Dr. Mitchell At High School

Urges Development of Civic Patriotism

The first Community Meeting of the season, held in the High School building last Monday evening, was largely attended. Following a short musical program furnished by Misses Mary and Alma Warren and Elizabeth McNeal, the meeting was addressed by Dr. S. C. Mitchell on "Civic Patriotism." Dr. Mitchell held his audience to a serious comparison of the demands of Civic Patriotism as contrasted with the martial demand of Europe. The talk was filled with inspiration for the hearers, and emphasized the opportunity for service in every community. The talk in substance follows:

"It is the tragedy of modern civilization that we are broken up into sects and cliques, and lose power accordingly," Dr. Mitchell said.

"From meetings such as these we gather greatest encouragement for the continued greatness of our nation. We have been watching a marvelous outburst of patriotism; a patriotism that is martial; a patriotism in all its original virtue. Twenty million men are leaving their homes to participate in a war, sometimes called a war of governments. But as we see the great array marching forth we believe the men and women back of the governments are in strict accord with their purposes."

We Americans have begun to question "Are we quite equal to those across the sea?" We must stop here to consider that there are two sides to patriotism, one of which is the object of this meeting tonight." The speaker paused here to illustrate with the story of Cameron, the British subject, captured in a foreign land, for the rescue of whom millions in wealth and thousands in lives were spent.

"This," the speaker declared, "is national patriotism." But there is a second form, a form which would impel East London to a similar uprising in rescuing a family from unsanitary conditions, from surroundings that prohibited decent living, from work in a sweatshop. When we come to realize the nobility of civic patriotism, of embracing every human being in our plans for betterment, we are moving on to better things. As we watch that mighty martial outburst in Europe, it is the time to nurture civic patriotism in our own land."

"Some time ago," Dr. Mitchell said, "I stood on King's Mountain in South Carolina, so closely resembling Iron Hill with which we are so familiar. A boy about sixteen drove me from the station. 'Where do you go to school, my lad?' I asked. 'I don't go' was the reply. 'Where did you go?' was the next question. 'I have never been,' was the shocking answer. A few minutes later as I stood on the old battlefield and read the inscription on the shaft to memorialize the sacrifices of our forefathers, I

Rally Day Exercises

Rally Day observed in the Presbyterian Sunday School last Sunday was attended by 260 pupils and visitors. Pleasing exercises marked the day. Six members of the school, in costume, impersonating children from other lands, greeted by an American child, forcibly presented the lesson of brotherly kindness and good-will toward all mankind. Instead of the usual class-room study of the lesson, the subject was treated before the entire school by Dr. S. C. Mitchell. Solos by Miss Marian Campbell and Miss Schindler, of the Women's College, were features of the program.

Those taking part in the children's dialogue were Katherine Reed, Sarah Steel, Mary Frances Hayward, Margaret Cooch, Charlotte Hossinger, Cortlandt Houghton and Charles Ameigh.

AN APPEAL TO AMERICA

The following little poem was sent to the New York Tribune this week, and expresses the need to which the Red Cross is responding. (We reprint at the request of a reader):

In this hour of darkest night
Little children cry for light;
Cry and call across the sea,
Stretching tiny hands to thee;
Sob and call and cry for bread,
In this hour of deepest dread.

In this hour of grief and fear
They are calling to us here
They are sobbing in the rain,
Cold and hasty and in pain
Babies, frightened in the night
Crying, calling for a light.

From the terror and the cold
May we not one lamb enfold
Lay one drooping little head
On its pillow, comforted;
Burn one candle, clear and bright,
Where the children cry for light?

In our comfort and our ease
Shall we not hush one of these?
In the midst of all our store
Can we not hold one heart more?
Fill one little outstretched hand
From the harvest of the land?
Children call across the sea,
Lifting tiny hands to thee.

Delaware Marker At Valley Forge

The marker which the State of Delaware will erect at Valley Forge in memory of her valiant sons who figured so prominently in the Revolutionary War, will be placed in the most picturesque part of the historic place. Judge Henry C. Conrad, ex-Lieutenant-Governor John M. Mendenhall and John P. Hyatt, members of the commission appointed by Governor Miller to install the memorial, went to Valley Forge yesterday. They were accompanied by Dr. John W. Jordan, of Philadelphia, secretary of the Valley Forge Commission and Librarian of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

At the suggestion of Dr. Jordan, and subject to ratification by the Valley Forge Commission at its meeting in Philadelphia today, a site for the Delaware marker was selected on the brow of a hill, but a quarter of a mile from Washington's headquarters and overlooking the Schuylkill river and the beautiful Schuylkill Valley. It faces the principal road in the reservation and is, in every way, an attractive location. Its proximity to the main entrance to the reservation and its nearness to Washington's headquarters will make it available to pedesrians.

