Masons Will Erect Temple at Early Date

Decision Finally Made at Meeting Monday Night

Committee Named to Secure Lot. Have Option on Main St. Property

Wray Lodge, No. 25, A. F. and A. M., at a meeting held last Monday evening, reached the definite decision that they will erect here a Masonic Temple. While this matter has been under discussion for some time, no definite steps had been taken until the last meeting, when a committee was appointed to secure a site for the building. This committee consisting of David C. Rose, George W. Griffin and Edward L. Richards, have busied themselves and secured an option on the lot belonging to the Misses Wilson, on Main Street. This will undoubtedly be the site of the building.

This lodge is one of the largest and most active in Delaware and has the reputation for doing things. This new project is, in the language of one of its most active supporters, practically "a sure thing."

Owing to failure of the electric current on Wednesday, and for several hours on Tuesday, this week's issue of the Post is delayed and much local news necessarily omitted and curtailed.

Property Sales and Improvements

David C. Rose sold during the past week two houses on Continental Ave. to Rev. W. W. Walls of Mt. Carmel, Pa.

The new pavement fronting the College properties on South College Avenue, is completed as far as the Practice House grounds and did splendid service during the heavy traffic incident to the numerous college activities of the week-end.

Bids Out for Water Plant Improvement

Bids are out for improvements to the water plant of the town and are returnable on June 30.

Old Delaware Graduates Largest Class in Her History

Distinguished Speaker Lays Aside Formal Address

Tells Simply and Feelingly of Motives Which Determind Acceptance of Invitation to Address Graduates

An abundance of golden sunshine was furnished by nature to match the true blue of Old Delaware's sons whose loyalty and love for their Alma Mater brought them back in such large numbers to attend the 50th Anniversary Commencement held on Monday morning under the historic lindens. Every space within hearing distance was filled with relatives of the graduates and friends of the college, many of whom had journeyed miles to share in the joys of this significant occasion.

In the academic procession as guard of honor to the distinguished speaker, Thomas Nelson Page, were alumni who served to illustrate the point of the speaker's address covering the influence of the small college in turning out men of distinction.

Every man having a place on the day's program at both colleges is an alumnus of Delaware College. The invocation was asked by Rev. John Newton Huston, '74; the address for the trustees by Chancellor Charles Minot Curtis, '77; the awarding of prizes and diplomas by Dean Edward Laurence Smith, '96, and the benediction by Rev. Charles Wright Clash, '06; Rev.

ILLICIT LIQUOR TRAFFIC DISCLOSED BY ACCIDENT

Culprits Held for U. S. Action; Local Larceny Case Results

Illicit liquor traffic was disclosed on Sunday afternoon through an automobile accident which occurred on Elkton Road. A Packard car, the occupants of which gave their names as Patrick J. McGrath and Paul Miner, of Washington, D. C., crashed into a Ford car containing W. E. Reardon of Healey, Md., John L. Dundan of Baltimore, Gustave Prevost and others. The occupants of the Ford car were thrown out and two of them injured. Dundan's injuries were such that he was hurried immediately to Delaware Hospital. The others escaped with minor injuries. Charges of assault and battery were brought against McGrath and Miner, who were each fined $30 and costs.

Examination of their machine disclosed the presence of 55 quarts of liquor and an additional charge for statutory offense was lodged against them. They admitted traffic in liquor and told of their marvelous profits. They were held in $1000 bail and sent to the Workhouse to await action of the Federal authorities for transporting liquor without permit, across dry territory.

Larceny Case from Above

During the excitement incident to the above, a portion of the Packard's valuable cargo mysteriously found its way into an adjoining field. John Mayer was accused of the theft and W. T. David was charged with being accessory and witness to the theft. After an altercation in which David is alleged to have been struck by Officer Apsley, both men were placed under arrest.

The hearing was set for last night in Squire Lovett's office. George L. Townsend was counsel for the defendants. The room was jammed to suffocation with friends of the men and curious auditors.

The evidence as presented by Clyde Baylis, Joseph Reed, Roger Lovett and others was somewhat conflicting. David, however, was cleared and dismissed. Mayer was held for further hearing on Saturday evening.

Trustees Elect New President of Delaware College at Saturday's Meeting

Dr. Walter Hullihen Wires Acceptance Monday

Has Unusual Qualities of Leadership, Which Led to Choice from Eight Candidates for Position

Dr. Walter Hullihen, Dean of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tennessee, was on Saturday elected to the presidency of Delaware College. Out of eight candidates considered by the committee, Dr. Hullihen was the only one recommended to the Trustees as embodying all the qualities of scholarship, broad interest in educational activities, progressiveness, and breadth of experience essential for the position.

Dr. Hullihen telegraphed his acceptance of the presidency on Monday. He served in the World War and attained the rank of Colonel.

Aged Resident Meets Death In Tragic Accident

Miss Elizabeth Kollock, aged 83 years, was run down and killed by an automobile truck last Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock.

Miss Kollock was crossing the street from Wm. P. Wollaston's store, which is almost directly across the street from her home, when the fatal accident happened. She had exchanged greetings with Misses Katherine Steele and Helen Leak, who were passing and was watching her chance to cross the street in safety. She avoided a team passing eastward and failed to see the truck. The team hid Miss Kollock from the view of the truck driver, who was unable to avoid striking her. One wheel is said to have passed over her chest. One hip was broken by the force of the fall. The young ladies above mentioned, together with members of the Wollaston family and others who were in the neighborhood and heard the victim's cry, hastened to her aid and carried her into her brother's office. Drs. Steel and Blake were summoned and with Dr. Kollock, who arrived shortly afterward, rendered every possible aid but she died in a short time.

The truck was owned by H. B. Wright and driven by George Jackson, aged 19 years. The driver was placed under arrest and held by Magistrate Lovett under $5000 bail for the coroner's inquest. This was held on Saturday and the testimony of witnesses to the accident showed that it was unavoidable. He was therefore exonerated by the coroner's jury.

Miss Kollock was born in Millsboro in 1835, the second child of the late Joseph and Sara Kollock. She was educated at St. Mary's Seminary, Burlington, N. J. She also attended the School of Art in Philadelphia. About 35 years ago she came to Newark and since that time has made her home with her brother, Dr. Henry G. M. Kollock.

She was a woman of admirable character and unusually pleasing personality—qualities which endeared her to a wide circle of friends and won the respect and admiration of all with whom she came in contact. She was possessed of artistic talent which manifested itself in painting and in the pleasing diction of her written and spoken word. She was actively interested in the New Century Club and until a few years ago was a frequent and much sought contributor to club programs, where her papers were always thoroughly enjoyed. She was a keen analyst and clear thinker. She retained full mental vigor and active interest in affairs until the time of her death.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Annie W. Frame, of Millsboro, who is 87 years old; and three brothers, William Shephard, aged 83 years; Joseph A., aged 72 years, also of Millsboro, and Henry G. M., of his town.

Funeral services were held on Sunday evening at her late home here and early Monday morning the body was taken to Prince George's Chapel, near Lewes, where service was also held. Interment was made in the nearby cemetery.

I. O. O. F. TO HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICES NEXT SUNDAY

Rev. Frank Herson to Preach Sermon in Honor of Deceased Members

In accordance with a proclamation issued recently by Grand Sire, Henry V. Bost of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, a memorial service will be held by all subordinate lodges which have suffered loss of membership through death. June 6th was the date suggested but the proviso was made that any other date more convenient for the lodges might be chosen. This statement was sent broadcast to the state lodges by Grand Master R. R. Derriekson, together with the suggestion that Sunday, June 13th, be substituted. Since both of these dates had already been set apart by the local churches for special services, Oriental Lodge, No. 12, of Newark, has set apart Sunday, June 20th, for this service. It will be held in the Methodist church and Rev. Frank Herson will deliver the memorial sermon for members who have died since June 16th, 1918. This list includes the following:

Charles W. Clark, November 1, 1918; George L. Brooks, January 2, 1919; J. Albert Brown, April 5, 1919; Charles Leak, May 8, 1919; J. Rankin Armstrong, July 5, 1919; Theodore F. Armstrong, October 22, 1919; David Constantine, February 20, 1920; Linwood M. Simpler, March 19, 1920.

