STATE'S VALUE $55,020,901.48 BAKER REPORTS

$12,621,026.99 Total Surplus Available For Use on July 1, 1930

The State of Delaware, valued at $55,020,901.48 on June 30, had on that date a successful business year, with substantial cash surplus balances remaining in the State treasury far in excess of the balances which remained at the close of the last fiscal year.

Some interesting figures are revealed in the annual report of State Auditor Edward Baker, which contains a detailed summary of all incomes and expenditures of the State during the fiscal year ending June 30.

According to the consolidated income and expenditure statement of the report, which includes the general fund, the school current fund, and the State highway fund, but excludes the sinking fund, an available cash surplus amounting to $12,621,026.99 remained to the credit of the State on June 30.

This represents a gain of $2,574,469.59 over the year from incomes after all expenditures had been made. Trading the gain the statement lists an available cash balance of $10,046,566.31 on July 1, 1929, at the start of the fiscal year just completed; total income during the year, $13,310,072.40, bringing the total of the available cash surplus to $23,356,638.71. The total expenditures for the period, according to the statement, amounted to $10,782,611.72.

All Funds Show Gain

Analysing income and expenditure statements of the three principal funds which make up the available cash surplus, all show gains during the year.

The general fund, which includes revenue from taxes, licenses, fees, permits, Federal college grants, earnings on investments, interest on bank deposits, fines, and non-revenue income, shows a gain of $1,175,782.70.

To this amount were added transfers from the Industrial Accident Board and from fire companies special accounts totaling $771,132. A total of $1,946,914.70 was deducted from the cash surplus and transferred to the school funds, which left a cash balance of $4,165,833.77.

On June 30, according to the statement to the report, after all expenditures had been made, an available cash surplus of $6,968,511.84 remained to the credit of the State, showing a gain of $1,192,722.10. The total income during the past fiscal year in the general fund, according to the report, was $11,150.06, with total expenditures for this period amounting to $4,221,471.98.

The school current fund, which included $2,621,026.99.

"PETE" EWING VISITING PARENTS IN NEWARK

Oscar (Pete) Ewing, several years ago a well known baseball pitcher who is now living in Tampa, Fla., has been visiting his parents in Newark.

"Pete" started his baseball career with the Newark High School 12 or 13 years ago. He afterwards pitched on several semi-professional teams in Wilmington and vicinity and then played with Martinsburg in the Blue Ridge League and also with a Virginia League team for a season.

He is connected with the points and various divisions of the du Pont Company in the southern city and has been there for five years, this being his first home during that time. "Pete" has spent up baseball entirely as a pleasure but is still keenly interested in the game.

HEAVY LOSS BY FOREST FIRES

Totals More Than a Half Million Dollars For This Year

According to a report of the State Forestry Department there have been 105 forest and grass fires in Delaware since January 1 of this year. This number represents only those that were reported and fought by volunteer fire companies, co-operating with the State Forestry Department, and by no means indicates the full number of fires which occurred and for which the department has neither report nor record. In all probabilities, the actual number of fires is in excess of 200.

Sussex county leads in the number of fires; their record being 60, while New Castle is second with 34. The remainder occurred in Kent county. Under the classification of causes, 34 are listed as unknown, 14 resulting from brush burning, 25 by railroads, and 9 from rubbish and ditch bank burning.

The loss to the State is estimated at $501,140 for the 17,196 acres burned over much of which might have been avoided had the State an adequate protection system.

The report says: "If Delaware had five fire lookout towers situated at advantageous high points in the State, fires could be detected as soon as they started.

"The cost of purchasing and erecting these towers would be approximately $12,000. The only further expense to such a system would be a few dollars per year for repairs and the salary of lookout men during danger periods. This cost would not exceed $2,000 per year. Experiment and practice in other states have found this system more economical and efficient than the airplane. The big drawback to the use of the plane is the cost of operation and the difficulty of quick communication with the ground.

"Simply to so equip the state that forest fires may be quickly detected and reported is not enough. Volunteers, without leadership and equipment (Continued on Page 6.)

REPUBLICANS TO PRESENT UNITED FRONT

So Declares Congressman Houston, Others at Deeds Office Outing

The Republican party in Delaware will present a united front during the forthcoming fall campaign, Congressman Robert G. Houston declared in an address made Saturday afternoon at the annual outing of the office force of the Recorder of Deeds' office, held at Augustine Beach.

Albert Stetser, Recorder of Deeds for New Castle county, was host and toastmaster at a dinner which came after a program of sports.

Speakers in addition to Congressman Houston were: Thomas E. Penney, secretary of the Wilmington department of elections, and E. Edward Duffy, attorney.

About seventy persons attended the outing. The party arrived at the beach in automobiles at one o'clock, when a buffet luncheon was served, followed by a program of sports. The ball game was won by Raymond B. Foster's "County Rubes," who defeated Bruce Clark's "City Slickers" 14 to 6.

Congressman Houston in his address commended the loyalty shown by the Recorder of Deeds office and said that it expressed the ideals of the nation, State and party. The Republican party, he said, is best qualified to face the problems of the future, emphasizing this point by detailing the accomplishments of the last Congress and its plans for the future. Congressman Houston gave an interesting discourse of the protection of American products offered by the tariff. Viewing the coming campaign as a decisive test, Mr. Houston was optimistic of a Republican victory with the combined effort he said is now under way in Delaware.

Mr. Duffy sounded a strong keynote in the support of United States Senator Daniel O. Hastings for return to office. Although in the Senate but a comparatively short time Senator Hastings has been a decided factor in the legislation which has been before that body, Mr. Duffy said. Continuing he declared:

"Senator Hastings has been of inestimable value to the President and has always been found supporting policies of the administration. As a result of his ability and active participation he is becoming more and more looked upon as one of the real leaders of the Senate."

Mr. Duffy went on to detail the number of committees on which Senator Hastings has served and is serving, naming the most important ones.

Mr. Peeney declared the full support of the entire Republican party working in perfect harmony will be back of every candidate next fall. "Senator Hastings, Recorder Stetser and every candidate will be backed by a solid front," he said.

Dr. Henri Pipes, speaking on behalf of the Recorder of Deeds office, delivered an impressive address. Dr. Pipes voiced the appreciation of the office for the consideration always accorded by Recorder Stetser.

Entertainment at the dinner was provided by Al Richards, Edward Husebeck, Samuel Farmer, James Forman and William Wahle, who all sang solos, and Dr. John Ayres who gave a recitation. Bruce Clark also entertained by winning the bottle and nipple race.

WARNS AGAINST TYPHOID FEVER

Dr. Jost Points Out Dangers From Short Water Supply

In view of the prevalence of typhoid fever in various parts of Delaware and in towns adjacent to Delaware, Dr. A. C. Jost, executive secretary of the State Board of Health, warns citizens of Delaware against this dreaded disease. He says the drought and low ground water has effects, both immediate and remote, on the prospects of spreading the disease. When water is scarce, it follows that impure water supplies, which would not be used in time of plenty, are sometimes thankfully used. Disease may follow the use of these second choice waters, and be the immediate result of an outbreak of typhoid fever.

Effects may be no less evident, states Dr. Jost, if a prolonged drought is followed by a heavy rainfall which washes accumulated filth into water courses and thence into wells or water supplies. Outbreaks of typhoid fever or other so-called "dirt diseases," have frequently occurred either during, or immediately after, a drought. Whenever there may be doubt concerning the purity of any water of which use must be made, it should be remembered that there are safety measures which can be wholly relied upon to remove the danger. Boiling the water, or even bringing it to, and maintaining it at, the pasteurizing temperature of 145 degrees for twenty minutes will be found ample to protect against the transfer of most of the infections.

