Prominent Newark Merchant Dies

Gottlieb Fader Succumbs to Long Illness—Was Charter Member of Fire Co.

FUNERAL HELD TUESDAY

Newark lost one of its oldest and most respected merchants and an upstanding, public spirited citizen in the death last Friday of Gottlieb Fader at his home on East Main street. Mr. Fader had been in failing health for the last four or five years, but the illness became serious only a few weeks ago.

Before he was forced out of public affairs connected with the town of Newark and was instrumental in building up the then infant organization to its present high standard. His efforts were always expended in an honest endeavor to help the town of Newark and to boom its interests. It is with great regret that we announce the passing of one of the pioneer pioneers of this little town. He served several terms on the Town Council during his active days.

He is survived by the following sons and daughters:

W. L. Fader, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Miss Helen Fader, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. J. M. Connor and Mrs. Alfred Scott, of Baltimore, Md.; and Miss Lillian Fader, Miss Winifred Fader, Mr. A. F. Fader, Mrs. George Murray, Mr. Raymond Fader, Miss Violet Fader, and Miss Eleanor Fader, all of Newark.

Mr. Fader was born on a farm near Chesapeake City, Md., on November 18, 1851. He was the son of Andrew and Marie Fader. In 1877, while a young man, he moved to Newark and opened a small bakery on the site of the present establishment. After a year in Newark he was married, February 13, 1878. He had been in the bakery business for forty-five years, most of which time he spent in Newark.

Funeral services were conducted at his late residence on Main street yesterday afternoon and were largely attended by his many friends and relatives, come to pay their respects to the memory of a splendid citizen, a kind and loving father and a real friend.

Interment was private.

ELKTON AGOG OVER PROSPECT OF NEW INDUSTRY

Colliers, Inc., May Move Part of Their Business to Neighboring Town. Meeting of Citizens Last Week

DEFINITE ACTION IN A FEW DAYS

The neighboring town of Elkton has clearly and emphatically stolen a march on the rest of the towns in this locality from the information gathered during the past few days concerning the prospects of a new industry locating in that town. The first few rumors began to leak out early last week but no open action was taken by any of the parties concerned until last Thursday evening.

The proposed erection of a book publishing plant to eventually provide employment for 600 to 800 people is no matter to be taken lightly. And when an old-established firm like Colliers, Inc., is interested in the site, it becomes an item of real importance.

Mr. Thomas W. Miller, of Elkton, is the chairman of the committee for the town of Elkton which is to confer on a day or two with the representatives of the concern. Mr. Miller expressed his confidence yesterday that Elkton is desirous of having the new plant locate there and thinks definite action is to be expected soon.

Here, in brief, are the facts and the inferences drawn therefrom:

ARTIST SERIES OPENS 3RD SEASON SATURDAY

Barrere Ensemble Procured for First Concert. Season Tickets Now on Sale

WELL BALANCED PROGRAM

The third annual Artist Series of high class entertainment will open its season in Wolf Hall on next Saturday evening, at eight o'clock, at which time the Barrere Ensemble of wind instruments will be the attraction. The Artist Series' Committee of the University has spent many weeks in planning the feature entertainments for the season and feel confident that they have procured one of the finest musical organizations in existence to open the program. These series have become more popular each succeeding year and the people of Newark as well as the University students and faculty have expressed themselves as well pleased with the past attempts of the Committee to bring to Newark the best of the high-class Lyceum entertainers. Prof. Rees, of the University Faculty, who is in charge of the entertainments this year, is confident that the series will be a big success and he urges the townspeople to take advantage of the opportunity afforded them to hear real artists at very reasonable prices. All concerts will be held in Wolf Hall, starting at eight o'clock. Single admission tickets, $1.00; season tickets, $2.50.

A word about the Barrere Ensemble. This organization is a musical novelty. The instruments—flute, oboe, clarinet, bassoon and horns—make a very unique combination, but they blend beautifully and the result is an unusually excellent brand of music. Mr. George Barrere is generally conceded to be the greatest flute virtuoso in the world and he has gathered about him a company of assisting artists who are individually great artists on their respective instruments.

This attraction is the most expensive one ever brought here and should prove a real event in the musical circles of the town.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS OPEN NEXT WEEK

Although there have been no evidences of a continuance of the diphtheria epidemic in Newark, the Board of Education has deemed it wise to keep the Primary School closed for the present week, feeling that the last vestige of the threatened outbreak should be stamped out before the little tots go back to their classes. The afflicted children are rapidly coming around and it is hoped that a few days will see the removal of most of the unwelcome blue signs.

OLD DELAWARE IN AIR LIBRARY STORY BY RADIO FROM PITTSBURGH

JOSHIAH MARVEL SPEAKS

By radio from Pittsburgh, hundreds of miles west of this town, came the announcement shortly after 8 o'clock Monday night of the campaign which the alumni of the University of Delaware will wage beginning Friday evening to raise $300,000 with which to build a library on the campus to the memory of the 262 Delaware soldiers who gave their lives during the war.

The broadcasting of the campaign announcement came about through arrangements made by Walter Dent Smith, an alumnus of the University, formerly of Wilmington, but now located in Pittsburgh, a member of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the University Alumni Association.

Josiah Marvel, chairman of the executive committee, was sent out to Pittsburgh to tell the story. He talked into the radio at the Westinghouse station and, according to radio fans in this vicinity, Mr. Marvel's voice carried unusually well.

"In Memory of Those Who Died in the War," was the title of the address, and Mr. Marvel spoke as follows:

"As a surveyor sights backward in order to carry a line forward, so mankind must often look fearfully into the past in order to plan wisely for the future.

Reviews Great War

"Then let us go back a way and sight forward from there. We do not need to go far. It may seem a long distance indeed as measured by circumstances, but in time it is only four or five years.

PRESENTS ELK TEETH

Dr. Walter Hüllihen, president of the University of Delaware, has presented to the Wilmington Lodge Benevolent Order of Elks, a couple of Elk teeth, which are always valued highly by members of this order. The presentation was made on Monday night when Dr. Hüllihen addressed the members of the lodge in Wilmington in the interests of the campaign to raise $300,000 for a Memorial Library at the University.

Every buck Elk has two large ivory tusks and Dr. Hüllihen was the owner of two pair of these tusks taken from two large bucks that he killed on a hunting trip in the north-west some years ago. It was one pair of these that he presented to the Wilmington Lodge of Elks. Each of these teeth are valued at about $40. Dr. Hüllihen informed the lodgemen that they could dispose of the teeth as they saw fit and allow the proceeds to be his contribution to the Elk fund to the Library Campaign.

NEW FIRE HOUSE NEARING COMPLETION

The work on the new $40,000 home of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Co., on Academy Street, is being rushed along to completion. Most of the stone work is finished and the building is now being finished inside. It will be the finest fire house in this section of the country.

Along with this building, the work of widening Academy Street and erection of the two-foot stone wall around the Academy grounds is going along nicely. The agreement reached by Academy and Fire Co. officials, relative to the proper width of the street, has now paved the way for the rapid completion of this work. An eight-foot sidewalk of concrete will also be laid along the Academy side of the street.

WEEKLY WEATHER OUTLOOK

Unsettled and rain first part of week and generally fair thereafter. Normal temperature.

DR. CROOKS TALKS TO CENTURY CLUB

Musical Treat Also Given to Members

New Century Club, held Tuesday afternoon, was well attended.

Mrs. Ernest Wright reported that preparations for the club luncheon, to be held on November 1st, were progressing nicely.

Club members will not be solicited for articles of food for the luncheon, but donations will be accepted. Any one wishing to contribute should communicate with Mrs. R. W. Heim.

The first program of the club year was especially entertaining and instructive. Professor Levine, of the University of Delaware, delighted his audience with three violin solos. Mrs. J. Pearce Cann followed with two beautiful vocal selections. Miss Dora Wilcox, of the Women's College, accompanied both soloists.