It is planned to dedicate the marker early next month. The memorial was completed some time ago and is now at Valley Forge. Governor Miller, Judge Conrad and possibly others, will make addresses. The last legislature appropriated $500 for the installation of the marker. It is of Braudwyne granite—a Delaware product being desired—and will compare very favorably with the markers erected by other states on the reservation. It was designed and manufactured by the Standard Granite Company.

Entertainment Postponed

The moving-picture benefit for a Christmas fund for the children of the community, as announced last week, for October 13, has been indefinitely postponed. The chairman of the committee wished to announce that tickets already purchased will be good at a later date.

Library At Public School

The Milford Public Library has been transferred to the public schools of the town. The books have been placed in new cases in the principal's office, and the work of classification is being directed by teachers in the school.

Student Guides For Saturday

In order that every visitor to Delaware College and the Women's College on the occasion of the inauguration of President Mitchell and the formal opening of the new College on October 10 may have an opportunity to inspect the equipment of both colleges, two committees of students—one from each college—have been appointed to act as guides. These guides, who will wear badges, will be stationed at the entrance to the Delaware College Campus and to the buildings of the Women's College. They will not only act as guides but will act also as bureaus of information and as ushers at the exercises. All laboratories, class rooms, offices, shops, kitchens, dining rooms and libraries will be thrown open on that day to the inspection of all visitors. The following students have been selected to serve on the committee at the Women's College: Miss Lura Shorb of Dover, chairman; and Misses Beatrice Crossmore, Wyoming; Marian Campbell, Newark; Helen Barclay, Newport; Virginia Harrington, Harrington; Alice Jeffries, Wilmington; Isabel Stott, Dover; Miss Ethel Grieves of Smyrna will act as students' marshall. PLAYERS TIE IN MATCH FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

The Newark Club on Saturday defeated Bancroft 5 to 0, making the series 2 to 2. This makes it necessary to play a fifth game here next Saturday afternoon. "Buck" Hoch, who pitched the second game of the series in Wilmington two weeks ago, was really the hero of this game. The Bancroft players were unable to do anything with his delivery and he was especially good with men on the bases. Crouch was on the rubber again for Bancroft, and while he was not supported as well as Hoch, his pitching was not near as good. Newark connected with his southpaw offerings at opportune times and really won the game as early as the third inning when two runs were scored.

The defensive work of the entire Newark club was a feature of the game.

The series stands:

	W.	L.	Pet.
Bancroft	2	2
Newark	2	2

The play by innings follows:

First inning, Newark—Seanlon out; Crouch to Vernon; Jackson out; Duncan to Vernon; Morris walked; Morris out; Flood to Duncan. No runs.

DELAWARE WINS FIRST HOME GAME

The football season on Joe Frazier Field opened last Saturday when the Delaware boys defeated the team from Polytechnic Institute, Baltimore, by a score of 27 to 6. The game though marred by much fumbling on both sides, was nevertheless interesting. Pleasing features of the afternoon were the music furnished by the College Band, led by E. W. Martin, and the cheering of the girls from the Women's College.

The game in detail follows:

First Quarter—Polytechnic kicked off. Delaware carried the ball to the 45-yard line. Here they were forced to kick. Bratton kicked to Fallow, who was downed on his 10-yard line. Polytechnic carried the ball to the 20-yard line, where they lost it on a fumble.

Successive rushes by Handy, Taylor and Fidance brought the ball to Polytechnic's 5-yard line. Delaware fumbled. Eisenbrandt recovered the pigskin and ran the length of the field for a touchdown. Michael missed the goal. Polytechnic again kicked off. Wilson caught the ball and ran to the 40-yard line before being tackled. Delaware again lost the ball on a fumble. Delaware held for downs.

Bratton made five yards around right end. Taylor and Fidance failed to gain and Delaware lost the ball on downs. Michael skirted right end for 10 yards, when Fidance cut him down. Handy downed Herr after another 10 yard run. Crothers recovered a fumble on Delaware's 35 yard line. Fidance made 20 yards around the end and on the next play Handy made 30 yards off tackle. Fidance was thrown for a loss. Delaware then failed in a trick forward pass, Groff to Cann. Delaware 0. Polytechnic 6.

Second Quarter—Delaware failed in another trick forward, Cann to Groff. Polytechnic was penalized for off-sides. Handy, Taylor and Wilson rushed the ball to the 5-yard line. Handy carried it over for Delaware's first touchdown. Taylor kicked the goal.

