McElmoyle Debate Stirs Presbytery

Elkton Case Chief Issue in 411th Meeting of Body This Week

Committee Asks Baltimore Presbytery To Recall Maryland Minister

The 411th stated meeting of the New Castle Presbytery, held on Monday and Tuesday of this week in the First Presbyterian Church, attracted attention in religious circles all over this and other nearby states. The chief topic of discussion at yesterday's meeting was the question as to the status of the Rev. John McElmoyle, who has been preaching to the congregation of the Elkton Presbyterian Church in defiance of the rulings of the Presbytery at their last meeting in November last.

A special committee appointed by the Moderator to investigate the controversy and to recommend in a written report their solution, were in session behind closed doors yesterday morning and a heated debate ensued, according to reports. The final action was embodied in a report, from the committee urging that refused to sanction Rev. McElmoyle's pastorate in Elkton.

The committee further asked that a communication be sent to the Baltimore Presbytery of which Rev. McElmoyle is a member, requesting that he be withdrawn from the Elkton Church.

The committee consisted of the following men: Revs. J. D. Blake, W. C. Little, W. S. Kregor, John McMurray, George A. Burslem, and Elders J. F. McCoy, H. S. Todd and James M. Smythe.

Rev. MacMurray, the only dissenting member of the committee, and pastor of the Head of Christiana Church, voiced his strong disapproval of the action of the majority. Other ministers of the Presbytery rallied to the support of Dr. McElmoyle, and the discussion became spirited.

Three letters of protest were received by the committee. They, together with the findings of the body, follow:

"1. A communication from the Elkton Church, reporting to be a resolution adopted by the congregation of the Elkton Church, addressed to the officers of the Presbytery of New Castle and containing information that the congregation had called the Rev. Dr. John McElmoyle to the pastorate of the church.

"2. A letter from the stated clerk of the Presbytery of Baltimore, replying to a resolution addressed to it by the Presbytery of New Castle, calling attention to the fact that the Rev. John McElmoyle had violated the restraining order of the Presbytery of Baltimore.

"3. A protest which was not read by the committee."

In reaching its conclusions, the committee in the report says:

"1.—Your committee regrets exceedingly the bitter language and the tone of this communication (referring to the letter sent by the Elkton congregation to the Presbytery last November when Dr. McElmoyle was recalled and which letter was read.)

"2.—It is the judgment of this committee that in no sense can anything in the communication be construed as a call for the pastoral services of the Rev. John McElmoyle. It is neither in order, legal or in form. There being no call, the second protest was not read.

"3.—The stated clerk of the Presbytery of Baltimore, replying to the communication of this Presbytery, states that the action of the Presbytery be that: 'Inasmuch as the Rev. John McElmoyle has the written permission of the Moderator of the session of the Elkton Church giving his permission to the session to employ the said Rev. John McElmoyle, he has not disobeyed the restraining order of Presbytery of Baltimore, which was that he should not preach in Elkton Church, without the consent of the Presbytery of New Castle.'

Two representatives from the Elkton congregation were present yesterday. They were W. H. Brown and W. R. Whitworth. Both stated that Dr. McElmoyle would remain as pastor regardless of the action by either Presbytery.

The Presbytery adjourned at 4 o'clock and the ministers who were present, is not ended. The diverging views of so many members are of such nature that final action is a matter of conjecture.

POLICE HAVE CLUES TO TRUCK THIEVES

Thefts of Five Trucks in Three Weeks Sets a Record

That the theft of five small trucks in three weeks from residents of Newark and vicinity, combined with the lifting of several crates of chickens from the roosts of nearby farmers is the work of local bandits, is the opinion of Police Chief Lewis. Several clues are being followed up in a quiet way and arrests are looked for in the near future.

The latest evidences of the "market thieves" came Thursday night last when the small truck belonging to Louis Cohen, a local cattle dealer, disappeared from his premises. At the same time a farmer near Red Mill lost all his chickens save two hens which were left in an empty crate. As was the case with the other thefts, the truck full of chickens was driven to Philadelphia and abandoned. Police of that city found the car in South Philadelphia and reported to the Newark authorities.

Within the last three weeks cars belonging to John F. Richards, Walter Robinson and James H. Hutchinson, all local business men, have been stolen in the same manner and found abandoned in Philadelphia, usually filled with empty crates or littered with feathers. It is obvious that the thieves are selling the stolen goods in the city. A statement was made by a Philadelphia produce dealer that such a case happened, but he could not name the seller.

A Negro, recently arrested in Landenberg, was believed to have been a member of the chicken stealing gang and was lodged in Avondale jail on default of $1000 bail. It has since been discovered, however, that he is not the man responsible for the Newark deceptions.

The theft of the trucks has been a most unusual series of events for Newark. No attempt to sell or destroy the cars has been made. The thieves evidently wished a means for the quick delivery of stolen chickens to market in Philadelphia and rather than take the risk of going in their own conveyance, risking capture by officers as suspicious characters, they travel in an ordinary truck with all the appearances of a business trip in view.

Officer Lewis believes that two men are responsible for the crimes. He warns all business men of town to keep their trucks locked up at night for protection in the future.

PRESBYTERY HEAD HAS CAR STOLEN

Loss Reported by the Rev. Armentrout But No Trace Of It Has Been Found

While preaching to a large and appreciative audience in the Presbyterian Church Monday evening, Rev. Thomas Armentrout suffered the theft of his automobile.

The car was standing near the church during most of the evening. The ministers had brought another Presbytery visitor with him from Wilmington. When the two came out after the services, the car was gone.

Rev. Armentrout at once hunted up Officer Lewis and reported the loss to him. The officer also got busy and sent out calls to nearby towns, giving a description of the car in the hopes that it might be picked up.

NEW FIRE HOUSE PROGRESSING SLOWLY

No Assurance Given as to When the Building Will Be Finished

In response to an inquiry by THE POST, prompted by comments circulated about town as to the progress of the work on the new home of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company, E. Clifford Wilson, Fire Chief, stated that he could not give any assurance as to the probable date of the opening.

Mr. Wilson further stated that he had been in conference yesterday with the architect who drew the plans for the building, and that a few changes of a minor nature may be made in the interior. Mr. Wilson, as chairman of the Building Committee, further said that the specifications laid down in the plans must be rigidly adhered to and the building corrected in every detail before the Company would accept it and move in.

The affair will be "Ladies' Night" for the Club, an occasion which comes each year. The members and their wives and friends will arrive late this afternoon by motor and train and will be met at the University by a reception committee of Kiwanians, headed by Arthur G. Wilkinson, Business Administrator of Delaware College.

Promptly at six o'clock the doors of the Commons will be thrown open to the guests and a course dinner served under the direction of Miss Verette Huntley, Dietitian, and her assistant, Miss Marion Skewis. He is well known throughout the State as a capable after dinner speaker and his message will no doubt be greatly appreciated by the audience. Dr. Walter Hullihen, President of the University

ENTERTAINMENT IN CHRISTIANA CHURCH

Home Talent in Laughable Play Amuses Large Audience

Last evening the Christiana Methodist Episcopal Church held a splendid entertainment which was largely attended by the people of the community.

A farce comedy, entitled "Uncle Ephraim's Summer Boarders," was staged with great success. All the parts were admirably taken and the audience was kept in an uproar throughout. The Bethany Training Bible Band of Wilmington were visitors at the church and helped greatly with the program.

CENSUS SHOWS NEED OF GAS IN NEWARK

Four Streets Already Covered by Chamber of Commerce Project

The task of compiling an accurate census of the town of Newark and its immediate outlying portions is progressing rapidly. Under the direction of Dr. George W. Rhodes, two college students, Edwin A. Hoey and Oliver Goffigon, are now engaged in obtaining information from every household in the town. At this writing four streets have been covered, namely, Main Street, Elkton Road, Delaware Avenue and South College Avenue. While no prediction was made by Dr. Rhodes as to the probable date of completion, he intimated that results will be in hand within a week or two.

That the residents want gas installed in Newark is evidenced by the response to the part of the questionnaire relative to that point. Almost all signify their willingness towards the project, and none so far have directly opposed it.

When the information is gathered and compiled, the Chamber of Commerce will have a mass of invaluable information.

HIGH SCHOOL PEOPLE HOLD JOYOUS PROM

Over Seventy Couples Dance At Annual Affair; Pretty Decorations

The Junior Class of the Newark High School held its Annual Promenade last Saturday evening in the Armory, it being the big social affair of the year for the High School set. It was considered by those who attended the best of all the Proms. Members of the class of 1924 worked hard and faithfully for several days previous to the dance gathering green foliage for decorative purposes and attending to the hundred and one details which go to make up a successful party.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the Melody Makers, an orchestra which has played here for several dances during the winter. The music was very good and the dancers took advantage of every minute of the evening.

Cherry and white, the class colors, formed the basis for elaborate decorations. The entire hall was a mass of these colors, which with the shaded lights, produced one of the prettiest effects seen in a long time.

The patronesses for the affair were Mrs. J. H. Owens, Mrs. William E. Hayes, Mrs. George L. Townsend, Mrs. Charles C. Hubert, Mrs. J. A. Clark, Mrs. C. O. Houghton, Mrs. Thomas F. Manns and Mrs. W. E. Holton.

NEW SCHOOL IS TOPIC OF DISCUSSION

Board of Education Met Last Night and Went Over Plans Again; Need More Money

The Board of Education for the Newark Special School District met last night in the High School and again went over the complete plans for the new Public School building, to be erected in the lot along South Academy street.

No definite word as to the probable start of the work could be ascertained. It is understood, however, that the Board favors the plan of completing the entire structure in one operation and not to allow a part of the building to wait until more funds come in.

The State Legislature failed to appropriate funds for the local district, which leaves the Board with $150,000 with which to start building. It is likely that the Board will take the matter of raising the balance of the money into their own hands for the present. A sum close to $300,000 is given as the probable cost of the entire structure.

The Board decided to go into conference with the Delaware School Auxiliary, by whom the plans were made possible, at the earliest possible date. The result of this conference will no doubt decide the action to be taken with the new building.

FIRE COMPANY MEETS

An adjourned meeting of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company will be held in the Company rooms on Friday evening of this week. Important business is scheduled to be brought up for discussion and action.

Another Building Boom Strikes Town

Real Estate Transfers and New Houses Point to Progress

Four New Houses on Dela- ware Avenue Soon Are Planned

With the coming of Spring and good weather, the real estate situation in Newark has undergone a remarkable change. The Housing Problem, which seemed to have been the chief topic of discussion during the winter, now appears to be on the road to solution.

