Harmony As Republicans Name Ticket

Predict Victory With Hastings Heading Ticket

"His Election Sure As Rising of Sun," Asserts Robert H. Richards Placing Senator In Nomination

Republican Candidates

United States Senator—Daniel O. Hastings, of Wilmington, nominated for both short and long term, renominated.

Representative in Congress—Robert G. Houston, of Georgetown, renominated for the fourth time.

Insurance Commissioner—James G. Shaw, of New Castle, renominated.

State Auditor of Accounts—Edward Baker, of Dover, renominated.

State Treasurer—George S. Williams, of Millsboro, at present president of the State Board of Education.

Although harmony reigned in the Republican Convention at Dover, the day previously made being accepted without a ripple of opposition, Congressman Robert G. Houston cautioned the party against becoming over confident of victory. Mr. Houston will be colleague in the Senate, Daniel O. Hastings were renominated. Representative Houston said the fight must be carried to the November election if those nominated are to be elected to places of power to aid in carrying out the policies of the National and State administrations. Senator Hastings was not present.

Praises Governor Buck

In addition to cautioning members of the party against over-confidence, Congressman Houston, said that Delaware has always been in the forefront among other states in the nation in worth while projects. He referred to the progress that has been made along educational lines, to the State's good roads and its present administration of finances. He paid tribute to Governor C. Douglass Buck, and predicted that President Hoover, at the expiration of his term, would be called one of the greatest Presidents that ever sat in the White House.

The convention unanimously adopted a platform which included a plank for the observance and enforcement of all laws and endorsement of President Hoover for creating the law enforcement investigation committee.

Senator Hastings was appointed in December, 1928, to succeed Senator Coleman du Pont, who resigned because of ill health. He will serve until after the general election in November, and if elected to the short and long terms, he will continue as a Senator until March 4, next year, and then start a full term of six years.

All of the nominations were made after the county and Wilmington caucuses were held, when complete endorsement of the slate was given by each caucus save Sussex County. Opposition against a resolution being adopted favorable to the entire slate was made by Carrie Palmer, of Millsboro, who objected on the grounds that it was unfair to the delegates and candidates as they had never been consulted. It was necessary to take a vote and the resolution was adopted by a vote of 27 to 14.

At the Wilmington caucus, a resolution was presented by Miss Jeanette Eckman, asking for the referendum to be arranged by the Legislature on the question of retention or repeal of the Prohibition Amendment, but it was tabled. It was stated that a copy of the resolution was to be presented at the other three caucuses, but this was not carried out. The text of the resolution follows:

"It has become a controversial question as to whether the people of this State desire to retain the Eighteenth Amendment as a part of the United States Constitution or to repeal it. As this question can only be satisfactorily settled by the submission, in some legal form, to the voters of this State, of the issue, we will support the necessary action by the next General Assembly towards providing for a State-wide referendum of the people."

Robert H. Richards Names Hastings

The convention was presided over by United States Senator John G. Townsend, Jr., who succeeded John K. Johnston, of Newark, who had been appointed by State Chairman J.

Warren Marshall, as temporary chairman.

The name of Senator Hastings placed in nomination by former Attorney-General Robert H. Richards, of Wilmington, who was vice-chairman of the Wilmington caucus. Mr. Richards, after referring to General du Pont as still the leading Republican of the State, said that the appointment of Senator Hastings by former Governor Robert P. Robinson was fully justified and that his nomination meant victory.

Tells Accomplishments

"Less than two years ago," said Mr. Richards, "the Hon. Coleman du Pont, then, as now the leading Delaware Republican, resigned the office of United States Senator from this State."

"Shortly thereafter the then Governor, the Hon. Robert P. Robinson, appointed Daniel O. Hastings to fill the vacancy thus created. Judge Hastings had long been a distinguished citizen of this State, and an influential member of the Republican party."

"His appointment by the Governor has been amply justified. He has added greatly to his own distinction and conferred credit upon the State."

"In the short time that has elapsed since his appointment, he has attained a position that is unusual, if not unique, in the annals of the Senate. He has demonstrated his ability as a skillful and ready debater on the floor of the Senate. He has proved his industry and value in the work on the important committees to which he has been assigned."

Praises Hastings' Judgment

"He has shown his wisdom and sound judgment in determining the position that he should take upon important public questions and demonstrated his courage in maintaining them, regardless of the effect they might incur to his personal fortunes. In addition to these things, he has shown himself to be especially fitted for the office of United States Senator by his conciliatory manner and agreeable disposition which has caused him to be looked upon as an extremely valuable man in the Senate in the accomplishment and treatment of important national legislation."

"The State of Delaware—the Republican party—is proud of the record Judge Hastings has made. It is the duty of the Republican party to see that he has the opportunity in the next six years to enhance that position, and I predict that if the opportunity is given him in much less than that time, he will have become one of the most forceful and most prominent members of the Senate of the United States."

Colleagues Add Praise

"I have talked to many Senators in the past two months, including (Continued on Page 4.)"

EARLY MORNING ACCIDENT

About 7 o'clock this morning a Chrysler coach, driven by Antonio Civitillo, and a Ford touring car, driven by Edward French, collided at the intersection of Delaware and South College avenues. French sustained a slight cut over his right eye and was taken to a doctor for treatment by Officer Cunningham, who also took charge of details of the accident. The Ford car was later driven away. The Chrysler was badly damaged.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Tuesday evening S. C. Brown, of near Newark, driving a Ford car, and Henry S. Bingle, colored, of Delaware City, driving a Chevrolet car belonging to the Wilmington Automobile Company, collided at the corner of Delaware and South College avenues. Damage to the automobiles was very slight. No one was injured.

NEW GOLF COURSE

Louis Handloff has built an 18-hole Miniature Golf Course in rear of the State Theatre, which will be opened to the public today. Announcement on page eight of this issue of The Post offers some interesting inducements to the amusement loving public in regard to the golf course and theatre.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY PRIMARY CLOSE IN CECIL

Spirited Fights in Voting for Nearly Every Official

RESULTS ARE LISTED

With fights in both parties all the way down the line, the primary elections Monday in Cecil County, Md., were the liveliest in the recent history of both parties. There were eleven candidates for the Democratic nomination for sheriff, which seems to have gone to Eugene Racine of Elkton. Mrs. Clinton G. Logan, wife of the incumbent, who was a candidate, received only 421 votes. The people of Cecil County are to be congratulated upon the defeat of a woman candidate for sheriff.

On the Republican side, A. Stengle Marine, had 1617 votes to Jerome D. Jefferson's 729, for congressional nomination. The vote among the Republicans, which was lighter than that of the Democrats.

The Democrats nominated Emerson R. Crothers for Clerk of the Court; Eugene Racine, Sheriff; Harry H. Howard, John C. Duncan and Walter E. Buck for County Commissioners; William E. Briscoe, Fred H. Laffer and Thomas H. Reynolds for House of Delegates; J. Frank Blake, Judge of Orphans' Court; Robert J. McCauley, Register of Wills; Henry D. Constable, State's Attorney; Edwin S. Dorcus, County Treasurer; W. Herbert Baker, Assistant County Treasurer; Cecil Clyde Squier, State Senator; James J. McCauley and Milton S. Sentman, Judges of the Orphans' Court.

BEAGLE TRIALS DRAW BIG ENTRY

$600 Purse Largest Ever Offered Will Be Divided Three Ways

When the Eastern Beagle Club holds its sixteenth annual field trials near Newark starting on Monday October 6, the largest stake, $600, ever offered at a beagle club trial will be awarded. This stake will be divided $300, $200 and $100. The offering of this large stake was made possible by Harry E. Campbell of Philadelphia.

The trials which will open on October 6, will continue throughout the week. The club usually has an entry list of about one hundred beagles but in view of the unusually large prizes that will be offered it is anticipated that there will be a much larger entry list this year. The dogs come from the central eastern States and last year there were a number from Canada.

