift. The students were so appreciative that immediately following the presentation they opened the kits and began to work on them.

When Holoviak told them that they would have to wait until it was time for the Young Astronauts Program later in the day, the students seemed genuinely disappointed but were looking forward to the Young Astronauts period.

As the 31st annual Blue-Gold All-Star Football Game approaches, a newly formed Blue-Gold All-Star Committee at St. Mark's High School is busy making preparation to ensure the school's most successful fundraising year. All funds raised through the event benefit Delaware's mentally retarded citizens.

In 1984 and 1985, St. Mark's received the Touch-Love Award for the high school which raises the most money through in-school events as well as ticket sales. Last year $3,500 was raised by St. Mark's students, faculty, parents and friends. This set a record as the most money contributed by a high school in the All-Star event's 30-year history.

According to Tony Glenn, who is vice chairman of the 1986 game and a teacher at St. Mark's, this year's activities at St. Mark's will have an added dimension. "The major difference from other years is that this is the first year that St. Mark's has a Blue-Gold Committee of its own," he said. "The committee is comprised of 50 students. We expect that many benefits will result from this type of organization."

St. Mark's has set a goal of $4,000 for 1986. Glenn feels that passing along much of the responsibility to the St. Mark's students will help make the goal a reality.

The chairman of the 1986 St. Mark's committee is Dana Wortman, a senior at St. Mark's. She is assisted by two vice chairmen Mike Benefield and Tracey Flynn, both seniors.

There will be 12 sub-committees, of which all but one are run by seniors. Ted Spiker is in charge of publicity and promotion, Cyndi Lukowski will lead the student council's involvement, Leslie Frost will serve as a liaison with the St. Mark's administration, John Mangan and Mark Mazick are in charge of athletics. Dan Kempinski is in charge of purchasing and John Dzick will take care of ticket production.

Jen Courtney is head of cheerleaders and also will be responsible for organizing alumni who were involved in previous years' activities. Maribeth Chalfant chairs the dance committee, Terry Courtney and Phil Flynn are co-chairs of raffles and Monica Moore will be a liaison with St. Mark's student clubs. Erica Romanowski, a junior, will head the Pep Club.

Trivia game

Newark American L.L.

Newark American Little League has announced an exclusive fundraiser for its 1986 season to benefit its young baseball players.

Thirty-two area businesses will have the one-time distinction of being featured on "Trifles," a collectors' edition trivia game board sponsored by the Little League.

The game board is similar to a well known version, with questions on history, geography and entertainment, with the addition of questions based on Newark and its trivia.

The game is manufactured by Henco, Inc. a Tennessee company that specializes in tailoring board games strictly for the fundraising purposes of non-profit organizations.

Volunteer representatives from the NALL Ladies Auxiliary will be reserving advertising spaces on a first-come, first-served basis through April 4. The cost of each space, if ordered by March 31, will be $150. After that date, the cost will be $175 per space. Also available will be limited patron and sponsor spaces.

After all advertising spaces are filled, orders will then be taken from individuals. Businesses who might be interested in giving these games as a gift to clients are also welcome to place orders.

The games board will sell for $13 each, with all proceeds going to Newark American Little League.

For those interested businesses who may have not yet been contacted, call 366-0694 or 368-2745 and arrangements will be made to take your order.

THE ARTS

by Phil Toman

The Opera Company of Philadelphia, under the dynamic leadership of General Director Margaret Anne Everitt, is world-renowned for its innovative opera productions of high artistic quality. In 1982, the Company took on a new challenge — the televising of opera. The Opera Company of Philadelphia now has one of the highest telecast profiles of any opera company in America.

In 1982, the Company began the four-part Faust series. Internationally renowned bass James Morris was engaged to play the pivotal role of the devil, Mephistopheles, in four new and provocative productions — Gounod's "Faust," Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust," Boito's "Mefistofele" and a fourth work to be announced. French conductor Serge Baudo leads the unusual series, which has already received international acclaim.

The operas explore the ever timely themes of damnation and redemption. Gounod's "Faust," presented by WHYY, aired on PBS Easter Sunday 1985. Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust" will continue the tradition this Easter Sunday, March 30 at 2 p.m. The remaining Faust works will air on successive Easter Sundays.

"The Damnation of Faust" continues the Company's musical exploration of the timeless Faust legend about the man who bargains with the devil. Bernard Uzan directed the stage production. His unique interpretation of this rarely staged work links Faust, the character, with Berlioz, the artist. "The temptations of Faust are those of Berlioz," Uzan explained, "and Berlioz' masterpiece is a kind of disjointed musical novel where Faust's fantasies, obsessions and struggles are written as an echo of Berlioz' own thoughts."

James Morris is a frequent performer at the Metropolitan Opera, where he has been heard in bass roles in such operas as "Don Giovanni," "Macbeth," and "The Tales of Hoffman." Recently he made a highly acclaimed debut in the role of Wotan in "Die Walkure" with the Baltimore Opera Company, later appearing in that role in Wagner's monumental "Ring" cycle at the San Francisco Opera.

Curtis Rayam gained international prominence in the summer of 1984 when he replaced Luciano Pavarotti in the title role of Mozart's "Idomeneo," conducted by James Levine, at the Salzburg Festival. Rayam has performed "The Damnation of Faust" with major orchestras of the world, and recorded it with the Boston Symphony under the direction of Seiji Ozawa.

French mezzo-soprano Nadine Denize has appeared with principal opera theaters and festivals throughout the world, including La Scala, the Hamburg Staatsoper, the Paris Opera, the Berlioz Festival in Lyon, and the Aix-en-Provence Festival. She appeared recently as Fricka in the San Francisco Opera's production of Wagner's "Die Walkure."

Jules Bastin, a Belgian bass, has performed at many of the major European festivals, including the Berlioz Festival in Lyon. He also recently appeared at Aix-en-Provence in Rameau's "Hippolyte et Aricie" with Jessye Norman and Jose Van Dam.

The conductor for this production is Frenchman Serge Baudo, who has been the music director of the Orchestra of Lyon, France, since 1971. He has guest conducted at La Scala, the Metropolitan Opera, the Teatro Colon, the Berlin Opera and the Aix-en-Provence Festival, and has toured with his orchestra throughout Europe, Japan, Korea, and China.

