K. Jean Williams, who replaced beloved executive director, Margaret Catts, at the Newark Senior Center this month, has new dreams for the year-old facility on Whitechapel Road.

Scouting in new fields

ALTHOUGH SHE DOES NOT have experience in eldercare, the new executive director of the Newark Senior Center feels she is ideally suited to the job.

"I have a lot of experience in non-profit and volunteer management, as well as personnel, fund-raising, cash management and program issues," said K. Jean Williams, a former director at the Chesapeake Girl Scout Council and the Family and Workplace Connection. "I also have extensive experience in collaborative issues."

Williams said funders want to see agencies working together when considering financial support. "The city and (the University of Delaware) are already working with the center to provide programs here, so I have a great start," she noted.

When the center was built, the city and the university joined to provide the land as well as some funding. The university also runs an Adult Daycare program in the center, and staffs the Wellness Center with students from their nursing program.

In the year since the new facility opened on Whitechapel Drive, Williams said the Newark parks and recreation department has begun to have programs meet there as much as three times a week.

"The people who designed this building had a lot of foresight," said Williams, adding that the Evergreens multi-purpose room at the center was frequently rented for private parties. "It was hard for people to believe a senior center would provide such a beautiful facility."

As a new administrator, Williams wants to

More minutes minutiae

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

COUNCILMEMBER NANCY TURNER wants Newark city council to amend their Rules of Procedure to allow members of the public to order verbatim copies of the minutes of council meetings through a council member.

According to a Resolution proposed by Turner, a council member would be able to authorize a verbatim transcription of council minutes on behalf of a "member of the electorate." The cost of preparing such a transcription would be paid for by the "individual on whose behalf the request is made."

It is unclear what is different about this proposal

Teens terrorized by armed robber

THREE YOUNG STORE CLERKS WERE robbed and terrorized by an armed man at a local video store recently while police went about their duties only yards away.

According to the 18-year-old female employee who was closing Newark Video in the Park n' Shop on Elkton Road with the help of two other female clerks, ages 18 and 16, they locked the doors at 10 p.m. as usual on July 31.

"When we were finished cleaning up, we turned out the lights and started out the front door," said the employee. "Suddenly, a black man wearing a mask jumped out from around the corner of the

City responds to lawsuit

THE CITY OF NEWARK HAS FILED its response in the lawsuit instituted by city councilmember Nancy Turner.

On July 1 Turner filed a complaint, which was amended on July 7, in Chancery Court alleging that on June 9 the Newark City Council held an executive session closed to the public "purportedly" for the purpose of discussing personnel matters for Newark.

According to paragraph eight of Turner's amended complaint, during that executive session matters unrelated to personnel were also discussed, including Turner's conduct as a council member, and various items related to Newark's Board of Ethics.

Turner claims that all this discussion is unrelated to personnel matters, should have been open to the public, and that the minutes from that executive session also should have been available for inspection and copies as a public record. She cites the Delaware

NEWARK POST • POLICE BLOTTER

■ Police Blotter is compiled each week from the files of the Newark Police Department, the New Castle County Police Department and the Delaware State Police by staff writer Mary Petzak.

Newark bank robber pleads guilty

The armed robber who held up the Sovereign Bank at Tyre and Main streets on Feb. 19 pleaded guilty to robbery in U.S. District Court on July 29.

Charles P. Bowden, 20, of Bear, who took $11,000 at gunpoint from the bank teller, was almost penniless when he was found two days later in Oregon. A photo of Bowden taken from a bank surveillance camera and published in the Newark Post was used to identify him. Bowden, who could get up to 25 years in prison, will be sentenced in October.

Purse taken by bike robber

Newark police report that on July 31 around 8 p.m. a 53-year-old woman and her 71-year-old mother were robbed while walking near Delaware Avenue and Washington Street in George Read Village. Police said a man rode up on a blue bike and stole the younger woman's purse off her arm and then fled toward the College Square shopping center. In addition to cash, the suspect described as a 30-year-old black man wearing a dark baseball cap, green T-shirt and dark jeans, also took the victim's eyeglasses.

Graffiti sprayed on bank

Sometime between July 18 at 6:30 p.m. and July 21 at 6 p.m. unknown persons sprayed paint on the rear wall of Wilmington Trust Bank as well as the guard booth in the rear. Police are investigating.

All tires taken from car

Police report that sometime between 9 p.m. on July 21 and 1 a.m. on July 22, unknown persons removed all four tires from a vehicle parked in a parking lot in the 300 block of East Main Street, leaving the vehicle on concrete blocks. Police have no suspects.

Shot glass breaks window

Sometime between July 23 at 9 p.m. and 8 a.m. the following morning, unknown persons threw a shot glass at the display window in Grassroots at Academy and Main streets. Store personnel reported damage in the amount of $300.

Woman charged in homegrown drugs

Newark Police were called to a home on Blue Jay Drive in Arbour Park three times in one day for a variety of incidents.

According to police, at around 5 p.m. on July 29, officers acting on information executed a search warrant at the home and found that marijuana was being grown there. Detectives found 57 marijuana plants ranging from one to three feet in height growing under special lights in the basement. Additional amounts of marijuana and a loaded, 38-caliber handgun were found in other parts of the house.

Resident Susanne Kucher, 38, sought in connection with the marijuana manufacture, was not home at the time.

Between 6:45 and 9:20 p.m., police were advised that Kucher of the above address was threatening to shoot herself and her boyfriend with a 22-rifle. She was taken to Newark Emergency Center for evaluation and then transported to Delaware State Hospital. Police also returned to the home to check on the welfare and arrange care of Kucher's mother who reportedly could not care for herself.

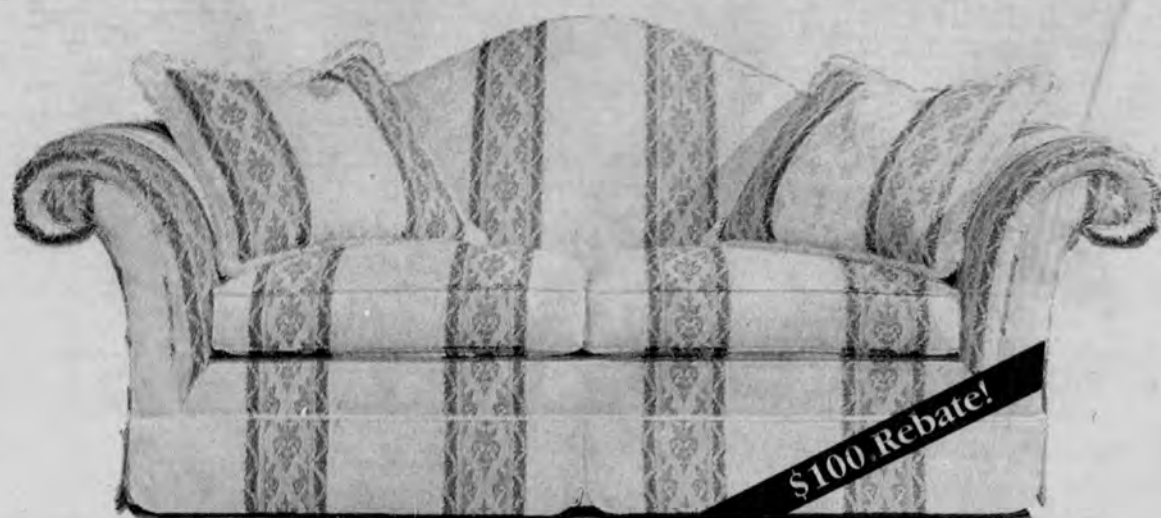

Kucher, who turned herself in to police on Aug. 4, was charged with manufacturing marijuana, possession of marijuana, maintaining a dwelling for drug activity, possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony. Police said no other charges are expected in the incidents.

Stop signs stopped here

THE PRESIDENT OF THE ABBOTSFORD Homeowners Association is incensed over a study to install stop signs in that community.

"Here we have an association of 181 homeowners who agree that the stop signs are not necessary," said Joseph Haley in a letter to the Newark Post. "But they may happen due to 'political' promises."

In his letter, Haley said Newark Police Chief William Hogan said "there are political reasons as to why the stop signs will probably be put in" Abbotsford.

During a subsequent telephone conversation, however, Haley said he did not speak with Hogan. "I was told that was what was said to other homeowners in Abbotsford," explained Haley, who also stated that someone in the community was told that city council could put stop signs in even if the residents did not want them.

According to Hogan, the city manager directed the police to look at the traffic situation in Abbotsford. "This is the second time within a year we had a request to do this," said Hogan. "I understand that in both instances, a resident of Abbotsford asked city councilman Hal Godwin that this be done."

Hogan said his department did not find stop signs "to be warranted" in the development at this time. "Most people want them to control speed," said Hogan, "but they really aren't appropriate for that."

The woman resident who requested the review from the city called Hogan following the Traffic Committee meeting in which the stop signs were deemed unnecessary.

"She was very unhappy," said Hogan, adding that overuse only causes disrespect for the traffic signs. "Even if we thought it was a good idea, we would need a petition from the development signed by 50 percent of the residents before we did anything."

Hogan added that he advised residents in Abbotsford of the need for the petition.

The police use traffic counts and "accident" history in determining if traffic measures are needed to alleviate road conditions on a city street.

