Council In Adjourned Meeting

Auditors' Report Accepted

Council met in special meeting last night, to consider the extension of the town sewer system, to include the Women's College. Owing to the fact that all the data necessary is not yet available, the matter was postponed until a later meeting. The report of the auditors was accepted and orders given for its publication.

Important Grange Meeting

There will be a meeting of the Newark Grange on Monday evening March 20. Due to the inclemency of the weather on March 6th the meeting arranged for that evening was postponed, and it is desired that there be a large attendance on next Monday evening.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL AWARDS HONORS

Plans For The InterScholastic Meet In May

Final consideration of track, baseball, and tennis schedules took up most of the time of the Delaware College Athletic Council, at the meeting last night. Manager G. O. Smith of track, was before the Council and submitted the following schedule which was approved:

Saturday, April 29—University of Pennsylvania relay races of Franklin Field.

Saturday, May 6—Dual meet with Muhlenberg at Allentown.

Saturday, May 13—Interscholastic and Inter-Class field and track meets on Joe Frazer Field.

Saturday, May 20—Dual meet with Drexel Institute on Joe Frazer Field.

Decoration Day—Dual meet with Gettysburg on Joe Frazer Field.

While tennis was played some last year this will be the first season for years that there has been a regular collegiate schedule. The schedule presented by Manager Walls, was approved.

The Council awarded the "D" for basketball to the following: Captain Doherty, Weimer, Wills, T. Wilson, D. Horsey, Reeder and Manager Bounds.

The "Del" was awarded for basketball to the following: Weldin, Ferguson, O'Toole, E. Wilson and Marston.

Coach McAvoy is making the arrangements for the Inter-scholastic field and track meet to be held on Joe Frazer Field, Saturday, May 13th. The indications are that there will be a larger number of schools entered this year than ever before. This will make the third year for the interscholastic meet and it is growing in popularity among the high schools of the state, as well as a number in other states that send contestants.

Fitting Memorial to Emily Webb

Public spirited citizens of Wilmington are planning the erection of an appropriate fountain, to the memory of Miss Emily Webb, deceased, always an earnest friend of horses, dogs, cats, birds, and all other animals. The movement started shortly after Miss Webb's death has assumed definite form during the last few weeks. Miss Murphy, a skilled modeler of statuary, will mould the fountain on which will be shown figures of animals. The fountain will be used primarily as a drinking trough for horses, but on the edge above the trough, will be a bathing space for birds.

Busy With Extension Work

Professor M. E. Rich of the Department of Education, Women's College of Delaware, addressed the pupils of DuPont High School on Tuesday morning. In the evening Miss Rich spoke before the Parent-Teachers' Association of Townsend. Last Thursday she addressed the Home Makers' School at Selbyville, and on Friday the clubwomen of New Castle, on the subject "moral Training of Children."

Newark Man Speaks at Harvard Banquet

Dr. W. O. Sypherd of Delaware College was one of the speakers at the annual banquet of the Harvard Club of Delaware, held at Hotel duPont on Saturday evening last.

Serious Fire Averted

A call for help was received at the Hose House last Thursday about noon, from the residence of J. P. Armstrong, west of Newark. Owing to a defect in the steam heating apparatus, the adjoining floor was badly scorched, but otherwise little damage was done. Aetna Fire Company responded promptly to the summons. There was no man on the premises at the time the fire was discovered.

Inspection At Armory

Lieutenant U. M. Diller, of the U. S. Infantry will visit the armory on Wednesday evening, March 22nd, to inspect Company E of Newark. The Lieutenant will report the efficiency in drill of various kinds and the personnel of the company.

Crusade Against Tramps

A crusade against undesirable transients and hoboes who visit Delaware and cause trouble, is being carried on by the courts, particularly the state courts. During last week Judge William H. Boyce specially warned the unwelcome visitors. Most of those brought before the court were charged with larceny, and because of this Judge Boyce has taken occasion to advise these fellows that justice inevitably succeeds crime; further, that Delaware justice is the kind that usually proves distasteful.

While the State always extends a welcome to those who come here with the honest purpose of earning their own living, instead of stealing it from others, there is no room, says Judge Boyce, for the evilly-disposed. That is, there is no room in popular haunts, but room can and will be found at the workhouse for those who take the initiative toward getting there.

Pie Social At Glasgow

A Pie Social will be held in Glasgow M. E. Church on Thursday evening, March 16th. Admission ten cents. Ice cream, cake, and candy for sale. Everybody welcome.

DELAWARE PLANS TO FULFIL REQUIREMENTS

Committee Named At State Board Meeting

At a meeting of the State Board of Education held at Dover on Monday, a committee consisting of H. Ridgely, Albert Worth, and H. Hayward was named to prepare plans for the requirements of Federal Vocational Bureau, which will enable Delaware to receive a share of the Federal appropriation for vocational and industrial education under the Smith-Hughes bill, if that bill should become a law.