Dr. Crooks, of the University of Delaware, brought the message of the afternoon. He began by facetiously accounting for his chair—"settee," he called it, because it comprises three subjects: psychology, sociology and philosophy—in the University. He had time to merely touch on the value of these subjects. The main part of his discourse was on the different prevailing schools of philosophy. Here again time permitted him to lend his audience barely into the vestibule of the different schools. But by numerous, oft times humorous, illustrations he made very clear the meaning of pragmatism, idealism, new realism and naturalism.

On account of the club luncheon, to be held on November 1st, the next regular club meeting will be omitted.

NEWARK WINS HONORS IN DRIVE

Announcements made last night at the Homeopathic Hospital Campaign dinner in Wilmington revealed the fact that the honors for the largest contributions to the Fund from towns outside Wilmington went to Newark and, amid enthusiastic cheering, the Newark team was presented with a handsome banner in recognition of its splendid work. This banner is now on display in the window of the Home Drug Co., on lower Main Street.

The Hospital Campaign drove through to its goal last night and then plunged over the required quota. The total for the week stands now at $251,191.00. When this total was announced, pandemonium broke loose and the cheering of the workers kept up for several minutes.

GARDEN CLUB PROVES BIG SUCCESS IN ITS FIRST SEASON

Two Hundred and Three Children of the Town Respond Heartily to Admirable Civic Movement—Many Prizes

LIST OF PRIZE WINNERS ANNOUNCED

The "Better Gardens" campaign made the past season by the Civic Committee of the Newark New Century Club and carried to the boys and girls of the town through the newly formed Garden Club surpassed all expectations of those concerned and has proven to be a great success.

This Committee decided that some effort toward the improvement and utilization of the many yards and back lots of the town which have in the past remained unused and in many cases were unsightly should be made in the hopes that the residents would become interested in the civic improvement of the town. This idea became a reality last spring when the tentative plans for a Garden Club among the school children were drawn up. Under the direction of Mrs. Geo. L. Townsend, chairman of the committee, the children and parents were approached in the matter and in a number of cases gave their whole hearted approval.

The gardens were to be divided into two classes, flowers and vegetables, and each child was held responsible for his or her own particular plot. The seed was obtained in a large part from the Department of Agriculture in Washington, through Senator Ball. When the call came for applicants into the Club, the committee found themselves confronted with the problem of supplying seeds to 203 children of the town. It was expected that perhaps 50 or more young people would respond, but instead, they were almost swamped by the eager amateur gardeners. Through Senator Ball and several merchants of the town, sufficient seed was finally procured to start the kids off on their adventures with the shovel and trowel. All through the summer the children worked diligently in their "farms" and some very fine displays of flowers and vegetables greeted the members of the committee on their frequent trips of inspection.

The Garden Club is now an established civic organization and is already laying plans for an even better showing next year. The efforts of the following members of the Civic (Continued on Page 4.)

Another Newark Drive Goes Over Top

Homeopathic Hospital Campaign Brings Splendid Results to Workers

$4,418.30 TOTAL RAISED

Newark and the immediate community surrounding again arose to the occasion last week and helped put over the campaign for $250,000 needed by the Homeopathic Hospital of Wilmington to carry on its work among the sick and injured. In doing so, Newark again surpassed the expectations of the workers and the sum of $4,418.30 stands as the result of the week's campaign.

Coming as it did on top of the Library Drive, it is established that the town of Newark and the community at large gave to the two causes a round total of $27,000 in less than two weeks. When the size of the town is taken into consideration this is indeed a most remarkable achievement and is deserving of the highest commendation.

The campaign was conducted by going over a prepared list of names and seeing each one individually. There were many however whose names were not included in the lists and who came to members of the Newark Committee and voluntarily gave their contribution to the worthy movement. Such spirit as this made the drive a complete success and the Committee wishes to publicly thank all who gave towards the fund.

Following is the list of members of the Newark Team and the amounts they turned in:

Mrs. W. A. Layfield	$1,214.30
Mrs. James A. McKelvey	38.00
Mrs. John Pilling	1,364.00
Norris N. Wright	587.00
Alonso Messick	86.00
Mrs. F. M. K. Foster	136.00
Mrs. W. Frank Wilson	130.00
Mrs. Walt H. Steel	538.00
C. W. Strahorn	65.00
George W. Rhodes	83.00
Mrs. W. J. McAvoy	130.00
James C. Hastings	42.00

ENTERTAINS CHURCH WORKERS

Mrs. John Holloway very hospitably entertained the W. H. M. S. of the M. E. Church Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Gibson conducted the devotions. The program was in Mrs. Garretts most skillful hands, she, with several assistants, most entertainingly and instructively went over the first chapter of the study book, "The Trend of the Races."

HANDS ACROSS THE LOWER BAY

South Jersey Peninsula Radios Friendly Greetings to Blue Hen Brethren. Invites Closer Communion

Vineland, N. J., October 9.—Across the lower New Jersey peninsula, separated only from the Blue Hen State by the turbid waters of the noble Delaware, occasionally is wafted a dim echo of your activities, politico-educational-industrial-social. There is a tradition here existing that Delaware devotes its whole time to politics, chiefly to electing U. S. Senators, this is about all that leaks down here from press dispatches.

When is installed the sea ferry to connect your splendid duPont highway at Lewes with our network of fine roads whose terminal is Cape May, then all these misconceptions and distortions will melt away in the sunlight of a closer communion. You can tell us how to butcher hogs and make apple sass while we can tell you how to raise rapid-fire hens, peaches and pretty girls. We have one common meeting ground now—the broad bosom of the lower bay where we frequently borrow chewing tobacco and snake ointment from one another on the fishing grounds. We fish mostly off Greenwich Pier and Fortescue, while you frequent Bowers Beach and Rehoboth, further down. Same fish, same bait, same snake ointment.

So far as relative historical value and picturesque incident is concerned, the lower Delaware and New Jersey peninsulas are about 50-50. You hallow the memory of Caesar Rodney; we have our Captain Kidd—both estimable gentlemen in their way. Also we have a warm mutual interest in pepper sass, muskrats, and, until recently, a Lucullus decoction known as apple jack, the latter, for the time submerged. With this recount of mutual tastes and good will, here is given a brief sketch of our home community, its aims and achievements:

Vineland: a city within a city. Original plot, one mile square, checkerboard with broad, tree-lined avenues, Landis avenue 100 feet wide. All streets boulevarded, many with four rows of trees, none with less than two rows. Houses all detached, no alleys permitted. Inside population, 7,000. Clustered about the parent city is a bungalow community of 8,000, making 15,000 in all. The entire community is cut up into bungalow, chicken, and fruit ranches from one up to five acres. All roads radiating out of Vineland are sown thickly with these neat and attractive ranches. Some prosper amazingly, some fairly and some not at all. The hen, true to her sex, is of erratic behavior; like Susie in the soldier song.

Hens:—a million and a half of them; actual. Practically all white leghorns and with all the hysterical feeble-mindedness of the breed. Highly commercialized; practically egg laying machines at constant high pressure; worn out in a year and a half. Forced to go to work at 4 a. m. by the artificial light system, hooked up to alarm clocks. Sprayed, dusted, automatically fed and inoculated against chicken pox and other ills. It's a great game—if you know it; if not, pick up your turkey and don't stop running until you get out of South Jersey. All eggs infertile and marketed in New York, mostly by the poultrymen's own co-operative sales organization. All eggs strictly fancy, spot fresh, graded for size and candled against blood spots and sell at a stiff premium above top quotations.

Peaches:—An enormous crop this year but by reason of a congested market, returned little profit. Apples the same. A huge sweet potato crop being now harvested that will be stored against better prices.