Judges for the field trials this year will be M. Marshall Jones, of Baltimore and Ernest H. Duquette, of Indian Orchard, Mass. In connection with the field trials the second annual bech show for beagles of this club will be held in the local armory of Battery E, on Wednesday evening, October 8, Joseph H. Baldwin of West Chester, Pa., will be judge of the show is open to the public and information as to details can be secured from Ross S. Robinson, 519 Market St., Wilmington, Del.

The field trials will start at 7 Monday morning October 6, with the running of the thirteen inch derby males and females combined and this class will be followed in order by the thirteen inch all age males, thirteen inch all age females, fifteen inch derby combined, 15 inch all age males and 15 inch all age females. Following these classes will be the special $600 stake which is expected to draw beagles from many sections.

Headquarters of the club will be at the Washington House and the dogs will be in kennels not far from the hotel. William T. Roe, of Sudlersville, Md., is secretary of the club.

BUSY MONTH FOR INSURANCE DEPT

Two New Companies Added to Roster in this State

The month of August was a busy period for the State Insurance Department, according to a report just compiled by James G. Shaw, State Insurance Commissioner. During the month two new companies were added to the roster of insurance concerns during business in Delaware.

The new companies are both stock corporations. The Paul Revere Life Company, of Worcester, Mass., was the first one entered, and the other was the Milwaukee Mechanics Insurance Company, a fire underwriting concern of Milwaukee, Wis.

The revenue of the Department for the month amounted to $1,038.35. There were 52 licenses issued to life insurance agents and 103 agents certificates issued during the month. There were also 17 miscellaneous licenses issued.

The registration of insurance policies brought in fees amounting to $263.85, while the revenue from the admittance of the new companies totaled $199.00.

NEWARK CHAMPS IN FIRST FOOTBALL DRILL

About 30 candidates for the Newark High School football team reported to Coach "Bill" Gillespie Monday afternoon. Newark won the secondary high school championship of the State last season and although a number of that team have been lost by graduation Coach Gillespie is starting in to build up another championship eleven if possible. The practice Monday was light and largely in drilling fundamentals into the candidates.

Charles Schwartz, a tackle on last year's team, will captain this year's aggregation. Others of last year's squad who are out for the team include: Bob Ford, center; Grover Surratt, H. Gallagher, Hall Griffith, "Vic" Willis, "Bill" Coverdale, linemen; Bill Barrow, Bill Dean, Roland Jackson and Jack Collins, backs. Some of the new men out include, Shorty Edmondson, Raymond Johnson, John Cooper, William Fletcher, Donald Hill, Dave Coverdale, Lewis Bidwell and Edward Biddle.

AUGUST CHARTER BUSINESS SMALL

Decline is Attributed to General Business Slump; Hope for Revival

With the smallest number of charters filed this year 398, with the Corporation Department in the secretary-of-State's office during the month of August, there also was collected the smallest amount of revenue from such charters during the year, $72,635.19. While the number of charters filed in July was 65 more than during the month of August, the revenue for July was only a little over $10,000 more than the amount received during August, a total of $83,367.35.

When a comparison is made with the charters filed since January with that of August and the revenues to correspond, no one can figure out the cause for the decline other than a general depression in the country which has lessened the number of charters and the lowering of the capital stock of the companies incorporated which naturally reduces the revenue to the State from this source.

The decline in the charter business in Delaware can safely be said to have followed the financial crash of the fall of 1929 both as to charters and the revenues therefrom.

In November, 1929, the number of charters filed was 517 with revenues from the source of $188,412.06, the number of charters prior to the month of November having ranged anywhere from 731 down to 517. The monthly revenue ranged from $420,309.64 down to $211,691.93 and $188,412.06.

During the month of December, 1929, the number of charters went up to 566 but the revenues dropped to $136,543.27. The total amount received from 7,537 charters during the year 1929 was $3,269,768.42. The total number of charters filed so far this year was 3,992 and revenues from such charters, $852,743.62.

The decline in the revenues from the charters can best be determined by the record of each month since November, 1929, as follows: November, 1929, 617 charters, revenue, $188,412.06; December, 1929, 566 charters, revenue $136,543.27; January, 1930, 499 charters, revenue $136,543.27; February, 463 charters, revenue $114,359.26; March, 506 charters, revenue $150,744.71; April, 543 charters, revenue $150,374.70; May, 476 charters, revenue $186,003.72; June, 463 charters, revenue $83,367.35; August, 398 charters, revenue $72,635.19. This makes a total of 3,992 charters, with revenue amounting to $1,052,743.62.

While the number of charters varied each month as did the revenues, the falling off of the different months is attributed to the lessening of the capital stock on which the revenues are based.

Corporation lawyers and companies in Dover as well as elsewhere in the State are hoping for a revival of the charter business with the opening of the fall business.

DEMOCRATS MAY NAME LEFEVRE

Dover Man is Only Aspirant for Congressional Nomination Thus Far

Col. John P. LeFevre of Dover, commanding officer of the Delaware National Guard, is a candidate for the Democratic Congressional nomination, according to an announcement made Wednesday.

As far as could be learned, Col. LeFevre is the only candidate in the field for this berth to be filled at the Democratic State Convention to be held here next Tuesday.

Col. LeFevre is a member of the Dover City Council and belongs to many local civic and fraternal organizations. He is very active in the work of the American Legion in Delaware and served one term as Department Commander.

The announcement that Col. LeFevre will be a candidate for the Congressional nomination will partially settle the curiosity about who Kent County would put forward for this place. For sometime it has been understood that Kent County would have a candidate but no names have been used until today.

Although the Republican State Convention was only held Tuesday, the paramount political interest in the central section of Delaware continues to be centered in the contest for the Democratic Senatorial nomination which will be decided next Tuesday.

Former Senator Thomas F. Bayard of Wilmington is making a strong campaign for the berth on a platform that includes tariff reform and modification of the prohibition laws. He is opposed by Josiah Marvel, Wilmington attorney, who is classed as a dry candidate.

Some weeks ago it was indicated that Marvel might have little trouble in having a large majority of the delegates in Kent County. As the date of the Convention rapidly approaches, it would appear that Marvel may have some difficulty in procuring a majority of the delegates in Kent.

The battle is waxing warmer and wherever people meet it is the prime topic of discussion. The activity of the Democrats in arousing the followers of their party is somewhat worrying the Republican leaders, who fear that inactivity on the part of their followers might result disastrously at the general election.

MRS. SPRINGER TO BROADCAST SUNDAY NIGHTS

The organ recitals by Mrs. Franklin Springer from the Arcadia Theatre, broadcasted over WDEL have been changed from Tuesday to every Sunday evening from 8.00 to 8.45.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Singles, Drexel Hill, Pa., are visiting their mother, Mrs. Eva J. Singles.

Mr. James Taylor of Gilbertville, Mass., who died in the Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, was buried from the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. Frank Owen, Sunday. The services were conducted by Rev. C. L. Heileman. Interment was at New London Presbyterian Cemetery. Mr. Taylor formerly lived near Strickersville, Pa.

MILFORD CROSS ROADS SCHOOL. Work at Milford Cross Roads School is fully organized for the year. Mrs. Leonard Nelson, President of the P. T. A., has announced that the September meeting will be held in the school room next Wednesday evening, September 17, at 8 o'clock, standard time. The adults who are in charge of the program will present a play, "Bertha Brings Home the Bacon."

"Bertha Snodgrass," an up-country cousin, in the person of Mrs. Ambrose Camerson, goes to visit Mr. and Mrs. Hood, otherwise Mr. and Mrs. C. Edwin Guthrie, who are overly anxious to impress a lawyer and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. McGee, (in real life Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Nelson) who are visiting them. Gilbert Melvin as Jenkins, the butler, adds to the merriment.

There will be no admission charge for the play. It is given as the regular P. T. A. program. Home-made candy will be on sale for those who care to buy. It is planned to have a real get-together meeting that evening.

