Big Profits Shown In Three Depts. Of Town Government

Street and Sewer Expense For Fiscal Year Cut Other Gains However;
Busy Meeting of Council Held

MAKE NEW PARKING RULES

At the first regular meeting of Council since the close of the fiscal year, held Monday night, the members approved the report of auditors George Rhodes and J. F. Anderson, on the financial status of the town government.

The complete statement appears in section two of this edition of THE POST.

A total net profit of $37,762.71 for three departments of Town Government, Light, Water and Town, is shown in the condensed financial statement. The largest profit for the year was made in the sale of light, that being $20,183.27.

On the other hand, a deficit of $41,186.88 is noted against the street and sewer department. This brings the gains in other departments to naught, and leaves a total deficit of $3,424.17 for the year. The unusually large expenditures for the building and improving of streets during the year accounts, of course, for the large loss in that department.

Make Parking Rules

Perhaps the most important piece of business transacted Monday night was the third reading and passage of an ordinance regulating the parking of automobiles on the streets of the town.

According to the new law, autos are forbidden to be parked closer than ten feet from any fire hydrant, and nearer than 30 feet from any street intersection. There was little or no discussion on the measure and it passed unanimously.

As soon as the principal streets have been re-surfaced, white lines will be painted thereon, as a guide to motorists. This law, according to Councilmen, will be strictly enforced. The ordinance provides that a fine of $10 will be levied for the first offense, and $25 for each subsequent offense.

May Pave East Main Street

Contractor F. W. Lovett appeared before Council Monday evening, and submitted a proposal to rebuild East Main street from Newark Center to the town limits; and North College avenue from Cleveland to Prospect, for the sums of $5000 and $880 respectively. Council made no decision at the meeting. Many residents of the "east end" are disappointed that their street was not included in the original list for resurfacing. It is admittedly one of the roughest streets in town.

The Board of Health was given permission to grant to the firm of Platt and Cohen a revocable license for the establishment of a slaughter house on the Rupp property south of town, with the understanding that at any violation, the business may be ordered further outside the town. About a month ago, it will be remembered, the firm was ordered to move their equipment at least a mile outside town limits within sixty days. It so happened that previous to this order, Platt and Cohen purchased about five (Continued on Page Five.)

Set Dates For 1925 Firemen's Carnival; J. R. Fulton Chosen Head Of Committee

The week from August 1st to August 8th, inclusive, has been officially designated by the Aetna Hose Company of Newark as the dates for the annual Carnival to be held here this summer. This announcement was made yesterday.

Preliminary plans have already been discussed and the Carnival Committee appointed. John R. Fulton, who headed the committee last year, has been re-appointed to the post, and has as his aides the Board of Directors of the Aetna Company, H. Warner McNeal, George W. Rhodes, Robert S. Gallaher and Arthur L. Beales.

The committee is actively preparing for the event. One of the decisions already made is to give away a new Hudson Coach to some lucky person on the closing night of the Carnival.

Mr. Fulton, in discussing the big event yesterday said that every effort will be made to make the 1925 edition the biggest in the history of the company. The Newark Carnival has always been regarded as one of the most important in the State. It is believed that the local firemen are the first in this section to announce their dates and begin work.

Newark Girl Among 8 To Study In France

Miss Kathryn Hubert Going Over Under Foreign Study Plan In June;
Five Men In Group

Miss Kathryn Hubert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Hubert, of this town, is listed among the eight students of the University who are scheduled to go to France next June for a year's study at the Sorbonne, under Delaware's Foreign Study Plan. Miss Hubert is the first Newark student to go over for study since the plan was inaugurated. She is a graduate of Newark High School, and is now a Sophomore at the Women's College. Miss Hubert is very popular with the younger set of the town.

Altogether, eight students will spend a year of study in France. Five of them are men and three women. The eight candidates were recently passed on by the Foreign Study Committee of the University Faculty. They are:

Miss Wilmington and Miss Katherine Miss Hubert, Miss Edith Bogdanoff Krauss of Philadelphia from the Women's College, and Messrs. J. C. Eyer of Felton, E. B. Berry, Durant Stroud, Max Gluck and John Dale of Wilmington.

Detailed plans for the departure of the students will be completed within a few days by the committee. Professor Raymond Kirkbride a member of the Faculty, is handling the workings of the Plan in France.

LAST LINK OPENED

New Bridge At Elkton End Of New Road Being Used Now

The new concrete bridge over Big Elk Neck creek, at foot of Delaware avenue, Elkton, built by the Charles-town Sand and Stone Corporation, for the Maryland State Roads Commission, was opened to the public Saturday. This bridge is the last link in the State road system from Elkton to the Delaware State line, near Glasgow. The concrete road from Elkton to the Delaware line was completed and opened to traffic last fall, when the work on the bridge was started. The old wooden bridge, which has been used for more than 100 years, will be razed.

COL. SMITH TO WED, RUMOR

Former Army Chaplain Expected To Return To Home Here Soon

A well-founded rumor noted today indicates that Colonel Samuel J. Smith, retired Army Chaplain, and a resident of Newark, will shortly be married. It is further rumored that his bride is a woman prominent in Army circles.

Colonel Smith, who has been spending the winter months in Florida, is expected to return to Newark within a few weeks.

Firemen Out Sunday

Newark firemen, in their big ladder truck, were called out late Sunday afternoon to fight a woods fire near Iron Hill. The truck was followed down Elkton road by a stream of cars, intent on going to the fire. Little damage was done by the flames.

One Contest Noted In Newark Town Elections

A. L. Beals and C. C. Hubert Running for Council from Eastern District; Mayor Frazer Unopposed

With the last date for filing names of candidates for Town Council to fill two vacancies having passed Saturday, only one contest shapes up.

In the eastern district, Arthur L. Beales, present incumbent, is opposed for the seat by Charles C. Hubert, manager of the Opera House, and secretary to Samuel J. Wright. Mr. Beales who has sat in Council for some years, is head of the street and sewer department. Both men will likely have plenty of support in the fight.

In the other two districts, there will be no contests; Charles Colmery, Councilman from the middle district, has voluntarily retired, and R. Gilpin Buckingham, the only candidate, will be elected in his place. In the western district E. Clifford Wilson will succeed himself. Mayor Frazer will also be unopposed for President of Council.

The Mayor has appointed Wilbur Wilson and Andrew Fisher as election officers.

The election will be held on Monday, April 13th.

MISS MARY GRAFF DIES IN 88th YEAR

Was Resident of Newark
Mist of Her Life. Funeral
Private

The community was shocked this morning to hear of the sudden death of Miss Mary Jane Graff, sister-in-law of Dr. Harter. Miss Graff has spent the greater part of her life in this community. Her unassuming personality and graceful modesty made her loved by everyone with whom she came in contact. This personality was modest almost to the point of shyness, yet had an influence that permeated the life of the town and it will be difficult for those left behind to take her place of influence.

Miss Graff was in her 88th year. She resided at the Harter home on West Main street practically the entire period of her life here. She was a native of Maryland.

Funeral services and interment will be private, and held at Annapolis, Maryland.

Field Dog Trials At Glasgow Tomorrow; Many Setter And Pointer Fanciers In Town

Dog fanciers from four states are in Newark tonight awaiting the opening of the annual field trials of the Delaware Setter and Pointer Club, to be held tomorrow on the Townsend farm, two miles south of Glasgow, near the Middletown road.

Scores of blue blooded hunting dogs are quartered in Newark and Wilmington, awaiting their turn at the trials. The trials will open early tomorrow morning and will likely last all day. Several classes will be judged, and the large entry list will make it hard to clean up before nightfall.

Partridges, brought here especially for the meet, will be liberated on the Townsend place early in the morning. The judging will be handled by Dr.