"Speed bumps are more appropriate to slow down drivers," explained Hogan. "But even then, you need to use multiple ones in one area before they really do anything."

Host families sought for scholarship winners

Jamshid Allabaer from Uzbekistan, winner of the Freedom Support Act Scholarship, and Martin Bruecker from Germany, winner of the Congress Bundestag Scholarship, would like to be exchange students in this area, living with an American family and attending the local high school.

According to sponsors AYUSA, Intl., the youths are both fine, outstanding young men who passed the numerous examinations and interviews for these scholarships with flying colors.

"Now homes are needed for them!" said AYUSA representative Barbara Overton. "Both boys are excellent students, play sports, like pets, and would be in the eleventh grade."

Under the program, they will have their own insurance and spending money and will share their life in their own countries with host families while learning to live the life of an American teenager.

Students in the program must abide by the host families' household rules and curfew, help with the chores, and maintain good grades in school. The host families provide a bed (not necessarily in a private room), food, and a warm, welcoming atmosphere. American families are given a privileged look at the customs and traditions of a foreign country through their students - the next best thing to being able to travel to the child's homeland. Often host families and students form life-long bonds.

Interested families can call local AYUSA representatives, Mary Beth Gentry at (302) 992-0242 or Carolyn Joynt at (302) 777-5634.

Businesses & shoppers pleased with shopping center security

Businesses, customers and management at the Newark Shopping Center have been pleased with additional public and private security provided there this summer.

William Burris who represents owners Krapf Management, said the company asked Newark Police to take over primary responsibility for patrols on weekends with backup from Wackenhut Security.

"The Newark Police have done a great job," said Burris. "Of course, we have to pay for it; but so far, it's worth it."

Newark Officer Curt Davis said blocking off an entrance to the center after 10 p.m. on weekend nights has been helpful. "It has been very successful at keeping out people who have no business in the shopping center," said Davis. "Both businesses and shoppers have told us they're pleased."

Burris said the police and merchants worked together to come up with ideas to make the center safer for everyone. "We used to clean up almost two cases of empty beer bottles on Monday mornings," said Burris, "but we've had none for the past two months since the Newark Police came in."

Burris said the police and Krapf are united in their desire to limit people hanging out and cruising at the center. "We welcome families and grandkids and others who want to come down and sit out having a water ice at Rita's, for instance," said Burris. "We just don't want people loitering here who aren't shoppers."

One of the suggestions from the police to deal with cars speeding through the parking lot met with unexpected problems. "The speed bumps were the one thing every merchant in here wanted and we had to take them out," said Burris.

According to Burris, the city fire marshal said the traffic devices did not meet the current code. "We still hope to have them in the future after we find out what the code requires," he said.

A new fence on the side of the center near the bowling alley also raised some questions at first. "We had some complaints from older people who used to walk through there and found it blocked," said

Burris. "I told them we put up the fence to keep out people who are coming from the bar drunk as skunks even early in the morning."

Some of the teens who frequent the center for entertainment are not so happy with the new program, however.

John Deleutario, 23, told a reporter that he witnessed verbal harassment of two girls recently by a security officer. Deleutario is among a group of young people circulating a petition they plan to take to Newark city council about this and other alleged instances of harassment.

But Burris claims that the attitude toward young people is not harassment. "We just have zero-tolerance as far as loitering is concerned," Burris said.

On Tuesday night, the center of the shopping center was cordoned off with brightly-colored flags for a skateboard exhibition presented by Wooden Wheels. "That proves we're not trying to harass kids," said Burris. "We have no problem with kids coming here for exhibitions like this."

building and forced us all back inside."

The employee said the man appeared to be in his early 20s and about 6 feet tall but "all I could see was the silver gun in his hand."

The employee said that the robber made them open the cash register and turn over money from the store receipts as well as their own wallets. "I dropped everything when he jumped us and I couldn't remember where my wallet was," said the employee. "I was afraid he'd shoot me when I said I didn't have it."

The suspect then locked the three young women in the store bathroom. "But he didn't leave," said the employee. "We could hear him still out there walking around and searching the store."

The employee said the women were constantly afraid the man would open the door again and shoot them. "I was so scared," she said, "every time we heard his footsteps coming near the bathroom door."

The ordeal finally ended when the employee's mother showed up looking for her. "I heard my mother in the store calling my name and I yelled at her to run away because I didn't know the man had left," said the employee. "I was afraid he'd shoot her."

The Newark Municipal Building with the police station is directly across the road from the shopping center. "Sometimes in the past I have seen the police sitting (next to the video store) when we came out," said the employee, "but not that night."

Coming and going at Woolworth's

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Although Woolworth's 5 & 10 is closing forever, a small piece will live on in the Newark Shopping Center.

Current store manager Glenn Waesco said he is planning to open a restaurant named "Little Wooley's Cafe" on the opposite side of the shopping center. "We have already signed a lease for the space and hope to be open by mid-September," said Waesco. "Some of the waitresses from Woolworth's will be going with me."

Waesco said the menu at the new restaurant, to be open 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day, will be the same as that enjoyed for generations at the 5 & 10. "You know all the things we had at the counter in the five and ten?" asked Waesco. "Well, the exact same things will be available at Wooley's."

The lunch counter at the Newark Woolworth's already closed. The rest of the store is presently in the midst of close-out sales, with 10, 20 and 30 percent off all prices for merchandise. "We'll also be selling off the fixtures," said Waesco, adding that some of the lunch counter "decor" might be acquired for the cafe.

"We really can't use a lot of the equipment like grills, though," said Waesco. "We need new fixtures for that."

A spokesperson from Woolworth Corp. has previously stated that all 417 of the company's "five and dime" stores will close in the next few months.

Meanwhile, another business in the shopping center might like to expand into Woolworth's with an underage dance club in the basement and a separate restaurant and bar upstairs. "Teens could pay $5, have their hand stamped, and hang out at the club all night," said the business owner who did not want to be identified at this time. The merchant said they are looking into financing before making any definite decision.

William Burris of Krapf Management said the owners of the shopping center would like to see a "large" business of some kind in the Woolworth's location. "A drug store or other business that sells some of the same things as Woolworth's did would be nice, too," said Burris.

Holding on to the past

THE NEWS LAST MONTH from Woolworth headquarters that the Newark Shopping Center store will be among 417 casualties was disturbing to many.

While we realize that times change and, try as we might, we can't hold on to our nostalgic favorites, Newark has been lucky to preserve some community institutions that are throwbacks to days gone by.

Foremost is Main Street, alive and prospering in 1997 when similar small towns sport boarded-up and decaying downtowns.

With its pneumatic tubes, mature sales staff and free gift wrapping, the Newark Department Store was a treasure until economic times caught up with it in 1993.

Nearby has been Woolworth's, a five-and-dime store that escaped the modernization last year that failed to save the state's three other Woolworth's.

Not only did the regulars enjoy the friendliness and comraderie that accompanied meals at its "luncheonette," parents of young Newarkers often would take their offspring there to the "real" soda fountain, worn chrome and all.

We'll miss Woolworth's but always will cherish its role in Newark's economy.

AMUSED & BEMUSED

Dr. Goldberg and a busload of ladies

By MARVIN H. HUMMEL

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

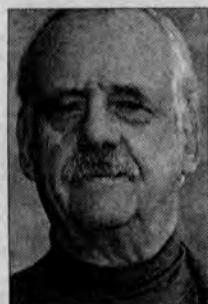

BY THE TIME I HEARD AN anti-Semitic remark, Dr. Samuel Goldberg had made me completely immune to the disease. The door to his office said he was an M.D. in matters of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat; it neglected to mention that he was a secular saint, warm and compassionate, who gave special treatment to his patients' minds and souls as well. Little boys don't have many adult friends — most merely tolerate you because of your father. Not Dr. Goldberg — kids left his office with the knowledge that this man really liked us and understood us. He gave prescriptions for what ailed us — and he himself was a prescription, too.

You didn't need to have much money to go to him. Other kids told me he would be whispering over in a corner with their parents about fees — as he did mine — and he would whisper over and over again, "Don't worry about it! We'll work it out! But that boy needs glasses and we have to see that he gets them, don't we?" (Or a tonsillectomy.) Rich kids went to him, too. And rich men, even politicians. He was good!

I remember the certificate on his wall and how I told him it was just great that there was a university for Jewish people — Temple University. He laughed with pleasure at my gaffe and said with obvious respect that he had never thought of Temple that way, but he would always think of it that way from then on.

In rapid succession, I heard my first, second, and third anti-Semitic statements, and I was offended. I looked at the boobs who made them and silently compared those people and their contributions to human society to what Dr. Goldberg did and was — and laughed in their faces. (One of them responded, "Of course! I get it! 'Marvin' is a Jewish name!") I was very proud when a Nazi swastika subsequently was emblazoned on my school notebook quite anonymously. It made me feel even closer to Dr. Goldberg.

I wasn't so much prejudiced against Roman Catholics as I was afraid of them, particularly nuns and priests. While I never had known of a marriage that could have been called happy or fulfilling, I knew every good adult HAD to be married, just as children had to go to school, to camp, to church, etc. Nuns and priests didn't do the right thing and had to be watched at all times. I remember more than one time I ran in front of cars to get on the other side of the street from them. Had a furious driver asked me what the h—ll I thought I was doing, I would have said, "Sorry, sir, but a priest unexpectedly came out of that building or I never would have threatened your safety record."