Student Council. For the past three years Milford Cross Roads School has been organized on the plan of a town council. The teacher feels that the children have developed a great deal of leadership as a result of this organization, hence the council has been reorganized.

FARMER was advised by his livestock commission man to ship eighty lambs then ready for market. The following day, as he was getting ready to deliver the lambs to the railroad, his telephone rang. The market, he learned, had broken badly. By delaying shipment another week, the farmer secured one-half cent per pound more than he would have made on his original offer.

The Modern Farm Home has a TELEPHONE

Delaware Reed, sixth grade, was almost the unanimous choice of the school for Mayor. The members of the council are Paul Nelson, Carolyn Guthrie, Violet Gray, Hazel Johnston and Virginia Hall. Delaware has shown already that he can manage his council. Problems are met, judgments passed and decisions reached.

4-H Club

Officers for both girls' and boys' 4-H Clubs have been elected. The girls have chosen Ruth Reed as President, Gladys Walmsley, Vice-President, and Helen Kwiatkowski, Secretary.

Charles Greer was the choice of the boys for President. Delaware Reed will serve as Vice-President, and Lewis Fisher as Secretary.

An Art Club has been formed with Hazel Johnston as President.

A MOTHER OF THE WILD

A family of foxes, if the analogy may be allowed, is as artful as a cartload of monkeys. It is no light task to keep them in order. On the head and shoulders of the vixen falls most of the responsibility, for her mate congenial than teaching obstinate youngsters the ways of the world. She, however, does her duty nobly and well.

Almost as soon as the cubs are born she begins their education. Obedience is the first lesson of the wild. Failure to obey a danger signal may result in sudden death. The cubs must learn this lesson quickly or perish in the learning.

Whereas the birds rely upon sight and sound to protect them, the mammals rely chiefly upon scent. The vixen is careful to teach the cubs how to distinguish between a scent that denotes food and one that denotes danger. After a time they accompany her on food-finding expeditions and come to learn both how and where the best meals are obtained.

In their play the vixen also mingles. There is no prettier sight in the woods than an old fox romping with her little ones. Sometimes she gives them hard knocks but that is all to their good as life has many blows and buffets in store for wild creatures as well as for human beings, and the sooner the young foxes learn how to meet with adversity the better equipped are they for the great adventure.

Their mother naturally has a great love for them. Her own life matters little when the safety of her cubs is considered. It is strange that after lavishing such a great tenderness upon them and showing such care in their upbringing the vixen should send them out into the world never, perhaps, to see them again. They never realize their obligation to her and she never realizes that they owe her anything. The ways of the wild are more mysterious than those of men.

WORLD DAY FOR ANIMALS

The anti-vivisection societies of England and America are particularly interested in a World Day for Animals, to be celebrated on the day dedicated to St. Francis of Assisi, October 4. Although we are particularly interested in Be Kind to Animals Anniversary, which occurs regularly in April, we suppose there cannot be too many days devoted to calling special attention to the claims of the animal world upon us for justice and compassion. However, as Be Kind to Animals Anniversary is so well established in the United States and abroad, we could wish that those interested in the World Day had seen fit to place it in this week. Certainly it is thrilling to think of people of all races and all countries devoting their attention particularly to animals on the same day. Let us remember October 4, which falls on Saturday this year.

A MAN'S TRIBUTE TO HIS DOG

"Bix" is dead! He was a dog in the animal kingdom, but a tall man in the attributes of kindness and loyalty. He never spoke about his own virtues, but he showed them in his every-day life. I wish I might know the man who gave the deadly poison to my dog. I have no desire to carry harm to him, but rather a desire to make him a gentler and a better man by painting for him a word-picture of poor Bix and his sufferings. For many days under skillful treatment of a veterinarian and the nursing of those who loved him, Bix fought against the effects of the drug, never complaining, never showing resentment, rewarding every effort in his behalf with a wag of his tail, or with an expression of thanks from his kindly eye. In the last effort of his life he dragged himself to my feet, raised his drooping muzzle and laid it in my hand, as if I've seen a child repose a weary head on mother's knee. Thus he died, and in the death-glaze upon his intelligent brown eyes I thought I read a message of forgiveness for the whipping I gave him one day, when anger had driven from my head that fair sense of reason which should direct the doings of men, if not of dogs. I have never been able to accept the teachings of those ancients who held that at death-time the souls of men and women sometimes are transferred to the bodies of birds and dogs, but if I could accept that view I should then believe that one day there lived upon

WASHINGTON PORTRAITS AND LETTERS

Sought By the George Washington Bicentennial Commission

Two interesting tasks confront the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, now planning the nation-wide observance of the Two Hundredth Anniversary in 1932 of George Washington's Birth. One is to determine which portrait of George Washington, of the many in existence, bears the closest resemblance to the General, the other is to discover some heretofore unpublished original letters of Washington, many of which are known to be in existence. The first question is expected to be settled when the Portrait Committee of the Bicentennial Commission holds its next meeting this fall. The search for the unpublished letters of Washington will prove to be a more difficult task.

The painting of Washington which will be selected by the Portrait Committee will have the most extensive poster circulation ever accorded a picture. Thousands of copies will be printed and distributed. It will reach every corner of the United States and probably every corner of the world. Many of the publications to be issued by the George Washington Bicentennial Commission will include one of these portraits; every school-house will be presented with a copy; calendars, posters and window displays will have this picture as a feature. The necessity for a decision on the "best picture" is obvious.

Washington sat for as many as 21 artists. From these originals, hundreds of pictures were painted. Which is the best? Which bears the closest resemblance to the man himself? These are the questions the Portrait Committee must decide. Its verdict will undoubtedly be accepted by the whole country, not only for the present celebration, but for generations to come.

The most popular portrait of Washington has always been the one executed by Gilbert Stuart. It has both dignity and elegance. The original, one of the best known pictures in the world, is now in the Boston Athenaeum. From this picture have been made millions of reprints and copies, some of the latter by the artist himself. While this picture has always led in popular fancy, there seems to be a growing demand for a picture of Washington which depicts him as a younger man—the Stuart picture was painted in 1796, only three years before Washington's death.

Other popular portraits are those by Charles Willson Peale, Rembrandt Peale, John Trumbull, James Sharples and Edward Savage. Each of these artists seems to have many followers who believe that their particular favorite best portrayed the subject. However that may be, the Portrait Committee will soon settle the question. Since the opinion thus reached will be that of leading artists and historians, it seems likely that it will be the final word.

The Portrait Committee which is to make this decision is composed of Dr. Leicester B. Holland, Chief of the Division of Fine Arts of the Library of Congress, chairman; Dr. Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission of the District of Columbia; Dr. John C. Fitzpatrick, Manuscripts Division, Library of Congress; Ezra Winter, Fine Arts Commission of New York; Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, Historian, Cambridge, Mass.; Colonel Harrison H. Dodge, Superintendent of Mount Vernon; and Gari Melcher, artist, of Falmouth, Virginia.

The second task facing the George Washington Bicentennial Commission is, in a way, the more difficult. By a specific Act Congress authorized the publication of Washington's writings. Dr. John C. Fitzpatrick of the Library of Congress, one of the foremost authorities on Washington and his time, has been selected to edit this work. When completed these writings will form a Congressional Memorial of the United States to the Nation's most revered son.

While there is sufficient original material in the archives of the Library of Congress for 25 volumes, there are still many letters extant which have never been published. These "hidden" letters the Associate Directors of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3d, and Representative Sol Bloom of New York, are making every effort to obtain.

Washington was a diligent and prolific writer. In his habitually frank manner, he expressed his views and ideas on the leading problems of his day. The person who wants to understand Washington must go to his writings—his papers, journals, diaries and letters. Washington has left a more authentic picture of himself through his writings than is to be found in any of the hundreds of his biographies which have been written since his death.