ED. BARDO APPOINTED MEMBER OF COACHING STAFF AT DELAWARE

Will Have Special Charge of Intra-mural Athletics and Will Assist With Swimming Team; "Doc" Doherty to Continue as Graduate Manager

Edward C. Bardo, of Wilmington, has been appointed to have special charge of intermural athletics at Delaware College, University of Delaware. Announcement of the appointment was made Saturday by Dr. Walter Hullahen, president of the University, subject to the approval of the committee on discipline and instruction of the Board of Trustees.

Rumors of this appointment and some changes in the athletic department at the University have been heard for some weeks following the resignation of Joseph J. Rothrock, for the past three years director of physical education at the institution but it was not until Saturday that the rumors were verified with the announcement of this appointment.

The appointment of Bardo also means that a new course is to be started at the beginning of the new college year next month. He will give the technical class room courses in physical education to those students who desire to take such courses with a view to becoming physical directors and coaches in State high schools. Bardo is also understood to coach swimming, or at least, assist in coaching that sport.

Bardo, who is married and lives in Wilmington, is a son of Edward P. Bardo, manager of the Wilmington district of the Diamond State Telephone Company and comes to the University of Delaware highly recommended. He will assume his duties here next month. He is 26 years of age, is a graduate of the Wilmington High School, class of 1924, and the Springfield, Mass., Y. M. C. A. College where he took the physical education course. For the past two years he has been assistant physical director and coach of football, swimming and track at the Wilmington High School. In 1926 he was inter-collegiate swimming champion of New England.

The new appointee has had an excellent record in athletics both at Wilmington High and the Springfield college. At the high school he was on the swimming and football teams for three years and soccer and basketball for one year. He has also had considerable experience as an instructor and coach at Boy Scout camps.

During his time at Springfield College Bardo was captain of the swimming team and played end on the football team. He was on these teams for three years and two years on the track team. He was also student instructor of football for two years and swimming and canoeing for three years. He has served as life guard at seashore resorts and was municipal swimming instructor in Wilmington one Summer.

Gerald P. (Doc) Doherty, graduate manager of athletics at the University of Delaware for several years, will continue in that position and will in addition take over the task of correlation and co-ordination of all forms of physical education with the inter-collegiate program. In this capacity he will have the responsibility and authority formerly vested in the position of head of the department of physical education at Delaware College which "Joe" Rothrock held for the past three years. Mr. Rothrock returns next month to Peekskill Military Academy, N. Y., as physical director and coach.

"Doc" Doherty, who is a graduate of the University and was a three-letter man while in college, is especially popular with the alumni and students and has done excellent work as graduate manager and assistant coach for several sports. The fact that he is to continue with additional responsibilities and duties will be especially good news to the student body and alumni.

Plans are now being made by Doherty for the squad of about 45 football candidates who will report for preliminary training on September 2. "Gus" Zeigler continues as head coach of football, but will have as his assistant and backfield coach Charley Rogers, former Penn star backfield man. Plans are being made for a training house for the football squad this season.

SUGGESTS USING WHEAT INSTEAD OF CORN AS FEED

The continued low price of wheat and the probability of the scarcity and high price of corn is causing many owners of livestock to consider the possibilities of the substitution of wheat for corn in feeding poultry, hogs, and dairy cattle.

Experimental evidence has shown that wheat is equal, and for some classes of livestock, superior to corn as a livestock food, and that when corn is worth 85 cents per bushel, wheat has a feeding value of $1.11 per bushel. How can wheat be fed in place of corn? The Animal Industry Department of the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station has the following suggestions to make to owners of livestock for using wheat as a stock food.

Increasing the amount of wheat in scratch grains fed laying birds offers the best opportunity for utilizing more wheat in poultry feeding. A scratch mixture consisting of 300 pounds of whole wheat and 200 pounds of whole corn will give good results. As corn meal and wheat are similar in composition, the best way to utilize more wheat in the laying mash is to replace a portion of corn meal in the mash with rolled or cracked wheat. If the laying mash contains 20 per cent or more of corn meal, it is safe to substitute cracked or rolled wheat for one-half of the corn meal.

Wheat is more satisfactory as a feed for hogs than for any other class of livestock. Hogs like wheat and they may be fed all the wheat they will eat without causing digestive disturbances. A ration of 18 pounds of whole or cracked wheat and one pound of tankage will produce gains equal to a ration of corn and tankage. A wheat ration that is giving satisfactory results in a swine feeding experiment at the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station consists of 8 pounds of whole wheat and one pound of cracked soybeans.

Wheat may take the place of corn meal in the dairy ration without decreasing milk production. Wheat fed to dairy cattle should be rolled or cracked rather than ground fine. Wheat when ground fine forms a paste, unpalatable mass when masticated by dairy cattle.

No stock owning Delaware farmer can afford to sell 70 to 80 cents wheat and feed $1.00 corn. Neither is it economy to sell wheat at such a low price and buy all the feed used by the livestock on the farm. Wheat marketed through farm animals will give a greater return per bushel than can possibly be obtained at present

Facts for Farm Folks. Written by Agricultural Authorities. Prof. John E. Ivey.

FEEDING SPACE FOR PULLETS

It is almost impossible to estimate the damage done a flock of pullets by having insufficient hopper space. Often you will visit a flock and find about half the amount, of hopper space necessary to take care of a given number of chickens. Cannibalism is often caused by insufficient hopper space being provided for the birds. Chickens having a desire to eat will begin to peck at the ones eating at the hopper, the feathers will be injured oftentimes causing bleeding. As a result of this the birds get a taste of the blood and then cannibalistic tendency becomes a vice. For birds 10-20 weeks old, on range, at least a 7 1/2 foot hopper should be provided for each 100 birds.

This will allow at least 15 feet of feeding space per 100 birds. When they go into the laying house in the fall of the year a 10 foot hopper should be provided for each 100 pullets. It is also desirable to have a water fountain at each end of the trough so that the birds will not have to waste so much energy in going to other places in the house for their water supply. Remember that 55 per cent of the body weight of the bird is water and 65 per cent of the weight of the egg is water; therefore, it is very essential that the proper amount of feeding space and plenty of water be provided for the pullets and hens if maximum and economic egg production is to be expected.

AN ENCOURAGING SIGN

One of the most encouraging signs of the times is the great amount of attention now being given the problem of accident prevention by individuals, officials and private organizations. The terrible toll of fatalities due to the automobile, which last year reached the record figure of 31,000, must be reduced. Laws to keep the congenitally reckless and incompetent from highways must be passed in every state. Financial responsibility laws which differ from compulsory insurance in that they place the burden where it belongs—on those who cause accidents—have been tried with success in several states and are proposed in others. The drivers' examination law, said to be the greatest need, is being advocated throughout the nation. The great majority of people are competent, careful and responsible. Their lives and property must be protected.

A RAILROAD HOUR. According to recent statistics, in one hour the railroads earn $716,840 from transportation service, and spend $514,386 for operating expenses and give $45,288 in taxes to state, national and local governments. In an hour, 6,026 cars are loaded with revenue freight and 88,932 passengers board trains. The American railroads provide a great public service on which every social and economic activity of our people depends and are giving the best transportation in the world. Between 1920 and 1929 the average daily mileage of each freight car increased 29 per cent; the length of the average freight train and load carried increased 32 per cent and 14 per cent, respectively; average freight train speed increased 28 per cent. Car shortages have been practically eliminated. Elsie R.—When you allow your hands to hang relaxed at your sides, the blood rushes to them, and makes them appear red. Hot water also brings the blood near the surface. ROUGHAGE FOR DAIRY COWS. Feed dairy cows all the roughage they will eat, either in the form of pasture grass, soiling crops, hay, or silage. The nutrients in these foods are usually cheaper than those in concentrates, and cows fed chiefly on roughage rather than concentrates are less subject to digestive disturbances. However, if both hay and grain are bought and the hay costs more than one-half to two-thirds as much as the grain, the quantity of hay may be limited and more grain fed. This applies to medium or low-producing cows. In feeding high producers, care should be taken not to throw the cow off feed by giving too much concentrates. Wrapping apples in oiled paper wrappers or packing them in shrouded oiled-paper protects them from the scald disease. When shrouded paper is used it is important that it be well distributed throughout the package. Apples scald less when packed in boxes, baskets, or ventilated barrels than when packed in the usual tight barrels.