The committee on arrangements, Thomas A. Mullin, Daniel Stoll, William M. Gamble, requests every member to be at the I. O. O. F. Hall at 10 o'clock that morning.

Third Commencement at Women's College Well Attended

Dr. Elizabeth Kemper Adams Delivers Address

Noted Guests Present Speak Informally; Thirteen Young Women Receive Degrees

Following the custom inaugurated at the first Commencement, the graduating exercises for The Women's College were held in huge tent on the campus. Here a large company of friends and relatives of the class and a number of distinguished visitors assembled on Monday afternoon to witness the third annual commencement. Degrees were conferred upon 13 young ladies. The academic procession was a notable one, containing in addition to the President, S. C. Mitchell, Dean Winifred J. Robinson and Dr. Elizabeth Kemper Adams, the faculty, Hon. Thomas Nelson Page, Chancellor Samuel Black McCormick of the University of Pittsburgh, Chancellor Charles M. Curtis, Mrs. A. D. Warner and Rev. W. H. Briggs of Selbyville, known as "The Governor's Pastor."

Music was furnished by the orchestra and the College Glee Club, who sang two selections, under the leadership of Miss Dora Wileox, "The Snow," by Edward Edgar, and "Beauteous Morn" by Edward German.

The address of the occasion was a masterly exposition of "The New Professional Spirit," as applied to women who are playing a larger part in the world's work since the world war than ever before.

Professional etiquette, the breaking down of the barriers of exclusiveness which has hitherto encompassed the professions, the recognition of the inter-relation between the professions and the trades, were set forth clearly. She explained that the community service, the Americanization work, the other fine movements which are bringing professional people into close personal contact with all classes of people have heightened the personal human values and filled the gap which has been said for so long to exist between education and life.

She spoke of the value of the fresh point of view which women are bringing to the professional field and averred that the security and progress of democracy depend upon efficient democratic service with all working together.

Distinguished Visitors Make Impromptu Addresses

Thomas Nelson Page lauded the work of women for the good of humanity, declaring that the moral standards of a nation are set by its women.

"What Youth Really Is"

Youth is not a time of life; it is a state of mind. It is not a matter of ripe cheeks, red lips, and supple knees; it is a temper of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions. It is the freshness of the deep springs of life.

Youth means a temperamental predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite for adventure over the love of ease. This often exists in a man of fifty more than in a boy of twenty.

Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years. People grow old only by deserting their ideals.

Years wrinkle the skin; but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul.

Worry, doubt, self-interest, fear and despair—these are the long, long years that bow the heart and turn the greening spirit back to dust.

Whether sixty or sixteen, there is in every human being's heart the lure of wonder, the sweet amazement at the stars and at star-like things and thoughts, the undaunted challenge of events, the unflinching, child-like appetite for what next, and the joy of the game of living. You are as young as your faith, as old as your doubt; as young as your hope, as old as your despair.

In the central place of your heart is an evergreen tree; its name is Love. So long as it flourishes you are young. When it dies you are old. In the central place of your heart is a wireless station. So long as it receives messages of beauty, hope, cheer, grandeur, courage and power from God and from your fellow men, so long are you young. —Bulletin of the American Iron and Steel Institute, New York.

For The Homemaker's Eye

Make a sauce by melting two tablespoonfuls of butter and browning in it 2 tablespoonfuls of chopped onion and 1 tablespoonful of chopped green pepper. Add chopped parsley to taste and cook all in the melted butter until tender and yellowed. Season with salt and pepper and stir in three tablespoonfuls of flour, and cook up to a froth. Add two cupfuls of meat or chicken broth, and cook slowly for fifteen minutes. Strain or skim off the flavorings and add the beaten yolks of two eggs mixed with a little lemon juice.

Asparagus Tops and Cheese.—Cut tender asparagus into inch lengths and cook in slightly salted water until tender. Drain, add a little butter and dry slightly over the fire. Spread the asparagus on a platter and cover with spreading of grated cheese mixed with butter, and add a pinch of cayenne pepper. Brown quickly in a hot oven and serve.

Asparagus Omelet.—Before making the omelet proper prepare the asparagus and sauce by cooking the tips until tender—enough to make one cupful—and mixing with a sauce made by cooking together two tablespoonfuls of butter, the same amount of flour, and one cupful of milk, seasoned to taste with salt and pepper. When the sauce is ready cook an omelet of three eggs beaten with three tablespoonfuls of ice water and seasoned. When the omelet is cooked spread the asparagus mixture on half of it and fold over. Serve on hot platter with parsley garnish.

To Can Asparagus
Sterilize the jars in boiling water in wash boiler for at least twenty minutes. In the meantime wash asparagus and cut off tough ends. Asparagus then should be blanched in order to set the color, to draw off a certain acid that would cause a sour jar and also to shrink the vegetable so a large amount may be put in the jar. To blanch, put the asparagus in a large cheesecloth and plunge into boiling water. When the water boils again, leave three minutes. Remove at once and dip into cold water. This sets the color, washes off the objectionable acid, hastens the shrinkage and makes the product cool enough to handle.

Preserved Pineapples and Strawberries
Pineapples and strawberries preserved together are delicious. To one pound of shredded pineapple use two pounds of hulled strawberries and three pounds of sugar. Mix the sugar and pineapple and let them stand two hours, then mix with the berries. Heat the mixture gradually in the preserving kettle, then let it boil (stirring well) until it thickens. This will take about twenty minutes. Red raspberries can be used instead of strawberries, or a pound of pitted cherries can be used instead of one pound of strawberries.

A Whole Dinner Cooked at Once
A good June dinner: Cut two pounds of lamb into cubes, roll the meat in flour and put in layers into a baking dish, along with potatoes, carrots and onions, cut in dice. Sprinkle with minced parsley, season with salt and pepper, cover with boiling water, and cover the dish with a tightly fitting lid and bake in a moderate oven for about two hours. About half an hour before serving add a cupful of peas. —Farm Journal.

A Strawberry Dessert
Make a stiff cornstarch custard. flavor with a half teaspoon of nutmeg. Rinse custard cups with cold water and let cool. To serve, unmold into a dessert plate and cover with crushed and sweetened berries.

Apple Turnover
Take about three pints of sour apples. Quarter and put them into a deep granite-ware or enameled pudding dish having a tight fitting cover. Roll out a soft biscuit dough to fit the dish. Lay it over the apples and press it snugly down at the greased edges of the baking dish so as to prevent the escape of steam. Oil the inside of the cover. Force it on tightly. Bake for half an hour. Do not raise the cover during the period of baking. Cut the pudding in pie-shaped sections with the apple on top. Serve with maple syrup, or grated maple sugar.

French Pudding
One quart of milk, three table-spoons of cornstarch, yolks of four eggs, half cup sugar and a little salt. Put part of the milk, salt and sugar on the stove and let it boil; dissolve the cornstarch in the rest of the milk; stir into the other milk, and while boiling add the yolks; then flavor with vanilla.

Here is the frosting: Whites of four eggs beaten to a stiff froth, half a cup of sugar, flavor with lemon and spread it on the pudding. Put it into the oven to brown, saving a little of the frosting to moisten the top. Then put on grated cocoanut to give it the appearance of snow flakes.

Some Asparagus Dishes
A little asparagus may still be secured and after the plentiful season is over and one has enjoyed it a la natural or according to one's favorite recipe, ways of combining it with other things to add variety are eagerly sought. A few "different" combinations follow:

Spanish Asparagus.—Cut off the tough ends and scales of asparagus, and tie in small bundles of three or four stalks each. Cover with boiling water and cook until tender.

Information for Guidance of Taxpayers

The following information for the guidance of taxpayers in the payment of the second installment of their income tax for the year 1919 is given out by Collector of Internal Revenue, H. T. Graham.

Bills for the second installment of the income tax for 1919, due on or before June 15, have been mailed to taxpayers. Unlike those of last year, the bills are non-detachable and are expected to be returned intact, accompanied by check or money order.