Director Bernard Uzan, also a native Frenchman, is a frequent guest of the Opera Company of Philadelphia and has directed numerous opera productions throughout the United States. In France, Uzan has directed several operas, including "Samson et Dalila" in Lyon, "Les Contes de Hoffman" in Marseilles and "Manon" in Aix-en-Provence.

Executive producer of the telecast is Margaret Anne Everitt, general director of the Opera Company of Philadelphia. Producer of the telecast is Clemente D'Alessio and director of the telecast is Alan Skog.

A special tip of the Toman Topper to Margaret Anne Everitt. Margaret Anne has been chief artistic and administrative staff member of the Company since 1980. She has concentrated on presenting original productions of familiar and less familiar operas featuring international artists, many of whom have made their American debuts with the Opera Company of Philadelphia.

Special rates

Beginning in the fall of 1986, Delaware citizens aged 60 or older who are formal University of Delaware undergraduate or graduate degree candidates may take university credit courses without paying tuition or related academic fees.

This new opportunity, which reflects the university's effort to encourage adult students to continue their studies, either on a part-time or full-time basis, is the university's response to Senate Bill 50.

The bill, which was signed by Gov. Michael N. Castle on June 28, called for the establishment of programs making higher education available at no charge to Delaware senior citizens at the university, Delaware State College and Delaware Technical and Community College.

This fall, free tuition will be granted to senior citizens on a space-available basis for classes not filled at the university. Participants will be responsible for buying their own books and for payment of any late registration charges and fees for other services.

For information about admission and other program requirements, contact the Division of Continuing Education, telephone 451-1114.

Del Tech

Geriatric nurse aides

The Industrial Training Center of Delaware Technical and Community College, located in Pike Creek Valley, is accepting registration for its April 7 class for geriatric nurse aides.

The program is designed to serve the needs of the aging population in New Castle County through the training of certified nurse aides who work in area nursing homes and home health care agencies after graduation.

The training program is free to economically disadvantaged individuals, who must be a minimum of 18 years old. Often, though, our graduates are in their 50s or 60s so age is no barrier to program entry or to the employment market.

The training in this five-week program (April 7 to May 9) emphasizes hands-on practice, with more than 100 hours of clinical experience at an area facility. All interested individuals should call Delaware Tech at 368-6636 for details and to schedule a meeting with the intake counselor.

Dean's list

David E. Hall of Newark was named to the dean's list for the fall semester at Delaware Technical and Community College. He earned a 3.61 grade point average in the industrial engineering curriculum.

U.D. Lewes campus to host conference Saturday, April 26

"Resources for Women Facing Change" will be the subject of a one-day conference, scheduled from 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Saturday, April 26, in the Virden Center on the University of Delaware campus in Lewes.

Examining issues associated with change in women's lives, the conference is being presented by the University's Division of Continuing Education in cooperation with the University's Women's Studies Program and the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service of the University and Delaware State College.

Opening the conference will be an address on "Women and Self-Esteem" by Annabelle C. Kressman, co-owner of Kressman Consultants Inc., which was served as a resource in women's issues for 10 years.

Participants will be able to choose two workshops from the five different topics offered during the day.

Workshops are scheduled on: "Looking at the Changing Financial Picture," how to set and adjust financial goals, keep records, plan spending, credit, taxes and retirement.

"Time Management Skills," ways to develop, build and use time management skills both personally and professionally.

"Knowing the Legal System to Cope with Special Problems," an overview of the courts and administrative agencies, a look at divorce, property division, child support and child custody and information on employment discrimination, sexual harassment and comparable worth.

"The University and Women in Transition," what the University of Delaware can offer women entering or re-entering the work world or college.

"Widows on Widowhood," perspectives on how to meet the challenges of widowhood.

Workshop leaders will include Sandy Facinoli, interim county extension director and home economist for Worcester County, Md.; Sally Foulke, extension home economist in Sussex County; Ann Lopata, counselor in the Adult Center for Continuing Education Student Services at the University; Kathi A. Karsnitz, attorney with Young, Conaway, Stargatt and Taylor in Georgetown; Dolores Fenix Sapienza, director of continuing education at Delaware State College; Debbie Walker, Delaware state family living agent in Sussex County for the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service; and Roxanne Whittaker, extension home economist in Kent County.

Cost of the conference is $20, including lunch. Enrollment is limited, and registration should be completed by April 22.

When you have to sit through two or three night meetings a week, without dinner and without — gasp, gasp — television, it is always refreshing when someone has the courtesy to break up the monotony with a touch of humor. So a kind and heartfelt 'thank you' goes out this week to Newark City Councilman John Suchanec.

As Monday's Council meeting wound down, Councilman Louise Brothers brought up the fact that Main Street sidewalks are a virtual circus. The walkways host wheeled vehicles of almost every description, from peddlers' carts to unicycles to bicycles.

Pointing out that the use of bicycles on the Main Street sidewalks is illegal, Brothers questioned what could be done about the latest nuisance to pedestrians — skateboards.

"I think," Suchanec piped up, "we should have a Main Street picture contest. We could have people take snap shots and try to identify as many violations as they can."

Certainly, it wouldn't be a difficult contest for which to find suitable entries. We might even consider running a few with this column, so long as the violations aren't so serious as to detract from our image as a "family newspaper!"

Newark is about to host a very special event, in fact a series of events. Beginning in less than one month the city will have the honor of kicking off a state-wide effort to raise funds for the restoration of the Statue of Liberty. What better cause for which to raise money than the very symbol of freedom which has greeted so many new Americans as they reached New York?

The effort will begin Sunday, April 20 with a Liberty 10-kilometer run and a biathlon, both of which will start and end on Main Street. A registration form can be found on page 3b of this newspaper. Come on out and lace up for Liberty!

Masters competitors clear hurdles and age barriers.

Gilberto Gonzales of Puerto Rico readies for pole vault attempt.

The masters

Track competition builds hot rivalries, warm friendships

by Bruce Johnson

"Did you see me run?" asked 72-year-old Gilberto Gonzales from Puerto Rico as he skipped up to 73-year-old George Hills after completing the 55 meter dash. "I think I set a new record. I was flying!"

