Two New Courses At University Of Delaware Summer School

Prof. W. A. Wilkinson Is Again Director; Session Starts Monday

Two new courses will be added to the University of Delaware summer school, Prof. W. A. Wilkinson, head of the education department and director of the session, announced recently. A number of new members have been added to the faculty for the six-week period which starts Monday.

New courses are in home economics and racial relations, the first time that they have been taught at Delaware during the summer. There will be two of the courses in home economics. One will be "helps available for consumers; how to use and evaluate advertising, and other commercial material; government aids for consumers; a study of how to buy." Particular attention will be paid to problems met in teaching consumer education in the high schools.

The new courses in racial relations "aim to survey and analyze American race relations. Consideration is given to the problems arising from the presence of such groups as the Negro, the Indian, the Oriental."

Doing Special Work
Now doing some special work at Columbia University, Miss Alice Edwards, who will have charge of one of the courses in home economics, is a member of the President's Advisory Committee on Education. She was formerly dean of home economics at Rhode Island State College. Mrs. Mildred Inskip Morgan, a graduate of Kansas University, will be the other instructor in that subject.

Other new members of the faculty, in addition to new ones from the University of Delaware, are Norman S. Burdett, Smith College, who will teach geography; Dr. Joseph H. Macdonald, Thiel College, who will teach speech in the English department; and Miss Mary T. Scudder, who will teach English guidance.

From 300 to 400 will register in the school which will close July 29 and most of these will be teachers in the public schools of the state. There is no admission charge to residents of the state.

BATTERY CONCERN PROSPECT

Philadelphia Company May Come Here

Harassed by unsettled labor conditions and mounting tax difficulties, another Philadelphia concern, the Price Battery Company, is considering Newark as a site for a new plant, it was announced at the June meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday night at the Deer Park Hotel.

According to officials of the chamber, there is a strong possibility that the concern will locate here, all other sites having been eliminated except one in Connecticut. Negotiations have been carried on for several months and a decision is expected soon.

While no factory building of sufficient size is obtainable on a rental basis here at the present time, it is said that the concern is considering the construction of a new building to cost around $200,000.

Two Plants Operated

Manufacturers of storage batteries and spark plugs, the Price company operates a plant in Philadelphia employing 200 people on the average. Another plant is operated in Louisville, Kentucky, where 150 people are employed.

If the proposed plant becomes a reality there is a strong possibility that all operations will be concentrated here, Chamber of Commerce officials stated.

Members attending the meeting Monday night were: President George F. Jackson, Herman Handloff, secretary; Meyer Plinick, George Danby, and Robert J. Boyd, directors.

Drive For Collections

With twenty-three members having failed to pay their dues for 1938 and numerous business houses still owing money for the Christmas street lighting, mercantile show, and mid-winter dollar days, a concerted drive has been launched by the chamber for the collection of all outstanding accounts.

Preliminary plans were discussed for the holding of mid-summer dollar days on August 2 and 3. Unable to serve as chairman of the forthcoming cooperative sales event, a position he has held since the chamber was reorganized last year, Meyer Plinick, due to the condition of his health, will act in an advisory capacity. Charles H. Rutledge was named temporary chairman of the committee at the May meeting.

Investigate Solicitors

All local merchants, business men, manufacturers, and professional men, whether members of the Chamber of Commerce or not, will be asked to cooperate in a plan to eliminate the solicitation of funds by people and organizations from outside of Newark, except those which have been investigated and can prove their right to seek donations.

Excepting local and neighboring churches, fraternal organizations, and other community enterprises that are established and well known, the chamber plans a close check on all solicitations by outsiders.

Business men and merchants are being victimized in increasing numbers by unknown and unwarranted solicitors, the chamber claims, and a cooperative movement to eliminate the evil is planned.

