

HISTORY OF METHODISM IN NEWARK IS TRACED

Burning Of Mortgage To Be Highlight Of Celebration

Burning of the mortgage, symbolical of freedom from debt will highlight next week's program at the Newark Methodist Church when the 150th anniversary of its founding will be observed.

Research on the part of parishioners has resulted in a historical review of the church which has developed from the old Market House that used to stand across the street in front of the Academy, the first Methodist worship place in the town.

1811 Revival Jan. 3, 1811, Thomas Smith, one of the preachers of Cecil Circuit, came to Newark at 1 o'clock and preached at Newark.

SAFETY RALLY AT SCHOOLS THURSDAY

Corp. Lynch, John R. Fader To Address Students

The first Safety Rally of the current school year will be held next Thursday morning at 8:40 o'clock in the high school auditorium with Corporal Clarence K. Lynch, of the Delaware State Police, as the speaker.

Originated last year and again sponsored by the Newark Lions Club Safety Committee, these safety rallies are held periodically in an effort to educate both bicycle and pedestrian traffic to existing regulations and ordinances.

One outgrowth of the Safety campaign last year was the Newark Bicycle Club which is being revived this year. Under this plan, all school children possessing bicycles are required to have them registered with Chief of Police William H. Cunningham. More than 300 bikes have been registered at local police headquarters so far.

John R. Fader, manager of the Delaware Safety Council will also attend the meeting and introduce the guest speaker. Corporal Lynch was formerly in charge of student drivers education and training in Sussex County and is presently connected with the Wilmington office of the Motor Vehicle Department, in charge of operators license examinations.

The safety campaign in Newark Schools is promoted by the Lions Club Safety Committee in cooperation with local school and police officials. This committee, headed by Ford H. McBerry, is composed of Chief of Police Cunningham, John R. Fader and Ira S. Shellender.

The meeting next Thursday will be conducted entirely for the benefit of the student body. A similar rally will be held at the New London Avenue School at ten o'clock Thursday morning.

JIM DANDY PRODUCTION BY PLAYERS NOV. 14-15

E-52 Group One Of 27 Planning To Present Play

When the E-52 Players of the University of Delaware present "Jim Dandy" on November 14 and 15, they will be one of dozens of university and community theaters throughout the country presenting this new play by William Saroyan. Dr. C. R. Kase, director for the Players, has just received word from the National Theatre Conference that 27 member-organizations have already set definite production dates.

Through a plan of the National Theatre Conference, all non-commercial theaters that are members of the conference will have an opportunity to present, before its Broadway opening, the latest play by Saroyan, the daring young playwright whose "The Time of Your Life" won both the Critics Circle Award and the Pulitzer Prize two years ago, and whose "The Beautiful People" was adjudged by many critics the best play of last season.

Among the more important university theaters doing "Jim Dandy" are those at Western Reserve University, Indiana University, Dartmouth College, and Cornell University. Some of the community theaters taking part in the plan are the Pasadena Playhouse, the Portland Civic Theatre, and the Civic Center Playhouse at Dallas.

A complete list of the 27 definite productions follows: Indiana State Teachers' College, University of Minnesota, Catholic University, University of Michigan, Princeton Theatre Intime, Western Reserve University, Indiana University, Jamestown Little Theatre, Little Country Theatre, University of Delaware, Playwrights Little Theatre of Newark, N. CHILDREN'S THEATER AUTHORITY TO SPEAK

Gloria Chandler To Give Talk At Conference On November 15

The University of Delaware Dramatic Center has just received confirmation from Miss Gloria Chandler of the Children's Theatre staff of the Association of Junior Leagues of America that she will speak at the University Dramatic Conference to be held in Newark on Saturday, November 15. Miss Chandler will be the principal speaker of a section meeting entitled, "Producing Children's Theatre Plays."

Miss Chandler is one of the few persons in the country today who can speak with any real authority on the subject of Children's Theatre. She has held her present position with the Association of Junior Leagues for eight years. During that time she has directed the plays, "The Blue Bird" and "Treasure Island" in a number of cities with dozens of different casts. She has also lectured to Junior Leagues in all sections on the technique of presenting children's plays.

For six years before coming to work with the Junior Leagues, she directed numerous children's plays both with children and adults in the casts. At the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, she directed "Peter Pan," "The Indian Captive" and "Cinderella." These were given scores of performances at the Exposition's Children's Theatre on a program on which Tony Sarg also presented his famous marionettes.