Hills had seen Gonzales run, at least the back of him, as both men competed in the Eastern Regional Masters Indoor Track and Field Championships held Sunday, March 23 at the University of Delaware Fieldhouse.

Gonzales didn't set the record, but he didn't complain. He already owns six world records in masters competition. In fact, Hills is no slouch, either — he holds nine world records.

The records, important as they are, have proven secondary in the lives of both men to the health and friendships they have enjoyed through their involvement in masters competition. Masters provides an outlet for track and field competition for athletes 40 and older. There is a sub-masters program for those 30-40.

"I've been doing this since 1969," said Hills, who weighs only five pounds more than he did in college. "I enjoy the exercise and the challenge. I've made a lot of good friends and I enjoy seeing them. I love the competition but I would be out here even if I lost every race."

"The masters gives me a chance to compete like I did in my college days," said Gonzales, who was a member of the 1935 Puerto Rican Olympic team. "It's the clean cut way of life and the fraternity among racers. Sport is the best vehicle to make friendships. There is no hate, there is only fraternity, which is what is needed in this world."

Meet director and Newark native Larry Pratt agreed. "The uniqueness about this is the friendships," said Pratt, who also competed on Sunday. "I correspond with a guy in Ireland that I'm friends with. You coach each other and have fun and it gives you a great reason to go out and exercise. It's the greatest health thing going."

That is not to say that the competition is not stiff. More than 250 men and women challenged each other in 17 events, which ranged from the pole vault to the high hurdles. Ages ranged from 30 to 78 with some impressive times being recorded. One 45-year-old man ran a 1.56 half mile, a time which could equal that of most college athletes.

Gonzales himself, at 72, has run a 13.3 second 100-meter dash and a 77.5 second 400-meter run. But the smiling Puerto Rican said that his favorite event is the decathlon.

"I don't feel my age at all," said Gonzales, who could easily pass for 50. "I feel like a teen-ager. I think like one, and for my age I move pretty fast."

For Hills, the transformation of an overweight middle-aged man to a world record holder is startling. On Sunday, Hills competed in eight events which included the pole vault, the high jump, the long jump, the shot put and several sprints.

"I'm really amazed," he said with a smile. "I'm running faster now than I did at age 60. It's hard to believe because I thought after 60 everything was downhill. But I guess if you train you don't lose your speed, and it feels wonderful."

For local resident and Newark High School teacher and track coach Pat Walker, men like Hills and Gonzales are inspirations. "Three years ago I went up to Pennsylvania for a meet and I saw four or five men in their 70s who were world champions in their age classes," said Walker. "To me they are fine examples to look at and I hope I can do that when I'm at that age."

Walker recently became a masters competitor, having been introduced to the sport by long time Newark masters enthusiast George Taylor. Walker, who was a football and track star at the University of Delaware, said the feeling of competition hasn't changed.

"Mentally I think it's the same," he said, while cradling his son on his lap. "I still get the butterflies and the jitters when they call my heat, and I still have that tension. The things that are different are the muscles. I'm just slower now."

The masters is divided into age groups of five years with a minimum age requirement of 40. Every five years, athletes advance to the next age group. Some compete well into their 90s.

In a society that fears the aging process, the masters athletes look forward to growing older. "It's kind of a joke but everyone is looking to advance to the next age group," said Gonzales. "They want to get older so they can set better records. I'm 72 but I would love to be 75 so I could set records in the 75-79 category."

"The nice thing about it is that most people gripe about getting older," said Pratt. "With masters track, you can't wait to be the baby in the next age group."

As the day continued and one caught the competitive but friendly glint in the athletes' eyes, it was clear that no one had thoughts of retiring in the near future. "I expect to continue this until I'm 80, at least," said Hills. "The only thing that would stop me is a bad injury or arthritis."

For the colorful Gonzales, there was no doubt about his future. "I will die with my boots on," he said, casting his chin upwards with pride. "As long as I'm healthy, I will continue to compete because there is always a goal to shoot for."

Brans surprises Higley

by Todd Hickey

The distance between them was great. In the front, rounding the first turn of the Christiana High School track, was Salesianum's Tom Higley, the state cross country champion and arguably the best high school distance runner in the state. Just getting the baton, some 50 or 60 yards back, was St. Mark's Martin Brans. For Brans it was an unenviable position to be in, a position even the most accomplished runner would find difficult.

Yet one mile and some 4 minutes and 27 seconds later Brans, not Higley, crossed the finish line first, capping a superb comeback effort in which the Spartan runner gained an incredible 11 seconds on his opponent and earned himself and his team a first place medal in distance medley relay.

For Brans, it was the end to an incredible day (he also anchored the first place Spartan 4 x 1,600 relay team), and for the St. Mark's squad, it was a key to their second place finish in the second annual Christiana Relays held Saturday.

"I just watched the splits," said Brans, a junior, of the win. "I had to pick up nine seconds on him (Higley), a couple of seconds each lap. In the fourth lap, I was gaining on him, so I decided to start my kick. It was mainly determination — and a lot of work."

"He never ceases to amaze me," said teammate Jay Fletcher of Brans. "His running is always improving, he's always getting better." In addition to his fine showing Saturday, Brans took first place in the 18-and-under bracket of this year's Run for Bruce 5K, as well as placing fourth overall in last Saturday's St. Patrick's Day 5K. Both finishes indicate he is becoming a force to be reckoned with in local running circles, as well as high school competition.

Through a major component in the Spartan effort, Brans was not alone. In the distance medley (11:03.9), he ran with Fletcher, Brian Lennon, and Shae Cross; in the 4 x 1,600 (19:01.3), the team was composed of Fletcher, Lennon and Jim Feeley, as well as Brans.

In addition, Spartan athletes performed well in the shot-put relay (92'11"), in which Mike Benefield and John Dzik were able to earn a first-place medal. The St. Mark's team took a second in the sprint medley relay (3:50.4) and a third in the high jump (11'8") as well.

"I won't feel disappointed for more than two minutes," said Spartan Head Coach Joe O'Neill, whose team lost the first place trophy to Sallies in the 4 x 1,600 relay, the last race of the day. "Distance wise, we ran well today, and Martin was outstanding. Though the sprint relay teams had some problems, they know what these problems are and they can improve themselves."