Lesson for June 19

THE SUFFERING SERVANT

LESSON TEXT—Mark 15:22-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many. Mark 10:45.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Wonderful Love.
JUNIOR TOPIC—On Calvary.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Self-Sacrifice for Others.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Love's Supreme Sacrifice.

"A Christianity without a dying Christ is a dying Christianity. History shows us that the expansive and elevating power of the Gospel depend upon the promise given to the sacrifice of the Cross. An old fable says that the only thing that melts adamant is the blood of a lamb. The Gospel reveals the precious blood of Jesus Christ, his death for us as a ransom, as the one power that subdues hostility and binds hearts to Him" (Alexander MacLaren).

We consider today that darkest of all days in the history of the world—when wicked men with cruel hearts and hands crucified the loving Son of God. But, thanks be to God, it was also the day when bright hope shone forth for sinful humanity, for in His death Christ bore our sins upon the tree, the veil was rent, the old sacrifices were set aside, and the "new and living way" was opened into the "holiest by the blood of Jesus" (Heb. 10:20).

The cross is not just an ornament to decorate the steeple of a church, or to adorn man. It speaks of the black horror of the cry, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" but it also tells of our God who "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son" as its Redeemer.

I. Crucified—That We Might Live (vv. 22-23).

The details of the circumstances surrounding the crucifixion are of deep interest to every Christian. We stand with Luther and weep as we see Christ's unspeakable agony, not only of body but of spirit, and we cry as did Luther, "For me, for me!" How can any believer contemplate the cross and withhold self, substance, or service from Christ?

Equally earnest and heart-searching is the message of the cross to the unbeliever. He knows he is a sinner (Rom. 3:23); he knows that "the wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23); and he knows that "neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12). Here, at the cross he meets that one "who his own self bore our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness; by whose stripes ye were healed" (1 Pet. 2:24). There were two malefactors who were crucified with Him, and one rallied at Him. The other said, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom"; and Jesus said to him, "Today thou shalt be with me in Paradise" (Luke 23:39-43). Unbeliever, who reads these lines, will you not just now take the eternal life which Jesus died to make possible for you?

II. Forsaken—That We Might Be Accepted (vv. 29-30).

The railing, head wagging, and other abuse that men heaped upon Jesus as He hung on the cross, must have been a grievous thing for His tender loving heart to bear. But it was as nothing compared with that hour when, covered with all the sin and curse of the world, He who knew no sin "was made sin for us" (1 Cor. 5:21), and God turned away from Him.

We cannot fathom the full meaning of that hour, we dare not attempt to explain it, we can only accept it and thank God that because He did become sin for us we may be "made the righteousness of God in Him" (11 Cor. 5:21). He died that we might live. He was forsaken that we might be "accepted in Him"—"the beloved" (Eph. 1:6).

III. A Veil Rent—That We Might Enter (vv. 37-39).

The death of Jesus was not the pitiful weakening of a human martyr. Here was the Son of God, crying with a loud voice (v. 37), giving up His spirit to the Father (Luke 23:46), declaring that the work of redemption was "finished."

As a visible indication of that part—and as a declaration that the old dispensation of law had given place to the dispensation of grace, God tore the temple veil in twain. Only He could have done it. No man could have torn this sixty-foot-long, twenty-foot wide, and inch-thick curtain from top to bottom. It had hung in the temple to keep all but the High Priest out of the Holy of Holies, and he entered with fear and trembling but once a year as the representative of the people. Now all this is changed. We have now, "brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us, through the veil." Therefore, "let us draw near with a true heart and full assurance of faith" (Heb. 10:19-22).

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH INTENSIFIES FIGHT ON SUMMER DISEASES

INFANT DEATHS REDUCED DURING LAST 15 YEARS

Diarrhea And Enteritis Are Object Of Concerted Drive; Cleaning And Boiling Of Utensils Urged As Prevention

Since most of the gains in the fight against infant deaths in Delaware during the last fifteen years have been due to lessening of losses from diarrhea and enteritis, the State Board of Health is now laying plans to combat, even more actively, these twin scourges of the very young during the coming summer months, it was announced today by Dr. Arthur C. Jost, executive secretary of the board.

