Phillies giving people region reason to have fun

By MARTY VALANIA

MVALANIA@CHESPUB.COM

Seats were all full long before the first pitch and the crowd was boisterous in anticipation of a Phillies World Series game.

That certainly would be an expected at Citizens Bank Park – but this scene played out at just about every bar and restaurant in Newark over the last two weeks.

I'm not sure about you, but I think it's nice to be around people having fun.

No matter if you love sports or think they're ridiculous wastes of time, it's hard to argue against the fact that they can unite a community.

Fans sporting Phillies jerseys, hats, jackets and T-shirts have been all over town this past week. It's been fun to watch the enthusiasm build over the last two months as Philadelphia sports fans seek their first professional championship (no, Arena Football doesn't really count) in 25 years.

By the time this is read by most of you, the Phillies – and millions of people in the Delaware Valley – could be celebrating a World Series title. Or, those same millions could be on pins and needles hoping their beloved Phils don't blow a 3-1 series lead.

Many people boo-hoo sports as unimportant. I'm sure there are some of you reading this who are upset that I would use this space on another sports topic.

The Phillies, though, have had a galvanizing effect on an entire region in what can arguably be called the most volatile and tumultuous eco-

Mrs. Herman determined to carry on Newark meat shop after husband's death

By SCOTT GOSS

POSTNEWS@CHESPUB.COM

Tim Herman, the longtime owner of Herman's Meat Shoppe, succumbed to prostate cancer earlier this month.

But his wife will carry on his memory by reopening the 41-year-old meat shop in mid-November – just in time for the Thanksgiving holiday.

"One of the last things he asked before he went into the hospital was for me to continue running the store," Christine Herman, Tim's wife of more than 20 years, said during a recent interview. "We had it on the market for the last couple of years, because our hope was that he could retire, but I believe the store never sold because this was his ministry."

Christine said she hopes to re-open the meat shop on East Cleveland Avenue on Nov. 18 – two weeks after her husband, Tim, would have celebrated his 59th birthday.

"I know it's going to be tough for awhile," she said. "But I also know I have the support of the community and the love of my family, and I know Tim will be here with me every step of the way."

The store has been closed since Sept. 27.

Christine said the sign on the store's entrance that reads, "We'll miss you Tim," was left, along with 15 baskets of mums, by anonymous patrons.

"I can't even begin to thank everyone for the outpouring of love and sympathy I have received," she said. "There were probably 600 to 700 people who came to pay their respects, including many of our customers."

Christine promised to maintain the quality for which Herman's Meat Shoppe has been known, although she said she suspects it wasn't really the meat that kept the store's loyal customer base coming back for more.

"I think people came in to see Tim first, and the meat was really secondary," she said. "He treated every single person, regardless of what they were or were not buying, with love, kindness and

Local biz owner recalls days as original Phanatic

By MATTHEW BASHAM

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

While thousands of local fans cheered on the Philadelphia Phillies this week, Newark-business owner David Raymond reminisced about his own unique perspective on the fall classic.

As the first person to don the furry green Phillie Phanatic costume, Raymond helped cheer fans on during the team's World Series runs in both 1980 and 1993.

"I'll attend the games," said Raymond, who personally developed the Phanatic's zany personality during his 15 years in the green, fuzzy suit. "But this time, I'm just a passenger on an airplane, glad to be along for the ride."

For UD football fans, the name Raymond should ring a bell. Dave's father, Tubby Raymond, was head coach at Delaware for 36 seasons before retiring in 2002.

Experts address dropout problem

New federal regulations announced Oct. 28

By MARY E. PETZAK

MPETZAK@CHESPUB.COM

Gov. Ruth Ann Minner, some of the most prominent child advocacy organizations in Delaware and others gathered in Dover this week to develop an action plan for increasing the area's high school graduation rate.

"Helping our students stay in school not only helps to better prepare them for college and the workplace, but it helps our state businesses who are looking for a more educated workforce," Minner said. "We must work together as a community to ensure that our students graduate from high school so they can more easily achieve their future personal and career goals."

The Dropout Prevention Summit was held the same day that U.S. Education Secretary Margaret Spellings announced

POLICE BLOTTER

■ Police Blotter is compiled each week from the files of the Newark Police Department, New Castle County Police and the Delaware State Police.

Seven Newark High students charged in three days

Seven Newark High School students were charged with committing a variety of crimes on school grounds between Oct. 14 and Oct. 17.

Three students were charged by police in connection with a fight in the school cafeteria at about 10 a.m. on Oct. 14.

David J. Grimes, 18, and a 16-year-old student were both charged with third-degree assault. A 15-year-old student was charged with third-degree assault and offensive touching.

On Oct. 15, police charged two 16-year-old Newark students with strong-armed robbery, offensive touching and conspiracy, after the teens allegedly stole $20 from the back pocket of a 14-year-old student.

A day later, police charged a 15-year-old student with criminal mischief, after she allegedly pulled a fire alarm.

Then on Oct. 17, police charged 18-year-old student Michael A. Latham with third-degree assault, after he allegedly punched a 15-year-old student and struck the victim in the back with a hole-puncher.

Police prevent assault with liquor bottle

A pair of plain clothed officers stopped a would-be thief from striking a liquor store employee in the head with a stolen bottle of booze on Oct. 25.

According to police, the officers were working in the College Square Shopping Center when they noticed some commotion in Peddler's Liquors at about 11:30 p.m.

Police said a liquor store employee caught a 17-year-old Christiana High School student stuffing two 750 ML bottles of alcohol down his pants. Upon being confronted, the teen allegedly lifted one of the bottles over his head and was preparing to strike the employee when the officers intervened.

The teen was charged with shoplifting and released to his mother on a $6,000 unsecured bail.

Robberies and Thefts

A 71-year-old Newark man told police on Oct. 22 that someone stole his debit card and purchased five plane tickets to London and Nigeria, valued at $2,495, sometime between 8 a.m. on Sept. 26 and 6 p.m. on Sept. 28.

An unknown suspect broke into a storage shed at Public Storage in the 200 block of Bellevue Road and stole items valued at $11,754, sometime between 8 a.m. on Oct. 12 and 8 a.m. on Oct. 18.

Police charged 59-year-old Donald Groce of Wilmington with shoplifting and trespassing at 11:13 a.m. on Oct. 20, after he allegedly tried to steal $27.96 worth of seafood from the Pathmark grocery store in the College Square Shopping Center. Groce was wanted on four warrants at the time of his arrest, police said.

A 30-year-old Newark man reported that someone stole a chop saw valued at $1,400 from the flatbed of his pickup while it was parked outside Home Depot in the Suburban Shopping Center, sometime about 6:40 p.m. on Oct. 22.

An unknown suspect stole an unknown amount of groceries from the Acme grocery store in the Suburban Shopping Center at about 7:19 p.m. on Oct. 22.

An unknown suspect used a rock to break into a home in the 200 block of West Main Street and stole items collectively valued at $6,420, sometime between 11:15 a.m. and 11:28 a.m. on Oct. 23.

Police charged 23-year-old Lisa M. Difilippo of Avondale, Pa., with shoplifting, after she allegedly tried to steal a Cosmopolitan magazine from the Superfresh grocery store in the 400 block of New London Road at 6:52 p.m. on Oct. 23.

Police charged Maryland twins Christopher and Michael C. Quillen, 20, with shoplifting $64.90 worth of cough medicine from the Acme grocery store in the Suburban Shopping Center at about 7:51 p.m. on Oct. 23.

A 24-year-old Newark resident told police that someone stole a $90 bicycle he left laying against a lamppost in the unit block of East Main Street, sometime between 6:20 p.m. and 6:45 p.m. on Oct. 24.

Vehicles Targeted

An unknown suspect broke a side mirror off of a 2009 Honda Civic parked in the 7300 block of Scholar Drive, causing $50 in damages, sometime between 7 p.m. on Oct. 23 and 11 a.m. on Oct. 24.

An unknown suspect broke into a Nissan Armada parked near the Howard Johnson's in the 1100 block of South College Avenue and stole a DVD player valued at $100, sometime between 9 p.m. on Oct. 23 and 6:40 a.m. on Oct. 24.

An unknown suspect stole an upper door from a Jeep Wrangler parked in the 600 block of Scholar Drive, sometime between 9:30 p.m. on Oct. 23 and 8 a.m. on Oct. 24.

A 66-year-old Newark resident reported that someone stole the license plate from his 2004 Chrysler Sebring, as it was parked in the 100 block of East Cleveland Avenue, sometime between 11 a.m. on Oct. 24 and 2:30 p.m. on Oct. 26.

An unknown suspect broke into a Toyota 4Runner parked in the 900 block of Christina Mill Drive and stole a radar

Daughter of man in '72 Biden crash seeks apology from widowed Senator

By CARL HAMILTON

CAHAMILTON@CECILWHIG.COM

Newark resident Pamela Hamill wants a public apology from vice presidential candidate U.S. Sen. Joseph Biden (D-Del.), who she says has repeatedly besmirched her late father, Curtis C. Dunn.

Dunn was the tractor-trailer driver involved in the December 1972 accident that took the life of the newly-elected U.S. Senator's first wife, Neilia, and 13-month-old daughter, Naomi.