"We're in good shape (from winter track), and we accomplished a lot today. This is the first time that we've been in contention in a major meet for a long time."

Other local schools did well, too. Glasgow, led by ace throwers Rich Hastings and Vince Cortliss, earned an impressive first in the discus relay (235'9"). The Martin Brans of St. Mark's finishes first, helping his team to a successful day of competition at the Christiana Relays.

Dragons finished tenth overall. Host Christiana also did well, earning second in the long jump relay (38'4") and ninth-place overall. The Newark boys team tied for a respectable 13th in the competitive meet.

In girls action, Newark placed second behind highly-favored Padua. The finish surprised Yellowjacket head coach Pat Walker. "You don't know how you're going to perform in the first meet, especially if you don't have a winter track program," said Walker. "And since we have so many girls on the track team that we haven't had a good chance to develop the way we want to, we were a little skeptical prior to the meet."

Pacing Newark were juniors Shelly Duch and Gillian Haskell, who led the 'Jackets to second place finishes in both the distance medley relay and the 4 x 1,600 (13:47.9 and 24:07.9 respectively).

"Shelly and Gillian had really excellent performances," said Walker. "They both ran personal bests in their miles." Both Duch and Haskell were members of the Newark cross country team, which placed second at the state meet last fall.

Lisa Mayer and Stephanie Davis contributed to the Newark effort as well, winning a first in the discus relay (165'5"). A second in the high jump (9'0") rounded out the Jackets' awards.

St. Mark's also had a strong showing in the meet, taking thirds in the 400 and 800-meter relays (53.4 and 152.7 respectively). The Spartans finished a strong fifth in team competition.

"How I reduced my food bill with Lawn Doctor."

Mr. Lawn

The good looking lawn next door told me how Lawn Doctor would visit me Spring, Summer, and Fall with professional care and custom feedings. And they cost less than backbreaking do-it-yourself. When I told my owner, he put down a dusty bag of fertilizer and called. Now I'm well fed for less. And he's asleep in the hammock.

Members of Newark's Calypso volleyball team practice some fierce net play.

Calypso

Women's volleyball team wins state title

by Bruce Johnson

Newark sports fans have had a great deal to be proud of this year. With high school state championships in football, volleyball, wrestling and baseball, Newark has truly become a city of champions.

But high school students are not the only athletes who have proven themselves superior. The Newark-based Calypso women's volleyball team has captured the 1986 state championship and earned the right to compete in the eastern regionals in Baltimore this weekend.

Calypso, which competes in the United States Volleyball Association, is a group of 10 women ranging in age from 23 to 35 who live and work in the Newark area. Most of the women played competitively during their college years and upon graduation were looking for a way to stay active.

"As soon as I left (the University of) Delaware I sought out other groups," said Susan Schanche, who plans to be married in less than a month. "I played in a number of recreational league games, and that wasn't competitive enough. Then I found this. I think I'm in better shape now than I was in college."

According to Schanche, most athletes are just beginning to reach their potential during their senior year in college. Then, due to graduation and a lack of professional sports, most women are forced to give up the sport for which they have worked so hard through high school and college. "People want to continue when they're getting better," said Schanche. "They play their senior year in college and then it's like, what are we supposed to do now? Well, there is something to do and it's the USVBA."

Besides the health aspects and the competitive nature of the sport, Calypso members enjoy the friendships that have developed.

"I live in Philadelphia and it's worth it to me to drive down to Newark and practice with these guys once a week and play in a tournament twice a month," said Kathy McElhany, who played college volleyball at Bucknell. "It's worth it because I've developed such a bond with these guys and they have become such good friends."

"Not all teams get along," said Mary Beth French. "A lot of times other teams will come up to us and say, 'you guys get along so well.' But, we're just out there for fun and although we like to win, we're not a cut throat team. That's helped us lay back and enjoy the game, and it's helped us stay together as long as we have."

Calypso, which formed in 1980 and at one time was called the Rusty Spikers, has claimed three Eastern regional championships, two state championships and numerous tournament victories.

"The more tournaments you go to, the more revved up you get to go to them," said Schanche. "You get addicted to volleyball, just so long as you don't play every week."

Although the company, the competition and the accomplishments are all satisfying and enjoyable, the time and cost does take its toll on the athletes. A tournament which can be played anywhere in the Middle Atlantic Region usually produces a marathon session of volleyball that begins early in the morning and often ends just prior to midnight. Combine that with the cost of the tournaments, uniforms and travelling expenses, and one realizes the commitment necessary.

Yet, the families are supportive and girls' agreed that it is well worth the expense and time. "My husband lets me do it because he knows it makes me happy," said Donna Methvin-Smith, who is the youngest member of the team. "Plus he's an accountant and it's the middle of the tax season, so it keeps my busy while he's out of the house. The only time you really don't look forward to it is on Monday morning when you have to go to work and you're sore and you got in late the night before."

Concerning retirement, the women can't even think of such a thing. "I want to play until my body gives out," said Methvin-Smith. "But I have bad knees and that could be anywhere from tomorrow to 20 years from now."

"Hopefully, I'll be playing forever," said French. "I look at Sally (Craig, oldest member of team) and she looks great. As long as I'm physically able, my interest will never die."

But it was Valan Benner-Budifchak who might have been speaking for the team when she declared that she would play until she was "too fat to run out on the court."

Tom Bockius

Newark High School's gentle giant

by Bruce Johnson

Newark High School's Tom Bockius glides a grand paw through his curly red hair. With his sheepish smiles and quiet nature, it is hard to believe that this gentle giant is one of the state's most feared — and revered — athletes.

The 6-foot 3-inch, 235-pounder is a state champion wrestler, the Delaware High School Football Lineman of the Year and an All-State football selection on both the offensive and defensive lines.

But despite his size, it is Bockius' immense character, not his physical frame, which most impresses those around him.

"Tom is the epitome of what we like others to have in terms of sportsmanship," said Bockius' football coach, Butch Simpson. "He's the ultimate in sportsmanship. He's the type of guy who would make a devastating downfield block in practice and knock somebody down, and then look sorry for it and help the person up. He really is a gentle giant."

Wrestling coach Jerry Milstead agreed. "Never has Tom done anything that wasn't in the manner of a true gentleman. He's very mild-mannered and soft-spoken, and doesn't like to get into a position where he has to speak about himself. I really like him and respect him because of the kind of kid he is, and I'm really going to miss him."