Payment in this manner is particularly desirable. It helps the taxpayer by saving him a trip to the office of the collector or branch office, and it helps the government by avoiding congestion at the cashier's window during the last few days preceding the date of payment. Besides a check is a receipt.

Failure of a taxpayer to receive a bill does not relieve him of his obligation to pay his tax within the time specified. To avoid penalty and interest the tax must be in the office of the collector on or before June 15.

Checks or money order should be made payable to 'Collector of Internal Revenue.' Payment may be made at the office of the Collector, H. T. Graham at the Federal Building, Wilmington.

WILL GIVE DEMONSTRATION OF CANNING METHOD

Extension Service Offers Rewards to Successful Clubs

The Extension Service of Delaware College, in co-operation with the County Farm Bureaus and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will conduct an all-day state canning leaders' demonstration conference at the public school building in Dover, on Friday, June 18th, beginning at 10.00 a. m.

Mr. George E. Farrell, national leader of Boys' and Girls' Club Work and a specialist in canning of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will explain and demonstrate the merits of the various canning devices, containers and equipments in use. Then he will also demonstrate how to can by actually canning fruits and vegetables by the most practical and up-to-date methods. Miss Helen L. Constock, club leader and demonstration agent of Kent county; Miss Dorothy Emerson, club leader and demonstration agent of Sussex county; Miss Agnes P. Medill, club leader of New Castle county, and other extension workers of Delaware College will assist in this work.

Canning Demonstrations in Home Communities

Volunteer canning club leaders, community advisers, experienced club members, and all others who are interested in better methods of canning, are invited to attend this meeting. These leaders will return to their own communities and help direct local groups of girls in learning how to can fruits, vegetables, meats and soups by the one-period cold-pack method.

Stress will be made on canning for home use, however, a few of the groups will also place their products on the market for sale.

Achievement Progress

In the fall, exhibits will be held in the various canning club communities of the state, and in September the best exhibits from each county will be shown at the Delaware State Fair. In addition, representative canning club teams from each county will compete in a state public canning club demonstration contest.

The best canning demonstration team of the state will be awarded with a free trip to the great Eastern States Agricultural and Industrial Exposition at Springfield, Massachusetts. There, the best of the Delaware state canning exhibits will be shown and the state team will compete with stellar canning club demonstration teams from the nine other eastern states.

The canning club girls who pack the ten best jars during this season will have the usual honor of placing their handiwork on exhibition for one year in the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D. C. The jar labels will identify the club members, the club, county and the state furnishing the exhibits.

Then as a grand finale at the close of a busy and profitable year, a number of canning club achievement champions from each county will be awarded with a free trip for a whole week to the Farmers' Short Course at Delaware College.

Any community in the state can have the help and service of the club leaders and demonstration agents of the County Farm Bureaus, provided that five or more club members between the ages of 10 and 21 years and a local leader are secured.

A Humorous Film of Army Life

Out in the wild and movie West they call Thomas H. Ince "the screen star-maker." If you have any doubts as to his right to this title, survey the list of luminaries he has supplied to the screen during the past six years: 1913, Sessue Hayakawa; 1914, William S. Hart and Bessie Barriscale; 1915, H. B. Warner, Frank Keenan, and William Desmond; 1916, Dorothy Dalton, Charles Ray, and Louise Glaum; and in 1917, Enid Bennett. Now Mr. Ince has gone and done it again, presenting as his latest addition to the stellar ranks the team of Doris May and Douglas McLean. The great producer has had these two talented young people under his wing for two years now, and he has never picked a failure yet, so it is reasonably certain that they are destined for a joint career of success. But Mr. Ince has taken no chances. He recently paid out $67,000 for six cheerful clever stories by noted authors as starring vehicles for his new finds. The first of these is "Twenty-three and a Half Hours' Leave" by Mary Roberts Rinehart, which has been made into a Paramount-Artercraft picture and will be shown at the Opera House Monday, January 21st.

Cooley Called to Colors

While filming the scenes of "The Burden of Proof," Marion Davies' second Select Picture which is to appear at the Opera House on Saturday, some of the scenes had to be done at top speed, the company working for several nights until nearly morning. The reason for this unusual proceeding was that Willard Cooley, who plays the part of Frank Raymond, was called to the colors before completing his work in the picture. Too many of the scenes had been shot to make it worth while retaking them all and using another for the part, so Miss Davies suggested working over hours and making all his scenes before he left for camp. "I am more than willing to do my share," said Miss Davies, "and I know that every one else feels the same way."

Mr. Cooley received word on Tuesday morning that he was to take a train at eight o'clock on the following Thursday. All night long the Cooper Hewitts glowed in the studio and nearly all the next night while the company worked at top speed. Several hours before the train left Mr. Cooley's final scene was shot and he was sent to a short rest before boarding the train. The story deals with intrigue in the capitol and thrills and holds one to the end.

A Husband for a Dollar

Who wants a husband for a dollar? Young, strong and handsome. Has no bad habits and will eat anything. Guaranteed to be kind and loving and to stay home nights.

Will be on exhibition next Tuesday night at the Opera House. One of the biggest laugh hits ever shown on the screen, say those who have seen it.

"The Lottery Man," as Rida Johnson Young's famous stage play, convulsed the theatre-going public. Wallace Reid is the man who raffles himself to pay a debt and is "knocked down for eight bits." He is supported by a brilliant cast including Wanda Hawley and Harrison Ford. If you have a husband, need a husband, are a husband or would be a husband, here's a picture with more fun and excitement than any circus when you were ten, so they say.

Card of Thanks

We sincerely desire to thank all relatives and friends who extended aid and sympathy at the recent death of our baby Margaret, and especially to those who contributed automobiles and flowers.

Handsome Is That Handsome Does

The old fashioned maxim holds good in the world of furniture as well as that of men, and solid worth is what counts in the long run. But there is no reason for sacrificing beauty to worth when the two can be combined.

The furniture we sell proves this to be true. Constructed on the best and most durable lines, it not only proclaims from every curve that it is handsome, but will verify its claims by doing handsomely.

It is the great test of the goodfurniture maker to produce pieces which combine lightness and delicacy of design with solidity and durability. Our furniture is made by masters of the trade.

We should be delighted to show you our stock at any time.

WHOOPING COUGH

Whooping cough is a most distressing disease both to the parent and to the child. It is a long and protracted illness, usually lasting from six to ten weeks. One attack usually confers a permanent immunity. It develops from four to fourteen days after exposure. The first symptoms noticed are those of a rather severe cold accompanied by a peculiar spasmodic cough, which is out of all proportion to the other symptoms, and often causes vomiting. In the beginning, for the first ten days or two weeks, the characteristic whoop is not present. The cough occurs in short, sharp paroxysms, but in the later stages terminating in a long drawn-out audible inspiration of air known as the "whoop." The face is swollen, the eyes are red and watery, and there is usually some fever. The chief treatment of the disease if it is uncomplicated, is prophylactic—that is, preventing the spread to other persons. This is extremely difficult, as it is not usually recognized as whooping cough for the first few days, during which time the patient is allowed to associate with other persons, and it is during this stage that the disease is most infectious.

The coughing is usually at night, oftentimes keeping the patient awake the greater part of the night, and, therefore, he should be urged to sleep during the day. He should be kept out of doors as much as possible, but should not be allowed on street cars or in "movies" or other places where numbers of people are congregated in a comparatively small space.

Dogs and cats are frequently victims of whooping cough and can transmit it to humans. Therefore, a patient suffering with the disease should not be allowed to play with domestic animals, as they may give it to some well member of the family, and it is a disease to be avoided if possible.

Any person who is inclined to be tubercular should be particularly protected from whooping cough, as tuberculosis not infrequently follows an attack of whooping cough.

Regarding the treatment of whooping cough, there is not a great deal to be done, without the advice of a competent physician. During the first stage the patient should be kept indoors and protected from all extremes of temperature. If feverish, he should be confined to bed and given light diet. Change of climate is often beneficial. Oftentimes inhalations of steam or medicated vapors are useful in relieving the paroxysms of coughing. If these measures do not relieve it, more drastic medication is sometimes given, but never without the advice of a competent physician. The case should be under the care of such a physician from its beginning, as serious complications oftentimes arise which can only be treated by him.