Professor Harry Hayward, C. J. Scott and Dr. S. C. Mitchell were appointed to consider a way of adjusting difficulties in which the two-year high schools of the State are finding themselves under the board's requirement that all the time of one teacher must be given to ninth and tenth grades in two year high schools.

Sceptre Junior Still Winning

Sceptre Junior, a seven-months-old male collie pup, belonging to J. G. Longfellow, of Newark, and now rated in dogdom as one of the finest pups in this section of the country, won additional honors at the fifth annual exhibition of the Interstate Collie Club, in Philadelphia on Saturday.

The exhibition was held at the Continental Hotel under the American Kennel Association rules. Sceptre Junior won second in both the puppy and the novice classes against fourteen competitors. He lost first to an imported dog, five months his senior. A most gratifying feature to the owner, in the placing of the awards, was the fact that Junior not only beat two of the winners at the recent New York show, but also won over a much older puppy who had gained considerable fame in Newark, N. J., and Philadelphia shows. Junior did not compete at any of the above shows.

Labor Scarce Here

Owing to the scarcity of workmen in this locality the Pennsylvania railroad this week imported twenty foreign laborers from Petersburg, Virginia. The men were employed as trackmen.

Look After the Tin Cans

Who would have thought that the tin can is a menace to the public health? The expert malaria investigators of the U. S. Public Health Service have found however that discarded tin cans containing rain water are breeding places for the mosquito which is the sole agent in spreading malaria. A hole in the bottom of the empty can might have resulted in the saving of a human life. Certainly it would have assisted in preventing a debilitating illness. Empty tin cans have no business about the premises anyway, but if we must so decorate our back yards, let's see to it that the can has a hole in the bottom.

NOTED HOLLANDER AT WOMEN'S COLLEGE

Urges Americans To Help War Sufferers

Miss Hendrika van der Flier of The Hague, Holland, visited the Women's College today, where she was entertained at luncheon by Dean Robinson. Miss van der Flier is the daughter of the chaplain to the Queen. For years she has been interested in philanthropic work, having founded after a visit to America about eight years ago, a Boys' Home. At present she is touring America in the hope of raising funds for a Holland-American home, to fill the future need of the thousands of Belgian orphans in Holland, affording a place where these fatherless ones can be educated.

Miss van der Flier gave a graphic description of experiences at the beginning of the war when little Holland found her population suddenly increased by a million and a half. Far worse than bombs and shells seemed to her the endless shuffling feet of homeless multitudes. The speaker told of the many sacrifices made by people of Holland, quoting the words of the queen, "If we have but a crust of bread we will share it with them."

"Although we in Holland have been mercifully spared the honor of war," Miss van der Flier said, "we have experienced the moral fence-lined afflictive tenn k effect of it. We have the victims with us—the desperate, lonely, hungry women and children. In America you don't hear them, the beautiful white sea is between. But you know they are stricken and in need. I come to ask you to help them."

Miss van der Flier left for Chicago tonight. She will also visit Pittsburgh, and cities on the Pacific coast. Letters forwarded to her headquarters 43 Exchange Place, New York, will reach her during her stay in this country.

BRILLIANT LECTURER VISITS NEWARK

Opportunity To Hear Miss Brehm

Miss Marie C. Brehm of Pittsburgh, lecturer on Scientific Temperance Instruction, representing the Board of Temperance of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, will lecture this coming Thursday evening in the Newark Presbyterian Church. Miss Brehm will speak on the topic "Science and Temperance." During the year 1913 Miss Brehm was selected to address two world conventions in Europe. In July she spoke before the World's Sunday School Convention in Zurich, Switzerland, and in September she addressed the World's Anti-Alcohol Congress in Milan, Italy.

Miss Brehm deals with the temperance question entirely aside from the usual course of procedure, and the result is that new and fresh interest is added to the topic which is now undergoing such wide discussion. Her keen insight into the methods and agencies of the world-wide movement of scientific temperance, has given her a statesman's grasp of the situation, enabling her to acquire a fresh fund of information and up-to-date statistics which are invaluable to all temperance workers.

Funds Needed For School Garden Work

A bake will be held in the Opera House store building on Saturday March 25, for the purpose of raising funds to cover the expense connected with the work in School Gardening, reported in our last issue. The Board of Education finds itself unable to cover the expense of this work. Funds are needed to get the ground in condition, and buy a few tools that are necessary.

Women in Agriculture Wanted

Miss Hilma Bergholtz of Northfield Seminary, who was elected as instructor in Botany and Agriculture at the recent meeting of the Trustees of the college, has notified Dean Robinson of her decision to remain at Northfield.

Nice Sum Cleared

In spite of the stormy weather that prevailed, ladies of the Mission Circle of the Presbyterian Church cleared $19.50 from the entertainment held recently in the church.

Box Social at McClellandville

A Box Social will be held at McClellandville School House on Saturday evening, March 18, for the benefit of the Aid Society of Wesley M. E. Church. Cakes and ice cream will be for sale. Everybody welcome.