In sports where an aggressive nature is the cornerstone to success, it is hard to believe that this 17-year-old could excel. But he has, earning various football honors and posting a record of 26-1 in wrestling, with 15 first period pins. One opponent lasted just 17 seconds.

According to Milstead, Bockius has learned the secret of controlled aggression. "He knows how to focus his aggression. Because of his great intelligence, he knows when to be aggressive and when not to be."

Bockius does have a great intellect, which often goes unnoticed in light of his athletic accomplishments. But the Christina Board of Education took notice and recently honored him with a resolution which notes his 3.6 grade point average and 1200 score on his SAT college entrance exams.

Universities from across the nation have been drooling over the prospects of having Bockius on their campus. Ivy League schools offered attractive packages and the Lehigh wrestling coach predicted Bockius would be a future national champion. But Bockius opted to play football in his own backyard, for the University of Delaware.

"I like both sports but I like football a little more," said Bockius. "I'd like to do both in college, and I hope to my freshman year. I always felt that I could deal with not wrestling, but if I didn't play football when the season came around I think I would be depressed."

One of the main reasons Bockius chose Delaware is for its fine academic reputation. Bockius will major in engineering.

"I've always liked to design things," said Bockius. "I could change my mind, but right now it's what I want to do."

Despite Bockius' love for football, his greatest athletic accomplishment was in wrestling for the state championship. "I guess I'm most proud of the state championship in wrestling," said Bockius with an embarrassed grin. "Even though I had a lot of people helping me, you are out there by yourself. It's not like football where it's subjective. In wrestling it's all you. You have to earn it."

He is also proud of being part of two state championships in football because that's part of a team.

The fact that Bockius had to earn the wrestling championship and all the other academic and athletic achievements should come as no surprise. Although gifted with many talents, Bockius realizes that all achievements come through hard work. "I'd say I've got some natural ability, but it depends on what you do with that ability," said Bockius. "I work hard at the things I do, and I try to be my best. I really don't have a creed by which I live, but if you're not trying your hardest or doing your best then you're cheating yourself."

Tom Bockius is a star on the field and in the classroom.

"A lot of people don't realize how hard Tom works," said Simpson. "Despite him being the biggest kid on the team, he was probably in the best shape of anyone. It's hard work and great attitude that are going to make him an incredible success in life, and we're just proud of our association with him."

Although Bockius' life will undergo many changes in the next several years with the transition from high school to college, one thing will remain constant — the backing of his family.

"I value my family," said Bockius. "No matter what I do, they're always there. If I get hurt or do bad, it doesn't really matter to them. My dad says, why fight with your family because they are your true friends when it comes down to it."

And as Bockius points out, it's "always nice to look up into the stands and know that you've got at least three people rooting for you."

Glasgow nine rebuilding

Each spring, high school baseball coaches are faced with the never ending problem of filling vacancies created by graduation. Glasgow High School coach Dennis Dietrich is no different.

With a pitching staff that has been whittled down to one and a starting defense which has been decimated by 50 percent, Dietrich is looking towards underclassmen to fill the vacant spots.

"We're going to have a very young team this year," said Dietrich prior to a scrimmage with North East, Md. "We've got a couple of seniors but mostly we've got sophomores and juniors. We're filling the holes left by graduating seniors primarily with underclassmen."

Gone is ace pitcher Matt Wolynetz, who packed his valuable arm and headed forth to Delaware State College. Returning is senior Dave Kortas, who is the Dragons' only experienced pitcher and who will carry most of the pitching burden. Filling out the rotation will be underclassmen Greg Hastings, Donny Davis and Matt Olson.

Backing up the young staff will be returning starters Larry O'Neal at third base, Jimmy Marvel in centerfield and the King brothers, Kevin at shortstop and Keith behind the plate. The rest of the line-up is tentative, although Dietrich felt that Danny Chopko would start at first, Steve Weaver at second, Hastings in rightfield and Davis in leftfield.

"It all depends on how the younger fellows adjust to playing varsity baseball," said Dietrich. "I think there's ability there that should develop into a solid team. If it's this year or next remains to be seen, but we should be able to develop into a pretty good baseball team this year."

According to Dietrich, the benefits of a young team are its ability to take direction and its enthusiasm.

"I've been impressed with the kids in their ability to listen to what we've been saying and then apply it in their performance," he said. "I've been very pleased with their willingness to work together and their willingness to be coached."

In terms of competition for the Dragons, Blue Hen Conference Flight A once again appears to be solid. However, Dietrich pointed to Concord, William Penn and Newark as probable front runners.

"Personally I'm not looking at the season in terms of who we should be beating," said Dietrich. "Because of our inexperience, I'm looking at playing the best baseball we can to start the season and if we happen to be competitive, that's great. If not, then I'll look for us to progress and play better as the season wears on."

Dietrich is also pleased with the leadership roles his seniors have taken. "All of the upperclassmen are taking the role of leadership," said Dietrich. "I haven't seen one person in particular take the role of leader 100 percent of the time, but I've seen the older boys taking part in the leadership role and doing a nice job of it."

In determining keys to the season, Dietrich pointed to the fine balance of youth and experience which must take place for the team to be successful. "I think the key to our season is the youth gelling and the older boys providing the leadership to pull them together," he said. "If we can get those two things to work together, that will take us a long way."

Viking girls need live arms

With only three starters returning from last year's squad, Christiana High School softball coach Layne Drexel realizes his team will not likely be highly regarded state-wide.

But Drexel remains unphased and said that there's more to softball than being highly touted. "We're going to emphasize the positive nature of softball as a sport and as a learning experience," said Drexel. "We'll be learning about more things than just softball. We'll learn how to deal with the various types of personalities teams have, winning and losing and the general problems of life."

"It's going to be a relaxed, positive-type thing. We'll stress the basics and improvement and fun."

It's not that Drexel believes the Vikings won't be competitive; it's just that he realizes high school softball success is based on pitching, an area in which the Vikings are weak.

"Until we get improved pitching we're never going to be an undefeated team," said Drexel. "At best with a good offense and a good defense, against a great pitcher you are not going to score runs. That's the whole key to fast pitch high school softball. If you have good pitching you are going to be competitive."