DEL. BEATS LOW MARK OF MD. IN SMALLPOX

Only four States have reported fewer smallpox cases than Maryland during the years of 1928 and 1929, according to a report issued by the United States Public Health Service. Rhode Island heads the list of all the States, with a clean record for both years. The District of Columbia had a clean record for 1929, but 24 cases were reported there in 1928. New Jersey reported one case and Delaware two cases last year. Smallpox in Maryland decreased from 22 cases in 1928 to eight cases in 1929. No cases have been reported this year, said Dr. John Collinson, head of the Bureau of Vital Statistics, State Department of Health. Illinois had the highest number of cases in 1929, the number increasing from 1,652 in 1928 to 4,251. Indiana led the list in 1928 with a total of 3,468 cases. Ramona J.—Certainly there are plastic surgeons in Baltimore. The City Department of Health will give you a list of reliable plastic surgeons located in that city.

DELAWARE DEATHS IN 1929 SHOW DROP FROM 1928 FIGURES

Department of Commerce Reports 3,132 Died in State Last Year. 576 Heart Victims

The Department of Commerce at Washington, announces that there were 3,132 deaths in Delaware during 1929 as compared with 3,196 in 1928.

No death rates for 1929 have been computed because any rates based on population estimates made at this time would be unreliable and would probably have to be materially revised as soon as the 1930 census figures become available.

The decreases in deaths from diseases of the heart, nephritis, typhoid and paratyphoid fever, and syphilis in 1929 as compared with 1928 were almost balanced by increases from pneumonia, all forms, influenza, whooping cough, and diabetes mellitus.

There was a steady decline in the number of deaths from syphilis, tuberculosis, all forms, and nephritis from 1926 to 1929.

There was a considerable decrease in the number of deaths from accidental and unspecified external causes in 1929 as compared with 1928, the decrease being more than accounted for by decreases in accidental drowning, accidental falls, and automobile accidents, the last of these causes dropping from 75 to 57.

GREATEST HISTORICAL OBSERVANCE

George Washington Bicentennial Celebration Oils Being Planned Upon a Colossal Scale by Directors—Plans As Told by Donald A. Graig.

Staff Writer, in Washington Star

"The greatest celebration thus far in history—the most ambitious celebration ever undertaken in honor of an individual."

When Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio—former educator and college president, with a reputation for speaking conservatively—uses language such as this, it is perhaps excusable if ordinary folks get a bit excited.

The language just quoted sums up the way Senator Fess envisions the celebration, or, more properly, the series of celebrations that are being planned under the auspices of the Federal Government to occur throughout the year 1932 in observance of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

Senator Fess is the active head of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, whose ex officio chairman is President Hoover. Senator Fess holds the official titles of vice chairman of the commission and chairman of the executive committee.

Members of the commission, which includes prominent Federal officials and men and women widely known in private life, with many of whom a representative of the Star has talked, realize that celebrations of various kinds are "old stories" to Washington City, which has been witnessing events of national and international importance since the Government first moved here in 1800.

But they are convinced that this 1932 affair is going to be something entirely different from all others. Besides, while the principal national programs are to occur here, this city will be the point from which the series of celebrations will radiate to every part of this country and many foreign countries.

It is to cover more territory—with Washington as its center—than any former celebration. It is to last longer. It is to be on a grander scale. It is to bring more visitors to Washington during the period of 10 months in which the official celebrations will be held. It will arouse more deep and lasting sentiment—practical and, especially, spiritual—than anything of the kind that has gone before it here or elsewhere during the world's history. Those are some of the forecasts.

"It is right," said Senator Fess, discussing the matter informally with the Star representative a day or two ago, "that there should be such an observance of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, whose life and achievements have meant so much to the people of the whole world. Our task is now to make the people of this Nation understand what a tremendous thing this Washington bicentennial is going to be. It will be something to remember and look back upon so long as any person shall live to remember it."

Here will be held, on all holidays during that year, programs in which the President of the United States and the highest officials of the Government will participate. Radio will carry what the President says in his public addresses to very part of the country and will permit the Washington programs to become literally a part of the programs to take place simultaneously in every State and Territory of this country, and probably in foreign lands, where the name of Washington is revered almost as much as it is here.

The work of planning the actual, concrete events of the numerous 1932 celebrations has begun. Since the Star published an article a few weeks ago, pointing out that the bicentennial commission had been in existence since December, 1924, without having got beyond authorizing three splendid permanent memorials to George Washington—without having adopted any definite plans for the great celebrations that it is proposed to hold under the auspices of the Federal Government in 1932—there has been a great deal of activity.

A force of men and women, occupying a large suite of rooms in the new Washington Building and comprising the nucleus of what will probably be a much larger organization that will be built up during the next two years, has already begun the herculean task of forming contacts with State commissions, taking steps to have backward States organize bicentennial commissions, arranging for cooperation with patriotic, civic, commercial, religious, and every other sort of organizations in the country, working out the details of newspaper, radio, movie, and other kinds of publicity; planning programs and doing a thousand and one things necessary to make the celebration a success, all of which must now be crowded into the less than two years that remain before the bicentennial year dawns.

Two high-power directors have been placed in charge of the bicentennial arrangements of the Federal Government. They are Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3d, who, among his other multitudinous duties, is director of public buildings and public parks of the National Capital, and Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, who began to learn how to conduct celebrations of various kinds when most of us were children.

While this phase of the subject will be explained more in detail in a later article, it might be advisable at this point to state that the George Washington bicentennial celebration is not to be a world's fair in any sense.

The purpose behind everything the Federal and State commissions and the two national directors are doing, and propose to do, is to impress upon the minds of the people of this generation and especially of the next generation—the children who soon will take charge of the world's affairs—the real meaning of devotion to duty, courage in the face of disaster, unselfish statesmanship, constitutional government, and the broad, human viewpoint, as exemplified by George Washington, who built not for himself nor for his own generation even, but for the future.

The character and achievements of George Washington are to be the keynote of the celebration everywhere.

So staggering are the tentative plans which have been sketched in outline to a representative of the Star by members of the commission and the directors that they challenge one's credulity at the same time that they stir and appeal to the imagination.

If only half of them are carried into effect, the sweeping statements made by Senator Fess at the opening of this article will be doubtless justified.

The members of the United States commission and the associate directors have already received evidences of support from many quarters. Requests have already begun to come in from various groups for permission to participate in the programs in this city.

It is difficult to talk with those who are in charge of the arrangements for the bicentennial year without becoming imbued with the superlative brand of enthusiasm that is apparent in everything they say about it. It will be the purpose of these articles not to make predictions, but to report as faithfully as possible what has been done, what is being done, and what is planned, for the most part permitting those directly in touch with the arrangements to speak for themselves concerning the plans for "this greatest celebration thus far known in history."

CAPPER MEDALS TO TWO BEST GIRL CANNERS IN COUNTRY

Special awards by Senator Arthur Capper, of silver and bronze medals to the two 4-H club girls who enter New Castle county's best jars of home canned fruits, vegetables and meats in the National Canning Contest at Shenandoah, Iowa, is announced in a message to The Post from Shenandoah, Iowa, where the contest is being held under the auspices of the Household Science Institute.