In all, nine new houses are either in the process of building or will be started within a week or two. The addition of nine dwellings within the town limits and closely adjacent will greatly relieve the congestion caused by the great demand for homes by prospective residents.

Four or five other dwellings are being contemplated by owners of real estate, and before the summer wanes, it is expected that they will also be on the road to completion.

Delaware Avenue Homes

Of chief importance perhaps is the announcement that H. B. Wright has completed plans for four buildings to be erected on East Delaware Avenue, below the new Hose House, and on the same side of the street. Associated with Mr. Wright in the enterprise will be W. C. Greer, a local contractor, who will superintend the work. The houses will be of a distinctly new type, not as yet known in Newark. They will, it is understood, be "double bungalows" of the most improved design. Work will be started very shortly, the contracts having already been let for building materials.

In the eastern end of town three new homes are now in the process of erection. Contractor Willis is in charge of construction work on two modern brick houses being built on lots formerly a part of the Wilson estate. One of the houses is being erected for a Mr. Jamison who will move to Newark from far off California as soon as practicable. The other house is being built by Mr. Willis for himself, with a view to disposing of it when finished.

William V. Gallery, station master at Newark Center, is having a home built along the Lincoln Highway opposite Leak's garage. Samuel Little is now engaged in finishing the foundation work for the home.

Down in the Deandale district the folks are putting on a building boom of their own. Two houses are now going up along Paper Mill Road for Benjamin McCormick and Leonard Lilley respectively.

Wright Home Nearly Done

With the general activity in almost every part of town, the coming year appears to have all the earmarks of real growth for Newark. There are several other citizens on the verge of building, but as yet no announcements have been made. The Orchard Ridge tract west of Depot Road will soon be the scene of additional construction work, it is understood. The new home of J. Pilling Wright, under the supervision of Christopher Ward, architect, and James H. Hutchinson, contractor, is fast nearing completion. The work of grading the lawn and clearing debris from the premises is now being carried forward. The house is considered by building experts to be the last word in modern home construction and will be one of the show places of the town.

More Lots Sold

Among the property transfers which were made during the past week, was the sale of two lots on Cleveland avenue, below North College avenue, to H. Warner McNeal. Mr. McNeal did not state his plans but it is believed that he will erect houses on the 100 foot tract in the near future.

This is also the busy time for the building trade in all its departments. Townspeople are remodeling, adding wings, porches and windows, improving lawns and touching up with paint both the exterior and interior of their homes. According to good authority, this spring will witness the biggest increase in building and remodeling which has reached Newark in many years.

GLENN FRANK GIVES TWO LECTURES

"Fashions in Bigotry" Subject of Last Night's Talk

WHAT GLEN FRANK THINKS EDUCATION SHOULD DO

In his lecture, last night in Wolf Hall, Glenn Frank gave a most unusual and at the same time practical opinion as to what education should really do for a man or woman. He made this statement:

"Education should enable the man of today to approach any contemporary situation, think it through, and KNOW the issue."

Glenn Frank, editor of the Century Magazine, addressed an audience in Wolf Hall, which, while small in numbers, hung on every word of the brilliant talk.

Mr. Frank took for his subject, "Fashions in Bigotry," and before he finished, had delved deep into the fields of religion, education and science. While pressed for time and necessarily limited in his discussion of his topic, he nevertheless drove a message home to his audience which carried with it a value only made possible by thorough and careful study. He described the fundamentalist movement in the field of science. In each of his three points he weighed both sides of the issue fairly and offered, not so much criticism, but constructive suggestions and optimistic predictions which served to brighten up the situation as he presented it in all three fields.

"There are too many fields of endeavor today," said Mr. Frank, in beginning his lecture, "in which a group of leaders, content in their own positions, decide what the masses shall think."

In discussing the emerging fundamentalist movement in education, Mr. Frank dwelt principally upon the danger of a too quick solution of educational problems—problems which are to be handled within the next ten or fifteen years. Demands from educators on all sides that we go back to the old ironclad curriculums should not be hastily acceded to, said the speaker. Neither should the plans offered for the rearrangement of our school systems to take care of the mentally deficient and backward be quickly made. Mr. Frank laid great emphasis on the fact that while the nation's educational program for the future must be altered and condensed and made universal, it must not be construed to mean a "drifting backward" to the "three R's," but a "struggling forward" to a new and more satisfactory educational system for the young men and young women of America.

In speaking of the "threatened fundamentalist trend" in science, Mr.

Frank took occasion to use the Darwinian theory as a basis for making clear his points. He pointed out that whenever a great mass of knowledge in the form of new facts is thrown up by science, a host of "scientific camp followers" rush in and so distort the few facts, and so weave about them the web of sensation and social significance, as to destroy the real value of such discoveries. And it is these people who are, according to the speaker, being widely read and widely believed rather than the men who have unearthed simply pure scientific knowledge.

Mr. Frank again came to education at the close of his address and summing up his observations along those lines, he evolved business of educating a man or woman. He added that the mind of young America should not be crammed with "so many facts in so many minutes" in the classroom, should not be made to retain a majority of the knowledge gained through a certain period of time, but should be so inspired, and trained to act thoroughly and quickly, in any situation whatever.

WHERE THE SIDEWALK ENDS

Contractor Lovett, in charge of operations on Cleveland Avenue, ran into a nest of uncomplimentary hornets in the guise of property owners when he allowed the stone and gravel used in paving to be dumped on the sidewalks on North College Avenue.

The protests then came in thick and fast. Both pavements for many feet between Cleveland Avenue and the railroad have been entirely covered up, forcing pedestrians to use the roadway, much to their discomfort and danger.

Comes word from the Street Committee that the pavements must not be blocked. The outcome of the controversy is awaited with interest.

OLD CECIL CO. SCHOOL TO RAISE FUNDS

West Nottingham Academy, perhaps the oldest private school in Maryland and one which has graduated many prominent Americans in all walks of life, has started upon a drive for a fund of $50,000.

This money will be used to help students who are working their way through the school. The trustees of the Academy are not confining their drive to Maryland alone but are reaching out among the alumni all over the country in an appeal for funds for this purpose.

The old Academy, while not as influential as in the old days, is still maintaining the high standards of scholarship which has always characterized it. Time was when it was the principal school of its kind in this section of the country. The student body has decreased in numbers in the last few years. With the addition of this money for its use, the prospects will be brighter than ever before.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

As It Seems to Us

The General Assembly has closed and the Government still lives. It is indeed encouraging to realize that the Sovereignty of the State still prevails. The session passes into History. Yet it is too early to write it. No one, not even the members themselves, know yet just what they did. This applies not only to the effect of the legislation enacted but also, and seriously too, to just what was enacted in the law of the State.

As we view the session, we fail to find any real, constructive legislation worthy of the time, money and energy expended. Nor do we find any reforms that in any way approach the campaign cries and promises. The party in majority failed utterly to point to any concrete thing accomplished. Even Representative Melson, spokesman at large, in his "swan song" failed to find anything really worth the boast.

The advance in education has certainly been halted. Marking time is not a command worthy even of a Conservative. Both Public Schools and the State University are handicapped, and cannot continue to meet the demands made upon them with the same degree of efficiency as heretofore. The same condition applies to Highway Construction. Wilmington Legislation failed utterly. And Health and Welfare work will suffer.

In all this, there was a lack of definiteness in all their deliberation, if the session can be so dignified. There was an utter absence of leadership. Partisan politics, personal prejudices and factional plays for position and power dominated. Nor did this apply only to the majority party. The Republicans as the minority power rendered service in preventing a considerable amount of wild and dangerous legislation but they failed in taking advantage of a position of statesmanship (and it does exist even in this day). They played with an eye on the next election, using tactics of prejudice and faction—incidentally paying off old scores.

But the grave responsibility for what happened rests with the Democrats. They had an unusually good working majority. They had promised much and it must be admitted that the State expected concrete action. But they were unorganized—and without a leader. Most of the members were inexperienced; most of them honestly anxious to render State instead of purely party service. Most of them, we repeat, for there were some whose record there shows distinctly political ambitions that overbalanced legislative reasoning.

As it seems to us, a serious accusation can be made by the State against U. S. Senator Bayard. He is certainly the leader of his party. The citizens so elected him and he has never denied the honor. In fact during the campaign, he assumed this leadership—and rightfully so.

He, it was, who uttered the cry of ruthless extravagance by the Republicans in power. He formulated the campaign slogan of Economy. He accused reckless waste of public funds through inefficiency, and hinted at malicious expenditures by the party in power. So much did he do this, that other associates on his ticket took up the cry. They believed, most of them, that something was wrong and determined on ECONOMY. And on this cry and by this leader were they elected.

They met before the opening of the session, planned their organization and mapped out their line of action. This met with general approval. At the beginning of the session, they began, conscientiously, to make investigations of Departments of State and various commissions to find these wild expenditures of State money. Day after day, this went on with grim determination—and they failed. Their campaign cry could not be justified. They could not find the recklessness that many honestly believed existed. Then, their Leader left them. Senator Bayard, their leader during the campaign failed. Either intentionally, or through fear, he neither led nor directed. We do not know what he thinks of the School legislation, what he thinks of Road legislation, or of Health and Welfare. Nor even on the Charter did he assume any leadership. We can only surmise and in that he suffers severe criticism from every advocate of good government in either party.

The session was a failure—seriously so, when we recall the campaign promises. The majority party did the best it could with Bayard the lost Leader, Melson the spokesman educated in the University of Virginia (shades of Jefferson forgive), and Murphy, the excited and excitable Railroad End-Man from the Harrington Fair. The Democrats lost a chance as well as their leader. The Republicans, blurred by The Past and dazzled by The Future lost an opportunity. The last days trading and offering in trade Education for Public Schools in consideration for vote on College buildings shows serious need for education of the Electorate of today as well as for those of tomorrow. Culver did well when he gave the members each a Hand Mirror. Was it a subtle way of "Holding the Mirror up to Nature"? Perhaps, for Collins and other serious observers were seen to smile. But their smile was one of sadness and disappointment.—So it is with us all.

So much that could have been accomplished, so little done. Such need for Service and Common Sense to give way to petty and personal prejudices. This is the comment and opinion of members of both parties who believe State Service is better politics than personal advance.