Dunn died in 1999, but his daughter says she's fed up with Biden publicly mischaracterizing him as having been drunk when the accident occurred.

According to Delaware Superior Court Judge Jerome O. Herlihy, who oversaw the police investigation 36 years ago as chief prosecutor, there is no evidence supporting Biden's claim.

"The rumor about alcohol being involved by either party, especially the truck driver (Dunn), is incorrect," Herlihy said recently.

Police determined that Biden's first wife drove into the path of Dunn's tractor-trailer, possibly because her head was turned and she didn't see the oncoming truck.

Dunn, who overturned his rig while swerving to avoid a collision, ran to the wrecked car and was the first to render assistance.

Police filed no charges against Dunn, who at that time lived in North East, Md. with his wife, Ruby, and their seven children.

Biden has been alluding to alcohol being involved in the crash for nearly a decade. During a speech in 2001, Biden told an audience at University of Delaware that a drunken driver crashed into his family.

He told a similar story during a public appearance in 2007.

More recently, the vice presidential candidate's misrepresentation of Dunn has found its way into major newspapers, including the New York Times.

It also has been repeated on radio and on television by major news journalists, including CBS anchorwoman Katie Couric.

Yet Hamill said she had no idea Biden had been misrepresenting Dunn until late August.

That's when "Inside Edition" producers requested an interview with Hamill after the television show's reporters had gathered evidence contradicting Biden's story.

Hamill says she defended Biden at first, believing that, perhaps, his words had been misconstrued.

But her disbelief turned to anguish when shown a video of Biden making his unfounded assertion during a public appearance.

Biden told the crowd, "A tractor-trailer, a guy who allegedly — and I never pursued it — drank his lunch instead of

Council approves new 3-story mixed-use building on Main St.

By SCOTT GOSS

POSTNEWS@CHES PUB.COM

City Council this week unanimously approved the construction of a new three-story commercial building capped by 14 apartments on wooded lot on East Main Street.

Developer Jeff Lang appeared before council on Oct. 27 to request a rezoning, a subdivision and a special use permit, all of which he needed to build the proposed 12,125-sq. ft. building on the lot immediately to the east of Bing's Bakery.

The version of the proposal presented by Lang this week differed from his plans for a larger building, which won an unfavorable view from the city's planning commission in July.

Lang scaled back the number of apartments that would be included in the new building from 20 to 14 and agreed to reduce the building's length from 250 feet to 180 feet. He also agreed to restrict the building's tenants to 56 renters.

In addition, the updated plan offered to preserve more open space, provide larger buffers and construct a fence between his property and the adjacent homes that front Tyre Avenue.

Lang said he made the changes based on recommendations from the planning commission and local residents who met with the developer, along with City Councilman Jerry Clifton.

"The most important concern is access to Tyre Avenue,"

Talbert among honorees in Washington, D.C.

Richelle F. Talbert, principal of Brader Elementary School in Christina School District, was one of 62 outstanding elementary and middle school principals from across the nation and abroad to be named 2008 National Distinguished Principals by the National Association of Elementary School Principals (NAESP) and the U.S. Department of Education.

At a dinner in their honor in Washington, D.C., Gail Connelly, executive director of NAESP, commended the principals for being role models for school leadership throughout the nation and the world.

"For the past 25 years, our National Distinguished Principals program has provided us with a unique opportunity to recognize exceptional principals and their commitment to creating successful learning communities," Connelly said. "We are all indebted to these visionary leaders who represent thousands of principals who every day are preparing our children for bright futures, which in turn impacts every aspect of our society."

selected Talbert as the 2008 National Distinguished Principal for Delaware. To be selected, a principal must maintain high expectations of students and staff, show evidence of outstanding contributions to school and the profession, and be an established and respected member of the community.

"Successful principals inspire and motivate teachers and staff," said U.S. Secretary of Education Margaret Spellings. "They create an environment of high expectations, using data to drive improvement for every student. Now that No Child Left Behind has set the goal of all students performing on grade level by 2014, there is even greater recognition of principals' critical role in helping students succeed."

The National Association of Elementary School Principals in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Education, in corporate partnership with AIG VALIC, sponsors this award. NAESP and the U.S. Department of Education started the program in 1984 to recognize public and private school principals who make superior contributions to their schools and communities.

Established in 1921, the National Association of Elementary School Principals serves 30,000 elementary and middle school principals in the United States, Canada, and overseas.

GHS honored Battle of Cooch's Bridge soldiers

The Glasgow High School Band performed at the Cooch's Bridge Battlefield Memorial Service held to honor Delaware's unknown soldiers, 231 years after dying for liberty and independence.

The Pencader Heritage Area Association hosted the ceremony on Sept. 5 to dedicate a monument at Old Baltimore Pike and Dayett Mills Road honoring those killed Sept. 3, 1777, in the Battle of Cooch's Bridge, the lone Revolutionary War battle fought on Delaware soil.

The event — with speakers, Delaware National Guard, 1st Delaware Regiment, and Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution — debuted "The Battle of Cooch's Bridge," music composed by Glasgow High band instructor Michael Rogalski and performed by the GHS band.

Also at the dedication, Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 474 in Newark, which donated flagpoles for the site, provided an honor guard with Korean War veteran George R. Taylor playing taps. The guard fired memorial volleys with members of the 6th Maryland Volunteers.

Finally, Alaska has a face

By MARVIN HUMMEL

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

The territory of Alaska was not a popular purchase in 1867 and had been ignored or the subject of many misconceptions and fables until 2008.

That changed with the nomination of Governor Sarah Palin as candidate for vice president.

Secretary of State William H. Seward purchased Alaska for us in 1867 and his land grab was bitterly criticized as "a dark deed done in the night."

Alaska was better known as "Seward's Folly" or "Seward's Icebox." New York newspapers ran editorials decrying Russia's "unloading" this "frozen and worthless wasteland" on us for the exorbitant price of $7 million! And Russia was sniggering at us for being so stupid!

Myths grew about Alaska, primarily through Jack London novels and short stories: rough-and-ready frontier justice, guns used indiscriminately and gold miners happy to kill each other over a worthless claim.

Ruthless captains of sealing ships were part of London's cult of red blood. The reaction of the public? This must be what Alaska is really like.

An unforgettable London story has a Grandpa Indian asking to be left behind because he can't keep up with his nomadic family. He is granted his wish — they give him some bread and build a bonfire, then mush on without him. The question is — will the wolves eat him eau naturel or as a grandpopsicle?

If written today the title would be, "Taking One for the Tribe."

Popular imagination has added penguins to the Alaskan picture. They are southern hemisphere creatures, but they were made part of the wolves/moose/salmon/seals/polar bears scenario of Alaskan animal life.

Klondike Bars, the ice cream treat, are made in Wisconsin, even though an Alaskan polar bear graces each wrapper. Ah, myths!

Sadly, Iditarod, the truly heroic act of men on dogsleds pulled by their huskies and malamutes, has long been neglected and virtually ignored by the media and dictionaries.

When the diphtheria epidemic of 1925 was decimating the town of Nome, they had no serum — but Anchorage did. How to cover the 1,100 miles between Nome and the life-saving serum with the seemingly impossible barriers of ice, snow, and temperatures 40 below zero and colder? It couldn't be done.

Yet Anchorage men, with more real courage than Jack London ever dreamt, put 20 pounds of serum on their sleds, said "Mush," then traversed the 1,100 miles in 5-and-a-half days. Many lives in Nome were saved because of their incredible courage and skill.

I looked up Iditarod in six dictionaries — and it wasn't there, 81 years later!

But, here was still no "face" of Alaska for the public to see and remember, and we who won't buy shaving cream or tooth paste unless it offers us a personality. Enter Governor Sarah Palin.

She is a full-time family woman, a former mayor, and now the governor of Alaska. Most of us had presumed there were women in Alaska, but few of us had ever seen one!

Sarah Palin's is an interesting, feminine face. And the glasses are perfect! Tres Moderne! Her clothes are not all parkas and Gore-Tex, but she cradles her hunting rifle on the Newsweek cover with obvious authenticity.

She is a "hockey mom" with family problems that are real, not scripted.

And she doesn't sling mud well.

Maybe she is too used to throwing snowballs. She knows it and knows we know it, too.

Still, whatever happens now, part of Sarah Palin's legacy will always be giving Alaska its first real face.

Thank you.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic features Newark High School on Academy Street. This view was printed in the 1946 edition of the school yearbook, "The Krawen." The school was built in 1925, replacing the Academy Building as the town's high school. In 1955, the high school moved to a new building on East Delaware Avenue. The Academy Street building then became Central Middle School. The property is now part of the University of Delaware. The photo is on loan to the Newark Post from the Newark Historical Society collection, courtesy of David Dean. Readers are invited to share additional information about the building with the Newark Historical Society. Visit the Newark History Museum at 148 E. Main St. (between Choate and Haines streets). Hours are Thursday 5 – 8 p.m., Friday Noon – 3 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday, 2 – 5 p.m. Admission is free. Contact the Historical Society by phone at 224-2408 or by e-mailing newarkdehistoricalsociety@yahoo.com.

Viola's proactive approach has prevented conflicts

David L. Tackett
New Castle County
Councilman, 11th District
Newark

For the last 10 years, state Rep. John Viola has truly become someone we can count on in the community.