Senator Capper, long a friend of the 4-H clubs and a member of the National Committee on Boys' and Girls' Club Work, in making the awards said that he hoped these awards would serve to encourage home canning work among farm girls and that they would prove of value to 4-H club leaders and extension workers in furthering this work.

The Capper medals are in addition to the list of 470 prizes totaling $4,250 in cash, loving cups and ribbons which will be distributed to the winners in the contest. The grand sweepstakes award of the contest carries with it a cash prize of six hundred dollars.

The contest is open to every woman and girl. There are no restrictions as to the nature of the food sent. Contestants may enter the fruit, vegetable or meat division, any two of these divisions, or all three. Entries should be sent immediately upon canning. These will be kept on exhibition at Shenandoah till the closing of the contest on October 1.

The list of contest judges includes five of America's outstanding home economics experts and nutrition authorities, headed by Dr. Louise Stanley, Chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture. That the judging may be thoroughly impartial and the display of jars absolutely uniform, contestants are required to send their entries in standard glass jars of the quart size. A sample Ball mason jar and carton, together with prize entry labels and full information for entering may be had without cost by writing the National Canning Contest, Shenandoah, Iowa.

Any preferred method of canning may be used although it has been found that the hot pack method together with the use of a pressure cooker for the sterilizing is best, especially for non-acid vegetables, states Grace Viall Gray, nationally known canning expert who is secretary of the contest. This method of canning is recommended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture because it saves time and fuel and assures sterility, while preserving the natural flavor, color, and texture, of the canned article.

Soybeans spoil rather easily if not kept under proper conditions in storage. Heating and molding is especially likely to occur if the seed is bulked in large quantities in a bin or a poorly ventilated room; this is almost certain to happen if the beans were not fully dry when threshed. The storeroom should be dry and should have a free circulation of air around the sacks. Cross piling is a good way to accomplish this.

Shortage of Naval Officers

For the first time within memory there is a serious shortage in the number of cadets at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. At present there are 393 vacancies, of which twenty-eight are available for young men in New York State. One of the vacancies exists in the thirtieth Congressional district in which Schenectady county is located. There is a first rate technical education awaiting some ambitious young chap of the right qualifications.

When the class of 1931 graduates there will be 326 more vacancies. This will make an aggregate of more than seven hundred appointments available for young men who wish to enter a naval career. Seldom, if ever, have appointments to Annapolis gone begging in this fashion.

The situation may present embarrassment to the United States at a time when the naval treaty has just been signed and when it may be necessary to build the navy up to the strength which the treaty stipulates. There is no surplus of material now to officer the fleet, and if the tonnage is increased and the normal retirements take place, there may be a shortage of officers in the future.

There have been numerous resignations recently from the naval service. These have been among junior officers. The complaint is understood to be that the salaries which the United States Navy pays its officers of that rank are insufficient to maintain them and their families in the manner in which naval officers are required to live. Business and industry bid for their services.
The requirements at Annapolis are rigorous. Not only are the scholastic ratings high, but young men must pass a strict physical examination. None but the fittest can expect to be admitted. Discipline is strict. The service is exacting; but the pride in that arm of the national defense always has been such as to attract some of the best men to the colors.

So far as the country is concerned there is every reason to expect that naval officers of the highest ability shall be trained for the service. While we are not a “big navy” power, the needs of our national defense are such that we require a good navy.
What we have must be of most excellent quality. The United States navy since the days of John Paul Jones has ranked among the best. It shall not be allowed to take second place. Civilian life with more attractive salaries cannot be allowed to be a successful competitor for the able men we need for naval officers.—Schenectady Union-Star.

Happiness In Daily Life

The thoughtfully considered response of one man to the question, “Is Life Worth Living?” seemed to me especially interesting because so probably typical of the feeling of great numbers of persons of the average sort, those who carry on the major part of the work of humanity.

“I don't think,” he said, after turning the question over in his mind for a few moments, “that it has ever occurred to me to question seriously the general happiness and worth of life, because you get some sort of satisfaction out of almost every stage and phase of it.

“Even the disappointments and hurts are not without compensation, for they give contrast to the pleasurable things and so make keener our enjoyment of them. Many happy experiences, most of them small and inconsequential by themselves, but summing up mighty big, come right along all the time as part of every day, experiences that grow out of almost everything in life—one's home, friends, work, married life, children, the things one sees and does—so that I don't understand how anybody can have any doubt about it. Just living it makes life worth while.”—North American Review.

COMMITTEE WILL PLAN
WASHINGTON CELEBRATION SOON

200th Anniversary of First President's Birth to Be Observed in 1932; Delaware Committee Meets September 11

The first meeting of the committee whose appointment was authorized by the Legislature in 1927 to make arrangements for the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington
which will be celebrated on February 22, 1932, will be held in the Supreme Court room of the State House at Dover, on September 11, at 1.30 p. m., standard time.

This meeting will be held for the purpose of organization, and the outlining of plans for the celebration in Delaware.

At the time the 1927 Legislature authorized the appointment of the committee, it was decided that the Governor, President of the Senate, and Speaker of the House should each name four members of the committee, so that the complete committee would comprise 15 members.

Former Governor Robert P. Robinson, then chief executive of the State, William Winthrop, speaker of the house, and W. F. Allen, president of the Senate, were named to select the committee.

Those appointed by Ex-Governor Robinson, who will meet in Dover in September, are Charles H. Grantland,
Secretary of State; Willard A. Speak-man, Wilmington; D. Mifflin Wilson, Dover, and Herman C. Taylor, Dover.

Mr. Allen's committee comprises Leroy Kramer, of Wilmington, former State Senator; J. Gilpin Highfield,

Register of Wills; Hervey P. Hall, Smyrna, State Senator, and former State Senator Joseph H. Cox, of Sen-ford. To the house committee, William Winthrop named William E. Virden, representative; James W. Car-row, Dover, former representative; W. O. Cabbage, Wyoming, former representative, and Thomas C. Curry, former representative, of Greenwood.

Those men will appoint a chairman
at the first meeting, and will start the work of planning the celebration for Delaware. The project, which was more or less localized at the beginning, has assumed national proportions, and each State will probably have a celebration of some kind of the 200th anniversary of the birth of the first president.

Mr. Robinson, Mr. Allen, and Mr.
Winthrop have been working on the committee appointments, but this is the first announcement made of the members. The plans which will not yet be adopted at the meeting have not yet been made known, and the principal business will be the preliminary work of organization. The program which will be executed throughout the State in 1932 will be planned at future meetings, the dates to be arranged after the committee has first met and is organized.

The plans will probably include elaborate celebration and appropriate observation of the date. Ex-Governor Robinson said that arrangements are still very indefinite.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
HAS MEETING

Act Upon Building Plans and Other Matters at Friday's Session

The State Board of Education held lengthy session at Dover last Friday,
the morning session being devoted to business of the board while the afternoon session was taken up with hearings with five school building commissions, two of which were organization meetings. At the other three sites were selected and plans were discussed for new buildings.

At the business session of the board
the distribution of the school fund for 1930-31, as previously discussed and canvassed was approved by the board.
A statement of the Summer School account for the University of Delaware and an application of trustees of Little Creek for additional allotment
were presented and filed.

A report of the referendum vote
for consolidation of the Piney Grove
with Lord Baltimore school in Sussex county was submitted showing 51 votes for consolidation and 13 against.
A report also was made of the referendum consolidation vote of Toma-hawk with Greenwood in Sussex county which showed 24 for consolidation and 53 against.

A report was made on the referendum vote of the Ellendale school for an additional $1,000 for the new school building which was favorable, the extra thousand dollars enabling the new building to have an auditorium. The report was approved by the State Board.

As to the Marshallton-Brandywine Springs school site in New Castle county, approval of the site was reported.