Miss Chandler's talk at the conference will deal mainly with the practical aspects of Children's Theatre Production, choice of plays, directing and acting for the child, designing to please the child's eye, and other important points. The meeting at which Miss Chandler will speak will be held at 11:30 o'clock the morning of the conference at the University of Delaware. Mrs. C. R. Kase, chairman of the Children's Theatre committee of the University Drama Group, will be in charge of the meeting.

Other features of the conference of interest to those who are engaged in presenting plays for children will be an exhibit of books on the subject of Children's Theatre and the showing of technical moving pictures of productions of "The Emperor's New Clothes" by the University of Minnesota and "Little Black Sambo" by Allegheny College.

LIONS HOLD MONTHLY BUSINESS SESSION

Members To Attend Pig Roast; Charter Night Plans Discussed

Members of the Newark Lions Club held their regular monthly business session at the Country Club Tuesday evening with directors holding a short meeting at five-thirty. President John K. Speicher conducted the meeting.

Dr. John R. Downes, executive secretary, spoke on behalf of the annual Pig Roast, sponsored by the local American Legion post and all friends of junior baseball, which will be held in the high school cafeteria Tuesday evening at six o'clock. Both the Lions and Rotary clubs will dispense with regular meetings next week in order to attend the Pig Roast honoring all participants in Junior baseball during the past summer. Each Lion will have a junior baseball player as his guest at the affair.

George M. Hancy, chairman of the Charter Night committee, reported on progress of plans for the thirteenth observance of this occasion at the Country Club on November 25 when Ladies Night will be observed. An excellent program and menu are being arranged for the occasion.

A motion to award a scholarship to some worthy graduate of Newark High School, each year, was discussed and referred to the committee on education. A resolution endorsing the need for municipal zoning ordinances, in Newark, was presented by J. D. Counahan and adopted by the club.

Reports were offered by chairmen of the Safety, Education, Attendance and Constitution committees.

BREATHLESS MOMENT IS MISSED BY MOTORISTS

Levies On Fuel Reach Billion-Dollar Mark At Early Date

Delaware motorists this year failed to receive the customary advance warning of the "Billion Dollar Breathless Moment," which falls each year on the day when the nation's gasoline tax bill passes the billion-dollar mark.

"The speed-up in gasoline taxes this year was so fast that the motorists of the nation paid out a billion dollars in such levies before anybody realized it," said H. V. Daniel, secretary, Associated Petroleum Industries of Delaware. "The billion dollar breathless moment this year fell on September 18, or two months earlier than last year."

"Motorists first observed the breathless moment on December 15, 1939, the first year that revenue from state and federal taxes on motor fuel hit the billion dollar mark. Motorists and other highway users, as well as service station operators, were called upon to pause a moment on that day in observance of the event. Last year the 'moment' moved up a month and was celebrated on November 15. This year, continued Mr. Daniel, "because of the higher federal tax on gasoline, plus increased use of passenger cars and trucks in defense activities, the date jumped up two months and had passed before the date was announced."

"Delaware and other motorists, however, will have plenty of time to be breathless over gasoline taxes during the balance of the year. In 1939, the first year that the nation's gasoline tax revenue reached the billion dollar level, a total of $1,031,650,000 was collected in state and federal gasoline taxes. This year, it is estimated $1,300,000,000 in gasoline taxes will be taken from the pockets of the nation's motorists. An increase of $300,000,000 in their annual tax bill in three years should be enough to make the motorists breathless any time they think of it."

A letter with an English postmark, dated early in the summer, recently reached Richard Crooks. It read: "I would like to tell you how much pleasure your wonderful gramophone recordings have given me during the past few months. For many years I have collected your recordings, but it was not until the war started that I appreciated them to their full worth. It is wonderful during the blackout hours and the blitz evenings over London to be able to put on records that can make the outside world vanish, and take one to the land of dreams. . . I sincerely hope that very soon the times will change in Europe (and I feel sure they will), and you will visit London and sing at the Queen's Hall in concert and recital, and visit the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, to sing in opera. I would love to see your performance of 'Tosca' and 'Manon'."

Opera lovers are looking forward to a new role added to the already lengthy repertoire of Lawrence Tibbett. He will be the Figaro in Rossini's "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" for the first time when this opera is presented by the San Francisco Opera Company, and will probably be heard in the role at the Metropolitan.