Assessment List Now In Possession Of Local Committee

Will Hold Meeting Tomorrow Night
To Go Over and Revise List for Equable Adjustments

Word received this afternoon from John K. Johnston, chairman of the Assessment Revision Committee, appointed at a Town Meeting a few weeks ago, states that a copy of the Newark assessments has been completed.

Mr. Johnston further stated that it is likely that the committee will be called into conference tomorrow night to go over the list and make adjustments and recommendations to the satisfaction of all concerned. The committee comprises, beside Mr. Johnston, Messrs. Owen K. Moore and James D. Davis, Jr., both local real estate authorities.

The copy of the list was procured following a visit made to the Board last week, as reported in The Post, April 1st.

Following the revision and correction of the list, it will be taken back to the Board by the committee with recommendations.

NEWARK BOWLERS WIN AND LOSE DURING WEEK

Dover Wins Playoff At McKee's Alleys Last Night; Elkton Gets Game But Loses On Points

The bowling team of Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company have completed a busy week on the alleys. Two games with the Dover firemen, and one game with Company E of Elkton, comprised their schedule.

Last night on McKee's alleys, Wilmington, the local team lost the odd game to the capital city boys. Last Wednesday night, Dover won the first match.

In the Dover games, the following men were included in the lineup for Newark: Herdman, Durnall, Tasker, Spiggle, Crow, Robinson, Frazer, Biggs, Davis, L. Hill, Nelson and Hoskins. In the Elkton game, Earl Ramsey also got into the lineup. Atkinson, Brown, Bolsby, Dunbar and Fillegan bowled for Elkton.

DWELLING BURNS DOWN

There was no one in the building at the time of the fire. Some furniture, being kept there by the owner, was destroyed.

School Board Replies to Petition of Parents; Still Deem it Unwise to Move Primary School.

ONE SCHOOL BOARD VACANCY TO BE FILLED

Announcement has been made by the Newark Board of Education that the annual elections will be held on Saturday, May 2nd, between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m., for the filling of one vacancy. Mr. John S. Shaw's term as president of the Board expires on June 30th next. Mr. Shaw succeeded Dr. Walt H. Steel, deceased, last fall. The member elected in May will serve three years.

Nominations for places on the ballot, must be accompanied by the written signatures of at least 25 qualified voters of the Newark special school district in each case, and must be filed with the Clerk of the Peace not later than 15 days prior to the election. The election will be conducted by the Board.

Merchants' Protest Keeps Tar Off Street

Council And Contractors Stir Up Hornet's Nest In Planning Main Street Closing

Confronted by the fast-growing murmur of protest from a score of Main street merchants last Thursday, the decision to block off Main street from the Opera House corner to the College through the heart of the business section for the purpose of tarring the street was gracefully withdrawn by the Mayor, Council and Contractor Lovett Friday morning.

Original plans in the improving of the streets called for the tarring and resurfacing of central Main street on Friday and Saturday. When the news reached the merchants an unmistakable howl went up, and wires were hot for an hour or more. The business men say they recall very clearly a similar occurrence last year, during the Interscholastic Track and Field meet at the college, at which time visitors from all parts of the state were forced to walk through the tar, track it into stores and homes, and autos were kept off the street entirely. Thousands of dollars were lost to the merchants at that time, it is claimed. One business man stated that were the street to be blocked off again last Friday and Saturday, the business section would stand to lose about $20,000.

As far as is known, Contractor Lovett was ready to start work on Main street, especially since he had a car of tar on a siding nearby eating up its worth in demurrage.

The unanimous protest of merchants from both sides of the business district, however, had its effect, and there was nothing left for the street authorities to do but to call off their party.

Thereupon, everybody smiled affably, the sun came out good and warm, and Newark enjoyed one of the biggest Saturday afternoon and evening crowds of the past year.

Letter From President Of Board Assures That Old Building Will Be Kept Sanitary; Appreciates Criticism; Asks Parents' Inspection.

MR. BONHAM STATES POSITION

Events of the past week, culminating Monday night in a special meeting of the Newark Board of Education, have tended to clear up the differences of opinion between the Board and the opposing group of parents with regard to the moving of the Primary School pupils into the newly completed school on Academy Street. As far as each side is concerned, it is understood that the case is definitely closed.

The petition, published last week in this paper, together with statements from both sides, formed the basis for the special meeting of the Board, at which time they reconsidered the whole case.

As a result of the meeting, the President of the Board, Mr. John S. Shaw, directed the following letter to Mr. H. L. Bonham, under whose leadership the petition was framed. This letter, stating the permanent position of the Board, is as follows:

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Newark, Delaware,
April 7, 1925.

Mr. Harry L. Bonham,
Newark, Delaware.

Dear Mr. Bonham:
The Board of Education of Newark, Delaware, wishes to acknowledge receipt of the petition of the parents of the primary school students in which petition the Board was requested to reconsider the decision that the primary students remain in the old building until school closes this June.

The Board wishes to advise that the new building is not ready at present for occupancy by the primary students, inasmuch as several rooms smell strongly of fresh paint and there is equipment yet to be received. This equipment consists of tables, desks, chairs, etc. However, the greatest obstacle to moving at once is that the grounds are not yet graded, manured or seeded; and until this work can be completed the condition will not only be uncleanly but dangerous for the children. During this work there will be trucks, tractors, and steam-rollers at work; so, the Board considers it unsafe and unwise to move the little children while this work is going on.

The old primary school is declared by authority to be sanitary and the Board wishes to assure all parents that it will be kept so until the children are moved.

The School Board welcomes any criticisms and suggestions from parents and the public at large; and would be glad for the parents to visit the old primary school and satisfy themselves as to its true condition.

The Board appreciates the interest parents have shown and heartily agrees with the sentiment that the health and the welfare of the children shall at all times have first consideration.

It is the hope of the Board that the new school can be ready for occupancy of the primary children this spring, and every effort will be made to move the children at the earliest possible date.

Very truly yours,
JOHN S. SHAW,
President Newark Board of Education.

In a letter directed for publication in The Post this week, Mr. Bonham, representing the parents who protested conditions in the old building on Main Street, clearly states his position in the matter. While still not agreeing with the Board in its final action, is ready to accept the decision in good faith, with the hope that the building's sanitary conditions will continue to be kept in the best possible condition pending the ultimate removal of the children. The letter follows:

The letter follows:

Does Advertising Pay?

From Kansas City Club News.

Advertising has made the Victrola Dog famous.

It has put Castoria down your throat, left bristles in your gums, and then came along with a Rubberset and took them out.

It has put Sozodont, Pebecco and Pepsodent on your teeth.

It has put a Gillette against your haystack.

It has put Arrow collars around your neck and Ingersolls around your wrist.

It has jammed your feet in Hole-proof sox, put Paris garters on your legs and Tiffany rings on your fingers.

Go anywhere you want to, do anything you wish, and advertising has had a hand in it—absolutely.

And then some people ask, "Does advertising pay?"

National Oratory Contest To Open In A Few Days

Students in the senior high schools of Delaware will compete again this year in the National Oratorical Contest on the Constitution. That announcement was made yesterday by the Philadelphia Regional Committee. The contest is limited to secondary schools of high school rank and is designed to increase interest in and respect for the Constitution.

The contest among the Delaware schools will be under the direct supervision of John Shilling, Assistant State Superintendent of Schools in charge of high schools.

A chance to go to college for four years with all expenses paid, or perhaps a tour of Europe, are involved in the prizes for which the youthful orators will vie.

The winner of the final regional contest, which will be held in the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, the night of May 1, will be awarded a four-year scholarship in any university he or she selects and will be sent to Washington to compete in the national final on May 8 for aggregating $5000. The cash will be divided so that the winner will receive $2000, second $1000 and so on in decreasing ratio until seventh place, which will carry with it a prize of $300.