But Drexel is not saying that the Viking pitchers aren't talented. In fact they are. It's just that where other girls compete in fast pitch feeder programs prior to high school, the Viking girls participate in slow-pitch leagues. By the time they reach high school, they are already years behind the other schools and unable to catch up.

"You can take an experienced ninth grade pitcher and make her great but it's hard to take an inexperienced freshman and make her great," said Drexel. "One great pitcher can be more dominant in a season than three or four great hitters can be."

Drexel remains optimistic and looks forward to the season. "We're going to try and minimize mental mistakes and take advantage of the other teams' mistakes," said Drexel. "If we're going to win, we're going to have to hustle and be scrappy."

Leading the way for the Vikings this year will be Kelly Scott at first base, Debbie Savage at second base and Rena Michels behind the plate. Sharing the burden of pitching will be juniors Barb Williams and Lauri Kline, and sophomore Barb Kerrigan.

The other spots have yet to be filled but Drexel stated that how well the girls in those positions play will most likely determine the outcome of the Viking season.

"The key to our season is how quickly the girls develop at the positions we have yet to fill," said Drexel. "If you're weak at one of those positions, you're going to give up runs."

Hens

Tennis captain

University of Delaware men's tennis captains have had a rich tradition of excellence in athletics as well as academics. Jaime Ferriero, the Hens' captain for 1986, is certainly no exception.

A senior from Rockaway, N.J., Ferriero captured the East Coast Conference third singles title last season after compiling a fine 10-5 record to improve his career mark at Delaware to 18-10. In doubles, the three-year letter winner teamed with last season's captain and ECC scholar-athlete Chuck Herak to post an 8-7 mark. Like Herak, Ferriero has also made a name for himself in the classroom.

An economics major, he owns a 3.9 grade point average and belongs to two honor societies, Phi Kappa Phi and Beta Gamma Sigma. He has made the dean's list every semester, is a member of the University of Delaware Athletic Governing Board, and has been named to the Athletic Director's Honors List three times.

"Jaime has already done a great job for us as captain with organizing and conducting practice throughout the fall," said Hen coach Dr. C. Roy Rylander, who enters his 34th season with a record of 263-137-2.

Attfield prepares for Del. Park opening April 12

John Attfield says he can afford to be enthusiastic about the upcoming meet at Delaware Park. "I'm 20 years old, so I have all the enthusiasm of youth," joked the British born trainer. "I'm doing what I love to do — and that's training race horses. I have some good ones that are ready to run. I just wish the meet would hurry up and open."

Opening day for the 100-day meet is April 12.

With last year's Delaware Park meet to his credit Attfield is completing his first year on his own as a trainer. Currently he has 11 horses under his care.

"Not much of a resume yet, but racing is something I was born to," said Attfield. "My father has been one of Canada's top trainers for the past 10 years."

John's father, Roger, is the head trainer for Kinghaven Farm, owned by D.G. "Bud" Willmot, honorary chairman of the board of the Molson Brewing Company and owner of the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

While being ranked as Canada's leading trainer in money won in 1985, Roger first gained distinction when he saddled Norcliffe to win Woodbine's prestigious Queen's Plate in 1976. Norcliffe went on to be named Canada's Horse of the Year that year.

He also saddled Selous Scout to win Hialeah's Turf Cup last year. "Although I was just a kid, I remember that Norcliffe was quite a horse," said Attfield. "But then my father is quite a trainer. We've always had a good relationship."

It was that relationship between father and son that fostered an appreciation and savvy for the race horse in a then young Attfield while growing up near the countryside of Reading-Berkshire, England. When Roger Attfield immigrated to Canada in the early 1970s, John remained in England to work for trainer Barry Hills. He then joined his father at Woodbine in 1979.

"My father taught me the basics about the race horse," said John. "He stressed the importance of proper feeding and grooming, and when to work a horse and the right distance for exercise."

Attfield continued to work for his father while he raced in Canada and the spring meets in Florida. Eventually father and son came to an amicable parting of ways.

"My father wanted me to go to college," said John. "I wanted to continue learning about the race horse. He saw that my mind was set and that there was no point in trying to convince me otherwise. So, he told me that he had taught me all he could and that I should work with a different trainer to learn other methods and techniques."

Attfield then went to Maryland to work for D. Michael Smithwick. Because of Smithwick's experience with both flat and steepchase horses, Attfield was exposed to a different view of training.

"Mr. Smithwick is one of the most brilliant trainers I've ever worked for," said Attfield. "His whole approach to horses and his ideas about them were new to me. He has the ability to sense how the horse thinks."

After a year working for Smithwick, Attfield started out on his own last year at Delaware Park. Attfield's two principal owners are Costas Triantafilos and Steven Dullis, both restaurant owners from Baltimore.

Attfield was quick to point out that his youth is no barrier to setting his own goals.

"I would like to win the Travers stakes," said Attfield. "But more than anything else, I would like to follow in my father's footsteps and win the Queen's Plate. If I could do that, I feel I would have really accomplished something."

Despite a quick start, the University of Delaware lacrosse team lost to Navy in action Saturday. The Hens fell to 0-2.

Tofu

Proper handling

"Tofu, or soybean curd, is a bland, cheese-like food. It is rich in protein and moisture, making it ideal for the growth of microorganisms — including some which cause food poisoning," says Dr. Sue Snider, University of Delaware extension food and nutrition specialist.

Contaminated tofu was responsible for a recent outbreak of food poisoning in Washington State. Most of the 50 affected people had gastrointestinal infections and three required surgery. The tofu was probably packaged in contaminated spring water.

"Don't stop eating tofu," says Snider, "but do take some precautions when you buy and store it." Because tofu should be kept below 45 degrees F, buy only tofu that is stored in a refrigerated case, she says. Tofu displayed with fresh produce is probably not being kept cold enough. Check the expiration date and abide by it.

Also, avoid any packages that are bulging; this may be a sign of spoilage. Finally, tofu should be refrigerated immediately at home. Snider says if you don't use the complete block, put the remainder into a clean container, cover it with fresh water and return it to the refrigerator immediately.

Want green lawn? Start working!

If your lawn wasn't up to par last summer, and you want it to be the luxurious green carpet of your dreams this year, now is the time to start working on it.