A statement was submitted showing a balance of unallotted interest available in the State school building fund up to July 1, of $15,000, this being largely from interest on the school funds invested in the saving fund.

A report of the engineer on the Alfred I. du Pont School in Brandywine hundred showed that the building is completed.

A report on bids of insurance on proposals for the teachers' retirement scheme was submitted and filed.

A request for additional funds from the Harrington school building commission was ordered investigated and a report to be made at a later meeting.

The afternoon session of the State Board was taken up wholly with school building commissions, the first of which was the reading of the report of the election of the Frederica

School Building Commission, Kent County, showing the election of Willard S. Slaughter, Elijah Melvin, Seldon Raughley and Ira Garbutt. After being sworn in, organization was effected by the election of Elijah Melvin as permanent chairman of the commission; L. M. Price, vice president; D. H. V. Holloway, secretary, and Ira Garbutt, acting secretary.
The commission agreed to accept the services of the Delaware School Auxiliary as to architect and engineer, the Messrs. Taylor as engineers, and Gilbert and Betelle as architects.
Tentative plans for the seven-room
building with auditorium and lunch room were submitted by the engineer and architect, who were present.

The Greenwood School Building Commission, Sussex county, was the second commission to be reported. Organization was effected as follows:
W. S. Lord, permanent chairman; Dr.
H. V. Holloway, secretary, and R. E.
Willey, as acting secretary. The other members of the commission include W. I. Conoway and T. E. Rust. This commission also accepted the services of the Delaware School Auxiliary engineer and architect and tentative plans were submitted.

In both of these school districts,
Dr. H. V. Holloway, secretary of the State Board, was instructed to make a survey as to sites and report back to the commission at a later meeting.

The State Board together with the Rose Hill School Commission, accepted the Minquale school in New Castle county.

The Lincoln School Building Commission which had organized some weeks ago, appeared before the State Board, and discussed three available sites in that town, finally agreeing on the purchase of the Shockely site.
Plans will be submitted at a later
meeting of the board.

The Frankford-Dagsboro School Building Commission met with the Board with the purpose if possible of agreeing on a site for their new contemplated building. The two towns have voted for consolidation, but a real snag has been struck in selecting a suitable site. Three sites were discussed, one along the State highway and two others on dirt roads, one not so far from a concrete highway while the other entirely on a dirt road. The local commission of four men, Messrs.
Bunting and Daisy from Dagsboro, and Messrs. Stokes and Donovan, of Frankford, were divided in their opinion as to the proper site, three of the men being favorable to the stone road site while Stokes, of Frankford, was favorable to the dirt road site.

After arguments pro and con lasting for nearly one hour and a half, a vote was taken resulting in a failure to decide on any one of the three sites, after which adjournment was taken.

Lodge Notes

JR. O. U. A. M.

Councilor Cowden was much elated at last Monday evening's session of the American Flag Council, No. 28, Jr. O. U. A. M., at seeing some of the stray members returning to the fold. The Council at present is free from any sickness. Brother Jack Lewis was appointed chairman of the baseball team. A red hot team is promised. Remember, all those desiring new badges see Brother Hall. To date 30 orders have been filed.

Monday evening, September 1, a special program has been arranged. A prominent speaker has been secured.

The Council is about to put on their fall campaign. We need you and you need the Council. The Junior Order needs more of the class of men who are known as thinkers. It is to the thinking men that the progress of our latter day civilization is due. We may accumulate wealth, and may increase our members, but we must have a large proportion of thinkers for the management of both.

Any one interested in Juniorism will be welcomed to come to our Council chambers door and receive first hand information.

At the conclusion of last Monday's session the members present enjoyed cantaloupes and ice cream.—A. Neal Smythe, Chairman, Pub. Com.

A. O. U. W.

Recorder R. J. Crow and Master Workman, Miss Alice Fell, request all members of Anchor Lodge, No. 4, A. O. U. W., to be present at the regular meeting on Friday evening. A number of important questions will be discussed.

ALL ROAD CONTRACTS ARE PROGRESSING RAPIDLY

According to Secretary Craig of the State Highway Department, road construction on all contracts given within the past few weeks by the State Highway Commission is progressing. The two-mile or more contract through Dover connecting the northern and southern part of the city with the State highways at the Silver Lake bridge entrance and the Cooper's Corner road from the south, is almost completed as far as laying the concrete is concerned. If the weather permits it is considered that all the concrete will be laid within a short time. The last strip running from Loockerman street to Division street will then be connected up with the strip completed recently.

Considerable work will be needed after the concrete is laid including the laying of the gutters and shoulders, all of which have been petitioned for by the citizens living on both sides of the street.

the sides of the 14-foot road in Sussex county below Georgetown to the Maryland line is being laid with remarkable speed. This addition was most needed in that part of the State, due to the heavy traffic to Bethany Beach and Ocean City, Md.

The contracts in New Castle county are nearing completion, some having been completed.

Secretary Craig feels that with the most favorable weather for road building this year, that all the contracts will be finished on schedule time and that the State and side highways which are under construction will be a great help in solving the congested traffic problem.

ment to aid them in combatting fires, are helpless to cope with such fires as Delaware experiences. Funds for the purchase of adequate equipment and funds with which to pay fire fighters at least the going hourly wage must be provided if efficiency of a sort is expected. An institution of the State cannot and must not expect disinterested citizens to turn out and help extinguish forest fires without compensation for their labor. Fighting forest fires is the hardest kind of labor and requires going long periods without food, water and rest.

"Last, but not least, the State Forestry Department needs satisfactory and adequate laws providing for the apprehension and conviction of those who not only willfully but carelessly start forest fires.

"There are already many records in the Forestry Department of fires in the past year which positively identify the source, cause and the name of the person who started a forest fire. Yet, because of lack of sufficient testimony, the offender cannot be brought to justice.

"The Next session of the General Assembly will be asked to support bills providing for adequate appropriation to inaugurate a forest protection program supported by forest laws with real teeth in them. As matters now stand, the Forestry Department is practically helpless to cope with the situation, but it feels that when properly understood, every citizen of the State will be in favor of aiding in the passage of this much needed legislation."

Freiburg Passion Play In America

The Freiburg Passion Play of Freiburg, Baden, Germany, featuring Adolf Fassnacht, now renowned "Christus" portrayer, will be presented in the world's largest Auditorium in Atlantic City, three performances September 3, 4 and 5. Each performance to begin promptly at 8 p. m. It takes three hours to give the complete play. Railroad and bus transportation companies will hold their service until after each performance.

The Freiburg Passion Play is the world's oldest, having first played in Freiburg, Germany, in 1264. This play was enacted many years before any script was provided, the oldest script in Freiburg being dated 1599.

Although originally presented with deep religious feeling, by about 1700, the religious feeling and religious urge as a community event had lost its original purpose. An ancestor of Adolf Fassnacht, the present "Christus" portrayer, watched a puppet presentation of the play in 1760. He became angry at such lack of reverence as shown so sacred a tradition. In the same year, he offered a petition to the town council of Freiburg, asking permission to reproduce this age-old drama, with the reverence and depth of feeling which had accompanied its original presentation.

His request was granted and he, and the family, assumed responsibility for the revival of the ancient drama. Since then, tradition decrees that the "Christus" be portrayed by the eldest direct male descendant of the family. Under that tradition, Adolf Fassnacht now portrays the role, and has done so for the last 28 years. It is estimated he has enacted the role of "The Christus" over 7,000 times.