Delaware kicked off to Polytechnic and held for downs on the 25 yard line. Michael punted to Delaware's 35-yard line and Polytechnic recovered the ball. Handy and Crothers broke up a couple of end runs. Polytechnic then executed a neat forward pass which netted 15 yards.

Polytechnic failed to gain thru the line and was also unsuccessful in a fake kick. Handy broke up two successive forward passes.

Delaware got the ball on the 20-yard line. Taylor punted to Herr, who was brought to earth by Crothers. Delaware 7. Polytechnic 6.

Third Quarter—E. Wilson kicked off to Fallow. Newton downed him on the 20-yard line. Grey broke up a forward. Polytechnic was again penalized for off-sides. Here Polytechnic was forced to kick. The kick was blocked but Polytechnic recovered the ball. Michael then punted to Fidance who fumbled, Taylor recovering the ball. Handy, Taylor, and Fidance carried the ball down the line for a touchdown. Taylor kicked the goal. Wilson broke thru the line for another touchdown. Taylor kicked the goal. Polytechnic kicked off to Taylor. Polytechnic kicked off to Taylor. Taylor made 30 yards before being tackled. Delaware then pulled off the prettiest pass of the game, Groff to Cann. Delaware 0. Polytechnic 6.

On the next play, Grey ran 20 yards for a touchdown. Taylor missed the goal.

Wilson kicked off to Herr. Smart dropped him on the 35-yard line. Handy made 15 yards on an intercepted pass. Delaware 27. Polytechnic 6.

Fourth Quarter—Cann and Fidance both failed to gain. Delaware resorted to a forward pass. Herr intercepted the pass and was tackled by Smart. Delaware was penalized for off-sides. Wilson threw Michael for a loss. Polytechnic made 20 yards on a neatly executed forward pass. They attempted another pass but Taylor intercepted it. Taylor, Gray and Handy each made first downs. Delaware failed in an attempted forward pass, but the ball struck the goal posts. Eisenbrandt recovered the ball behind his own goal line. As the whistle blew, ending the game, Cann threw Herr for a loss. Line-up:

OPTOMETRIST — One skilled in optometry, an expert in measuring eye defects. A physical Eye Specialist.

Concerning Your Eyes

Good eyesight is essential to health and comfort. Eye strain uncorrected leads to nervous disorders and is a factor in causing many reflex disturbances.

Tired, aching eyes, frequent pain over the eyes or heads aches are some of the indications of eye strain. At other times the eyes give no indication themselves of strain, but endeavor to keep up the demand upon them, by using the reserve accommodative power until they give out.

GLASSES RELIEVE EYE STRAIN

Success in relieving eye strain depends entirely upon the skill of the practitioner who prescribes the glasses. Our Optometrists are experienced and capable.

OVERHEAD WIRES

If ever Council was up against an issue it is now, with the Diamond State Telephone Co. We have no hesitancy whatever in believing that Council is well able to take care of themselves and the interests of the town. These remarks are not written to arouse any fighting blood but only to say that the town is back of them to the finish in seeing to it that no additional pole lines are erected on the streets of Newark. If the franchise given the Company last May gives them the privileges, their representative claimed Monday night, then revoke it at once. His none too polite request for O. K. on a new line on the North side of Main street from eastern entrance of town to Chapel street is, to our mind, only an entering wedge—a precedent. If it is granted and the letter of the contract with the Company so reads, then even Council can't stop them. By establishing this precedent, the citizens may well make ready for a net work of wires over the streets of the town, at the option of the Company. The representative practically said that the ordinance was so worded that the Company had the right of way on any street in town with the exception of exact location of poles. The copy of the ordinance was in the Bank safe and could not be referred to at the meeting. When the members of Council recalled the ordinance but not according to his interpretation, he stoutly contradicted it in no uncertain terms.

Council has been lenient with pole line companies and has made easy their franchise in Newark. In spite of this, they do not seem to enter into the spirit of co-operation. They are asking too much. One street line and one private right of way is sufficient to serve the needs of this town, even if it is the best paying telephone town in the world.

Citizens, not only along the proposed line but all over the town, are incensed over the new proposal. Several inquiries were made at this office yesterday concerning the comments of Council at the meeting.

The special meeting will be held on Monday evening to take up the matter. If the wording of the ordinance grants this right, we hope it is revoked at once without a semblance of precedent. A gentle, straightforward lecture on modern public utilities would also be in order.

As a postscript it is worthy of mention, according to admission of the Company that ruthless tree hacking is unnecessary if cables are used. This admission should end for all time the disregard shown trees on our streets.

DELAWARE DAY

OCTOBER 10th, 1914, marks a new era in Delaware. While it may be difficult to check the actual results, we recognize any advance in education marks a development in the citizenship and welfare of the State. Delaware College is a force for good today but speaking comparatively, it is just realizing its opportunity. Its future usefulness looms large.

