Condo fire caused by heat buildup

Workmen honored for saving lives

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

RESIDENTS of Birch Pointe Condominiums in Pike Creek finally got some answers on the cause of a January fire that destroyed 12 units in two buildings. Speaking at the condo association's annual meeting, Public Adjuster Ed Williamson said the insurance company was considering an action against a store that sold the "article that was the cause of the fire."

Williamson explained that the firebox was "altered" in the fireplace of one condominium. "The fireplace opening was completely blocked off so that the heat of the fire was not properly ventilated," Williamson explained. "The resident could have burned a fire the night before and later closed the doors, sealing it off so there was a slow build-up of heat that resulted in the fire the next morning."

Board president Nancy Öberlin commented that drafts from fireplaces and ways to prevent them are a common complaint among residents. "Many residents never use their fireplace," Oberlin said. "But we have to warn those that do or plan to, not to close off the fireplace after burning a fire until it is completely cold."

During the meeting, State Rep. Joseph Miro presented tributes from the House of Representatives to Jon Shipe, Paul Petschelt, John Petschelt, Andrew Ferguson, and Stephen Zampitella who were working at the site and first noticed the fire on Jan. 17.

"These workman were nearby and helped rescue families from the fire," said Miro. "They did extraordinary things and helped the residents tremendously. There might have been loss of life as well as property if not for them."

Some of the displaced residents attending the meeting wanted to know when the condos would be rebuilt. Williamson said the average schedule is 15 months from the time of demolition due to begin in May.

"We can't do the demolition until we get funds from the insurance company," said Fred Roland, the engineer working on the project. "We also can't demo until we have proof all the county taxes have been paid to date on these units."

Some fire victims also complained that they did not have insurance on their personal property or did not understand why they should continue to pay condominium fees when they were not currently living in the community. "That's double living expenses," said one woman. "That's not fair."

Oberlin stated that the condo fees, like a mortgage, continued in effect as long as the property was owned. "Condo fees are for shared expenses in the community that continue whether you are here or not," Oberlin said.

She suggested the owners consult their insurance company for what was covered under property insurance, or renter's insurance if they were tenants.

Michael Morton, attorney for the condo association, also stated that condo fees and rules must be disclosed at real estate settlements when the property is sold. "We have heard that doesn't always happen," Morton said. "However, a person buying a condominium should understand it is different than buying-a house."

Newark's senior center looks to future after 40 years

THE newest director of the Newark Senior Center will continue the tradition of excellence carried over 40 years by four executive directors, members were told at an anniversary celebration Friday.

"The center has a proud history of excellent executive directors," said Judith Scarborough, president of the Newark Senior Center's board of directors. "Carla (Grygiel) will extend that tradition and will carry the center into the future."

Grygiel, a Newark resident and director of the Christina Educational Enrichment Fund, was the top candidate for the job being vacated this month by Jean Williams. The committee selecting Williams' replacement received more than 100 resumes, said Scarborough.

Filling Williams' shoes, said Scarborough, at first seemed a daunting task. Williams led the senior center for nine years, starting in 1997. She oversaw a building expansion and the process that led to the Newark Senior Center becoming the first nationally accredited senior center in Delaware. She announced her decision to leave the position in April. On Friday, Scarborough

Opinions about education sought

V ISION 2015 is hosting two "town hall" meetings to gather public opinion and concerns regarding Delaware's public education system.

The first meeting will be Wednesday, May 24, from 6-8 p.m. at Delaware Technical & Community College's Stanton Campus.

The second will be held on Tuesday, May 30, from 6-8 p.m. at Wesley College's Malmberg Hall, 120 North State St. in Dover.

Registration is advised for the meeting of choice, as space is limited.

Vision 2015 is a private-public-civic effort dedicated to developing a world-class public education system in Delaware for every student in every school – not just "pockets of excellence here and there."

The 28-member Steering Committee is composed of education, business, and community leaders. A series of Work Groups with broad community representation, including parents and students, is working to address the most important issues.

Two international consulting firms are assisting the Steering Committee: the Boston Consulting Group, which is providing research, analysis, and recommendations based on priorities established by the Steering Committee; and Cambridge Leadership Associates, which is facilitating the decision-making process.