Girls:—an animated rainbow of beauties. Miss Vineland, (Miss Mary E. Edwards) took second prize, amateur class, in the national beauty contest recently held at Atlantic City. We are all much distressed, for within the past few days she met with a dreadful accident through her auto being struck by an electric train and the deep facial cuts are feared will permanently mar. The others, "run of the orchard" girls are charming maidens; can swim, dance, drive autos, do tanning and look pretty when the occasion demands. Some ride, the leader of the girls saddle colony being Miss Dorothy Dallett, daughter of James H. Dallett, a former Newark horseman and trainer. There are 525 pupils in our high school, an enrollment of 4,000 in the community and a teacher roster of 101.

We have managed to borrow, beg and steal about $2,000,000 this year. All is being spent on improvements. A "City Beautiful" paving and illuminating plan cost a quarter million. New hospital costing $300,000. The balance mostly in road construction covering a wide area.

The average well meaning citizen is convinced that his cat has the longest tail and he has to work this off his mind before you can get intelligent palaver. To return therefore to a closer communion being established between we neighbors with only a river between, is a most praiseworthy ideal. We are open to a proposition that you take a batch of our promising youth, educate them in your hallowed institutions, and take your pay in salt hay, sweet taters, second-hand hens and glass bottles, for we make a lot of glass down here—and the output of nursing bottles this year is exceptionally fine. Trusting that this may blaze the way for a more intimate relationship, I remain,

Cordially yours,
"VINELAND,"

Heart of Sunny Southern Jersey.

Down on The Farm

HINTS TO AMATEUR GARDENERS

Hyacinths multiply freely in the open ground. They should be dug when the leaves die down and the offsets removed and planted separately. The spikes should be pinched out as soon as they appear for two seasons if it is desired that the bulbs produce big spikes. Bulbs in the open do not give as fine spikes the second year as the first as a rule, but they can be brought back by removing the flower spike before it expands and letting the bulb give all its strength to developing.

Hyacinths may be planted in window boxes left out all winter, but in this case it is essential that drainage conditions are perfect. While hardy bulbs will decay if forced to stand in water during thaws.

Roman hyacinths, with looser and more graceful spikes are one of the most popular house varieties and easily grown.

One of the secrets of outdoor culture is drainage, and the beds should be raised. If the soil is heavy, plant the bulb in a handful of sand, to be sure that water does not collect and remain about the base of the bulb.

Fall is the best time to plant the beautiful Japanese lilies, particularly the gold-banded lily and its varieties. Lilium Auratum, and the speciosum varieties. Unfortunately, these bulbs seldom arrive before November, and they are weakened by having to be kept in storage over winter. However, it is not a matter of great difficulty to get them into the ground late this fall. Select the place where they are to be planted and give it a heavy mulch of manure or leaves so that it will be protected from freezing. When the lily bulbs arrive, merely rake off the cover and the ground can be dug and the lilies planted.

They should be planted six inches deep and should be placed upon a pocket of sand to insure drainage.

Although the Japanese lilies come late, the American grown and European lilies offer opportunity for earlier planting. The favorite tiger lily in its improved variety known as Splendens, the gorgeous scarlet umbellatum lilies rivaling the oriental poppies in the brilliancy of their coloring and coming in early June, the native superbum lily, a tall graceful scarlet purple spotted lily, an ornament to any planting, and others may be placed in the hardy garden this fall and will give brilliant and stately display another year.

"Ag" Club Will Be Host to 200 Students

On Monday, October 23, the Agricultural Club of the University will entertain more than 200 high school students from all three counties in the State. This colossal undertaking the like of which never before was attempted by any organization on the Campus, is to be an annual affair known as "Vocational Field Day." The "Ag" Club has assumed the entire responsibility for the arrangement of the program and already plans have been made to give the "youngsters" a real old-fashioned Delaware welcome. Members of the club will be on hand to personally conduct the students on a tour of the College Farm and buildings. The orchards, the agronomy plots, the hogs, cattle, and poultry will all be inspected by the youthful visitors. Every attempt will be made to demonstrate the work that is being taught in the vocational courses throughout the State. A mammoth judging contest including several rings each of hogs and cattle is to be one of the added attractions at the farm.

A basket lunch will be served at noon after which Dean McCue and Dr. Holloway will address the visitors. Later in the day Wolf Hall and other places of interest on the campus will be visited.

CATTLE ASSOCIATION OFFERS PRIZES TO YOUNG CATTLE CLUB MEMBERS

The Delaware Holstein-Friesian Association, of which Mr. J. R. Danks, of Winterthur, is secretary, has again demonstrated its concern in the rural welfare of the State in a liberal donation it has made to be used in furthering the work of the boys' and girls' clubs. County Agent R. O. Bausman, of Newark, is in receipt of a check of seventy-five dollars from Mr. Danks stating that the Association desired it to be used in giving awards of merit to members of the New Castle County Junior Dairy Cattle Club, and in other ways that will tend to imbue the members of the club with the opportunities that agriculture affords.

The Delaware Holstein-Friesian Association was created eight years ago and its purpose is to promote the breeding of and create a deeper interest in the Holstein-Friesian breed of cattle. Through this means this Association feels that it is doing a worthy work in furthering rural welfare. The directors of the Association are: D. O. Hastings, Wilmington; H. F. duPont, Winterthur; H. B. Clark, Kenton; J. I. Dayett, Couch; and J. D. Reynolds, Middletown.

The New Castle County Junior Dairy Cattle Club was organized five years ago with thirty members. Today its membership comprises one hundred twenty of the most energetic country bred boys and girls of the county. Since the inception of the club many of these junior farmers have gained their majority and are laying a foundation to achieve other aspirations, namely, to develop and own a Holstein-Friesian herd of State and National note.

DUCKING SEASON STARTED MONDAY

Other Hunting News

The wild duck hunting season in Delaware opened Monday and it is lawful to shoot them until March 15th, but the Federal law closes the season on January 31st. As the Federal law supersedes State law on such matters, the end of the open season will be January 31st.

From all indications this will be a good duck year. The coves and marshes around here are thick with them and during the past week they have been doing considerable flying. Large numbers of black ducks have remained in the local marshes and hatched their eggs and as a general thing these ducks never leave. The species of duck in greatest numbers in Delaware are the black duck, gray duck, Mallard, teal, sprig and a few canvasbacks.

The season for wild geese, snipe and brant also opened Monday. Snipe and brant are plentiful but wild geese are seldom seen at a range close enough to shoot around here. They are usually flying southward and very high.

A non-resident shooting license in Delaware costs $10.50.

Twenty ducks or twelve birds of any other species, excepting snipe, blackbirds, reed birds and rail birds, is the bag limit for one person for one day.

The opossum and raccoon hunting season opened Sunday, which day also brought to a close the gray squirrel season. These animals, however, have grown very scarce in this section of the State.

The New Jersey ducking season opened Monday also. The Pennsylvania season began on September 16th, while the Maryland shooting season will not open until November 1st.

OBITUARY

Charles W. Mercer

On Thursday last the funeral of Charles W. Mercer, one of Newark's most popular young men, was held from the home of his mother, Mrs. Robert Collison, on Cleveland avenue. A few weeks ago he was taken ill and remained at his home until his illness was diagnosed as typhoid fever. He was then removed to the Homeopathic Hospital in Wilmington, where he died early last week. Up until the time of his illness, he was employed at the Continental Fibre Co. of this place. Young Mercer was well known about the community in athletics and was a member of the Newark baseball team during the past season. His loss will be greatly felt among his large circle of young friends. He was buried privately in the Newark Cemetery.

Davis-Grant Nuptials Largely Attended. Couple Gets Rousing Send-Off

Anna Mae Davis, of Elkton, and Charles Arthur Grant, of Cherry Hill, Md., were married Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Davis, on Main street, Elkton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George P. Jones, Townsend, Del. The home was beautifully decorated with banks of autumn leaves and great bunches of red flowers.