In the exercises here on Saturday, every citizen of whatever station should be vitally interested. No taxpayer, however humble, is free from a certain responsibility in this State-wide movement for better educational advantages.

The installation of the new president, the formal dedication of the Women's College, promise great things and it is our duty to render assistance in every way.

We of Newark have a peculiar responsibility in our relations to the College. The State has, we think wisely, designated Newark as the home for these institutions. They are not ours in any local sense yet they are in our keeping. Let us see to it that there be no sense of regret on the part of the State that our community has been chosen.

On Saturday, invited guests from all parts of the State will be present. It promises in every sense to be a Delaware Day, truly representative of all phases of our life. It will be a day marking a striking change. Let us see that our guests are given every attention, thus expressing our appreciation of making Newark the educational clearing house of Delaware.

OUR COMMUNITY

COMMUNITY Meetings in Newark as instituted by the High School Alumni Association, have struck a popular chord. Their success and influence for community good depends now on the citizenship itself. Station in life, creed, party or social set have no prominence here. It works for good in that it makes for raising the standard of average opinion. Here plans for town betterment are projected in keeping with a majority opinion and sentiment.

The Association has demonstrated clearly that there exists a community spirit in Newark. In their success, they have reason to be proud. They have presented the idea and its opportunity. Now everyone should personally concern himself in bringing about some definite issue. These Community meetings are not intended to take away any of the effectiveness of work done by the several town clubs and organizations, but rather to act as the social clearing house of all movements. An active membership in some club or social set prompts a special duty toward this community service. Any organization in town working on some definite line for improvements would do well to present their cause to the community at these meetings. This would insure for co-operation thus making for greater success.

Those absent last evening missed a rare treat in Dr. Mitchell's talk on "Civic Patriotism." He presented a pleasing opportunity and vital responsibility to every one living in and around Newark.

THE DUTY OF CITIZENSHIP

EVERY citizen in this country is vitally interested in its government, and all have a duty to perform. The right of franchise is our constitutional privilege, and the exercising of this function is our imperative duty as well as ourselves.

This calls for thought and study. When we go to the polls to cast our ballot we ought to be acquainted with every question that is voted on, and also know what each party and candidate stands for. The time for blindly following a party leader, just because he belongs to a certain organization, is past. It is time for us to give more attention to the affairs of town, county, state and nation. Many important questions are being threshed out, and every one is of interest to us.

Good citizenship demands that you think in a fair, logical and unbiased way before you vote. Don't condemn and tear down unless you know whereof you speak. Don't be antagonistic to big movements of the day just because your father before you was. Have a reason; know why you think as you do, and when once you have satisfied yourself, by careful research, go ahead as your conscience dictates, and go hard. Take an interest in everything. You can't get good men in office by simply staying at home and criticizing. It takes work and your influence is needed for good.

Honest, honorable and capable men are needed in every office. If a dishonest, unscrupulous man holds office in your territory, it is undoubtedly the fault of the good people in the territory that he is there. It is too often the case that most people are indifferent to politics, and they do not care who is elected until too late. Right now every good citizen is needed to take an active interest in the affairs of state. It is simply mutual, for you need the country and the country needs you.

Too often we hear people say they would not take an office if it were tendered to them, as they are too busy, farm or business needs them, etc. This is the worst kind of selfishness, and is decidedly unbecoming to an American citizen. If the majority of people took this view, where would we be? We owe our Government a service, and if that service be in seeing that capable and trusty men are put in office, or if it be in filling that office yourself, do not flinch, as this is "a government of the people, for the people and by the people." We, taken together, are the people and all have a duty to perform which we should consider a privilege as well as a solemn duty.

—Practical Farmer.

GET THAT PENNANT

NEWARK Ball Team—look here boys, it's up to you now. Champion of the Tri-County League! Yes, and we appreciate it. Tied with Baneroff! Yes, you certainly put one over on them. You are all right. Baneroff, 2, Newark, 2, and the State Championship at stake. What more incentive do you want? None, we know.

Every man in the game. Exciting, it certainly is. But just this once more, a steady eye. The pennant is yours. Get it!

We want that Pennant!

shuddered to remember the boy and what we had failed to give him. I wondered if we were worthy of the patriots' early sacrifices. I believe it requires less courage to do as Europe, in one wild dash, less persistence of will, less ability of soul, than in keeping up the constant fight for higher ideals, broader education and nobler purposes. There is a great deal of virtue, my friends in civic patriotism, and a great demand for it.