The writings of Washington which are being compiled in connection with the Two Hundredth Anniversary of his Birth, will remain the fullest available Washingtoniana for many years. The undertaking was made possible only by the financial provision of the United States Government. Such an enterprise may never again

STEER WRESTLERS TAKE BIG CHANCES

Odd Origin of a Cowboy Sport Which Will be Featured at the Rodeo at the Philadelphia Municipal Stadium

From $10,000 to $20,000 a year for wrestling steers. That is what an enterprising young man can make if he can demonstrate that he is able to wrestle wild bovines from Texas as well as Dick Shelton, Paddy Ryan and other cowboy stars who perform the stunts for rodeo audiences.

Steer wrestling is a cowboy sport that wasn't in existence a matter of twenty or twenty-five years ago. It rodeo game, got the hang of the idea. Steer wrestling then became a recognized feature of rodeo contests throughout the country.

Some of the greatest steer wrestlers in the country will appear at the World Series Rodeo, opening September 10 and continuing through September 20 at the Philadelphia Municipal Stadium. Among these will be Dick Shelton, holder of the world's remained for a Negro cotton-picker, down in Texas, who acted as a cowboy between cotton seasons, to originate a sport which thrills thousands of spectators every year.

Bill Pickett was the Negro cowboy's name. Bill got mad one day when he was trying to round up a particularly obnoxious steer on the Texas ranch where he was employed. He "took after" the running steer on his pony, and, leaping from the saddle, grasped the animal by the horns, stopped his flight, and threw him to the earth.

Some other cowboys who had seen Bill's stunt were amazed and delighted. "Bet you can't do it again, Bill," they bantered. Bill Pickett took the dare. He raced after another steer, leaped from the saddle at full tilt, and threw the animal.

The news of Bill's exploit got around. He was asked to do it again and again, and he always made good. Finally he got to "bulldozing" steers, as it was called, in rodeos. For awhile he was alone in his act, but Clay McGonigle and some other old time cowboys who were starring then in the record in steer wrestling, Dick downed a steer five seconds after the animal had dashed from the chute at a Western rodeo. This stands as the world's record. Last year Dick almost tied this record at Madison Square Garden, throwing a steer in five and three-eighths seconds. This year he thinks he can tie or beat his best record.

Paddy Ryan, celebrated all-round cowboy, is an expert steer wrestler. Ryan is below medium size and not heavily built, but he has the knack of steer wrestling to perfection.

In the opinion of many people, steer wrestling is the most exciting of all rodeo sports. There is a thrill for everybody, when the rider darts after the running steer, and makes the leap from the saddle.

The steer wrestlers, like the contestants in other events at the Philadelphia rodeo, compete for cash prizes. This is the only payment they receive, and, naturally, they are out to do their best. But all of them pay tribute to old Bill Pickett as the man who "discovered" the unique and thrilling cowboy sport which now yields thousands of dollars to its stars.

be attempted. It is because of these facts that the Commissioners are desirous of making this compilation as complete as possible.

Dr. Fitzpatrick estimates that only one-half of Washington's letters have been published in the 131 years since the General's death. Where are the remaining letters? Undoubtedly many of them have been destroyed, some wilfully and some through carelessness. But there are still many unpublished letters of Washington in existence. These the Associate Directors of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission are anxious to see.

Many of these letters are in the possession of people who do not realize their historical value. Every now and then a document is discovered in a most remote place and usually by accident. Because of the Westward movement after the Revolutionary War, these letters have been scattered throughout the United States. Also, because of the keen interest in Washington which has been taken by collectors and scholars, some letters have found their way into Europe and even Australia. An unpublished letter is likely to turn up at any moment in any part of the world.

The George Washington Bicentennial Commission does not ask any one to part with the original copies of such documents. It merely requests the privilege of examining such letters and, if found authentic, to be permitted to make reprints of them. Every effort is being made by the Commission to locate such letters in order, to use the words of Associate Director U. S. Grant, 3d, "to present to all Americans a composite picture of the Father of His Country through his writings—his physical appearance, his thoughts and actions, and his ideals."

THE PASSION PLAY

The Passion Play at Oberammergau is a graphic illustration of what real community cooperation may accomplish. President Paul E. Titworth of Washington College writes to this paper following a visit to the quaint village in the upper valley of the Ammer River, snuggled against the Bavarian Alps. "With 1,500 souls, out his parishioners, was a creative artist of surprising talent. The theatre, with its huge auditorium open at one end and its front rows of seats out under the vault of heaven, with its forestage completely exposed to the elements and its real stage roofed over, is by no means a beautiful building. When it was erected recently, to be used for the first time for the Play of 1930, the architect had to compromise between the progressive folk of the town who demanded a modern structure and the conservative thought of the community which pointed out that the production had always been given in the open air and should therefore continue thus to be staged.

The Passion Play opens with a scene in which Christ drives the traders from the temple and closes with His ascension. Parts of the drama proper are interspersed with tableaux from the Old Testament, foreshadowing the events of Passion Week or amplifying the theme of the main drama. Each tableau is preceded by the Prologue and chorus who, in verse and song, sound the note of the succeeding action and create an appropriate atmosphere. The gospel story is made quite human, without detracting from its sacred significance. Pontius Pilate becomes an understandable politician of those days while Judas is the impulsive, grasping nature which, too late, learns the terrible import of informing Sanhedrin officers where his Master is. Mayr is perhaps the most accomplished actor in the entire cast and as the Judas reveals with consummate art the tragedy of remorse. In their power to reveal the human qualities of Biblical characters some outstanding parts of the Play are the mob scene before the palace, Pilate where the populace demands the release of Barabbas and the leavetaking between Jesus and His mother prior to His departure for Jerusalem. After this scene, writes President Titworth, there were not many dry eyes in the audience.

NUMBER OF FARMS BY DELAWARE, 1930, 1925 AND 1920

The Director of the Census has announced the number of farms in Delaware. A farm, for census purposes, includes all the land which is directly farmed by one person, either by his own labor alone or with the assistance of members of his household, or hired employees. When a landowner has one or more tenants, renters, croppers, or managers, the land operated by each is considered a "farm." Any tract of land less than 3 acres used for agricultural purposes which produced products to the value of $250 in the preceding calendar year, is classed as a "farm."

The figures for 1930 are preliminary and subject to correction.

Counties	1930	1925	1920
New Castle	1,876	1,967	1,825
Kent	2,878	3,043	2,911

A CLEVER ANSWER

When the use of anaesthetics was first introduced in England, the clergy almost without exception, denounced it, saying the Lord wanted us to suffer and doctors had no right to make patients unconscious and free from pain while their legs were cut off. That was cheating the Lord.

A young Scotch doctor produced the right answer, advising clergymen to read in Genesis how "the Lord caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam" before he took out his ribs.

Since the Lord had operated on Adam, first making him unconscious, the young doctor said he had the right to do the same. He won.

ner, consisting of meat, several vegetables, stewed fruit and a dessert can be prepared at one time in the cooker in less than thirty minutes. Delicious brown breads, steamed puddings and fruit cakes can be cooked in a much shorter time by steam pressure. Tough cuts of meats, old fowls and tender vegetables are also cooked tender in a short time by this method. It is also an excellent way of cooking cereals which ordinarily require long cooking.

"The New Castle County Home Makers that have gotten steam pressure cookers this summer," continues the Home Demonstration Agent are: Mrs. William Peoples of Hockessin, Mrs. Horace Dennison of Hockessin, Mrs. Fred Trimble of Hockessin, Mrs. Leslie Woodward of Hockessin, Mrs. Eugene Minner of Middletown and Mrs. William Alfrey of Middletown.

Mrs. Daugherty requests any one desiring further information on the steam pressure cookers to write her at the University of Delaware Extension Service, Newark, Delaware.