The Rodel Foundation of Delaware and MBNA provided funding for the start-up work and Steering Committee members have contributed invaluable time and in-kind services to planning. The Broad Foundation headquartered in Los Angeles is co-investing with the Rodel Foundation of Delaware in development of the Vision 2015 blueprint plan.

He was chosen for a print ad at the age of 8 months and at the age of 11 months, he played Ving Rhames' son in the pilot of the ABC-TV drama "Philly Heat."

Since then, Foster has appeared on many television and radio shows and in newspaper and magazine layouts and stories. Photos on his Website show Foster posing on location with actor Jamie Fox and gospel singer Vicki Wynans as well as other well-known performers.

Christiana FFA Goes to Nationals

ELAWARE'S annual FFA State Convention is extremely exciting because unlike many other states, winners are automatically eligible to compete at the National FFA Convention. Earning that honor were Christiana's FFA chapter students Victoria Haley, Angelica Montes, Lauren Nagle and Cherrae Stringfield who topped 14 other teams to earn first place in Dairy Foods.

Trained by Agriculture teacher, Julie Emerson, the team volunteered their time after school to practice. On the way to winning, CHS team members had to complete a written exam on quality milk production and milk marketing, evaluate samples of milk, identify cheeses and defects, and distinguish real and artificial dairy foods.

The four team members also were among the top 10 individual winners in Dairy Foods.

The team will travel to Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 24-28 to represent Christiana's FFA chapter at the national competition.

Penny drive helps kids with leukemia

Approximately 60 classes at Christiana High School participated in a "Pennies for Patients Drive" to help children suffering from leukemia and lymphoma. The three-week drive sponsored by the Student Government raised $1,500.

'We wanted to help people, so what better way to help than by raising money for kids with leukemia and lymphoma?" said Student Government adviser Bernie Dimarco.

Student Isaac Harris just wanted to help a great cause. "I donated a lot of money because I wanted others to donate, Harris said. "The more I donated, the more other students donated."

Because this is the first year Christiana participated in the drive, they did not set a goal; however, Dimarco said that $200 was raised in the first week alone. All proceeds from this penny drive will go to the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society.

Elderberry jelly

By ALFRED GRUBER

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

HE other morning I opened a jar of elderberry jelly purchased at some cutesy tourist trap. The aroma is one I haven't experienced in 70 years but it instantly announced itself. I am delighted to add that the flavor, also, was exactly like grandma's product.

Elderberries are small almost black berries held on an umbel, shaped much like the bloom of Queen Anne's lace. The only ones I've ever known grow wild. We picked 'em; grandma made the jelly (with help). Her label, in her handwriting simply said 'Elderberry Jelly' and the year. A big disc of wax floating on top sealed the contents against bacteria in any jar or glass available. Above that was the ubiquitous screw cap or simply a paper bonnet fastened with string around the circumference. No corn syrup, high fructose corn syrup or citric acid, like in this store-bought product, ever penetrated her jellies. The product wasn't consistent - sometimes a bit thin but it still would have been welcomed on pancakes at the table on Mount Olympus.

The same morning I opened the jar, the daily paper had a piece purporting that obesity could be blamed on the could be blamed on the new style large kitchens. Apparently the current trend has left smaller kitchens in its wake. When that jelly jar's lid came off I immediately visualized grandma's kitchen. My brother and I have argued was it 15 by

He says the new trend is because family and friends are hanging out more and more in the kitchen and they are noshing on the food available here and there. Well, grandma's kitchen was the only place to hang out as all the action was there and noshing was regulated by large firm adults

Let me explain what furnished that room. Of course there were windows and along the walls were two kerosene stoves (one with an oven), one wood stove with a hot water tank, one sink with a roller towel and two wash tubs. Also a long table and a short table with wooden chairs and grandma's own dedicated couch (cats and kids be gone). In the center of the room stood be gone). In the center of the room stood a multi-leaved dining table above which hung a large kerosene lamp with circular wick hanging on a chain device permit-ting lowering for cleaning (lamp chimneys were washed daily). There were two rock-ing chairs, but no leather covered loungers.