Besides not accepting the responsibility of marriage and brat-making, the priests mumbled some words in a foreign language and something known as the MASS occurred. Spooky! And all their parishioners had a nervous tic — they'd tap their foreheads and sternums, then — particularly before an exam or a 3-2 pitch — they'd kiss that medal!!! Weird! It took a busload of Roman Catholic ladies to teach me that foreign mumblings, medal-kissing, and head-and-torso-tappings were more than OK.

I lived on a hill full of Protestants, and when I was on a dayshift in the mill, I was the first person on the bus. We picked up women all along the line, all of them going to Mass at St. Pius Church. All the way there, they talked animatedly about their children, their husbands, their recipes, their sciatica. They were good ladies, but the ones whose sons and daughters I knew exaggerated their kids' virtues and downplayed their vices, the way (I guess) mothers should. They were noisy and obviously enjoyed each other and the schmoozing. No big deal, even though their noisiness prevented me from getting a quick snooze on the way to work.

When I was on the night shift, I came home on the same bus these ladies took — after they had been to Mass! Talk about contrasts! They were silent, even meditative, and the sense of the spirit made the bus a chapel on wheels. No more exchanges of recipes — they had been to THE MEAL — no unreliable talk about their children — they had experienced THE SON — the atmosphere of the bus was crackling with a prayerful reverence — the kind you can't make up or manipulate or spin. Even the toughguy busdriver was silent — it was more than not saying anything — he was silent. Each time the bus stopped and let off a lady, the other ladies looked a silent goodbye. Something very quiet and important had happened to them all.

I like priests and nuns now. And, when I talk about the Holy Eucharist and my celebrating it at an Episcopal altar, I tend to call it THE MASS! Thank you, ladies of 54 years ago! I'm sure you've met Dr. Goldberg by now. (He went to Temple, you know!)

Fish pond assured: all followers of Ike Walton have chance to get in The fishermen of Newark and vicinity are assured of having one of the best fishing ponds in the State. The Newark Anglers Association this week signed a twenty-five year lease with Joseph Eastburn for the use of the stream near Cooch.

As soon as a sufficient number of subscribers have been obtained no one else will be taken into the association, so all followers of Ike Walton had better get their names in.

The contract for the fixing of the pond is expected to be let soon and then work will begin.

Routine business before council - boys must behave themselves

Many complaints have been received by the town officials recently of the action of the younger boys of the town. Complaints have been made of youths riding bicycles on the pavements, playing ball in the street, throwing stones and other stunts that every boy generally has his fling at.

John Mote made a complaint to Councilman Wilson at the monthly session of Town Council and offered to act as a special officer to stop the actions of the boys, free of charge.

This offer was accepted and Mr. Mote will be sworn in as a special officer.

Residents fear new neighbors: Stafford home purchased for mentally ill patients is protested area developments were told today they could do nothing to stop the purchase of a home that will be used by a state mental health group.

Residents of two Newark

Officials from the Alliance for the Mentally Ill in Delaware (AMID) told about 20 residents of Prestwick Farms and Stafford recently that the Fair Housing Act gave residents little power to oppose the purchase of the home for AMID's use.

Newark night cops see it all

Despite the television image of crime, law and punishment, Newark is no Dodge City.

But there is plenty to occupy police on the streets of this city: keeping the Main Street strollers strolling, the cruisers cruising (hopefully out of the city for good) and preserving the peace.

The city's crime rate has fortunately lagged behind Newark's growing population, however a full-time police force helps ensure safety at night.

Officer Paul H. Quick, Jr. says Newark is not really a town with a serious crime problem, but that much of what police deal with are minor incidents.

"Pages from the Past" is compiled from early editions of the Newark Post and its forerunners by staffer Julia Sampson. Efforts are made to retain original headlines and style.

A waste of money

To: The editor
From: Susan J. Pini
Newark

This letter is in reference to the railroad underpass at Casho Mill Road.

As a resident of Country Hills, I find myself using that road at all hours of the day. I have seen the traffic back up during peak times, and have witnessed the accidents of people who obviously didn't read the height restrictions signs.

I have noticed some people yield courteously to the other driver, and others that feel they would rather ram right into you than let you go before them.

But what truly amazes me is that anyone actually thought it was a good idea to put in a pedestrian path. Before the path was installed, traffic would back up at times, but drivers could then proceed safely through at about 25 miles per hour.

Now that the path has been installed, narrowing the single lane underpass even more, drivers must slow down to five or ten miles per hour to pass through which, of course, causes longer backups.

Of the few people that actually walk along there each week, half are kids. And the kids are still seen to be climbing over the railroad tracks.

So, in the long run, the only purpose that pedestrian path has served is to waste the tax payers' money, and to cause even more traffic problems than we already have.

'Injustices, dysfunction'

To: The editor:
From: Joseph Haley
President
Abbotsford Homeowners Assn.

I would like to make it public knowledge as to the injustices and dysfunction of the Newark City Council, and how this is an excellent example of how local governments can affect everyone's freedom and standard of living.

First of all, let it be known that Newark practices "partisan" politics as opposed to free speech. This means, and I could cite 20 examples of this, that you either vote and act along the lines of the incumbents or they will squash you like a common criminal.

The present Republican thrust, headed by Deputy Mayor Hal Godwin, thinks nothing of the fact that their job title has the word "representative" in it, because their agenda speaks only of selfish ideals and party politics, as opposed to honoring the public trust and improving the city with everyone's help.

Recently, a city councilmember questioned the city of Newark as to the fact that in an executive session of council, discussions were held on a particular subject, and reasons were given as to what action would be taken. Later, in the public forum, different reasons were given on the same subject, and this councilmember thought this to be the wrong way to legislate, and hence, has sued the city and has simply asked for an explanation as to how anyone can justify this sort of misrepresentation.

Since the time of this inquiry by this public servant, the city council has all but burned her at the stake. They have voted to exclude her from the executive session in which the lawsuit was discussed with the city solicitor. The last time I checked, the people decided who would represent them by vote, and that person was a representative of a group of taxpayers.

Another example of this problem is this. A study has been conducted in my neighborhood concerning putting stop signs in to slow traffic. The police chief has made it known to the homeowners that their study has concluded that no stop signs are needed, which is also the view of the homeowners association. However, the chief also said that there are political reasons as to why the stop signs are not necessary, the police department study says they are not necessary, but they may happen due to "political" promises. I have a real problem with that, and have a real problem with the situation mentioned above.

Please hold city council accountable for their actions, and stand up for what is right. If certain representatives of the people cannot work in a team atmosphere where everyone's opinion is heard, then we need new representatives.

'If whiners need push...'

To: The editor
From: Shirley M. Tarrant
Newark

The August 1 headline reads: "Most councilmembers favor change in committees." Never mind what "ordinary citizens" who are committee members favor. Contrary to the creative writing of the anonymous reporter that "I called every other member of the three committees with councilmembers," what I told the Mayor and Council was that I had polled 17 members of the three committees and not one objected to councilmembers' participation on city committees.

Yes, Mayor Gardner's opinion that councilmembers should not serve on city committees is well known. But the record shows that the has consistently over the years voted for councilmembers' appointments to the Memorial Day Parade Committee (seven years under city jurisdiction), Town and Gown Committee (15 years old) and Western Newark Traffic Relief Committee (13 months old).

Councilmember Jerry Clifton must have delusions of grandeur when he refers to "an issue of intimidation" on the WNTRC, which has three council members. We "ordinary citizens" are not intimidated by the "ordinary citizens" who sit on City Council.

"Troubled council looks for answers" headlined another story. Anybody got a mirror? The anonymous reporter inaccurately asserted in this essay that "the two complainants in that hearing (Godwin Ethics Hearing II) have since appeared repeatedly before council to voice their disapproval of the proceeding and the findings." "Repeatedly" means again and again. I have appeared only once (June 23) at a council meeting to criticize the procedure followed by the Board of Ethics at its Godwin Ethics Hearing II. I did not mention the decision at all. My second appearance before council was July 28 to oppose Councilmember Clifton's resolution. Other than these two recent appearances in city council chambers, it has been two years (March 1995) since I clucked at council as the Newark Chicken. Three appearances in two years regarding three different subjects does not qualify as "repeatedly."

I concur with Mayor Gardner in that I too "wish more people could know what was going on." If the city would stop sitting on the minutes of recent executive sessions and release them, now that all justification for secrecy has been removed, "the people of Newark" would be "better informed." Along those same lines, Councilmember Felicia is quoted as saying "I feel that we're bordering on something that's going to change the way we operate and the way the public looks at us." Let's hope so!

As Harry Truman once said, "If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen." If the whiners need a push, perhaps the voters can give them one next election.

Police generate $$$

To: The editor
From: Andy Ercole
Wilmington

Why is crime so rampant in the city and throughout the state? I can assure you it is not because officials claim there is a shortage of manpower. The problem is that the political establishment uses police officers to generate revenue rather than protect the public.

Can you imagine, with 71 shootings to date in the city of Wilmington, that a police officer would be sent out onto the streets with a yardstick to check if any cars are parked more than twelve inches from the curb?

This type of conduct by a police officer results in fines collected to be stashed into the city treasury. If the city, town or state can bolster their income in this way, why waste a police officers' time by sending him out to fight crime and protect citizens.

One of the prime reasons crime flourishes in the city or in the suburbs is because police officers are being used to "generate revenue."