There will be seven contestants in the national final, one from each of the major regions into which the country has been divided. The Philadelphia region is composed of eastern Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey and Delaware. The active work of organizing the contest in the region is being done under the direction of Roger M. Newcomb, executive secretary for the Regional Committee, 324 Bulletin Building, Philadelphia.

The Regional Committee is composed of United States Senator George Wharton Pepper, chairman;

Hampton Barnes, chancellor of the Law Association of Philadelphia; J. Hay Brown, former chief justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania; Hampton L. Carson, president of the Pennsylvania Historical Society; Richard E. Cochran, former president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association; Dr. Russell H. Conwell, president of Temple University and famous lecturer; Theodore F. Jenkins, former chancellor of the Law Association of Philadelphia; Frank S. Katzenback, Jr., justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey; Mrs. J. Willis Martin, Philadelphia; George W. Norris, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia; United States Senator David A. Reed, Pennsylvania; Edwin S. Stuart, former governor of Pennsylvania, and Victor B. Wooley, Judge of United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Wilmington, Del.

The contest is being repeated this year at the urging of the American Bar Association whose Americanization committee, of which Josiah Marvel, Wilmington, is chairman, is working closely in co-operation with the National Oratorical Contest.

Classroom contests first will be held in the various schools in order to select the best orators. Those winners then will be brought together in groups of seven or eight in interschool district contests. Through such eliminations the orators in the region finally will be reduced to seven or eight who will compete for the scholarship prize in the final in Philadelphia.

The expenses of all contestants will be defrayed when they are required to

In Memoriam

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and our father, James Scott Jamison, who departed this life one year ago, April 7, 1924.

Dearest loved one, we have laid you in the peaceful grave's embrace, But your memory will be cherished till we see your heavenly face. You are free from pain and suffering, Not a care can reach you now. Friends may think the wound is healed,

But they little know the sorrow That lies within our hearts concealed. We miss you from our place, We miss your kind and willing hand, Your fond and earnest care

We miss you everywhere. Though our hearts are sad and lonely, And the Cross is hard to bear, Day by day we watched you fade And slowly pine away,

Yet in our hearts we often prayed That you might longer stay. Yet through all your suffering, you smiled

The smile of heavenly birth. And when God's angel called you home,

May we live with His assurance That we'll meet you over there. It is sweet to breathe your name In life we loved you dearly,

In death we do the same. Sadly missed by Wife and Children.

travel and there are no entry fees or other outlays involved.

The entrants in the contest are limited to regularly enrolled students in schools of high school rank, and who were not more than 19 years old on February 1. The contest is open to both boys and girls.

The orations must be the original compositions of the contestants and not take longer than ten minutes for delivery. The subjects are limited to eight and are "The Constitution," "The Constitution and Washington," "The Constitution and Webster," "The Constitution and Madison," "The Constitution and Jefferson," "The Constitution and Hamilton," "The Constitution and Marshall," and "The Constitution and Lincoln."

About 2,000,000 students throughout the United States will prepare orations in the preliminary contests this year. Of that number more than 150,000 are in the Philadelphia region.

The Philadelphia regional contest was won last year by John Dallen, 3d, of West Philadelphia High School, who placed third in the national final which was won by Don Taylor, of Los Angeles. The judges of the national final are the justices of the United States Supreme Court. President Coolidge was present last year and again will be this year.

The Issue of the Day

To make this state a better place in which to live is the ambition and work of every thinking citizen. All worthy and practical legislation has this as the motive. Tomorrow in Delaware depends solely on what we do for the children today. Our Today with all its advantages is the result of the thought and work of our fathers enacted into legislation. Their ideals and ambitions for us, their children, are naught but kind thoughts, except where they put them into statute. So today our dreams for our children, our ambitions for our State will prove naught and unworthy of us unless we put them into legislative action.

Tomorrow the Educational Program.—Public School and Women's College—come before our representatives for consideration, decision and action. Worthy or unworthy, practical or impractical as the deliberations and actions of this General Assembly may have been, nothing of such vital import has been before them as the Educational Bills now at hand. Wipe every law passed this session from the statutes, and the State will go on. But failing in serving our children tomorrow, will in our judgment take away much of advantage to our children which in turn steals tomorrow's opportunities.

The people of the State favor this Legislation because their children's opportunities, happiness and chances in life are involved. The members of the General Assembly have a serious task, fraught with serious responsibilities. We hope and believe they sense this obligation to their constituents, their children and the future.

Thankful we are that this is not political legislation nor sectional. Education means making a people better, happier and life more worthy and worthwhile.

Delaware, her children and future are the Issues tomorrow. May the vote be worthy of our fathers and with honor to ourselves, and expressive, in law, of our love for our children.

School Conditions Apparently Now Adjusted

The communications appearing in THE POST this week from H. L. Bonham, representing the petition of the parents as published last week, and the reconsideration by the Board of Education and reply to Mr. Bonham, appearing in this issue, would seem to adjust the sanitary conditions and difficulties involved, and now under discussion. We feel sure that the conditions at the old Primary School will now be kept as well as is possible in this building, and that the Board of Education will make every effort practicable to transfer the children as early as possible to the new building.

It is rather unfortunate that the matter of conditions at the old building should have had to be made public. None, so far as we have heard, holds the Board responsible, and those who had neglected the attention that could have been given will certainly be no longer derelict. In our judgment the matter is now a completed issue, and conditions will be made the very best that can be had under the existing circumstances.

An Official Board meeting was held at the parsonage last Tuesday evening. The purpose of the meeting was to lay plans for the execution of this year's work. We are glad to report at this time that the work last year was a great success. All of the regular expenses of the church were paid and thirteen dollars left in the treasury to begin the new year. Reminiscences of Civil War Days in this Community

By R. G. BUCKINGHAM

I left the Fourth Regiment, Delaware Volunteers, Co. E, at the Soldiers Rest, City of Washington, November 10, 1862. On the morning of the 11th, the Regiment was ordered into line, marched down Pennsylvania Avenue, over cobble stones, and across the Long Bridge over the Potomac, where for the first time it commenced to look as though we were in the enemy's country. Soldier guards were stationed on each end of the bridge, so an individual soldier could not pass over without having a certain regulation pass from the commanding officer.

We marched up on Arlington Heights and encamped on General Lee's extensive farm. Winter came upon us there unprepared, and many of the boys suffered much from cold and unpreparedness. After building a mile or two of corduroy road, we moved over and farther down to what was called Camp Vermont. We fared better there, having learned something of a soldier's life—"take care of yourself and fix up your quarters, if you only stay one night in them"—and that maxim we carried through our entire service. Our stay there was of short duration. On the 24th of December we were to pack up and move. The soldier in line never knew where or why we were moving. We marched to the wharf at Alexandria, Va., and rumor had it we were going to Yorktown, Va., on the York River. Those good people that we had left behind in Delaware and the Good Templars in particular, had not forgotten us. Mail came into camp once a day and several of the boys had received receipts for boxes, sent them from Delaware. Lieutenant D. E. Buckingham, afterward Captain, went to the Express office in Alexandria, and received for the boxes of Co. E, and had them sent to the wharf where the boat was still lying in wait.

When all were abroad late in the day of the 24th, we steamed down the Potomac River and into the Bay and up the York River to Gloucester Point, opposite Yorktown, landing the next day (Christmas) about 12 o'clock. Sufficient to say we fared sumptuously on our boat ride—enough and to spare.