New Candy and Art Needle-work Store

D. B. Roberts formerly of Easton, Md., will open a Home-made Candy Shop, in the store property adjoining the H. B. Wright Hardware store, some time after April first. A full line of French candies and penny taffies will be manufactured daily. In connection with the candy store Mrs. Roberts will give lessons in crocheting and oil painting. The newcomers are planning to give first class up to date service, and promise to fill a need in the community.

Improvements at the Old Depot

Enclosed sheds made comfortable by steam radiators, have been erected for the convenience of the public travelling on the northbound trains, at the Pennsylvania depot. Workmen are also busy this week, grading and seeding the banks along the track, south of the railway crossing—a feature which promises to add to the general attractiveness of the station.

Distinguished Guest Among Colored Folk

Reverend Dr. Mathew Gale, a field missionary from Africa visited Newark on Sunday, preaching morning and evening in Mt. Zion A. U. M. E. Church. Dr. Gale chose as his theme at the morning service the conversion of Paul, reviewing the historical and spiritual experiences of the apostle's life. The speaker told his hearers he had brought his message over ten thousand miles from his home and across five seas. Dr. Gale speaks seven different languages, and writes in as many with ease.

At three in the afternoon the Rev. Rector of Elkton, accompanied by his choir, took part in the service. Special music was furnished by the visitors. Mr. Rector preached a strong sermon on the Church of God.

At seven forty-five Dr. Gale gave a second talk from the text found in Joshua, 6th chapter, and ninth verse: Having faith in God. The news of the distinguished visitor had spread, and the church was crowded to its full capacity. In closing Dr. Gale sang one of his favorite hymns. The local choir, led by Samuel Roberts, rendered pleasing music. The congregation is busy preparing for Conference which convenes this month.

Students Loan Fund a Reality

Placed in Trust at Local Bank

The Student Loan Fund of Delaware College is a fact. More than that it is void of the charity aspect. It is a well organized business proposition. No innovation of recent years at Delaware has been promoted with such business methods. The Fund has been placed in the care of the Newark Trust and Safe Deposit Company who will transact the business attending such loans. A committee composed of the Dean of the College, Dean of the Women's College, Dean of the Agricultural Department, Treasurer of the College, President of the Alumni Association will direct the financing of the Fund and making the loans.

The local Trust Company under the Declaration of Trust will render their service free of charge.

With such business administration known to the public, it can be confidently hoped that many of the friends of the college will contribute thus making an investment toward educated citizenship. It means more men will go out with college work complete. The contributors to date are:

John J. Raskob	$250
Henry A. duPont	100
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Bancroft	100
Lammot duPont	100

LOAN FUND REACHES ENCOURAGING SIZE

Club Women Urged To Forward Contributions

Interest in the progress of the Student's Loan Fund, being raised by the State Federation of Women's Clubs of Delaware, has received an impetus by the receipt of four large subscriptions and many smaller ones during the last few weeks. The women have planned to raise a separate loan fund, available for students of the Women's College. The State Educational Committee, Mrs. W. H. Evans, Newark, chairman, will act as manager of the fund. All club women are urged to contribute something to the fund. Checks should be forwarded to Mrs. L. Irving Handy, Treasurer of the Federation, Smyrna, Delaware.

College Girls to Hold Election

The Young Women's Christian Association of the Women's College is about to close the first year's work. The interest being shown in the election of officers which will take place in the near future bears witness to the success of the Association. A nominating committee will be appointed and meetings held this week.

W. C. T. U. Meeting

The local W. C. T. U. will meet this coming Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Apsley, Choate Street.

POINTS ABOUT OUR BIRDS

GLEANED FROM THE TALK OF DR. ROWAN

The ladies of the Newark New Century Club are to be congratulated upon affording the public, at this special season, the opportunity to hear about our birds. At the time when these little friends are just beginning to return from the South, is a splendid moment for a beginning of the study of feathered neighbors. All over the country, the campaign for bird preservation is being carried forward, with more vigor than ever before. And the impetus is due not to chance but to an awakened realization of the necessity of such work. The slaughter of birds grows more appalling each year, and with it the menace to our crops and trees. It is estimated that insects in the United States cause a loss to agriculture of more than half a billion dollars each year. Had the destruction of birds been forbidden and guarded against in our early days the nation would have been spared much of the work and expense of the present fight for forest preservation. Because we have failed to protect the wonderful little agents which He has supplied, all growing things have suffered.

We give our boys rifles and guns, yet we weep at the destruction of our foliage and are horrified at the expenses we are called upon to meet for its preservation. "Oh, no boys shoot birds," said a young man recently when it was suggested to him that a proposed outlay of several thousand dollars for shade trees in his city would be useless unless the boys in the community were taught to protect the birds. Then the young man stopped a minute, eyes looking into space: "Yes, I expect they do. When I was a kid my greatest joy was an air rifle, and I killed every bird I could see. And I was no worse than the average boy, and much better brought up than many." The youngsters need to be educated to the economic as well as the aesthetic importance of caring for the birds.