Reverend Herson Returns

Reverend Mr. Herson returns to the Methodist Church for another year. This is a pleasing but well deserved compliment to him and at the same time a delight not only to his congregation but to the community at large. He has won the love of his people and the confidence of the man on the street. Quiet, unassuming, he is outspoken and firm in thought. He has a quiet force of personality that has won him friends in all walks of life. In his firmness and force there runs a twinkle of humor that attracts.

So we express the sentiment of the Community when we congratulate him—and bid him to a welcome that he has won and is ever his.

He is a Man's Man as well as a Clergy-Man.

McELMOYLE DEBATE STIRS PRESBYTERY

Meet Again June 4th

The Presbytery adjourned at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, to meet again on June 4th in the First Central Church, Wilmington.

Among important items of business transacted between discussions on the McElmoyle case yesterday were the following:

Ministerial commissioners were elected to attend the General Assembly, to begin the third week in May at Indianapolis: Dr. Aquilla Webb, pastor of First Central Church, Wilmington, and Dr. J. M. L. Eckerd, of Smyrna; alternates, Dr. Thomas Kerr and Rev. H. E. Hallman, pastor of Newark Church. The lay commissioners are R. H. Robertson and Nathaniel Pipino, both of Wilmington; alternates, Frank Martin, Dover, and R. J. Corbert, of Newark.

The resolution to organize an Elders' Association of the Presbytery was unanimously passed. The purpose of the association will be to promote social relations between the elders of the Presbytery, to provide opportunity for discussion by the elders of the needs of the church, and to make united efforts in behalf of the church.

The appointment of Rev. W. R. McElroy to the pastorate of White Clay Creek Church was confirmed. He was previously pastor at Falls Church, Virginia, and will be installed in his new charge May 2nd. Rev. H. E. Hallman will preach the sermon of welcome.

Monday's Session

The new Moderator, Rev. Boyle, then took the chair and directed the business of the session until the end. Dr. Armentrout, the retiring Moderator was the recipient of many congratulations from his fellow workers all during the day for the splendid services he has rendered to the Church of the district.

The other officers elected were: Vice-Moderator, Dr. S. Beattie Wiley of Wilmington; Stated Clerk, Rev. J. M. G. Eckerd of Smyrna; and permanent Clerk, Rev. Robert Pitzer of Delaware City.

A bills and overtures committee was appointed composed of Rev. Thomas S. Armentrout, Rev. Thomas Kerr, Mr. J. Frank McCoy and Dr. W. S. Krogar.

The education committee reported on the financial situation in colleges maintained by the Presbyterian Church. Dr. William H. Wells, of Albany, was introduced to speak in behalf of Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa., now making a million dollar endowment campaign. After Dr. Wells' appeal for help for this school, containing 400 girls, many of whom are volunteers for missions lands, the educational committee proposed a motion, voting $1000 annually to be paid for the next five years to the college. The motion passed.

The money will be apportioned among the various churches of New Castle Presbytery according to their benevolent ability. Wilmington churches have already subscribed $620 of it and have paid their first installment, and the rest will be subscribed by the lower Delaware churches. Moderator Boyle appointed Dr. A. W. Sonne, Judge William C. Prickett and Dr. Charles H. Bonnar in charge of this work.

A sum of $300 was voted for the support of the widow of a minister of the Presbytery, on recommendation of the Ministerial Relief Committee.

The resignation of Rev. J. M. L. Eckerd of the Smyrna Church was accepted, many elders and ministers present speaking in high terms of his character.

The session closed with the appointing of Rev. Herman Bischof and Rev. William Gibson temporary clerks.

NEWARK HIGH WINS BY LOP-SIDED SCORE

Defeat Middletown Yesterday at Latter's Grounds by 19-3

Coach Wilson's Newark High ball tossers won their second tussle of the season yesterday afternoon when they ran wild in a game with Middletown High, the final score for the nine inning massacre being 19-3.

A. Mayer went the entire distance for the local nine and held the opposition to three hits. A combination of errors and a missed double play in the seventh gave the Middletowners their only runs.

At the bat, the showing made by Newark against the entire visiting pitching staff was creditable to the extreme and bodes ill for future opponents of the Newarkers. Every member of the team got one or more hits and they ran wild on the bases.

WOMEN'S PARTY TO MEET IN HOTEL

Prominent Speakers to Address Delaware Women

A mass meeting under the auspices of the National Women's Party will be held in the ballroom of the Hotel duPont on the evening of Friday May 4th. The women of Newark are invited to attend and hear of the work of the organization.

The National Woman's Party after its first object was accomplished in 1921, through the adoption of the National Suffrage amendment, was reorganized on a permanent basis to remove the remaining forms of discrimination against women in the law, in the professions, in industry, in education, in the church, in the home, and in the courts of our government.

Finding it impossible to extricate the machine, the party was brought home in another car, and the mired auto left in the road overnight.

"Yes, he may," said the nurse. "He has about run out of other requests."

OVER HUNDRED SPORTSMEN ATTEND FIELD TRIALS NEAR CHRISTIANA ON THURSDAY

Virginia Entry Captures All Age Stake From Fast Field. Elkton Dog Wins Derby Event Splendid Day For Trials

CALIFORNIA QUAIL USED FOR FIRST TIME

The Delaware Setter and Pointer Club held its annual spring trials on the farm of William Coverdale, on the Stanton Christiana Pike, about half a mile from the latter town, last Thursday. Over 30 dogs were entered in the two major events. The trials started at eight o'clock in the morning and it was well past six when the last brace were "taken up" after the final heat.

In the all-age class, considered the biggest event on the card, first honors went to "Bob of Blue," a newcomer to the trials here, and entered by R. L. Dutton, of Herndon, Va. Second place was captured by George H. Simon's "Bellefont Si." Two other dogs tied for third place, both owned by Wilmington men. They are "Chester Orchard's Queen," owned by Dr. W. E. Harris, and "Hanover Jim," a setter owned by E. P. Barde.

The largest entry list in years competed for the Derby trials attracted many sportsmen to the knoll above the bird field. This class is always well filled with entries, but the bunch of dog flesh exhibited last Thursday was as a group, hard to beat for youngsters.

"Carolina Frank Bob," owned and handled by Louis Hiron, of Elkton, Md., won the event hands down from a classy field. The judges were loud in their praise of this youngster. His ranging and speed was the best seen here in many years.

Second honors went to a Wilmington dog, "Conscript Speedy Girl," while the Virginia entry, "Bowie Hohn," owned by R. L. Dutton, took third place.

"Carolina Frank Bob," a full chested, clean limbed pointer, was the center of attraction from a large group of admirers after the running of the event. A mottle black and white coloring made him a rather distinctive dog. He held himself like a champion and his future in trial work is assured of success in later years, if he shows the form he exhibited Thursday.

California Quail

One of the real features of the meeting was the libeat on for the first time in this section of the country of several brace of California quail. These birds were imported for the occasion. They are perhaps the most beautiful of the quail family. Steel-blue in color, with steaks and spots of silver running along wings and tail, they arrest one's attention immediately. A lone feather, in the form of a black plume curls upward from the head. When the bird is running, this plume crest resembles an interrogation point with the head of the bird as the dot.

Outside of the admiration accorded them for their great beauty, many of the owners and handlers were disappointed in the failure of the birds to show speed and flying ability. When liberated, they slipped away in the tall grass for a few yards and immediately huddled down. All efforts to make them fly were futile. Their wings were clipped, of course, a mistake, according to several men. They maintained that the feathers should have been pulled.

Dogs Fail To Flush

From the viewpoint of the uninitiated, the meet was devoid of any sensational episodes. No guns were used over the dogs. When the birds were potted, they were flushed and the dog taken off.

The entries made few points. The gray tall grass threw them off the scent many times and at the end of the stated half hour of work, many braces of panting canines were leashed without as much as smelling a bird, but they certainly did their best to find them.

The Derby dogs displayed unusual speed and style in their event. The judges and mounted and unmounted handlers started the trail at the top of the knoll overlooking the long narrow "hollow" of the farm. The first part of the half hour was spent in the open meadow on the other side of the farm buildings where the officials could more easily see the style in which the dogs went to their work. After fifteen minutes of this work they were called into the bird ground and for the rest of the period worked back and forth across the hollow ever in search of quail.

Followed by eager handlers on foot and on horse, who continually waded their pets on the direction they wished, the young thoroughbreds went to

Mrs. Wm. Little gave a dinner on Sunday in honor of her husband's birthday. The guests being their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mitchell and little daughter, of Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Little, Miss Alma Little, and brother-in-law Mr. J. K. Chambers.

The Rev. Geo. E. Newton will move from Ebenezer Parsonage on Tuesday to Millington, Md. "Congratulations!" He will have a fine church in which to deliver his sermons, a hospitable, kind congregational children to attend.

Rev. O. E. James comes to his new home at Ebenezer on Wednesday. He preached his introductory sermon at his new charge last Sunday morning.

Dr. R. W. Cooper and Mrs. Cooper attended the "Colored" Parent-Teachers Convention held in Dover, Saturday.

Mrs. Cooper spent from Tuesday until Thursday of last week with Dr. Cooper's parents at Cheswold, Del.

The Ladies Mite Society of Ebenezer Church had a fine meeting at Mr. Arthur Atwell's last week. A full house enjoyed the opening of the rainy day boxes, which amounted to $51.00. Those who failed to see some of the raindrops added their pennies just the same for each rainy day during the year, and it being such a success they think the plan good for another year. Of course it is very nice to help the church, but too much is injurious to fruit and crops, so too many wishes for rain are not good for the community.

Watch for Harmony Grange news next week and thereafter. Through a misunderstanding it was not arranged to have the news for this issue.

Mrs. L. M. Greenwalt, who is representing the Post in this section, distributed the sample copies in the Grange Hall Monday evening. The members will respond to the call for subscriptions, renewals, etc. Mrs. Greenwalt has offered her profit to the Grange.

Thursday evening she will outline her plans at Fairview to the same effect, giving the agent's profit to the school. Any help, news or suggestions will be greatly appreciated by her.

The Milford Road Sunday School will reopen next Sunday afternoon. Dr. Cooper has been asked to make an address. Come out and hear a good talk.

The Ladies Aid Society of Ebenezer will celebrate their 38th anniversary at their Annual Pie Social on May 24th. Quite a digestible program is planned and a number of digestible pies are to be served. Readers will be reminded of the date again before the 24th.