About two hundred guests were present at the wedding and quite filled the house. At the conclusion of the ceremony, dainty refreshments were served to the guests and close friends of the bride. The bride and groom left for northern points on their honeymoon and expect to be gone several weeks.

The bride's wedding gown was of white satin-back crepe and Spanish lace, made in the fashionable long straight line style. Her veil of tulle was beamingly caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower corsage of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Mrs. Ernest Bowers Burnley, of Marshallton, Del., as Matron of Honor, who was attired in orchid satin back crepe and carried Ophelia roses and burnt orange snap dragons. The flower girl, little Virginia May Foster, another cousin of the bride, was dressed in pale pink crepe de chine and carried a basket of Sweetheart roses. The best man was Mr. Robert J. McCauley, of Leeds, Md. The famous Wedding March from "Lohengrin" was very beautifully rendered by Mrs. Wallace Daniels, of Newark, Del., whose gown was of rose crepe back satin and her flowers golden yellow Dahlias.

The bride's travelling gown was a midnight blue Poiret tulle suit with fur neckpiece and small hat of tan velveteen. The happy couple received a myriad of beautiful and useful gifts from their many friends and relatives, and they have the best wishes of the whole town for their happy and prosperous future.

Little Charlotte accompanied her mother to the home of an acquaintance. When the dessert course was reached the little girl was brought down and given a place next to her mother at the table. The hostess was a woman much given to talking, and quite forgot to give little Charlotte anything to eat. After some time had elapsed Charlotte could bear it no longer. With the sobs rising in her throat, she held up her plate and said: "Does my mother ever finish her eyes of the want a clean plate?"—Argo.

CURRENT NEWS OF THE WEEK

FOREIGN

The situation in the British cabinet is rapidly approaching a crisis. Lloyd George remains in defiant defense of his foreign policy, especially in his handling of the Near East question. The London "Observer" directed a scathing indictment in his general direction the latter part of last week, laying particular stress on the fact that the Premier caused the Government to spend millions in preparation for a threatened war only to have Turkey re-established in Europe in as strong a position as ever before. There are current rumors afloat in Parliamentary circles that the Premier will resign his post in the near future.

The great concrete tower, hundreds of feet high and of a cylindrical design which was erected by the British Government during the Great War off Shoreham, England, is now in the process of demolition. The secret of the "mystery tower" has never been revealed by the Government, and the public will perhaps never know the reason for its erection.

King Ferdinand and Queen Marie were solemnly crowned before a vast crowd in the Rumanian capital last Sunday. Many noted foreign celebrities were present and perhaps the greatest ovation accorded to a visitor was that given to the representative of the French Government, Marshal Foch. The United States was also represented at the coronation.

November 11th, Armistice Day, will be celebrated in France this year with a simple and silent ceremony, which was approved this week by the French cabinet. There will be a parade of French officers, who will carry the battleflags from the Invalides to the Arch of Triumph through a lane of troops. At the arch the officers will be received by the cabinet and other officials of the government. A salute will be given to the unknown soldier who is buried under the arch. Patriotic societies will then march past. There will be no speeches.

A super airliner carrying 24 persons has successfully passed the official tests in England and will shortly be put into service for cross-channel flights, probably on the Berlin route. The plane has a roomy salon, wireless equipment and is capable of traveling 90 miles an hour. During the trials it carried ballast equal to the weight of 35 passengers.

NATIONAL

One of the greatest rescue feats of recent years occurred October 12th, when the entire passenger list and crew of the steamer City of Honolulu, bound from Honolulu to Los Angeles, California, caught fire 700 miles off the West Coast and burned to the water's edge. There was no confusion aboard and the crew fought the flames bravely. The steamer West Farallon effected the rescue and all the people who were aboard the ill-fated vessel are now nearing their homes.

Great uneasiness in business circles followed the announcement a week or two ago that the Ford Company had decided on an indefinite shutdown. However, it looks as though the estimable Henry was twitting the Dear Old Public, for after a short rest of five days, the Flivver factory swung into action again and everybody's happy again.

One killed and four others badly injured was the dire result of an automobile accident near Sunbury, Pa., Saturday, when a carload of Bucknell University students enroute from the Bucknell-Navy Game at Annapolis, Md., ran away on a steep grade and crashed into another machine. Henry Burg, of New York, died a few minutes after the mishap.

Here are a couple of good snake stories for bed time perusal. In Ballinger, Texas, the other day, the children of Judge A. K. Duss were playing in the yard when they were confronted by a rattlesnake. They were saved by their pet cat, a usually gentle and refined tabby. After several ferocious charges at the reptile, clawing at its head, the cat finally conquered and killed the unwelcome visitor. If this one is too tame, here's another one: A lady and her daughter were in the act of retiring at their home in northern Pennsylvania the other night, when the daughter noticed a peculiar movement under the pillow. Just for curiosity's sake, she opened the end of the pillow and a five foot blacksnake slid out and po-

The British Government will make the first payment of interest on her American war loans to the United States government tomorrow when checks and treasury certificates totaling $20,000,000 will be paid to the Federal Reserve Bank for the general account of the Treasurer of the United States by J. P. Morgan and Company, acting as agents of the British Government.

The British war loans of approximately $4,500,000 have been for some time the center of discussion regarding the payment to this country by her allies of more than $11,000,000,000.

Previous payments to the United States by the British Government have been for the account of purchases of silver, amounting to several hundred millions of dollars, made during the war to stabilize the silver currencies of India and other British colonies.

The mongrel dog is to have his day in Chicago next Saturday, according to Mayor Thompson, who has issued a proclamation giving public recognition to the unpedigreed canine. The proclamation was issued in connection with a newspaper's "cur dog" show in which the best all-round dog will receive a silver cup.

The Mayor himself has a "yellow dog," a homeless pup he adopted at a political convention and named "Platform."

Attorney General Daugherty last week gave his decision that selling of liquor on American ships, government owned or privately owned, anywhere in the world, is contrary to law. He also holds that no foreign ship may bring liquors within the three mile limit, sealed or unsealed, whether the liquors are or are not intended for consumption in this country. The President has already instructed Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board to discontinue the transportation and sale of alcohol beverages on Shipping Board vessels and has directed Secretary Mellon to deliver equivalent instructions to privately owned American ships.

Get Registered

Real citizenship demands our interest and voice in State and National affairs. The first step in meeting this obligation is by getting registered and thereby becoming a qualified voter.

We have but scant patience with the carping critic of men or administration who fails to take part in selecting those men and voices his opinion by vote in their conduct of affairs entrusted to them. To vote is not merely an American opportunity for free expression of opinion but a serious civic responsibility. It is a duty from which no citizen dare shrink. If he enjoys the privileges accorded he is forced in simple justice to recognize this obligation.

Next Saturday is the last Registration Day this year. Let every citizen qualify himself for civic expression by the vote at the November election. Real Americanism can be rated only 100 per cent and that means 100 per cent registration.

To the Women of Delaware AN APPEAL

Since the opportunity has been granted by the Federal Government for the women of this Nation to share in the duties of citizenship, it is vitally important for us to manifest our voting privileges and as patriotic women perform this sacred service at the next election on November 7th.

True patriotism is serving our Country at all times, not only when the horrors of war are destroying our homes and devastating the Land, but every day when we have the chance to help build up our Commonwealth in the protection of our children, our homes and our Nation.

On Saturday, October 21st, will be the last opportunity for registration, which will qualify us to exercise our right of franchise. Let us not miss this chance for us to contribute our part more efficiently in helping to choose the men who will become the law-makers for our State and Nation. We want to vote for men of ability, honor, public spirit, liberal in mind to the great human and educational issues and needs of the day. For men who will stand for the Enforcement of the Law and will support the vital questions which the platforms of the parties have adopted.