At Gloucester Point about one-half mile back from the river, there was a camp that had been vacated by a New York regiment. The camp was equipped with Sybly tents which were sound, about 14 feet in diameter, erected on posts set in the ground about 4 feet in height and elinked and plastered with that Virginia mud which was noted for its sticking qualities. A Sybly stove in the centre, the tent about 12 feet high in the centre, 14 comrades to a tent. Encamped on Gloucester Point was the 157th Pa. Infantry, a regiment of cavalry and Captain Mink's Battery. That whole force made several raids up into Gloucester County, gathering in much corn and other farm products. Those raids were not all together pleasure trips. The orders would be "light marching orders," which consisted of one day's cooked rations, 40 rounds of ammunition. A 40-mile march from 5 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night was no 8 hour day's work. Maj. Gen. Keyes was in command, headquarters at Yorktown. Brig. Gen. Busted in command on Gloucester Point. A great many contrabands came into our lines while we were there. They built their own quarters. One settlement of about twenty shanties was called "Slab Richmond"; another equally as large, was called "Toner Town," after our distinguished Regular Quartermaster. Of a pleasant evening you would be entertained royally by these people singing their plantation songs and dances. The winter soon passed, with drills, reviews, inspection, raids, guard and picket duty, so that on or about the 20th of June, with 40 rounds of ammunition, and 4 days' cooked rations, we crossed the York River to Yorktown and together with the troops on that side of the river, altogether some 10,000 infantry, 2000 cavalry and 2 battalions of artillery, all under the command of Gen. Keyes, an old Regular Army general, we started to move.

We found Fort Magruder, near Williamsburg, evacuated, also. As we marched through it, the nicely laid out streets, shaded with beautiful trees, made a good impression on the common soldiers. After marching some miles out of Williamsburg, we passed the 14 miles Ordinary Hotels, called ordinary that far to Richmond. Nobody said "let us stop in." We marched on to the nine mile "ordinary," where we halted for the night. Our whole regiment was detailed for picket duty.

It was a dark night, our line of picket ran along the edge of a woods with a ravine near the edge. Our orders were to halt no one coming from the enemy's side, but to shoot. Along about 12 o'clock there was quite a commotion in front, shots were fired, which were carried down the line to the reserve picket post. Results ascertained the next morning: No dead Johnnies, but instead, some farmer's cattle and sheep which had been turned into the woods for safety.

We took up the line of March in the morning for Richmond, or in that direction, reaching White House Landing on the Pamunkey River. There we found trouble. Our line of march was disputed. After a few battery shots were fired, I suppose our General thought his object had been obtained, which history says was to prevent President Davis from reinforcing Gen. Lee on his campaign into Pennsylvania and the battle of Gettysburg. We returned to Yorktown over the same road that we had advanced upon, but through rain and mud. Bringing up the rear guard, after the cavalry, infantry and battery had passed over the road, you can imagine the condition of it from two days' travel.

Arriving at Yorktown about the 12th of July, after a few days we struck tents, boarded a boat and landed at Alexandria. After doing guard duty in the way of guarding captured deserters, bounty jumpers, and the like, we marched out to Fairfax Court House on the line with the Orange and Alexandria R. R. The Army of the Potomac had followed Gen. Lee back to near there. Our boys thought although we had so far been kept out of the Army of the Potomac, it looked as though we were in now for sure, which proved correct. In the following summer we did picket duty and guard duty on trains bringing provisions and forage up from Alexandria for the Army of the Potomac. The Army lay nearly all winter inactive. One of the high spots for me that winter was Col. Grimshaw called me to his tent and said, "Sergeant, it is reported that there is one or more of Col. Mosley's men at home near here. I want you to take ten men out of Co. G (Co. E was on picket duty), and a man by the name of Brooks, who was from the North, a school teacher near Fairfax Court House, for seven years, about 28 years of age, will be here about dark. Report here at headquarters for instructions with your men."

I had heard of Brooks before. He was from the State of New York; fine fellow, and one that would impress you that he knew what he was talking about. Under his guidance we left camp, and marched out into an unknown county so far as we knew. About five miles out I was shown a house we were to search for a man's son. Encircling the house about a quarter of a mile away, in open order, we closed in, but dogs—just plain dogs, some half dozen, gave warning of our approach. Leaving a soldier at each corner of the house, myself and four of the men went through, the owner leading us and carrying a light. We had a light, also, so as not to be left in the dark by any trick of the owner. We found no one. After searching two other houses with the same result, we arrived at Centerville, some 15 miles from the Court House. There were several houses there, including the house that Brooks told us the man had a son with Mosley. After knocking on the door, the man put his head out. Informing him we wanted to search the house, "all right," he said, "first the Yanks and then the Johnny, come in." Get your light, three of them, which he did. We found two girls there, but no man. We returned to camp about daylight. Results, tired but captured no enemy, nor saw no armed enemy.

The winter of 1863 passed away with some little hurries of excitement caused by Mosley's men capturing a sutler wagon or a few unarmed men. As the Christmas of 1862, so with the Christmas of 1863 we were remembered by the good people at home, with boxes of home eatables. The talk around the camp fire, while we had been greatly favored, it looked as though when spring came we would be a part of the Army of the Potomac.

Mrs. Oscar Elliott's group of the Ladies Aid of the M. E. Church will hold a bake at the New Century Club, Saturday afternoon, April 18. In the evening the group will give a play entitled "Foreign Folks," at 8.15.

Under the leadership of Miss Marion McKinney of the Department of Biology at the Women's College, Miss Marion Sharpless, Miss Marie Parker and Miss Bertha Skirvan will spend the first three days of the vacation visiting places of biological interest in New York such as the American Museum of Natural History, the Aquarium and the Zoological Garden.

Miss Elizabeth G. Kelley, instructor of Textiles and Clothing at the Women's College, has been appointed to represent Delaware on the Committee on the Hygiene of Clothing, by Miss Grace Denney, chairman of the Textiles Section of the American Home Economics Association. This committee was organized to investigate methods of instruction, results obtained therefrom, what research is now going on and what need there is for research in this field.

NEW CENTURY CLUB

The attendance at the New Century Club meeting on March 30th was unusually large. The program was unusual, too. Those present were given a delightful lesson in "home-making." The teaching was done through the medium of a play that was written and acted by a group of High School students under the direction of Miss Battary. The idea of using a play to make concrete the work being done in Home Making originated with Miss Florence Stidham, a student teacher of the Women's College.

Mrs. Van Keuren was responsible for having a Home-making day. She introduced Miss Parker of the Women's College, who took charge of the program. Miss Parker gave us some idea of the comprehensiveness of the subject of Home-Making. Most of us had not associated music with Home Economics, unless the whir of the sewing machine and the rattle of dishes could be construed as music. To illustrate this phase of home-making, Pauline Moore (the daughter) led the audience (the family) in the singing of some familiar songs. Miss Conway, of the Women's College, demonstrated the educational as well as the entertaining possibilities of the Victrola in the home. She played some selections from Pere Gynt, which she prefaced with a brief sketch of the opera and something of the life of the composer.

Miss Pearl Boris of the High School, recited to us in poetry the characteristics of an ideal girl. Miss Amery, State Director of Home-Making, explained the Home Economics movement; the national scope of the organization and the importance attached to it by the United States Senate.

Miss Houston, of the High School faculty, further illustrated the uplifting power of music by singing several Creole songs. She was accompanied by Miss Elsie Wright.

Monday, April 6th, the Hockessin Club were our guests. They brought a splendid program to us. Miss Maxwell planned to have an exhibit of antiques on the same day.

acres of the Rupp property, with the intention of setting up business there, and that, to obey the Council's order, they would have to take a heavy loss. Thus the decision was altered somewhat Monday night.

Some discussion resulted over the matter of licenses for hucksters and peddlars who, it is claimed, are over-running the town. No action was taken pending a legal opinion from Attorney Charles B. Evans.

A letter of thanks was read from the New Century Club in which they appreciated the prompt action of Council in ordering the removal of the slaughter house on Delaware avenue.