J. Clarence Little is anxious to have the new road along his garage. He thinks by improved roads he will get time to make a "call" himself once in a while. He is rushed with work every day. We always needed a "hospital" nearer than Wilmington.

Lewis M. Greenwalt was able to go to the doctor for treatment one day this week. He still is very weak.

Geo. Taylor is able to get about slowly.

CHRISTIANA

Several other prospective bidders were present at 11 o'clock in the morning when John S. Hamilton called the sale, but Mr. Brook appeared to have the whip hand in the bidding.

The Court passed on the bid as being authentic and satisfactory.

Mrs. Ethel Eastburn and son Warren spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Eastburn.

Miss Alice Hawthorne spent last week at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Eastburn.

BRIEF

Marked up for Battery "E" by
"The Q. M."

Well, did you hear the news. We go to Camp Upton this summer for our annual 15 days encampment. We leave August 4th and get back August 18th.

We are to instruct the 62nd Artillery (Anti-Aircraft), Regular Army, just how to do things right.

We won't have the confusion and fun of making camp ourselves. The tents, etc., will all be set, rarin' to go. All we do is, get off the train and march direct to our Battery street, be assigned to our proper tents and then—do bunk fatigue until August 18th. Oh, Boy!

Some of those fellows that don't belong and won't join will be wishing they had when they hear of all our good times in and around New York.

We all know that stuff about no more wars is all bunk and that 10 to 1 we'll have another in a few years.

We not only will be having a good time this summer but we will be learning how to take care of ourselves for the next fracas.

Col Sanborn says that he doesn't have to learn, he already knows. He just got his teeth fixed and if he can't chew 'em up, he'll open his mouth wide and show 'em that gold tooth. If they don't laugh themselves to death, why his legs are as long as the next one.

To the rear, double time. March.

We had a short inspection last week by Brig-Gen. Drum and staff accompanied by Capt. Hudgins, U. S. A., Senior Instructor of the State Guard.

Gen. Drum was very much pleased with Newark, especially Newark Army.

He was sorry that he did not get to meet Jim Smith. I told him that Jim must be in the hospital, he had not been around for two days.

By the way, I wonder if Jim ever got that skrimish line yet, to dry his uniform on.

Heard in the ———
"Major Van Sciver was telling me that every man is to be issued a motorcycle to be used in scouting around the country looking for the "Serenaders." The Sup Sgt will be issued 5,000 gallons of gas every week so you can have all you want. They will be issued next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Wilmington.

The only condition is that every man must walk to Wilmington after them."

According to figures recently published by the War Department, when a strength of 250,000 is reached by the National Guard, the cost to the United States will be $52,500,000 and to the States $24,407,500. This shows the cost of upkeep borne by the States is approximately one-third of the total. It should be pointed out in this connection that the provision of adequate armories, shelter and storage by the States requires the expenditure of large amounts which are included in the figures showing the amount to be expended by the States.—Recruiting News.

It may sound fishy, but it's the gospel truth, we made the best marks in the recent Federal inspection. With no thanks to the chronic abstemious.

During rifle exercises last week, Harry Powell started swinging his rifle and could not stop. It took ten men to perform that feat for him.

Rev. Snowball: "Brudder, come jine the Army of the Lord."

Jinx Mercer: "Reverend, I'se already a memba."

Rev. Snowball: "What yo' outfit?"

Jinx Mercer: "I'se a Baptist."

Rev. Snowball: "Man, you all don't belong to de Army, you all belong to de Navy."

"Wakey' Smith says that he likes the looks of the Armory, he thinks that he will call on us again soon.

The Rifle Range at New Castle will be opened about the first of the month. We will be able to go over as often as we care to, with no limit to the amount of ammunition as long as we show that our marksmanship is improving.

Now we'll know who the good shots are. No alibis will be accepted.

Cpl. "Bill" Bland's girl told him if he wanted to come around to see her, it would have to be Thursday night. So Bill tried to get the Capt. to change drill night. It did not work.

Cpl. "Bill" took the preliminary exam. for 2nd Lt. last Friday night. If he gets the job we drill some other night than Thursday.

Here's looking to you Bill, Thursday night does not suit my wife either.

Last but not least, we drill Thursday night as usual.

DELAWARE DROPS INITIAL GAME TO WILLIAMS COLLEGE BY ONE RUN MARGIN

Brandt and Lund Pitch Well For Blue and Gold Misjudged Fly Allows Only Score. Williams Left Yesterday

The University of Delaware and Williams College hooked up in a real ball game on Frazer Field Monday afternoon, before a small crowd. The visitors from Massachusetts have had bad weather in Newark since their arrival, and Monday was the only real workout they had received.

The game was close and well played considering the early date. Both teams played careful ball, not attempting long hitting and the taking of chances. Brandt for Delaware pitched good ball, as did Kund who followed him to the mound. Both however were forced to yield the palm to Bok of the Williams team. This young man let the Blue and Gold squad down with three scattered hits. Brandt pitched perfect ball for the four innings he worked. Lund allowed four hits in three innings, but was never in danger for any length of time.

Fielding features were donated by Monjo of the Williams team and Mannix of Delaware, both outfielders. A fast double play McCormick to MacDonald also drew a round of applause.

The surprising thing about the game was the good work of the pitchers. Delaware got but three hits and Williams four. Earl Brandt, who, although a senior, never pitched in a varsity game before during his four years at Delaware and, who in fact, was never out for the team until this year except for a short time last season, was started in the box by Coach McAvoy and made good. Brandt worked four innings during which time he did not allow a run and but one hit. He fanned two and gave two walks. Lund pitched the last three innings and also did good work.

Bok, son of the former editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, went the entire seven innings for Williams. This is his first year as a pitcher for the visitors and he promises to be a great help to Coach Coombs in the box. Bok had a slow ball with a little hook on it that had the local boys guessing all the time. Coombs looks to have a pretty nifty team which, with more practice, will be able to make any college club hustle.

Another fielding feature in addition to the catches by Mannix and Monjo was a fast double play by MacDonald and McCormick in the second inning. The score:

A Column Devoted to Clean Athletics and Sportsmanship, written by one who loves the Game.

HE'S THE SAME OLD BOY

Jack Coombs is in town again. The famous pitcher who helped make the old Athletics the most-feared baseball team in the country several years ago, the man who has seen them all come and go, arrived in Newark last Thursday at the head of his Williams College ball tossers, ready for a brief period of spring training on Frazer Field.

To watch this man coaching a ball team is a revelation. Quiet, deliberate, patient—he is one who inspires confidence, loyalty and hard work on the part of his men. No matter how the battle goes, no matter how many mistakes are made out there on the field, he never varies from his calm demeanor. This is especially true of him when he is coaching young pitchers. There is no one in baseball today who knows more about the art of pitching than Jack Coombs; and there is perhaps no one quite so sure that he has the goods than a young college pitcher. Day after day, Jack goes out there behind his aspirants and points out their mistakes, gives them valuable suggestions and inspires them with the old flame of great deeds yet to come. Sometimes it looks like a hopeless job, but he never gives them up for chaff until they have been given a long patient trial. Gradually, the youngster begins to realize that here is a man who has not lost his grip on the game through the passing of the years.

Whatever may be the ultimate future of the boy as an athlete, he will never say that he wasn't properly coached.

The following incident shows to some extent how Coombs acts under fire:

Williams College was playing Harvard last year on the Cambridge field. It was the biggest game of the year, and going into the eighth inning, the Williams team held a two-run lead. The young pitcher upon whom Jack had banked his hopes was going great guns, but in that fatal eighth, he struck a snag. The first two men walked. Then came the Harvard wrecking crew. Without warning, the Crimson batter landed on a fast ball and drove it to the farthest reaches of the big field for a home run.

Out on the mound the youngster was walking around in circles, while the Harvard men were trotting round the bases, came then the soft voice of Coombs from the bench:

"Don't worry, buddy, they'll get the ball back to you after awhile."

Fortunate is the young pitcher who is under the wing of the old campaigner. If there is a spark of gold in him, it will come out above the dross, never fear.

THE PONIES RUN AGAIN

Havre de Grace!

The mere mention of the words are enough to cause strong men to weep, women to spill their powder all over their dresses and the railroad officials to rub their several hands gleefully. Havre de Grace! the tomb of many a small fortune, the scene of great winnings and small winnings. The one place where millionaires rub elbows with tramps, and everybody eats hot dog sandwiches, where the clatter of many voices and the scraping of many feet on concrete paving produce a sound which will always cling to the memory of him who hears it the first time.

And out in the sunlight, away from the clicking of the machines and the jostling of the multitude, stretch great vistas of green grass and brown earth, miles of white fence and stables.

Prancing horses who know nothing save to run until they are pulled up; jockeys, both black and white—highly paid experts in staying on a four legged express train with a bent for jumping the track; swarms of nondescript handlers, walkers, rubbers, trainers, swarming about their charges like bees around a sweet cake; blankets, boots, blinders, the smell of leather and liniment—suffocating and ever present.

Owners and part owners and those who make you believe they are owners, parade up and down the paddock, with their derbies and stock ties, their spats and field glasses. Wild clothes on wild guessers.

And last but not least the darkies selling fried chicken through the meshes of the wire fence surrounding the grounds. Hot dog men glare at the fried chicken men, and the glare is returned with interest. And he it said that you get your money's worth of chicken. That's more than can be said of the other Knights of the Quick Lunch.

Once more the welcome spring rolls around and once more old Havre de Grace, all painted up and remodelled and enlarged, awaits the throng. Like moths to a flame they come, hundreds, thousands of them. Seven pounding struggles down the broad brown ribbon of track and they go home; broken men, happy men, flushed with new born wealth, or forced to borrow carfare.

And tomorrow they come back again.
Havre de Grace!

OVER HUNDRED SPORTSMEN ATTEND FIELD TRIALS

their task with all the vim and dash characteristic of the setter and pointer. Ranging wide with all the speed at their command or carefully searching a gully or bush in the hope that the birds may be within the braces afforded a pretty sight for the on-lookers. Few birds were found and most of the judging, therefore, was accomplished on the merest of speed and ranging ability.

One Southerner There
R. L. Dutton, a big framed, bronzed Virginian, came up from Herndon, just below Washington, for the trials with three or four dogs and took back a first in the All Age and third in the Derby. Mr. Herndon has followed the game of bird trials since he was a young man, and nothing pleases him more in this world than to own a winner in a field trial. His dogs were all well bred and showed the effects of long and patient training. He said that he wanted some other folks to come along North with him but that they were all too busy. His "Carolina Frank Bob" ran a pretty trial and was the unanimous choice of the majority of the spectators.