Lounging was not in our vocabulary. In that Englishtown, N.J., kitchen, I learned to speak German, tie my shoes, play pinochle, light a fire, sharpen a knife, and prime a pump, peel apples, pit cherries and wash my neck. It was there I first heard radio (KDKA Pittsburgh) on a battery powered set with headphones and learned to care for small and large animals and respect all of nature.

You see what one whiff of elderberry jelly did. It flashed back memories of the biggest kitchen I ever beheld with no obese person for miles around.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week, "Out of the Attic" continues a months-long series of photographs taken in the early 1950s of all buildings on Main Street in the downtown area. This treasure trove of nostalgia is borrowed from archives in the City of Newark municipal building. Few details were discovered with the color slides but it is believed the photos were made by Leo Laskaris in 1954. The building shown in this photograph still stands at 82 E. Main Street but the Wilmington Trust branch has a completely new look thanks to renovations last year. In this photo above the door you can read "Farmers Trust Co.," forerunner to Wilmington Trust. Readers who have a historic photo and would like to share it with other readers are invited to loan their photos for reprinting in this space. Special care will be taken. May 21, 1931 Memorial Day to be observed with program

Newark will observe Memorial Day next Saturday with fitting ceremonies to honor the memory of the war dead from this community and of the country. Plans for the observance were formulated at a meeting called by Mayor Frank Collins last Tuesday night in the Town Council rooms, which was attended by members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion and Newark schools, representatives of the Boy Scouts of America. After discussing the best and most suitable ways of observing the occasion, it was decided that the following program would be carried out: A parade will be held, which will form at the Newark school and march up Academy Street to Delaware Avenue, then east to Chapel Street and north to the Newark M.E. Cemetery. At the the meaning of life with my Mom and to hear the stories of her life.

One night, I'd ask her for details about her brother, Lewis, who was killed at 14 in a sledding accident on the Main Street of Ellicott City, Md. The next she'd tell me that her dirt poor family was one of the first in town to buy a car. Her father was crippled by polio and he was able to deliver mail via automobile, which ended his low-paying days as a night watchman at the flour factory. During the 1960s, our family took up camping - it was a cheap way for our family of five to see other parts of the United States. The Adirondak Loj, the starting point of trails to the highest peaks in the Adirondack mountains of upstate New York, became a regular destination in July or August.

During the summers of 1965 and 1966, our family set up a tent city in Camp Site #9. Dad would stay for one week, then we'd ferry him into Lake Placid, N.Y., where he'd take the Greyhound bus back to Baltimore. While he worked two weeks at his factory job, I became the man of the house ... err ... tent at the Adirondak Loj, looking after my Mom and two sisters. Dad would return for the fourth week of our encampment and then we'd head home and nurse the thousands of mosquito bites we'd suffered.

It was during those two weeks when Dad was gone that I became even closer to my mother. After my sisters went to sleep, Mom and I would sit around the campfire. Being a guy, I'd poke a stick into the fire and we'd stay close to the embers for warmth and bug protection. We'd stare at the stars and I'd ask her to tell stories about her life as a child and her time with Dad.

My mother and father first met when they were in the second grade. They claim they dated no others. By the end of high school and with World War II looming, my mother was begging my father to marry her.

But he wouldn't, at least not until she fulfilled her life-long dream of becoming a nurse. My mother went to a Catholic nursing institution, more of a prison than a school. My father would sneak forbidden foods into the dorms by hoisting goodies up to windows using bed sheets. He was even known to sneak a nursing student or two out of the St. Joseph fortress for a night of prewar revelery.

Three hours after my mother graduated from nursing school at the Cathedral of Mary Our Queen walked down the aisle of Emory Finally. they were man and wife. They remained that through World War II (my Dad was a flamethrower in the Marines in the south Pacific), the birth of a less-than-two pounds child (that would be me) in 1950 when odds for survival of a premature baby were slim, the rearing of three children in the turbulent 1960s, and eventual retirement in Florida.

As Mom's memory now fails, I cherish the family history that she shared with me during the countless times we spent together, late at night. On the ride back from Baltimore this past Sunday after a visit with Mom, conversation in the car died down and I began to think of these late-night talks and other memories

At Mom's 80th birthday party a few years ago, each attendee was asked to share some thoughts about my mother. I spoke of her amazing fortitude and stamina.