The period of quarantine for whooping cough is four weeks from the onset of the disease.

CHICKEN POX

Chicken pox is, in all probability, the commonest of diseases of children, and also one of the least dangerous. It usually develops from about thirteen to sixteen days after exposure and begins with a fever. The fever varies in degree from a slight rise in temperature to 104 or 105 degrees. The characteristic eruption appears at the same time. This consists of a blister-like rising, usually appearing first on the back. A few scattered vesicles (blisters) are seen on the face and hands, and frequently in the mouth.

The disease runs a mild course and complete recovery is to be expected within ten days or two weeks. It is a much discussed question as to whether children should be intentionally exposed to chicken pox, as it is highly communicable and if an individual does not contract it during his childhood, he is practically certain to have it at some later period, and this may seriously interfere with his business or other affairs. Without question, however, a week, puny child should not be exposed to the disease, as he will probably be able to withstand the effects better at a later time. One attack of chicken pox confers an absolute immunity, so that after one attack there is no danger of the person contracting it a second time.

The person having the disease must be quarantined, but the strict isolation so essential in scarlet fever and smallpox is not necessary in the treatment of chicken pox, unless there are puny children you desire to protect. Confinement to the house is all that is required, until all scabs have fallen off.

Regarding the treatment of chicken pox there is not a great deal to be done, as it is a self-limited disease and complications are not frequent. The child must not be allowed to scratch himself, however, as there is danger of his infecting the area of the eruption and thus causing a condition which may lead to permanent scarring. The finger nails should, therefore, be trimmed short to prevent the scratching, and if the patient still persists in it, some method must be adopted to confine his hands. A solution of tincture of iodine and alcohol, half and half, may be used to paint these eruptions and prevent infection. Sponging the patient with a solution of warm carbolic acid (one-half teaspoonful to the pint) will oftentimes relieve the itching. The carbolic acid should be added to the hot water and thoroughly dissolved in it before using. If the fever is at all high, the patient must be put to bed and given a light diet.

A doctor should always be called in at the first sign of eruption, as there is often a mistake made in diagnosis between chicken pox and smallpox. The eruption in the beginning is often very similar, and it requires a trained person to make a sure diagnosis.

They say that over in Miami county, Burton Green made a speech at an agricultural meeting with a view of advancing his candidacy.

"I am a practical farmer," he said boastfully. "I can plow, reap, milk cows, work a chaff cutter, shoe a horse—in fact," he went on proudly, "I should like you to tell me one thing about a farm that I cannot do."

And then, after an impressive silence, a small boy in the back of the room shouted: "Can you lay an egg?"—Rochester (Ind.) Sun.

After working on a woman who had an extravagant coiffure to impede his progress and handicap his manipulations, Dr. Pullett (right name withheld by advertising department), sighed his relief and motioned for her to arise.

The woman pulled herself together, looked into a mirror, and then again seated herself in the chair.

"I am all through with your teeth," the dentist told her.

"I know," the woman answered, "but aren't you going to fix up my hair?"—Youngstown (O.) Telegram.

"WORRY" SAYS GREAT WRITER, "IS RUST ON THE BLADE"

Relaxation of Body, Fresh Air and Sunshine Suggested as Antidote

The designation by a local minister of worry as one of the evils of life makes particularly apt this article on that subject from one of our exchanges.

"Worry is a shortener of life. We have all seen sufficient evidences among our friends and relatives to know that this statement is true. One great writer has said that worry is rust on the blade. Now, if this disease is so fatal, it is time that we found a cure for it. Some persons in their thoughtlessness or in their lack of knowledge can only say, 'Forget it,' when they find a person worrying. This may be effective in many cases, but the individuals afflicted with the worry disease would rather be shown a way out of the gloomy dells into which their indulgence in worry has cast them. Worry in most cases is caused by exhaustion or overwork. Unless it is checked in time it becomes a habit, a most difficult one to overcome. The best thing one can do when one's household, office work or store work gets on one's nerves, so to speak, is to rest the body. The vigor of the body must be increased before one can acquire sufficient will-power to abolish worry. While more sleep is necessary, it is also advisable not to wait until night to rest the body and mind. Stop all work for a few minutes and relax. Let your thoughts wander, or if you must think, let your thoughts be pleasant ones. Forget the subject that has been annoying you. Lack of fresh air causes a feeling of fatigue, and fatigue in turn breeds worry. You can, therefore, see the necessity for filling the lungs with sufficient fresh air during the day. Very few persons living in cities spend more than one hour in the fresh air every day. Since such is the case, effort must be made to bring fresh air indoors. When you feel fretful or worried stand by an open window and indulge in deep breathing. You will be surprised to find how this will brace you for some time to come. A vigorous walk in the country will almost invariably drive away the blues. Try it.

Motorist (on country road)—Pardon me, friend, but have you the correct time?

Farmer (producing watch)—Don't keep any artificial time, mister. It's just 3:37 p. m., and if you're from Wilmington, you kin do your own addin', subtractin', multiplyin' or dividin', as the case may be.

DEARTH OF NURSES HAMPERING HOSPITALS

State Association Outlines Program to Present Needs of the Profession

Because of the inability to secure young women to take the necessary training courses and the consequent dearth of nurses, Delaware Hospital faces the prospect of closing one wing of the institution. This startling fact was brought out at the regular spring meeting of the Graduate Nurses Association, in a statement made by Miss Mary Moran, president. She urged that every possible means be taken to interest the young women of the state in this work in an effort to keep the hospitals and other institutions open.

Miss Caroline Sparrow, superintendent of Delaware Hospital, was appointed chairman of a committee to bring before the young women of Delaware the numerous opportunities in the profession, and the need of pupil nurses in the training schools. Tableaux representing the different phases of nursing since the time of Florence Nightingale, demonstrations of the first aid and of various interesting things of the profession will be given throughout the State. It will be recalled that a representative of the Red Cross presented the needs of the profession to an interested audience at Wolf Hall a short time ago.

There is a great opportunity in the training schools, for young women between the ages of 18 and 35.

A Humane society secured a downtown shop window and filled it with attractive pictures of wild animals in their native haunts. A placard in the middle of the exhibit read: "We were skinned to provide women with fashionable furs."

A man pained before the window and his harassed expression for a moment gave place to one of sympathy. "I know just how you feel, old tops," he muttered. "So was I."

I wonder how many of us know the real meaning of politics? It is defined as "The branch of civics that treats of the principles of civic governments and the conduct of state affairs; the administration of public office in the interest of peace, prosperity and safety of the state."—Wm. V. Davis.

Mitchell's invitation. Chief of these was the love inspired by his father who was a student here 80 years ago, which gave Old Delaware a place in his youthful imagination beside the University of Virginia. Reverence for the memory of William M. Pendleton, a mathematics instructor in whose house the elder Page lived as a student in Newark and whose home sheltered the son in his student days in Virginia. Another motive was ascribed to his desire to pay tribute to the greatest orator he had ever known, a great teacher and a preacher of "true eloquence clothed in the habiliments of simplicity," a gentleman of profound knowledge, culture and charm—Dr. Broadus, the father-in-law of president Mitchell.

Couched in matchless eloquence was his recital of a third potent motive: gratitude for the fact that the first voice raised in the Senate in behalf of the South in that dark period of Reconstruction—the first hand that lifted the torch to throw light upon the darkness of despair was that of Bayard of Delaware. "His mantle has fallen on others," the speaker declared, "for the most impressive figure in America today is that of Judge George Gray who has honored this occasion with his presence."

He outlined then from his formal address the influence of the smaller colleges in national life, pointing out the great opportunity for personal influence and spiritual growth in the smaller college. He warned against the tendency to consider great structures of brick and mortar as necessary adjuncts to the acquisition of culture, stated that the influence which gives life and immortality is not physical; that the measure of a man's education cannot be given in any diploma, because it is after all a thing of the spirit, to which the diploma and the personal influences which it represents may be but the key.

