Tomorrow Is Date Of Annual Reunion For Del. Alumni

Baseball Game, Banquet, the Interfraternity Relays, and Continuous Activities

Several hundred graduates and former students of Delaware College, University of Delaware, are planning to return to Newark for the Annual Reunion tomorrow.

The attendance this year is expected to be one of the largest on record. As the result of the formation during the past year of local alumni clubs in various parts of the east, delegations are expected from New York, New Jersey, the Philadelphia area, Baltimore, and Washington. Special reunion celebrations are to be held by the class of '89, '94, '99, '04, '09, '14, '19, '24 '29, and '34.

Continuous Performance

The committee in charge has arranged a "continuous performance" program beginning at noon. At that time there will be an informal luncheon in Old College. After lunch the classes celebrating five-year reunions will hold separate meetings in the College buildings and will elect their officers for the next five-year period. At the conclusion of the meetings these classes will form in front of Old College to parade to Frazer Field where they and the other alumni will watch the baseball game between the Delaware Blue Hens and the P. M. C. Cadets, and the traditional interfraternity half-mile relay.

During the afternoon the Delaware and P. M. C. tennis teams will also play a match on the Delaware courts and the Military Commencement exercises will take place on (Continued on Page 4)

Graduation Announcement

The Baccalaureate sermon for the graduating senior classes of University of Delaware will be delivered by Reverend Gustav A. Papperman, D.D., Irving Park Presbyterian Church, on June 4 at 11 a. m. The candidates for Degrees must be present "in appropriate academic costume" at 10:15 on Sunday morning. They will form in line both for the Baccalaureate and for the graduation exercises on the north side of Wolf Hall. In the evening vesper music will be played by Firmin Swinnen for graduates and their friends.

The Commencement Exercises will be held in Mitchell Hall on Monday, June 5, at 11 a. m. The graduates are to line up by Wolf Hall at 10:30.

Degrees will be conferred upon the Seniors of both colleges, the winners of prizes and scholarships will be announced, and honorary degrees will be presented.

According to a notice from the Dean's office, all financial obligations to the University must be settled at the Business office before 4 p. m. on Tuesday, May 23.

Attendance is required, and failure to receive the Dean's notice will not be a reasonable excuse for not being present.

The list of students who have satisfied all the requirements for graduation and who have been recommended by the Faculty and approved by the Board of Trustees will be posted on the Bulletin Board in Recitation Hall immediately after the meeting of the Board on Saturday, June 3.

All candidates for degrees are requested to wear dark clothes and black shoes at both the Baccalaureate Sermon and the Commencement Exercises.

Robert T. Wilson Assures Cauldron By Next Tuesday

Newest Magazine to Become Permanent Publication; Pages Heavy With Poetry

Robert T. Wilson, editor of the Cauldron, announced today that the forthcoming Spring Issue of the magazine will be in the mail boxes on Tuesday. There is a possibility that it will appear before that time, but Tuesday is (R. T. assures us) the deadline: "The Cauldron HAS to be published by Tuesday, because that is the last day of class session. I have to study for exams—too."

Verse

The second issue of the new literary quarterly contains a dazzling array of short stories, essays, and verse. There is more poetry in this issue than in the first one—outstanding contributors being Arvid Roach, Joseph Dannenberg, and Andrew Chambers.

"Though Andy Chambers has been in college for several years, he has just discovered his peculiar genius for writing clever and polished verse," said Editor R. T. Wilson.

Constitution

R. T. is now engaged in drafting the new constitution for the magazine, which will be presented for the approval of the Humanist Society and Women's College Press Club. The constitution will provide for the permanent continuance of the Cauldron, which until lately has been considered an experimental venture. The name of the new Editor will be announced sometime next September.

Bouquets

Aiding Editor Wilson on the constitution are Dorothy Hopkins, first Cauldron Editor, and Dr. Cyrus L. Day, Chairman of the Faculty Committee on Student Publications.

Those persons who have contributed substantially to the writing, typography, and art of the Cauldron are Jeanne Thomson, Ellen Simon, Dorothy Hopkins, Joseph Dannenberg, Arvid Roach, Jake Kreshtool, Joseph Mendenhall, and Betty Hellen.

Examination Schedule

Table with columns for days (Thursday to Thursday) and times (8:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M.). Rows list various courses and their scheduled exam times.

Aloha Oe . . .

With its final edition the REVIEW bids adieu to another year at Delaware. We wish to thank all those who have aided us and who have contributed to the paper during the year.

To fellow students and to the faculty we say goodbye for a few weeks. We hope to see you again in the fall.