With three kids and a fac-tory job, my father grabbed any overtime work he could. He also worked a second job.

My mother, who had been a stay-at-home Mom, was eager to get back into nursing as soon as my youngest sister was school age. Not wanting her work to cut into her family time, she took a job on the night shift at Bon Secours Hospital.

Here is what's amazing about her schedule. Even though she was working full time as a nurse, Mom was always there.

When we awakened in the morning, there she'd be preparing breakfast in her white uniform. At 8:45 a.m. when the last of the three of us left for school, she'd clean, do wash, prep for dinner and then go to bed.

The standing order was that the first child home was to awaken her. She'd get right up and never linger sleepily though she'd probably only slept three or four hours. Mom would pre-pare the family dinner, help with homework, ferry us to Cub and Girl Scouts and softball games. After all were home after the evening activities, she'd go back to bed for an hour or two while my father held court. Then at 10:30 p.m., we would awaken her. She'd dress in white and head back to the hospital for a grueling eight-hour shift.

There were many times when doctor appointments, child sicknesses, family business and other distractions kept her awake all day. Yet I never, even once, remember my mother being short tempered, cross or out of sorts.

To this day, how she maintained this schedule of full-time mother and full-time nurse day after day, year after year escapes my understanding.

As you read this column, I will be in the West on a father-son motor trip from Colorado Springs, to Las Vegas, to Monterey, Calif., where my son has a research assignment.

During the long hours in the car, one of the stories I'll tell will be about my Mom and our nights around the campfire.

Accordingly, it is planned to establish a public kindergarten in the Newark School for the coming year. Under the rules and regulations of the State Board of Education the entrance age of pupils to the public school kinder-garten will be one year less than that of the first grade. Pupils entering the kindergarten will need to be atleast four years and eight months on September 1, 1931, in order to comply with the legal kin-dergarten school age. This age has been set up so that children having been in the kindergarten for one year may be of legal school age the following year.

Were American Indians of 500 years ago to be invited to this weekend's national collegiate lacrosse championship at Delaware Stadium, they might be just a bit surprised at how their tribal game of "baggataway" has progressed. Played as early as the 15th century, the game was used by Indians as a test for braves and in preparation for war with other | tribes. Whereas today's game is played on a field that stretches for 110 yards, the Indians would often place goals several miles apart from 100 to 1000 braves per team. Games would last from daybreak to sunset and would often stretch over the course of three days.

The big parade

The crowd drew round the Main Street reviewing stand and grew deathly silent. Suddenly shots rang out. Seconds passed and another round of shots were fired, which were soon followed by a third and final set. In the waning moments, the lonely sound of a solitary trumpet could be heard playing a symbolic tribute to those who had fallen protecting out country.

It was a somber moment that reached the heart of the many who circled the reviewing stand, and was in direct contrast to the happy sounds of the Newark Memorial Day Parade that had preceded it. It signified the true meaning of Memorial Day, for long after the sounds of the trumpeter had drifted off with the wind, the memory of 'hose who gave their lives remains.

At 1 a.m. Tuesday, the walls of the Deer Park Tavern, yellowed with smoke and hamburger grease, only boasted whiter squares where pictures of a 19th century unpaved Main Street once hung.

Broken glass blanketed the floors. Smoke lingered in the air. When the bartenders stopped serving alcohol and the Vybe stopped playing music around 11:30 p.m., approximately 500 college students, "townies," and anyone else who wanted to be a part of the Deer Park's last hurrah, spilled out onto sidewalks, street and nearby railroad tracks.

They spent the next two hours taking pictures, dancing, climbing up onto roof, scaling telephone poles, shaking signs, playing drums, and taking swigs from bottles of alcoholic brews stolen from behind the bar on the way out.

Event to benefit Down Syndrome Association of Delaware

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER THE first phone call made by Coleen and Chris Popp

After the birth of their son didn't go to family or friends, but to a support group. Their son, Brendan, was born with Down syndrome in 2001, though he showed no signs of having the genetic disorder before birth, said Colean Bonn

Coleen Popp. Surprised and uninformed, the first-time parents called the Down Syndrome Association (DSA) of Delaware to find out what resources were available. What they found, said

Popp, was a support network that would become like family in the years ahead.