And that's "as I see it."

■ Any community newspaper receives many letters over the course of a year. The number per week fluctuates, of course, the determining factor usually the degree to which our readers are upset . . . about the council representative, the mayor, the superintendent of schools, the guy next door.

Dealing with letters to the editor is one of the more difficult jobs for a newspaper editor. We want to let people have their say, for or against, praising or criticizing, and to vent their frustrations over what they usually perceive to be an injustice. Yet we do not want to print unsubstantiated allegations or rumors.

Generally the subject of a letter is someone in government. That's okay with us. We see that as a fact of life.

So, blast away, if you wish. No doubt a salvo or two will be lobbed in the direction of this newspaper and that's okay, too.

What we need from you and what we cannot allow is spelled out in our letters policy, which is printed every week in the staff box in the newspaper. It isn't very long because we don't have a lot of rules.

We expect your name, address and daytime phone number to be on the letter as well as your signature. The phone number will not appear in the newspaper; it is for our use only.

So, keep those cards and letters coming. The Opinion Page is yours and we want you to use it.

NEWARK OUTLOOK

Avoiding the muscle hustle

■ This weekly feature on the Lifestyle page is authored by the staff of the Newark-based Cooperative Extension Service.

LOOKING FOR A WAY to keep fit, stay fit, stay limber, or lose weight? A diet of regular exercise can help. Which exercise is best? The one you're really going to do.

My brother in law was considering buying fitness equipment for home workouts. He called to ask some advice. I reminded him it can represent a sizable financial commitment as well as a lifestyle change. All workout "wannabes" need to exercise good judgment when evaluating advertising claims for fitness products. I suggested a few tips before he buys:

Look for equipment that offers a total workout. The best route to overall fitness is one that incorporates a variety of physical activities as part of a daily routine.

By Maria Pippidis

Remember that no exercise device can burn fat of a particular part of your body. To turn a "beer belly" into a toned tummy, you must combine sensible eating with regular exercise that works the whole body. The reason: Everything you eat has calories and everything you do uses calories. Your weight depends on the number of calories you eat and use each day. Increasing your daily physical activity will burn extra calories. What different exercise equipment does is targets different muscles and doing workouts with this equipment will tone those muscles.

Looking through some adds he was skeptical of outrageous claims. This is very true. Shaping up is hard to do. Ads that promise "easy" or "effortless" results are false. And many ads that make big claims about the number of calories you'll burn also may be deceptive. Some of these claims are true only for athletes who already are in top physical condition; others may not be true for anyone.

We talked about some of the dramatic testimonials or before-and-after pictures from satisfied customers. Consumers need to be careful because these may not be typical results. Celebrity endorsements don't necessarily mean the equipment is right for you, either.

I suggested he get the total cost of the product before he buys. Total cost includes sales tax, shipping and handling, delivery, and set-up fees. He needed to get the details on warranties, guarantees, and return policies. As well as, check out the company's customer service and support, too, in case he needed replacement parts. Trying any toll-free numbers to see whether help really is accessible is a good idea too.

For more information about advertising claims for health, weight loss, and fitness products, visit the FTC's Consumer Line on the Internet at www.ftc.gov or write to Consumer Response Center, FTC, Washington, D.C. 20580.

Jamming the jamboree

OVER 144 SCOUTS from ages 12 to 18, representing 43 troops from across the Delmarva peninsula were among those attending the recent National Scout Jamboree in Fort A.P. Hill, Va.

Adult leader Jonathan Couch said Troop 233 from Newark set up their campsite among the 30,000 participants from as far away as Puerto Rico and Alaska. "We arrived on July 28," said Couch. "One scout from our troop said it must have been 105 degrees when we stepped off that bus."

Almost 16,000 tents housed the multitude of scouts as well as services such as a bus system, telephones, a trading post, a daily newspaper and even postal services.

"That's a lot of tents!" said Couch. "We visited other campsites and some of the scouts said they couldn't believe they were actually (at the Jamboree)."

Local scouts and their leaders prepared for the Jamboree by also attending a prejamboree training weekend in June at the Rodney Scout Reservation.

The theme for this year's Jamboree was "Be Prepared For the 21st Century." Featured Scouting activities included rappelling, a bi-kathlon, motorcross, pioneering, and scuba diving. "From the time that the Scouts were released from the campsite to the time they came back, they could cover a lot of activities," said Couch. "One of the most popular activities was rappelling."

Scouts also practiced and demonstrated abilities in archery, orienteering, obstacle courses, shotgun shooting, boating, canoeing, and hunter safety. Demonstrations included an arts and science fair, a merit badge midway and a traditional/handicapped awareness trail.

Scouts Jeff Dawson of Newark and Andrew Russell of Wilmington (looking at camera) worked on a team-building exercise at the prejamboree training.

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

AT A DELIGHTFUL LUNCH with one of my favorite people, Ken Wesler executive director of the Grand Opera House, the talk turned to opera. (Now there's a real shocker to my regular readers — a conversation about opera!) More specifically, it turned to opera this season at the Grand, Delaware's Center for the Performing Arts. He told me with great glee that there will be FOUR operas on the boards of the Grand this season, two from Opera Delaware and two courtesy of the Grand itself.

You may recall that last year I chided Ken about not knowing the middle name of his house, Grand OPERA House. At lunch he assured me he did know its name but that it is very hard to book opera companies because of the limited (read non-existent) fly space and wings there. This year, however, he is well along the way to bringing us great music and voices raised in harmony.

Last week I brought you the news about the two operas from our local company and the wonderful news that Newark's own Kristine Ciesinski will be back in the area to sing the role of Senta in Richard Wagner's "Der Fliegende Holländer." Also to be staged is Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro."

The first of the Grand's operatic offerings this season is George Gershwin's American classic, "Porgy and Bess." The Living Arts production which has toured many cities to rave reviews will be at the Grand for two performances, Friday, February 27, and Saturday, February 28, with curtain both nights at 8 p.m.

George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" will be one of four operas to be presented by the Grand Opera House during the 1997-98 season at Delaware's Center for the Performing Arts.

Two singers will alternate the lead roles. The role of Bess will be done by Elizabeth Graham and Vanessa Stewart. Ms. Graham, Professor of Music at the University of Florida, made her debut in the role with the Houston Grand Opera Company and has since added many roles to her repertoire. Ms. Stewart made her debut as Bess in a Paris production of the opus and has appeared on both sides of the Atlantic.

Brian Gibson and Alvy Powell will alternate Porgy. Mr. Gibson did his first Porgy at Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires and made his operatic debut at the age of ten in Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors." Mr. Powell has sung the role in many places but made his debut in it in Australia as part of the Spoleto Festival there.

A fine cast and orchestra will be joining the leads for the two performances here and the ticket prices range from $35 to $51.

More great news, the New York City Opera's National Company will be back at the Grand Old Lady of Market Street and we are all very happy about that. Making us even happier is the delightful comedy they are bringing with them, Gaetano Donizetti's "La Fille du Regiment." The comedy will be even more accessible since the opera will be performed in English. This is a bit of a change for New York. In recent years they have been performing in the original language and using supertitles.

The work is a wonderfully delectable tale of love, intrigue (the fun kind) and mischief. Donizetti painted the work with a broad comedic brush and it has played very well since its debut in Paris in 1840.

All the fun in the Swiss Tyrol and the characters that bring the work to life will be on stage and ready to make us laugh including Marie, her sergeant Sulpice, Tonio and the never to be overlooked Duchess du Krakenthorp. As of my deadline, New York City Opera had not yet announced the cast but, if one may use the past as an indication, it will be a fine one.

Ticket prices range from $35 to $51. That's a lot less expensive than on generally pays for opera tickets at Lincoln Center! I hope the company won't be a stranger to us for any more seasons.

Ken Wesler has brought much excitement and many great performances back to the Grand after a really bad season just a few years ago. A Tip of The Toman Topper to Ken and keep up the good work — and the opera!

To order tickets for one or both operas, please contact the Grand Opera House. You may stop by the Grand box office at 818 The Market Street Mall, or reach them by phone at 302-652-5577 or 1-800-37 GRAND; on the World Wide Web at <http://ameristar.net/grand/> or E-mail at GRANDOPERA@AOL.COM.

New director wants more programs for young seniors

expand on the programs to meet the needs of younger seniors. "People are retiring but still working part time or consulting," said Williams. "They want activities at night or are interested in just taking one class at a time."

Williams said there are already a wide breadth of programs offered. "We (meet the needs) of those who just want to take meals here and meet their friends, or those who want to join activities and swim in the pool," said Williams. "But we're also looking at the more active members who want to go on more trips as well as take a class."

As of June 30, 1997, the center membership stood at 2,300. "According to our records, 3,000 people are using some service in the new center each month," said Williams. "Of course, some of that number includes people coming in for more than one reason."

The center staff is presently conducting a survey to see if members are interested in evening hours for the pool or fitness center. "We're also considering a program similar to the one offered by the Academy of Lifelong Learning in Wilmington," said Williams. "Perhaps a lecture series or classes which will give people an opportunity to stretch their minds in new directions."

Dear residents of Greater Newark:

I WOULD LIKE TO INTRODUCE MYSELF. I am the new Executive Director of the Newark Senior Center, K. Jean Williams.