Ideal Place For Trials
The Coverdale farm is one of the best places to hold trials in the State. The natural lay of the land affords the dogs ample opportunity to show their wares in all the various departments of trial running. In addition, the whole course is spread out before the spectator. He can see with the aid of glasses every move by the dogs when working the brush and gully. The farm is just off the Stanton Pike and close to Baltimore, Philadelphia and Wilmington. Luncheon was served to those who remained all day by Walter Powell, of Newark, who had tasty food for the sportsmen prepared on the spot.

Two Events Each Year
The Delaware Setter and Pointer Club gives two events each season; the spring trial held near Wilmington and the fall meet staged down the State on natural conditions. Birds are liberated for the former meet. In addition to these regular events several matinees and a Sporting Dog Show are being arranged for the coming year. The Club has grown both in membership and in importance among the sporting fraternity. The sport is being promoted by them, prizes, not large but none the less worth while are given, all in an effort to bring to Delaware a better grade of hunting dog and to raise the interest in this splendid sport.

The judges for the event Thursday were: Dr. O. D. Stiekney, Atlantic City, and Dr. Park Longnecker, Philadelphia. The officers of the club are: Dr. William E. Harris, president; J. Pennock Powell, treasurer; W. F. Hadley, chairman, and W. D. Darrell, secretary.

AN APPRECIATION

The sum of $481.00 was cleared by the Newark Baseball Association from their recent Carnival held in the Armory. To say that this was a noble response would be superfluous.

Several things are included in the success of the Carnival. But too much credit cannot be given to the ladies, who so willingly and faithfully aided in the raising of the money. Each night they were on hand, behind tables laden with dainty embroidery and sewing exhibits and wholesome, delicious bread, pastry and candies. Under the leadership of Mrs. Spragle, who organized them, they contributed greatly to the success of the affair.

The Continental Band is also to be congratulated for their unselfish and splendid efforts towards the good of the cause. The band offered its services for nothing and gave generous concerts all three nights.

To these and to the many other willing workers the Carnival Committee hereby extends its sincerest thanks.

tions by the band Bro. Hanna, of Wilmington, spoke briefly. Following a few words by Raymond MacMullin, Henry Mote mixed the comedy with a touch of drama, by reciting "The Convicts Warning," by Albert Albertson. After a few remarks by Bro. Medill and another selection from the band, refreshments were served.

Bro. Henry Mote, as chairman of the permanent Entertainment Committee, and the members of the Jr. O. U. A. M. wish to offer their word of appreciation to the Red Men's Band for the co-operation in making this first entertainment produced by the Entertainment Committee such a decided success.

Many members of the Newark Jr. O. U. A. M. expect to be present at the Chicken and Oyster Supper to be given by the Summit Council at Summit Bridge this evening.

Dear Jane:

No wonder you ask where I have been! Well—I just haven't had one minute to spare for things are moving along so fast right now. We are having a cleaning up time at school. Each class takes a certain part of the school grounds and tries to improve it. It's work but fun, too. We have been having a number of Girl Reserve meetings. One was a party at Miss Edith Spencer's and we had a great time! We sang, took exercises to music, talked (as usual) and—ate!! We each took cake and candy or salted nuts or helped pay for the ice cream. Miss Good was there and Miss Gallaher. Oh yes, I must tell you about elections! We hate to see our present officers leave but have some fine ones interested and elected for next year. Alleen Shaw is President, Margaret Vinsinger, Vice-President, Runth Vinsinger, Secretary, Gladys Berry, Treasurer.

I guess you remember some of them, don't you? Then another thing to keep us pepped up is the Y. W. C. A. Conference of Girl Reserves in Dover this week-end. It starts Friday with a small party followed by the State Declamation Contest, Saturday morning and afternoon discussions of club plans and girls' interests. A banquet Saturday night with toasts, Girl Reserve songs and, Oh yes, Ida Murray is to be Toastmistress. Monday afternoon a Vespero service.

Mrs. Shaw is taking some of the girls down in her car and others are passing. There are seven girls at Miss Gallaher so far who are sure going. The Dover people are maintaining and I'm sure we're going to have a wonderful time.

We had our H. S. Prom Saturday night and it was great. Have you learned to dance yet?

Did you ever hear of Miss Mary Royden? I'll tell you about her in my next letter, if I ever get time to write one.

Don't forget that I want you to come down some week-end soon.

Love to you all,
MARY.

INTERSTATE LINE RECEIVES A PERMIT

Wilmington Officials Grant New Line Entrance to City

The dispute between the Board of Directors of the Street and Sewer Department and the Interstate Bus Company over the right of the latter company to operate buses over the streets of Wilmington was ended today, when the Board decided to grant a permit for the operation of one bus.

The settlement was reached after representatives of the bus company appeared before the Board this morning, with Carter Baldwin, who had formerly possessed a permit, but who had agreed to surrender his permit in favor of the Interstate concern.

After Mr. Baldwin had surrendered his permit, the Board decided to grant one to the new company, for the operation of one bus. This will allow them to run into Wilmington from Christina by way of Marshalton, over the same route which Mr. Baldwin's permit called for.

At a terminal to be established outside of the city the bus will exchange passengers with other buses belonging to the company, which operate on through Elton to Chesapeake City. In this way, the company believes, it can handle its trade.

LODGE NOTES

Junior Order of United American Mechanics

On last Monday evening the Jr. O. U. A. M. were highly honored by having with them Bros. Caulk, Sigers, White and Hanna. Brother Caulk and Brother Sigers started the evening by describing the pleasure which the six Mechanics' divisions in the city of Wilmington expect to have in welcoming a representation of the Mechanics' Orphans' Home Band from Tiffin, Ohio. This band, after giving entertainments in several places on their route to the national meeting, will arrive in Wilmington on June 14th. Elaborate preparations are being made for the reception of this delegation. After an entertainment in Wilmington, and a big feed, they are to be taken to Cooch's Bridge, to be shown where the battle of Cooch's Bridge was fought. After that they will probably come to Newark.

Two selections were next given by the Minnehaha Band of Newark. Bro. White, a visitor from one of the Wilmington Councils, pulled off quite a few jokes, which kept the house in an uproar. After another selection by the band a few more jokes were handed out by Bro. Sigers, also of Wilmington.

Everybody joined together then in singing "Till We Meet Again." Interesting remarks were now made by Bro. Hoffecker, of Newark, and Bro. Colmery, now State councillor, of Newark. Between two more selec-

YOUNG MOUNTAINEERS HERE

Three youngsters from the mountains of Kentucky were visitors at the Women's College last Saturday evening, being entertained at dinner by Dean Winifred J. Robinson, and later addressing members of the student body.

They arrived in Newark in the course of a tour of the country in an effort to raise interest in the work of community work among the outlying districts of the country.

The boys came from the Caney Creek district of Kentucky, and were brought here through the influence of Miss Prickett, of Wilmington, who recently went to that section to work with the mountaineers.

The leader of the group at the Women's College was a grubby little chap of eight summers. He delighted and amazed the audience by his clever talking and many ways. The ages of all three youngsters ranged from eight to eleven years.

The fifth annual commencement of the Americanization schools held in the Auditorium of the Wilmington High School Saturday night, marked the culmination of the term's work of the Wilmington Board of Education in Americanizing them for becoming citizens of this country.

The occasion was marked by the address of Dr. John H. Finley, Associate Editor of the New York Times, and by the rendition of songs and dances of the countries represented in the Americanization classes in Delaware. The flag of nearly every country in Europe was displayed by the students, but above them was the American flag, which was draped on the walls, balcony and stage.

The procession was led by the graduates, bearing flags of their mother country and of America and escorted by the color guard of the Caesar Rodney Citizens' Alumni Association. The exercises were opened with the chanting of the pledge of the American flag. The audience was welcomed by the Chairman, David A. Ward, Superintendent of Schools; Salvatore Muzzi, President of the Student Advisory Council, and Hans Sadenwasser, President of the Caesar Rodney Citizens' Alumni Association.

Over 797 diplomas and certificates were presented by Dr. H. V. Holloway, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Before giving the diplomas, he congratulated the graduates and paid special tribute to the mothers' class, which consists of 226 mothers through whom Dr. Holloway stated, 700 children were reached by the movement. He also thanked P. S. duPont, "Delaware's foremost citizen," who aided the movement financially.

DELAWARE STATE FAIR IS 25 YEARS OLD

Many New Classes in Sewing and Painting This Year STARTS ON AUGUST 27

Many new classes in needle work, crocheting, the flower department, the children's department and the grain and forage department, are listed in the preliminary premium list being sent out this week by the officials of the Delaware State Fair, which this year will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary, the week of August 27th. According to the plans made the fair this year will be the biggest and the best in its history, and this premium list is but a preliminary notice of the many attractive awards which will appear in complete form when the full premium list is distributed late in June.

In the colored cotton embroidery department there are new classes for crewel embroidery and for display of six handkerchiefs, drawn in threads. For those who make rag rugs there is a new class for hooked rag rugs. For the women over seventy years of age new special classes are offered for the best display of old-fashion sewing to include felled seam, over seam, hem, tucks and gathers done on strips. New classes are offered for plain hand-made garments, plain hemming and hand-made sheet or pair of plain hand-made pillow cases.

NEWARK METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH ENTERS INTO ANOTHER YEAR OF GREAT PROGRESS

With Return of Rev. Frank Herson to Local Congregation for Sixth Year, Organization is Complete. New Building Badly Needed to House Growing Membership.

REV. FRANK P. HERSON
 Popular pastor of the Church, who returns for his sixth year of service.

NEWARK M. E. CHURCH
 Plans for the rebuilding of the edifice are now under way.

Beginning with last Sunday the local Methodist Episcopal Church entered upon another active year of work in this community. With the return of Rev. Frank Herson as pastor, officials of the institution predict another banner year.

Mr. Herson, in his pastorate here, has won for his church and for himself a host of friends and workers. Under his able guidance, the affairs of the church have been attended to with regularity and dispatch. It is believed that, upon entering his sixth year of service here, he holds the record in the Newark church for the longest continuous pastorate.

To Rebuild the Church

The greatest single effort to be put forth during the coming year will be in relation to the proposed rebuilding of the present edifice.