A glowing and eloquent tribute was paid to the part women have played and are destined to play in the righteous development of American life, was voiced in honor of the representatives of the Women's College and others whom he addressed without reference at all to the question of suffrage which, he said, was not now under discussion. He said that woman should take her rightful place as the complement of man on the high-road which our forefathers blazed for the progress of the American people. "There can be no true civilization," he declared, until the emancipation of women to an equality with men can be assured.

Gives His Conception of Education

The wisdom, moderation, breadth of the men and women we meet something personal and spiritual that passes from a teacher to a receptive student, whatever the time or place, is his conception of education. He agrees with Milton that "a complete education is that which fits a man to perform justly, wisely, and magnanimously all offices, public and private, in peace and in war," to which he may be called. A college education, he defined, as the key which may open all avenues of knowledge. Its object is not to enable a man to amass wealth but to fit him for a life of usefulness which has its beginnings in the fear of the Lord and the love for his fellow man.

He quoted reverently the proverbs of Solomon and other writings from the Sacred Book bearing on this subject and lauded the wisdom of our forefathers whose character began in wisdom, whose foundation was laid deep and strong in the fear of the Lord.

Cataclysm Tested Strength of American Character

The unrivalled industrial and commercial prosperity of the pre-war period, he said, threatened to lead the American people to set up the dollar as their idol and worship at the shrine of wealth. The war and the trumpet call from the head of the nation that American dollars were needed for humanity's sake, "to make the world safe for democracy" aroused the latent idealism of the American people and they rose as one man to the call of service and said, "We are here." "They flung away all thought of commercialism and got a vision of the Promised Land."

Pays Glowing Tribute to Jews

The speaker digressed at this point to mark the change that the events of the past five years have brought about in the status of the Jew. The most impressive figure, he had met in all of Europe was that of David Lubin, who gave an American-made fortune to establish the International Institute of Agriculture. First overcoming the handicap imposed by the world on his despised race, he so impressed the King of Italy that a $100,000 building was erected for this institute.

The speaker told personal anecdotes of this pathetic figure, burning with a passion to ameliorate the condition of all the peoples of the world. Turning the genius of a master mind on the problems of the world, he opened new windows to his hearers and enabled them to see new ways of helping the human race.

Lays Charge Upon Women of Nation

In no country in the world, he said, are the manners and morals so dependent upon the standards set by women as in America. It would be an unhappy change that would make these conditions other than they are now. Incident after incident was recounted to illustrate the high quality of courage which in time of war or danger has been displayed by the womanhood of the world. The story of Elizabeth Zane, of Mrs. Wendell Phillips, and many others were told with simple eloquence which caught and held the vast audience. The cleverness and sound common sense of the American born woman now in the House of Commons was cited as a signal example of the power of women.

He reverted to the influence exerted by the small college and cited the truly great men turned out by the College of William and Mary—a college which never had more than 60 or 70 students and six or seven professors. Yet from its doors went forth men whose influence in statesmanship, in religion, and in science was felt all over the world.

In conclusion he addressed the graduates directly, urging them to hold fast to the idealistic principles of justice and righteousness which alone will save the world.

Judge Gray was invited by Dr. Mitchell to address the audience. He responded graciously and voiced the appreciation of Delaware and of the audience for the tribute just paid to the small colleges. He urged the graduates to uphold the ideals inspired by their Alma Mater and wished for them a future of happiness, prosperity and usefulness.

In the absence of Henry B. Thompson, president of the Board of Trustees, Chancellor Curtis made the usual announcements—the gifts received during the year by both colleges, and of the election on Saturday of a new president. He asked for him the confidence and co-operation of the people and expressed the appreciation of the trustees for the inestimable service rendered by Dr. Mitchell and for the high standards he has set and maintained.

Degrees were conferred upon 39 candidates, the largest number to be graduated in the history of the institution. A significant fact with regard to this occasion was that four of the young men were residents of Newark and one a resident until recently. The Newark youths are Paul Taylor Arbuckle, Eugene Harlan Kennedy, F. Bayard Carter, James Herman Little, Arthur Heinel, Jr., was a former resident.

Following these exercises luncheon was served to hundred of alumni and out-of-town guests. Dean McCormick of the University of Pittsburgh, was one of the speakers.

"MORE INTEREST IN ALMA MATER," SLOGAN OF ALUMNI

More Than 100 "Old Grads" Enjoy Annual Reunion and Banquet

Animated by the spirit of college days, the eagerness and enthusiasm of youth, 100 "Old Grads" attended the annual reunion and banquet at Old College on Saturday evening and manifested an interest in their Alma Mater which resulted in the adoption of the slogan, "More interest in all Delaware College activities for the coming year."

Previous to the banquet the sons of Old Delaware, many of whom had not been back for years, met to exchange greetings and to renew friendships with class and fraternity brothers.

George N. Davis was toastmaster, Chancellor Charles M. Curtis reviewed the academic eulogized Dr. Mitchell, the popularity of whom with the alumni was attested by prolonged applause at mention of his name. Chancellor Curtis also reviewed the academic record of the incoming president, declared his belief that he will make a successful executive and asked the support of the alumni for him and for his administration.

Dean E. Laurence Smith of the famous class of '96, was given an ovation when he arose to speak. He reviewed the unrivalled athletic record made in all departments this year, urged the support of the alumni, explained the conduct of the athletic department and of its finances and urged the alumni to give this department better support by attending the games, thus enabling the teams to book games with the teams from the larger colleges. He stated that games had already been scheduled with Navy, Rutgers, Princeton, and the University of Pennsylvania.

Clarence A. Short, also of the class of '96, made a plea for more interest in the college and urged the alumni to wake up and be alive to its needs.

Dr. E. N. Vallandigham, who in honor of the anniversary wrote a history of Delaware College for the past fifty years, spoke in an optimistic vein of his belief in the progress and future greatness of the college under the leadership of the new president.

Dean Charles A. McCue, who with other members of the faculty and the class of 1920, was a guest of the Association, spoke briefly of the work in the agricultural department and especially of the rehabilitation work which the college has recently taken over.

Secretary of State Everett C. Johnson, who at the election held just before the banquet was elected president of the Alumni Association, spoke briefly asking the co-operation of all members for the coming year.

The other officers elected at this meeting were: Richard S. Rodney, vice-president, and Professor George E. Dutton, secretary and treasurer. The following Ways and Means committee was named: Carl Harrington, chairman; A. F. Esmond Horn, Eugene H. Shalleross, George N. Davis and Leroy B. Steele. Dr. Walter H. Steel and J. Pearce Cann were elected members of the Athletic Council to represent the alumni.

illustrate his point and commended the independent spirit of women in the professions.

Chancellor Samuel Black McCormick spoke briefly. Chancellor Curtis expressed regret at Dr. Mitchell's leaving. He announced the receipt of a telegram of acceptance from Dr. Hullahen, the new president.

Burglars Again Visit Newark Homes

Burglars were again busy in town Tuesday night. They entered the residence of H. L. Bonham. As on previous raids very little was secured, although the entire lower floor was ransacked. From the Bonham residence some cigars, food and other articles of little value were taken and from the garage an inner tube. Entrance was effected through a pantry window.

Dignity and Solemnity Mark Class Day at W. C. D.

The dignity and solemnity which have from the beginning characterized Class Day exercises at Women's College were the distinguishing features of this year's celebration, which was held on Saturday afternoon in Red Men's grove.

Friends and relatives gathered first at the college, where the usual planting ceremony took place with Miss Helen Bishop as orator. Then headed by the daisy chain procession, in which the Sophomore class were guards of honor to the Seniors, marched to the grove where a huge D was formed of the daisies. Within this the thirteen Seniors stood in double line with Miss Alice Roop, the class poet, in the center.