"In a recent number of one of the great periodicals of the country the editor has seen fit to reprint at this time an article published several years ago on 'War.' The writer maintains that it takes war to develop the mighty virtues of a nation. I cannot believe that men and women, made in the image of God, find it necessary to resort to the practices of the beast, in order to burnish the soul.

"Just as it sweetens a home to have a child to cherish, so it profits a community to have some great object to challenge its gratitude, its sacrifice." Dr. Mitchell was called some time ago to a small town in the South, which enjoyed marked material prosperity. In order to safeguard the community from losing a sense of the finer, the real things of life, they were seeking some great object which would bind them together in the pursuit of some unselfish end. In the particular instance to which the speaker referred, this feeling resulted in a splendid women's college.

Dr. Mitchell compared the country surrounding Newark to the Blue Grass of Kentucky, or to the choicest, the southern part of England. He enumerated our wonderful advantages, dwelling upon the educational system, free from the elementary grade, to the A. B. or B. S. degrees; to railroad facilities which might be envied by many cities of 150,000; to traditions of the place. Dr. Mitchell referred to the beauty of gathering in a place which since the time of the Penns, had been the center of inspiration for men many of whom had figured largely in the history of our land—the beauty of gathering in such a building to feel the unity of the community, the spirit of co-operation. It is indeed a richness of inspiration that we possess.

"All of these advantages are reasons for gratitude and incentives for nobler endeavor," Dr. Mitchell said. "Shall we not enlarge upon the evidences of progress that are here? Shall we not erect here an ideal community—one that is prosperous not only in the moneyed sense, although that is perhaps the first requirement. But the great question is "What is the trend of public opinion in Newark?" What does it command? What does it condemn? Are the churches thriving? What is the death-rate in the community? The most hopeful sign I can see is in meetings such as these, to discuss and energize the purposes of the community."

THE TOWN TO BE TREATED TO LAUGHTER

ELLSWORTH PLUMSTEAD, the Impersonator, made one of the greatest hits of the season on the Chautauqua Circuit last summer. He gave a selection called "When Ezra Sang Bass," which no one who heard it can forget. Of course there were other characterizations which Mr. Plumstead gave with almost equal effect, but "Ezra" is one of those he is best remembered for. He will be seen here at the Lyceum Festival. Plumstead's business in life is to make people laugh with him, not at him. The laugh which is shared by all who are interested and leaves no sting is the greatest gift of mankind. The laugh which all share alike is elevating, and after enjoying it one is better for it. There is nothing clownlike in the work he does. It exercises wrinkles of the brain, which are all too seldom used.

The travelers will return with Prof. and Mrs. Penny and be their guests for a number of days.

Dr. George W. Marshall of Milford, has presented a complete basketball equipment to the new Women's College.

LITTLE SKETCHES OF FARM LIFE, BY ISRAEL ANDIRON

There are eleven nice white little pigs at the McStegnie farm. They devote themselves to getting the most bodily satisfaction. They are at the troughs at feeding time, on the sunny side of the straw stack in the afternoons and in the softest straw in the pen at night. By a coincidence there are eleven people in the McStegnie family. Also by a coincidence they devote themselves wholly to securing for themselves what is most comfortable. They are at the table three times a day, they work through the day in a comfortable fashion to get what will most please them and at night they sleep deep in feather beds behind closed windows and dream of pork dinners and pie. Their idea of a good education is one that will enable the pupils to get physically fat and remain comfortably minded. They go to church to secure a comfortable place in the hereafter and they follow the course that will leave them the most comfortable in dealing with their neighbors and the world outside. None of the inhabitants of that farm do any one any harm especially; they are very comfortable people and comfortable neighbors.

—o—

My neighbor, Hans, born in "der Faterland," has a good crop of corn.

Down at the store the other night the new minister was talking to a few farmers who chanced there for groceries. He was exalting the restraints of life, the principle by which a man should rise from the table still a little hungry, love with reserve, remembering the love of the Lord, take wealth cautiously and spend it with frugal temperance. All wise talk for cautious, safe souls. But I felt as I heard the old saws put into clerical language that he was but a leader of mentally spectacled people. I love not the idea of eating less than will satisfy a healthy demand; I love not the ideal which minglest theology with the passion of a true man who is kind in his love. I do not regard as a saving power the cautiousness of the over-deliberate. Rather do I like to see the soul unfettered sometimes; not to plunge deep in mire or drunkenness, but to forget the limitations of an earth we cannot long abide in, to love as even the evil know how to love, with no foolish reserve, to eat and drink and to be merry sometimes, as sons of God have a right to do; forgetting the cautious, prudent stinginess of the timid. How much we see of that grindstone philosophy, here in the farm country! People go about their work year after year and the faded old shawl of the woman, the ten-year-old coat of the man, are symbols of pleasure, none save heavy moments of passion or delight. Elizabeth, Sam Johnson's widow, took a hundred dollars of her life insurance money, after he died last month, and went to Philadelphia, where she knew no one, and stayed two weeks, coming back without cash enough to pay the man who brought her home from the depot. I don't know how she passed the time and I don't think I have any business to inquire. For seventeen years she worked like a slave and lived as proper as a family horse. She was always good woman and I think she is capable of living a fortnight without a neighborhood inspection. She acts vastly more youthful and happy and kindly than ever before and I don't think she was foolish. We need, not more Puritanism nor more license, but more genuine, self-poised freedom and common sense, here where the raising of hogs and the working of all the family seem to be the chief aim of man.