A two months "work-out" is what the younger artists at the Met are receiving in preliminary study of stage technique. This is something new—another one of the many innovations of General Manager Edward Johnson. He engaged Lothar Wallerstein as a new stage director this year and the special course is under his direction. Among his apt young pupils are: Astrid Varnay, Mona Paulee and Eleanor Steber.

Lansing Hatfield, young baritone of the Metropolitan changes roles! A consistent winner of awards and prizes offered in musical competition, Mr. Hatfield now plays the part of donor. At a recent concert given at Peabody Music School he returned his fee to be used as a scholarship. Officials at the Conservatory have announced the winner to be Mary Louise Waltersdorf of Hanover, Pennsylvania, who gets a year of vocal training. Hatfield has been studying 13 operatic roles and after a two month concert tour which takes him all the way from North Carolina to Vancouver, British Columbia, he will return to New York December 15 to start rehearsals for his first year at the Met.

NEWS in the WORLD of RELIGION

By W. W. Reid

Dr. Wallace Crawford, professor of public health in West China Union University, Chengtu, China—an institution supported by a group of Canadian and United States mission agencies—has been "drafted" by the Chinese government to organize health services in cities along the trunk highways leading out from Szechuan Province. These are the line along which Free China is now receiving its supplies of food and of war material. A number of new hospitals have been erected by the Red Cross and the government in these cities now overflowing with refugee populations, but there has been a lack of trained medical personnel. Eighty per cent of the medical graduates of West China University Medical School and of Cheeloo University Medical School this year have been called into army and government health service.

The Hubbard Bible Class of the Central Presbyterian Church, Rochester, N. Y., is believed to be the oldest Bible class for men in the world. It has been in continuous existence since January 3, 1869, meeting every Sunday morning since that time. The Rev. E. P. Westphal, Presbyterian director of religious work among men (1132 Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa.) is seeking to learn if there is an older class in existence anywhere.

"Religious persons should attempt to improve human life instead of withdrawing from worldly reality," said Rabbi David de Sola Pool recently at the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, New York. "The truly religious man will not reject the flesh, and flee the world and mundane interests, but will try to mould human life to more beautiful forms."

Finding that the enrollment of nine of its colleges, schools and theological seminaries is down this year while the cost of maintenance has risen steadily, the Board of Education of the Northern Baptist Convention has launched a campaign to raise an emergency fund to assist these institutions. They are stretched across the continent—from a classical institute in Maine to a divinity school in California.

Perhaps there are few men in America more interested in the morning's news about Singapore and the Malay Peninsula and their defenses than is Captain-Doctor William G. Shellabear, now living in retirement in Hartford, Conn., in his eightieth year. . . Fifty-five years ago, as a young engineering officer of the British Army, he was sent to Singapore to help build its defenses. A brilliant linguist in college, he found it helpful to study the Malay language and later the Chinese to carry on his work with native soldiers and the Chinese immigrant residents. But, as he carried on his defense building, he realized the need of the Malays and other peoples for education, for Christianity, for modern medical care. So he resigned his military commission and joined the Methodist Mission then extending its work in the Peninsula. For fifty years—and even today in his retirement—he has been producing a vast Christian literature, principally in Malay, but also in Chinese and related tongues. He has translated the Bible, composed and translated hymns, written hundreds of books and tracts. He is still a "best seller" in Malaya and colporteurs carry his publications through this Asiatic island world, including Java, Sumatra and Borneo. He believes that Christian education is one of Singapore's most vital defenses today.

A Solomon Islander, son of a headhunter, has been graduated with distinction from the Medical School of Suva, Fiji Islands, and now returns to his native people as a medical practitioner. John Wesley Kere, N.M.P., won the gold medal for surgery at the Medical School, was a member of the first cricket eleven, and captain of the Rugby Team which won the noted Farebrother Trophy. He was educated under the auspices of the Methodist Church of New Zealand, and completed his internship at the Leper Settlement at Makogai.

Police who found John J. Jones lying on a railroad track near Los Angeles, thought he was dead, and started for the morgue. On the way, Jones raised up and asked what was happening.

To Mark 130th Anniversary

Plans have been completed by the Rev. O. A. Bartley, pastor of the Newark Methodist Church, for the celebration of the 130th anniversary of the founding of the church. Rev. Oliver J. Collins, district superintendent, will open a week's program on Sunday when he will deliver the opening message. Highlight of the celebration will occur on Nov. 9 when the church mortgage will be burned.

where we were having a great revival. People of all descriptions are coming to God. We have received a hundred new members and the prospect is as bright as ever. Brother Tyson is building us a church, and then we shall be well off for room."