Intensive Campaign

Diarrhea, while one of the most serious diseases of early childhood, is prevented simply by proper feeding and proper handling of an infant's food. Since the disease usually reaches its peak during the months of July and August, the State Board of Health has decided to devote considerable attention, during this period, to an intensive campaign to educate mothers in the proper care and feeding of their infants to prevent the disease. This educational campaign will be carried on through the newspapers, visits of nurses to homes, and through instructions in a free pamphlet offered by the board.

The pamphlet gives complete instructions for precautions necessary to prevent diarrhea, or "summer complaint," as well as steps to be taken to prevent loss of life after it has developed.

Protection From Flies

It recommends that bodily excreta be protected from flies, and that homes be screened to exclude them; that garbage be placed in a fly-proof can, and that the ground surrounding the can be kept clean at all times. To prevent flies breeding therein, manure from barns should be spread thinly over the fields at least twice a week, and preferably each day.

Safe milk and water for the home is important, and where possible, grade "A" pasteurized milk should be secured. Water and unpasteurized milk, to be given to children under two years of age, should first be boiled, and then kept covered and cold until ready for use. If ice or electric refrigeration is not available, the pamphlet advises, fluids may be kept in a pail of frequently changed water. Cool, previously boiled water should be given the child approximately every two hours during warm weather.

Cleaning And Boiling

All bottles, pans, nipples, and utensils should be cleaned and boiled, and hands washed thoroughly, each time before preparing the child's food. The kind and amount of food prescribed by the physician should be given regularly and at the times advised.

Anyone having diarrhea should be kept carefully away from the child, and all his soiled diapers should be placed immediately in a covered pail containing some antiseptic solution, preferably strong soap suds. The pail should be kept covered at all times to exclude flies; during the laundering process the diapers should always be boiled.

In case diarrhea occurs and it is not possible to obtain a physician immediately, the pamphlet advises, all foods should be discontinued, cooled, boiled water forced every hour, and the child kept in a cool, airy, screened room. In cases where vomiting occurs, water should be given, at first, in amounts so small as not to provoke it.

Discontinue Foods

When it is impossible to consult a physician, it is advised that all foods be discontinued, and that no feeding, either breast or bottle, be given for at least twenty-four hours. Cool, boiled water should be forced every hour or more often, giving at least three pints in twenty-four hours. Cool, boiled water should be forced every hour or more often, giving at least three pints in twenty-four hours; no medicine should be given by way of the mouth, and the patient should be kept in a cool, airy room that is well screened from flies, and kept covered with mosquito netting while asleep; he should be isolated from contact as far as possible; when feverish, he may be given frequent sponge baths with cool water; all excreta should be buried with a small amount of lime, or discarded into a flush toilet which should be kept clean at all times.

After the third day, he should be allowed to go back to his regular diet very slowly, if the diarrhea has ceased or greatly improved, by giving him very small feedings and increasing them as he responds to the treatment. Continue to force fluids throughout the period of convalescence, and if relapse occurs and stools become loose again, return to fluids and starvation diet for twenty-four hours and increase food slowly as stools would indicate.

The pamphlet concludes with a warning that persistent vomiting or continued loss of fluid by bowels is a sign of grave danger and should receive attention of a physician or hospital at once, and that every effort be made by the parents to consult their family physician immediately when the child develops diarrhea.

Shelley never wore an overcoat even in the coldest weather. He wore his waistcoat open and his throat bare.

Edward Fitzgerald, translator of the "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam," wore bedroom slippers on the street and a handkerchief tied over his hat and under his chin.