Sixty thousand Americans were attracted to Freiburg in 1922 to witness its presentation. Multiplied thousands who could not go to Europe have asked the question: "Why is it not possible to bring this reverend presentation of the oldest story of the Cross to us, that all might share its message?" That question was answered in 1928 when the City of St. Joseph, Mo., brought the Freiburg Players from Germany, to dedicate the great Krug Park Bowl. During that presentation, over 100,000 people witnessed this mighty spectacle. The players fully expected to return home directly after the St. Joe engagement, but, because of popular demand, have remained in the United States.

In the world's largest Auditorium—in Atlantic City, the Passion Play can be given with its complete out-door setting; and because of the large amount of seats available, prices can be kept down so that all may attend. Railroads and bus transportation companies are offering special fares and services for this occasion. Trains and buses will be held until after each performance. Every seat is a reserved seat, and seats can be obtained now at $1, $2 or $3.

JEANNE SMITH LEARNS THAT FLOOR SCRUBBING IS SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY DESPITE CHICAGO'S HIGH HAT

There is a new wrinkle in Chicago—and it is not made by a bullet either. All the ambitious scrubwomen who aspire to the jobs of cleaning up the City of Chicago have to take an examination under the civil service commission. I know it is true because I saw it in the newspapers. Life, I thought, is getting more complicated every day. It is hard enough on a poor scrubwoman to have to scrub floors, much less take examinations about it, and judging from the stories one hears, would have to have many an extra scrubbing. Then I began to meditate—Wilmington floors. It has always been a comforting thought as I passed over the shiny tile floors of new office buildings or watched the floors going in, tier by tier, in the new skyscraper, that no matter what happened a poor girl could always get a job scrubbing. And the more floors there were the better the chance. Now look at this new development. You have to take an examination about what cleans floors best. It almost floored me for a moment. I began to feel sorry for myself, and for the thousands of sisters who may have followed the same train of thought.

Personally, I don't know the difference between soap flakes and soap chips, and pulverized soap; or whether a wood floor takes to powder or to a liquid soap best, or whether the water ought to be hot, medium or cold. It is were cold it would be nice in summer time, but if it were hot, then it might take the paint off. Oh—there are a million angles to floor cleaning once you get right down to brass tacks, and consider the matter, it would be much more efficient, I thought, to go on and scrub the floor. Then suppose the question of crystal chandeliers arose, and it very likely would. Did you ever stop to think of the number of crystal chandeliers in public buildings? They fairly spangle public buildings. Think of that pristine polish as all the little glass jiggers jingle in the breeze. How maintain it? That is the question. If you use the wrong kind of cleansing agent, your crystal chandeliers might get bitten, warped or scratched. The department of supplies, or whatever it's called, might have to supply a new one. A fine fix you would be in then. Your job wouldn't be worth a spoonful of soft soap. Just a big crystal chandelier warped—you would be called.

The tragedy of these reflections would make you sit down on the nearest curb very likely and before you could say Jack Robinson a traffic cop would arrest you for obstructing traffic. It seems Uncle Sam is not interested with such painful thoughts. I wended my way to the United States Civil Service Bureau to find out the worst and end this terrible suspense. Imagine my relief when a clerk informed me that the United States did not give its charwomen a mental test. We give them a physical examination to determine their fitness, he said. In regards to this Chicago matter, I think that it must be the City's Civil Service Commission. I see that the position pays $145 a month. The usual pay of charwomen is about $65 or $75 a month. The fact that this particular position pays more leads me to believe that it may be a question of politics. Certain politicians may have put into that position to draw the salary people who knew more about politics than they did about cleaning floors. I guess this is a sort of net in which to catch actual non-floor scrubbers.

"Hooray," I said. "But for all I know," he continued—"there may be an examination for charwomen in Delaware by the City's Civil Service Commission." I called up the City Commission right away. It is all right, boys and girls, the Delaware Civil Service Commission doesn't give you a series of questions. They give you a physical examination, and they give the widows of city employees who died or have been killed in the line of duty the preference, but aside from that everything is jake. And believe me that is a big load off my mind. Floor scrubbing is safe for democracy a little while longer.

JEANNE SMITH TELLS OF BEAUTIFUL MOTHER'S LOVE—THE SUPREME GIFT

We are in the habit of exalting love to the skies in prose and poetry—this all absorbing passion is painted in glowing colors—and it doubtless deserves all the praise that is bestowed upon it. But romantic love that guides and controls the attraction between the sexes is distinctly selfish. There are instances where it is otherwise, but usually it is the pleasure that one expects to receive that makes this emotion so entrancingly enticing. There is a certain exquisitely satisfactory delight associated with the mere presence of the loved one, and when his or her presence ceases to bring a dreamy content the allurements of love quickly fades away.

But mother's love is an entrancing emotion that literally encompasses one's entire being. There is absolutely nothing selfish about it. The real mother is at all times imbued with the thought of benefitting her offspring. Her one great outstanding desire is to ease his pathway—to help him in every way to make a success of his life. No sacrifice is too great to accomplish this purpose. A mother will often work her fingers to the bone, day after day, year after year, to promote the happiness of her child. Through trials and tribulations often of the severest type, mothers stand back of their children. If the emergency arises in which even life itself must be sacrificed to save a beloved child, a mother will never hesitate.

Letters to Jeanne

"Jeanne" answers all questions relating to problems of married life. Names and addresses should be added to letters, as a mark of good faith, but of course will not be published. Write "Jeanne," care of The Newark Post, Wilmington Office, 809 Tattall Street, Wilmington.

"I find that I have married a liar," writes Emily T. "In fact I think all men are liars," continues the young cynic. And she expects me to agree with her just because I happen to be a member of the sisterhood. This is when the poor dear gets fooled. Of course, I may be wrong. Personally when I get to the point that I consider all men willfully dishonest, I'll take my shingle down, hide behind the coal bin and feed on worms until the millennium. Of course there is a vast difference between good natured lies and malicious lies, and there are such things as liars, both male and female, and there are habitual liars, fourflushers, an endless chain as it were. And there are just as many reasons back of them. Some liars are born, others acquire the habit as a means of escape from unpleasant realities—and there is a third group, usually married men, who have the habit thrust on them by inquisitive women who should have been lawyers instead of wives. It is not surprising that he who is cross-examined from the time he enters the door until he exits via the back, becomes adept in the art of lying. Take the best man in the world, put him through a daily third degree and if he does not become a prize winning liar—well, I am another.

I am sure you will agree with me, if you have had as much experience with men as I have. I would like your honest opinion of my case. When we first married my husband took me into his confidence about everything. He was always telling me about flattering business offers he received and forthcoming raises in salary. He said that he and his employer were great pals, and that he would soon be a member of the firm. I believed him for awhile. Then I began to suspect he was lying. After considerable questioning I found that there wasn't a word of truth in anything he said. The only reason he gave was that he wanted to live up to my opinion of him. A fine way he had. Recently he has been coming home late at night. I have questioned him until I am dizzy, but the only explanation I get is that he is working to supplement his salary. Now I know he is not telling the truth. He has told me too many lies. I have accused him of spending his evenings with another woman, but he denies it. I have just made up my mind to return to my parents. If there is anything I hate it is a liar.