Dr. Rowan has made the study of birds his chief recreation for the last fourteen years. His talk was illustrated with colored slides, made from actual photographs of birds and their nests. The birds were divided into classes according to their feeding habits: insectivorous, seed, fish, and game.

The first bird thrown upon the screen, was the Robin, known and loved by everyone. "In spite of the talk to the contrary among our English cousins," the speaker declared, "this bird is quite the equal of his English namesake." Already he has been with us a week, and he stays as long as he can in the fall. Far from a mediocre songster, his range is wide from the sweet, plaintive note heard just before sundown to the call for his mate in the early dawn. The robin has a ravenous appetite. He has been known to devour sixty-eight worms a day, a quantity which, if laid out, end to end, would make a string fourteen feet long. His cousin, the Wood Robin keeps close to the woods, where it builds its nests among the underbrush or in a nearby pasture. Its nest usually lies close to the ground; its song is feeble and uncertain, not in keeping with the size of the bird.

The Bluebird, one of the first birds to arrive in the spring, often nests in a hole in an apple tree. The bird uses a soft, delicious note to win his bride, then goes forth from place to place in search of a home. The female, at first shy, becomes pert and hard to please, until just as her lover is about to give up in despair she suddenly accepts a nesting place. Sometimes the bird can be enticed into our very yards, by empty tin cans, turned on their side, in which she will build her nest.

"The Catbird," the speaker declared, "is sometimes called a mocking bird, for it does at times seem to imitate some of its neighbors." In mating season it is a fine singer, representing a natural rather than a trained songster. There is no foundation whatever for the statement that catbirds rob birds' nests. The Brown Thrasher in contrast to the catbird, is nature's operatic star, his notes reminding one of the trained singers—true and perfect. The eggs are a bluish brown with specks over the shell. The Wood Thrush is distinguished from the brown thrasher by more distinct brown and white marking; the eggs, too, are a more pronounced green. Ornithologists pronounce this bird's notes the purest to be heard in this locality—an opinion in which the speaker did not concur, however.

The Flicker feeds sometimes like a robin. We hear him at times making strange sounds as he tries to sing to find his mate. The bird is sociable only in the mating season. The Downy Woodpecker has a habit of beating a tattoo on apple trees, varying the monotony of the sound with quick, jerky notes. He is always busy, flitting from limb to limb. The nest is like that of the blue bird. The Red Headed Woodpecker was very common in this locality until only a few years ago. It is very clumsy on the wing, usually taking a limb, and making short excursions stand on a limb, and making short excursions for insects. The bird is also fond of berries.

The Meadow Lark is a permanent resident of this locality. It buffets through the hard winter weather, with the first sign of spring sending forth a note as joyful as ever. The song is somewhat spoiled by being short and unvaried. This bird is a master hand in the art of deception. Upon hearing approaching footsteps the hen will lie flat on the ground. If discovered she will hop off limping, in the hope of centering attention upon herself to make one forget her eggs. In winter these birds feed on insects and in summer on seeds.

The Purple Grackle, commonly called the Crow Blackbird, is one of our slandered birds. Farmers believe it is a menace to their corn fields, but the stomachs of hundreds of birds killed for examination, have been found filled not with corn but with worms and insects. He is a stately, handsome fellow, not half as destructive as the English Starling, few of which can be found around here. The Red Winged Black Bird is one of our beautiful birds. It, too, is under the ban of the farmer, and here again judgment has been too severe on the bird. The hen is a dusty black, with brown spots; the males wear the brilliant plumage. The coloring, in this instance, seems to be governed largely by the age of the bird, those only one year old having more yellow on their wings, and the older ones more red. The bird is very cunning, and a fine singer.

The Cowbird is an example of a degenerate. It gets its name from the practice of following the cows through the pasture, in pursuit of the swarm of flies and insects that often buzz around them. Not taking the trouble to build a nest, the hen finds that by depositing her eggs merely on the ground, they frequently come to destruction. She, therefore, resorts to the method of depositing her eggs at random in the nests of the neighborhood. She consorts frequently with the English sparrow, a habit for which she will probably come to grief when the time comes to get rid of them.

The Baltimore Oriole is noted for its brilliant plumage and wonderful nest building. The mother bird does the work, while the male runs the scale with his rich contralto and displays his bright plumage. The woven nest, a marvel of its kind, is suspended, often from a slender branch in a willow where it rocks in cradle fashion high out of the way of danger. In her selection the oriole shows wonderful wisdom, for her foes dare not venture on the slender branches. The Orchard Oriole, the first cousin of the former, is almost as good a nest builder and a much better songster. The nest is a finely woven basket; "the song in my estimation," Dr. Rowan declared, "is the finest of any of our birds. All day long it sings, sending forth especially at night falls, a beautiful song."

The Scarlet Tanager is the most highly colored of all our birds. The body is scarlet with stripes of black on the wings and tail. "In all the time I have observed birds," the speaker said, "I have seen this kind only two or three times. At one time I discovered a pair up by Tweed's Mill."