NEWARK, Du PONT CLUBS DEADLOCKED

Two thirty-five men golf teams representing the du Pont Country Club and the Newark Country Club battled to a tie on the local course Saturday afternoon. Each team scored 46 points. Ed Ginter, local professional, defeated John Toomey, professional at the du Pont Club, scoring three points for his team. Three players tied for low score for the day at 76, they being J. P. Armstrong of the Newark Club and A. Linberger and J. A. Riley of the du Pont Club.

New Field Scout Executive for Delaware

Mr. J. Edgar Rhoads, President of the Wilmington Council, Boy Scouts of America, and Mr. Harry L. Cannon, Chairman of the State Committee, announce the appointment of Mr. Stanley M. Woodhead, as Field Executive for Delaware. Mr. Woodhead began active work September 1, and made his headquarters for the time being at Dover. The assignment of a Field Scout Executive for the lower part of the State is a part of the extension program of the Wilmington Council to make the program of scouting available to every boy in the entire State. Heretofore the Council's territory, except for mailing service to affiliated troops, has not extended below the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal.

The extension of territory and the employment of Mr. Woodhead have been made possible through the co-operation of a group of interested citizens living down-state, led by Harry L. Cannon, of Bridgeville. Mr. Cannon is chairman of the committee which last winter raised $3,431 among lower Delaware citizens to support the movement. Pledges of $2,500 a year for the next two years were also secured by Mr. Cannon and his committee. Later it is hoped to extend the territory of the Council to include portions of the Eastern Shore of Maryland where the Council has for several years maintained a mailing service to affiliated lone scouts, home and farm patrols and troops. This expansion program of the Wilmington Council is at the suggestion and under the guidance of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Mr. Woodhead taught high school at Laurel, Delaware, two years ago, and is well known to many Delawareans. He is now making a survey of the territory in the lower part of the State, studying its scouting strength, possibilities and needs, preliminary to inaugurating an effective organization and scout program. He will henceforth be available to assist, advise and in every way help the many fine Scoutmasters in lower Delaware who for many years past have been working under the handicap of being without help, though many have organized and maintained fine scout troops. These Scoutmasters are of the sincere, hardworking type of pioneer in the scouting field and except for the mailing service rendered by Wilmington Council under the direction of Amos R. Shields, Scout Executive, have been entirely on their own.

Mr. Woodhead was chosen for the field work from a long list of candidates because of his many fine qualifications. Although still a young man, he has been interested in the Scouting movement for twelve years. He started out as a Tenderfoot, became successively scribe, patrol leader, assistant scoutmaster and scoutmaster. He is a graduate of the Canton High School, Canton, Pa., and also of Penn State College, where in 1926 he received a B. S. degree. He majored in vocational education and was graduated as an honor student. After leaving Laurel he taught high school at Middleburg, Pa. He has just completed a course in scout executive work at Tarrytown, N. Y., obtaining highest rating of the class. During August he spent time at the Rodney Scout Camp with Mr. Shields, studying the work and policies of the Council.

While at camp Mr. Woodhead met many boys from down-state and made many friends. Three important phases of his work will be to bring scouting to the "lone scout" or scout living on a farm too far from a community, and other boys not near any organization or troop; second, to the "Home and Farm Patrol Scouts" for boys in localities where there are only a few homes; and third, to Community Troops, those already organized, and to aid in the organization of others. For information or assistance Mr. Woodhead should be addressed at Box 196, Dover, Delaware. With these three phases of work the program of scouting will be available to every boy.

The money raised by Mr. Cannon's committee will be entirely devoted to the promotion of scouting among the boys of lower Delaware. The supervision of Mr. Shields, the assistance of the Directors of the Troop Service and program departments, the Court of Honor awards, the clerical and other office-overhead of the Wilmington Headquarters will be given to building up scouting down state without any extra expense.

J. Edgar Rhoads, President of the Council, has named a committee of members of the Wilmington Council and representative citizens in lower Delaware to formulate plans for the extension work, to make the necessary changes in the charter and by-laws and to recommend a name for the enlarged Council expressive of the entire territory. Mr. Everett G. Ackart, Wilmington, is chairman. Other members are Mr. H. A. Cannon, Bridgeville; Charles W. Cullen, Georgetown; Harry V. Holloway, Dover; and Edward P. Bardo, Frank V. du Pont and former Governor Robert P. Robinson, all of Wilmington. The recommendations of the committee will be submitted at the annual meeting of the Council in January. The unique feature of this extension and expansion program is that it will be the only Scout Council in the county covering an entire state.

STANTON-NEWPORT ROAD TO BE CLOSED

Attention of automobilists is called by the Delaware Automobile Association, A. M. A., Wilmington, to the fact that the main road between Stanton and Newport will be closed until about December 1 while work of replacing the narrow iron bridge on the road with a new concrete bridge is under way.

Traffic will not be maintained around the construction and it will be necessary to detour traffic from Wilmington to Stanton by turning right at the traffic light in Newport on the concrete road out to the negro church, bearing left on this road past the Kiamensi Mills to the Kiamensi-Stanton road, turn left at this dead end and proceed on into Stanton. As part of this detour is dirt road, it would be advisable to make the detour as follows: turn right at Newport traffic light to Cranston Heights, turn left on the Lincoln Highway to Kiamensi road in Marshallton and follow Kiamensi road into Stanton. This is an all hard road detour.

FORTY-ONE COWS PRODUCED OVER 1,000 POUNDS OF MILK

Forty-one cows in the New Castle County Cow Testing Association produced over 1,000 pounds of milk each during the August testing period, while twenty-two gave over fifty pounds of butterfat each during the same month. Four hundred and ninety-four cows were on test during the month and produced 277,531 pounds of milk and 12,078.4 pounds of butterfat. The average cow produced 561.7 pounds of milk and 24.45 pounds of butterfat. All of these figures were taken from the monthly report of the association made by Frederick Sammendinger, Supervisor.

The ten highest herds in butterfat with their averages were: Frederick Stafford, Montchanin, 33.0; J. Wirt Willis, Glasgow, 32.8; Pusey Passmore, Wilmington, 31.8; J. H. Mitchell & Sons, Hockessin, 30.0; W. Lewis Phipps, Wilmington, 27.7; Wilson Price, Bear, 27.3; George Pierson, Hockessin, 26.5; Wallace Cook, Newark, 26.2; Fred Martenis, Elkton, 24.1; Bredablik Farm, Marshallton, 24.0.

The following are the ten highest herds in milk production for August: Frederick Stafford, Montchanin, 923.5; George Danby, Newark, 723.3; W. Lewis Phipps, Wilmington, 718.0; Pusey Passmore, Wilmington, 693.4; Fred Martenis, Elkton, 684.0; J. Wirt Willis, Glasgow, 624.0; James Smith, 600.5; Edgar Bishop, Warwick, 589.0; T. H. Little, Newark, 588.0; Wallace Cook, Newark, 587.7.

The ten highest cows in butterfat for August were in the herds of the following men: (1) Wallace Cook, Newark, Holstein, 81.6 pounds of fat; (2) Frederick Stafford, Montchanin, Holstein, 70.7; (3) J. Wirt Willis, Glasgow, Jersey, 67.2 pounds; (4) J. H. Mitchell & Sons, Hockessin, Holstein, 65.5 pounds; (5) J. Wirt Willis, Glasgow, Jersey, 65.0 pounds; (6) Wilson Pierson, Hockessin, Holstein, 64.2 pounds; (7) J. Wirt Willis, Glasgow, Jersey, 60.7 pounds; (8) John Govatos, Wilmington, Holstein, 58.9 pounds; (9) J. H. Mitchell & Sons, Hockessin, Jersey, 57.3 pounds; (10) Frederick Stafford, Montchanin, Holstein, 54.8 pounds.

Monday evening, September 28, we will have Prof. Ira S. Brinser with us. Prof. Brinser will give an address on Juniorism and the Public School. At this time we will hear of the plans of our new school, also the program as outlined for the school year. This should be a great night.