Plans were drawn some time ago for the work and they were approved unanimously by the Church Record. The Conference offered no objection, and it may be said that within a few months active work will begin.

A special fund set aside by the national governing body of the Church, and called the opportunity fund, is available to the local Board for use in building. The fund is made up of endowments to be used in furthering the interests of the Church, particularly in college towns. It is expected that a part of this money will be available for the work. When the actual budget to be reached will have been made up, the time to act will be at hand.

Benevolences Show Increase

During the year previous to Mr. Herson's ministry here the total amount of benevolences given by the Church to the required outside sources was $534. During the year 1922-23 the total reached the unprecedented sum of $3037.00.

The benevolences are divided into several classes, and these classes and their allotments for the past year are as follows:

Benevolences ordered by General Conference:

Women's Home Missionary Society	$ 352.00
Centenary benevolences	1618.00
Total	$2020.00

Benevolences ordered by Annual Conference:

Annual Conference	$ 203.00
Support of District Superintendent and Bishop	814.00
Grand total	$3037.00

These moneys are given over and above the amounts set aside for the upkeep of the local church, salaries, and other expenses.

These figures adequately show the great growth of the church in the past five years. With the coming of the new building, the officials believe that the church will continue on its progressive program. There are now 387 active members on the rolls of the church.

Committees Appointed

At the last meeting of the Church Board, committees were appointed for the various duties centering about the institution. The committees and their members are as follows:

1. Finance—F. A. Cooch, Mrs. R. A. Crossan, E. F. Dawson.
2. Church Property—C. A. Short, W. B. Sweeney, R. S. Gallaher.
3. Pulpit—Dr. E. B. Crooks, W. E. Brown, H. H. Gray.
4. Music—T. F. Manns, Mrs. C. A. Short, Mrs. L. C. Garrett.
5. Ushers—G. A. Shaeffer, L. A. Rhodes, J. C. Thompson.
6. Publicity—M. O. Pence, Mrs. Robt. Campbell, E. F. Dawson.
7. Auditors—Pierce K. Crompton, Henry F. Mote, G. M. Phipps.
8. Church Utility (heat, light and ventilation)—Henry F. Mote, Raymond Buckingham, Oliver Leveredge.
9. Parsonage—Ladies' Aid.
10. Church Records—L. C. Garrett, H. P. Williams, John W. Moore.

STUBBORN FIRE IN ELKTON LAST SUNDAY

Auto Belonging to Dory Foster Badly Burned Near Garage

A large touring car belonging to Dory Foster of Elkton was badly burned last Sunday afternoon on East Main street in that town. Quick response by the Singery Fire Company and heroic work by the owner of the Marland garage and others saved the building and its contents from further damage.

The car, recently purchased by Foster, was standing in the garage, when smoke was seen to issue from under the seat. Soon the upholstery and top were in flames. Fearing that the blaze might spread to the other cars parked in the building the car was pushed out into the street nearby. An alarm was given and the Singery Fire Company responded. The chemical tanks were found to be the most needed weapons with which to fight the blaze. In a few minutes all danger was past.

The blaze attracted a large crowd of onlookers and the usual fun was indulged in when a small boy wandered in front of the hose.

FURORE IN ELKTON SCHOOL CIRCLES

Two Schoolboys Found Intoxicated in Stable; Two Others Take Drinks

OFFICIALS ACT

Public school officials in Elkton were thrown into a high state of excitement last Friday when two pupils in the public schools of the town were found in a vacant stable near the Howard Street school in advanced states of intoxication. According to reports they were found by Truant Officer McVey, and when questioned stated that they had been drinking corn liquor from a bottle found in the stable. The effects of the spree placed them in a drunken condition, in which they were found. The boys are Ellis Bedwell and a boy named Hitznereder. Two other boys, Vernon Kline and James Jones, admitted taking drinks from the bottle and then attending a school session.

When brought before Magistrate Scotten, the boys were paroled with a warning that on the next offense of any nature they would be sent to the reform school.

TELEPHONE ALMANAC OUT FOR YEAR 1923

Novel Publication Gives History of Telephone as Well as Weather Data

The Diamond State Telephone Company has just issued an Almanac for 1923, containing among other things an account of "the Twelve Historical Events in the United States which serve to illustrate the importance of Communication in the shaping the Destiny of the Nation."

The regular information contained in every almanac is also in this one, such as the moon's phases, weather predictions, and information valuable to farmers, and navigators.

The book is gotten up in attractive style and is very interesting.

Sheriff Gifford are investigating the case with a view to rounding up the parties who, according to the boys, were seen to enter the stable on numerous occasions.

WORK TO START ON DAYETT DAM MAY 1

Contract Let at Meeting of Anglers Association Thursday

WILL HELP THE SPORT

Newark and vicinity are assured of a splendid new fishing, boating and bathing center, according to officials of the Newark Anglers' Association. The long fight for a real fishing ground has at last been crowned with success and on May 1st work will start on the building of the dam at the old Dayett mill near Keeney station, about three miles south of town.

When the meeting opened Thursday night, the directors of the Association found that the sum subscribed and pledged would reach the mark set by the men in charge. It was decided, therefore, to hear bids on the work. Plans had already been in the hands of various contractors who had prepared estimates. Therefore the bids were opened and the contract for the work awarded to George Moore. The total cost will be about $3200, according to the estimate.

When completed and stocked, this dam will be one of the finest fishing ponds in the entire State. Trout, bass and other game fish will be brought here for stocking purposes.

Townsend New Director

The Association accepted the resignation of Pusey Morrison as a director. Mr. Morrison was one of the organizers of the movement for the pond and was among the first men elected to the Board.

George L. Townsend, Jr., was named by the Association as a successor to Mr. Morrison. Mr. Townsend is a fisherman of no mean ability and has always been a booster for the success of the project. Ott W. Widdoes, president of the body and an earnest one, too, is to be congratulated on his untiring efforts in working for the new pond.

Those men who had already subscribed, when confronted with the probable cost and the money at hand, promptly doubled their subscriptions. Others gave liberal sums as their first contribution.

COLLEGE MINSTRELS TO BE JOYOUS FROLIC

April 23rd Set For Performance; Madden's Orchestra to Feature

The annual frolic given by the Footlights Club of the University of Delaware will be given on the evening of the 23rd of April in Wolf Hall.

Each year the event becomes larger and more ambitious, and this year promises to be the best ever. Instead of the Minstrel Show, given during past years, the 1923 edition will consist of a 10-act vaudeville performance, with plenty of spice, music and clever staging.

The feature of the evening will be George Madden and His Orchestra, always favorites in Newark. The musicians will be on the stage for a half hour, playing popular dance music. Eight pieces will comprise the orchestra for the occasion.

Another feature will be a one-act comedy, enacted by members of the club, with several characterizations of prominent members of the Faculty and townspeople as principal features.

Aubrey Travers will again appear in one of his splendid bits of artistic stage work. Givan and Smith constitute a heavyweight team which is scheduled to bring many laughs.

The opening number of the show will bring to the footlights a choice assortment of "chorus girls" who will sing and dance.

The college shows are always well attended and this one promises not to suffer from want of a large audience.

GARDEN CLUB AT WOMEN'S COLLEGE

The Delaware chapter of the American Garden Club visited the Women's College of Delaware last Wednesday afternoon and were entertained at tea by Dean Winifred J. Robinson. Among other things talked over, was the subject of improving the campus of the college by the planting and arranging of shrubbery and trees. Many women from all over the State attended the affair, among them the official landscape gardener of the College.

DELAWARE ASPIRES TO THE MILLENNIUM

The Material Aid of Pierre du Pont Facilitates Education and Social Betterment

By EDWARD N. VALLANDIGHAM

(Edward N. Vallandigham, writer of the appended article, now of Chestnut Hill, Mass., and formerly of Newark, is a nationally-known journalist. He was, at one time, editor of Every Evening and also held the chair of English at Delaware College, now the University of Delaware.)

Had you millions more than would serve your utmost personal needs, gratify your most luxurious tastes, permit the indulgence of your wildest fads and fancies, what would you do with the surplus? Edgar Allen Poe's imaginary half-billionaire created "The Domain of Arnheim." You may read the tale of that vast and glorious pleasure in what remains after more than two generations the most distinguished piece of sustained description in American literature. Poe supposed he had invented the impossible in his half-billionaire. But since Poe's time the possibility has been realized in American industrial life, and many a man of millions has sought to create for himself an earthly paradise, though perhaps none has himself possessed or been able to hire a constructive imagination capable of conceiving another Utopian retreat, such as the "Domain of Arnheim."

Pierre du Pont, of Delaware, although not a half-billionaire, might have constructed something like Poe's imagined pleasure place, but he has chosen rather the more audacious and difficult task of giving millions to the idealistic attempt of placing the little State of Delaware in the very forefront of American commonwealths as regards education, sanitation, public safety, Americanization—in a word, civilization.

To grasp the audacity and difficulty of this undertaking, one must know something of the community thus made the subject of an experiment hitherto unattempted. Delaware has rather less than a quarter of a million inhabitants, living upon about two thousand square miles, half of them in the sole considerable city, Wilmington. No other place has quite five thousand inhabitants. Delaware is ninety-six miles long, thirty-six miles at its widest (along the southern boundary), and nine miles at the narrowest. Almost half the area of Delaware lies in the Sussex, the most southerly of the three counties, which is nearly as large as Rhode Island and has about one-tenth of Rhode Island's population. Kent county and rural New Castle county are also rather thinly peopled, and like Sussex, mainly agricultural.

Of Delaware's whites, which comprise all but about thirty thousand of the whole population, more than nine-tenths are natives of the soil, most of them descended in one or more lines from immigrants of the mid-seventeenth or early eighteenth century. Nearly all families in Delaware are old families. The du Ponts, from the Delaware point of view, are mere upstarts, having come from France barely a century and a quarter ago. Rural Delaware is not so much a community, as a large family. Folk of all sorts are of the same mixed blood—English, Welsh, Swedish, Finnish, French, Dutch, from intermarriage through generations and centuries. Such a society is relatively static. All over the state, townships are called "hundreds" a name and thing older than the Anglo-Saxon settlement of England more than fifteen hundred years ago.