The Cedar Waxwing or Cedar Bird is a beautiful little creature with wings of grayish brown, tipped with brilliant orange. Those who are unacquainted with this interesting specimen, Dr. Rowan declared, have missed a real treat. Last year a pair nested in Mr. T. F. Armstrong's yard.

The King Bird, one of the flycatchers, is a wonderfully pugnacious fellow, not afraid of any living bird. Hawks and crows put on an extra speed to get away from him. The speaker related an incident which he observed one day when walking toward the Head of Christiana Cemetery. He noticed a great disturbance among some birds in a buttonwood along the road. In a moment a kingbird arrived and took command of the situation. Before one of the crows could make his escape the kingbird had stripped his wing bare. When this bird's nest is completed, he takes it upon himself to patrol the whole neighborhood, and none there are who dare resist his tyranny.

The Wood Pewee lives close to the woods, where he utters his plaintive wail. The amateur frequently mistakes for this bird the Phoebe—a bird which is as sociable as the former is shy.

Night Hawks prove their usefulness by flying with mouth open in quest of flies and mosquitos. The Barn Swallow delights in attaching his nest to the rafters of barns. The parent birds rear two or three broods in a season.

With the Purple Martin the speaker declared he had an intimate acquaintance, for a family of these has for several years made their home on the lawn of the Manse. The first or second week in April they arrive, first the male, then in perhaps a week or so, the mother bird. The song of the male is like gurgling laughter, but the female makes merely a loud noise. In July their young are ready for their trip to the southland, where they are of great service in protecting the cotton crop.

The Chimney Sweep gets around so quickly he gives one the impression that he is without tail. He seeks a home in deserted chimneys, sometimes miscalculating to his own destruction. A family making their home in a chimney in Recitation Hall met this sad fate, several years ago.

One of the very latest birds to arrive is the Yellow-billed Cuckoo sometimes called the rain crow. The favorite food of this bird is the caterpillar which attacks our fruit trees. One bird has been known to devour a whole nest. We ought to pass over their lack of sweet song for the wonderful service they render us.

The Red-eyed Vireo, an exclusively American bird, nests sometimes on the college campus, usually building the nest about three or four feet from the ground. The speaker told of finding several in Donnell's wood. When excited this bird scolds like a wren.

The White-breasted Nuthatch, one of our permanent birds which nests in April, is noted for its acrobatic feats, being able to run with equal ease either up or down a tree. The bird lives here all the year and is perfectly willing to become acquainted.

The Chickadee, less common in summer than in winter, destroys beetles and insects. He is an extremely friendly little fellow, making an effort to keep but one secret, the location of his nest. The speaker found a nest of these in the hollow of a tree, facing the creek, above the old bath houses at Lovers' Retreat. The nest contained four pink dotted eggs.

Among the seed eating birds the speaker mentioned first the Doves—the weed eating birds, sounding in the woods like venterloquists; the Cardinal Grosbeaks, famous as the Kentucky Cardinal. A pair of these birds, the speaker declared, nest each season in Jax's Woods; the Blue Jay, fond of acorns, with the trait of burying seeds, many of which are never found, but serve as a source of propagation.

The Song Sparrow Dr. Rowan places next to the orchard oriole in the quality of his song. From the thorn hedges, the fruit trees, or a tangle of blackberry bushes the song comes, sounding on a drear February morning like the divinest song. The Field Sparrow, as its name implies, remains in the fields. Its song is entirely different from the former, the singer in this instance beginning at a high pitch, and descending the scale in almost perfect notes.

The American Goldfinch flies and dips in great undulating waves. It has a sweet canary-like chirp. These birds prove themselves of almost inestimable value in keeping down thistles. They line their nest with the down and feed upon the seed.

Among fish eating birds the speaker mentioned the Kingfisher which may be observed along the banks of White Clay Creek; the Green Heron, a marvel of patience, whom the speaker has known to sit for two hours, motionless, waiting for his fish. When frightened he utters a sharp squawk, a name which has been fastened upon him by people further south.

Train Jumper's Leg Mangled

John Minns, colored of Harrington, employed in one of the New Castle steel plants was found about 8 o'clock on Saturday morning by boys looking after their traps lying in a marshy field close by Joseph Lugley's home near State Road, with one leg nearly severed. He tried to board a southbound home freight about Friday midnight to reach home but lost his hold and fell with one leg resting on the rail. One or more wheels passed over his leg before he drew it off the rail. He tried to reach a house but after dragging himself about 100 yards he became exhausted. The boys who found him notified

Mr. Quigley who took him to his home where Dr. Lewes Booker of New Castle treated him and had him conveyed to Delaware Hospital where the leg was amputated about the ankle. It is thought that he will recover.

Have You Clipped Your Work Horses?

Clipping horses is not a fad; it's a business proposition. Further than that, it is the Humane thing to do.