Let us continue to rally to our weekly sessions to continue these interesting and instructive sessions. We need to expect only to reap what we put in our Council. Take heed with serious thinking and get in the harness again for this great work.

A. Neal Smythe,
Chr. Pub. Com.

Brother C. W. Colmery gave the historical formation and growth of our Council. Brother A. N. Smythe spoke of the first Council organized in the Little Red School House, also dwelt on the history of our State Council. Past State Councilor H. F. Mote told of the work and our duty to the State Council. Prof. Ira S. Brinser expressed his confidence in the order and presented to our Past Councilor Morine a Past Councilor Jewel in words of advice to continue his great work.

Brother Morine responded in well-chosen words and assured the brothers he has only begun his work. After the session the members divided to play cards, quots and baseball.

Brother J. E. Lewis is getting his ball team in good trim and challenges any team for a series. Book your dates with Brother Lewis soon.

Chr. Pub. Com.

Brother C. W. Colmery gave the historical formation and growth of our Council. Brother A. N. Smythe spoke of the first Council organized in the Little Red School House, also dwelt on the history of our State Council. Past State Councilor H. F. Mote told of the work and our duty to the State Council. Prof. Ira S. Brinser expressed his confidence in the order and presented to our Past Councilor Morine a Past Councilor Jewel in words of advice to continue his great work.

Facts for Farm Folks

Written by
AGRICULTURAL AUTHORITIES

REDUCING THE COST OF PRODUCTION

By Prof. W. H. Krucek

There are three main avenues for the livestock farmer to widen his margin of profit, all of which leads to the question of reducing the cost of production. These three avenues are better breeding, better feeding and better housing.

It is rather a disappointment to find through the country and notice a large number of inferior animals on a great many of our farms. This is usually due to some extent to the fact that a great many inferior sires have been used. Even in the case of great many of our pure breeds, inferior pure breeds have been used and the feeder had thought largely that the breeding was all that was essential. A much greater effort should be made to prolong the usefulness of the sire and proven sires.

There are certain principles in the selection of a sire which as a rule are true. However, occasionally a sire may not meet these requirements and may still be a very prepotent sire and produce animals that are extremely valuable in the feed lots on the farm. The old saying that the proof of the pudding is in the eating can be well applied to the use of the sire upon the average breeding stock.

But good blood alone will not do the trick. Just because animals are pure bred or of good breeding does not mean that they will be profitable. Well bred animals only pay off and make the feeder profit when they also practice good feeding.

It is disappointing at times to think of the good messages that are distributed through the extension workers and through experiment station bulletins and then find that so few feeders are really taking advantage of this valuable information. A little more study of feeding problems in order that the production machines may work more efficiently would help to materially reduce the cost of production upon a great many livestock farms.

Employers, as a rule, do not keep profitable help very long. The lazy man or the loafer is usually eliminated. However, in a great many of our livestock herds loafers are very common. The good feeder must apply the principles of the man who employs labor. He must select his profitable breeding animals and eliminate his loafers. There is a great difference in the ability of certain brood sows to produce pigs. There is also a difference in the natural inherited ability of those pigs to grow. There is a great difference in the ability of certain hens to lay eggs. These are all very important in reducing the cost of production and widening the margin of profit.

The good feeder will give more serious thought to these problems. In periods such as the present time, it will do him much good and make him profit to weed out his lazy animals and his animals that do not transmit ability to mature and produce economically.

GETTING CHRISTMAS SEALS READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

The tiny Christmas seals, the receipts from the sale of which are used to promote the health of every one and to carry on educational work among the public, private and parochial schools of Delaware, and which will be distributed during the month of December, have already arrived at the headquarters of the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society, 911 Delaware avenue.

The seals, if placed end to end, would cover sixty miles, or from Wilmington to Dover and about fifteen miles below that city, or from this city to Philadelphia and return.

The design for this year's seal is an appealing one. It represents Santa Claus carrying a huge pack which is assumed to contain "Health to All."

Work has begun on the preparations for the distribution of the seals. The work of checking up on names and addresses is being followed consistently in order that the list may be as accurate as possible. There will be 20,000 letters issued containing the seals.

Miss Helen Thomson, executive secretary of the Society has arranged the following schedule of health project contests for 1930 and 1931.

Three sets of scales will be awarded as prizes at the end of each contest. The winner in each of the following classes will obtain these awards:

Class A—graded elementary schools (white); Class B—one- and two-room rural schools (white); and Class C—rural elementary schools (colored).

The closing dates of the contests are November 15, January 15, 1931, and March 15 and May 15.

The first contest will have as its objective "Safety," the second "Teeth," the third contest "Prevention of the Spread of Communicable Diseases," and the last contest "Rest and Sleep."

The projects will be judged for originality, neatness of material and actual benefits seemingly derived from their use. The projects must have been used in the class rooms for four consecutive weeks and a report made upon their use.

FASHION'S CRUELITIES

Of course Fashion is only a word for something men and women are responsible for. It is only man who can be cruel. Lions, tigers, wild beasts which prey upon one another or upon mankind are never cruel. They but act out the nature with which they were born and have no consciousness of violating any law of God or man when inflicting what we know as suffering. It's the human animal that says what shall or shall not be the fashion at any given hour or place, and fashion many times has no more heart than the tiger or lion. If there is money in wearing furs in summer, no matter if every fur about a woman's neck is stained with blood, there are found men and women who will make it fashionable to wear them, whatever the thermometer says. Makers of fashion years ago cared nothing about how many white herons were slaughtered during the season when their young were in the nest so long as aigrettes were "the style."

It was once the fashion to cut off the tails of horses. At horse shows you will still see some people, whose chief claim to respectability is their money, exhibiting docked-tailed horses. But for a multitude of people now to be "in style" with saddle horses they must have the horse's tail "set up." No man or woman with the least idea of grace or beauty can see anything but deformity in a horse made to travel about on a bridle path or in a show-ring with his tail shooting up into the air at right angles to his body. To produce this monstrosity tail muscles must be cut and the tail held up by a pulley till the wounds are healed, and even then, after the healing, the pulley must be resorted to, to keep the tail in fashionable (Heaven save the mark!) shape. If only those could own animals who really cared for them! If only makers of fashions that have to do with animals had hearts instead of mere pumping machines beneath their ribs!

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

WITH fruits and berries plentiful and cheap, and sugar selling at a price as low as we have seen in a generation, this is the ideal year for special activity in home preserving. Put up in attractively sealed and labeled glasses and jars, jams and jellies will make inexpensive and deeply appreciated Christmas gifts for friends and relatives when the Yule season rolls around.

A few juniper berries, obtainable at the drug store, placed in a frying pan that has been heated until very hot, will release aromatic fumes which will quickly drive the odor of cooking out of the house.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE

The closing exercises of the annual Freshman Week activities at Washington College and at the same time the first religious service of the forthcoming academic year will be addressed by Dr. Robert L. Kelly, former president of Earlham College in Indiana and now executive secretary of the Council of Church Boards of Education and secretary of the Association of American Colleges. He is one of the outstanding educational statesmen of the day and the general public has been invited to hear him. It was announced today by Dr. Frederick G. Livingood, director of Freshman Week. Dr. Kelly will speak at a college vesper service at three o'clock Sunday afternoon, September 21.

Freshman Week, which will open at one o'clock September 16, is an annual college activity at the Chestertown institution conducted with a view to initiating the incoming student into the mechanical side of college life and the workings of college organizations generally, to acquaint him with the ideals of the Eastern Shore college, to introduce him to his fellow-freshmen before upperclassmen arrive on the scene, to bridge the gap between his high school days when he has had things thought out for him and college life where he will become his own master and must think and decide for himself and to help him tide over the period between leaving home and family and living the college life and to aid him in acclimating himself to changed conditions and surroundings, said Dr. Livingood.