There's such a gracious softness about it, this afternoon dress with full sleeves, straight skirt, and high-in-front waistline, and all these smart details have a decidedly slimming effect. Gathers create a becoming fullness over the bust. Besides, 8188 is one of those satisfying fashions, simple enough for general wear, and formal enough for afternoons at the club or bridge table.

Pattern 8188 should be made up in plant materials like chiffon, georgette or silk crepe in plain colors or small flower prints. Pattern 8188 is designed for sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4 1/4 yards of 39 inch material.

PATTERN 8193

Maybe this wing-shouldered dress won't make your young hopeful act like an angel, but it will make her look like one!

Materials suggested: Printed percale, dimity, gingham, lawn and organdy.

Dr. L. A. Stearns Offers Plan For Trapping Beetles On Lawn

Entomologist Suggests Use Of Soil Treatments And Spraying

To trap or not to trap is the question which arises each year as the Japanese beetle season approaches. The answer is both YES and NO, says Dr. L. A. Stearns, head of the Department of Entomology at the University of Delaware.

"In heavily infested areas such as northern Delaware, trapping cannot be substituted for the more expensive soil treatments and spraying as control measures," Dr. Stearns pointed out. "Neither is it effective or practical for the protection of fruit and vegetable crops," he said. "Traps used in this area may actually attract more beetles to their vicinity because of the odor of the bait."

In the areas where the beetles are relatively scarce but still a problem, Dr. Stearns said that traps could be used to lessen the danger to flowers, ornamental shrubs, and shade trees.

Kind of Trap-Location

The right kind of trap—correctly baited in the right place and at the right time is essential for success in trapping the Japanese beetles. A trap developed by the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, which is manufactured under a public patent, is the most effective for this purpose. It consists of a six-inch metal baffle placed above a seven-and-one-half-inch metal funnel with a perforated metal bait container soldered to the center of the baffle. A glass jar is screwed to the lower end of the funnel to catch the beetles that fall when attracted by the scent of the bait.

Because Japanese beetles have a marked preference for light green outside and glossy white inside catch the most beetles.

Liquid-Solid Baits

The bait consists of a mixture of two odorless substances, geraniol and eugenol, which are present in some of the beetles' most favored food plants. These substances, prepared synthetically, are sold at comparatively low prices by chemical supply houses and by trap manufacturers.

Sixteen of the 19 homemakers who enrolled in a course in home hygiene have completed the work which was given by Miss Marguerite Higgins, of the American Red Cross.

Kate H. Henley Daugherty, county home demonstration agent, who arranged for the course, stated that interest in the work never lagged.

Those who attended were taught simple bedside nursing, how to take temperatures, pulse, respiration, how to bathe the patient, how to change soiled and soiled linens, and how to make comfortable. They were also instructed about communicable diseases, disinfectants, sterilization, good habits and nutrition.

Mrs. Daugherty is now making arrangements with Mrs. Marguerite McVaugh, of the American Red

GRADES BY PROXY

This is the season of school and college examinations, and the question of student honesty is under discussion again. It is an old problem, that of preventing cheating by those who are willing to resort to the practice in order to make their grades.

The concern of teachers over this problem may have been heightened for those who have read a recent article in Scribner's, written by a student at the University of Kansas, who tells of giving aid to backward classmates in the past.

Among other incidents, he relates one in which he played the role of "ghost writer" in preparing a term book report for 12 of the 14 members of a certain class. This goes considerably beyond the practice of ordinary cribbing, whereby various data are secretly carried into the examination room by dishonest students in an effort to avoid failure.

It also raises the question of whether it is not as reprehensible for a bright student to aid a lazy or dull one as it is for the incompetent to accept such aid. There seems to be no doubt that one is as dishonest as the other.

It seems impossible to entirely eradicate cheating in examinations, but the practice carries its own penalty for those who indulge in it. They suffer from loss of self respect; they handicap themselves at the very beginning of their careers, and inevitably weaken whatever of moral character they may have originally possessed. Like the commission of more serious offenses, it doesn't pay.