This church was completed the following year, and stood at the end of Chapel Street which was named for it. This building was used as a church for 40 years.

In 1852 a new church was erected on Main Street. This church was dedicated by Bishop Waugh on Sunday, March 21, 1852. This building was destroyed by fire, July 16, 1861.

The new building, costing $12,000, was dedicated Jan. 8, 1865.

In 1904 an entrance was added to the church as a memorial. Several years later a small addition was added to the rear to house a heating plant, displacing the coal stoves in the Sunday school room. Electric lights displaced the old kerosene lamps.

Purchase Lot

In 1925 a lot was purchased on Academy Street. On July 15, 1926, the services of the Bureau of Architecture of the church was formed to plan for a new building. After plans were submitted, it was found that the cost would be too great, so the project lay dormant until the fall of 1931 when a building committee was appointed by the congregation to consider the matter of adding an educational unit to the present building.

Ground was broken for the new addition at a special service on Easter Sunday, 1932. The corner stone was laid in June of the same year. On Sunday, Oct. 16, 1932, the service of dedication was held with Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, D. D., L. L. D., officiating. The new addition cost $51,000.

The church has a present membership of 596. The Sunday School enrollment totals 694. Property value, including church and parsonage, is $98,000.

Decrease In Crops Sign Of Changes Made

On first glance at the contents of the new Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station Bulletin 230, it appears that Delaware farming might be slipping. For the bulletin, prepared by C. E. Burkhead of the U. S. Department of Agricultural Marketing Service, and Dr. R. O. Bausman, agricultural economist for the Delaware Station, shows that during the past 75 years, annual production of corn in the State has slumped from around 200,000 to about 140,000 acres. Similar decreases in production are indicated for wheat, butter, wool and pork.

But Dr. Bausman explains that the decreases in production for certain products is simply one sign of changes in crops being made by Diamond State farmers. Farmers are actually adjusting their enterprises to produce those crops and livestock products for which there is a demand. Since the first World War, men who operate Delaware's 10,000 farms have boosted output of cucumbers, cantaloupes, watermelons, fluid milk and chickens.

Farmers shifting away from the production of the more staple items like grains, butter and dressed meats, have good reason for making these changes. Butter, dressed meats and grains can be produced for market cheaper in the western States, and western farmers can ship the staples long distances at fairly low haulage costs. The freight charges might be called a natural tariff for Delaware farmers against the production of the State's farm specialties in sections located far from eastern markets.

IMPROVED ROADS FROM FUEL TAX

Farmers Being Pulled Out Of Mud Fast

Delaware farmers are being pulled out of the mud at a rapid rate by the flow of automotive tax dollars being collected from the state's highways at a record-high level, H. V. Secretary, Associated Petroleum Industries of Delaware, said today.

The 1940 Census of the federal government shows that 53 per cent of the roads on this state are located on unimproved dirt roads, as compared with 64 per cent in 1930. That certainly shows remarkable progress during the past decade in pulling the farmers of the state out of the mud," said Mr. Secretary.

Working progress also was made in upgrading hard-surfaced highways into sections of the state. In 1940, the state shows 42.7 per cent of all the roads on this state were situated on hard-surfaced highways, as compared with only 30.5 per cent in 1930. Most of the roads in Delaware are now located on good roads or are comparatively short distances of hard-surfaced highways. Farmers of this state recognize the economic utility of highway transportation and what it has made possible in the way of improved facilities and improved social conditions. Under these conditions farmers are openly and vigorously against the diversion of motor revenues to any purpose aside from highway use."

STORAGE FOOD REVISED

Food prices are advancing at a rapid pace. Miss Louise R. Whitcomb, management specialist for the University of Delaware, is suggesting that farm families store vegetables for their own use. Storage is the least expensive method of holding certain vegetables that will keep fresh.

In discussing home vegetable storage with W. H. Phillips of the University horticulture department, Miss Whitcomb was advised that successful storage requires good, healthy vegetables to start with. Phillips also pointed out that different vegetable crops have different storage requirements.

Beets, carrots, winter radishes, winter cabbage, white potatoes and onions keep best in a cool, moist atmosphere. One way to provide this atmosphere is to select a well-drained piece of ground and dig a pit a foot or two deep, from four to six feet wide and of length desired. Line the pit with straw, six inches of straw and pile the vegetables carefully on the straw. Then pile six inches more straw is matted over the vegetables and covered with high soil to prevent freezing.