Down syndrome occurs, nationally, in one out of every 800 to 1,000 live births, according to the National Down Syndrome Society. The most common form comes from an error in cell division that causes a child to have 47 chromosomes instead of the usual 46 in each of their cells. The Delaware DSA serves about 300 families. Popp, a Middletown resident, became involved in the DSA, attending meetings and serving on the board after the birth of her son.

In 2004, a committee of parents organized the association's first Buddy Walk, a one-mile walk to encourage public awareness of Down syndrome and raise funds for the organization.

The event attracted about 1,000 people and raised more than $40,000, which shocked the organizers. "We never imagined the community would embrace this event the way it does," said Popp.

This Sunday, May 21, the association will hold its third Buddy Walk at the University of Delaware Athletic Complex on Route 896. While the event is the DSA's biggest fund raiser of the year, the main focus, said Popp, is on awareness and acceptance.

"Our kids are amazing," she said. "This is one day in the community when they can walk around and hold their heads up proud. We're letting the community know our kids are everywhere and they're functioning in our community."

Popp's son Brendan will turn five this summer. "Being a mom to Brendan has definitely been an amazing experience," said Popp.

He's a cheerful and active little boy, who likes playing with his younger sister and two grandmothers who visit regularly. He rides a bus to pre-school where he interacts with other children his age.

Inclusion, said Popp, is important. So important, she and her best friend, Kristin Pidgeon, launched a business, Three-Twenty-One Down Street Press, to design and sell products encouraging the inclusion of children with Down syndrome with regular kids.

One tee-shirt has a picture of three kids riding bicycles on it. Below, it reads, "What's an extra chromosome between friends?" The subtle message, said Popp, advocates for acceptance. "We want others to know our kids play soccer, ride bikes, run around and have fun," she said.

The moms launched their products at last year's Buddy Walk. They can be purchased at their Web site, www.321downstreet. com.

The 2006 Buddy Walk will kick off at noon on Sunday, May 21. Actor Chris Burke, star of the former TV series "Life Goes On" will lead the walk and perform with his band after the event. Registration starts at 11:30 a.m. Cost is $15 per person and $30 for a family of four.

This year, the Delaware DSA will sponsor a 5K run before the walk. The run starts at 10:30 a.m. at the University of Delaware athletic complex. Other family activities include games, an obstacle course, face painting, crafts and displays by the Delaware State Police and area fire companies.

Parking is free at the athletic complex. For more information, visit the Web site, www. DSADelaware.

Student musicians join Newark Symphony for concert closer

THE Newark Symphony Orchestra will play its final concert of the season on Sunday, May 21, at 7:30 p.m. The concert will take place in Loudis Recital Hall in the Amy E. DuPont Building on the University of Delaware campus. The concert, "Cultural Impressions," will feature two guest violinists, winners of the NSO's 28th annual Concerto Competition for Young Musicians.

The winner of the college division, Margaret Dziekonski, 19, of Chester County, Pa., will join the orchestra for composer Max Bruch's "Violin Concerto in G minor." High school winner Eric Simpson, 16, of Ardmore, Pa., will play Piotr Tchaikovsky's "Violin Concerto in D major." In addition, the orchestra will perform "Espana" by French composer Emmanuel Chabrier and "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2" by Franz Liszt. Tickets are available at the door. Adults $15, seniors $12 and students $9. Students in eighth grade and younger are admitted for free. For more information, call 369-3466.

Treasure seekers be aware:

THIS Saturday, May 20, college students in the areas of Cleveland Avenue, North Street, Prospect Avenue and Wilbur Street will be selling the home furnishings they don't want to drag home for summer.

The pilot program initiated by the Town and Gown Environmental Cooperative will run from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. In case of rain, the event will be held on Sunday, May 21.

Organizer David Matushik said students have been encouraged to reduce the amount of reusable furnishings they throw out at the end of the semester by displaying items on their front lawns, pricing them and selling them to community members. Each household will be in charge of their own sales. Students will keep any proceeds.

