Dear Friend:

Thank you very much for your letter of August 23rd, from which I have noted your plans for the coming weeks. As for me, I have not yet decided what I shall do.

If you arrive in New York shortly after Labor Day, as you are planning to do, you will probably find me still here, and I shall be very glad to see you.

I am enclosing an English translation of an extract from a letter which was recently sent to a member of our staff here by a former Spanish Ambassador, and which might interest you.

Sincerely,

YJ:MG

Dannie Heineman.

Enclosure.