It was decided by Council to allow no one to break a street for the digging of a water tap or sewer unless the regular fee of $25 had been deposited with the Secretary. This decision followed some trouble between the mayor and a property owner on New London avenue.

Fines to the amount of $35 for the month were reported by Alderman Thompson. The balance in bank April first stated as $3,905.63. Present at the meeting were Mayor Frazer and Councilmen Beales, Colmery, Wilson and Grier. It was Mr. Colmery's last meeting, as he retires this year.

ELKTON HIGH OPENS
SEASON WITH VICTORY

Chesapeake City Easy Pickings for Last Year's Champions Last Friday

Elkton High School's baseball team pried the lid off the 1925 season last Friday afternoon, and right royally entertained the Chesapeake City High School nine. The Elkton club won under wraps, score 10-1.

Richards allowed the canal boys but six hits. Both teams made many errors, partly due to the cold weather and a lack of practice. Tom Kay played a splendid all-round game for the victors, as did Al Kay, Crothers and Howell. The score:

HARMONY GRANGE

Plans for the initiation of new members to the grange were discussed at the regular meeting at the Mer-second degrees next week.

During the business meeting, it was reported that the fertilizer order pooled by the Grange members had been shipped.

At the opening of Lecturer's hour,
Miss Annie Dennison gave a recitation on "The Old Town Hall." Following this, several games were indulged in. It was announced that the lecturer's hour next week will be devoted to an Easter program.

STANTON GRANGE MEETS

Diamond State Grange of Stanton held its weekly business meeting last evening in Stanton Hall. Following routine business, considerable time was devoted to rehearsal of degree work, as a class of eight candidates will be initiated next Monday evening the first and second degrees.

NEW POSTAL RATES

The outstanding features, according to official orders received from Washington, are as follows:

The rate of postage on all post cards will be two cents each, whether they bear written or printed matter.
This rate will also apply to each portion of double or reply post cards.
The postage on the reply half need not be affixed thereto until it is detached and mailed for return. This includes all cards within the size for post cards, whether or not they bear rate of postage on government postal cards nor on any other mail of the matter now included in the third and fourth classes up to and including eight ounces in weight, while the new fourth class will include all matter classes over eight ounces in weight and not exceeding 70 pounds in the first, second, and third zones, and not exceeding 50 pounds when mailed for delivery in any of the other zones.

"The Show-Off"

George Kelly, author of "The Torch Bearers," has furnished another engaging comedy of American life under the title of "The Show-Off." The important item in the "Show-Off" is a pompous and self-sufficient Philadelphia four-flusher, "Aubrey Piper," by name. He is a shallow, bombastic youth, a clerk at $32.50 per week in the freight office of a railroad company. He intimates that he is chief of his department with men at his beck and call. His laugh is loud and he assurance is stupendous. He wears a toupee on his forehead and a carnation in his buttonhole. These are just a few of this young man's talents and accomplishments. "The Show-Off" is the most attractive of comedies and one that can be heartily recommended. It will be seen at the Playhouse on Monday and Tuesday evenings, April 13 and 14.

The Declaration of Independence

The Constitution of the United States of America

These are the greatest documents in civic and political history. Upon them rest the Idea and Ideals of Liberty and the Future of Christian Civilization.

Have you a copy?

Listen to what Lincoln said:

THE CONSTITUTION

LET EVERY AMERICAN, every lover of liberty, every well-wisher to his posterity, swear by the blood of the Revolution, never to violate in the least particular the laws of the country, and never to tolerate their violation by others. As the patriots of "seventy-six" did to the support of the Declaration of Independence, so to the support of the Constitution and the Laws let every American pledge his life, his property, and his sacred honor; let every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his father, and to tear the charter of his own and his children's liberty. Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap. Let it be taught in schools, in seminaries, and in colleges. Let it be written in primers, spelling-books, and in almanacs. Let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice. And, in short, let it become the political religion of the nation.

Presbyterian Singers Please Big Audience

Cantata "The Greatest Love" Wel
Received in Church Last Sunday Evening

Before an audience which severely taxed the seating capacity of the building, the choir of the Presbyterian Church gave a cantata, "The Greatest Love," in the church last Sunday evening. From beginning to end, the entertainment was greatly enjoyed.

Under the direction of A. D. Cobb, choirmaster, the choir handled duets, trios, double quartets and choral music in splendid style. Soloists of the evening were Miss Anne Ritz, Mr. Cobb, Mrs. J. M. Barnes and Philip B. Myers.

Mrs. J. H. Hossinger, who, at the last minute, accompanied at the organ in place of Miss Nell B. Wilson, who was ill, also received many compliments for her excellent work. Mrs. Hossinger has not played the organ for some years and the difficult music was a severe test. Her work easily kept pace with the excellence of the choir. Rev. Hallman opened the evening with a short prayer. There was no additional program.

The cantata program follows:
Opening chorus, "Over the Earth Fell a Darkness"; duet, "The Light Has Come," Miss Ritz and Mrs. Kennedy; bass solo and quartet, "The Morn of Victory," Mr. Cobb, Miss Houston, Mrs. Lewis and Mr. Myers; chorus, "Lead Me," tenor solo, "The Greatest Love," Mr. Myers; trio, "Peace Be With You," Miss Houston, Mr. Myers and Mr. Barnes; solo, "Blessed Be the Nation," Miss Ritz; double quartet, "The Lord Is King," Miss Ritz, Miss Houston, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Woods, Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Myers, Mr. Barnes and Mr. Cobb; solo, "I Will Behold Him," Mrs. Barnes; bass solo, "Love's Victory," Mr. Cobb; finale, "Unto the End of the World," choir.

Bright Prospects At High School For Winning Ball Team

With eight veterans back in togs, close to a dozen additional candidates chafing for a chance to show their wares, and, to be sure, a brand new set of handsome uniforms, the utmost happiness seems to exist in the ranks of the High School baseball squad these days.

The fair weather has given Coach Horace Nunn plenty of opportunity to put his charges through the early season drilling. Batting practice, of which there can never be enough, has been wisely given first place lately, and from all accounts, the old ball is getting some terrific jolts.

Both Coach Nunn and captain "Shorty" Chalmers are enthusiastic over the team's chances this year. They point with pardonable pride to the veteran material on hand, including a two-year infield of real ability, a sturdy little catcher in Amos Davis, and Reggie Rose and Harkness ready for pitching duty. On paper, and on past performances, the team looks good—unusually good. They should be a better club this year. That's about as far as one can safely venture. Baseball has, along with most sports, an unhappy way of fooling the wise ones. It never pays to be

No Playing Field

Just at present, the lack of a proper playing field is hampering early practice. The boys are working out in an open field below the new school. They are daily running the risk of turned ankles and sprains. As far as is known now, no definite arrangements for a regular diamond have been made. Since the first three scheduled games will be played away from home, however, there is every reason to believe that a field will be procured and put in shape for the home games within a month.

PROPOSED FOR DIPLOMAT

Friends of Prof. George H. Ryden, a member of the Faculty of the University, are reported to be actively backing him for the vacant post of United States Minister to Finland. Professor Ryden, when approached concerning reports published in Wilmington papers late last week, expressed himself as being "as much surprised as you were."

School Board Replies To Petition

submitted to the Board of Education and the various article on this subject appearing in the NEWARK POST under date of April 1, I feel that on behalf of the parents supporting this petition as well as the taxpayers of this school district that some additional explanation may possibly be in order.