Since John Viola has been in office, any time I've had a problem or an issue in the neighborhood, I've called him, and he's addressed it right away.

John keeps a close ear as to what's going on in our community, attending nearly every community meeting. He also keeps us informed as to what's going on in Dover, which is a huge asset to me as the councilman.

I can't tell you how many times I've picked up the newspaper to read about a government initiative or proposal that John had already told us about weeks prior.

It's that proactive approach that has helped us prevent many serious conflicts over the years. John is engaged and accessible.

I view John as a friend as well as a partner in addressing the needs of our communities.

Hall-Long can create jobs from state Senate seat

Katy Griffith
Newark

I hope my fellow voters will join me in electing Bethany Hall-Long as our state senator in the 10th district.

Bethany has fully served the 8th House District as state representative since 2002.

During that time, she has supported several efforts to promote the creation of good jobs here in Delaware.

She worked to create incentives for businesses to redevelop and recycle industrial brownfields, which creates jobs and cleans up pollution. She also worked to raise the state's minimum wage and keep it higher than the federal level.

Bethany will continue to work on these issues and many others in the state Senate. Let's send Delaware's only elected nurse to the state Senate this November.

ly involved with our public schools serving on the Christiana School Board as vice-president, the John R. Downes PTA, the Newark High School PTA and as an apart-time teacher at Newark Charter School.

He is an active member of his community creating the Triple Crown Trail Races and raising money for local homeless ministries, while being a Ph.D economist at the University of Delaware for 23 years.

He possesses the skills and has the vision for the educational, economic and environmental changes we need to make in Delaware during these challenging times.

He has my vote for the 6th Senate District.

Ecologist says Mackenzie good for environment

Kurt Philipp
Newark

John Mackenzie is the Democratic candidate for the state Senate district representing Newark. Unlike the 16-year Republican incumbent he's running against, he actually lives, works, and is raising a family in Newark.

I first met John about 20 years ago when he was an assistant professor in UD's College of Agriculture & Natural Resources.

John has done a lot of pro bono consulting for various environmental agencies, including the Division of Fish & Wildlife, the Natural Heritage Program and the Delaware Forest Service.

He is one of the longest serving trustees of the Nature Conservancy in Delaware. He also served on the Open Space Council and oversaw major land conservation partnerships between The Nature Conservancy and the state, including recent expansions of White Clay Creek State Park.

John has a wealth of knowledge and experience through his family and career. Through our long friendship, I have learned to value his problem-solving track record, and most of all, trust his judgment.

For more than 30 years, I have been working with private industry and all levels of government as a professional ecologist in Delaware.

I'm supporting John Mackenzie for state senate on Nov. 4.

Better eating combats expensive medical bills

Nick Droddsen
Newark

A study of 16,000 people in 52 countries in the current issue of "Circulation" found that eating meat, fried foods and salty snacks raised the risk of a heart attack by 35 percent. Conversely, a diet rich in fruits and vegetables reduced the risk of a heart attack by 30 percent.

Again, a 24-year study of 88,517 female nurses in the April 14 issue of "Archives of Internal Medicine" found that those who ate lots of fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and plant-based protein were 24-percent less likely to have a heart attack and 18-percent less likely to have a stroke than those addicted to a more typical American diet.

With the cost of medical care becoming a national crisis, it's high time for each of us to assume more responsibility for our own family's health by becoming more selective with our food dollars.

Markell says one thing, does another on charter schools

Phillip Mink
Newark

Charter school families beware.

At a debate last week, gubernatorial candidate Jack Markell said the state has to be "cautious" about approving more charter schools because they can cause financial problems for conventional district schools. He noted that two Christina School District elementary schools, West Park Place and John R. Downes, are "bleeding children."

Those schools are losing children - to private and parochial schools, as well as charter schools - but they're also losing the costs of educating them.

Fewer students means fewer teachers, administrators, and the like. The former state treasurer has to know that the state's resources are merely following the students, and that's not a financial problem.

The more important issue is why so many Newark families are leaving the district's elementary schools. One obvious reason is that Newark Charter School has created exceptional academic standards with few discipline problems. That's a model our policy-makers should embrace.

Markell has certainly embraced it in his own life. He sends his daughter to the Charter School of Wilmington, which U.S. News & World Report ranks as 41st in the nation. His other child attends Tower Hill, an exclusive private institution.

If Markell is really concerned about "bleeding" public schools, he could set a great example with his own actions.

Unfortunately, the political reality is that the Delaware State Education Association, the teachers' union, supports Markell. DSEA is a powerful anti-charter force with a vested interest in unionized district schools.

Bear that in mind on Election Day.

Mackenzie would serve as city resident

Lauri Webber
Newark

John Mackenzie gets my vote.

John has pledged to address environmental issues that impact all of us as Delaware residents and John will work to promote investment in green technologies.

He will address the issues of sprawl and congestion that affect Newark residents directly.

John Mackenzie lives and works in Newark. He has been actively involved with our community for over 20 years as a dad, as a coach, as a professor, as a runner, and as a school board member.

John has many good ideas for the state, including requiring the state Senate to abide by Delaware's open government laws.

John will also work toward implementing the recommendations of the Wilmington Education Task Force, which would require the Christina School District to serve only the Newark area.

Let's send a Newark resident to represent us in the state Senate.

Phillies pride

conomic time in history.

Clearly, things are tougher for most of us right now. The stock market goes up and down in wild swings. People's retirements and college savings swing along with it. Foreclosures are up, loans are tough to get, things really aren't all that great - at least compared to the way they'd been going for the last decade or so.

But, look around. People are walking around with enthusiasm, talking about last night's game, talking about a championship, remembering good times of championships in the past or salivating at the thought of seeing their first title.

Sure, sports aren't that important in the big picture. It's foolhardy to think that a baseball team is as important as interest rates, credit availability or anything else to do with a global economy in turmoil. But to ignore what a sport and a team can do for the collective psyche of a city, state and region would be foolhardy as well.

It gives people a chance to escape those tough thoughts and have fun for a few weeks, or an evening or even a few hours.

It's fun to come into work in the morning and have everybody talking about the same thing. It's fun going out to eat and having the whole place interested in the same thing. It's fun to be walking down the street and see Phillies flags, Phillies hats and T-shirts.

Even if you hate sports, you reap the benefit of people being a little happier these days.

So if you're not already on the bandwagon - jump on and enjoy it for a little bit. It really is nice to be around people having fun.

Bringing global awareness to 4-H after-school

By VERONICA COMMODORE

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

The 4-H after-school program at Shue-Medill Middle School offers children an opportunity to engage in educational activities in a safe after-school environment.

One of these activities is the Service Learning Club led by Miss Rachel Beatty, who is currently serving as an AmeriCorps volunteer with Public Allies Delaware.

In an effort to raise the global awareness of American children and cultivate an understanding of other cultures, Rachel has initiated an ongoing pen-pal project between Shue-Medill's 4-H students and 4-H students in Brighton, a town on the Eastern Caribbean island of St. Vincent.

Prior to her placement with 4-H after-school, Rachel Beatty was serving as a Peace Corps on St. Vincent. She worked in community development with a focus on youth development projects, such as life skills training, and HIV/AIDS prevention and education programs with teenagers.

Her main project, however, took place in her community of Brighton at the Brighton Methodist Primary School. There she worked alongside teachers Ann Dopwell and Mr. Cain to coordinate activities and lead the Brighton 4-H Club.

This year, Rachel is leading the Service Learning Club at Shue-Medill's 4-H after-school program.

Many of the 4-H students at Shue-Medill expressed excitement about receiving

The Mosaic will hold its third annual Masquerade Gala at the University of Delaware's Trabant Center on Nov. 1.

Five participating groups will be in attendance this year, including the Newark Symphony Orchestra, the Delaware Dance Company, the Newark Arts Alliance, the Mid-Atlantic Ballet and the Chapel Street Players.

The nonprofit cultural groups have joined together to raise awareness for the dance, music, art and theater activities offered by each organization.

This Saturday's fundraising gala will feature four live performances by the Chapel Street Players, Delaware Dance Company, Mid-Atlantic Ballet, and the Newark Symphony Orchestra.

In addition, there will be gourmet food from several Newark restaurants including the Blue Crab Grill, Caffé Gelato, Blackstones Pub, Homegrown Café, Santa Fe Mexican Grille, Iron Hill Brewery, and Kildare's Irish Pub. Brewed Awakenings will

Tri-State Bird Rescue to hold third annual gala

By ALLYSON HEISLER

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

The Tri-State Bird Rescue and Research organization will hold its third annual fundraising gala, A Flight of Fancy III, this at Longwood Gardens on Nov. 1.

Founded over thirty years ago, Tri-State is an internationally recognized, licensed, nonprofit wildlife rehabilitation organization in Newark.

Their mission is to rehabilitate injured, orphaned, and oiled native wild birds with the goal of returning the healthy birds to their natural environment. In addition to continual leadership in oil spill response, Tri-State is also internationally recognized for its oiled bird rehabilitation and research. They have cared for nearly 3,000 birds each year ranging from hummingbirds to eagles.

This Saturday's gala features dinner, dancing, a silent auction and raffle, and live entertainment, all while supporting the mission of the Tri-State Bird Rescue and Research organization. There will be food and beverages, including fine wine from Chaddsford and Kreutz Creek Wineries, and micro-brews from Dogfish Head Craft Brewery.