First, let me explain about the K. It is to distinguish me from the other Jean Williams's in the world and stands for my first name which is Kathryn. I was not called by my first name because my mother and grandmother were also Kathryn. So I have gone through life with a first initial.

Now that you know my name, let me tell you a little about myself. I grew up outside the very small town of Berlin located in Somerset County in the southwestern part of Pennsylvania. I taught school in Johnstown about 30 miles north of Berlin for three years before moving to Newark with my husband, also a teacher, in 1969.

We had a daughter, Danielle, at the time, so I did not return to full time teaching. During the next few years we also had a son, Dirk, while I volunteered in various family, community and church projects.

In 1982, I returned to full time work with the Chesapeake Bay Girl Scout Council. I had found my niche, and for the next 10 years, I enjoyed recruiting adult volunteers and working with them to bring Girl Scout programs to many girls. I learned much about planning, meeting the needs of adults, and being a good steward of our resources.

In 1992, I left the Girl Scouts to administer a new program for Child Care Connection, now called the Family and Workplace Connection. I wrote grants, provided technical assistance, and assisted in developing programming and training to meet the needs of the child care providers in Delaware.

Now I am very excited to be here at the Newark Senior Center. I have come home, because I live with my husband, who still teaches part time, on the western side of Newark.

I am extremely pleased with the program and services available at the senior center. But I am also interested in expanding and altering to meet more needs of our seniors.

I am looking forward to meeting many of you and hope to learn your ideas, your aspirations and your hopes for the center.

Flexible childcare coming for Newark

By LAURA SANKOWICH

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

For parents who do not work 9 to 5, an answer to the time constraints of traditional day care may be in sight. It's called flexible daycare.

Christine Hopkins and her husband, Edward, plan to open a daycare center in Newark, where care will be provided as needed from the hours of 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. This means that parents can pick up and drop off their children between these times at their convenience.

"Daycares in this area are all geared as full or part time, said Hopkins. "(Here) the schedules will be dictated by parents' hours so that they can drop the children off and pick them up at times that are convenient for them."

Hopkins said that there are no other programs of this sort in Delaware, Maryland or Pennsylvania. "There are some in the mid-West and Virginia," she said.

Hopkins said that the facility will be licensed by the state and staff members will be state-licensed caregivers and teachers.

The facility will be located at the former site of the Sunnyside Daycare Center on Wollastan Avenue. Run by Pat Lehman for over 30 years, Sunnyside was once Lehman's private residence.

Vacant for several years until its acquisition by Hopkins, the building was in surprisingly good condition. "Only a few minor repairs need to be made," said Hopkins.

The location has other advantages as well. "I am confident about being in Newark," Hopkins said. "We will be able to use and take advantage of the YWCA, libraries, and its many parks."

The educational curriculum of the center will consist of learning based on skill, not age. Lesson plans will be determined by interest.

"The curriculum will include Montessori-influenced teaching which involves life skills and self-correcting learning exercises in the areas of reading and arithmetic," said Hopkins. "Things that will be taught include how to put things back in the correct order, and doing things themselves. I believe that the whole curriculum will put them one step further toward social interaction."

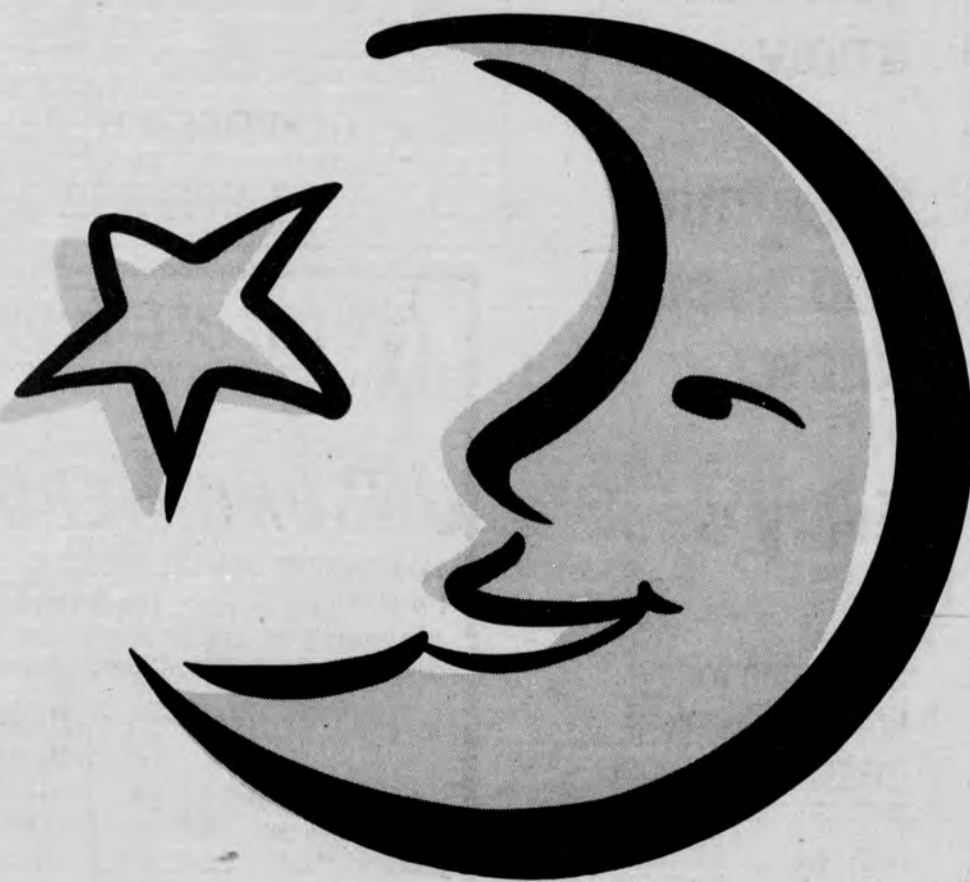

Despite the input she is receiving from Lehman, Hopkins is hardly a novice in the childcare field. She had her own class of children for nine years in addition to serving as an assistant director at a preschool for more than three years.

Hopkins said that when the center opens she will employ three teachers including herself and 2 caregivers. "When we have reached full capacity I will assume the owner-director role fully."

In order to employ and retain a high quality of teachers and caregivers, Hopkins said she will offer benefits and pay raises that most caregivers and teachers don't receive such as paid vacations. Hopkins said that she will also offer a salary that is 30% higher than what most other daycares offer.

When the facility opens in October, the maximum capacity as approved by the city of Newark will be 18; however Hopkins is hoping to extend that number to 35 pending approval of a variance by the city.

"There will be a waiting list for those not enrolled in the daycare once it has started," Hopkins said.

Decision in city lawsuit could take months

Freedom of Information Act as the authority for her legal position.

In its answer, the city states that no matters unrelated to personnel were discussed by council during the June 9 executive session. Further, according to the response, council is not required to divulge matters discussed in such executive session to the public because they are covered under the Freedom of Information Act.

In paragraph 10 of its court filing, the city claims that Turner herself was given "full access to the audio tape and a verbatim transcript of the requested portions" of the minutes of the June 9 executive session.

In addition, among other defenses listed in the court documents, the city asserts that Turner "prematurely and unilaterally disclosed" matters discussed in the June 9 executive session which constitutes a violation of the Newark Code of Ethics.

Turner has declined to discuss for the record any aspect of her decision to take action against the city, and since they are the decision-making body for the city, against the council itself.

On July 14, another issue arose when Turner refused to voluntarily excuse herself from an executive session called, according to the city council agenda, for the council to discuss litigation—presumably her litigation against the city.

After the city solicitor said the situation was unprecedented, one councilmember asked Turner what possible justification she could have for refusing to absent herself from the executive session under the circumstances? Turner responded that she was entitled to participate in all meetings of council.

Subsequently, the remaining members voted to "hold an executive session without the one councilmember who has taken an adversarial position against the city of Newark" so that they could discuss the litigation.

City councilmembers other than Turner also have stated that they cannot discuss the lawsuit while it is in litigation. City solicitor Roger Akin would only state that, in his opinion, the Chancery Judge will probably ask to review a copy of the disputed minutes in private.

"Then the Court will probably require the attorneys for both sides to submit briefs in argument for the respective positions," said Akin. "It will all take place within the next three to six months depending on the court's schedule."

Council Rules change proposed

► MINUTES, from 1

than what is already done since under the present Rules, city council members can direct that "statements, either spoken or written, on any issue before Council, be recorded verbatim." Presumably, they can pass it on to their constituents.

City secretary Sue Lamblack said few members of the public ever ask for verbatim statements from the minutes. "Most people are not interested in verbatim minutes," said Lamblack. "Our summary minutes are very inclusive, with only the non-essential eliminated."

Lamblack said judges and lawyers who have requested copies of council minutes for use in Court cases have complimented her on how much information is included in the present summary. "Robert's Rules of Order, which we follow, calls for 'action' minutes which would include only what is done and not what is said during meetings," said Lamblack. "We actually do more."