Not according to nature you say? No, Nor is the stabling and blanketing. The horse, as he is kept and works for us, is not living according to his natural state. With the heavy coat of hair the horse suffers with the heavy spring work. Clipping avoids this. It gives him more life, more pep. He will do more work.

Until recently, clipping was expensive. Now every farmer can own a clipper at a very reasonable price.

Put your horse in business trim right away. Ask the experienced horseman, the army man, the humane society. They will all tell you to clip.

We have the Clipper

Short Peach Crop Feared

Reports from prominent peach growers in southern Delaware state without reservation, that they believe the "great, big portion of the buds are killed. As a rule it is hard to get a prominent grower to express an opinion at this season, but a number of Delaware growers have recently talked unreservedly of the prospect.

Jacob H. Rosa, son of the late John J. Rosa, and who has succeeded his father as manager of the large Rosa fruit farms at the northern edge of Milford, in a conversation Saturday evening, stated that the buds had frozen solid even before they had commenced to "swell." When questioned further, he stated that he meant by that that they had absolutely been killed, and that the crop, in his judgment, would be a failure this year. He quoted other prominent growers as having expressed the same opinion to him.

Dependable Merchandise
Fairly Priced

The mercantile world is passing through most unusual conditions just now. Higher prices from reasons quite obvious prevail at all sources of production; deliveries in most instances are slow. We want to assure our patrons of one strong prevailing fact throughout our store, namely, that on most of our staple lines early purchases, even months ago, permit us to offer goods without advanced prices. "DEPENDABLE MERCHANDISE FAIRLY PRICED" has always been our standard; in no instance during these trying times will we surrender quality to price or advance the price of a single article unless it costs us more when we are obliged to replenish. Safety lies in choosing merchandise that is carefully selected both as to style and quality.

We are confident no house anywhere can show you such lines of Suits, Coats, Dresses, Waists, Skirts, Silks, Dress Goods, Laces, Trimmings, Georgette Crepes, Chiffon Cloths, Ribbons, Neckwear, Gloves, Hosiery, Leather Goods, Muslin and Silk Underwear, Linen and Cotton Fabrics as can be seen here.

Serve your own best interests by an examination and comparison of our merchandise.

We solicit charge accounts from those of established credit, and deliver purchases free within a reasonable distance.

TAXATION AND EDUCATION

Proposed Methods Discussed—Subject Interests Farmers

Education and system of taxation were subjects discussed at a big meeting held at Milford on Friday night. The conference, which was called by the state Board of Education, is reported as the first of a series of meetings to be held throughout the State. The idea is to get the taxpayers acquainted with the details of the present system and get them to think of ways and means of improvement. Expense of collection, unequal results in different districts, law owner versus tenant tax all have a very material bearing on the subject.

The meeting Friday evening was attended by the Governor, Professor Hayward of Newark, Dr. Wagner, State Commissioner of Education, Board of Education of Milford and prominent citizens of Milford and surrounding rural districts. In order that our farmer friends may become acquainted with his coming subject we print full account as given in The Evening Journal of Wilmington:

The subject of pupils from rural districts entering the high schools received some consideration, but following an address by Col. Theodore Townsend, a member of the Kent County School Commission, who stated that he believed that it is impossible to get better results from public school work as the system is now organized, and that in his opinion further patching of the school laws would not make the necessary remedy, the whole trend of the talk was changed. He said that the present system of assessing and collecting the school moneys was too expensive, and that a new method should be tried. Professor Carroll superintendent of Kent County Schools, also said the present system worked against the best interests of the schools.

Following a lengthy discussion of the proposed changes in the school laws, the vote on the question "Shall the legislature be asked to change the method of raising school taxes from rental, to assessed valuation, the same as other taxes are raised." Every person present voted in the affirmative.

The outline of the proposed laws to be presented to the coming legislature, subject to changes as the various meetings throughout the State may see fit to suggest, was handed to the men present, and they favored them.

Under the proposed plan an efficiency commissioner of education with assistants, is provided for.

Some of the suggestions are: Current publicity work, supply the public press with news and information about the schools, representing the schools in public meetings, institutions, etc.

Directing club work among schools to serve the same office for rural children, as are served by vocational training and manual training for city children.

Fix a maximum of the State appropriation per child, say fifty cents per year that district may spend out of State funds for text-books; this maximum, if not spent for text-books in any year, shall be used to purchase books for school library under the direction of the county superintendent and commissioner of education.

Of the residue of the State dividend, after the allowance for text-books has been subtracted, allow any school district only such percentage to its portion, as its entire attendance by the children was of the entire school term (or a graded scale of percentage of funds on a basis of percentage of attendance). This is just and equitable since it is insisting that State funds shall be used economically and frugally.

Balance of State funds thus remaining unapplied to constitute a fund out of which bonuses be paid to standard and superior schools by the State Board of Education.

Equity: All high school children, within the State, have a right to expect similar treatment from the State.

Present policy helps a few, and hurts as many, or more, by reason of discontinuance of higher grades in rural schools near the towns.