WOMEN ON WAR

A nation-wide survey of women conducted by the "Ladies' Home Journal" last week revealed that more than one-third (thirty-six per cent) of the women in the United States would rather see their sons go to jail than to war; that among women under thirty, this is the preference of forty-two per cent.

While eighty-eight per cent feel that no overseas war is justified, sixty-four per cent feel that war is justifiable on occasion, and eighty-seven per cent regard invasion of the United States or its possessions as such an invasion.

Seventy per cent think the United States should never have entered the World War, sixty-four per cent believe that Wall Street bankers were chiefly responsible for getting the nation in, ninety-one per cent do not think it made the world safe for democracy; eighty-seven per cent oppose lending money, sending munitions or supplies to nations at war; eighty-four per cent oppose fighting for our commercial interests abroad; fifty-six per cent do not think we will be involved in war soon; but if we are, eighty-one per cent favor limiting profits, fifty-nine per cent favor limiting wages.—MARCH OF TIME Weekly Newsfeature.

A LONG REST NEEDED

What business and industry needs at the hands of the government is not merely a "breathing spell," but a good long rest from paralyzing legislation and bureaucratic control, in the opinion of a large majority of big and little business men alike.

So far, however, it appears that there is little prospect of relief from the heavy burden of taxation and excessive regulation which have contributed largely to the new depression.

In no industry has the harassment of government been more disastrous than in the public utility field, where vast sums from the Federal treasury have been devoted to destructive competition with privately owned facilities. This subsidized government competition has prevented the expenditure of at least two billion dollars for extension and betterments by private companies, according to leaders of the industry.

The administration's power policy has been condemned by economists generally, and even Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve System, recently asserted that all the benefits which might be claimed for the government's investment in power could not begin to compensate the public for the losses sustained through hamstringing the private electric industry.

Until a definite change in the administration's attitude toward business and industry occurs, there seems to be little hope for any permanent improvement in the economic situation.

Not long ago we saw a young man playing a marble game. He stayed with it until he had spent all the money he had with him. His own money. His own business of course. But forty years from now he will be asking some hard working, thrifty person to dig up a part of his wages in taxes so that the fool spendthrift may have an old age pension that he doesn't deserve.

One of the difficulties in framing a farm bill is found in the fact that a considerable number of farmers do not want the government to have anything to say about how they will farm, yet desire that the government shall guarantee good prices and good markets and good crops. All of which cannot be done without some measure of control some place along the line.

A simple recipe to keep well happy; stay out of debt and don't worry. If you are out of debt you shouldn't worry, hence reduced to its simplest terms the recipe is; stay out of debt.

Toland was made an honorary member of Delta Kappa Alpha, whose members include the students of motion picture arts, six months ago, and plans to speak before the classes several times throughout the school year.

Toland commences work photographing the new Goldwyn picture, "The Lady and the Cowboy" starring Gary Cooper and Merle Oberon within a few days, and will entertain the class members at the studio where they will gain first-hand knowledge of the subject.

State Theatre House Notes

Friday and Saturday

A romance between a handsome young aviator, whose airplane is wrecked on a lonely South Sea island, and an untamed native girl, who has never before laid eyes on a white man, forms the story of "Her Jungle Love," the new Paramount Technicolor production.

Ray Milland and Dorothy Lamour head the cast, making their first appearance together since "Jungle Princess," in which they scored so sensationally a season ago. Probably no two stars in Hollywood are more often associated with tropical romance than Milland and Miss Lamour, he having recently appeared in "Ebb Tide" and she in "Hurricane." In "Her Jungle Love" they are assisted by a cast of popular players, including Lynne Overman, who wisecracked his way through "Night Club Scandal."

"Her Jungle Love" marks a continuation of the experiment, which brought such success in "Ebb Tide," of using Technicolor to bring out all the exotic charm and beauty of a tropical background. But where "Ebb Tide" took place mostly aboard ship, the setting of "Her Jungle Love" is exclusively a lush South Sea island which affords perfectly adapted material for color photography.