It seems that the Board of Education decided to move only the High School pupils into the new school and intends to defer any transfer of the Primary Schools until next September. This brought forth considerable protest on the part of the parents who have been anxiously awaiting the time when the new school would be finished and the children could be transferred from their present unsanitary quarters. Mrs. Bonham and the writer called upon Mr. J. H. Owens, Superintendent of Schools, on March 18, shortly after this decision was made public and the only reason he gave us for not transferring the Primary School was on account of the fact grading had not been finished at the new building, stating that there would be certain dangers to the younger children while this grading was being done. In reply to this we stated the school children were obliged to go through more dangers daily dodging horses, carts, trucks, automobiles and reckless drivers in going to and from school. In this connection, it is interesting to note how a proposition of this kind is being handled in Wilmington. The new Thomas F. Bayard School is now finished and takes care of 750 children, yet the grounds have not been cleared nor graded.

In regard to the unsanitary conditions, particularly the condition of the toilets, Mr. Owens stated during our conference that this could not be rectified unless condemned by the Board of Health. We then called on Mr. Gallaher and Mr. Gray, but they were not at home and were then informed that Mr. Shaw was out of town. Following Mr. Owens' tip in regard to the Board of Health, it was our intention to visit the building with Dr. Downes, but immediately after our conference with Mr. Owens, we discovered that a general housecleaning had been started at the school building. The trash and rubbish as well as the winter's ashes had been taken from the basement and disposed of, and the floors looked as though they had been swept. The toilets had been cleaned and from the general odor of the place, there certainly must have been enough disinfectant used to care of the conditions—at least temporarily. Some of the floors looked as though they had been mopped up with water, and I venture to say these floors have not seen a drop of water since last summer, except, perhaps, the rain water which comes through the roof and lays on the floor in puddles. At the entrance of one cloakroom in rainy weather, it is a well-known fact that children going from the cloakroom to the classroom get their feet wet. After the building had been given a housecleaning and sweetened up a bit as mentioned above, it was then that Superintendent Owens requested Dr. Downes to make an inspection. In view of the above circumstances, I must take exception to Superintendent Owens' statement in the Post of April 1 to the effect that Dr. Downes' inspection "was made under regular everyday conditions."

I am writing this somewhat in detail as I feel the parents back of this petition should know exactly what has happened within the past few weeks, since the movement for sanitary schools in Newark was started.

In your paper of April 1, Mr. Owens says in part, "I believe the Primary School is not materially worse in the matter of sanitation than it was last year." We are not claiming it is any worse than last year as that would be almost impossible, but it has certainly not been any better, and up until the time of the recent housecleaning mentioned above and dating after our conference with Mr. Owens, the Primary School building has been a very unsanitary place and all that has been stated in the petition.

Sanitary quarters are most essential to health and we are extremely glad to know that the Primary School has been cleaned, and have reason to believe from the strong odor of disinfectant most noticeably this morning as we passed the building that an effort is being made to keep it so. It is unfortunate that attention had to be called to this very important matter, and we hope this good work will continue until the children can be moved.

We sincerely hope that our Board of Education, will give due and favorable consideration to the petition presented to them representing as it does the wishes of sixty-three per cent of the parents.

Yours truly,
H. L. BONHAM.

Easy Lessons In Golf

By EGBERT

"Holding One's Temper" Or "Hazards Ahead"

As I remarked last week, the lecture hereinbefore given formed the basis for a Chataqua speech I delivered out in Kansas or some place last summer. The applause, I confess, was terrific; the air being filled with handkerchiefs. I never dreamed so many people in Kansas knew what Golf was. What a remarkable progress this old nation, which I have nicknamed "America," is making! But, to the subject.

One of the first laws of the Royal and Ancient is that one's Temper varies directly as to one's Game. In short, X, representing, if you will, your Temper, is to Y, representing, if you please, your Game, as this is to that, and vice versa; thereby proving, with the aid of elementary mathematics, the theorem given above. If that is perfectly clear, we will proceed. (This particular paragraph was enthusiastically received by my Kansas friends, by the way.)

Whenever a chap who follows faithfully the Game, comes to what is commonly known as a Hazard (a Hazard, dear reader, is something put where it is because there is no other place to put it), he usually becomes nervous. He approaches it as though it were a dentist. He fumes and frets at it. It worries him more at a distance than it does when it surrounds him. He has lost what I shall call, "Perspective in Golf." The architectural beauty of the course becomes, to him, a wealth of ugly angles, deep caverns, and rushing gullies. In short, he hates the damned things.

Now when I apply, practically, my Modern School of Golf, I always take the pupils to the nearest bunker. (A Bunker, folks, is Mr. Hazard's eldest son and heir.) In fact, when I am playing a round, I deliberately drive into one, to test myself. I shall say right here, that I have always survived the test—which, of course, you all knew.

There's really nothing to worry about.

You get in. You are in, that's all. There is no doubt about it. That you might have been Out is beside the point. So might have Jonah.

So, remove from your minds all hopes of getting out. Then, if the unusual happens, imagine the joy and surprise that will be yours.

Take a specific case: Your ball lies in sand, seven feet from the top of the bunker. It is a hot day. The wind is in the east, the barometer is falling—feels like snow.

1. Sit down in the shade; if there is no shade, sit down anyhow. Try to picture the advantage you have in playing all in one place when the rest of the foursome is out there chasing around under the blazing sun. Think of the steps you are going to save here in the bunker. Think of your wife. That's a more or less standing influence. Lay a mental bet with yourself that she will or will not make buns for supper.

2. Take a few practice swings. Ascertain at what angle the ball must leave the ground to clear the bunker. Don't fail to climb up and see if there's anybody out on the fairway that the ball might hit. By this time you should be sufficiently calm to address the ball (the word "address," here is used of course in the abstract, or something). Address it with rollicking gaiety. After the first seven swings, sit down again. Think how comical you must have looked—how Wiley would have roared. Content yourself with the thought that you, of course, will eventually get out. Everybody gets out, sometime.

3. Here's the Prime suggestion, which tears the veil from all the hokum about Golf. By nothing more than simple reasoning, it is evident that if you drove the ball

County Agent Gives Much Information In Monthly Report

Activities Among Farmers in County
Discussed in Paper Read
Last Saturday

"The tabulation of the farm management survey conducted in the Middletown area by the Extension Service of the University of Delaware is nearing completion. It is the plan to put out a publication covering the results of this survey. As the type of farming in the Middletown area is rather typical of that of the southern half of the county, it is thought that a publication covering this survey will be of value to the farmers of the entire southern half of New Castle county."

Hockessin Short Course

"The Farmers' Short Course held at Hockessin the week of March 2-5 under the direction of the University of Delaware was fairly successful. An unusually instructive program was given each session. The average attendance at the sessions was about 40 and although the attendance was not as great as was anticipated, yet considering the fact that this was the first short course of its kind held in the northern part of New Castle county it can be considered fairly successful. The local committee in charge of the Short Course was Frank F. Yearsley, Mahlon P. Lee, and Wilson Pierson, all of Hockessin. The committee from the University which cooperated with this local committee was Director C. A. McCue, Prof. G. L. Schuster and R. O. Bauman."

Potato Demonstration

"During the last two months I have been in close touch with the committee in charge of the certified seed potato pool. This committee consisted of Frank F. Yearsley of Marshallton, C. P. Dickey of Stanton, and Wilson Pierson of Hockessin. After looking into several sources of seed potatoes the order was placed with the New York Co-operative Seed Potato Association. The pool this year includes approximately 1,700 bushels of Green Mountain and Irish Cobbler seed potatoes."

"I am arranging with several growers this spring to conduct demonstrations, not so much for the purpose of demonstrating the value of certified seed potatoes over that of home grown seed but rather to show the value of the certified seed potatoes over the year old seed potatoes grown from certified seed. We will also test one or two varieties of potatoes against the Green Mountains."