Every hour of the day will be devoted to some interesting activity and at night a series of receptions and entertainments will be given by college organizations and student groups. Addresses will be made by college officials and by student organization heads in order to acquaint freshmen with all phases of college life and with the workings of each college department and student activity. There will also be academic tests in important subjects, physical training periods, campus problem discussions and library throughout the week's program. In order to take part in the week's activities upperclassmen who are heads of important college organizations will return to Chestertown for Freshman Week. Dr. William R. Howell, registrar of the college, announced that a large number of applications for admission to the college is being received from high school graduates of the Eastern Shore and elsewhere.

CANNERS BILL NOT EFFECTIVE UNTIL NEXT SEASON

New standards by the Department of Agriculture under the authority of the "canners' bill" amending the Federal food and drugs act will not apply to this season's pack, according to a statement issued this week by W. G. Campbell, director of regulatory work. Delaware canners were among those who attended hearings when the and supported the general purpose of canners' bill was under consideration, the legislation, which was the protection of consumer-buyers of canned

One effect of the bill will be to encourage the consumption of products not of the first quality but nevertheless wholesome and fit for use.

At present, the department experts are engaged in the formulation of standards for some of the staple products. Material progress has been made in the preparation of tentative drafts of standards for tomatoes, corn, peas, string beans, peaches, apricots, apples, pears and cherries. Before these standards have been fully decided upon, the canners of the country will be asked to attend public hearings and give their views.

CERTIFICATE OF REDUCTION OF CAPITAL OF TRI-NATIONAL TRADING CORPORATION

ADOPTED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 28 OF THE GENERAL CORPORATION LAW OF THE STATE OF DELAWARE.

WE, MORITZ ROTHENBERGER, President, and HARVEY T. MANN, Secretary, of TRI-NATIONAL TRADING CORPORATION, a corporation existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, do hereby certify under the seal of said corporation as follows:

FIRST. That a written consent to the reduction of capital of said TRI-NATIONAL TRADING CORPORATION has been signed by the holders of record of a majority of the total number of shares of said corporation outstanding and having voting powers.

SECOND. That the consent as signed reads as follows:

"We, the undersigned, being holders of the capital stock of TRI-NATIONAL TRADING CORPORATION, do hereby consent that the amount of capital represented by sixty thousand (60,000) shares of stock without par value of this corporation, issued and outstanding, be reduced by Four Hundred and Eighty Thousand ($480,000.) Dollars so that hereafter the amount of capital represented by the shares of stock without par value of this corporation, issued and outstanding, to wit, sixty thousand (60,000) shares, shall be One Hundred and Twenty Thousand ($120,000.) Dollars; that the number of shares without par value issued and outstanding will not be reduced but shall remain the same as heretofore." Provided, however, that the amount represented by 60,000 shares of no par value shall not exceed that part of the capital represented by such shares pursuant to the provisions of Section 14 of the General Corporation Laws.

THIRD. That the assets of the corporation remaining after such reduction of capital are sufficient to pay any debts of said corporation, payment of which has not otherwise been provided for.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we, MORITZ ROTHENBERGER, President, and HARVEY T. MANN, Secretary, of TRI-NATIONAL TRADING CORPORATION, have signed this certificate and caused the corporate seal of the corporation to be hereunto affixed this 19th day of August, 1930.

IMPORTANT LEGISLATION AFFECTING SERVICE MEN

Legislation passed by Congress during the past year is of interest to local World War service men. The passing of the Hawley Act validated belated applications for adjusted compensation or bonus, and extended the time of application to 1935. It also liberalized the provisions relating to beneficiaries of Adjusted Compensation certificates.

World War service men suffering from disabilities which they are unable to prove to be due to war service will be entitled this year to "disability allowance" of from $12 to $40 a month under the terms of the Johnson Act, which was passed in the final hours of the last Congress and signed by President Hoover. Disability allowances are payable only to men who entered service before November 11, 1918 and served at least ninety days during the World War. Payment will not be made to Veterans who paid federal income tax for the year preceding filing of application for allowance. The disability must exist to a disabling degree of at least 25 per cent. The disability covered by this act may be from any cause not connected with the war service, except wilful misconduct.

Another important act is the amendment to the insurance section of the existing law by which a new form of disability payments is allowed. Heretofore Government policies provided for disability payments in case of total and permanent disability and the face value of the policy was decreased by the amount of total and permanent disabilities payments made. The new law provides that where a veteran has been totally disabled for a period of four months he shall be entitled to a total disability payment, starting with the fifth month, of $5.75 for each $1,000 of insurance carried and that these payments shall not decrease the face value of the policy. This new insurance benefit will only be added to a policy upon application by the policy-holder and payment of an added premium.

For further information regarding these legislations, or application blanks for making requests for benefits under these acts, communicate with A. E. Tomhave, Service Office of the local American Legion Post.

My Ships That Sail on Every Sea

"The Adriatic, harnessed bronze gleaming in the sunset, and a flicker of red sail far away."

So answered my friend when, after a long silence between us I asked, "How did you ever come to write this book?"

We sat alone in a quiet room at the top of a tall building. For an hour or more I had listened while he read in vibrant tones from an epic narrative of ancient days recaptured from a few ruins in stone, from fragments of legend, from his imagination and the sea.

"It was just after the war," he explained eagerly, "and I was driving with a friend along the Italian coast when suddenly my companion exclaimed, 'The Adriatic!' It was that glimpse of the sea of epic story and epic deeds which moved me in a way I could not understand. I hurried back to the city and began to explore the history of human traffic with those waters. For seven years I have done little else, and out of it all has come this story."

I could find no words to voice my wonder. I could only nod my head slowly, understandingly. As my eyes wandered toward the window, time and place melted away. A square of gray sky was the sea. The dim sounds of the city far below somewhere were the muffled boom of breakers on a far shore.

The sea and a single sail. Though I had not voyaged with him up and down the Mediterranean in the paths of Ulysses and the Greek heroes, I understood. Did there not rush forth from memory my own countless voyages on which the merest glimpse of the sea had often sped me? I have sailed in the rude dugouts of prehistoric men who lifted a bit of shaggy hide on a pole to catch the fitful wind and pushed off into the unknown with wondering urge. I have sailed with Jason and the Greek adventures; in trim Roman triremes; with Viking rovers through the northern tempests; with the discoverers of the New World, with Drake and Raleigh, with Yankee clipper merchantmen around the Horn, and on the floating cities of the modern turbine age. Nor do I refuse to sail in any craft afloat. A rusty tramp freighter, a dingy tanker rolling deep in the trough of the waves, a lattered fishing smack along any coast—all are the same to me. As Socrates once declared, "Hold a book before me and you may lead me over Attica," so do I say, "Show me a mast rising from any hull against the sky and I will sail over the world." And every ship I see is an argosy in which I bring back treasure.

"O we can wait no longer, We too take ship, O soul, Joyous we launch out on trackless seas . . ."

Passage to more than India! O secret of the earth and sky! Of you, O waters of the sea . . . Cut the hawsers—haul out—shake out every sail!

Sail forth—steer for the deep waters only. O my brave soul! A farther sail! O daring joy but safe! are they not all the seas of God? O farther, farther, farther sail!"

Yes, even a glimpse from the road through a break in the trees will open up for me vistas which cleave time and space. A spring is suddenly released in my imagination. By some miracle my thought leaps forth over the deep with strange liberty. Not only do I enjoy the most abundant freedom of the seas, but a vision of the boundless influence which the great waters bear upon humanity's experience. I divine how the contours of coasts carve the destinies of nations and fashion the intimate ways of civilization. I understand how the men who hold the helms of ships steer the course of whole peoples. No naval expert (to be quite contemporary), I see why the reduction of great navies today becomes a major problem in preserving peace on the earth.