This policy will encourage and help rural school improvement, right at the home of the child.

Some State has no right to "help" in a way that hurts others. State help is given for one or the other of these reasons.

Child is entitled to high school education, home district gives it no chance, hence State will give him the chance.

Every child possible should receive a high school education, hence state subsidizes or support such schools.

Makes a few "favored" class, gives them a special privilege.

Empower some board with authority to regulate sizes of schools, many of which are too large.

Have literary and debating society.

Have boy's and girl's clubs, as part of school work suited to neighborhood.

Have Parent-Teacher, or similar organization.

Have accurate card record of children's work.

Have visits by commissioners and by parents.

Have at least two community days during the term.

Have salute the flag once each week.

Have fire-drills in large two-story buildings.

New Owner for Big Plant

Control of a majority of the shares of stock of the Pusey & Jones Company of Wilmington, has been secured by Christopher Hannevig of Christiana, Norway of the firm of Hannevig & Johnson, ship brokers of New York which has contracted for the building of several large number of vessels in this country. It is his purpose to enlarge the facilities of the plant which has a world wide fame for producing paper-making machinery and building steel vessels. The plant will be conducted by the present officers and will likely employ many additional skilled hands.

Alleged Yeggman Arrested

Sheriff Barnes and Deputy Sheriff McAllister on Saturday night arrested Louis McAmato, aged 20 years, employed as a barber at Rising Sun, Cecil county and lodged him in Elkton jail on the charge of planning to rob the post office in Havre de Grace, where his father works at repairing shoes. The arrest was made at the instance of Postal Inspector Plummer, who stated that Bernard Tobin, a young man, of Philadelphia, had received a letter from Amato suggesting that he get some nitro glycerine and join him at Rising Sun and they would attempt to rob the Havre de Grace post office on Saturday night. Amato closely questioned is said to have admitted writing the letter to Tobin, who had boasted of his news, to test his "sand." A pawn ticket for a gold ring pledged in New York was found upon Amato. Tobin and Amato it is surmised may be connected with the gang of "yeggs" that has been robbing post offices in the Peninsula for some time past.

State Care for Cannery Hands

A conference was held at Wilmington on Saturday by State Cannery Inspector Dr. W. R. Messick, of Rehoboth, State Child Labor Inspector Charles H. Grantland, Miss Mary Malone, Inspector under the Ten Hour Law for Women's Work, and Charles Warner, Chairman of the State Child Labor Commission with the view to devising ways and means to provide better housing and living conditions for people coming from outside the State to work in canneries and packing houses in Delaware. Co-operation of cannery owners will be sought to secure improved conditions.

URGES INTEREST IN MILITARY CAMP

Summer Training for Men

All the Delawareans who attended the regular army military camps at Plattsburg, N. Y., last summer, have formed the Delaware Committee of Military Training Camps Association, for the purpose of recruiting in the State for the 1916 camps. The committee is as follows:

J. Danforth Bush, Charles F. Curley, Hugh A. Garland, Hon. Thomas W. Miller, John P. Nields, and Fred W. Yetter, all of Wilmington, and Colonel William D. Denney of Dover. There were 1,800 business men in this camp.

Circulars giving information about these camps may be obtained in Wilmington at the State Armory, the Y. M. C. A. and from any member of the committee.

While it is as yet uncertain exactly what form legislation will take in Congress, it is certain that instruction camps will be held on a large scale in 1916 and form a part of the permanent military policy. The following camps are announced for 1916 by Eastern Department, United States Army:

Where Camps Will Be
At Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. (Chattanooga)—Senior Division: First camp, April 3 to 30; second camp, May 3 to 30; third camp, June 3 to 30. Junior Division: Fourth camp, July 5 to August 8.

Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, is a military post now garrisoned by the Eleventh United States Cavalry, and is situated near Chattanooga, Tenn.

At Plattsburg, N. Y.—Senior Division: First camp, June 5 to July 3; third camp, July 12 to August 8; fourth camp, August 10 to September 6; fifth camp, September 8 to October 5.

Junior Division: Second camp, July 5 to August 8.

The camp will be held on the shore of Lake Champlain, adjoining Plattsburg barracks, now garrisoned by the Thirtieth U. S. infantry.

The Requirements

All applicants must be citizens of the United States, or have taken out their first papers, of sound physical condition, eyesight normal or corrected by glasses.

Applicants for the Senior Division must be:

(a) Graduate of colleges or universities, under 45 years of age.

(b) Other citizens, between 21 and 45 (both inclusive), who have the equivalent of a college education, i. e., a good elementary education which has been supplemented by business or professional training.

Applicants for the Junior Division must be at least 18 years of age, and qualify in one of the following classes:

(a) Undergraduates of colleges and universities.

(b) Graduates in 1916 of colleges and universities.

(c) Students in public or private schools, who have reached a grade equivalent to senior class, High School.

(d) Graduates, under 21, of such schools with above grade.