The following account of the Dougherty-Cheyney wedding, clipped from the West Grove Independent: "On Saturday evening at 7 o'clock a very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride here, when Miss Florence A. Cheyney of this place, and J. Earle Dougherty, of Newark, Del., were united in marriage by Friends ceremony, in the presence of the immediate families and a few of their most intimate friends. "The home of the bride was beautifully decorated with smilax, sweet peas and snap dragons, the color scheme being pink and green. "To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Miss Helen McLimans, the bride preceded by her attendants entered with her brother, J. Paul Cheyney, over white chamoise draped with over white chamoise draped with lillies of the valley and veil held in place and draped with orange blossoms, she carried a shower bouquet of brides roses and lillies of the valley. "The matron of honor, Mrs. J. Paul Cheyney, and bridesmaid, Mrs. Robert Jacob, were attired in pink crepe-de-chine and tulle with silver and ostrich plume trimmings, carrying pink roses. "Little Miss Sara Swayne of West Grove, cousin of the bride, dressed in pink organdie, was flower girl, scattering pink rose buds before the bride. "The grooms attendants were R. GRADUATES PRESENT GIFTS AT CLASS DAY EXERCISES

Give Concrete Dugout to College and Clock to Dr. Mitchell

Two events of unusual solemnity changed to a considerable extent the usual character of the Class Day exercises at Delaware College. One was the planting of two sprigs of ivy at Old College in memory of Mark Donald Dare and Samuel Taylor Lambert, members of the class of 1920 who made the supreme sacrifice in the World War; the other was the farewell gift of the class to Dr. Samuel C. Mitchell. The exercises, which were held at Wolf Hall, took place Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, and were attended by a large number of relatives, friends and visiting alumni, who enjoyed with the outgoing class the mirth-provoking portion of the program, and shared the sadness which marked the events of more serious character. F. Bayard Carter, president of the class, presided. He introduced the "Social Committee," whose characteristic habits and poses were well interpreted, and who were nevertheless properly labeled for the enlightenment of the audience. George C. Brower in the role of Dr. W. O. Sypherd, chairman of the committee, presided, and announced that the subject under discussion was that of deciding the fitness of certain members of the class to "be graduated." Dean C. A. McCue "in a becoming sun hat and carrying a suggestive bouquet of grass, indicated approval or disapproval of "Dr. Sypherd's" decisions, by furious chewing and rolling of the ever-present cigar. "Dr. F. M. K. Foster," armed with a ouija board, and aided by the largest pipe in captivity, decided doubtful cases by reference to "wee gee." Amusing anecdotes and characteristic peculiarities of the candidates were set forth with appropriate earnestness by the chairman, who with the approval of the rest of the committee, granted diplomas to most of the class of 1920. Following this decision "Dr. Foster" passed among the candidates the pipe of peace and each student, smoker and non-smoker, "took a whiff." Then a very substantial keg which occupied the foreground of the stage and bore the conspicuous label 2.75% was tapped by a member of the class who passed a huge pitcher of the beverage, accompanied by a disreputable tin cup, to the committee. "Dr. Sypherd" securing the cup, but intent on preserving an appearance of fastidiousness, turned his back upon the audience, and supplied himself generously from the pitcher. The other members did likewise and then shared with the class, who apparently enjoyed the beverage, which after all was a harmless mixture containing no trace of what the label subtly implied. The second part of the program was devoted to the presentation of gifts and the ivy planting. President Carter on behalf of the class of 1920 presented to the College a gift of money for the erection of a concrete dugout on Frazer Field for the use of visiting athletic teams. He expressed the hope that another class might match this gift with one for the home team. Dr. S. C. Mitchell in accepting on behalf of the college, commended the thoughtfulness and self-sacrifice of the class and recalled the fact that the class of 1919 was the first to leave a gift to their Alma Mater. He commented upon the fittingness of a gift at this time to be placed on Frazer Field, itself a gift which indicated confidence in Delaware College in a dark period of her history. This he hoped would be but a beginning of the self sacrifice which they, as Alumni, would make for their Alma Mater, whose future is committed to their loyalty and generosity. He addressed a few words of farewell to the class whom he will always look upon as sons and whose joys and sorrows he wishes always to share. On behalf of the student body, President Carter presented to Dr. Mitchell a handsome clock. He urged that each hour bring memories of student activities, serious and frivolous, and expressed the respect and affection of the student body for Dr. Mitchell, who will always be to them the president of Delaware College. Dr. Mitchell responded in his usual happy vein, assuring the students that fond memories of them and of his stay in Delaware will ever linger with him and with his family. From Wolf Hall, the class marched in solemn procession to Old College, where the ivy planting ceremony was conducted.

ST. THOMAS' GUILD ENTERTAINS SOLDIERS

Officials Announce Church Is Now Entirely Out of Debt

The warmth of the reception tendered by the Guild of St. Thomas' Church to the soldiers at Linden Hall was exceeded only by the warmth of the evening, which detracted nothing, however, from the good time provided for everybody. About 30 of the soldiers and a few from the Convoy Station on Elkton Road, were present. When they arrived a committee of the Guild, Rev. and Mrs. Walter G. Haupt, Mr. and Mrs. David C. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. D. Lee Rose, George Carter and Mrs. Pilling Wright greeted them. The guests were given seats on the platform and were greeted by other members of the Guild and others who were also their guests. The Continental Band, for whom an out-of-door position had been arranged between the church and the Parish House, furnished music for dancing. Miss Marion Taylor, of Wilmington, sang two selections, "If You Could Care," and "Smiling Through." She responded graciously to enthusiastic eulogies. Professor C. B. Edwards, of Wilmington, delighted the audience with several piano solos of his own composition, and Mr. Victor Lyons, one of the soldiers, sang "The Tumble-down Shack in Athlone" and "Wonderful Mother of Mine." Mr. Lyons was implored to sing again and to lead the guests in the singing of popular and camp songs. The young men generously responded, much to the enjoyment of the audience. Rev. Walter G. Haupt addressed a few words of welcome to the guests, assuring them of a cordial greeting and a warm handclasp at St. Thomas'. He invited them to worship with them and to feel free to attend the Guild meetings, where they will always find a hearty welcome. He said that he would not attempt to voice the sentiments of all who were present but would permit some of them to augment his words of welcome. He called first upon David C. Rose, president of the Guild, who was attending the first meeting since his return from Florida. Mr. Rose extended the hospitality of the Guild to the men and assured them of the appreciation every Newarker feels for what these soldiers have done to preserve the homes of the Nation. George Carter, editor of the Wilmington Evening Journal and a vestryman of St. Thomas', also extended greetings to the honored guests. He characterized the reception as being one of the happiest events of the season. In his capacity as a newspaper man, he said that he had been reading many complaints of neglect of men in the service. He expressed the hope that no such complaint might come from the men here either during their residence or after their departure. He paid a high tribute to the gentlemanly behavior of the men whom he has an opportunity to observe several times daily on their trips back and forth to the college. From the arrival of the first squad, no criticism could ever be made—nothing improper had ever been seen from these men who were doing faithfully what the government sent them here to do. The most cordial relations, he said, exists between the soldiers and the college students, whose only comment has been, "They are a good set of fellows." This is, he said, a rare compliment since college men are usually "long on criticism and short on brains." He bespoke for these "strangers in our midst," the hospitality of the townspeople and urged that their homes be thrown open to these men who are here to receive training that will enable them to perform useful occupations. At the conclusion of this address the soldiers gave three hearty cheers for Mr. Carter. Major Webb, commanding officer of the Convoy Station located here at present, was also a guest. He paid a high compliment to the men who saw active service and expressed the feeling of high respect which he maintained for those who were on the firing line. He disavowed any claim to honor of the sort, stating that he got no nearer the front than Paris, where he was detailed to other duty. He paid tribute to the nobility of the common soldier and the quality of high courage which an occasion like the Great War only serves to make manifest. Raymond D. Upton, who has charge of the Rehabilitation work here, expressed on behalf of himself and his men, sincere appreciation for the hospitality extended. He declared that the people of Newark by such acts as these are doing more for the men than they realize. "Many of them have been in horrible places and have passed from those of ordinary life that they will have some difficulty in getting back to normal living," he said. "By just such acts as these you are helping to bring them back. This is just what they need—to be treated again as ordinary citizens." Previous to the reception, the Guild held its last regular meeting before the usual summer vacation. The treasurer reported a balance of $1981.61 in bank, a sum sufficient to pay all outstanding debts of the church together with all bills and leave $106 in the treasury. One hundred dollars of this will be used for the purchase of new prayer-books and hymnals. An interesting fact in this connection is that the church is for the first time in its history entirely clear of debt. An apron social was announced for Wednesday evening, June 16. Mrs. Dobson, Mrs. Sprugel, Mrs. Denny and Mrs. Getty were appointed a committee. The announcement was made to the guests who were presented with miniature aprons, the pockets of which contained typewritten notes inviting each one to bring as a fee, the amount equal to one's waist measure.