Sweet Clover Demonstrations

"The fields which we are using for sweet clover demonstrations were seeded last week. The demonstrations are on the farms of H. C. Milliken, Coch; W. E. Cann, Glasgow, and J. D. Reynolds, Middletown. Every step has been taken to insure successful demonstrations. The lime was applied last fall at the time the wheat bed was prepared, Ontario Searified seed was secured through the Farmers' Exchange and the seed was thoroughly inoculated. It is the plan to conduct a legume crops tour next fall, inspecting several demonstrations of sweet clover, alfalfa and soy beans."

Tuberculin Tested Dairy Cattle

"The first part of March I was up in New York State with J. D. Reynolds of Middletown and H. J. Taggart of Newark buying two carloads of dairy cattle. Both Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Taggart lost their herds through the tuberculin test and both were interested in buying cattle which they knew to be free from tuberculosis. One carload of grade Holsteins and one carload of pure bred Holsteins were purchased from accredited herds for tuberculosis control. It is safe to say that these cattle are of a better type than could have been purchased in Delaware and they were purchased cheaper than they could have been in Delaware."

"The question in the minds of a great many farmers who are contemplating having their herds tested for tuberculosis is where they could go to buy tested cattle in case they lost some in the test. There are many sections in Pennsylvania and New York State which have adopted the area of eradicating tuberculosis. Every herd within these areas has been tested for tuberculosis by federal (Continued on Page 11.)

Sergeant Ray To Be Chief
Instructor; May Be 300
Candidates for Positions

According to plans formulated at the office of the State Highway Commission at Dover, Saturday, the annual training school for state highway policemen will open at the State House at Dover on Tuesday, April 21.

The day previous will be devoted to assembling and getting ready for the start and whereas last year there were about 200 prospective candidates for the school, this year it is expected there will be nearer to 300, if applications continue to pour in as they have in the past few weeks.

Chief Engineer C. Douglas Buck, who is at the head of the state police, has selected Sergeant Henry C. Ray, who was advanced to that position last week, as the man who will direct the school this year. Sergeant Ray has had many years experience with the National Guard of Delaware, serving both on the Mexican border and also in Europe during the world war.

Health Commission Secretary Says Record Is Very Good

With the exception of scarlet fever, diphtheria and some unusual typhoid fever cases, the general health of the state is good, according to Dr. Arthur T. Davis, executive secretary of the State Health and Welfare Commission, whose duty among other things is to guard the health of Delawareans from a public standpoint.

In the past few weeks there has been an unusual amount of diphtheria, but fortunately there have not been as many fatal cases as might ordinarily have been anticipated. Eventually, this mortality will disappear, Dr. Davis said, if the citizens will make use of the diphtheria antitoxin which the state is supplying.

At the present time there is an emergency appropriation bill calling for $600 with which to meet contingencies until next year. In addition there is an appropriation of $3,000 for antitoxin for the disease for the next year and with these two, the state will be well taken care of, if the General Assembly enacts the laws calling for these appropriations.

Former Senator Takes Rent Commission Post

Ball In Line For Important Appointment Later, Is Gossip Of Washington Circles

Former Senator L. Heiser Ball, of Delaware, who was named chairman of the District of Columbia Rent Commission by President Coolidge last week, following a conference at the White House Friday said that he had accepted the appointment at the request of the President.

President Coolidge, in explaining his reason for appointing Senator Ball, is represented as saying that the latter's intimate knowledge of the commission's affairs and the situation in Washington will be invaluable in directing the winding up of this body.

The President, while discussing the appointment with friends, said that Senator Ball's appointment to this task was a case of the job seeking the man and not the man seeking the job, as is so frequently the case in Presidential appointments. Because of the short time remaining before the commission will go out of existence the President did not want to appoint some one to succeed Richard S. Whaley, who resigned as chairman, who was unfamiliar with the work of the commission. Such an appointee would be of little use under the circumstances, in the opinion of the President, therefore his selection of former Senator Ball, author of the Rent Act. The President is known to have asked the former Delaware Senator to accept the place as a matter of public service.

The selection of Senator Ball for this place caused considerable comment in official and political circles in Washington. Speculation naturally centered around the point whether or not the President would appoint Senator Ball to something really worthwhile after the Rent Commission passes out of existence.—Morning News.

Attended Convention

H. Richardson Cole, Manager of the United Packing Company here, attended the annual Convention of the Tri-State Canners Association, held in Frederick, Maryland, early last week.

The convention was addressed at one of its sessions by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, a recent appointee of President Coolidge.

"SHORTY"

A Real Dog Story

By JOHN JEX

(Copyright, 1924, by John Jex)

But was he a tramp? His new little mistress hadn't said she didn't want him. And he had been away from her for almost a day! He felt guilty of neglect as he hurried home as fast as his short legs would carry him. When he reached the house he didn't even stop in the kitchen to see if any food had been put in his pan. He went straightway to the bedroom where his mistress kept the wee one, and to his surprise, found the room so dark, the shutters closed so tightly, that he couldn't see the bed.

He sniffed the air. And from deep in his throat came a cry that could have come only from a crushed little soul. Death! He knew it was there. In that room the hand of death had fallen while he was gone.

Beside the bed knelt his mistress. Upon the bed, lying as if asleep, was the wee one. But the air! His nostrils were already inflamed by that sickening odor which always meant trouble. And now he growled at it, for somehow it seemed to link itself in his mind with the death which was in that room. His muscles stiffened to fight the unseen enemy. His growl sharpened slowly into a cry of distress and ended in a yelp. He bayed like a hound that is maddened when the man in the moon looks at him with grimaces from more than two hundred thousand miles away. And as he sat there howling, vile oaths came from the next room. Suddenly a burly form filled the doorway. The light behind the form shone upon a white bottle raised high in the air. The bottle flashed through space, struck his mistress a blinding blow and splintered into bits beside her as she fell prone upon the floor. The form staggered towards the bed. A voice of thunder spoke:

"Get up and stop that damned dog's howling. Get up—or I'll kill the lot of you."

The master flung himself towards the wee one on the bed. He stumbled over his prostrate wife, then rose and stumbled again. And as the sound of the big man's skull crackling against the iron bedpost brought a moan from the stunned woman, Shorty's eyes shone with the fire of hell—and he sprang.

Strong hands reached for the small black body as it came bounding through space. But Shorty avoided them. Blind with the fury of a maddened beast he charged the fallen man. In a flash his mouth was at his master's throat. It was flesh soft as raw beef and he sank his teeth into it until blood spurted in his face. Killing mad, fighting that which he felt was the hand of death, he held on. Closer and closer he drew the powerful jaws, as if he were crushing the back of a badger, breaking it in half, until only shreds of flesh kept his teeth from clenching.

Then, suddenly, he sat back on his haunches and looked about him. His mistress was gone, and so was the now silent wee one. But grim death was still in that room and he wanted to run howling away from it. He shook himself, from the point of his sharp nose to the tip of his tail, and ran out of the house and down the street until he caught up with his living mistress carrying the silent wee one in her arms. At her heels he followed closely, until they came to a house he knew; the house in which a woman whom his mistress called Mother lived. He was about to follow them into the house when his mistress turned upon him, crying out loudly:

"Shorty! Go away. Don't come near me. What have you done, Shorty? You must go away—so far away no one will ever find you. They'll kill you if they catch you. Run for your life, Shorty—and never, never come back!"

Slam! went the door in Shorty's face. But Shorty didn't run. His ears drooped and his tail curled downward. But he didn't run. He walked slowly down the street towards the circus lot. There he could lie down and rest—and lick the blood off his paws. And he smelled of that awful stuff with which his master had reeked; the stuff that always meant trouble. He wanted to roll in the heavy green grass until that sickening odor was gone from him forever.