Let us as home-makers realize that these laws affect the home and community and fail not to meet this supreme call to duty. Let us not forget that we stand for Peace, for Protection, for Childhood, for Law and Order, for Construction and not Destruction.

If you are not already registered, notice the date, Saturday, October 21st, and thus perform a righteous service.

MRS. A. D. WARNER, President Delaware League of Women Voters.

NEWS OF RED MEN'S HOME

The first fall Sabbath services will be held at the Red Men's Home, on Depot Road, next Sunday afternoon, starting at 2.30. Rev. Ivanhoe Willis, pastor of the Marshallton M. E. Church, will deliver the sermon and the choir of the same church will render several selections. It is hoped that a large number of the townspeople will be present at the services. Everybody is welcome.

A committee of fourteen men and women from the Board of Managers of the Baltimore district paid a visit last Sunday to the local home of the Red Men for the purpose of inspecting the grounds and buildings. They expect to erect a similar institution in Maryland shortly and the site has already been decided upon. There is at present no such home in our neighboring State.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE FOR MR. MOORE

A birthday surprise party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Moore, 129 1/2 Cleveland avenue, on Saturday evening last, in honor of Mr. Moore's sixty-sixth birthday. Many valuable presents were received. Music was furnished by his daughter, Mrs. B. F. Davis, of Wilmington, at the organ and John Jones, of Newark, cornet. Refreshments were served after a very enjoyable evening. The family and a few intimate friends were present.

Tells of U. of D. Plans

"America must do some great, beautiful and living thing in memory of those who died in war. When it will be and what it will be, is now in debate in certain parts. On the initiative of the Alumni Association of the University of Delaware this question has been settled in that commonwealth. The people of that little state have been asked to lay voluntarily upon the altar of love and memory, a sum equal to one dollar and a half for each man, woman and child in that little community, amounting to $300,000. This will be done by the first of November and will be the first memorial to the dead who died in the war voluntarily by the whole people of a state.

Library as Memorial

"This memorial will take the form of a beautiful library located on the campus of the University of Delaware where the children of all generations may sit in the shadow of the wisdom of all ages and vision the patriotism of those who fought and died for their country and also vision the love and gratitude of those others who builded because they did not forget.

"Have the people of Delaware done well? Then let others follow. Do the others hesitate? Do they hold back? Do they fail to respond? Does dullness cloud their minds or selfishness grip their hearts? Then let us pray, 'Lord God of Hosts be with us yet. Lest we forget—Lest we forget.'"

Mr. Moore was placed on the pension list by the Pennsylvania Railroad on November 1, 1921. He served over forty-five years in the employ of the company and his record for faithful service during that long period was spotless. It is hoped that he may live to see many more birthdays.

ELKTON AGOG OVER NEW INDUSTRY

Manufacture of Colliers Inc., has been to Elkton on two different occasions and frankly is pleased with the surroundings and attitude of the people.

Mr. Walter Brown, member of the Board of Directors and personal representative of the president came down from New York last Thursday with Mr. Wilder and addressed a meeting of citizens, held in the Court House.

A motion was carried by the assemblage of citizens calling for the appointment of a committee of five or seven men to confer at an early date with the representatives of Colliers. This committee is headed by Thomas W. Miller, a prominent banker of Elkton. As yet the committee has not been appointed, but definite action is expected within two or three days at the latest.

These are the facts of the situation as it now stands. From opinions given by various citizens of the town the outlook for the new industry coming to Elkton is very bright and everyone is enthusiastic over the proposition. Colliers is a nationally known business house and has been in operation for the past forty-six years. They have come forward with a direct and frank proposition, with no dangling clauses and loopholes. It is now up to the town of Elkton to accept or refuse the new industry.

The whole matter was brought to the attention of the town through the vice-president of the Jessup and Moore Paper Co., who happens to be a warm friend of Mr. Wilder. Mr. D. J. Ayerst, manager of their local plant was also a prime mover in the project and arranged the details of the meeting last Thursday.

The Meeting

The open meeting held last Thursday evening in the Court House brought out nearly a hundred citizens of the town, including prominent business men, members of Council and others interested in the proposition. Mayor William Makel opened the meeting with a brief explanation of its object and then turned the chair over to Mr. Miller, who introduced the first speaker, Mr. Wilder, director of manufacture and member of the board of directors of Colliers.

This gentleman spoke in a clear-cut, decisive way and made very plain the facts which caused the proposed removal. The plant in the west side of New York, he said, had far outgrown itself. The business has doubled itself in four years, and the need for more floor space was making the situation acute. There was nothing left to do but to remove the book publishing part of the concern to a smaller town. Wherever the plant is located there are only two conditions which must satisfy Colliers: The new site must have adequate railroad facilities for shipping and receiving; and the town must back up the concern wholeheartedly by supplying as much of the labor needed as possible. These are the only stipulations and in return Colliers place their reputation of over forty years experience in business of this kind at stake. There was no doubt in the minds of all that heard Mr. Wilder that he meant business and all he wanted was the full co-operation of the citizens of the town.

Mr. Brown then took the floor and supplemented Mr. Wilder's talk in a few instances. He stated that when all the units of the book publishing departments were established and working full time, a payroll of between $15,000 and $30,000 would be brought into Elkton weekly. Needless to say this statement made the hearts of many of the merchants present miss a beat. The working conditions in a plant of this type are ideal. The one principle which Colliers has always held to in their many years of business has been the establishment of ideal relations between the employers and employees.

The moving of the plant would consume approximately a year and a half. In the first place, production must go on without fail and in the second place, the new labor must be taught their work by experienced men and women from the home plant. All this takes time and the first few months will see the new plant employing only forty or fifty people. Between sixty and seventy per cent of the labor will be female, according to Mr. Brown. The plant will be moved in units, thus not hindering the existing manufacture of books.

After a few remarks by the citizens present, Mr. Keppler moved that a committee of five or seven be appointed to confer with the gentlemen from New York relative to details connected with the transfer of the business. This motion was carried unanimously by the assemblage. It was amended however and the name of Mr. Miller was included to act as chairman and to appoint the other members. From then on the meeting assumed an informal discussion of the proposal.

"Delaware And The Eastern Shore" A Delightful Picture Of An Interesting Section

Edward N. Vallandigham, Author of New Book, Well Known to Newark Residents, and a Delaware Writer of Note, Turns Out Admirable Volume

Author of "Fifty Years of Delaware College"

"Delaware and the Eastern Shore." Some Aspects of a Peninsula Pleasant and Well Beloved. By Edward Noble Vallandigham, author of "Fifty Years of Delaware College." Eighty illustrations. Philadelphia, Pa.: J. B. Lippincott Co. ($5.)

There is a vague legend which many old residents were wont to quote with favor, and which public speakers occasionally employed to embellish addresses to local assemblies, that the Peninsula of Delaware and the Eastern Shore was the ancient Garden of Eden where the world was begun. And they employed this simile to convey an impression of the loveliness of their famed country, and its desirability as a home for man, affording him, from its productive abundance, everything essential to human existence, with many comforts and even luxuries. Dr. Vallandigham does not advance this claim in his admirable book, "Delaware and the Eastern Shore," just issued from the press of J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia, but he presents, in text and illustration, a faithful picture that comes very much akin to a portrayal of what the original Garden of Eden might readily seem to have been.

All residents of the Peninsula, from Brandywine to Cape Charles, will welcome this fine production, and all will find in it, in addition to its general information and exquisite picturing, something of direct interest to their home communities. To them its unvarying excellence also will appeal most pleasingly. To those who are strangers to its attractions there will be the same interest and pleasure in reading of them that pertains to all good books telling of lands which to the readers are foreign, and which in many instances they can never hope to visit. For Delaware and the Eastern Shore is the delightful bit of country that Dr. Vallandigham so effectively pictures. Even those who in their previous ignorance and lack of information have joined in gibes at its supposed homely primitiveness and lack of world-knowledge have been converted by even a cursory visit and become its delighted devotees.