—o—

My cousin Henry died the other day and the place my mother's people settled nearly a hundred years ago is to be sold to settle the estate. I went over to the funeral and Henry's wife asked me to stay a day or two and help her about her affairs, so I did. The day before Henry died there was a hard storm and the wind blew over "Grandfather's apple tree" in the yard. Grandfather had been a college man, a physician of unusual ability and very popular, and it is a tradition that he set the tree the day he took a deed to the place, a few days before his marriage. Under the roots of the tree Henry's wife found, after the storm tore it out, an old earthen jar, of small size, with the cover sealed with red sealing wax. She had been so grieved that she had put it aside and part of my help for her was to open it. We expected no treasure; we knew grandfather must have put it under his tree when it was planted, and that he had no treasure. So we found in the jar what we expected to find—love letters.

There were dozen or so, all addressed to him in the old quill written writing in use before postage stamps or envelopes were known. None of them were very loving. The girl had been flattered by his attentions, but not really interested in him, and finally had dismissed him in a formal sort of way. On the back of this last letter was grandfather's dismissal of his hope—a poem from a heart that expressed its poetry almost wholly in kindly acts to the suffering and the weary. The lines read:

Love with passion, love with pain,
Come, oh, come not back again!
Where the grey fog meets the grass,
Where the low sun reds the west.
Let me softly, unloved, pass
To a time of quiet rest!

Bobolinks shall be my lovers,
Whistling quails my trysting mates
Where the purple swallow hovers
Shall I find my heart's estates.
Kiss of rain in summer twilight
Be my greeting of delight!

Evening star and evening crescent
Are my guides in solitude;
Each with tender cheer are present,
Let no lesser joys intrude;
Whispers that are lost forever
Memory make not heard again!

Conference Changes Discussed

While the next session of the Wilmington Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is several months in the future, already possible changes are being discussed and there is considerable speculation among the ministry as to where certain plums may fall. The appointment of district superintendents, possibly two, will be the most interesting feature of the next annual session of the conference which will be held at Laurel next March. Bishop Joseph F. Berry, of Philadelphia, will preside over the conference. A district superintendent usually serves six years. The Rev. George P. Jones has been superintendent of the Salisbury district for that length of time, and his term will expire by limitation. The Rev. R. K. Stephenson also has been a district superintendent for six successive years, having served as such for one year on the Easton district and for five years on the Dover district. Some Methodists predict that he will resume the pastoral relation next March, and others assert that he can continue as superintendent of the Dover district for another year. Two pastors, the Rev. Chas. A. Hill of Crisfield, Md., and the Rev. George C. Williams of Laurel, are mentioned for the position to be vacated by Dr. Jones. The terms of the Rev. E. L. Hoffecker, superintendent of the Wilmington district, and the Rev. Robert Watt, superintendent of the Easton district, will not expire until 1916.

Some Interesting Figures

The average value of a Delaware farm is $5830, with an average acreage of ninety-six acres, making the average price of Delaware land at about $61 an acre. There are 10,836 farms in the state, with 1,038,000 acres of the land area of 1,257,000 acres in farms, with 713,900 acres in improved shape. The farms of the State represent a capital investment of $64,179,000, the farmers owning $3,206,000 worth of farm machinery and $6,817,000 worth of stock. Although there have been short crops everywhere in lower Delaware this year on account of the continued drought, yet it has served to show the wonderful fertility of Sussex county soil, with crops growing under what looks like almost impossible conditions. With but two big rains in two months, crops have done remarkably well; and despite the drought, more than 1,000 cars have been shipped from most of the important shipping stations in the county. Had there been rain, that amount would have been nearly doubled. Considering the weather and the amount of crops raised, farmers are more than satisfied with what the sands of Sussex have done for them this year. About one-half of the wheat crop in Delaware is in the hands of the farmers and most of it will remain there until higher prices come this winter. The wheat crop was a bumper one in Delaware this year, one with 70 cents a bushel being offered, few farmers were tempted to sell. That they were wise is now evidenced by the rise in price, with every indication that wheat will sell for $1.50 or $2 before spring.