To the Seniors we hesitate to whisper farewell. It may be a long time. We hate to watch our friends go—we would like to keep you a little while longer. But we sincerely wish you all the success in the world. And so to you—Auf wiedersehen.

As A Courtesy . . .

. . . to a fellow-editor, we print the following announcement: "The editor of that infant brainchild, The Cauldron, wishes to announce circulation of the magazine next Tuesday afternoon. Watch your mailbox for your copy.

In parting the editor also wishes to thank a most loyal staff from both campuses and sincerely wishes that the magazine will please its readers.

—Robert T. Wilson."

Attention . . .

Reservations on the Social Calendar for next year must be completed and handed in not later than Saturday, May 20. If reservations are not in by that time, they will not be included on the Social Calendar.

Heads of the various organizations are asked to communicate with John Schwind (or any member of the Student Council) immediately.

Snappy Feature On Recitation Hall Says The Place Is Three Stories Tall And Fills Two Columns: That Is All

Plot in Midst of Campus. Architect Stopt Stark in Tracks When He First Saw it, Hopt on Train Because Reputation Flopt. Original Plans Copt.

Discipuli picturam spectate. It is a picture of Recitation Hall. Recitation Hall is a three story building erected in 1892 by the state. It is used, as its name implies, mainly for lecture and recitation rooms.

It also contains the office of the President of the University, the office of the Dean of Delaware College, the Administration office, the Mathematics Department, and the Modern and Ancient Language Departments.

It is an old building. It is not as old as Old College. But neither has it worn its age as well as Old College has. In short, Recitation Hall shows its age. The reason is—it is architecturally "dated."

It is an architectural non-entity. It just doesn't fit in Delaware campus. While every other building in sight is either Colonial or Georgian, it is a prime example of Early American un-Gothic at its worst.

Nobody remembers who built Recitation Hall.

Old stories tell that when the architect finally saw the finished job, he was stricken with a fit and left town on the first train. They say he was never the same afterwards. In fact, it produced a permanent effect on the poor fellow. It was a very sad state of affairs.

It's an even sadder state of affairs now.

Because now Recitation Hall is plopt squarely in the midst of the whole campus, and no matter how you try to avoid it, you have to recognize its presence sooner or later.

Take the engineers for instance.

Engineers have sensitive souls. They react to architectural abnormalities. That's the reason an engineer empties his mail box only once a month. That's the reason an engineer is likely not to know what's going on about the campus. That's the reason (among others) why engineers don't read the Review.

A new building is being built on the campus.

We do not have a picture of it. Otherwise we'd tell you to look at it.

It will stand, when finished, between the Library and Mitchell Hall.

It will be called the Administration Building.

The office of the President of the University, the office of the Dean of Delaware College, the Administration office, the Mathematics Department, and the Modern and Ancient Language Departments will move from Recitation Hall into it.

Then, the empty offices of the President of the University, of the Dean of Delaware College, of the Math Dept. and the Ancient and Modern Language Depts. will be reconverted into dormitories.

Recitation Hall will become a "Dorm."

A committee is investigating all the possibilities of the plan. But actual work won't begin until about December, which is when they expect the new Administration Building to be completed.

Eventually Recitation Hall will "go the way" of all architectural anomalies. It will be consigned to the Incinerator. End of Feature Article on Recitation Hall. End of the term. The end.

PLAY REVIEW

By Tom Rogers

John Swenehart's third play in as many years led off the seventh Playbill last week. It was called The Boy and the Demon.

According to schedule Swenehart again revealed his flair for comedy. He revealed it very gently and with plenty of restraint; all the rough spots were smoothed out so that whatever else it had, it certainly had evenness. The author gave the impression of sitting on the lid all the time.

Washington Players

The Washington players came next with Finders-Keepers, allegedly a satiric social comedy. As it went along, The Boy and the Demon loomed more and more dramatic and powerful.

Neeson Natural

They've been looking for a long time for a part in which Neeson could use his peculiar talent for reading all lines the same, and they found it. The Happy Journey was the best play of the evening. Neeson was the best actor. He sat on the stage and smoked cigarettes, and he made a good job of them.

It was by Thornton Wilder, one of these no-scenery things, and it didn't have anything to say, but it was entertaining. In fact you could have sat through the Playbill, all of it, and you wouldn't have got many new ideas.

The ending was not so clear. I think they missed it and booted it around a little.

Mr. Ross' sets were excellent. They gave the actors all the chance they needed.