To our own people there will be special appeal in this fine book because Dr. Vallandigham is a son of Delaware, born in this State and a careful student of its history and traditions. Here he is well known and has many friends, while to Wilmington people he is especially remembered as editor of Every Evening and a resident of our city for several years.

The vegetable garden belonging to little Miss Hall was deserving of particular mention. According to the committee, it was the most perfect small plot they had ever seen. Not a weed in sight and a prolific yield from every plant. She is to be congratulated upon her splendid work. Numerous other gardens, while not figuring in the prizes came in for honorable mention and praise from those

"This book does not pretend to be a history of Delaware and the Eastern Shore," says Dr. Vallandigham in his introduction, but to "interpret to the people themselves of this Peninsula, as also to the stranger, the land and its inhabitants in the past and in the present, to convey the rare and somewhat elusive charm of a region without the splendor of a bold topography, yet distinguished for the variety of its mainly quiet landscapes, the richness of its woodlands, and the unique beauty of its waters." How exquisitely and adequately he performs this pleasing task will appear impressively to all who read its pages.

Here we deem it well to set forth the table of contents, covering twenty chapters, which conveys a fair impression of scope and detail:

- The Land—Its Objects and Story. Communications.
- Chesapeake Voyages.
- The Mark of Race.
- Hunting, Fishing, Yachting. Houses and Homes.
- Early Churches and Religious Movements.
- Bohemia Manor.
- Mason and Dixon's Line.
- An Old Maryland Plantation. Wilmington.
- County Towns and Others. Dover and New Castle.
- Islands of the Chesapeake. Occupations.
- Humors of Law and Politics.
- The Welsh Tract and the Labadists. Education and Uplift in Delaware. Accomac and Northampton. Conclusion.

These chapter headings are quite expressive of the manner in which the entire subject has been handled and divided for smooth and easy sequence. Each is in a measure complete in itself, yet the connection is intimate and continuous. From the land and its story, it is but a step to its means of communication, primitive and modern, to the voyaging waters and the sports they afford as well as the business enterprises they promote, to its houses and homes—some of the latter of ancient and historic lineage—its local communities, the professions, business and diversions of the people, to its historical associations, and especially to its educational advantages and so on to a forecast of its future. Thus is set forth Delaware and the Peninsula, with the conspicuous features of its more than three centuries of existence, during a large part of

Plans Under Way For Library Drive In State

On Friday of this week the State-wide campaign for the new Memorial Library will be launched. The drive will embrace every town, village and community in this little State and the hundred or more teams and committees are ready for the word. From Wilmington the plans are being spread broadcast, and for the past few days the offices of Perry Burgess, the Director of the Campaign have been full of activity and bustle in preparation for the inauguration of the Drive on the 20th. Newark has already shown the way gloriously and the rest of the State seems to have caught the real spirit of the project and from all reports will give its full measure for the great Memorial to the soldier dead of Delaware.

This campaign, suggested by Dr. Walter Hüllihen, president of the University, and taken up and fostered by the alumni will be inaugurated at a dinner meeting at the Hotel duPont on October 20th. The drive will close on October 27th.

On Sunday, October 22d, from the pulpit or rostrum of every place of worship in the State, sermons or references will be made to the campaign by the clergy of all creeds, who have pledged their support to the movement.

On Saturday afternoon the thousands of school children of Wilmington will assemble in Brandywine Park, where Dr. Hüllihen, Judge George Gray and other prominent men will address them. The Boy Scouts will act as guards for the occasion. In Georgetown another meeting of citizens will be held and plans are also being made for a big meeting at Dover. In other towns and communities of the State similar meetings are being planned.

The library building, the designs for which have not been approved by the trustees of the University will contain a tablet containing the names of the Delaware men who gave their lives, an illuminated volume giving their histories, war trophies and the honor rolls bearing the signatures of every man, woman and child who gave to the campaign. These honor rolls will be distributed to every school, lodge, factory, civic society and organization.

Everett C. Johnson, chairman of the Alumni Committee which is piloting the campaign, and Josiah Marvel, chairman of the Executive Committee directing the active work of the drive, are both desirous that every resident of the State shall be represented in the memorial.

Dr. Walter Hüllihen, president of the University of Delaware has summarized for hasty readers what the "library campaign" is, how the money will be spent, etc. He says:

"Of the $300,000 sought, probably $250,000 will be spent on the building and grounds; $20,000 on much needed books and $50,000 will be set aside as permanent endowment for the library to prevent its becoming an added expense to the taxpayers of the State.

"The library will be called the Delaware Memorial Library and the support of every organization in the State will be sought to make this the whole State's memorial to the citizens of Delaware who lost their lives in the great war.

"A central memorial hall will contain a bronze tablet with the names of Delawareans who died in service.

"A handsome hand illuminated volume will contain one page devoted to the life history of each person whose name appears on the tablet.

"A section of the library will be devoted to books relating to the war and our connection with it.

"A section will be devoted to books of value to the teachers of the public schools of the State. Arrangements will be made to send these books by mail on request to any teacher in the State. The Superintendent of Public Instruction will be a member of a committee which will determine what books shall be placed in this department.

"The funds for the expenses of the campaign have already been secured so that every dollar contributed will go to the Library Fund."

SOUNDED LIKE "ICE WATER"

A West Plains mother recently sent her youngster downtown on an errand. He went to the hardware store clerk thought he wanted a drink and as he couldn't talk plainly the clerk took him to the water cooler and filled him up. Still he lingered. Another clerk asked him what he wanted and with the same result. After the third clerk had attempted to follow suit the baby began to whimper. A telephone conversation with the mother then brought to light the fact that it was a fly swatter that was wanted and not ice water.—West Plains (Mo.) Journal.

DELAWARE AND EASTERN SHORE

which it was in a measure isolated from the rest of the world. But never was it entirely out of touch with the current of events or lacking in concern for the welfare of the country.

All of these features are dwelt upon with accuracy of statement and a zest of presentation arising from knowledge of and sympathy with the land and its people. All the historical allusions are of interest and importance. The local pictures of places and residents are painted with fidelity and much quaint humor. The descriptions of the quiet, appealing beauty of land and water, which prove so surprising as well as entrancing to strangers, are entirely revealing, and are richly enhanced by the numerous illustrations, made from photographs taken in both public and remote places.

Enough space is given to law and politics to make the reader wish for more. The peninsula, and especially that part of it comprised within the State of Delaware, had intimate and valuable part in the launching of our great republic, not only in fighting the battles of the Revolution, but in framing the resultant free government and conducting it throughout the doubtful voyage of its formative period and in subsequent years. Leading members of prominent Maryland families are mentioned and men of Delaware are shown in the conspicuous parts they played.

In this connection are given some notable reminiscences of that "grand old man of Delaware" of the period preceding the Civil War, John M. Clayton. He looms largely in Delaware's past history, and Dr. Vallandigham gives some pleasing pictures of his career, some of which plainly show the strong hold he had upon the confidence, admiration and esteem of his fellow-citizens. How human a man he was, as well as how great in his time, is well set forth. The Bayards, the Saulesburys and others who figured largely in the past politics of State and nation also are given appropriate attention.

Very largely, of course, the book deals with the past, but Dr. Vallandigham has not refrained from giving thought to the future as it may affect Delaware and the Peninsula, and as the section he so charmingly paints in word and pictures may measure up to the demands of the years to come. He depicts the trend of the times, with the threat that is seen in them of trouble for the future, by reason of innovations that are at variance with the traditions the long established customs and the social and business ethics of the Peninsula. "Is modern efficiency inconsistent with both morals and manners?" he asks, and then concludes:

"The Eastern shore, the whole Peninsula, is catching step with the world at large, and it cannot afford to fall out of line. On the other hand, if progressive men of the great business centres begin to believe that the limit has been reached, not only in the growth of such centres in population, but also in the use of such barbaric business methods as were recently displayed to view in the court of public investigations, will the Eastern Shore take up the cast-off garments of alarmed or repentant sinners? Must conservative communities, in emerging from their conservatism, run through all the stages that have brought advanced communities to the point that they have reached in social and industrial barbarism?"