St. Anne's Church To Celebrate 215th Anniversary

St. Anne's Protestant Episcopal Church, Middletown, will celebrate its 215th anniversary on Sunday next. The morning sermon at 11.30 will be preached by Rev. Thomas J. Lacey, Ph. D., rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Brooklyn, N. Y., one of the oldest Episcopal churches in Greater New York. Dr. Lacey is widely known for his lectures and writings on immigration, especially on subjects connected with the Greeks in America. He has traveled extensively in Greece, and was made an officer of the Royal Order of St. George by King Alexander. The rector of the church will conduct the services.

Samuel C. Mitchell, Ph. D., president of Delaware College, will make the evening prayer at 3 o'clock. The musical program will be in charge of the choir of the parish, assisted by William Gebhardt, of St. Matthias P. E. Church, Philadelphia, with Frederick E. Ashbridge, organist of Second Baptist Church, Philadelphia, accompanist.

St. Anne's Church is one of the oldest in the state, having been founded in 1705. The present edifice was built in 1768, and has an interest to many Delawareans similar to that for Old Drawyer's. It also has many friends in Philadelphia and many other cities throughout the east and west. The old silver communion set, still in use in the parish, dates from 1759. A friend of the church presented eight and one half acres of ground adjoining the cemetery to the parish in 1919. The church is Colonial in style of architecture.

WHY NOT NEWARK FOLLOW SUIT

Live Virginians Arrange Extensive Publicity Program for City

How Norfolk may best be advertised to the world, and how her natural advantages may be properly exploited in order that she may enjoy the benefits of participation in a proper degree in world trade, is the question being considered by the "program committee" appointed by the chamber of commerce exploitation committee. H. F. Holthausen is chairman of the committee, which met to map out a program of activities to be reported to the general committee.

According to suggestions thrown out at the meeting, the program committee will go to work on a basis of $100,000 worth of advertising to be done, and will determine how, in its opinion, this advertising may be most effectively prosecuted. The $100,000 was suggested as simply a tentative figure, in order to give some basis for the work, and this sum may be enlarged or decreased in the opinion of the committee.

The plan to broaden the scope of the chamber of commerce work, and to carry out some plan of systematic and intensive advertising of the city of Norfolk, was proposed several months ago, and a central committee for the purpose of taking the matter under consideration was appointed by the chamber. D. H. Goodman, at the initial meeting of the committee last week, was elected chairman for the time being with the understanding that his other duties will preclude his holding the position longer than a few weeks.

A finance committee was also appointed and will be charged with the task of raising the amount of money the program committee decides it will cost to carry out the program, subject to the approval of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce.

Pencader Cemetery Association To Hold Reunion

The Pencader Cemetery Association will hold its fourth annual reunion at the Pencader Presbyterian church, Glasgow, on Sunday, June 27. Rev. M. G. Vincent of Philadelphia, a former pastor of the church, will preach at the morning service, which will be at 11 o'clock. In the afternoon at 2.30, Rev. William Holt, secretary of the Board of Ministerial Relief and Sustentation and lately connected with the New Era Movement, New York city, will be the speaker.

Mr. Holt has traveled a great deal and has worked on the Pacific coast among the Chinese. His work among the Chinese in their own country has also been very interesting.

Rev. Walter Clyde, pastor of the church will preside.

A father and mother, says a British weekly, had brought their month-old twins to an East London church to be christened. All went well until the rector asked: "And what is this child's name?" The father drew himself up and replied: "Haig Pershing Foch Marne Mons Lloyd George Clemenceau Jones."

The rector gasped. Then, taking a deep breath, he turned to the mother, who was holding the other child. "And the name of this?" he asked.

The meek little woman smoothed her dress and whispered, "Maud."

Do the day's work. If it be to protect the rights of the weak, whoever objects, do it. If it be to help a powerful corporation better to serve the people, whatever the opposition, do that. Expect to be called a standpatter, but don't be a standpatter. Expect to be called a demagogue, but don't be a demagogue. Don't hesitate to be as revolutionary as science. Don't hesitate to be as reactionary as the multiplication table. Don't expect to build up the weak by pulling down the strong. Don't hurry to legislate. Give administration a chance to catch up with legislation.

TOWN AND COLLEGE FOLK HEAR MASTERLY SERMON

Dr. William Holloway Main Preaches at Baccalaureate Service

The churches of Newark cooperated with Delaware College on Sunday evening for the Baccalaureate service and the members, together with the friends of the graduates, heard with every manifestation of intense interest the masterly sermon delivered to the young men by Dr. William Holloway Main, pastor of the Memorial Baptist Church of Philadelphia.

Music for the occasion was furnished by Delaware College orchestra and by congregational singing. The invocation was delivered and the Scripture lesson read by Rev. Walter G. Haupt, pastor of St. Thomas' P. E. Church; the prayer and benediction by Rev. Frank Herson of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and prayer was also offered by Rev. Andrew Mutch of the Presbyterian church at Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Taking as his text a passage from Colossians 3:1-2, "Seek those things which are above," he recited first a parable which had come to him a few days before and which in substance is this:

"Mr. and Mrs. E. Z. Complacency moved into the town of Opportunity and over on Advantage Avenue found marked 'For Sale' a house owned by a man named Eccentric, a house which he called Character. It was four stories high. The chambers were light, and spacious and over the doorway on each floor was carved a motto. The house contained a basement, which was dark and gloomy. The first floor motto was 'The attainment of knowledge and culture are well worth striving for,' the second was 'Moral Qualities are of Inestimable Value,' the third, 'The Secret of Real Happiness Consists in Living for Other People,' the fourth, 'Man's Highest Achievement is the Attainment of Christian Character.'

"The prospective tenants were delighted with the house and were heartily in accord with the mottoes expressed. Then they decided that the house was too large and that they would live in the basement. Here they are living still. They are not seeking the light and sunshine above and they never will." Too many people, he said, are content to live in the basement of life's opportunities, never seeking the higher, nobler things.

The importance of seeing opportunities when they arise and of having ideals was dwelt upon, was urged and emphasized by the story of the Greek statue, "Opportunity." He defined an ideal as the thinking through of one of life's problems until it becomes a fixed principle, a part of ourselves. He denounced the "phonograph" type of thinking and urged that a sufficiently broad education be secured to insure a background of experience and knowledge upon which to draw in thinking it through.

He differentiated clearly between making a living and making a life. He outlined the essentials of success and placed special emphasis on having a passion for something great and noble, and acquiring a love for drudgery as a stepping stone to ultimate success. Many anecdotes of great men who have achieved greatness only after years of what would seem to be heart-breaking drudgery and repeated discouragements, were told with excellent effect by the speaker.

Knowledge, he characterized as the key to every avenue of experience and enjoyment and urged its acquisition as a means of increasing the capacity for enjoyment.

In conclusion he pleaded with his hearers not to be sparing of love for their fellow men—to be willing to sacrifice to make others happy. He emphasized the need of enthusiasm and of Christian character, declaring the attainment of that to be man's greatest achievement.

Rev. Andrew Mutch, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Bryn Mawr, preached the Baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class at the Women's College on Sunday evening at 6.30, in Warner Hall. His discourse was a keen and searching analysis of the blinding forces in any age or any movement—the theorist, the destructive critic and the sentimentalist.

He denounced with true Scotch fervor the person who is keener to fling faultfinding broadcast than to dig for facts. He made clear the difference between the constructive critic who stands by ready to lend a hand to better conditions under criticism, and the cheap critic—the chatterer who goes forth sowing discord and discontent and leaves his hearers in a morass of bewilderment.