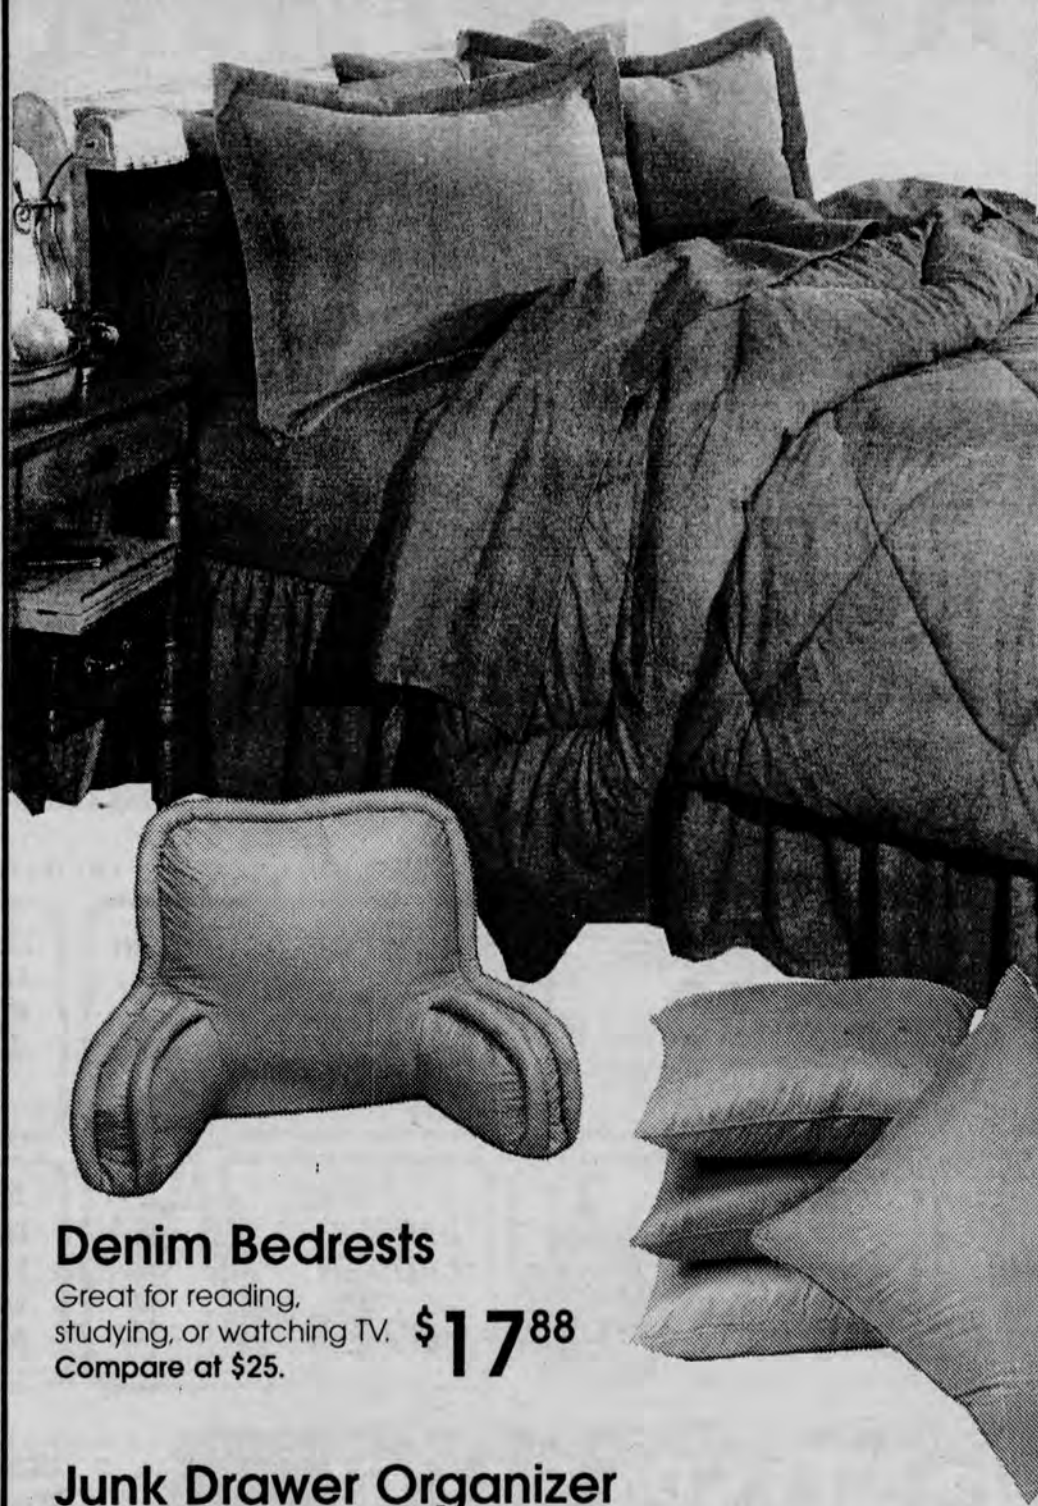

Turner wants the verbatim sections to be included in the body of the minutes as well. Lamblack said her office is merely continuing what city council voted to do in the past. "The Rules of Procedure currently instruct us to put the verbatim statements in a second part after the summary," said Lamblack.

According to Lamblack, a portion of Turner's Resolution stating that tapes of open meetings shall be stored for six months following the meeting for future reference is already the policy of her office. "We used to keep tapes indefinitely but ran out of space," said Lamblack. "Former city solicitor Tom Hughes advised us that six months would be an acceptable time period and that's what council directed me to do."

Turner was unavailable for comment.

Local teams win, lose in regionals

Canal Sr. boys near World Series

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

WHAT BEGAN SIX WEEKS AGO AS A DREAM, moved within one victory of reality.

Nate Husser pitched a one-hitter and Tom Gallagher hit a three-run home run as the Canal Senior (14-15 year olds) All-Star baseball team ripped Lewisburg, Pa. 10-0 in the winners bracket final of the Eastern Regional tournament in West Deptford, N.J.

The victory moved the Delaware state champions within one win of advancing to the Senior World Series, which begins Sunday in Kissimmee, Fla. Canal played for the East championship Thursday night against the survivor of the losers bracket (either Lewisburg or Somerset, Mass.) and had to be beaten twice to prevent a World Series trip.

Making Husser's effort even more impressive was the fact that the Pennsylvania state champs, which entered the contest with a 14-0 record, averaged 14 runs per game and had not scored less than eight in any contest.

"I just saw it as a bunch of 15-year olds playing against each other and I just tried to do my best," said Husser, who had six strike outs in the five-inning game. "I thought this was going to be a tight game like the others we'd been playing. Everything was working well, though, and we played great defense."

Canal, which improved its record to 12-1, took a 1-0 lead in the top of the second inning when Devin Wiley reached base after getting hit by a pitch, stole second, moved to third on a ground ball and scored on Chuck Epperson's double.

The Delaware team took control of the game with four more runs in the third inning. Husser and Matt Folke picked up infield singles while Wiley hit a two-run single to left field. Husser, Gallagher, Folke and Wiley all scored in the rally.

Gallagher hit his three-run shot over the left-center field fence in the fourth inning to improve the lead to 8-0.

"I hit a fastball," Gallagher said. "I didn't think it was going to go out, though, I was running hard just hoping to get to second base."

Canal collected two more runs in the fifth inning as Husser singled home Brock Donovan and Kevin Maloney. The 10-0 lead enabled the game to be shortened to five innings due to the mercy rule.