Live entertainment will be presented by the Tony Grandberry Orchestra. Other events of the evening include the presentation of several serve coffee and desserts will be available from Bing's Bakery and Amber Waves Bakery.

There also will be several live and silent auctions taking place during the evening's events.

Newark Arts Alliance Board member and member of the Mosaic Planning Committee, Carol Boncelet says, "More than fifty artists have donated their work, including paintings, textiles, jewelry, and ceramics. There will also be gift certificates and more than thirty merchant baskets to bid on, including a tuxedo, dinners, show tickets, and even a new air conditioning system."

Another feature of the evening will be a drawing for the raffle for two tickets donated by Southwest Airlines to anywhere in the United States.

Tickets for the event are $75 per person and can be purchased online www.newarkartsalliance.org/mosaic.html or through any of the participating organizations.

Due to the masquerade theme, masks are definitely encouraged. Black tie and dresses are also welcome.

The Masquerade Gala will be held from 7 to 10 p.m.

"The delicious food and wonderful company will make for a fun-filled evening, while raising money for the arts in Newark," Boncelet said.

honorable awards. Gov. Ruth Ann Minner will receive the Lifetime Achievement Award for her history of support for the organization.

Tri-State Bird Rescue and Research also present its second annual Corporate Wildlife Stewardship Award to the Water Quality Insurance Syndicate.

Tickets for A Flight of Fancy III are $125 per person for regular admission and $250 for benefactor tickets, which includes a special gift and early entry to the auction.

The gala will be held from 7 p.m. until midnight.

All proceeds from the event will benefit Tri-State's work with injured, oiled, and orphaned native wild birds.

"Please join us for a festive evening of dinner and dancing in support of Tri-State's mission," Tri-State Bird Rescue's Director of Development Rebecca Elzey said.

To purchase tickets or to make a donation, contact the Tri-State Bird Rescue and Research organization, or visit their Web site at <http://www.tristatebird.org/>.

Something blue: Brides can seamlessly incorporate blue into their look

By Samantha Critchell
AP Fashion Writer

Brides probably don't know exactly why they're wearing something blue on their wedding day, but they've been doing it for so long few want to break with tradition.

Research traces an early printed version of the good-luck poem, "Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue," back to at least 1883. (Back then, there was another line attached to the end: "And a sixpence in her shoe.")

Superstition, yes, but why take a risk on such an important day?

"I guess I do believe in it — I did it," says Theresa DiMasi, editor-in-chief of Brides.com, who wore blue toenail polish at her wedding. "There's something that feels sort of solid about it. But I also believe it's a personal thing — you can do it your way or not do it all."

The most common way to add blue these days is a blue garter, DiMasi says, but there are more options than one might think: makeup, flowers, jewelry, a sash, or a little blue lace around the dress' hem, she suggests.

At the most recent round of bridal fashion shows, there were some lovely pale blue dresses that have a hint of color but maintain the cool look of a true white.

DiMasi particularly liked the Reem Acra blue gowns, but she also acknowledges that it's easier to incorporate just a splash of blue.

Bianca Alexander, director of makeup artistry for MAC Cosmetics, would reach for blue eye shadow. (Yes, blue eye shadow!) A powder-blue matte shadow works well for a 1960s-inspired, doe-eyed look, she says, and will photograph nicely whether the pictures are in color or black and white. "It'll just be a pop of color on the lid."

The rest of the bride's makeup should be natural and neutral, with just a light color on the cheeks and lips and a coat of mascara — not blue mascara.

A more glamorous look would be a pewter-colored shadow with a blue tone to it. That, she says, could have a bit of shimmer, but a matte shadow with a similar gray-blue eye liner is a safer bet if you're not used to wearing blue yet still want intense color.

Many women still treat blue eye shadow as taboo, but Alexander says they needn't.

"Blues that don't work is any blue that screams 'trend,' especially for a wedding," she says. "For spring, acrylic colors are so hot in spring fashion, but I'd stay away from things that could look so dated in the future. If it looks like true blue on, it will look really blue in a photograph."

She adds: "Think dark denim blue."

Bright blue is OK, though, if we're talking about jewelry. Mixing diamonds with glistening colored gemstones has become more popular for engagement rings and wedding bands. And if blue doesn't make it to the rings, there are still necklaces, earrings and bracelets.

Detra Segar, vice president and general manager of Tiffany & Co., which has its own signature blue box, suggests sapphires, tanzanite, blue tourmaline and aquamarine.

"These colorful blue gems are combined with brilliant Tiffany diamonds in Tiffany Celebration rings," she said.

The Fine Points of Video

Your wedding day, the most important day of your life, likely will be one big blur. A wedding video provides instant replay, your chance to relive your wedding again and again.

Keep it real

As with photography, there are certain styles of wedding videos. A straight cut is a chronicle of your day in real time and will result in a finished product several hours long. A documentary-style video will contain interviews with the bride and groom, family and friends, and presents your wedding as more of a story. Requiring lots of editing, the finished product is usually no more than an hour long.

"Nostalgic," "love story," or "concept" videos might creep up in your research, too. These collections usually center on each of your lives before you met and can be put together in advance, shown at the reception, then edited on to the front of your wedding video.

You might find a studio that offers both photography and videography. Assuming you like the work, there are several good reasons to consider this one-stop-shopping approach. You'll have one less vendor to deal with, and if your still photographer and your videographer are accustomed to working together, they won't get in each other's way. Their work will be complementary and you'll have a more unified-looking wedding album and video.

Have a vision

When deciding on a videographer, view a complete wedding video from start to finish, not a clip reel of highlights from many weddings. And ask everyone you interview if they've shot weddings where yours is being held and ask to see those videos. You'll get a better sense of how your finished product will look.

If you have a special song you'd like to use, talk to your videographer about it. Some pieces of music are simply harder to edit to than others. For that reason, your videographer may ask you to select from his or her library of music. Since music will play a big part in your finished product, get that detail ironed out early.

Ask someone close to you to assist the videographer in identifying certain people you want to be sure to include in the video. The day of the wedding, make sure they meet. Similarly, you should also see the raw footage of your wedding and point out any special scenes or people who are must-haves in the finished product.

Lights, camera, action

"Video is nothing but light captured on film. Make sure your church and reception hall are both well-lit during important events," says Jeremy Schultz, a videographer in Chicago. Most videographers will rely on on-camera lights in addition to ambient lighting in the room. If you think there might be additional lighting considerations, bring them up.

Digital video is the new standard in videography. Look for videographers who use MINI DV cameras. The technology allows editing at a lower cost with little quality lost. High Definition, the rage of home television, also has made its way into the camera market and will provide the best possible picture. Quite new, it also will be more expensive and harder to find.

You main consideration is one camera or two. A good videographer can capture a lot with one camera, but they can't be everywhere at once. Two-camera shoots allow you to capture both the main event as well as reaction shots. Regardless, make sure your videographer brings back-up equipment.

You should expect to spend about as much on videography as you do on photography, at least $1,000, but understand that the high-end price range can get very high: $10,000 isn't unheard of, and you'll be able to spend more than that if you have more than that to spend.

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

New York City children experience special summer in Newark

This summer, 12 New York City children found out just how special summer is in the Newark area. Thanks to the dedication of Fresh Air Fund hosts, volunteers and supporters, inner-city youngsters experienced simple summertime pleasures in our community.

The Fresh Air Fund, an independent, nonprofit agency, has provided free summer vacations to over 1.7 million New York City children from low-income communities since 1877.

For more information on how you can help to continue this tradition of volunteering, please call Bob Parker at 323-9383, or visit www.freshair.org.

Governor's HR conference coming to Newark

The Delaware Economic Development Office is partnering with the Delaware Society of Human Resource Managers to present the governor's third annual Recruitment, Retention and Resources Conference at the University of Delaware's Clayton Hall on Nov. 18-19.

The conference will offer the region's employers and human resource professionals tools to help companies recruit and retain highly-skilled and qualified workers.

The keynote speaker will be Judy Young, vice president of National Program Development at Abilities, Inc., and the National Business & Disability Council in Albertson, N.Y.

For additional information about the conference, including session topics, speakers and registration, please visit www.shrmdc.org/monthly\_meeting.cfm, or call 672-6830.

Breakfast Mission to hold coat drive

As the economy is putting new stress and strain on the poor, the Sunday Breakfast Mission and Operation Warm are joining forces to provide 600 coats to needy children. The coat giveaway will take place on Nov. 1, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at the Sunday Breakfast Mission, which is located at 110 N. Popular St. in Wilmington. For more information, please contact the Rev. Laymon at the mission at 652-8314.

Fresh Start to host Celebrity Squares

The Fresh Start Scholarship Foundation, a charitable organization is hosting a Celebrity Squares Game Show and Auction at the DuPont Country Club on Nov. 20. Proceeds from the fundraiser will benefit the scholarship fund.

In 1996, Wilmington Women in Business – Delaware's oldest and largest resource and support network for professional women – established the Fresh Start Scholarship Foundation, Inc. The Foundation, in turn, established the Fresh Start Scholarship to help women in financial need, who are returning to school.

To date, the foundation has awarded more than $250,000 in scholarships to 91 women.