Answer.—Well, at any rate, your husband isn't an ordinary liar. It took seven years of cross-examination to make him an adept. That ought to be some consolation. I think he held out pretty well. Your boasted experience with men hasn't taught you a great deal, otherwise you might have guessed that your husband was merely lying to bolster up his own morale when he lied about his job and prospects. He was just like a little boy whistling in the dark, and what you considered lies were nothing more than frustrated dreams—and it was your cue to help him make those dreams come true instead of questioning him into insensibility. You say you encouraged your husband to become one? There can be no doubt

BEAUTY HINTS

Although the thin angular woman looks most unattractive in a bathing suit, I think that the fat woman presents a far more lamentable appearance in such garb. Yet there is no necessity for any obese woman to have an ugly figure. An overly plump figure can have excellent lines, provided that steps are taken to distribute the excess flesh evenly over the body. The woman who has pretty lines to her silhouette despite a noticeable excess of poundage, is the woman who has eliminated the rolls of fat around knees, thighs, ankles and upper arms, and the lump of fat at the back of her neck. Wherever such lumps of fat exist I suggest that vigorous massage be used to break up the fatty tissues—whether the fat be around the ankles, knees, thighs, neck or arms. This massage should be administered twice a day for a period of five or ten minutes. For the back of the neck where most fleshy women grow a wad of fat, the pater will prove more effective than kneading and massaging with hand. The woman who keeps her line although she gets more than her normal share of weight, isn't the one who lolls around all the time, either. She is invariably the active fat woman who does more than her dip when she goes to the beach. Some people seem to think they can reduce their weight by making their beach trips nothing more than frying orgies. The sun's rays are indeed beneficial to the body, but they will not miraculously eliminate the excess fat from the body.

OVER HALF OF DELAWARE FARMS IN SUSSEX COUNTY

More than half of the farms in Delaware are in Sussex county, which contains slightly less than 50 per cent of the land area of the State, according to County Agent C. R. Snyder, who has made a survey. A large proportion of the farms throughout Sussex county are operated by the owner, and the percentage of farms mortgaged is smaller than the remainder of the State.

The average size of the lower Delaware farms is smaller than the remainder of the State, and the valuation less; but the acre value is almost equal with the rest of the State. To get the best yields from timothy and clover hay, seed half of the timothy seed in the fall, 2.5 pounds to 4.5 pounds per acre, and seed the other half in spring with the clover. The U. S. Department of Agriculture has found that seeding timothy in the fall at the rate of 5 or more pounds per acre, and clover in the spring, gives lower hay yields than when the same quantity of timothy is seeded in spring. When timothy is fall-seeded and clover is spring-seeded the yield of hay declines as the rate of seeding timothy is increased above five pounds per acre.

SOME days ago I requested all of my friends not to participate in the Every Evening Senatorial Popularity Contest and gave my reasons therefor. I observe that some of my friends have overlooked this request. I again request my friends not to participate in this poll in any way. JOSIAH MARVEL

BREEZY COX Bronk rider who will appear at the World Series Rodeo, Municipal Stadium, Philadelphia. EARL THODE Winner of all round cowboy championship at the Garden. Dates Announced For World Series Rodeo at Philadelphia Stadium. Not every Westerner rides bucking bronks, any more than every baseball fan is an expert shortstop or pitcher. Riding bronks did not become a fad overnight. It is an accomplishment born of necessity. Every horse has to be broken to saddle before it can be ridden, and in the days of the open range the cayuse was the only means of transportation available to the cowboy. Every year horses had to be broken and riding them called for a highly specialized skill. So the bronk rider came to take his place in the development of the range and its activities.

WINTER LEGUMES

Many farmers are finding that it pays to include winter legumes in crop rotation, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Studies made by the department in Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina and South Carolina indicate that where winter legumes are plowed down for use in the corn yield is increased from 1.5 to 3.0 bushels an acre, provided a good growth of legumes and a good stand of corn are secured. The time and manner of sowing the legume seed, the inoculation of the seed or soil, the use of fertilizer, the time of plowing down the legumes, the date of planting the corn, and the time elapsed from plowing to planting, all affect the returns from the corn crop.

TO GET RID OF ANTS

House-inhabiting ants, such as the little red or Pharaoh's ant, and other species that get into furniture, wood work, etc., are difficult to eradicate because of their inaccessibility. If the nest can be located, destroy the inmates by injecting into the opening a little carbon disulphide, Kerosene, or gasoline. Use an oil can or syringe. Take care, of course, to keep away from these inflammable materials. Dusting sodium fluoride about the runways of ants will kill them. Leave no food where ants can get at it.

GETTING THE MOST FROM YOUR PULLETS

The pullets in the poultry flock should get a good growing ration in late summer and early fall so that they will be in laying condition by October or at least by the first part of November. If the pullets start laying too early, however, reduce the amount of protein in the ration. It may be advisable to omit milk from the ration. Pullets that begin to lay early—4 to 5 months of age—are inclined to lay very small eggs or that may lay a few eggs and then go to a molt. Mrs. M. K. G. and Hazel Ryan. The only thing you can do is to have your hair dyed. Once you start the practice, however, it entails numerous trips to the beauty shop, for the work must be done by an expert.

U. S. Navy and State American Legion To Cooperate With Wilmington Chapter, N. A. A., To Air Mark Delaware

Rear Admiral L. A. Bostwick, Commandant, 4th Naval District, has endorsed the Wilmington Chapter, N. A. A., campaign for air marking Delaware by placing an aeroplane and pilot at the disposal of H. Drake Perkins, Chairman of the Air Marking Committee. This plane will survey the entire State of Delaware on August 17 with the purpose of selecting suitable towns and locations for air markings. The plane will be piloted by Ensign F. A. C. Wardenburg, U. S. N. R., who is a member of the local chapter and of the Air Marking Committee.

of the project and will bring it to the attention of the American Legion Posts throughout the State for their consideration. Air marking is invaluable to aeroplane pilots unfamiliar with the country and to all pilots during times of bad weather or poor visibility. A properly air-marked town has its name painted on some roof or other prominent object. The sign should also include an arrow pointing true north, together with another arrow pointing to the nearest airport or landing field. Air marking a town is a courtesy extended to the air traveler, puts the town on the air map and encourages flying, thereby contributing to national defense. It is most important that the smaller towns be marked, for these are least recognizable to strange pilots who may vitally need their bearings in bad weather. Towns so marked are advertised in the Bulletin of the Aeronautics Branch, Dept. of Commerce, and, therefore, this effort will advertise the community, foster local pride and mark the town as a wide-awake progressive community.

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

FOR the best toast you have ever tasted, lay the slices of bread in the open oven for a few minutes before toasting them. In addition to improving the flavor, it makes the toast more digestible, and it browns much more evenly.

In providing for your family's health during the summer, remember that iced beverages are by no means a luxury; that on the contrary they are as healthful as they are delicious. The fruit juices furnish vitamins, the sugar is a much needed source of quick energy, while the beverage as a whole replenishes in the body the liquid lost in the form of perspiration.

TWO SERVICES AT COUNTY WORKHOUSE

Two services, one for men and the other for women, were held at the Workhouse Sunday. The gathering of 475 men in the Workhouse was addressed by Captain N. H. Cochran, of the Protestant Episcopal Church Army, while the twenty-one women in the annex attended a service conducted by women of the North Baptist Church.

Captain Cochran, whose home is in Ansonia, Conn., preached on the subject of "Jesus, the Great Healer." He cited the healing successively by Christ of a slightly ill woman, of a leper and finally of his raising a girl from the dead. Besides physical healing such as Jesus demonstrated while on earth, his ability to heal the spiritual ills of mankind continues and is greater than the other, the preacher said. He pointed out that no one ever does anything so bad that he gets beyond the aid of Jesus Christ to make him whole, if he will but believe in the Savior of Men.

A solo selection, "The Old Rugged Cross," was sung by Captain Cochran, accompanied at the piano by Miss Frantz Clark, director of the Glee Club of the institution. The men attending the service sang several hymns.

Hidden In a South Sea Island

Sunset found a little tramp steamer cutting through the placid waters of the sapphire Mediterranean. Vague outlines on the short quickly faded from sight. An island appeared that sloped upward to a cloud-crowned peak. By dusk and by starlight the craft slowly moved to the shelter of a quiet cove. A hazy tropical moon shone down upon the placid waters and in the stillness the steamer was indeed "a painted ship upon a painted ocean." By moonlight, what had seemed dirty and grimy by day, was changed into a ship of silver and gold. The moon rose high and slowly a village rambling up a winding hillside unveiled itself. Here and there the landscape was dotted with chalk-white houses. Higher still the island revealed fields of grain wavering in the light breeze. The ship's eight-bells broke the night's stillness and reluctantly all turned below.