Monday and Tuesday

Spectacular flying, four stellar players and a four star story provide startling entertainment in "Test Pilot," most authentic aviation picture yet produced.

Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore head the cast of the first air picture produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in more than two years.

Director Victor Fleming has incorporated some of the most striking flying scenes yet seen in an aviation picture. The nature of the subject, dealing as it does with men who daily dare their lives in a duel with death, insures a world of thrills. They're there.

The story is that of a test pilot, played by Gable. Without varying from factual experience, it tells exactly how one of these daredevils lives, not sparing the man, but without showing that he is human. The romance is a three-cornered affair between Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and the "woman in the sky," who is the pilot's first love. Spencer Tracy sacrifices his life to prove to Gable that his wife is far more important than the calling which has been forever clutching at the narrow thread of his life.

Wednesday and Thursday
Another Double Feature will be shown at this theatre these two days. What is said to be one of the most thrilling prison escapes ever filmed forms a highlight of "Condemned Women" RKO Radio's new Sally Eilers-Louis Hayward vehicle, in which Anne Shirley also has a featured part.

Much of the picture's tense action is laid in a penitentiary for women, where the daily lives of the inmates, spurred to revolt by the harshness of the matrons, are revealed in vivid detail. Miss Eilers attempting to sever her undercover romance with Hayward, the prison doctor, to keep from ruining his brilliant career, is involved with Lee Patrick in the nerve-tugging jailbreak climax.

George Irving, Esther Dale, Richard Bond and other well-known players are in the cast of this production by Robert Sisk, directed by Lew Landers.

Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane and Dick Foran in "Love Honor and Behave" a comedy romance will be the other feature on this twin bill.

HAROLD LLOYD

A Fire, An Astrologer, And Some Horned-Rimmed Glasses Made Him The Richest Actor In The World

My first sight of Harold Lloyd was a distinct shock. I should never have known him off the screen, but he says, for that matter, no one does. For example, on one occasion, he was at a party with a friend who wears glasses. (Lloyd himself never wears them off the screen.) This friend didn't resemble him at all; but everybody thought that the chap in the horn-rimmed glasses must be Harold Lloyd.

One day as he was drifting home from school in Omaha, Nebraska, he came across an astrologer standing on a street corner surrounded by colored charts. This astrologer claimed he could read your fortune by the stars. Little Harold listened, pop-eyed with excitement. Suddenly a fire engine dashed by, and the other boys ran after it. But he didn't. He kept listening to the astrologer. That was a strange thing for a boy to do and one of the men in the crowd noticed it.

The fellow that noticed it was John Lane Connor, the leading man in the Burwood Stock Company of Omaha. He walked over to Lloyd, got acquainted with him and asked him if he knew of some nice place where an actor could get board and room. . . . Did he? . . . Harold leaped at the chance.

Harold's mother was a dressmaker, and his father sold sewing machines. One day his father got smashed up in an automobile accident and hurt his back, and the insurance company paid him $3,500. That was a lot of money for a boy, and he left the middle west and tried his luck somewhere else.

Finally Harold's father said: "Let's flip a coin. If it's heads, we'll go to California. If it's tails, we'll go to New York." But heads came up, so the family moved to San Diego, and Harold did odd jobs about the theatre there. Day after day, he called at the casting offices; and day after day, it was turned away. He was desperate. He must get by that doorman. He noticed that at noon all the actors came out of the Universal lot and went across the road to a lunch counter, and he also noticed the doorman didn't pay any attention to them when they came back with their grease paint on. So the next day, Harold Lloyd hid behind a billboard at noon, put on some make-up himself and slipped by the doorman in the crowd.

There was an actor by the name of Hal Roach who was playing small bits on this lot. He told Lloyd one day that his aunt had died and left him a little money so he was going to make pictures himself, comedies, and wanted Harold to join him.