In low ground, a mound storage can be constructed by placing six to eight inches of straw on the ground, piling vegetables on the straw, covering with an equal amount of straw when about eight inches of soil.

Another way to store vegetables is to use a wooden barrel on its side and fill it with about four inches of soil. The barrel is banked around the sides so the barrel looks like a mound of earth. Over the soil, place six inches of straw and over this four more inches of earth. More leaves may be piled on top if desired. The vegetables are piled in the barrel, the lid laid in the barrel and earth and leaves are piled over the lid.

Wooden boxes in the cellar can be used to store carrots and turnips. The sand is changed from time to time. Sweet potatoes and pumpkins keep best in a dry place, such as a basement, heated by a furnace or near the farm kitchen range. Onions usually require cool, dry storage conditions.

FARM LOANS AVAILABLE

Fred Rickards, Supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office of the Farm Credit Administration, announces that loans are available for the planting of fall grain crops or other crops planted at this season of the year. The Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office also makes loans at this season for the purpose of purchasing hay and other feed for livestock.

Loans are available to those farmers who are qualified under the regulations. They are limited to $400 to any individual and are designed to help that group of farmers who do not have a normal source of cash credit readily available. Loans made at this season of the year mature August 31, 1942. The interest rate is 4 per cent.

Persons desiring further information should write or contact Mr. Rickards at the Post Office Building at Newark, Delaware or by calling at the office of G. M. Worrlow, County Agricultural Agent, Recitation Hall, University of Delaware, Newark.

SILENT SOLDIERS

The four horsemen have ridden hard this year. They have brought War, Famine, Pestilence, and Death to a large part of the world. It will take every last ounce of strength and knowledge possessed by mankind to halt their sweeping horror. Before many weeks pass, the great annual Christmas Seal campaign will be on in earnest. The funds from these little seals are used to fight one of the most powerful of the horsemen's allies—Tuberculosis.

Through the ages tuberculosis has been known as the great white plague. For centuries it was the number one killer. In times of distress it literally destroyed whole populations. The fact that this is not true today is due solely to the achievements resulting from the continuous sacrifices of medical scientists. C. L. Newcomb, Christmas Seal sale director for the National Tuberculosis Association, recently said: "In the 34 years of Christmas Seal sales, the tuberculosis death rate has been cut by three-fourths, but the disease last year took over 1,000 more American lives than were killed or died from wounds in the American Expeditionary Force in the first World War."

Tuberculosis is still a major problem. With the world again facing conditions that will make a fertile field for a new outbreak of the disease, it behooves the individual to look with new significance this year on the cheery seals adorning his greeting cards. They are silent soldiers in a gigantic battle, a crucial battle between humanity—and the four horsemen.

FREE PRESS AND FREE ENTERPRISE

"The free press," said Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade, recently, "is the major defense that can keep one man or one group of men from stealing a government and operating it in the interest of a privileged few. The newspaper, not only because of its information service, not only because of its analysis of national policies, but because of its advertising service, is vital to the economic health and well-being of this country."

"Business deserves to be immeasurably more free from bureaucratic regulation than it is. No medium is in such good position, so well equipped, as the newspapers to preach and to teach the value of free enterprise."

A free press exists only where free enterprise exists. In the total state, the newspaper is of necessity the voice of the clique in power. It dances to the dictator's song. It spreads lies and advances corruption in high places. It is used for the selfish ends of the few—not for the service of the many.

Here in the United States the free press has done a magnificent job of building and perpetuating the democratic, free enterprise system. It was the newspapers of America, small no less than large, which encouraged private industry. Our electric power development, oil production, coal, and metal mining, and a thousand and one varieties of enterprise have had the aid of a free press, to the great benefit of the public. And this same free press has been the first to ferret out and publicize graft whenever it appeared in industry or in government.

Socialism would mean the destruction of the free press—precisely as it would mean the destruction of free enterprise in all fields, because it necessitates a dictated press and a dictated industry. As President Roosevelt has said, a free press "must be maintained against all costs." And the only way it can be maintained is to preserve and protect the free enterprise system which gives it life.

ADVERTISING

Who pays the cost of advertising? Some say the advertisers pay for it, and thus reduce their profits. Others say the consumers pay for it, and thus reduce their profits. Others say the consumers pay for it in higher prices for advertised goods.

Neither of these opinions is correct. Those who really pay for advertising are the concerns that do not advertise, and the consumers that do not buy advertised goods.

The non-advertising concerns pay in the sales it loses to advertising competition. Consumers who do not buy advertised goods pay for advertising in dissatisfaction with unsponsored goods and in the lack of superior value common to advertised goods.