If you would like to receive an invitation to the auction, please leave a message for the Fresh Start Scholarship Foundation at 656-4411.

Christiana grad enters completes basic

Air Force Airman 1st Class Thomas J. Ward has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas. Ward earned distinction as an honor graduate.

He is the son of Robert and Melinda Ward of Newark. The airman is a 2008 graduate of Christiana High School.

Newark resident named Danforth Scholar

Erica Jackey, of Newark, has been named a William Danforth Scholar at Washington University in St. Louis, Mo. Jackey, one of 27 Danforth Scholars this year, is a freshman at the university.

The scholarship is awarded to incoming students who embrace high ideals, whose life choices are guided by personal integrity, selflessness, a commitment to community, and a dedication to leadership and academic excellence. The program offers full and half-tuition scholarships renewable for four years.

KCI employees give to local charities

KCI Technologies Inc., an engineering firm with offices Newark, was well represented by several employees at two charitable events in recent weeks.

KCI employees formed a ten-person team for the annual Bike to the Bay event on Sept. 27, which raised funds for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. Led by team captain Sabine Watson, KCI employees rode 75 miles from Dover to Rehoboth Beach.

A group of KCI employees and their families also spent a recent day cleaning up a Delaware highway. In a little over two hours, the group walked more than three miles of roadway and collected nine bags of litter totaling approximately 100 lbs.

KCI was represented at the clean-up by Bruce Thompson, Lydia Hill and her son, Jackson, and Dwight Walters and his children.

State and feds target school dropouts

► SCHOOLS, from 1

new federal regulations intended to shine the spotlight on dropouts nationwide.

Under those new regulations, states must track dropouts, along with graduates and transfers, using the same reporting system. They currently use a hodgepodge of methods that make it hard to compare one state's statistics with another.

Also, starting with the 2012 school year, school must meet dropout targets for minority groups and children with disabilities, as well as for the overall student population, to satisfy the yearly progress requirements of No Child Left Behind.

Spellings said schools would be judged on whether children finish high school with a regular diploma in four years.

A report commissioned by America's Promise Alliance, the nation's largest alliance of organizations working on behalf of children and youth, found that only about half of all students served by the major school systems in the nation's 50 largest cities graduate from high school.

In the 2006-2007 school year, approximately 2,026 out of 37,253 Delaware students in grades 9 through 12, or 5.44 percent, dropped out. Nationwide, nearly one out of every three public high school students drops out before graduation. That's 1.2 million each year, or nearly 7,000 each school day.

The Promise Alliance says

research show that student have a greater chance of remaining in school if they have the support of caring adults, a safe place live, good nutrition, effective education and opportunities to help others.

"The key to increasing graduation rates at the city, state and national level is to stop working in isolation and to start working together," said Marguerite Kondracke, the president and CEO of America's Promise Alliance, said during Delaware's dropout summit.

Bob Wise, president of the Alliance for Excellent Education and a former governor of West Virginia, gave the keynote address.

Wise welcomed Spellings' announcement of new federal regulations.

"If Federal Express can track a package all along its route until it's delivered, then we should be able to keep track of all of our students from the moment they enter school," Wise said. "Secretary Spellings' announcement today calling for a uniform graduation rate calculation addresses a crucial gap in the No Child Left Behind Act, one that has left us without a clear understanding of how many students actually earn a high school diploma."

According to a report published by the Alliance for Excellent Education, "Dropouts, Diplomas, and Dollars: U.S. High Schools and the Nation's Economy," only 57.8 percent of Hispanic students, 55.3 percent of African-American students, and 50.6 percent of Native American students currently graduate on time, compared to 77.6 percent of white students.

The Alliance for Excellent Education's report also declares that the situation in America's high schools is "nothing short of a crisis," but is "largely ignored by the media and the public." Already, minority students account for more than half of the nation's dropouts even though they make up less than half of the nation's total public school population, according to report.

But, state secretary of education Valerie Woodruff said, it is not enough to merely raise awareness of the dropout issue.

"We must act and act now to keep more youth in school and to prevent higher levels of incarceration and greater reliance on public programs and services," she said. "Greater prosperity to families, our state and our country is at stake."

This week's summit was part of America's Promise Alliance's Dropout Prevention Campaign, a national effort to reduce high school dropout rates and prepare children for college, work and life.

Food Bank school gives hope by teaching culinary skills

By MATTHEW BASHAM

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

It was crunch time and the kitchen was buzzing with excitement at the Food Bank of Delaware Culinary Arts Training Program Final Exams. Students of the Culinary Arts Training Program were given a metal pan filled with five ingredients, from which they were to make a masterpiece. The grueling 12-week course for unemployed and underemployed students looking for a new job skill comes down to a written test and the challenge of making Nick Durbin's mouth water, before a two week internship with a local kitchen. Nick Durbin is the chef instructor, and while we watched his students prepping, he said the running course is "no different from any chef in the kitchen, constantly training his cooks in the method you want to see done."

As the young chefs chopped and seasoned, program manager Tamara Varella, offered a preview of the curriculum

The 12-week program covers everything from high-end kitchen skills, to recipe analysis, and of course, flavor development, she said.

But in preparation for future employment, a part of each day is also dedicated to life skills, she said. Each student is exposed to resume writing, social integration, and interviewing skills.

Varella also serves as a coach to help students face difficulties in their lives.

After the years of operation, 82 students from the culinary program have been placed in food industry positions.

In fact, Varella said, if you have ever been to the Deer Park Tavern, McGlynn's Pub, or had the privilege of attending an event at the Chase Center Riverfront, there is a good chance you have tasted the handiwork of Food Bank graduates.

Twelve students are expected to graduate from the Program at the Food Bank's Newark Facility at 14 Garfield Way on Nov. 7 at 11:00 a.m.

"Before I entered the program, I sat at home and ran the streets," said student Tyra Cornish. "Last year at this time I was in jail, but now I know what I want to do with my life. I would recommend the Culinary School to anyone having trouble in life; it's opened a lot of new doors for me."

interest.”
Tim Herman purchased the family meat shop in 1992 from his parents, Luther and Jeanette, who started the family business when they purchased an existing meat shop on East Main Street from the McMullen family in 1967 and later moved it to East Cleveland Avenue.

Luther and Jeanette still live in Newark today.

Christine said she first met Tim while working at the Cleveland Avenue store. Their four children practically grew up in the meat shop, she said.

“Sometimes our kids would bring home a friend from school and we’d put them to work here over the holidays, too,” Christine said.

Tim was first diagnosed with cancer in 1992, at which time he was given six months to live.

Christine credited her husband’s never-ending faith, his love of his family and the skills of several amazing doctor for his ability to live for 16 years beyond his initial diagnosis.

“We had the store on the market for several years with the hope we would drive our convertible across country from golf course to golf course,” she said. “It will still be on the market, but you can’t sell something that’s not open.”

In the meantime, Christine said she’s hoping to find some catharsis by returning to the job she and her husband shared each and every day.

“When we took him to the hospital he told me to keep working at the store because, he said, the customers need you,” she said. “Hopefully, this will help me and the customers heal a little bit.”

Christin said Herman’s customers can look for the store to be open from 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, starting on Nov. 18.

Developer agrees to conditions for new building

► COUNCIL, from 3

Clifton said during the meeting. "An existing thoroughway is now blocked by a fence and to open it, would bring about a litany of problems on Tyre Avenue. It would become a thoroughfare, a cut-through and it would open the community to parties."

Despite the reduction in size, some city residents said they were still concerned about additional student housing encroaching on their neighborhood and the potential that a bar or restaurant in the new building would attract a boisterous clientele.

"We already have concerns regarding noise from the East End," Larry Bangerter, the president of the East End Civic Association told council. "With 56 more renters possibly going there each night, it could get a lot noisier."

Other nearby homeowners requested that Lang use lighting at the new building that would not shine in their bedroom windows.

"My window faces the back of this property," said Tyre Avenue resident Frank Tolomeo. "I would like it if you could use some lighting that doesn't light up the whole neighborhood."

Some council members, meanwhile, expressed reservations over the proposal, because of the unfavorable review it received from the city planning commission.

Lang had requested that the planning commission give him an unfavorable review rather than tabling their decision and potentially delaying the project, which he said is only under contract for a limited time.

Councilman David Athey, for instance, said he felt Lang was trying to circumvent the city's approval process by presenting an updated proposal to council rather than returning to the planning commission for further review.

"We have a process in place," Athey said. "It's nothing against the project, but (Lang's decision) bothers me in principal."

Interim city manager Roy H. Lopata said that in the past council has only required developers to return to the planning commission if they present a modified proposal that would have a greater impact on the community.

"This plan would actually have less impact," Lopata said. "And sending it back to the planning commission could delay final approval until December of January."

Clifton said he agreed with Athey in concept, but added, "The (city) code clearly states

(the planning commission) only recommends to this body and they did that based on the first plan that was given."

Councilman Stu Markham said he believed the concerns with the initial proposal that were raised by the planning commission had been addressed in the updated plan, as well the as concerns were raised by the community.

Report: climate change will hamper bay restoration

By SCOTT GOSS

POSTNEWS@CHESPUB.COM

The Chesapeake Bay ecosystem will be significantly impacted by climate change during the next century, according to a new report released by the Chesapeake Bay Program's Scientific and Technical Advisory Committee.