The explorer Hermann Consten being in the service of the Red Cross at Liege tells the following story:

"When searching the Liege hospital for missing friends of mine a Belgian chief physician declared that he was not able to give any particulars about them; many dead German soldiers having been brought to the hospital quite naked and even robbed of their identity disks. In the hospital I learned from wounded German soldiers that the Belgians not only killed and robbed the wounded men, but even tortured the captured and wounded soldiers in the most abominable manner. They were living sawn off their legs, gouged out their eyes, and cut off their ears. In these atrocities even women did participate. Four wounded soldiers told me this dreadful story, when they were wounded and captured, and had to look on without possibility to interfere how a German officer was overwhelmed in the open street by civilians and was gouged out his eyes and cut off his ears."

At the same time with the salutary Antwerp the inhabitants of the Belgian city of Louvain attacked German supply columns from the back and killed many men, shooting out of the gateways and pouring boiling oil down from the windows. This perfidious assault was organized by the authorities and naturally caused strong measures of punishment. The city of Louvain has been partially destroyed.

Wilmington In Gala Attire

Elaborate plans are being worked out for the decoration of Wilmington for Old Home Week celebration. One hundred of the light standards on both sides of Market street will be decorated with flags, bunting and shields bearing the name of a Delaware town. Two large flags and a streamer will be placed at the top of each standard and below that two large flags crossed with a shield in the centre. In addition 5000 pennants in the national colors will be strung from the street. Strings of electric lights will be stretched across the street at regular intervals and "Welcome" signs will be placed at certain street intersections and at the P. B. & W. and B. & O. railroad stations.

land, it was again struck by the freight train. Whatever chance the family of Mr. Harlan had of escaping was thereby lost.

The bodies were all thrown from forty to fifty feet and the automobile was smashed to pieces. The freight train was extra No. 4066 and was in charge of Conductor Larkins and Engineer Harris.

Mr. Harlan has two stepsons. Aside from them his entire family met death in an instant.

Automobile Accident Near Singerly

Four persons met instant death last Saturday night, near Singerly, Md., when an automobile driven by Haines Harlan, a farmer of near Fair Hill, Md., was struck on a grade crossing by a west-bound express train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The machine and its five occupants were pitched by the express train, in front of a freight train on the opposite track.

The victims were cut to pieces.

Those killed were: Mrs. Tillie Harlan, aged 45, wife of the owner of the machine; a son, aged 9, and a daughter, aged 8; Miss Elizabeth Stewart, aged 19, a servant in the family. Mr. Harlan's escape is miraculous. His right shoulder-blade was broken, he sustained a severe scalp wound and his body was a mass of bruises. After being taken to the Union Hospital, Elkton, by Dr. Carriero, of Cherry Hill, Md., where his injuries were dressed, Mr. Harlan refused to remain, insisting upon being taken to his home.

The family party had been to Wilmington. They were on their way home, having stopped at Elkton en route. Mr. Harlan did not see the express approaching until he was within a few feet of the track.

He applied the emergency brake and brought the car to a stop directly on the tracks. Had he been able to stop an instant sooner the accident would have been prevented. As it was the locomotive struck the hood of the car.

The machine was first struck by Train No. 9, drawn by engine No.

5101, and in charge of Conductor Jenkins and Engineer Armstrong.

The train was running at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

The freight train running in an opposite direction was likewise approaching at a high rate of speed.

The trains passed in front of Sin-gerly station. When struck by the passenger train, the car was pitched some distance down the tracks.

AMONG THE NEW MAGAZINESGood News In The World Of Industry

The October number of the American Magazine contains an article by Ida M. Tarbell, introductory to a series to begin in the November number on "The Golden Rule in Business." Miss Tarbell has, for years, been a close observer of American industry. In the preparation of her articles she has observed the working of manufacturing firms, and closely studied the situation. Although she aimed, in all this work, to focus her attention on a single point—the effect of privilege on industry and on the public in general—she found it continually veering to the relations between the men at the head of the plants visited and their employees. "The Creed of Industry, as I had learned it, mainly from the lips of employers," Miss Tarbell says, "was hard, cynical, not to say inhuman."

"I run my business to suit myself."

"If a man doesn't like the way we do things he can get out."

"The more money a workman earns, the more he spends in drink."

"Humanity has nothing to do with business."

The wider my observation of the working life of the country extended, however, the more I was impressed that this was a passing creed."