Such a community is naturally conservative, clinging tenaciously to its customs and traditions. The pillory has ceased to be a part of criminal punitive apparatus, but the whipping-post survives. There are a few villages in Delaware which a negro may not enter after sunset. Men, and more especially women, have long memories; they are apt to know a neighbor's pedigree back at least to the Colonial period. They can guess a man's county, perhaps even his "hundred," by his family name. They boast that Delaware is half a century older in European civilization than Pennsylvania, and are proud that their militia march immediately behind the "regulars" at the inauguration of a President, because Delaware was the first state to enter the Union, by being the first to adopt the Constitution.

Organization and Progress

This conservative, self-content, prosperous, and proud rural population Mr. du Pont seeks to modernize, to rouse from its conservatism and self-content, and set it upon the path of progress. Being at once wise and modest, he rallied to his moral support progressive men and women of nearly all occupations the whole state over, had them incorporated as "The Service Citizens of Delaware," and set aside ninety thousand dollars a year to promote their activities. He also created, as an adjunct to the Service Citizens, the Delaware School Auxiliary; and to carry out the work of this body, he created a fund of nearly four million dollars. Incidentally, he has given considerably more than one million dollars to the University of Delaware, and his brother-in-law, Mr. H. Rodney Sharp, has given to the University, of which he is a graduate, large sums of money and much of his time and energy. The organization of the Service Citizens has been spending for the past three years most of its annual appropriation in promoting Americanization, public safety, public health, and in providing employment for unemployed soldiers of the World War, and others without the means of earning their bread.

When the Delaware School Auxiliary began its work, there was hardly a modern public school building in all rural Delaware for black or white. Most of the twenty thousand white children were attending school in buildings from fifty to one hundred and fifty years old; those for colored children were unspeakably squalid. In many rural "districts," as the school taxing area is called, the term was short, in nearly all attendance was irregular, and in most the pay of teachers was beggarly.

For the work of the Service Citizens and the School Auxiliary, a corps of paid experts was formed, and at the head of this body Dr. Joseph H. Odell was placed as director. Suspicion, bitter local opposition, and adverse legislation met Mr. du Pont and Director Odell; but that phase happily seems to be almost a thing of the past.

Modernizing the Schools

In order that rural communities should not be pauperized, Mr. du Pont offered to pay half the cost of modernizing the schools for whites, if the local areas would raise the rest by taxation or selfbonding. Some accepted and did their full share, others could do only a fraction of what was asked, still others proudly declined his aid, and many are still debating the matter. Up to the end of May, 1922, the Delaware School Auxiliary had spent nearly one million, five hundred thousand dollars for school premises, buildings, and equipment. In Sussex county, where the need was greatest, modern schoolhouses were provided in some of the larger villages at a cost of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, of which about one-fifth was locally raised.

When it came to the schools for colored children, Mr. du Pont asked no contributions from the local districts; he gave outright. Thus far, the School Auxiliary has spent upon grounds, buildings, and thoroughly up-to-date equipment for rather less than fifty-five hundred rural colored children about six hundred thousand dollars. It is believed that no such experiment in negro education has been tried upon so large a scale anywhere else on earth.

In this great undertaking, Pierre du Pont has not been angered or discouraged by criticism or suspicions. He has acquiesced to suggestions for modification of his plans, and kept on friendly terms with the official school authorities, even when they were inclined to hostility. He is willing to wait patiently, ready to lend a hand when local areas now indifferent, hostile, or dilatory shall wake to the needs of their schools. When Delaware shall have taken the place that he would like to see her take and keep in the ranks of her sister states, Delaware will not be Pierre du Pont's "Domain of Arnheim" alone, but that of all his fellow-Delawareans to share and enjoy.—Vogue.

NEW FIRE ENGINE FOR MIDDLETOWN

On Exhibition During Carnival July 6 to 14

Several weeks ago the Volunteer Hose Company of Middletown appointed a committee composed of Norman W. Kumpel, E. H. Shallcross, Edward S. Jones, Abram Fogel and E. M. $80 CLEARED AT P.-T. BAKE SALE

Snow and Rain Failed to Hinder Sales

In spite of snow and rain the Bake given by the Parent-Teacher Association, Saturday, April 14th, was a decided success. Eighty dollars were earned for the benefit of the High School seniors' trip to Washington this spring.

The committee in charge of the Bake wishes to thank all who helped in the team work, Mr. J. H. Oowens, the seniors who made the posters displayed about town, the mothers of the seniors, as well as members of the Association who baked delicious pies and cakes, Mr. Blockson who donated cartons and plates, and last but not least, the generous patrons who bought. The girls and boys who willingly ran errands all day to help with the sales rendered service that was greatly appreciated.

Any one who contributed to the Bake now finding herself lacking a plate or tin may find it with Mrs. George H. Stewart, 51 West Main street.

PROTEST POWER SALE CLAIMING LOW PRICE

Gilpins Falls Case Again Comes into the Limelight

PETITION COURT

Claiming that the price received was not commensurate with the real value of the property, Joshua Elton, Esq., attorney for the creditors of the defunct Second National Bank of Elkton filed a petition in the Circuit Court for Cecil County this week protesting against the recent sale of the Gilpins Falls Light and Power Company to the Northern Maryland Electric Company for a sum said to be $75,000.

The sale was made by the Gilpins Falls concern through the receivers, Thomas W. Perkins and J. Wesley McAllister. The new company is a part of the Pennsylvania Power Company with their main plant at McCall's Ferry along the Susquehanna River.

Mr. Clayton claims that more money should have been received from the sale, pointing out that the assets combined with the valuable territory covered by the Gilpins Falls interest, warrant the increase.

It was also stated that every available cent of money raised from the liquidation of assets of the defunct bank should go to the waiting creditors. The electric company was sold at a private sale.

The electric light controversy in Elkton is attracting wide attention. At present the town is being supplied by light and power from the Home Light and Power Company. The current is brought from Wilmington. W. Sterling Evans is at the head of this concern.

The entrance into the field by the Northern Maryland interests has complicated the situation to such an extent that legal action may be taken to settle all disputes.

L. HANDLOFF'S DEPARTMENT STORE
WALK-OVER SHOES

Newark, Delaware, April 11, 1923.

TO THE CUSTOMERS

DEAR CUSTOMERS:

In your letter you really ask "Is quality worthy of the price?" Our answer is "Yes—always."

No one wants cheap shoes any more than they want cheap meat, cheap eggs or cheap hats. Most people spend two-thirds of their life in shoes. The shoes support the body. The hat, the coat or the glove merely rest on the body. Shoes are a foundation. The others are decorations.

Did you ever hear of a "corrective hat" or an "orthopedic necktie"? The reason is obvious.

A cheap shoe and a good shoe may look alike. So do two railroad tickets, but one will carry you farther than the other. So will Walk-Overs carry you farther than cheap shoes.

If these shoes, which resemble each other closely in the window, could be compared with each other after six months' wear, then the "worthwhileness" of Walk-Over $7.00, $8.00 or $9.00 quality over $4.00, $5.00 or $6.00 cheapness would stand out.

Fancy shoes in quick changing styles have invited an atmosphere of short lived, hurriedly constructed footwear. There is a returning appreciation of goodness in shoes and there is a beauty in goodness or quality that outranks temporary style attraction.

Furthermore, Walk-Overs always fit, and that care in design and construction is never placed secondary to outward appearance.

When a person buys a cheap article, he feels good when he pays for it and disgusted every time he uses it. When he buys a good article he feels better every time he uses it for the recollection of quality remains long after the price is forgotten.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS HANDLOFF

No—the farmers in this state are in touch with the best markets in the nation.

CECIL COUNTY FRUIT NOT HURT BY COLD

Report of Department of Agriculture Reviews Conditions

The recent cold wave beginning the first of this month has not damaged the fruit crop of Cecil County to any great extent, according to the report forwarded to The Post from the United States Department of Agriculture.

There are several divisions of opinion on the subject, however. The Board has taken all the views and from them has gathered the data.

In the Colora district, the late budding of the trees resulted in a boon to the growers. The cold snap was severe in this section, but owing to the trees not being out, the damage was very slight.

In and around Elkton the same report holds true. The trees are very late this year owing to the continuance of winter and the damage wrought is insignificant.

The greatest damage in the county appeared to center around North East.

Peach damage was as follows: Elberts, 30 per cent buds killed; Mt. Rose, St. John and Crawford late varieties, about 50 per cent killed. Other varieties slightly injured. Peaches were about the only fruit badly hurt, the apple crop for this year escaping any damage.

The University of Maryland Extension Department has been actively co-operating with the United States Board of Agriculture in compiling the above data. The Cecil County report came, it is understood from the County Extension agent, who is thoroughly familiar with conditions in his districts. The report can be then considered authentic.

CARLOAD OF CERTIFIED SEED POTATOES HERE

Second Consignment to be Distributed Over County at Once

The second carload of certified seed potatoes purchased by the New Castle County Farm Bureau for use by its members arrived recently and will be distributed among the consignees at the earliest convenience.

This car contains principally the Green Mountain variety which has proven so popular in the northern section of the county. County Agent Bausman predicts that the buying of these potatoes will greatly increase the quality and yield of the local farmers.

Mr. Bausman is now conducting experiments and demonstrations to show the value of planting certified seed stock over the ordinary kind. The two most popular varieties are the Green Mountain and the Rural Russet.

The second car contains over 1400 bushels of the seed tubers, sufficient it is understood, to show the results this year in the farms of those men using the imported seed.

Important Changes In Motor Laws Made By Legislature During Recent Session

Digest of Rulings Printed Below Give Motorists the Opportunity to Become Familiar with the New Laws

Allow Towns to Control Parking Lights

In the section entitled "Lights on Parked Vehicles" in the following digest, the incorporated towns of the State are given the authority to establish zones in brightly lighted districts where parking lights may be done away with.

Considerable comment has been heard on the matter with reference to Newark. The Chamber of Commerce decided to take action in the matter, but nothing was done at the last meeting of Council.

In the opinion of many citizens lights on vehicles within the Main Street zone between Newark Centre and the Baltimore and Ohio Station are entirely unnecessary. With the coming of the summer months and the increasing number of cars which will park here in the evenings, the establishment of a new ordinance in this matter will not, it appears, be opposed by the great majority of townspeople.

The Legislature of Delaware at its recent session enacted radical changes in the motor laws of the State, completely rewriting some sections of the laws, and so changing others that heavy penalties can be inflicted for certain offenses. Every owner and driver of a motor vehicle in the State is affected. Under the new law drivers employed for hire must undergo examinations. The former laws governing speed have been wiped out and new enactments placed on the statute books which make recklessness, and not speed, primarily, the basis for conviction. Other important changes in the law provide for heavy penalties in the interests of public safety.