One of the first things to do is rake away winter debris, says Dave Tatnall, University of Delaware extension ornamental horticulture specialist. This allows air and light to reach your grass. If that buildup is a problem, a vigorous raking with a garden rake can remove it.

But, he cautions, this will also remove some healthy grass and the lawn will have to be reseeded.

If your soil is heavy and compacted, Tatnall recommends aerating it. An aerating machine can be rented from a local equipment rental center. The best machines remove tiny plugs of soil from the lawn, thus allowing air to reach the roots. Spike-type machines should not be used as they tend to compact the soil further, the specialist says.

Liming is only necessary every three to five years in this area. If you haven't limed by late February, you'll be better off waiting until next fall to do so unless a soil test indicates an urgent need. If you must lime now, a general recommendation is 50 pounds of pelleted lime per 1,000 square feet.

"Early spring is a good time to control onions and crabgrass," says Tatnall. "Treat wild onions with a 2,4-D combination spray. Crabgrass, though not yet visible, is easiest to control in its preemergent state, before it has a chance to grow and take hold in your lawn."

"A granular combination crabgrass control and fertilizer is a convenient, easy-to-apply lawn aid that should be used between April 1 and April 10. The better fertilizers contain some slow-release nitrogen."

Seed bare or sparse areas now, says Tatnall, while the ground is moist and workable but the days are still cool enough for good grass growth. He recommends mixtures of Kentucky bluegrass, red fescue and improved perennial ryegrass is not advised.

The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service offers two free fact sheets on lawn care: "What's Wrong With My Lawn?" and "A Shopper's Guide To Selecting Grass Seed." These are available from the county extension office in Newark at 451-2506.

Ogletown Baptist

Spring session aerobics classes will begin Tuesday, April 8 at Ogletown Baptist Church, 316 Red Mill Rd.

The classes, set to contemporary Christian music and taught by trained instructors, are offered free of charge. They will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesdays and 6:30 p.m. Thursdays.

Child care is available at $1 for the first child and 50 cents for each additional child.

Registration is not necessary, and participants can attend any class any time they choose. The spring session will run until June, and there will not be a summer session.

South African to speak

The Rev. Nkatzao Ernest Baartman, president of the Methodist Church of South Africa, will visit Newark on Tuesday, April 8.

Baartman will speak at 4 p.m. in the Rodney Room of the University of Delaware's Perkins Student Center on Academy Street and at 7:30 p.m. at Newark United Methodist Church, 69 E. Main St.

The afternoon discussion is being sponsored by the church and the Wesley Foundation.

Both events are open to the public, said Rev. Clifford Armour, senior pastor of Newark Methodist.

Baartman, 52, is the son of a Cape Town preacher and grew up in the Methodist Church.

He attended Langa High School in Cape Town and trained as a teacher at the Healdtown Missionary Institution, one of South African Methodism's premiere schools.

Accepted as a candidate for the Methodist ministry in 1960, Baartman entered John Wesley College, Federal Theological Seminary, in 1964. He was one of the first two seminary students to qualify for the diploma in theology.

Chosen as a student chairman of John Wesley College and president of the Federal Theological Seminary Student Representative Council, he was also conductor of Wesley Choir.

Ordained in 1966, Baartman was appointed field worker in the Methodist Church's South African youth department.

In 1969, he studied in the United States, then returned to minister to the poor of Limehill, a forced removal "settlement" in the Eastern Cape.

From 1972 to 1976, Baartman was general secretary of the Christian education and youth department. During this period he emerged as one of the pioneers and foremost proponents of black theology.

He served in 1977 in the missionary department.

Baartman, who took up his present appointment as superintendent of the East London circuit in 1978, has been detained by the South African authorities because of his concern for human rights and justice.

Elected president of the MCSA, he led the Methodist delegation to the consultation on South Africa, held under the auspices of the World Council of Churches, in Harare last year.

Way of the Cross

Pike Creek Coalition plans Good Friday event

It began last year as more than 100 people from the Newark area gathered on Good Friday to participate in a visual, devotional three-hour walk called, "The Way of the Cross."

This year the walk will be repeated on Friday, March 28, beginning at noon at White Clay Creek Presbyterian Church, Kirkwood Highway and Polly Drummond Hill Road.

"The Way of the Cross" walk is an ecumenical event involving numerous persons from the sponsoring Pike Creek Christian Coalition. There will be stations, symbolizing the incidents in Jesus' Walk to Golgotha, which will include prayers, songs and meditations.

Following opening devotions and the observance of the first station, walkers will leave the sanctuary of White Clay Creek Presbyterian Church, and travel up Polly Drummond Hill Road. The procession, led by persons carrying an eight-foot cross, will then turn into Drummond Hill.

From there the group will move onto Linden Hill Road and to the Parish of the Resurrection Church. The walk will continue and end at Skyline United Methodist Church.

This year's walk will be escorted by the Delaware State Police. In addition a van will accompany the walkers for anyone needing relief. At the end of the three hour walk transportation will be provided back to White Clay Creek Presbyterian Church.

This year's organizer, Joanne Huhn, a member of the Parish of the Resurrection is expecting a larger group than last year. For more information about the walk, including a detailed list and times of each station, call her at 737-3028.

Corporation honors Delaware City facility

Texaco's Delaware City plant has been named the company's best plant for 1985, it was announced recently by Roland M. Routhier, president of Texaco USA.

In addition, the Delaware City plant manager, Richard G. Soehlike of Newark, was named best plant manager for 1985, Routhier said. Soehlike has been manager of the local plant since 1983.

As the best Texaco plant, the Delaware City facility will fly a special company award pennant outside its offices.

Delaware City is one of eight Texaco refineries in the United States. The award for best plant is based on overall performance, including an evaluation of operating procedures, maintenance, environmental considerations, planning, fire and safety programs and contribution to the company's profitability.

"This award is the result of the combined efforts of all the personnel at the Delaware City plant — the foremen, the unit operators, the technical and support staff and the managers," Routhier said.

Sweet deals

Carman, Castle

Chocolate covered cars will be on display April 1-21 at Carman Lincoln-Mercury in Wilmington and Castle Ford in New Castle as the dealerships celebrate their respective 13th and fourth anniversaries.