"Whatever the future holds for the Peninsula, it still has to offer tired worldlings the inextinguishable charm of its woodlands and its waters, the interest of its jealously preserved traditions, its quaint antiquities. Not least interesting to the stranger is its race of mainly British stock, long rooted in the soil—the first true Britons of the Mid—warmed by nearly ten generations of life amid almost semi-tropical conditions. Many thousands of these folk, like their American ancestors from the first, with free access to natural opportunities, have never known poverty, never hesitated to face their fellows of whatever wealth and position with the fearless glance of those who feel no need to assert rawly their simple manhood and native dignity. If of such is not the Kingdom of Heaven, surely of such should be the free democratic republic of the earth."

The book is beautifully printed and bound, amply and expressively illustrated and has as an appendix a very comprehensive map of the entire Peninsula and surrounding country.

And so here we have a book that will be welcomed by many—a book of our homeland that is really representative, of usual interest, truthful and entirely sympathetic. More than this could not be asked, and seldom is so much given in a single volume.

THE SPORTING TICKER

A Column Devoted to Clean Athletics and Sportsmanship, written by one who loves the Game.

A dog and gun and the open fields. The tang of the autumn air; The savage thrill as the setter steals To the bob-white's grassy lair.

The open road, a motorcar. The khaki clothes and all. A camping kit, a journey far. A primal gypsy call.

The campfire's glow, the open sky. A bed beneath the trees. The solitude when embers die. The forest-scented breeze.

A wooded lake, a towering crag. A hunter's kit and boat. The drinking place of the lordly stag. Wild geese and ducks afloat.

The deep, dark woods, where woodfolk dwell. Where rivers dash and foam— The outdoors hold me in its spell. And there I feel at home!

—Cecil D. Basham.

These lines have in a way caught the spirit of Autumn. For a small minority, however, the crisp, biting morning air of the past week has called forth loud groans and increased uneasiness at the advent of approaching winter—and the coal bin empty. They pile on more clothing and still shiver; they call up the coal man and scientifically berate him for his inability to get the precious fuel; they loudly proclaim over the back fence to whoever appears to be interested, that they always did like the summer months, anyhow. In fact, they do everything but enjoy one of the finest seasons in the year.

The old rabbit hunters are wiping out their trusty guns, training their dogs, mending tattered hunting jackets and restlessly doing the thousand and one things which look so perfectly useless to the average mortal, but which are the sacred duties performed in preparation for the great day. For this is the season for the hunter. From now on until the snow flies, the open places are his paradise. The woods and barrens, the grown up swamps, rank with fall grass and briars, the waving swamps and the murmur of the small stream over the rocks—all these things call to the man who loves the outdoors. The tang and snap in the morning air are breath and life to him. The office, the shop, the home are no longer the limits of his daily life. For him they are but temporary places of necessary confinement wherein he lingers until he can pick up his old gun, whistle to his dog and tramp out into the bracing Autumn air and sunlight. Would that all of us were possessed of the happy faculty of adjusting ourselves to existing conditions. Would that we might all follow this man through the fields and over the rises, always sure that game lies waiting in the next field. We can, however, get into the open somehow and feel the thrill of just being out again. The chilly air isn't so terribly annoying if you could only take an hour off each day and get out there and just walk along, or ride along, over the little winding by-roads. I'll guarantee you will have forgotten all about the coal bin and the overcoat and you will be actually whistling some long-forgotten air. Don't try to fight back at life; get out and enjoy it!

"Shuffin'" Phil Douglass insists upon butting into the headlines, although his sport career is rather soiled. Latest report discovers the shuffling person in jail for beating his wife. When they hit the top of the skids, it's not far to the bottom.

INTERNATIONAL BASEBALL

Now that the World's Series is but a memory, our enterprising and thoroughly business-like ball players have incorporated themselves for a raid upon far-off Japan. They are to strive and struggle with the celestials in an effort to impart to them some knowledge of the great American pastime. Needless to say, the young Americans will return to our shores with their pockets jingling with yen or doubloons or whatever the Japanese term happens to be. It will be an expensive lesson, but if they can in their short visit teach along with the fallaway slide, the technique of top bottle throwing, it may be said with surety that the yellow man will throw his purse string to the four winds. There is one country, however, in which the financial manager of an invading ball team would sprout several gray hairs. England somehow cannot see anything "sporty" about baseball. An enormous crowd of thirteen persons gathered about a London scoreboard the other day to follow the results of a World's Series struggle. The only thing to do as I see it is to make 'em give us first bat in a cricket game.

THE DUB

I am a Dub. Everyone I have met on the Course feels exactly the same way about it as I do.

When I go into the Pro's sanctum he hurriedly hides all the good clubs for fear I'll see them. Then he smiles benignly. He knows I'm a Dub.

I have bought myself a brand new golf outfit—studded shoes, knickers, and everything. I flash this bit of attractive apparel about the locker room, but no one seems to notice it.

I take out my bag of clubs which the Pro sold me two weeks ago. I have used them all, but it don't make any difference. The first dozen balls are almost gone. A few badly wounded ones remain. The rest are scattered in remote places all over the Course.

When I approach the first tee, a couple of my fellow members were in the act of driving off. They saw me coming and one of them sliced his ball horribly in his hurry to get away from there. A Dub has no friends.

I teed up one of the poor balls for another session of punishment. I look around slyly—a Dub hates anyone to see him drive. I "wind up" several times and finally strike desperately.

The ball sails straight down the fairway. Up and down across the Course I belabor the little sphere. At the sixth tee I change balls. I shall frame the old one—the only one which lasted more than three holes. I find myself hitting the ball square and take on new courage.

At the ninth tee I lose sight of my ball because I am watching the head of my driver flying through space.

I play out the ninth hole in one stroke above par. I sit down on a bunker and figure up my score.

The score for nine holes is 48. I show it to the professional. He shakes hands. I am asked to join a foursome, but decline gracefully.

I take a shower and rubdown and find myself whistling. I call my caddy and gave him an extra quarter.

I am a Dub no longer.

Newark High School has a team this year which should, on form, carry away the State Championship. If there are any of the townspeople who are the least bit skeptical, they would do well to come out and see for themselves at the next home game. Shoot the dice.

NEWARK HIGH SCORES BRILLIANT VICTORY

Salesianum of Wilmington Bows to Local Gridlers Before Large Crowd.

HUBERT SCORES TWICE

For the first time in the history of their athletic relations, Newark High School's aggressive football team trounced the Salesianum Catholic High School team in the game played Friday afternoon on Harlan Field, Wilmington. The best part of the victory is that it was clean cut and well earned. The powerful offense of the local boys was not to be denied and their continual hammering of the Salesianum line gradually wore down the Wilmington team. The last quarter saw the scoring of both Newark touchdowns. To say the victory was a surprise to the host of Wilmingtonians present would be putting it mildly. They could hardly believe that Newark had really out-fought and out-played their favorites during most of the game.

Both touchdowns were scored by Hubert, the flashy halfback of the Newark eleven. They came as a result of powerful marches down the field with Hubert and C. Hopkins carrying the ball. Hopkins was a particularly efficient ground gainer and was a source of much trouble to the Wilmington bunch.

Salesianum had numerous chances to score, but either fumbled the ball at critical stages or met a stone wall in the Newark line. They could not gain consistently at any point in the game. Both teams were nearly even in the matter of first downs, Newark scoring eleven and Salesianum twelve.