ONE AT A TIME

At the end of our Senior year in college, we Seniors have acquired certain opinions regarding studies and extra-curricular activities of the past four years. Opinions such as those gathered from association with men in many groups are bound to vary widely. Men of the Class of 1939 who are interested in nothing but books, for example, (did I say the Class of 1939?) are bound to care little for the men who are happy-go-lucky while in school.

Let's take the case of little Joey Bookworm. If you were to ask him what he thought of "Howie's" chances of scoring in the next football game, he would inquire as to who "Howie" was, and would say he was too busy to bother with football anyway. Men like Joey are in school for the main purpose of attaining the three-point heaven.

John Blowhard has some interesting opinions too. He's an Arts and Science man taking the general course. To him, the tennis team "stinks" because the last match was lost; and the baseball team is "lousy" because it lost two straight last week. John is always griping because he has two classes straight on Monday morning and not a chance to get any work done, with his heavy fifteen-hour schedule.

Rough Butch, who majors in Physical Education, is the fellow who has learned from sports just how much fair-play and co-operation mean. He may be a little lazy when it comes to studies, but he usually gets what he goes after—even if it's the football team Captaincy.

The "Ag" senior is said to be one of the hardest working men on the campus—he's been working in dirt for the past four years and knows what lies ahead. Scientific methods of farming have been drilled into his head for four years and he figures the best way out is to take to the air. Believe it or not, army fliers must know their agriculture before they are permitted to fly. It must be something about knowing the best soil on which to land in case of an emergency. How about it, Bob?

Mitchell Hall holds quite an attraction for some members of the class. "Shorty" can be seen in anything produced on the stage. Sometimes he has authority, but no brains; sometimes he has ability, but no supporting cast. He defends himself with the shield of culture. "The refined are only those who partake freely of the cup of drama," he declares. Shades of Irv. Malcom!

At the lower end of the campus, Evans Hall has become the haven of the slip-stick artist who keeps his knowledge tied up in that little black case. "Little Jughead" may be able to read that slide rule up to the sixth place, but what about that job? Joking aside, did anyone ever see a successful undergraduate engineer loafing on the wall? Senior Engineers have come to believe that half the fight to pass those 22 or 23 credit hours lies in "learning the ropes."

Seriously, though, I wouldn't trade this last year at Delaware for the ten years added to my life. Classes, Proms, accomplishments, friends—all have meant much to every Senior. We must frankly admit, now that it's all over, we hate to leave.

Washington Coll. Whips Blue Hens By Score Of 8-0

Lefty Copple allowed the Blue Hen nine only two hits when they traveled to Chestertown to meet the Sho'men on Thursday for the second time this year.

Jack Daly started for the Delawareans and was tagged for a home run by Bremer with Stevens on base to send the Washington men off to a two run lead in the initial inning. In the fourth inning the Sho'men crossed the plate four times. They garnered two more runs in the sixth.

Washington College made a total of twelve hits; seven from the offerings of Daly and five off Deaver. When Deaver entered the game, he was greeted by a single and a home run by the first two men up to bat. He settled down after that and pitched his usually good brand of ball.

Copple and Stevens starred at bat for the Sho'men, each getting three hits out of four trips to the plate. Sheats and McCord accounted for the Hens' two bingles.

Copple showed greater pitching skill than ever as he set down twelve Hens via the strikeout route. During every inning he kept out of trouble and at no time did he show any symptoms of wildness.

The Hens have one more game to be played this season, that against P.M.C. Saturday on Frazer Field

To Be Revived

Finish of the last running of the Inter-fraternity relay which was won by Sigma Phi Epsilon. The relay is to be revived again under the auspices of the Alumni Association tomorrow afternoon on Frazer Field as a special feature of the Spring Homecoming Day activities.

Inter-Fraternity Relay Returns To Campus Through The Alumni

Tomorrow at 4:15 p. m., at the sound of the starter's gun, the traditional Inter-Fraternity Relay will once again be under way. The relay will follow the Military Graduation exercises and will precede the baseball game between Delaware and P.M.C. The relay, one of the most important events on the campus until it was discontinued two years ago, is being revived by the Alumni Association for the benefit of fraternity sports and visiting alumni.

The relay is to be over the half-mile distance on the Frazer Field track, four men on each team to run 220 yards each. All undergraduate members and active pledges of each fraternity in the University are eligible to compete on their respective teams. A cup will be awarded to the winning team along with medals to each member of that team. The cup, presented by the Alumni Association, must be won by a fraternity three consecutive years in order to be retired.