"Climate Change and the Chesapeake Bay: State-of-the-Science Review and Recommendations," details the potential consequences of climate change for the Chesapeake Bay and recommends adapting restoration and resource management to account for the environmental changes.

The Chesapeake Bay Program's Scientific and Technical Advisory Committee is a group of scientists and experts that provide guidance on measures to restore and protect the nation's largest estuary and its 64,000-square mile watershed.

The report claims the Chesapeake Bay will be affected by increasing carbon dioxide concentrations, rising sea levels and elevating water temperatures.

Increases in the amount and intensity of precipitation, strength of tropical storms, and fluctuations in sea level are also projected.

The extent of these changes will be determined, in part, by human activities in the watershed, choices about emissions of greenhouse gases and preparations for changing conditions, according to the committee.

The report outlines possible consequences of climate

Climate change will hamper future efforts to protect the Chesapeake Bay unless those protection efforts incorporate methods of combating changes to the climate, according to the Chesapeake Bay Program's Scientific and Technical Advisory Committee.

changes, including increased coastal flooding, the growth of harmful algae, a loss of underwater grasses and a loss of the conditions that favor warm-water fish and shellfish.

"It is difficult to imagine any aspect of the bay - be it biological, chemical or physical - that will be unaffected by climate change, particularly if society continues the current rate of greenhouse gas emissions," said Raymond Najjar, an associate professor of meteorology at Penn State University and an author of the report.

The Chesapeake Bay Program is a regional partnership that, since 1983, has coordinated the restoration of the Chesapeake Bay and its watershed, which is home to more than 16.7 million people.

View the report at www.chesapeake.org/stac/Pubs/climchangereport.pdf

Bay Program partners include the states of Delaware, Maryland, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia; the District of Columbia; the Chesapeake Bay Commission, a tri-state legislative body; the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and participating advisory groups.

Senator has claimed 72 accident involved drunk driver

eating his lunch, broadsided my family and killed my wife instantly and killed my daughter instantly and hospitalized my two sons ..."

"I just burst into tears," Hamill said. "The story already is tragic enough, why did he have to sensationalize it by saying my father was drunk? My family is outraged."

Hamill appeared on "Inside Edition" on Sept. 18 to set the record straight and now, acting as family spokesperson, she is campaigning for Biden to recant his story and restore her father's honor.

On Oct. 1, after several attempts to make contact, Hamill sent a registered letter to Biden's camp, asking him to tell the truth.

She also asked CBS officials to instruct Katie Couric to broadcast the real circumstances surrounding the fatal accident.

As of Sunday, Hamill hadn't heard from Biden's camp.

In an Oct. 21 e-mail, a CBS spokesman acknowledged discrepancies in Biden's story and explained that he's awaiting word from the "news people."

Hamill said learning about Biden's false portrayal of her late father has chilled warm feelings that she once held for the senator.

In 2001, she wrote a heartfelt letter to Biden expressing her father's profound grief after hearing Biden make a post Sept. 11 speech in which he told the audience that, given his history, he could empathize with victims.

"Growing up, my dad never talked about it. He always got very solemn around

Christmastime because the anniversary was Dec. 18, and he never wanted to celebrate the holidays," Hamill said. "When newspapers had anniversary articles (about the crash), we hid them from dad."

Biden responded in a handwritten note, which, in part, reads, "All that I can say is I am sorry for all of us and please know that neither I or my sons feel any animosity whatsoever."

Hamill says that because she fondly recalled those tender correspondences, the revelation of Biden's distorted story is even more overwhelming.

"We always felt like our heartstrings were attached to (Biden's) heartstrings. Now we feel stabbed in the back," she said.

Hamill wants to clear her late father's name before Biden's story is even more widely accepted as fact.

"Suppose he becomes the next vice president," she said. "Movies could be made about him and books could be written about him, all falsely portraying my father as a drunk driver. We need to set the record straight and clear my father's name right now before this goes any further."

UD hires state's OMB director to oversee HR

By SCOTT GOSS

POSTNEWS@CHESPUB.COM

A key financial and policy advisor in Gov. Ruth Ann Minner's cabinet announced today she will resign to take a job as the chief human resources officer for the University of Delaware.

Jennifer "J.J." Davis, a Minner cabinet member since 2002, will step down to become the university's vice president of administration on Nov. 11.

Davis is credited with merging the state offices of budget, administrative services and personnel into one 460-person Office of Management and Budget in 2005 and then running herd over the new agency until her resignation, also effective Nov. 11.

As OMB Director, she was responsible for the management of human resources, employee benefits, budget development, purchasing, pensions, risk management and facilities. She also implemented a comprehensive strategic plan and key performance indicators for the entire agency.

"J.J. has always been someone I can count on for thoughtful and thorough assessments of complex issues facing this state," Minner said. "In just three short years as OMB director, J.J. made significant strides toward streamlining government processes and bringing my vision of an efficient and effective state government to reality."

Prior to her cabinet positions, Davis worked in the state department of education, working her way up from associate secretary for policy and administrative services to deputy secretary of the agency.

"I personally want to thank Gov. Minner for this opportunity to serve the citizens of this state and also for her leadership in supporting a vision of innovation and excellence to state government during difficult financial times," Davis said. "It is my sincere hope that the solid foundation I have worked to build with my team at OMB over the past few years will enable Delaware to continue to integrate innovation and strategic thinking into public policy for years to come."

As vice president of administration for the university, Davis will oversee recruitment, compensation, payroll, labor relations, employee relations, employee assistance and benefits.

"J.J. Davis brings a wealth of experience in human resources management, administrative and support services, as well as facilities and physical plant management that will be key to this position," Davis' new boss

Scott Douglass, the university's executive vice president, said. "As the University of Delaware moves forward on its new Path to Prominence, J.J.'s insight, experience and energy will be invaluable."

Davis has been a state employee since earning both her bachelor's degree in political science and her master's degree in policy analysis from Pennsylvania State University in 1993.

In 2005, Davis was named one of the top 30 women in business and one of the top 25 people to watch by "Delaware Today Magazine."

Jennifer "J.J." Davis, director of Gov. Ruth Ann Minner's Office of Budget and Management, will leave that job on Nov. 11 to start a new position as the University of Delaware's chief human resources officer. Davis, seen here in a photo from April 2007, welcomes an international delegation from Hong Kong during their visit to Delaware.

UD faces tough test at top-ranked JMU

By TOM TOMASHEK

TTOMASHEK@COMCAST.NET

Much has been made of coach K.C. Keeler's unconventional offensive attack in last Saturday's shutout victory over Hofstra on Long Island.

The use of wide receiver Aaron Love and tight end Rob Agnon as quarterbacks made for spirited and energetic University of Delaware effort at a time when the Blue Hens are teetering on the brink of what will probably be a sub-.500 season.

"What happened last week is almost like we almost needed it. We needed to shake something up and it was shaken up because of two injuries," Keeler said referring to the loss of regular quarterback Rob Schoenhof and backup Lou Ritacco. "Now that it's shaken up I think we'll keep some components of that in the game plan at all times."

What Delaware will do offensively Saturday at James Madison where the Blue Hens (1-3 conference, 3-5 overall) will challenge the Dukes (5-0, 7-1) will remain a mystery until game time, but the guile of Keeler and offensive coordinator Brian Ginn will have to vastly exceed last week if the Blue Hens have a chance to upset the nation's No. 1 Football Championship Series team.

For all of the excitement last week's offensive game plan generated among the players and fans, it really wasn't that productive. Junior Jabbie rushed for 155 yards and Agnon and Love completed eight of 11 passes for 1135 yards, but beyond a 12-play, 67-yard march that set up a Delaware field goal, the touchdowns were the product of UD's stellar defense, adverse weather conditions, and an inefficient Hofstra offense guided by a third-string, true freshman quarterback.

The first touchdown was scored after a three-yard Hofstra punt gave Delaware the ball on the Pride 11 and the second TD was set up by a botched Hofstra snap that gave Delaware possession on the Pride 1-yard line. The offensive's major contribution in each case was that it didn't squander the two red-zone opportunities.

This week Schoenhof is expected to be available, but if Delaware relies on him to help snap JMU's seven-game winning streak, the Ohio State transfer will have to improve vastly over his last seven starts to move the team against a solid JMU defense.

It's unlikely the Blue Hens will catch JMU coach Mickey Matthews by surprise.

"They really ran the same plays, they simplified them and didn't run as many as them," he said. "We could tell what plays they put in for those kids. That's a tough situation when all your quarterbacks are hurt, but they did a great job with it and they got better as they went along."

Delaware has a solid defense, but JMU also has the man — quarterback extraordinaire Rodney Landers — capable of wearing down even the toughest opposition, and Delaware — thin defensively because of injuries could be vulnerable to the 6-foot-1, 220-pound back's athletic prowess. Keeler describes Landers as being possibly the best athlete he's seen in the Colonial Athletic Association, a senior capable of turning broken plays into points.

"He makes them different," Keeler said. "They have a real good defense. We have a real good defense. Richmond has a good defense. But he's the guy on the other side of ball who's different."

"He's the kind of athlete who Alabama, Florida, Texas would want . . . Landers is a highlight tape. When he has the ball, everyone on the field feels good, it's like 'We're going to be OK.'"