Just as keenly do I enter into the pulsing motions of other men who in any time have found enduring voice for the spell cast by the sea upon them. I thrill with the inspired apostrophe of the old Roman sailor who cried, "O Neptune, you may save me if you will, you may sink me if you will, but whatever happens I will keep my rudder true." Almost daily a ml moved with the familiar yet ever freshly ringing call of Tennyson's Ulysses:—

"Come, my friends, 'Tis not too late to seek a newer world, Push off, and sitting well in order smite The sounding furrows; for my purpose holds To sail beyond the sunset, and the baths Of all the western stars."

I understand how Bryon could explain:—

"The mountains look on Marathon, And Marathon looks on the sea; And dreaming there an hour alone, I dreamed that Greece might still be free."

Sometimes it is my good fortune actually to embark for that passage, which is always thrilling adventure to me, to the lands across the great Atlantic. And every moment on the deck of this little moving world is a moment of inexpressible joy. Here for me as for countless other men is the place for that reflection which wings through the unseen. To have voyagers' thoughts—what greater adventure can experience hold?

"The sky overarches here: we feel the undulating deck beneath our feet;

We feel the long pulsating ebb and flow of endless motion.

The tones of unseen mystery, the vague and vast suggestions of the bring world, the liquid-flowing syllables. . . .

The boundless vista and the horizon far and dim are all here. . . ."

All too short are these hours. For here, through the day and all through the night, no matter what companions surround us, we move through the mystery alone.

Yet how close to human kind am I brought! In a solitary corner of the top deck I relive the voyages of all men on a thousand vessels now throbbing through the waves of every sea. I share the varied motives of trade, pleasure and adventure which send them forth, and through each of these impulses I enter into a part at least of their total experience. Is it not a marvel that the vast ocean wastes which separate peoples with so formidable barriers unite them in sympathies shared by all? And that in this floating home in which for days we shut ourselves from all the world we find sudden insight into so many ways of human experience.

The marvel I cannot explain. Yet I know it is so. Within this limitless circle of ever-fading horizon day after day the whole circle of human life on the planet seems to be drawn, and to become visible. And not only the life at this moment, but something of all that a single imagination can conjure up from the records of centuries. Such is the boundless intimate community of experience wondrously encompassed by that horizon which girdles a single ship on the deep.

Only a few days ago I renewed these rich impressions on a voyage from a northern to a southern port. All the way (although out of sight of land) we were entertained by radio programs from stations along the coast. So by contiguous bright waves of music were we bound to millions of fellow beings on shore. But the waves of the sea were enough for me. Give me once a deck beneath my feet and I step into a hall of enchantment echoing with voices of many men in many ages, and surrounded with magic mirrors which reach out and catch reflections of their doings.

But I need not actually set foot on a ship to share in this wondrous communion. Here in my rocky shelter on the shore, day after day through many summers, I have caught the same voices and seen the same visions rising from the sea lying before me. From here I can sail on the many ships that constantly pass and on the invisible fleets in other waters. From here the unheating, unresting tide brings me the many voices. And as it ebbs they bear me forth among many peoples past and present.

They bring me, too, the voices of the countless poets and most of all the strains of the English bards who have sung of every mood and every deed upon the sea. In these strains is borne to me the manifold meaning of all that men have felt and lived in the presence of the deep waters.

Not strange then my ever-deepening content with sight and sound of these swaying tides. Nor strange my quick response to that friend's emotion at the mere glimpse of the Adriatic in the sunset glow. Here on my shore, which I watch at this moment, is the haven to which come at last all ships on which he sailed and all ships sailed by mariners true on every sea.

If you are a bird-lover and are entering the pine country your first time you are almost certain to experience a delightful find. A song will greet you that will remind you of the chirping sparrow's tremulous chant. Yet you will know at once that it is not the same. The trilling melody, ringing in the clean, rosy air, will be sweeter than the chirping sparrow's song. It will be wilder, freer; more in keeping with the solemn forest's spicy isles and sun-flecked vistas.

You will then get fleeting glimpses of him. His yellowish-brown body will be in movement among the pine boughs—not fitfully, not nervously—but with an altogether charming unhesitantness; a graceful gleamer among the evergreen tufts. And as you watch him, he, not visibly pausing, will send forth his trilling melody again and again. This singer in the pungent plumage is the pine warbler.

Perhaps there is no bird more fittingly named than he, for, except during migration, he is never found other than where the pine is. He feeds among the pines; he breeds among the pines. From birth he is at home when in the pines, and is away from home and in strange surroundings when in any other woods. His breeding range covers broadly the pine domains from the Gulf of Mexico northward into southern Canada. He winters in the sun-touched pineries of the states of the South.

The business of where he winters sets him decidedly apart. He is the only member of the vast warbler family that winters in the interior of the United States. Some four or five of the more than forty species which breed in the United States and Canada leave a few, a very few, of their fellows in Florida or along the Gulf Coast. The Antilles, Central America, South America claim the vast warbler multitudes. Not so the pine warbler. It seems well agreed that he sends no individual of his beyond the blue seas. The pines of the southern United States supply his every winter want. From the Atlantic to east-central Texas; from southern Illinois to the Gulf; then, with the spreading northward until his song trills in the pine woods from the Gulf to beyond the Great Lakes. Aside from the fact that his nesting range laps over into Canada, he remains at all times within our borders. We, therefore, may rightfully claim the pine warbler for our own.

In the sun-lit Ouachita hills (Arkansas) the pine warbler is abundant, the year round—and more abundant in winter than in summer. The region is not only a breeding spot; it is a vacation ground for many new arrivals that stop in the fall migrations to abide the winter in these wooded, low-lying steeps.

He begins housekeeping early in the pine-scented Ouachita hills; is busy with nest and nestlings before the northward movement of most migratory birds is fairly under way. It is not easy to find his compact nest. High up in the pine, sometimes more than forty feet above ground, the cup-shaped structure is tucked away in a knot of clustering pine needles; hidden the observer is apt to think, all too well.

But the reward of finding the nest is worth even an extended search; and when you have had the good fortune to examine several of them you will conclude that there not infrequently is a pine warbler who has the soul of an artist and the courage to let the world know it. Some of the nests will be capriciously decorated with bright feathers—twinkling jewels of nests in settings of living green!

Nor are the pine warblers slaves of sameness in the matter of egg coloration. While their eggs are of uniform size and color background (gray-white) the markings pronouncedly vary—spots, few or many, of amber, lavender, brown.

As winter nears the pine warbler may overcome his strictly arboreal instincts and condescend to put his feet on the ground. He has abided, spring and summer, amid the live pine needles, he now would know the feel of dead pine needles—that coffee-brown covering that forever carpets the floor of his forest. Berries of the neighborly dogwood, seed of the flaming sumac he adds to his bill of fare. These and other berries contiguous to the conifers, together with insect larvae and the ever-present pine seeds—what wonder the pine warbler scorns the tropics!

Here is the green-crowned Ouachita, the pine warbler sings practically the entire year; and it is the appealing charm of his ringing notes, enlivening the somber seasons, that constitutes his chief allure.

In early autumn I trilled up a valley that had ceased to be a valley. The lofty ridges, converging, had rowed the valley to a steep slope which in turn ended against a steep valley, the ravine, the hill slope, clothed with hickory, oak and maple, being the whitish soil of the pine land. And pines grew there, growing dense, towering, majestic.

Entering this evergreen realm was greeted by strains of ringing notes; pine warblers were singing from all points of the forest, before had I heard so many warblers singing as once. Never have I heard such a pine warbler chorus.

It was one of those rare moments to which the mind never tires of turning. The slight breeze stirred live and breathe; the vacuum cushioning the earth; tree below, innumerable, the pine needles, piquant pine-needle scent; the just ble purr of the times like drying of a far-off sea; and, dominating the light-hearted lift of song, many, many warblers trilling an everlasting green.

Since that day the pine warbler most invariably brings to me a memory and a wish: memory of the bluff's top and its sounding pine and the wish that the place I have found might remain forever a spoiled place; forever a place of primeval pines and pine warblers; forever a place of madrigals—L. A. Hodges, a Dumb Animals.