Members of the track team are not eligible, because of the Mason-Dixon track meet which will be held tomorrow in Baltimore. "Doc" Doherty, baseball coach, and R. W. Jones, tennis coach, have both removed any objections to having men on their respective teams compete in the relay program.

Agriculture Club Hold Dairy Judging Contest Wednesday

On Wednesday afternoon, May 17, the Agricultural Club held a dairy judging contest between the different classes in the Agricultural School. It has been several years since the Agricultural Club has participated in intercollegiate judging contests; it is hoped that this has started the ball rolling, so that next year there will be a team worthy of challenging other Agricultural Colleges.

Winners
The winning team was the Seniors—Frederick Myer, Silus Americus, and Edward Schabinger. Second highest was the Freshman No. 1 team—Horace Short, Cleveland Hastings, and Myers Dodd. Third highest was the Juniors—Frank Sumner, Ralph O'Day, and John Johnston. Coming in fourth was the Sophomore team—Lewis Carmean, Emil Kielbasa, and William

Baseball-Tennis Teams Vie With P.M.C. In Finals

Tomorrow afternoon the baseball and tennis teams of the University of Delaware will bring their campaigns to a close in meeting the tossers and racketeers of P.M.C. on the home diamond and courts respectively.

See-sawing through the 1939 season with spurts of good baseball and with an occasional individual and team slump, the flingers of Doc Doherty have failed to produce as impressive a record as last year. However, when the nine have been right, they've been pretty tough to take. Unless pre-game enthusiasm and confidence mean very little, Delaware gives every indication of being "right" for tomorrow's game.

Netmen to Play
Coach Ralph Jones' tennis team bring their season to an end on the home courts against the Cadets' netmen. The match is scheduled to get under way at 2:30.

Like the baseballers, the netters' match with the K-dets was rained-out, so that the Hens have yet to cross rackets with them. According to court chatter, the Cadets should fall to the Blue and Gold; however, matches between these two teams have never been decided till the last set has been played, and this meeting should prove no exception.

Rifle Team Elects For Next Year

Delaware's rifle team held a meeting last week in the Supply Room of the Military Department and laid plans for the 1939-40 season. They elected Lloyd Shorter, '40, team-captain and Al Fooks, '41, team manager.

Captain Waters spoke briefly to the team and assured them that next season more matches would be scheduled. Furthermore, with their cooperation he planned "to make rifle shooting one of the best damned sports on the campus."

W.C.D. DABBLING

Elections of next year's class officers and representatives are taking place at Women's College at the present time. The senior class, busy with final details has as its nominees for the Alumnae representative of the class the following girls: Janet Grubb, Margaret Hogan, Ann Boyce, and Sue Wootton, who has been president of the class in its last year. The present freshman class has nominated Jane Hastings, Doris Gibney, and Janet Balster for the office of president for the next year; Edith Counahan, June Groves, and Rita O'Hara have been selected as candidates for the same office for next year's junior class. Another activity of the senior class in the whirl of wind-up is the class dance to be held on Saturday, June third.

Club Elections

Club activities are drawing to a close with a series of picnics, banquets, and the inevitable elections. The Y.W.C.A. has chosen Elva Grogan, president; Jane Kenney, vice-president; Mildred Watt, secretary; and Mary Shakespeare, treasurer as its new executive council. The German club picnic will be held at White Crystal Beach on Friday, May 19th; recently electd officers of that organization are: president, Sylvia Phelps; and secretary-treasurer, Janet Vernon. Janet Grubb, president of the Puppets club, announced the following new members of the organization. They are Ellen Simon and Margaret Smith from the incoming senior class, and Edith Counahan and Mina Press from the incoming junior class. Miss Grubb also announced a banquet to be given at the Hotel Darling on Tuesday evening in honor of the newly chosen members.

Student Council

Final elections for next year's Student Council have resulted in the following panel for the executive board: president, Martha Whitcraft; vice-president, Thelma Atwell; secretary, Grace Shockley; treasurer, Sarah Feeney; social chairman, Evelyn Conant; chairman of commuters, Theresa Schreppler; chairman of dormitories, Thelma West; recreation chairman of commuters, Mina Press; head of New Castle, Sarah Robinson; head of Sussex, Gladys Steele; secretary-treasurer of commuters, Anna Hayes.

This reads like a "ring out the old, ring in the new" column. And so we meant it to be . . . With congratulations for these out-going officers and classmates, and good wishes for those who take their places. It's been much sport writing this information each week. We know of two gentlemen we have helped bring to grey hair by our late appearances; for this we apologize. To you who read the dull recital of historical events, we can only say . . . there were other things to read. Fare-thee-well.