Matushik said the communitywide yard sale serves two purposes: it diverts reusable items from the landfill and gives Newark residents a chance to purchase items at low costs.

After Saturday's event, students will move the left over goods to parking lots at the former Curtis Paper Mill on Paper Mill Road or the former Colorado Ski Company on North Street. Items in good condition will be free for the taking for several days after the event, said Matushik.

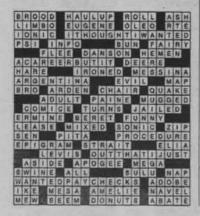

Parking will be available in the University of Delaware's Hollingsworth lot at North College Avenue and Cleveland Avenue and the former Colorado Ski Company lot on North Street.

Self-knowledge is gained through questions put to the teens during the experience: How did my service experience make me feel? Hibernians take awards

Even though Newark's Cpl. Bernard McCarren Dvision 2 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians (AOH) is only 3 years old, it has been involved in so many community service projects and works for charity, both the House of Representatives and Senate of the State of Delaware last week honored the organization.

This group of men of Irish descent has operated food drives resulting in many thousands of package and can food products being given to the needy. Every year in conjunction with the city of Newark's "Turkey Trot" at Thanksgiving the members operate their Hibernian Coat Drive, which resulted in more than 1,300 warm winter garments being given away to those who need them just as winter begins. Earlier this year when Maj. Gen. Frank Vavala. Delaware's Adjutant General, announced that with all their oversees deployments a real need existed to increase the Reserve Emergency Assistance Fund, the group came together and raised nearly $1.500.

In accepting both resolutions from the Delaware legislature AOH President Alfred Lawler said, "The Irish knew some very hard times in their history and when today we can help others who need our assistance, we are ready, able and happy to help."

Newark's Division 2 of the AOH is named to honor Irish born Cpl. Bernard McCarren, a Delaware soldier who was presented with the Congressional Medal of Honor in the Civil War.

thanked Williams for dedicating herself to helping others and making seniors feel at home. An emotional Williams said, "We've had many proud milestones in our life, and we have many in our future."

Grygiel, in her first introduction to center members, said she was honored to take over as executive director, "I have a tremendous amount of respect and admiration for those who came before me," she said. "I look forward to working with all of you to continue to meet the needs of this diverse and dynamic community."

Gyrgiel's background includes professional experience in marketing and business consulting. She has a master's degree from Johns Hopkins University.

Friday's presentation was the culminating event of a weeksworth of activities celebrating the Newark Senior Center's 40th anniversary and its 10 years at the current facility.

Margaret Catts, executive director from 1981 to 1997, joined Sandy Drummond Boyce, former director of social services, in a conversation about the center's history. The women shared stories about past center members and activities. Common threads over the last 40 years, they said, included contributions by the community and volunteers and an emphasis on social services.

A portrait of Gertrude Johnson, executive director from 1967 to 1981, was unveiled to hang in the lobby. "(Johnson's) foresight and leadership set the tone for the center, helping older people help themselves, to be healthy, well and contribute to society," said Boyce.

employees on Friday," Minner's statement said.

The Christina District school board met in special session on May 10 to review the District's budget situation and also announced the District's loan from the State to address its immediate payroll obligations and help close its $13.9 millionand-holding budget deficit.

According to information reported by the district, many legislators were uncomfortable with voting for the loan, especially without final numbers on the district shortfall. Nevertheless, within days the Delaware General Assembly passed two bills regarding the Christina School District which became law when signed by the Governor.

Senate Bill 307 with House Amendment 3 provided a $20 million line-of-credit to Delaware's Department of Education that could be transferred to Christina School District, upon approved request, for continued operations in the district.

Expenditure of these funds is subject to the approval of a Financial Recovery Team and use of the appropriation by the Christina School District will be paid back to the state without interest within a period not to exceed five years Senate Bill 308 with House

Senate Bill 308 with House Amendment 3, that provided enhanced financial accountability provisions for Christina District, originally applied to all school districts; however, the amendment made the Bill applicable only to Christina.

Upon recommendation by the

As our true budget picture becomes clearer, we may be able to reinstate some positions."