The following digest giving the important points, but not the full text of the laws, has been issued by the Delaware Safety Council for the information of all citizens:

DIGEST OF MOTOR VEHICLE LAWS PASSED BY 1923 LEGISLATURE

Stopping After An Accident

Operator involved in accident causing injury or property damage must stop and give name, address and license number to injured party, or to police officer, or report same to nearest police station or judicial officer. Fine not more than $500, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both. Second offense—imprisonment for at least two years and not more than five. License may be revoked and if so cannot be reissued.

Lights On Horse-Drawn Vehicles

Every vehicle drawn by horse, mule or oxen must carry at least one light visible 200 feet in both directions, from one-half hour after sunset until one-half hour before sunrise. Failure to do so is evidence of contributory negligence in case of an accident. Penalties: First offense $5, second $10 and third $25. Case may be dismissed if failure to show light was due to unforeseen circumstances. Does not apply to farm or log wagons.

Dealer's Registration

Motor vehicles operated by dealers and manufacturers for testing, selling or any purpose except for hire are exempt from individual registration. Said dealers must be registered in "Dealers Class" with Secretary of State. For each car registered—fee of $25. Tags issued must bear words "Delaware Dealer." Only one vehicle to be operated at one time under one register number. Such tags must not be used for jitneys, taxicabs or other motor vehicles used for hire.

Lights On Parked Vehicles

Any incorporated city or town may establish zones in brightly lighted sections where autos may be parked without lights.

Weights and Speeds On State Highways

No vehicles of gross weight over 22,000 lbs. shall be operated on State Highways. No vehicle bearing load in excess of 700 per inch width of tire, or having axle load more than 16,000 lbs. shall be operated on State Highways. Speed of 35 miles in open country and 15 miles in cities allowed for vehicles weighing not over 6000 lbs. Lower speed for heavier vehicles.

Unregistered Motor Vehicles

No motor vehicle shall be operated unless licensed nor operated under another license. No motor vehicle can be operated under any number other than its own register number. Penalty under present law: Fine not exceeding $200 or 30 days imprisonment, or both.

Reckless Driving

No person may operate a motor vehicle recklessly or at a rate of speed greater than is reasonable and proper with regard to conditions such as width of street, traffic, intersections, weather, condition of brakes, etc., nor shall any person operate so as to have caused a collision or endanger the life or limb of another. Penalties—$25, or $100 fine, or imprisonment of 30 days, or both. Second offense—fine of $100 to $200 or imprisonment for one year, or both. Driving at a rate in excess of 35 miles per hour in the open for one-quarter mile or 25 miles in cities or towns for one-quarter mile is presumptive evidence of reckless driving. No commercial vehicle not equipped with pneumatic tires may exceed 20 miles per hour or 8 miles per hour on a movable bridge.

Intoxication

No person shall operate a motor vehicle while under influence of intoxicating liquor or any drug. On conviction shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $500, or imprisonment for one year, or both. License must be revoked for one year. Second offense—$200 to $1000 fine, and imprisonment for three months to one year. After revoking a license the State can refuse to issue a new license until proof of good behavior is furnished.

Passing Other Vehicles

Persons operating motor vehicle shall reasonably turn to right of center of road when meeting other vehicles, and when overtaking other vehicles must pass to left. Other vehicles turn out to permit free passage. No operator shall pass a vehicle from rear while crossing an intersection, nor on a curve or at top of hill unless he has at least 500 feet unobstructed view ahead.

Right-of-Way

Operators shall have right-of-way over vehicles approaching from left on intersecting streets and highways, but shall give right-of-way to operator of vehicle approaching from right. Traffic officers, however, have full power to regulate. On principal highways outside city or town State Highway Department has right to declare that vehicles on these highways have right-of-way at all intersections; signs to this effect to be posted.

Operator's Licenses

All operators of this State must have either motor vehicle operator's or chauffeur's license, except that persons over 15 years of age may operate a motor vehicle, other than a bus, outside city limits for thirty days while under instruction and when accompanied by a licensed operator on front seat. Secretary of State can, for sufficient reason, require any applicant to be examined. All persons hired to drive must be examined as to requirements of motor vehicle laws and traffic regulations must have reasonable knowledge of mechanism of vehicle, ability to read, speak and understand English. Where reasonable doubt exists examining officer can require certificate of medical, physical or mental condition. Public service motor vehicle operators, who must be at least 21 years of age, must also carry a special permit, and to obtain same must furnish satisfactory evidence of good moral character. Chauffeur's license and public service vehicle operator's permits are not required until January 1, 1924. The license cards must bear the owner's photograph. Charge for permits $1—no charge for examination. The examination and application under oath required only on issue of first license of this character is not required on renewals if made from year to year. Penalties—$25 to $100 for first offense; for second offenses $50 to $100, or imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or both. Heavy penalty for wilful misstatement in examination or application.

STAKE OUT NEW DRIVE

Student engineers from the University accompanied by their instructors were engaged the latter part of last week in laying out a new driveway from the Women's College. Whether the drive will be completed as a part of the development of the campus is not assured. If finished, it will enter the college property above the Practice House and wind across the campus coming onto the Women's campus from the northern end. It will emerge again on Depot Road near the entrance of Park Place, thus doing away with the oval in front of Residence Hall.

Clarence Burton was seen striding out of the Lasky studio a few days ago with a bag of golf clubs swung over his shoulder.

"How come?" inquired a friend, casting an eye at the "lot" clock which registered early afternoon.

"I died at 2.10," blithely explained Burton, "so I'm through for the rest of the day!"

All of which is germane to the fact that Mr. Burton is a central figure in a dramatic scene of "The Ordeal," a new Agnes Ayres Paramount picture which will be the feature at the Opera House next Wednesday. Conrad Nagel is leading man.

Rupert Hughes has hit the bulls-eye of fun again with his new Goldwyn photocomedy, "Come On Over," which will be shown at the Opera House on Thursday. It is a companion piece, for its comedy, to his "Scratch My Back," and its characters are as human and lovable as those in his other masterpiece, "The Old Nest." Its comedy is wholesome and persuasive and infectious and through its course flows a vein of Irish wit that only Mr. Hughes has been able to bring to the screen in all its delightfulness.

Its story is simple, but has the freshness and breeziness of a sunrise over one of Ireland's greenest hills. The story starts in Ireland but soon jumps to New York and deals with the romance of Shane, who leaves his sweetheart, Moyna, behind when he seeks his fortune in the new world. When they meet in New York after three years, their love affair runs anything but smoothly until a contest of old Irish dances is staged. The dance music gets into their blood, and their feet lead them together in the dance and, once in each other's arms, everything is straightened out.

Alfred Greene directed this brilliant comedy. Chief in the cast are Colleen Moore and Ralph Graves. They are ably assisted by Florence Drew, Mary Warren, Kathleen O'Connor, Monti Collins, J. Farrell MacDonald, James Marcus and others.

METHOD OF CONTROLLING THE "BUDWORM" WHICH CAUSES YEARLY DAMAGE TO DELAWARE CORN

Extension Service of State Agricultural Center Here Have Prepared Bulletin On This Disease

OUTLINES METHODS HELPING YOUNG CORN

The Webworm, commonly known as the "budworm," causes serious losses to the corn crop in Delaware each year. Last year corn growers had to replant entire fields because of the attack of this insect, which reduced field stands of corn from 25 to 50 per cent in many cases. The following means of prevention and control have been prepared by the Agricultural Extension Service, as reported in Farmers' Bulletin, 1258, copies of which may be secured from the County Agent's offices.

The two main types of injury of the sod webworms require two main types of control.

(1) For the first type of injury, that to young corn, prevention is better than remedy. In fact, after the corn is once planted and the field is found to be infested there is no practicable method of getting rid of the worms and the only thing that can be done is to produce conditions that will permit the corn to grow in spite of them.

(2) Land that has been in sod, either pasture or meadow, and land that has lain fallow and has grown up to weeds and grass, should be plowed the fall before it is intended to plant it to corn. The earlier it is plowed the better; it should be done in July or August if possible. Plowing in late October and November seems to show very little more beneficial effect in reducing the worms than plowing early the following spring before the corn is planted. It seems probable that the worms are practically all in their winter webs by the middle of October, and even earlier than this farther north, and when they have once sealed themselves up for the winter they are so securely protected that plowing does not injure many of them. Thus it may be seen that fall plowing to be effective must be done early enough to disturb the worms before they have finished feeding and, by the destruction of their food, either starve them before winter or force them to go into winter so poorly protected that many of them die before spring. Such fall-plowed land should be disked or otherwise cultivated in the spring until time for corn planting so that grasses and weeds may be kept down and any worms that may have survived the winter may be starved out.

(3) If after the corn is up, it becomes evident that it is going to be seriously injured, another course is necessary. If the season is still early and the corn small, delay a few days, if possible, until all the worms in the soil shall have found the corn and begun work upon it. Then without disturbing the corn already growing, replant the field so that the newly planted rows lie midway between the old infested rows. Allow both plantings to stand. The field can be harrowed and, with care, cultivated the first time without seriously disturbing the first planted corn. By the time for the second cultivation most of the worms will have finished feeding and at this time the old corn can be cultivated out, leaving the second planting to occupy the field. It usually is a waste of time and seed to replant the crop in the same rows or hills with the infested plants, unless it is very late in the season, because the worms merely turn their attention to the younger plants and soon the condition of these is no better than that of the first planting. Instances have come to notice where four successive plantings were made in the same rows and all but the last of these totally destroyed. The time at which the worms cease feeding varies with the location of the infestation. Seldom is any damage done in Tennessee after June 1st. Farther north this date is later, perhaps as much as a month later in northern Ohio and Iowa.

(4) It should also be stated that deep plowing, thorough preparation of the seed bed, the application of fertilizer, sound healthy seed, and any other factors which favor the corn plant will materially lessen injury. It has often been noted that corn growing in some particularly fertile spot in the field, perhaps where a stack has stood or where manure has been spread liberally, will escape almost without injury when the rest of the field is nearly destroyed. Corn plants can stand some mutilation of the out leaves without apparent injury, if only the growing center of "bud" is not injured. The fast growing, vigorous plants are in much better condition to resist injury and to recover when injured than those already handicapped by other unfavorable conditions.

Rotation is not always a factor in the control of these insects, in fact not a single instance has been recorded where corn after corn was injured.