James Madison defeated Hofstra 56-0 in early October, an ominous sign for Delaware, but although Keeler recognizes that Delaware faces a major challenge, the Blue Hen coach prefers to put a positive spin on what is less than a promising situation.

"They might be as good as anyone in the country, but for as tough as this conference is they could be sitting here 4 and 4," he said alluding to JMU's three narrow victories including back-to-back come-from-behind victories over Richmond and Villanova. "You never can tell what's going to happen from week to week because so many of us are so well balanced."

"They are a heckuva team. It should be a heckuva challenge, but we're looking forward to it."

What Keeler is looking for is another stellar effort by his defense and an offensive game plan that will afford the injury-riddled Blue Hen defense a little more time to rest. The offensive game plan may be developed late in the week, but the goal is certainly to maintain greater ball control. Schoenhof, the Ohio State transfer who missed last week because of a mild concussion and the flu, is expected to return and should he start he'll have to play at a much loftier level than he has in his first seven starts.

If Keeler and offensive coordinator Brian Ginn stick with

St. Mark's volleyball team preps for state tournament

Spartans earn third seed in tourney

By JON BUZBY

JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

On Tuesday afternoon the St. Mark's volleyball team was rewarded for its season-long efforts and outstanding record with the No. 3 seed in this year's state tournament.

The Spartans will take a 14-3 record into their opening round match against Wilmington Christian (10-5) on Saturday at 6 p.m. The match will be the first of two opening round games taking place at Mt. Pleasant High School.

The entire St. Mark's team is focused on one goal only entering the tournament – to return to the state championship game, where the Spartans fell to Ursuline Academy last year.

"I believe our team is ready to compete for a state championship," senior Nikki Kinnier said. "We have been pushing each other in practice with the mindset of winning back the state title."

The Spartans' roster includes ten players from last year's state runner-up team and head coach Nancy Griskowitz points to two key regular-season games – one a loss – that has prepared her experienced team for the challenges they will face in the state tournament.

"We really came together as a team in our first win over Padua and set a new standard for our play," coach Griskowitz said. "We began to build our confidence in one another and in our team. The loss against Cardinal O'Hara [of Philadelphia] helped the team to realize that they needed to constantly be pushing themselves to improve and stay focused. The girls believe in one another and work together to keep up their intensity and strength."

Seniors Shelby Alt and Jen Murray echo their coach's philosophy.

"I think the key ingredient for any team, especially ours, is chemistry," Alt said. "You have to be able to trust your teammates on and off the court."

"Our key ingredient is being happy," Murray said. "When we are smiling and having fun together on the court, our whole morale is changed."

When asked how her team will stay focused on their opening round game against a team they beat handily (3-0) early in the season, coach Griskowitz was quick to point out that at this juncture in the season everyone starts from scratch and so there's no looking past anyone.

"This year there are several teams that are capable of beating one another on any given night," she said. "The state tournament always brings out the best in teams with all the matches displaying great volleyball."

"Our returning players always have high expectations for themselves to carry on a winning tradition."

Griskowitz has led the Spartans to five of the school's eight state titles, the last coming in 2006.

Should the Spartans advance to the quarterfinals, they will play the winner of Wilmington Friends – Caesar Rodney, on Tuesday at 6 p.m. at the St. Elizabeth Center.

Quarterback spot still a question this week

► HENS, from 26

their unconventional attack, they must come up with a few more wrinkles, receive another banner effort from Jabbe, and hope the entire offense is in sync.

"I don't care who's taking the snaps, we've got to get the ball to Junior," Keeler said of the Notre Dame transfer, slowed early this season with an ankle injury. "He has a knack of finding the holes, shakes off tackles, and makes people miss."

"He's not a breakaway threat, but six or seven yards are fine . . . even two and three [yards]. I can live with second and seven, but I can't with second and 12."

In addition, Keeler said that the offense has to avoid penalties that void gains and put the team in a hole. He said Jabbe should have had a 200-yard day Saturday, but had several lengthy gains negated by penalties.

James Madison is one of four teams remaining on Delaware's schedule, meaning that while the Hens' postseason hopes are virtually dashed, they may provide their fans some scintillating entertainment with a parade of quarterbacks including Schoenhof, Love, Agnon, Ritacco, Hakes and maybe others. Ritacco, thought to be lost for the season, has recovered faster than expected and should be available for Towson, and Hakes might learn enough about the offense to become a help in the final three weeks.

Charles Robinson, UD professor of English, attributes the enduring popularity of Mary Shelley's monster, to the quality of the book and the effects of Hollywood on the popular imagination.

Mary Shelley's creature lives again thanks to UD prof

The month that marks Halloween is proving to be a busy time for UD English professor Charles Robinson.

For starters, there is the publication of "The Original Frankenstein," by Mary Shelley with Percy Shelley, of which Robinson is the editor and author of the introduction.

Robinson also served as editor and enhancer for the Penguin Classics Maurice Hindle e-book version of Frankenstein by Mary Shelley, which is available this month.

Robinson delivered a lecture in the presence of the original "Frankenstein" manuscripts at the New Bodleian Library on Oct 7.

In his introduction to The Original Frankenstein, Robinson says Percy Shelly deleted many words from the original manuscript while contributing 4,000 to 5,000 words to the 72,000-word novel.

Despite this significant contribution, Robinson noted that the manuscript evidence attests to the fact that the novel was conceived and mainly written by Mary Shelley

Participants sought for online breast cancer study

UD's School of Nursing is seeking participants for a 12-week study regarding the possible health benefits of online support for patients with breast cancer.

Participants must be women at least 21 year old who have breast cancer, are receiving treatment for breast cancer or have received treatment for breast cancer in the past 36 months. Participants also must have Internet access at home and fluent in English.

Participants will be randomly assigned to one of two types of online cancer support for 12 weeks, during which time they will take part in online discussions with other women who have breast cancer. Participants also will be required to complete a periodic online questionnaire.

For more information on the study, e-mail klemmpa@udel.edu, or call 831-8501.

1950s UD football players get together for a reunion

If the purpose of homecoming is to combine football with reunions, then the get-together at the home of Shirley Nelson last week was a perfect example.

The widow of former UD football coach Dave Nelson hosted dozens of alumni who had played for her husband in the 1950s. A regular event, the gathering drew former teammates who reconnect each year at the party.

David M. Nelson was the Blue Hens head coach from 1952-65. A member of the College Football and Delaware Sports halls of fame, he is remembered not only as the father of the Wing-T but also as the country's foremost authority at the time on college rules.

Among those attending this year's reunion was a former player who went on to coach at the college and NFL levels, a one-season player for the Philadelphia Eagles and John Walsh, who graduated in 1958 and coached vice presidential candidate U.S. Sen. Joe Biden at Archmere Academy.

Now that documentary is on display at the Contemporary Arts Museum in Houston, Texas as part of a show titled, "Cinema Remixed and Reloaded: Black Women Artists and the Moving Image Since 1970." Gaiter's piece "All Power" is an interactive DVD.

Douglas was an artist and the minister of culture for the Black Panther party. He illustrated, designed and art directed the party's newspaper. Gaiter's documentary includes specifics regarding how he made newspaper graphics long before computers became popular to surveillance and harassment by the FBI and the police.

New grant funds integration of academics and student life

UD has received a $150,000, three-year grant from the Unidel Foundation to fund projects that promote the integration of academic and student life programs.

The new grant will provide funding through the Academic and Student Affairs Council to facilitate the development of new programs, conferences and workshops, as well as research activities.

Project proposals from council members, faculty and staff will be selected based on their ability to promote the integration of academic and student life programs and enhance student learning and success.

Counselors discuss UD's commitment to Delawareans

Some 80 guidance counselors from Delaware high schools were briefed on UD's enhanced "Commitment to Delawareans" at the Bob Carpenter Center on Oct. 17.

Originally announced in 2006, the UD Commitment to Delawareans is an academic roadmap designed to inform students and parents throughout the state of the courses and level of academic performance recommended for admission.

This year the commitment has been expanded to include financial assistance to all Delaware students who qualify, as well as early notification.

Starting with the current admissions cycle, UD will introduce rolling admissions decisions and early notification for Delaware applicants who meet certain requirements.

Louis Hirsh, UD director of admissions, explained that Delaware high school seniors who receive early admission must maintain high academic standards or risk having the admission withdrawn.

UD VP of finance appoints task force

Robert Specter, UD's vice president for finance, has appointed an Enterprise Risk Awareness and Assessment

Robert Specter

Task Force with the goal of assuring that university decisions are properly aligned with overall strategies and are made on a risk-informed basis.

The chairperson of the task force is Ramona Adams, assistant vice president for receipts, real estate and risk management.

Physicist receives Alison Scholar Award

Michael Shay, assistant professor of physics and astronomy

UD's Francis Alison Society has announced that Michael Shay, an assistant professor of physics and astronomy, has received its Young Scholars Award for 2008.

The award is highly competitive and given to tenure-track assistant professors at UD who have demonstrated outstanding research and academic teaching excellence. The award consists of a bronze plaque and check, which was presented on Oct. 23 at the Blue and Gold Club.

Shay studies plasma physics, plasma found in the composition of stars, lightning and the solar wind.

For his research, Shay uses analytical theory and massive parallel computer simulations, often running simulations on 2,048 computers simultaneously for 50 hours at a time.