One day he picked up an idea that was worth a fortune to him—picked it up, quite by accident. He was tired, so he drifted into a theatre and saw an actor with a straw hat and a pair of horn-rimmed glasses playing the part of a preacher. This actor wasn't trying to be funny; but he was really a scream. Lloyd decided then and there to make horn-rimmed glasses his trade mark and to play the part that has since made him famous.

The funniest thing I know about Harold Lloyd is that he himself didn't know he was funny until he was twenty years old. Before that, he used to go around reciting Shakespeare. And when he first started making pictures, the directors told him he wasn't a comedian and never could be a comedian and they advised him to get out of pictures and make his living at something else. But he kept right on—and now he is the richest actor in all the world. In fact, he is the richest actor who ever lived.

Time Out--For Thought

Syndicated by the Housatonic Press, Amherst, San Jose, California

Of what value is faith? It is a meaningless symbol unless it creates in us certain convictions that are immune to all outside pressure or influence born of an opposite point of view. Unless one's faith in certain moral, ethical, and spiritual principles has created certain convictions and standards in one's life which are supported by every drop of blood in the body under all circumstances, one does not have a real code of life, but merely a weak belief and an intangible hope.

The greatest of civilization's institutions have come into realization for the good of all through underlying devotion to certain convictions on the part of those great lights among men who have kept the faith and willingly sacrificed even their lives in support of their convictions. The lesson we learn from history is that we are sincere in our beliefs and faith, we should turn them into convictions, then fight for them, maintaining a firm stand in their support despite personal losses—despite the scoffing and sneering of the majority—or the doubts and comments of friends and relatives.

The world needs those who are stalwart in support of their convictions. Vacillation and hesitancy of action are weaknesses which impede our progress until we realize how truly our destiny and fate lie in our own hands, and how truly we are captains of our own ships in this great sea of life.

WALSH-HEALY BILL—The House Committee on the Judiciary has approved by a vote of 12 to 7 the Walsh-Healey Bill denying Government business to companies that violate the Labor Relations Act.

RADIO BROADCASTING—George C. Payne, a member of the Federal Communications Commission has asked the House Committee on Rules to pave the way for House action on a resolution for a special committee of the House to investigate monopoly in radio broadcasting. He charged that the radio broadcasting companies, through lobbyists, have tried to influence the FCC.

INVESTIGATIONS—While the committee investigating TVA is contemplating extensive hearings in Tennessee in July, the Senate committee investigating lobbying activities is waiting for more funds to continue its investigation. A preliminary report covering eleven months stated that due to "rapidly changing conditions," it recommended no legislation.

SOIL FERTILITY—A large group of people feel that the President is right in advising Congress that it should give attention to a study of the phosphate resources of the country. They believe that it is important that phosphate deposits be developed and conserved for the benefit of American agriculture. Fertilizers are becoming more and more important for replenishing exhausted farm lands and the country will some day be dependent on phosphates and other contributing elements to promote plant growth. Opponents of such a program of conservation state that the available supply is abundant and conservation is for far necessary now, as the U. S. has great supplies and the amount is enough to last centuries.

RAILROADS—Chairman Splawn, of the U. S. C. C., believes that financial troubles of the railroads will be solved by increased business rather than by legislation. A House subcommittee on Judiciary is considering a bill to speed up railway reorganization procedure.

HOME LOANS—Home financing by savings and loan associations in the U. S. during April totaled $62,821,000 and a set six-month record. April lending, which was 12 per cent above March, was the largest for any month since last October.

TRADE AGREEMENT WITH CZECHOSLOVAKIA—The U. S. Tariff Commission issued a report entitled "Trade Agreement between the U. S. and the Czechoslovak Republic." Copies of the document may be obtained from the U. S. Tariff Commission, Washington, D. C., or from my office.