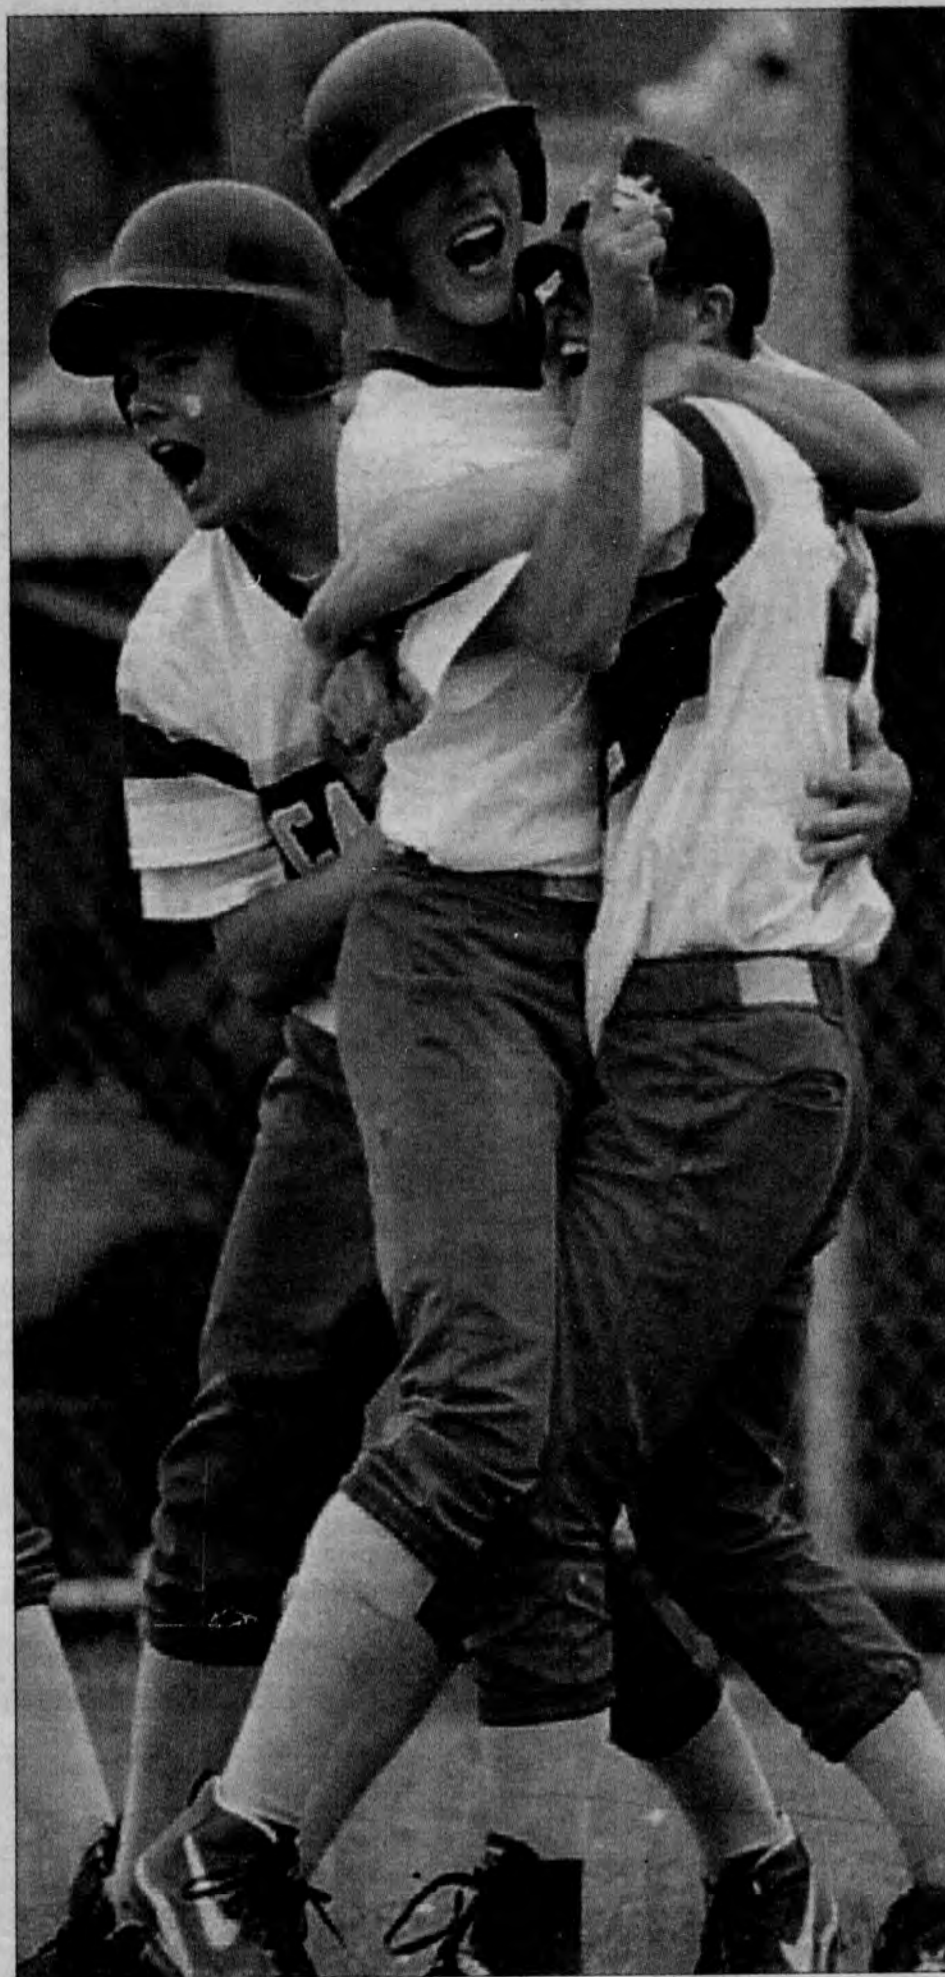

"Never in my wildest dreams did I think we would win like this," said Canal manager Dave Blake. "Nate just did an outstanding job. He pitched as well as I've ever seen him."

In addition to Gallagher's homer, Canal's eight-hit offensive attack was buoyed by Wiley and Husser's two singles, Epperson's double, Folke's single and Donovan's single.

Newark National Juniors eliminated

NEWARK NATIONAL LITTLE LEAGUE'S Junior (13 year-olds) All-Stars dropped two of three games and were eliminated from the Eastern Regional in New City, N.Y.

National — the District II, sectional, state and Mid-Atlantic champions — saw its season come to an end in a 12-3 loss to Nanuet, N.Y. Tuesday afternoon. Newark National finished its excellent all-star season with a 13-4 record.

The Delaware state champions opened the tournament with a 6-2 loss to Connecticut Saturday.

Mike Murray hit a home run and an RBI-double to provide Newark National with its two runs.

Pitcher Mark Rash struck out 10 Connecticut batters in the game.

"I think we had a case of the first-game jitters," said Newark National manager Dave Poppiti. "It was really a carbon copy of our losses during districts and sectionals."

Canal Major girls drop first two

THE CANAL MAJOR ALL-STAR softball team dropped its first two games and was eliminated from Eastern Regional competition.

Canal, the Delaware state champions, fell 4-1 to North Calvert (Md.) in its regional opener Saturday night in Lewes.

North Calvert broke a 1-1 tie with three unearned runs in the third inning. Canal pitcher Lindsay Long, who allowed just six hits, got the first two batters of the inning out. The next, however, reached on an infield single to keep the inning alive. An error and a hit batter then opened the door for back-to-back singles to score the three runs.

"That one bad inning cost us," said Canal manager Charlie Marioni. "We played real well against a very good team."

North Calvert took a 1-0 lead in the second inning, taking advantage of two hits and two wild pitches.

Canal, though, answered in the top of the third inning.

Jaclyn Temple ignited the rally by reaching first base on a walk. Two ground balls advanced

Coach honored by parents, pupils

By PHILLIP WIRTZ

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

When most of us jump in the pool for a summertime cool down, we never stop to think how we ever learned to swim or who the people were that put in their time to teach us.

Pat Fernandes has taught many. She has been teaching children to swim at the Nottingham Pool for 30 years and has enjoyed it every summer. As a volunteer, she devotes hours of the week helping children in surrounding neighborhoods learn a lifetime skill.

"These kids have been a big part of my life," she explains. "I love it." At a recent party held in her honor, she was surprised by many old faces, now all mostly grown. She is able to say that she has taught the children of former students.

Her volunteer work began 30 years ago when she attended a newcomers night at the pool after moving to the neighborhood in 1963. The staff at the time was looking for a volunteer coach to teach lessons for a couple weeks. Little did Fernandes know that a couple weeks would turn into a few decades, but thankfully for her students, it did.

Growing up in New England, she learned to swim in a lake with the Girl Scouts. She smiles as she describes how then coach Gary Henderson at Nottingham had to teach her that swimming involved more than just water safety.

"I had to learn to open my eyes underwater," she explains.

Fernandes speaks about how Nottingham has continued to be a close community.

"This is a great area to raise your kids," she says of Nottingham. "It's a great social area too."

Fernandes currently resides in Hockessin with her husband Tony. Her four children are all grown now and her recently-graduated daughter, Amy, helps assist at the pool. All four children swam on the Nottingham swim team. Fernandes also volunteered with the marching band when her two youngest chillast at-bat — of the Eastern Regional.

In Saturday's opener Canal scored seven runs in the top of the seventh inning to earn a 12-6 victory over Toms River East, N.J. Sunday night provided another thriller as Nate Husser hit a two-run home run in the bottom of the eighth inning to give Canal a 3-1 win over Auburn, Maine.

With two outs and a runner on first base in the eighth inning, Husser worked Maine pitcher Bryan Lambert to a three balls, one strike count. The 15-year old then bombed a fastball well over the 340-foot left-center field fence, setting off a wild celebration on the Canal side.

"I was definitely looking for a fast-ball," Husser said of the home run. "I was sitting in on it the whole way."

The home run saved an outstanding pitching performance by Maloney, who allowed just two hits in the eight innings.

"Every inning I felt better," said

Maloney, who called the effort the best pitching one he's ever had. "The defense came up with some big plays behind me and that kept me going."

Facing a team that has players that advanced to two consecutive World Series in Saturday's opener, Canal needed a big rally to earn the victory.

Toms River, which entered the regional with a 12-0 record, scored a run in the bottom of the sixth inning to take a 6-5 lead and move within three outs of the victory.

Canal, though, scored seven times to get the win.

Donovan, who went 4-for-4 with two RBI and two runs scored, was one of the offensive heroes.

"We thought we could come back," said Donovan, who added two his four hits with some spectacular defense at shortstop. "We're a fastball hitting team and we knew we could get some hits."

Donovan set the tone for the game in the first inning as he blasted the game's first pitch over the center fielder's head for a double.

Canal wins Mid-Atlantic Regional

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Nate Husser wasn't going to take any chances this time.

The pitcher hurled a four-hitter to help lead the Canal Senior All-Stars to an 8-1 victory over Delmar in the championship game of the Mid-Atlantic Regional last Wednesday night at the West Salisbury (Md.) Little League complex. The win completed a three-game sweep through the Mid-Atlantic and advanced Canal to the eight-team, double-elimination Eastern Regional in West Deptford, N.J.

Husser pitched a five-hitter in the Mid-Atlantic opener just three days before the title game and there was talk of resting him until the Eastern Regional.