Because of the increased volume of sales obtained by regular advertisers their overhead and selling costs are less per dollar of sales, thus they net more profit by being advertisers. Because they get better and more reliable merchandise, consumers save money and derive more satisfaction by buying from advertisers. The proof that both these statements are true is the general growth and success of advertising concerns.

DEFENSE MEASURES IN THE HOME—I

FLORENCE JANE OVENS

"Aunt Bertha, Aunt Bertha!" screamed Gladys.

"Silly!" scornfully ejaculated her cousin John. "Afraid of a potato bug!"

Aunt Bertha reproved John and petted Gladys. But neither petting nor scolding will make Gladys a brave child.

Perhaps she needs to have her aversion to crawling things lessened and finally overcome through a cultivated interest in them. Of course, if she is really afraid, the proper way is to find the cause and begin reconditioning. Quite likely, however, Gladys enjoys the excitement her outcries arouse. If that is the case, little attention should be paid to them, and she should be praised when she manifests the least bit of courage. She might be shown, too, how she could help some younger child to be unafraid.

"Mother, will you please ask the teacher to change my seat?"

"Why don't you ask her?"

"She won't do it for me."

"Why do you want it changed?"

"Cause I don't want to go to school if I have to sit next to Mussolini."

"And who is Mussolini?"

"A wo-I mean an Italian boy."

"Is that his name?"

"The boys call him that. His name is Muriilo."

Here is a wonderful opportunity, at home and at school, to teach American ideals. It will do little good to tell the boys they are unkind. They must be taught by experience of their own to understand and appreciate the principles that underlie the unity of our mixed American population.

"Grandfather, I think our Governor ought to be put in prison."

"What are you talking about, Dick? The Governor's a fine man."

"I've been listening to Uncle Ben and Uncle Ed. Uncle Ed thinks he's all right, but Uncle Ben says he's awful—says he's cheating all of us."

"You didn't understand, Dick. They were just talking politics."

"Is it all right to say things like that when you're talking politics—that is, if they aren't so?"

"Well—folks do sometimes."

"It doesn't make sense to me."

Does it "make sense" to any of us when we consider it calmly? This child needs help that is difficult to give. Boys and girls ought to be shown that intelligent people should debate without rancor.

The strength of any country's defense depends in general on three considerations: its geographic position, its equipment and—its people. The last is a notably important factor, and this factor is chiefly dependent on the home. Every loyal American, today, who is fortunate enough to have a home and children, has at least one defense project on which he can always be engaged.

Men and women hear the call for volunteers. Some join the army, others engage in the preparation of equipment, but hundreds of thousands wonder vaguely what they can do. They go to the doors of their homes, homes in which there are young people or little children, and they look out, questioning. If they are in earnest, the U. S. O. and many other organizations will be found eager to direct their efforts in worthwhile outside defense measures, but it should be remembered that there are few homes where there is not a great deal of defense building to be done inside. This, too, is urgent work, because of its decisive position in the protection of our Country.

FOOD for THOUGHT

"Cooperation in School Lunches"

Many Delaware agencies cooperate to see that there are no hungry school children at lunch time.

The Delaware Parent-Teacher Association, the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Association, the Delaware Red Cross, the Old Age Welfare Commission, the Surplus Marketing Administration, the National Youth Administration, the University of Delaware Extension Service, State College, the Delaware Health Council, the Delaware White House Conference Committee, the Delaware State Nutrition Council as well as the State Board of Health—that is an impressive list of agencies to be working hand in hand with teachers and the State Department of Public Instruction to provide good nourishing lunches for all children who eat at school and particularly for those who are most in need of good food.

The Old Age Welfare Commission distributes surplus commodities to schools which apply for them. The commodities are used to provide lunches for children who are needy or malnourished. However, without the cooperation of other agencies, particularly local Parent-Teacher Associations and the rural school teachers it would not be possible to use these commodities.

The Surplus Marketing Administration does not promise that the foods distributed will in themselves form a well balanced lunch. It is up to the community to take these commodities, add to them other needed foods, and use them in school lunches for all the children.

According to a recent White House Conference study of Delaware school lunches about 12,000 Delaware children outside of Wilmington eat lunch at school. Surplus commodities are provided for about 4,500 of this number.