The early morning sun peered over the distant horizon turning the sky into blue. A breeze stirred the water into waves. Sea birds sailing overhead chattered their morning cries at this invasion of their freedom.

Over the expanse of blue water a boat with a single occupant separated itself from the shore line and swiftly approached the ship. It bore a native and in the bow of his boat there was fruit of every description. Childlike he began to display his wares. He sat motionless while the wild fruit was being consumed.

Looking to the island of Alboran, flooded with sunlight, one felt a desire to find some method by which the native would reveal its adventure and mystery. Although it was conveyed in broken Spanish he understood the mission that was being asked of him. He seemed reluctant, but fixed his gaze on a pearl-handled knife that had been used during breakfast. When it was handed to him a broad smile of delight spread over his features and he pointed the way to his boat.

The craft was soon pulled up on the sandy shore and he led the way to the village. Everyone seemed to be busy in the quiet, lazy manner that is characteristic of the tropics. In every street sounded the soft slap of the potters. In a score of cobbled-paved courts were newly baked jars heaped high, or being wound with straw for shipment. Other streets had open markets that overflowed with fruit. Above all was the noise of lolling carriages and the pattering of hempen sandals along sandy walks.

Outside the village the native plunged into the tangled undergrowth of the jungle. The stillness was broken only by the flutter of wings and the scamperings of wild creatures. The two stopped occasionally for a cool drink from springs and ate from wild mango trees. Suddenly the undergrowth parted and they were greeted by a roar and there, like a white veil, reflecting a million prisms of color, was a waterfall. It fell from a high copper-colored cliff into a deep pool of green, swirling water that twisted and played and ran away into the protecting forest. On one side of the high cliff, that consummate artist, nature, had craved her handiwork. The profile of a face watched quietly, and listened in mute wisdom of stone. Its gaze met the blue sky and guarded the temple with its silent presence. Out of the sky a streak of color shot, wavered, and after a moment settled at the water's edge, and a bird, magnificent in plumage, began to drink and play in the cool water; sending sparkling jewels in the air at each flutter of its wings.

All was quiet but for this. Everything had been forgotten in this array of glorious beauty. The native was crouched on bended knees watching the scene with an absorption that commanded admiration. Here he sought refuge; here he had found, in his simplicity, the secret of happiness. Humbly he had come to accept that which is beautiful; he asked no more, and was content. Gravely the two turned to the jungle and the village. It was late afternoon and the heat had driven all but a few playful children to the shade of their huts.

With the sunset's transitory glow the steamer slowly left the island. A few gold stars appeared.

AUTOMOBILE OWNERS URGED TO HAVE CARS INSPECTED

A letter was sent out last week by Charles H. Grantland, Secretary of State, urging automobile owners to have their cars inspected.

In the letter Mr. Grantland emphasized the fact that the free inspection period ends September 1, and warns that after that date car registrations will not be renewed for anyone who fails to have inspection made. Necessary adjustments or repairs may be made by yourself or by any garage you may select, the letter states. The official red windshield sticker must be secured, however, following inspection at one of the official inspection stations.

There is no charge for this service during the period of the campaign as the State pays the entire expense, but after that date the charge for the inspection will be a matter of adjustment between the garage operator and the car owner.

"It is the intention of the Secretary of State's office, declares Mr. Grantland, 'not to renew car registrations for 1931 until the Automobile Department has been satisfied that the car owners have their vehicles in safe operating condition.'"

"BUSINESS PICKS-UP"

Better business, promised since last January, is not merely in sight but already here, says the Washington, D. C., Times. Detroit auto plants have been among the first to sense the change. The other day they put 150,000 more men to work.

Some plants resuming heavy production are Packard, Graham-Paige, General Motors Truck, Ford, Oakland Pontiac, Gammor Manufacturing, Motor Products and Timken-Detroit Axle. All along the line, says a dispatch from the parts factories to the big plants from which roll the finished cars, machinery will begin to turn.

Big Circus Will Show In Newark

Famous Walter L. Main Aggregation Will Be Here Septer 2

With summer comes the circus is an old saying and it means "Oh Joy" for the kiddies as well as the grown-ups. The rings filled with racing, dancing, prancing equine beauties and at one man's command executing evolutions smoothly, incredibly and unflinchingly all the feats of the big brother horses. The troops of trained canines displaying wonderful animal intelligence, proving that they are thinking individuals conclusively is an educational inspiration to the young and old and the most thrilling and most entertaining display of feature acts ever seen under a big circus tent.

The Walter L. Main Circus is well and favorably known from ocean to ocean and has exhibited in every State in the Union and every province of Canada, a mammoth aggregation and over a half century old and all new this year, and the only big circus to be seen in this territory, that carries more performing lions than carried by any other circus, including two of the largest Egyptian dromedaries—as tall as the tallest giraffe, "Baby elephant Bozo," baby lions, leopards, monkeys, a baby camel recently born and by its mother's side, first to be born in this country in fifty years.

Three bands lend both tune and enchantment to the big three-ring performance given under the mammoth water and sun-proof, electric lighted canvass. The Main Circus never divides or disappoints—and is not to be confused with some small shows playing the territory advertising animals which they have not. The only and original Walter L. Main Circus, Museum and real Managerie, Wild West and Egyptian Caravan will exhibit one day only in Newark, on Tuesday, September 2, giving two performances, 2 and 8 p. m. Grand free outside exhibition on the show grounds at 1 and 7 p. m. Doors open at 1.30 and 7.30 p. m. Especially reduced prices for this day and date only. Plenty of free parking space will be provided for.

RUSS REFUSED COMMUTATION OF DEATH SENTENCE

The State Board of Pardons, composed of the Chancellor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State, State Treasurer and State Auditor, sat all Monday afternoon in the Supreme Court Room in the State House at Dover, hearing argument of counsel in favor of the application of Theodore Russ for commutation of sentence from that of hanging to that of life imprisonment.

Russ is the negro who was convicted of criminal assault last February on Mrs. Mary Reed, a white woman living near Woodside, Kent county. He was sentenced to be hanged July 25th but Governor Buck, at the solicitation of many prominent colored citizens of the state, granted him a four weeks' reprieve to give his counsel the opportunity to prove their contention that he was innocent of the crime of which he had been convicted.

After argument by counsel representing the accused and also by the Attorney General's office, the Pardon Board adjourned to meet Monday night for further consideration of the matter. At the night session the Board refused to make a recommendation to the Governor in the matter.

Unless the Governor grants a further delay this will mean that Russ will hang Friday as the four weeks' reprieve originally granted by Governor Buck expires at 10 o'clock in the morning on that day.

BEANS ARE BEING CANNED

The pack of various products by Delaware canners this year will not reach fifty per cent of the normal pack, according to United States Senator John G. Townsend, Jr., and others in close contact with the conditions. It is expected that the pack of some products will not be over 20 or 30 per cent of normal.

According to Senator Townsend the pack of lima beans was very short in Delaware. The same was true of string beans. In some sections of the State where there has been slight rain there is a good crop of tomatoes but in other sections the crop is short and there will not be more than fifty per cent pack. The pack of string beans will not exceed 20 per cent and the lima beans crop packed will not be over 40 per cent.

At present the canneries which have started operations are canning lima beans and string beans. A few have started on corn. The tomato crop in most parts of the State has also suffered considerably and the amount of corn which a few canneries are now packing.

In some parts of the State the employees in the canneries are local people for the first time in years. Outside labor is being used in some places where the supply of labor is limited.