What a life! The chill of autumn was already in the air. Soon he would be facing another hard winter, with no home to shelter him from the snow, with no fire to keep his poor little body from freezing. What stormy days these were for a little fellow who had spent his joyful puppyhood in a land of flowers and sunshine—in a city of colorful gardens—where the open sky was the only roof he needed—where summer was springtime, and winter was mild as the Northern May —where there was a cool, shady plaza flecked with sunshine, in which he used to romp with happy children! He had missed all that after he had been thrown into a little car and brought hundreds of miles North by the cruel master he had just killed. He shook his head, and trotted a little faster.

But before he reached the end of the block he was stopped by the loud voice of a friend who came running down the street behind him. Carlos, a Collie whom Shorty knew well, was running beside a large touring-car and barking furiously. Shorty had never heard Carlos bark quite so furiously when chasing a car, and although he had always looked upon car-chasing as a suicidal practice, he was so suddenly curious that he pointed his big friend and helped to break the stillness of the quiet street with his own small voice.

The tonneau of the car which they were following was enclosed with wooden screens covered with heavy wire netting, and crowded behind the screens were a dozen dogs. Some of the dogs were muzzled, others were not; and instantly Shorty recognized them as the jumpers he had seen on the circus lot.

The caged dogs growled and barked, and crowded to the side of the car along which Shorty and Carlos were running. And the inevitable happened: The frame gave way, and a dozen great paws fell on Shorty and almost flattened him. He could not see; he could but faintly hear the growls of the savage beasts piled upon him. He tried to snap the heavy paws that were crushing him, but he could not move. He called loudly for Carlos to help him; but his Collie friend, who had long since learned how to avoid unnecessary trouble, had taken flight.

Left to his fate, fighting against impossible odds, Shorty's chance for life lessened with each passing moment. The great paws continued to trample and crush him. The tip of a long lash, laid heavily across the dogs' backs, reached him every now and again and cut him like a knife. Upon his back, he was mauled and dragged to the gutter. For a few seconds he was on his feet, running blindly, till he dashed headlong into an iron fence and went down under the frenzied pack again. And now an unmuzzled dog was upon him. The beast's teeth had found his throat; they cut and strangled him till he could no longer breathe. One dog had hold of his throat another tugged at his hind legs, pulling him slowly apart. Warm blood was in mouth and eyes. Death was beginning to relieve his suffering when the shrill cry of a woman was added to the deafening roar about him.

A big man armed with a heavy monkey-wrench leaped from the car that stopped at the curb, while in the car a woman sat screaming at the top of her lungs for her husband to stop the fight. The wrench fell right and left upon the hounds until the man came to the pack under which Shorty lay buried. Strong hands found the jaws that held Shorty's throat. They clamped themselves around those killing jaws and pried them apart. They raised Shorty high in the air and carried him into the bright glare of headlights.

The big man seated himself on the forward bumper of his car and held Shorty on his knees.

"He's badly bitten," he said to the anxious woman standing beside him. "But I think he'll be all right in a few days."

"Poor little fellow!" sobbed the woman. "Poor little puppy!"

"Well, one thing is certain," said the man; "we can't leave him here. And since our old Pepper is dead and gone, I think we ought to take him along with us. He can ride in Pepper's old place on the running-board. What do you say, Kate?"

The woman sighed, and patted Shorty's aching head.

"My dear Charles," she said, "I'm afraid no dog can ever take Pepper's place in my heart. And what if his owner should follow us and have us jailed for taking him?"

"His owner, eh?" the man laughed heartily. "Just look at the scars on the poor little fellow and tell me if you think he has an owner worth considering. And he's a thoroughbred, too! I tell you, he's going with us. Think of him posing in our Spanish garden this winter! In less than a week we'll be in Saint Augustine. Then he'll have a real home."

So without further argument he placed Shorty on the running-board of the car, adjusted the folding luggage gate to keep the little fellow from falling off, and extended him hand to the black muzzle pointed up at him.

"It's settled," he declared. "You're going with us."

Shorty licked the man's hand with his rough little tongue. His heart beat feverishly; his tail pounded the side of the car. Home! Only a born guardian of the home knows what it means to be kicked out and deprived of his God-given mission in life. He was already at home on that narrow running-board. He didn't care if Saint Augustine was a million miles away. Of course he didn't know it, but when he got there he would find the shady plaza flecked with sunshine, the deep, mysterious pool, in the court of the Old Spanish library, from which he used to drink, the narrow streets overhung with balconied houses—all as he had known them in his puppy days. But he did know that he would have a home; a home in which there would be love to repay. And that is all his kind ever ask in life.

He settled himself comfortably on the running-board of the car and tried the running-board of the car and tried to make sure it wasn't all a dream. But after a little while his eye closed slowly, and Shorty dreamed of his puppy days in the land of eternal springtime to which he was going again.

P.-T. A. NEWS
Kirkwood

Members and visitors enjoyed a splendid program at the P.-T. A. meeting of Kirkwood Colored School on Wednesday evening, March 25th. Miss Lockwood, of Middletown, gave an interesting talk on "Health and Sanitation" which everyone found very helpful. A quartette from Wilmington sang several splendid selections, and Mrs. Meta Boddy, principal of the Delaware City School, and chairman for Colored Associations of New Castle County, gave a short talk. Members of the association are trying to raise money to send delegates to the State P.-T. A. Convention in Dover, May 9th.

ficials. I have had experience in buying tested cattle from several of these areas and it would be a simple matter to arrange for New Castle county farmers from these sections.

Seed Corn Survey

"Due to the high moisture content of Delaware grown corn last fall and to the early freeze in December, the seed corn situation in Delaware this spring is critical. With this fact in mind a seed corn survey was taken over the county during the month of March. Samples were taken from those farms in the county growing the better types of corn. These samples were tested for germination in the laboratory at the University.

"It should be kept in mind in looking over these results that the crops from which these samples were taken were not average but in each case the farmer felt that the crop would do for seed. It will be noted that out of this entire crop of samples there are but five or six that could be used for seed. If only about half of these better crops of corn showed a germination test that would warrant using them for seed it is a serious question relative to the condition of the general run of corn over the county. However, this survey has found five or six crops of corn of a good type and showing a good germination. It is the plan to send out publicity advising farmers of these crops."

Tell Your Own Fortune!

No gypsy, palm-crossed with silver, can tell how you'll be rated ten years from now.

That's up to you!

When you plan your new home, forget for a minute the FIRST COST of a built-in bath, radiator heat, laundry tubs and kitchenette sink. Think how attractive they make your property! Instead of depreciating, your investment grows more valuable each year.

Build for tomorrow. Tell your own Fortune!

into the bunker from the tee, it would be just as simple to drive it to the tee from the bunker. There's nothing but space that way, the other way, there is everything but space. By now, barring mental disease, and cock-tails, you have no doubt caught the suggestion. It's deucedly simple—and if I do say it that shouldn't—it's damnably clever.

You can call it a practice shot—a mistake—any one of a hundred things. Call it anything you want to—but please mention my name, that's a good fellow.

NEXT WEEK, Providence permitting, I shall carry you through Lesson III, "Etiquette in the Locker Room"—a discussion which every golfer should know—if that's possible.

BROWNS REMEMBER STATE

Former Newark Druggist Will Summer in New Denton Home

Word received last week from Dr. and Mrs. William E. Brown, former residents of this town, where Dr. Brown conducted the Rhodes drug store, indicate that the Browns will spend the coming summer near Denton, Maryland, in a home purchased recently. The place has been named "The Delaware" in honor of the Blue Hen state.

At present Dr. and Mrs. Brown are touring central and eastern Florida, preparatory to their journey back home. They have spent most of the winter at Lynn Haven.

TAKES NEARBY GARAGE

Willet Anderson, of this town, has taken over the Ross garage in New London, Pa., near here, for the coming year, and has already entered upon the venture.

The former proprietors, J. F. Ross and Son, are entering a new business.