Safety Hints

It must be that when men get behind the steering wheels of automobiles they get some sort of irresistible urge that comes from way out of this world. That urge, or whatever it is, makes them flit with catastrophe. The motto of many of them is: "See how close you can come and still miss!" In almost every sport the philosophy of the same men would be completely reversed.

In baseball the motto for a batter is: Hit 'Em Where They Ain't. No batter tries to hit the ball as close as he can to a fielder and still get his hit. He parks it, if he can, as far from all fielders as possible.

No ball carrier in a football game tries to see how close he can come to being tackled and still shake loose. He tries to stay as far from all tacklers as he possibly can.

No boxer drops his guard and dares an opponent to pop him. He stays as far out of harm's way as he can. Basketball, rowing, tennis, golf—any sport you can name—challenges and stimulates a competitor to do the most convincing good job that he can.

To watch many of them, says the Delaware Safety Council, you'd think that getting home safely was the least of their worries. You know the kind—they duck in and out of traffic, drive while they're drunk, break the speed limits most of the time, scare the daylights out of pedestrians, try to stop on dimes, drive when they're so tired they hardly can hold their heads up.

In short, they deliberately skate just as close to a crack-up and trouble as they can.

It defies understanding that a driver doesn't apply the same reasoning to doing his job of driving as a halfback, a batter, a golfer, a boxer or any other athlete applies in his particular sport—to get the job done efficiently and without taking any chances of losing.

Every day for two years Callie M. Walker of Meridan, Miss., memorized a poem, a Bible verse, a joke, and learned the definition of a new word.

FELLOWSHIP SUPPER IS STAGED

Affair Held Monday At Brack-Ex Church

Brack-Ex, Oct. 29 — Officers and members of Brack-Ex Methodist Church and Sunday School were entertained at a fellowship supper in the social hall Monday evening. Mrs. Warren A. Mammel and Mrs. Oliver H. Graham were acting hostesses.

The monthly business meeting of the church was held following the supper. William C. Lang, superintendent, presided and plans for Christmas were discussed.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Brack-Ex Methodist Church is participating in the observance of a week of prayer and self-denial which is being marked in all Christian Churches this week. Mrs. Warren A. Mammel, spiritual life chairman, has arranged for two local services in connection with the observance and members will also attend a district service on this Thursday afternoon.

The Brookland Terrace Civic Club will sponsor a Hallowe'en dance in the Brookland Civic Club building on this Thursday evening. Mrs. Paul King, president and means chairman, heads the committee. More than $50 in prizes will be awarded in conjunction with the dance. Plans were made at the home of Mrs. Roland Adkinson where the monthly business meeting was held. Mrs. W. Robson presided.

Plans are being made at Brack-Ex Methodist Church for the annual roast turkey supper to be served by the Ladies Bible Class in the social hall of the church on Saturday evening, November 15. Mrs. William S. Bullock, president, and Mrs. William A. Fincher, general chairman. Final plans will be completed at the meeting on Thursday evening, Nov. 6.

Rev. Haverly, a senior at Princeton Theological Seminary, preached Sunday morning at Elsmere Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Dr. Albert H. Kleffman, pastor of West Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, has been named moderator of the local church by the Presbytery of New Castle and will have charge of the work here in cooperation with local leaders and officials until a regular pastor is appointed.

Will deliver the Newark Post for fifty-two weeks.

CLOTHING PROBLEM DISCUSSED

Average Outlay For Four Is $93

The present increases in prices for clothing have prompted Miss Louise Whitecomb, University of Delaware home management specialist to urge special consideration of clothing expenses as purchases of winter garments are being made. A survey among 56 rural Delaware families in 1940 reveals that the average spent for clothing by a family of four came to $93 during the year.

The Delaware home management specialist maintains that "the homemaker who can do some sewing at home is particularly fortunate this year. Many a rural homemaker has found it necessary to assist with farm chores this summer. And along with canning, this farm work has not left her much spare time. The family will have to cooperate with her and relieve her as cook and laundress so she may turn seamstress for a time to help ease the strain on the family purse."

Present prospects indicate fewer choices in ready-to-wear garments. And there is possibility of a scarcity of some materials like wool and silk. Also, costs of ready-to-wear garments will continue to go up. So clothing choices must be made without mistakes. Articles will probably be bought with the idea of longer wear so the homemaker must know workmanship, quality, expected length of wear and whether or not the attire can be cared for easily at home. Homemakers have reported longer wear from garments of better grade. They feel such clothing is a good investment.