Husser, recalling a similar situation three years ago, would have none of it.

"When we were in Eastern Regional when we were 12 (years old) the coaches held me out of a game to get me more rest and we were eliminated," said the 15-year old. "I wanted to go this time. I didn't want to take any chances."

Husser, though, certainly wasn't alone in his effort.

Kevin Maloney blasted a home run, triple and single and had two runs-batted-in.

"This team is really together," said Maloney, who also scored four runs. "Everybody has their heads on their shoulders and it's been a lot of fun."

Maloney helped Canal get going early against Delmar. With one out in the top of the first inning he singled to left field. Husser followed with a walk. Tom Gallagher then singled home Maloney for the game's first run. Two batters later Devin Wiley hit a sharp ground ball to score Husser.

Canal stretched the lead to 4-0 with two more runs in the second inning.

Shawn McCarthy reached first base on an error and two batters later Maloney tripled to right field. Husser followed with a double off the right field fence to score Maloney.

The Delaware state champs improved the lead to 7-0 with three runs in the fourth inning. Peter Romano started the rally with a single up the middle. Brock Donovan followed with a single to right field. Maloney drew a walk to load the bases.

Husser followed with a single to left to score Romano. Two batters later Matt Folke singled up the middle to score Donovan and Maloney.

Canal closed out its scoring when Maloney blasted a solo homer over the left-center field fence in the sixth inning.

Husser finished the game with 13 strikeouts. In two complete game efforts during the regional, he struck out 28 batters and allowed just eight hits.

"Nate did a super job," said Canal manager Dave Blake. "He kept telling me he was fine and wanted to pitch. So we let him have the ball."

In addition to Maloney's three hits, Husser had two while Donovan, Folke, Gallagher, Romano and Tim Vaillancourt all had one.

"This team has done a great job," Blake said. "They've been an outstanding group to work with. Every single one of them has contributed to the effort. The parents have also been great. They've been so supportive, it's unbelievable."

Temple to third base. She then scored on Stacy Maloney's ground ball to tie the game.

"North Calvert really has a solid team," Marioni said. "But I thought we played well and represented Canal and Delaware very well."

"They had a good pitcher and we just didn't the ball very well against her. I thought that we might have been a little bit intimidated."

The loss dropped Canal into the losers bracket and forced it to play Sunday at the Woodbridge Little League complex in Greenwood against Warrington, Pa.

Nothing went well for the Delaware state champs as Warrington rolled to a 16-2 victory.

The loss eliminated Canal from the tournament.

The score was tied 1-1 in the fifth inning but the Connecticut champions scored three runs in the bottom of the inning to take control of the game.

"These other teams played in regionals last year and I think that really helped them," Poppiti said. "This was our first trip and we suffered a little bit."

The loss to Connecticut dropped Newark National into the losers bracket where it faced New Jersey Sunday.

Eric Spiese pitched six innings and Mark Rash hit a two-run home run to help Newark to a 6-2 victory in the game.

R.T. Plumsy pitched the seventh inning to earn the save for National.

"We played a lot more like ourselves in that New Jersey game," said Newark National manager Dave Poppiti. "We hit the ball better and Eric and R.T. did a great job of pitching.

"I think we really settled down and didn't have the nervousness that we showed in the game against Connecticut."

The win over New Jersey advanced Newark National to Monday's game against the host team, District 18 of New York. The game was a tight one with New York leading 3-2 in the third inning when heavy rain forced a suspension.

The two teams came back Tuesday afternoon and New York dominated the rest of the contest to win 12-3.

"We just didn't have it when we came back," Poppiti said. "But we still had a great year."

"This team accomplished a lot. We showed a lot of character coming back through the losers bracket to win districts and sectionals. It really was a great team."

Keen-Atterbury edges Stahl to stay in hunt

By PHILLIP WIRTZ

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark's Keen Gas-Atterbury narrowly escaped a three-game sweep, beating Stahl Post 11-8 in the American Legion state finals Wednesday at Wilson Field. Stahl leads 2-1 in a best-of-five series. Jim Murphy hit the go-ahead RBI to score Bill Cooper in the top of the tenth. Murphy and Dave Elliot then scored on a Post infield error for the final runs of the ball game.

The game was played through four innings Tuesday evening until rain postponed and moved the series to Wednesday.

"Everybody up and down our lineup has been hitting," said Keen manager Joe Rineer. "We had good momentum last night, everything was going for us. We came out a little slow tonight."

Keen's pitcher Matt Flocco took the win as he shutout to the last four batters. Mike Shallcross took the pitching loss for Post.

Keen appeared to have a secure win going into the ninth inning with an 8-5 lead but it soon was surprised. Vinnie Ciccantelli of Post smashed a three-run homer over the right field fence off starting pitcher George Griebel to tie 8-8. Flocco replaced Griebel to pitch Keen out of the inning.

The winning team had a total of 15 hits. Post had 10 hits, but also committed seven errors.

Rineer and Jason Bedford led Keen with two RBI's each.

Keen lost 6-2 on Saturday and fell 9-2 on Sunday in the first two games of the series.

"The thing that hurt us was errors. Especially baserunning and defensive errors," said the manager.

Last week, it had a 2-1 upset in the best-of-three series over Post 1 in order to reach the state finals.

"We had hitting, pitching, and defense," said Rineer of the Post 1 series. "We've also had great pitching from George Griebel, Matt Flocco, Jim Murphy, and Joe Rineer."

If Keen pulls off a series win against Post, it will advance to the Mid-Atlantic regionals in Hagerstown, Md.

Swim coach a 'giving' person

► COACH from 15

dren attended Alexis I. DuPont High.

Fernandes, who works during the school year at Sterck School for the Deaf, speaks of the trust of her students and the satisfaction that comes in seeing them overcome obstacles. Mainly, the fear of water and putting confidence in their teacher's belief in what they can do.

"That's the most rewarding," she says. "When they believe me when I say they can do it. One word they can't use around Mrs. Fernandes is 'can't'."

There are many people whom Fernandes remembers rewarding experiences through. She talks about a particular student, Carrie Miller, who, according to Fernandes, won a gold medal in the Deaf Olympics and eventually went to Harvard. She presently teaches competitive swimming herself.

There are numerous other stories of children, and moreover, parents who shared in the joy of their children's accomplishments.

Candace Stayton, a longtime friend and coordinator of the recent party, talks about the humble personality and dedication of Fernandes. Her three children learned to swim at Nottingham.

"I've never met a more giving person than Pat Fernandes," says Stayton. "Every year we hold our breath waiting to hear if she's coming back. It will be a sad day for the kids when she leaves." Each summer indeed brings this familiar thought to Fernandes.

"Every year, I wonder if this will be my last," she says.

Fernandes, though, explains she has no plans of giving up the practice anytime soon.

Mr. Willing, 79, was the first chairman of the New Castle County Parks & Recreation Commission. His interest in parks developed in the late 1940s, when the Deerhurst community began an effort to obtain parkland. He served as president of the Deerhurst Civic Association and was chairman of its Parks & Recreation Committee. He was president of the Brandywine Hundred Council of Civic Associations.

During that time, Mr. Willing worked for legislation to create the New Castle County Parks & Recreation Commission, which was established in 1953. The following year, New Castle County Levy Court appointed him to a five-year term on the commission, and the next week he was elected chairman.

Mr. Willing served for about 15 years, during which he crusaded for a workable law to allow the provision for adequate parks and recreation facilities in New Castle County and to help communities outside Wilmington obtain them. He was responsible for bringing the Allen Organization to survey the county for areas for potential use as park sites and met with civic associations and other groups to find and develop recreational areas.

"He spent a lot of time arguing with Levy Court," said his daughter, Anne W. Solan of Newark. "His main achievement, in addition to the inauguration of Banning Park as county parkland, was cobbling together the land purchase deals and to convince legislators to give them money for the parks."

Mr. Willing resigned in the late 1960s, when the position was changed from volunteer to professional.

Professionally, he was a chemical engineer for the DuPont Co. for 38 years. He started his career at the Grasselli plant in New Jersey, after receiving a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Ohio State

County wins Blue Ribbon award for housing program

The New Castle County Department of Community Development & Housing is this year's winner of the John J. Gunther Blue Ribbon Best Practices in Community Development Award.

Earning the honor was the county's Down Payment or Settlement Help Program which helps homebuyers who can afford monthly mortgage payments but have difficulty saving up the required downpayment. County Executive Thomas P. Gordon accepted the award from the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under the program first-time buyers can qualify for a maximum loan of $5,000 for downpayment and settlement costs. Begun as a grant, the program was changed to a loan program in 1996 in order to generate income and reduce reliance on public funds. A minimum $500 cash participation is required, and the maximum purchase price of a house is $130,150.

The interest rate for a loan is fixed at seven percent and is forgivable if paid within three years. Otherwise, payment on the interest, as well as continued payment on the principal, begins at the fourth year and continues through year eight.

Bob Prylucki, acting director of community development and housing believes that required per-housing counseling for buyers is a critical element of the program. "The rate of default on these loans has been incredibly low - only four since the program began," said Prylucki.

In six years of existence, the DPS program has helped 861 county households become first-time home buyers.

Interested homebuyers can contact the following agencies: Neighborhood House 652-3928; Community Housing Inc. 652-3991; NCALL Research 678-9400; and YMCA Center for Home Ownership 888-7790.