Objects of Camps

The objects of these camps are: To help equip properly qualified men to fill the great deficiency in commissioned officers that would immediately arise in case of national emergency, by giving them four or five weeks of intensive military instruction in the field under officers, and with troops of the regular army.

To foster a patriotic spirit and spread among the citizens of the country some knowledge of military history, military policy and military needs.

To instill in four or five weeks of healthy outdoor life in the habits of obedience, discipline, command and self-control that are the prerequisites of efficiency in every business or profession, and to send men back from the camps better prepared to take care of themselves and of others.

The expense will be $30 for Senior Division and $22.50 for Junior Division, exclusive of uniform, which costs about $10, and railway fare.

The obligation to defend the country in case of need already rests on all male citizens of military age. Attendance at a military training camp neither increases nor diminishes this existing obligation.

Instructors are officers of the regular army. A certain definite routine will be prescribed for all, including infantry training and rifle practice. Special opportunities will be offered for training in various branches of the service, viz: cavalry, artillery, engineers, signal corps, first aid, camp sanitation, etc.

Attendants at the camps will be divided into war strength companies of infantry, commanded by officers of the regular army, whose duties cover not only those of instruction, but also supervision and the health and general welfare of their commands. Attendants are on a cadet basis.

Those who are members of the State militia, or who have had other recent military training, may apply, and on approval may attend for less than the prescribed period of four weeks. As the military training is progressive, the latter part of the camp is recommended for such men. Men of sufficient experience will be used for the various organizations.

All citizens interested in these military training camps are requested to send their names to Hugh A. Garland, secretary, 300 Ford Building, from whom bulletins of information and enrollment blanks may be obtained.

Full information may be obtained by addressing officer in charge, military training camps, Governor's Island, N. Y.

Deal For Big Plant Site
 A Wilmington special says that Augustus D. Ledoux of New York, has completed arrangements for the purchase from the Laddell Car Wheel Company of a tract of 35 acres of land along the Christiana River in Wilmington for $85,000. He is said to admit that he is acting for a party who expects to dispose of the property to the Pyrites Company, Limited, an English concern as a site for a large plant. The Pyrites Company deals largely in Spanish pyrites from which acid is obtained for use by fertilizer and Chemical Manufacturers.

Driven From Homes by Flames
 Fire last Monday night destroyed a tenant house on the John S. Cooper farm, near Seaford, occupied by C. J. Parsons. He and his wife and child were sound asleep when he was roused by the smell of smoke. He found the house in flames. Waking his wife and child he lowered them to the ground through a window and dropped from it himself. They had no time to save any of their belongings. Early on the previous morning Bridgeville firemen were called to fight a blaze of unknown origin in the grocery store and dwelling of Curtis Steen at Market and Macon sts, which they checked after about an hours work. collie dog early on Thursday morning, Dr. William Baldwin and wife found their rooms in the third floor of 712 Market Street Wilmington filled with smoke so scuffling on the stairway that he feared to attempt to descend. James Gillen, employed at the City Club, on his way home saw the blaze and turned in an alarm. The fire started in the basement from an overheated furnace and the flames spread upward into the first floor, the store of Howard D. Ross dealer in Women's apparel. The firemen found the Baldwins hemmed in on the third floor. John M. Gowen of the Reliance Company ran up a ladder reaching to the third story, to help them and carried Dr. Baldwin down safely. Mrs. Baldwin would not move till assured that the dog would be saved also. She was carried down the ladder and he returned for the dog which clung to him as he went down again. The basement and first floor were gutted and the Ross stock was destroyed. The loss is put at $10,000 on the building and probably $20,000 on the stock. The Robelen piano store and the A. J. Barrot building both adjoining the Ross store were damaged by fire and water.

Bell story No. 5

The customers of one baker were merely his friends in the neighborhood. He couldn't figure out how a prosperous near-by store-keeper drew trade from all over town—that is, until he saw his Bell Telephone and watched him use it.

But our baker friend is now getting his share of the telephone trade. He's learned that in these busy days "going to store" has given place to Bell Telephoning, and the "live" merchant keeps apace.

It pays to serve well by telephone—pays the storekeeper and the customer, both!

Essay on Calf Bindings or Signs of Spring

In the bewildering upward climb of fashion, skirt bottoms still outdistance shoe tops by several inches of stocking. But vanished are the ankles we used to see in the good old days of pumps; strange and bolder things have acquired a place in the sun.

Equally heightened are the colors of the stockings. Instead of the conventional black, which is now considered too conventional, there is every shade from chaste white to the loudest hue and cry.

Although this stocking tapestry which separates the boots from the skirt is only a mere go-between, it is by no means content to bloom unnoticed. It arrests the eye with dazzling designs, erotic embroidery and pulsing plaids.

What a rare profusion of flowers is here offered to the view!—silken fleur-de-lis, spangled rosette clusters, luxuriant shin-vines, hardy drop-stitch runners.

Veritable garden hose! Nothing so brings home to one the fact that it will soon be spring as these limbs in blossom.