Care of clothing is a job for all members of the family. Boys and girls can be taught the importance of hanging up their clothes and other ways to care for them. They should have ample closet and drawer space for their clothing needs. Good laundering practices should be carried out for all clothing. Miss Whitecomb claims garments may be preserved for long-time use by checking the labels which give full cleaning instructions.

ARTIFICIAL BREEDING IS STARTED

Decreased Cost Are Benefits

A group of dairymen in Delaware's northern county have banded together to form the State's first dairy cattle artificial breeding ring—the New Castle County Cooperative Artificial Breeding Association — under sponsorship of county agricultural agent George M. Worrlow.

The new organization is being fostered in an effort to improve herds by obtaining high-producing daughters from prominent sires. The association will have use of two Holstein, two Guernsey and two Jersey bulls. Guernsey bulls will be at Bredidabik Farm, Wilmington; Holsteins at Winterthur Farm, Winterthur, and the Jerseys at Woodside Farm, Hockessin.

Present officers of the New Castle County Cooperative Artificial Breeding Association are Paul Mitchell, Hockessin, president, and W. Lewis Phipps, Centreville, secretary. A committee in charge of selecting the bulls to be used by the association is chairmanned by agricultural agent Worrlow and includes H. Wilson Price, Glasgow; John Green, Middletown, and the association officers.

Association members pay an all-time membership fee of $5. And $5 is paid for each cow bred by the association's veterinarian. The five dollar breeding fee pays for three breedings of each animal if necessary. A member can enter his entire herd of 20 cows and be eligible for refund of the breeding fee for any cow that fails to breed after three inseminations.

A minimum of 1,000 cows is needed before actual work of the association begins. Farmers are circulating throughout the county now to solicit membership in the association and to make a survey of the number of cows qualified to be installed on the organization's roster. These farmers include the officers, members of the sire-selection committee and Pusey Passmore, Talleyville; M. W. Klair, Marshallton; Charles Moore, Bear; C. W. Straw, Newark, and Fred Heindol and Walter Lee, Townsend.

Planning More Defense Foods

Farmers in this State and elsewhere in America are beginning to make plans for producing more "defense foods" in 1942. Among the highly-nutritious foods needed in greater quantity are milk, cheese, eggs, meats, and vegetables. Good market prices for the year are assured. Every farmer in the nation will be visited this fall by an AAA farm program committeeman who will assist in planning the increases.

Committeemen To Start House-To-House Canvass

AAA committeemen in each Delaware county are ready to start a farm-to-farm canvass on November 1 to enlist fellow farmers in the current Food-For-Freedom program.

The statewide campaign is being staged under the direction of the Delaware-U. S. Department of Agriculture Defense Board. Chairman of the defense board is C. E. Oehlertree of Greenwood, who is also chairman of the State AAA Committee.

Statistics experts of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have worked out recommended goals for farm production of certain commodities during 1942. Suggested Delaware goals call for an increase of two per cent for milk, three per cent for the number of dairy cows, 10 per cent for eggs, varying increases for certain canning vegetables and a general increase in the number of home vegetable gardens.

Goals that have been outlined for Delaware are being broken down on a county basis. Then every farmer in the county will be visited during the drive starting on November 1 and will be asked to make a 1942 plan that will help toward meeting the goals, all on a voluntary basis. When the 1942 plans are added up, the Nation will have for the first time in history a complete picture of anticipated farm production for the coming year.

SERVICE EXAMS

Annually, the Civil Service Commission announces an examination under the title of "Junior Professional Assistant" which includes a number of optional fields. It is intended to promote a career service in Government professional and scientific fields by enabling graduating students at colleges to compete for and enter the service at the junior grade level, requiring no experience, in these fields. The registers established for junior administrative technicians, business analysts, and economists from the junior professional assistant examination announced early this year have been used extensively. In anticipation of continuing heavy demands the United States Civil Service Commission has announced the junior professional assistant examination in these three fields. The new examination is announced to augment, not to replace, those registers. Both regular and defense agencies of the Government are in need of these three types of eligibles. The positions pay $2,000 a year.

It is expected that the annual junior professional assistant examination covering other subjects will be announced in January 1942, but without these three fields. Accordingly, all interested persons, including college seniors and graduate students, who are qualified and will complete the required special courses prior to July 1, 1942, are urged to make application under this announcement. Applications must be filed not later than November 3, with the Civil Service Commission in Washington, D. C. Applicants must not have passed their thirty-fifth birthday.

Full information as to the requirements for these examinations, and application forms, may be obtained from C. S. Crompton, Secretary of the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, at the Newark post office.