Coach Joseph was much pleased with the showing of his team and modestly predicts that they will be among those present when the question of the championship of the State is brought up. The lineup: Newark Salesianum Crompton L. E. Dolan Cornog L. T. Fahy

BONHAM WINS TOMBSTONE TOURNAMENT

Novel Event at Country Club Causes Much Merriment

PUTTING GREEN LAID OUT

The most novel and interesting tournament given at the Newark Country Club this year came off Saturday when the Tombstone Tournament took place over the local course. There were 34 entries in the struggle and the gallery was keyed up to the greatest excitement when the five leaders approached the limit of their allotted strokes.

H. L. Bonham carried off first prize with his ball within four inches of the cup on the 18th green. B. Vinton was second, his ball being some three feet away from the same hole. E. F. Wardell was about 12 feet away and thus gained third place. Paul F. Pie and R. W. Heim were fourth and fifth respectively, being just off the edge of the green. The allotted strokes for the five leading contestants were as follows: Bonham, 84; Vinton, 88; Wardell, 101; Pie, 90, and Heim, 104.

The rest of the field were strung out along the course, their positions being marked by the small flags which were given them at the start of the tournament. The contest met with enthusiastic approval by all concerned. Another tournament is planned for next Saturday afternoon, but the nature of it has not been as yet decided upon.

Another much needed addition to the Course will be the new putting green area to be erected back of the clubhouse. Here the aspiring candidates for golfing honors can wield their putters in their heart's content and not be bothered by passing players. The ground will be added and kept in the same condition as the regular greens, and the practice derived in this manner will be of great value to all who care to use the new green.

SIX RACES AT SECOND MATINEE

Thirteen Heats Give Good Sport at Willis' New Track

Six races of thirteen heats gave lovers of harness racing some good sport at the second matinee held Saturday afternoon on the new half-mile track on the estate of J. Wirt Willis, near Glasgow. The matinee was held under the auspices of the Pender Breeders' and Agricultural Association and was attended by a large number of horse fans from different sections of the county.

Of the six events four were mile heat races and two half-mile heat events. These matinees are arousing more interest in the sport in this section than has been noticeable for some years. There will be another matinee in October and the final one of the season at the Willis track on Armistice Day, November 11th. The summary of Saturday's events follows:

AUXILIARY GIVES FIRST SUPPER OF SEASON

The ladies of the Barracca Auxillary of the Presbyterian Church gave the first of a series of supper in the Lecture Room on Tuesday evening. About eighty persons were served and much credit was given the committee in charge, of which Mrs. Charles Dunlevy was chairman.

After the supper a delightful program was rendered as follows: Orchestra selections by Mr. and Mrs. Orville Little and Mr. William H. Cook; readings by Mrs. Richard Cooch, and piano solos by Miss Helen Gregg. The evening was brought to a pleasant close by the singing of old songs by all who were present.

IN A SOCIAL WAY

Mrs. George E. Dutton entertained at Bridge last Thursday afternoon at her home on West Main street. Nearly all the guests were from the town and college circles. Those present were:

Mrs. J. I. Dayett, Mrs. J. O. G. Duffy, Mrs. A. T. Neale, Miss Eleanor Duffy, Miss Lindsay, Mrs. R. C. Lewis, of Elkton, Mrs. Hutchinson, Mrs. J. S. Shaw, Mrs. Walter Hulihan, Mrs. George L. Townsend, Mrs. J. Pearce Cann, Mrs. F. M. K. Foster, Mrs. C. O. Houghton, Mrs. Emma Wilson, Dean Winifred J. Robinson, Miss Elinor Harter, Mrs. C. A. McCue, Mrs. R. W. Heim, Mrs. E. Laurence Smith, Mrs. W. H. Evans, Mrs. C. B. Evans, Mrs. A. L. Bonham, Mrs. Walt H. Steel, Mrs. Armand Durant, Mrs. H. K. Preston, Mrs. Norris N. Wright, Miss Clark, Miss Maxwell, Miss Elsie Wright, Mrs. John Pilling, Mrs. E. B. Wright, Mrs. T. F. Manns, Mrs. Frank Wilson, Mrs. Rankin, Mrs. C. L. Penny, Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson, Mrs. Geo. Medill, Mrs. Paul Pie, Mrs. Walter Hossinger, all of Newark, and Mrs. C. A. Taylor, of Trenton, N. J., and Mrs. Benjamin Proud, of Tarrytown, N. Y.

Mrs. W. A. Layfield gave a very delightful bridge party last Friday afternoon at her home, "Meadowsweet," near Newark. The proceeds derived from a small tax upon each guest and the chancing off of several very fine cakes amounted to $52.50 and was turned over to the Homeopathic Hospital fund through the Newark team. All prizes given for bridge scores were donated as were the cakes. About twenty of the guests were Wilmingtonians. After the cards came tea and the eighty or more ladies present then departed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Earl Dougherty will be hosts at an old time Halloween party on Tuesday evening of next week at their home on Park Place.

Mrs. R. Bausman entertained at tea Monday afternoon, at her home here, in honor of her mother.

Former Newark Teacher Weds

Miss Lillian Sudler, daughter of the late Horace Sudler, former State Insurance Commissioner, was married Saturday last at the home of her mother, Mrs. Minnie Sudler, in Bridgeville, to Mr. Prosper Shelton Virdin, of New York. The wedding was informal and was performed by the Rev. William L. White, pastor of the Union M. E. Church.

After a short stay in Rehoboth, the young couple will make their home in New York, where Mr. Virdin is employed.

Miss Sudler is well known in Newark and made a host of friends during the time she taught in the public schools. She takes with her to her new home the sincere good wishes of her many warm Newark friends.

CHORAL CLUB ELECTS AND REHEARSES

The meeting of the Newark Choral Club, held in the High School auditorium Monday evening, resulted in the election of officers for the coming year and the rehearsal of one new number for their concert work.

During a lull in the rehearsal, a short business meeting was in order. The officers of the club for the forthcoming season are as follows:

President—E. H. Vogt; vice-president, A. D. Cobb; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. Pearce Cann. All of the above officers were named unanimously.

Several new faces were noticed in the large group present. The efforts of the older members are being pointed towards the work of interesting the young people of the town in the club. The High School is represented now by several boys and girls. Who will follow?

ICE TRUCK AND ROADSTER IN QUEER ANTICS

Those persons who happened to be in the vicinity of Main and Academy Streets yesterday afternoon, were treated to a most practical and convincing demonstration of one of the fundamental scientific laws which holds that "opposites attract and likes repel." In fact, the demonstration was so popular that quite a throng of eager onlookers were in attendance in a few minutes.

Renshaw's ice truck was proceeding slowly along Academy Street, loaded to the proverbial gunwales with the frigid substance. As it attempted the corner into Main Street, the lure of its frozen contents was too much for an overheated chummy roadster, piloted by the Misses Tweed, of White Clay Creek Road. Straightway the roadster veered from its course and endeavored mightily to cool its fevered brow in the cargo of the truck. Falling in this, there was nothing left for the poor car to do but to suffer itself to be disentangled from the truck. Part of the windshield remained draped about various parts of Mr. Renshaw's vehicle, however, but no other damage was reported. There were no casualties. Some of the more worldly persons in the appreciative audience were seen to laugh—very bad form during any important demonstration.

THE VOICE WITH THE SMILE

When your Bell telephone operator answers your call, she says

"Number, please?"

She says it with the pleasant rising inflection which expresses better than words her desire to serve you.

She was chosen for her ability and intelligence.

She was trained to be quick, careful and accurate.

She has all of these qualities.

And in addition, she has "the voice with the smile."

It's not just a part of her "stock in trade."

The desire to serve her neighbors and friends is in her very nature.

So she says "Number, please?"

That little word "please" takes a lot of time when thousands of calls are considered.

But its worth all the time it takes.

For the telephone operator knows that courtesy pays.