The theme for the dual anniversary celebration will be "sweet deals," and the dealerships will be featuring special prices, interest rates and — of course — chocolate covered cars.

Chichi Cheesecake Co. of Brannan Plaza will cover a 1986 Taurus and a 1986 Sable with real milk chocolate. The public is invited to watch the chocolate makers at work from 5-9 p.m. Tuesday, April 1 in both showrooms.

During the three-week promotion, showroom visitors will be able to register their guess in pounds and ounces as to how much chocolate was used to cover each car. Registration will last through Saturday, April 19 and the winner will get a 1986 Mercury Lynx. The winner will be named Monday, April 21 at Carman.

In keeping with the chocolate theme, both dealerships will be giving away coupons for free chocolate milkshakes from Alysons Restaurant on Kirkwood Highway.

Also, anyone test driving a new car during the promotion will receive a box of chocolate covered strawberries.

DRA

To make reservations, call the DRA office at 366-8565. Cost is $15 for DRA members and $18 for non-members.

Meeting

Business Women

The Brandywine Business and Professional Women's Club will hold its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, April 2, at the Greenery Too's Rockford Room, Greenville.

The program will consist of an auction of personal items and homemade creations. Non-members are encouraged to attend.

Driving into the sun? Consider good polarized sunglasses so you can see where you're going. Photosensitive lenses darken when the sun is bright, lighten so you can see in a tunnel.

Worn shock absorbers may make car sway on turns or dip when you brake. At that danger point, worn shocks affect handling and should be replaced.

Before you haul anything in a rental trailer, make sure your car's in shape to handle the stress. Engine, brakes, cooling system, shocks, and tires should be up to the job.

Dirty air filter will cause your car to use more gas than it should. Change it on schedule - or before.

Rule of thumb: black exhaust smoke usually means the gas mixture is too rich; check the choke. Blue smoke usually indicates that engine oil is being burned.

WEDDING

Goodrich-Fletcher

Karen Christine Goodrich and Bruce Neil Fletcher, both of Newark, were wed Saturday afternoon, March 22 in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Herbert Hoefflinger performed the double-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with white flowers and bows and pink bridal bells. Music included "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride wore a long white satin gown trimmed with seed pearls and alencon lace with a chapel train. She also wore a white lace hat with a chapel length veil edged in lace, and carried a nosegay bouquet with white carnations, pale pink rose buds, baby's breath and white ribbons.

Goodrich, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hahn of Briar Lane, Newark, was given away by her father.

Taryn Hopkins of Arbour Park was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Deborah Fletcher of Newark, the groom's sister, and Shelley Swank of Newark, a friend of the bride. The maid of honor wore a long pale pink gown and the bridesmaids wore long dusty rose gowns.

Fletcher, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Fletcher of Martindale Drive, Newark, had as his best man Michael Fletcher, his brother. Alvin Figgs of Newark and David Almonney of Newark, friends of the groom, served as ushers.

Following a reception at the

Karen Goodrich Fletcher

Blue and Gold Club on the University of Delaware campus, the couple took a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va.

The bride is a graduate of Glasgow High School and is employed as a customer service representative by the First National Bank of Wilmington. The groom is a graduate of Newark High School and is employed by Mumford and Miller Construction Co.

The couple will live in Kimber-

Today we are a disposable society. Everything from diapers to dinner dishes is designed to be used once and thrown away. I can't do it. It's my parents' fault. They lived through the Great Depression. From them I learned that everything should be used over and over and over and over again.

What I remember most vividly is my mother's creativity with the Thanksgiving turkey, which she managed to keep going until three days before she roasted the Christmas turkey. It wasn't so bad for the first 18 days, but by Day 19 the turkey hash was getting a bit flat, and we knew that lurking in the kitchen shadows, once the hash was finished, was turkey soup.

I don't think James Beard or Julia Child could make tasty turkey soup from a carcass which was picked down to such a white dryness that a vulture in the Painted Desert would flap past it.

Come to think of it, I do believe my inability to throw things away goes back to my grandmother who, when we didn't finish our dinner, reminded us how much the starving Armenians would have savored our food. Even now when I find myself eating too much I realize that I can't waste the food that the Armenians would have cherished.

Let me share with you a little known fact. Those appreciative Armenians were starving at least 60 years ago. By now they are either dead or in the Oriental rug business.

Of course, I still use the starving Armenians on my children. It's an impressive story and, as I said when I began, I have trouble discarding things.

What got me started thinking about this topic was the shelf in my bedroom crammed with socks. These are the lonesome socks that have come through the wash. I know there are those who maintain that socks are only eaten by the washer, but I know from personal observation that dryers enjoy munching on an occasional sock — especially if it is white with a wide blue stripe.

There is a good reason to save lonesome socks. Every now and then, I empty the shelf and find a few socks that match, or match near enough to make no nevermind. (I have convinced my husband that dark green, black and navy blue socks are interchangeable.)

Ideally, after three years residence on the shelf, the mateless socks are thrown out.

HOMEFRONT

by Dorothy Hall

Only when I am feeling particularly secure can I do that. One singularly frugal neighbor sends her unmatched socks to her sister-in-law, in South Dakota in hopes that the mates have already migrated there.

Another thing I can't do is toss out the twisted and curled plastic lids for my equally warped and misshapen refrigerator dishes. For that matter, I can't toss out the dishwasher-deformed containers either. What I don't understand is why only three of the 19 lids fit any of the 21 containers. I am pretty sure it is not the washer and dryer's fault because they are domiciled in the basement and the plastic containers reside in the cupboard in the kitchen.

I hope, probably vainly, that one day my fairy godmother will wave her magic wand and lids and containers will once again fit like they did at the Tupperware party.

Finally, my house is home to some of the most hapless houseplants this side of the ICU at Longwood Gardens. I have a spider plant so wispy that a tarantula would not recognize it, a cactus so gaunt that its thorns are limp, and a mother-in-law's-tongue so insipid that even its daughter-in-law sneers at it.

In addition, every March, I am faced with the uncomfortable decision of what to do with my Christmas poinsettia which has shed every petal but one red one which droops defiantly from a wretched green stalk. Somehow all these plants eke out just enough life so that I am in constant hope that one day they will bloom their little green hearts out.