Shay, who joined the UD faculty in 2005, has been nominated twice for the university's Excellence in Teaching Award.

Applications sought for Plastino Scholars Program

UD undergraduates are invited to apply by Feb. 27, 2009 for the David A. Plastino Scholars Program in the College of Arts and Sciences.

The program awards study grants to undergrads that exhibit extraordinary talent, promise and imagination. The grants support self-designed, off-campus learning experiences that can make a transformational difference in the lives of the recipients and enable them to pursue a passionate interest to a degree not otherwise possible.

Up to four scholarships are awarded each year.

Complete details on the program, including the application procedure, are available at

UD laboratory pre-school helps protect the planet

Four- and 5-year-olds in Nancy Edwards' afternoon class at UD's laboratory pre-school joined in campus-wide Sustainability Day events on Oct. 22 with a march to a campus recycling facility.

Wearing hats they had created from newspaper and pulling wagons full of paper, cans and bottles, the "Earth Guards" made their way to the Delaware Solid Waste Authority's depository for recyclables located behind Pearson Hall.

The children had been preparing for their march for several weeks through a variety of activities in their classroom. In the block area, for example, the children played out a scene with houses, people and a recycling center and truck. At the art table, they created collages using recycled materials.

The preschoolers also conducted a recycling survey in Alison Hall, interviewing faculty and staff in the building to find out what each person wanted to recycle. They then labeled boxes with signs for the different materials and placed them outside of offices. Prior to their march, they collected and sorted the items.

Eco-Innovations founder outlines sustainable products

Coral Rose, a member of UD's Department of Fashion and Apparel Studies advisory board and a recognized strategist on the subject of sustainable textiles gave a talk about sustainability and how to balance commercial sales with ecologically-friendly products at the Trabant University Center on Oct. 21.

Rose spoke about the importance of finding out what is environmentally practical for one's business, as well as for one's products, stressing that it is necessary to know where the sources for raw materials originate.

"The first questions that the designer of sustainable products have to ask are, 'What's the source of our raw material? Where is it coming from? Is it degrading an environment?'"

Rose said that it is important for companies to use sustainable clothing products not just for environmental reasons, but for economic reasons, as well.

The Staff of Delaware Eye Care Center

The Delaware Eye Care Center is proud to announce the addition of Edward Hu, MD, PhD to the medical staff. Dr. Edward Hu is a comprehensive ophthalmologist, able to provide the full spectrum of eye care to our patients. His advanced training and expertise is in small incision cataract surgery, and the latest medical treatments of retinal disease and surgical treatment of corneal disorders.

Dr. Edward Hu graduated with a bachelor's degree in Molecular Biology from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), and has both his PhD and MD from the New York School of Medicine. He completed his residency in Ophthalmology at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics (UIHC).

The staff at Delaware Eye Care Center welcomed Dr. Hu and his family to Delaware this summer. Dr. Hu is a native of Maryland.

Dr. Markowitz and the staff at Delaware Eye Care Center have been serving communities throughout the state of Delaware since 1983. By bringing Dr. Hu to Delaware, the staff at Delaware Eye Care Center is able to provide the most efficient and effective comprehensive eye care to more communities than ever before.

Delaware Eye Care Center has five offices conveniently located throughout Delaware, from Newark to Milford, to meet your eye care needs. Please call for an appointment at the location nearest you: (800) 900-2020.

THANK YOU COUPON
$5.00 OFF ANY NON-FOOD PURCHASE OF $25.00 OR MORE

With this Concord Pet Coupon only. Limit 1 offer per coupon, 1 per customer. Not valid with other offers or on prior purchases. CPFS reserves the right to limit quantities. Coupon Expires 11/30/08.

Opened in May of 2003, Concord Pet Foods & Supplies' Elkton store is the 15th store in the independently owned chain of 18 and the first to open in the State of Maryland. Founded in June of 1981, Concord Pet began as a little "shed" along Route 202 in Talleyville. It was a side venture for a local businessman, Larry Mutschler, who also owned the Mobile Station at Foulk & Naamans Rds in Wilmington. Concord Pet prides itself on customer service and product knowledge. We may not have all the answers but we'll do our best to get them for you because our employees truly care about animals and actively seek knowledge for their own pets as well as their customers' animals.

Thomas W. Coker

TO: Satish Reddy Madadi and Vidya R. Madadi, 18 Abelia Lane, Newark, DE 19711; Thomas W. Coker, 8 W. Chestnut Hill Road, Newark, DE 19713

(1). Plaintiff in the above-captioned matter intends to obtain court judgment against you in the superior Court of the State of Delaware (Based on the enclosed document) for the following amounts:

Principal amount: $90,000.00
Accrued interest: _____
Attorney's fees: $18,000.00
Plus interest and cost: _____

(2). The plaintiff alleges you have waived your rights to notice and hearing prior to the entry of this judgment against you.

(3). The entry of this court judgment will result in a lien against all your real estate and the means, in default of payment, whereby the sheriff can levy against your personal property and real estate for credit against the debt.

(4). In default of payment in appropriate cases the sheriff may seize some portion of your wages for credit against the debt.

(5). You may appear in Superior Court, Necch 500 North King Street, Wilmington, DE at Friday, 11/21/08 @ 1:30 p.m. at which time you may object to the entry of the judgment and a hearing will then be scheduled by the Court. At the hearing, the plaintiff will be required to prove that you have effectively waived your rights to notice and hearing prior to the entry of this judgment.

(6). You are not required to appear but if you fail to do so judgment will be entered by default.

(7). If you have any questions about these matters, you should consult a lawyer immediately.

Sincerely,
Sharon Agnew

PUBLIC WORKSHOP
Elkton Road - Casho Mill Road to Delaware Avenue

Newark Charter School
2001 Patriot Way, Newark
Monday, November 17, 2008
4:00 p.m. - 7:00 p.m.

The Department of Transportation (DelDOT) announces a public workshop for proposed improvements to Elkton Road from Casho Mill Road to Delaware Avenue. The public is invited to attend any time between 4:00 pm and 7:00 pm.

Attendees will be able to view and discuss the proposed improvements along Elkton Road, which were developed through a series of working group meetings and an earlier public workshop.

Proposed improvements include:

- Reconstructing the pavement, improving pedestrian, bicycle, transit facilities and intersection improvements.
- Improvements to the Elkton Road/Casho Mill Road intersection include adding a second eastbound left-turn lane on Elkton Road. Providing a left-turn from Casho Mill Road onto eastbound Elkton Road.
- Improvements to the Elkton Road/Apple Road intersection include adding a westbound right-turn lane on Elkton Road and a southbound right-turn lane on Apple Road.
- Elkton Road from Apple Road to Delaware Avenue will be reconstructed to provide one-lane in each direction with a center-turn lane.

As part of the design process, nighttime construction is also being proposed to address traffic and safety issues.

Interested persons are invited to express their views in writing, giving reasons for support of or in opposition to the proposed project. Comments will be received during the workshop or can be mailed to DelDOT's Office of Public Relations, P.O. Box 778, Dover, DE 19903.

This location is accessible to persons having disabilities. Any person having special needs or requiring special aid, such as an interpreter for the hearing impaired, is requested to contact DelDOT by phone or mail one week in advance.

For further information contact the Office of Public Relations at 1-800-652-5600 (in DE) or 302-760-2080 or write to the address above.

Raymond spent 15 years as best mascot ever

▶ PHANATIC, from 1

The elder Raymond was once quoted as saying, "I used to be known as the head football coach of the Fighting Blue Hens but now I will forever be known as the father of a green transvestite."

Dave said he got his start as the Phanatic in 1978 by being an eager intern in what he calls the "wacky promotion" department.

"They came to me as the only intern in the Philly's organization with this idea, and as an intern you say 'yes,' though I didn't exactly know what I was getting into," he said.

The Phanatic debuted on April 25, 1978 at The Vet when the Phils played the Chicago Cubs.

Raymond eventually retired for the green, furry suit in 1993, the same year that sportscaster and baseball analyst Tim McCarver named the Philly Phanatic the best mascot in baseball. The Phanatic also has been voted the best mascot ever by "Sports Illustrated" and "Sports Illustrated for Kids."

Even after leaving the world of professional sports entertainment, Raymond has continued working at what he refers to as "making professional idiocy legitimate."

While working as the Phanatic, Dave said he attended a conference for the United Way in New York to played the "clown that floated throughout the week long seminar."

After seeing the positive response from those that attended the seminar, Raymond became convinced he could launch a career bringing smiles to people in their work place.

After leaving the Phillies organization, Raymond founded the Newark-based Fun Department, a company dedicated to ending to the monotony of the average working day.

Newark business owner David Raymond, seen here with Philadelphia Phillies's Hall of Fame announcer Harry Kalas, was the original Phanatic.

As the so-called Emperor of Fun, Raymond now brings a little of the old Phanatic zaniness to corporate special events.

"Employees and employers shouldn't have to look too hard to realize, sometimes people just need a laugh, or a smile and smiles succeed," Raymond said. "Anyone can appreciate an occasional stride of up-lifting projects beyond the day today tasks."

Raymond also founded the Mascot Hall of Fame and the Phanatic was inducted as a charter member of the Class of 2005.