CHRISTINA SUPERINTENDENT

Secretary of Education, the state budget director may appoint the Financial Recovery Team to provide financial oversight and technical assistance to the District.

The DOE also will develop a program of financial responsibility training with required attendance for Christina school board members.

The Christina school board must establish a permanent Financial Responsibility Committee to closely monitor the District's financial affairs and will require and review monthly financial reports from CSD administrators.

Even as they were forced to accept this handout loaded with conditions, district administrators and the school board prepared for more bad news. "The District must reduce costs significantly in order to avoid a budget shortfall in FY07," announced a Christina press release on May 11.

There was an immediate need to address teaching positions, which constitute 85 percent of the operating budget, because of a state-mandated May 15 deadline for teacher notification of layoffs. According to the district's public information officer, Wendy Lapham, the school board voted unanimously at the May 10 meeting to eliminate a total of 75 teaching positions. The district did not indicate a monetary amount for this reduction in force.

In addition, Lowery advised district employees and residents that some school programs will have to be modified and likely will result in further loss of some positions.

But, she also held out hope based on the continuing lack of details for the financial losses. "As our true budget picture becomes clearer," stated Lowery, "we may be able to reinstate some positions."

The district also stated that additional cost savings would be gained through tighter controls over spending, by reducing the number of non-instructional staff, and by placing administrators currently working at the District office or on special assignment into positions in the schools.

These placements reduce the number of new hires needed to fill vacancies, but are only made if the individual meets all certification requirements. In addition, by recoding some positions to maximize existing state units, the District would also see additional savings in local funds.

At press time, no new meetings or dates had been announced to provide the final report of the Financial Review Committee that was originally expected in early May.

Lotto winner will use $71,000 for home improvements

65-year-old retiree from Newark came forward earlier this month to claim a Multi-Win Lotto jackpot of $71,000.

The longtime player said he has been playing the Delaware Lottery since its inception in 1975.

The winning numbers were selected at Pencader Discount Liquors in the Pencader Plaza just before the drawing on May 3.

The winner, who has chosen to remain anonymous, said, "I may have been the last ticket before the drawing. I know I got in right before the deadline. Maybe that made it lucky."

He didn't find out he was the winner until he stopped back by the store two days after the drawing and saw the sign above the register that said a winner had been sold there.

"I just had a feeling when I saw that sign that I wasn't going to be cutting grass that day," he said. "Sure enough, when he checked my ticket all I could think was "Are you kidding me?"" He added that the unexpected prize came at a great time for he and his wife, as they have just made several home improvements and their winnings will

A celebrated eagle from Maryland was released to the wild again on Saturday, May 6, following her month-long recovery at Tri-State Bird Rescue & Research in Newark.

Martha was released north of Middletown near Shallcross Lake. Tri-State's Dr. Erica Miller, who oversaw the release, opened the carrier and Martha was said to have flown "out in a flash without a glance back." She was seen a few minutes later soaring high in the distance.

Martha made headlines when she was attacked in early April near her nest by another female eagle. Martha lost the battle, and her injuries were significant. After surgery and an extensive rehabilitation, Martha made a full recovery.

"She made an amazing recovery," said Christina Motoyoshi, executive director of the Tri-State Bird Rescue & Research.

Martha and her mate, George, are a well-known eagle pair that have nested near the Woodrow Wilson Bridge in Prince George's County, Md., since 1998. The pair was nicknamed George and Martha by the Woodrow Wilson Bridge Project's construction team.

When Martha was injured, George was left to tend to the nest alone, a duty that the male and female typically share, said Tri-State. Despite his best efforts, the chicks did not survive.

Tri-State said Martha was not released back to her nest site because of fears the other female eagle would reengage her in battle. It is not known if Martha will instinctively return or if she will stay in Delaware, said Tri-State. Founded in 1976, Tri-State emony will be held on the Green at the University of Delaware. The parade starts at 2 p.m.

"There is no rain date, and it does not rain on this parade," said coordinator Linda Burns.

In years past, said Burns, skies have threatened rain and even let loose a few hours prior to the event. But by noon, she said, the waterworks turned off in time for the annual event.