Miss Tarbell about three years ago entered upon a series of visits and observations to corroborate her impression. In this time she visited scores of industrial centers. She describes her experience thus: "I have talked with hundreds of men and women; presidents and directors of companies; superintendents; foremen; consulting engineers; safety and sanitary experts; industrial nurses; men at the furnace, the loom or lathe; girls at the spinning-frame, the canning table, the counter. To see at their work all the men and women in a plant, from those with a shovel or scrubbing-brush, to those in the head offices; to look at their conditions, to see them in their homes, to learn from their lips what they thought about it all—this has been my method. The observations I have made have turned my first impression to deep conviction. A silent revolution is going on in American industry. Its creed is a direct denial of the old one. Its slogan is 'Humanity is the Foundation of Sound Business.'" atmosphere with inspiration and power, and innocent amusements instruct and brighten their lives.

To hold our young people on the farm we must make farm life more attractive as well as the business of farming more remunerative. The school house should be the social unit, properly equipped for nourishing and building character, so that the lives of our people can properly function around it and become supplied with the necessary elements of human thought and activity.—Milford Chronicle.

Aids In Buy-A-Bale-Of-Cotton Movement

A tremendous boost has been given the buy-a-bale-of-cotton movement through the decision of the duPont Powder Company to purchase $450,000 worth of cotton.

Announcement that this large sum of money is to be expended by the duPont Company in a desire to help move the cotton crop of this country, was made at the headquarters of the company in Wilmington last Friday.

The powder company has bought outright cotton to the amount of $325,000, and in addition will accept from its trade in the South warehouse certificates to a total value of $125,000 for cotton at 10 cents, making a grand total of $450,000.

This big purchase by the duPont Company is characteristic of its desire to help in any undertaking to improve conditions.

The buy-a-bale-of-cotton movement is the result of an appeal on the part of cotton growers for aid because of the European war. About two-thirds of the cotton grown in this country is exported, and the present war has cut off the demand. In an effort to help move the cotton crop, firms and individuals throughout the country are buying cotton.

According to figures from the U. S. Department of Agriculture the cotton crop will approximate 15,300,000 bales of 500 pounds each, the second largest crop recorded in our history.

Some of the happiest, most encouraging paragraphs from Miss Tarbell's introductory article are quoted below:

"I know factory after factory between the Atlantic and Mississippi where ventilation, sanitation, adaptation of tools and machinery to the workers are more scientifically managed than in the majority of schools, offices, churches, and theatres."

"Twenty years, even ten years ago, when I talked of the loss of life and limb to a railroad manager, a steel or iron master, a manufacturer, he would tell me it was 'inevitable' in his business. It was part of the price of prosperity. Today I find that in many establishments killing or maiming a man is regarded as proof of inefficiency."

"I have had as hard-hearted shop superintendents as I ever saw tell me that if a man's food is poor, his habits irregular, his wife or child sick and neglected, that man is a poor and unsafe workman. To correct the cause of his undoing as far as possible, by giving him a decent home, by teaching his wife to cook, sending a nurse to his baby—this is being recognized as truly an industrial function as putting guards on belts and wheels."

"The stability of this new movement lies in the fact that management is summoning to its aid great forces which it has hitherto believed to have little or no part in its function. It has summoned science, and growing numbers of American business managers are holding that there is no task which men perform which should not be studied scientifically in order to find the best way, which is always the easiest and quickest way, of performance."

"Nothing can stop these new ideals of Industry. Not only are the human heart and human intelligence with them, but human competition is forcing them, forcing them more rapidly and more completely than agitation or legislation has ever dreamed. * * * To those who fear change these new ways of business may seem revolutionary. To the writer they seem natural and inevitable, nothing less and nothing more."

SQUIBS

The following appearing in a New York paper was given us this week:

"There is only one instance on record of an umpire putting a man out of a game who was asleep. An umpire did put Dummy Hoy out of a game for calling him names, but Vic Willis was the victim of the even more remarkable case. Vic was with the Boston team and the players on the bench were warbling to Emslie every instant. Bob was listening hard, striving to identify the culprit and keeping an eye toward the bench. Finally he whirled:

"Willis, off the field! Get out of there!"

The Boston players suddenly became convulsed with mirth. Emslie rushed to the bench to enforce his mandate, and there was Willis, sound asleep and snoring, with his head resting against the side of the bench. Emslie had to wake him up and order him off to make good."

As a tip to Wilmington—No better way can your interest be shown in State affairs than by visiting Newark next Saturday.

The great trouble with small towns and small institutions is that one or two men are always conspiring to make a forward pass without being familiar with the signals.

While Sherman said that "War was Hell," he did not mean to imply that there was nothing doing outside the War Zone.

I should like to teach French long enough to teach some folks the significance of the phrase esprit de corps.

Lots of men pose as Conservatives, when in truth they are merely stubborn.