The theorist and the sentimentalist who were unwilling to "carry on" or who saw no necessity for doing were similarly denounced. The doers were lauded correspondingly and the value of and necessity for action emphasized, especially. Enthusiasm in action, sacrifice for the happiness of others and a new vision of producing for the world's good were urged as being the foundation of Christian character. This vision of service he urged the students to acquire.

This impressive service took place in the Hilarium of Warner Hall, which was decorated with flowers and with the handsome State and college flags presented by the D. A. R. and by the class of 1919. The space reserved for the graduates and the faculty was marked off with the fragrant honeysuckle and with the college colors.

MANY W. C. D. ALUMNAE ATTEND REUNION

Fifty-eight Former Students Return For Annual Banquet

Twenty-three out of the 30 graduates of the Women's College class of 1918, and 13 out of eighteen of the 1919 class returned for the second annual reunion held at the New Century Club on Saturday evening. In addition to the graduates there were present nearly a dozen former students who are members of the association and several guests, in addition to the Class of 1920. Dean Winifred J. Robinson and Miss Mary E. Rich were guests of honor.

The banquet, which was served by Mrs. M. E. McGovern, consisted of fruit cocktail, chicken patties, peas, potato salad, pickles, olives, rolls, coffee, ice cream, cakes, nuts and mints.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jones Crothers, president of the Association, was toastmistress. In a clever speech she commended the loyalty and interest of the alumnae who had returned in such gratifying large numbers. She presented Miss Helen Mackey, who spoke briefly and entertainingly of the experience of an alumna in the cold, cold world, and welcomed to the ranks of the Association the class of 1920.

Dean Robinson delivered the address of the evening. She expressed gratification at the manifestation of interest which had brought back so many of the graduates and prophesied great things for the college as a result of such interest. She paid an eloquent tribute to the retiring president of Delaware College, telling simply and earnestly of his zeal and energy in behalf of the young people of the state, his genuine kindly interest in college and community activities. The quality of kindness of word and manner, she said, was something very worth while—a quality that brought out the best in every co-worker, every person whose labor was thus dignified and appreciated.

She told, too, at the request of the alumnae, something of the new president elected that morning by the Board of Trustees. She began by telling the difficulties that confronted that body in finding a man of such wide and varied interests and experience as this position requires. Out of eight candidates for the position, Dr. Hullihen was the one chosen because he embodied all of the qualities which were considered essential. His was the only name presented to the trustees by the committee and he was unanimously elected. She described him as tall, well built, attractive in appearance and charming in conversation. She reviewed his academic record and bespoke for him the same loyalty and support that has been accorded his predecessor.

After the banquet the biennial election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, Selma Bachrach; Helen Mackey, vice-president, and Ada Willim, treasurer.

The election over, the alumnae and guests proceeded to the college where the annual step singing took place under the leadership of Miss Dora Wilcox. Popular and college songs were sung and the rendition enjoyed by a number of visitors and passersby who halted for a time to listen. Dean Robinson received the alumnae, the friends of the graduates and the faculty previous to her annual dance to the seniors, which was one of the most delightful social affairs of the Commencement season. The Hilarium, the halls and the dining rooms were effectively decorated and delicious refreshments served just before 12 o'clock.

MANY ATTEND AMERICAN LEGION MEETING

Hear of War Risk Insurance and Enjoy Social Hour

The initial step in the American Legion membership drive was inaugurated in a most auspicious manner on Friday evening when the local Post entertained the Rehabilitation Unit from Wolf Hall and ex-service men in the community.

Commander C. A. Short presided. After a few words of welcome to the guests of the evening, he introduced Commander W. T. Turner of Post No. 1, who told of the methods adopted by Post No. 1 of Wilmington to make a successful organization. He gave some suggestions which could be used by the local Post to boost membership and to make an enthusiastic organization.

He also explained War Risk Insurance, telling of its benefits for ex-service men and explaining clearly in detail what a man must do to be reinstated if he has been discharged during the past 18 months.

Dr. C. C. Palmer, of Delaware College, a member of the Legion, made an eloquent address of welcome to the members of the Rehabilitation Unit.

Messrs. Lyons, Christian and Yutze of Linden Hall, told interesting narratives.

J. W. Ramsey, a member of the State Executive Committee, was also one of the speakers.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and an abundance of "smokes" furnished to members and guests. In all more than 50 were present.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, June 24, when important business will be transacted.

Will Demonstrate Ditching By Use of Explosives

A demonstration of ditching with explosives will be conducted on the farm of J. F. Brackin, near Mermaid, on Tuesday, June 22. Specialists from the du Pont Co. plant under the direction of the New Castle Co. Farm Bureau, will put a ditch through a tract of wet brush land where it would be impossible to do this by hand or machinery, demonstrating the use of explosives under adverse conditions.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION ADVISES CONCERNING ELECTION

Outlines Regulations For School Officials and Voters

The following rules and regulations governing the coming school election have been issued by the State Board of Education for the guidance of school officials and others who are interested in this election which will take place the third Saturday in June:

1. The Board of Trustees of the Attendance District (in case of a Special District the Board of Education) must organize for the school election by taking the oath of offices before the voting begins.

2. Follow the school laws as laid down in the Delaware School Code in Section 60 in conducting the election for members of the County Board of Education; Section 158 for local boards of trustees, and Section 115 for members of board of education in special districts.

3. You will receive from the Clerk of the Peace of your county the ballots on which are printed the names of the nominees in alphabetical order for members of the County Board of Education. This ballot also has a blank space for the number of the attendance district and three spaces on which voters are to write in the names of those for whom they wish to vote for school trustees.

4. In case there are no school trustees in your district, or there are fewer than three, or one or more refuse to act, or do not appoint someone else to act in their place, the law expressly says that the voters present at the time for the election may choose three election officers from among their own number and proceed with the election.

5. The teacher, or principal of the school (in special districts the superintendent of schools) if present, shall act as Clerk of Election; or the judges must, in the absence of the teacher, appoint someone to act as Clerk of Election.

6. Use any convenient receptacle for the ballots (a chalk box with a hole cut in the lid will do).

7. Keep school room in order, and allow no loafing.

8. Keep Polls open from 2 to 4 p. m.

9. When a voter presents himself or herself, first ascertain his or her eligibility to vote in your district. (See School Law). Women voters must show receipts for taxes paid within the last twelve months.

10. Before a voter has cast his ballot, he is to write his name and postoffice address on the Poll List. If he cannot write, one of the judges may do it for him but the voter must make his mark.

11. At 4 p. m. publicly count the ballots and enter the result on the Certificate of Election returns.

12. In case a voter marks more than three names on his ballot he invalidates it and it must not be counted by the judges.

13. The Presiding Officer shall send the Oath of Officers to the Clerk of the Peace, with one poll list and one Certificate of Election Returns.

14. He shall also send to the Secretary of the State Board of Education a copy of the Poll List and a copy of the Certificate of Election Returns, and retain a copy of each along with the ballots that have been cast until after he has been notified by the Secretary of the State Board of Education of the result of the election.

NEW BELL CONSECRATED LAST SUNDAY

St. Thomas' Receives Gift of Hymnals

The new bell at St. Thomas' Church was installed on Sunday with appropriate ceremony.

Special music had been prepared by the choir, special collects were read by the pastor who also performed the act of consecration. Mrs. J. Pilling Wright was sponsor for the bell and had also the privilege of choosing the inscription. From several submitted she chose the following which is identical with that appearing upon a large bell at Carlisle, England:

"I warn ye how your time passes away. Serve God, therefore, while life doth last and say, 'Gloria in Excelsis Deo.'"

Following the consecration the bell was tolled three times. The tone is especially good and was the subject of much favorable comment on Sunday when it boomed forth shortly after 12 o'clock.

Announcement was made at this service that a substantial gift had been given to the church by Representative William Dean, who has provided 100 new hymnals with full notations. A copy will be put into every pew in the church.

Head of Christiana Church To Hold Festival

A Festival will be held on the lawn of the Head of the Christiana Church on Thursday, June 24, 1920, under the auspices of the primary department. The proceeds will be used for purchasing equipment for the primary room.

The Children's Day service will be held next Sunday.