The forecast for this weekend calls for near perfect parade weather: mostly sunny skies and moderate temperatures. Burns encouraged residents to "Bring a flag; bring a chair. Get your piece of sidewalk and get ready."

At this year's memorial ceremony, said Burns, a unit from the Naval & Marine Corps Reserve Center on Kirkwood Highway that has returned from duty in Iraq will be reviewed. Civil War re-enactors will perform a drill, and Veterans organizations will march the Green. Then, the names of those active duty Delaware soldiers who died since last year will be read.

From there, the parade will start in front of the Academy Building, marching in the reverse direction on Main Street. The parade marshal, Maj. Thomas Kelly, will be joined by 1st Sgt. Lavaughn Peterson, a USMC Bronze Star recipient, said Burns.

The 75 marching units include historic units, such as the Sons of the American Revolution, and several marching bands, including the Parris Island Marine Corps Band from Parris Island, S.C. and area high school bands. Veterans organizations, bagpipers and drill teams will be represented.

Burns said the annual event is important to the community. "It's important for the citizens of Delaware to take a moment to thank these veterans. Some of them are active duty. They go to Iraq and they put their life on the line," she said.

She noted the many members of the military that live in Newark. "These are your neighbors and your sons and your daughters. It's nice for a community and a state to come together and thank them."

City parking lots will be open for the day and restrictions in university parking lots will be relaxed.

Last year, Gov. Ruth Ann Minner placed a memorial wreath during Newark's ceremonies.

Hitchens leaves great legacy at Delaware

University of Delaware Senior Associate Director of Athletics and Recreation Services Mary Ann Hitchens (at right), who has spent over 40 years at the University as a student, head coach, and nationallyrecognized athletics administrator, has announced her retirement.

Hitchens, a native of Milford, DE, came to the University of Delaware as a student in 1963 when intercollegiate athletics opportunities for women did not exist, but earned her undergraduate and graduate degrees, enjoyed outstanding success as a head coach of the women's basketball and field hockey teams, and spent 29 successful years as an athletics administrator, the last eight years in her current position as senior associate director. She has served as Delaware's Senior Women's Administrator since 1977.

She will officially retire on June 30 of this year, ending 43 years of service as a student, coach, and administrator to the University. Details on the reorganization of her duties will be announced within the next few months. A private reception honoring her on her retirment and her service to the University will be held May 25 at the Bob Carpenter Center Lounge.

'Mary Ann has been such a close friend and trusted colleague for so many years, it's hard to imagine our athletics program without her," said University of Delaware Director of Athletics Edgar N. Johnson, who has worked with Hitchens since he joined the UD athletics department in 1969 after also earning his undergraduate and graduate degrees from Delaware. "I can's say enough about what a great person she is and what she has meant personally to me and to this University. Her Newark wrapped up the 2006 campaign with an 8-1 home victory over Delcastle Tuesday afternoon. The Jackets finished their first season under new coach Butch Simpson with an impressive 15--5 record overall. The Cougars concluded the season with a 4-16 record. Newark wound up winning 13 of its last 14 games of the year.

year. "We took a hit at the beginning of the year," said Simpson, referring to the team's 2-4 start. "And again I'm most proud of how we emotionally handled it, and mentally handled the situation, both individually and collectively," he said. Newark exploded for four runs in the bottom of the second off Delcastle starter Jordan Santak. Delcastle coach Dave Battafarino said Santak pitched well for the Cougars all season, despite a 2-6 record. "He's only a freshman, but he battled very well, especially in the tough Flight A conference," he said. Senior Scott Gardner started the inning with a single, advance to third on Joe Brown's double, then scored on a single by Jared Keith. Chad Lane had the big hit of the inning, driving a triple to center field that scored two runs. Lane crossed the plate on the play, as a Cougar shortstop mishandled the throw from the outfield.

Newark added a single run in the third inning, then put the game away in the fifth when it scored three more times. Gardner again started the hit parade with a booming double to right center that hit the base of the fence near the 364foot sign. Keith added a sacrifice fly RBI and Lane knocked in his third run of the game with a single to wrap-up the scori n g .

Hens finish regular season this weekend

Freshman second baseman Kyle Davis had two hits, two RBI and scored two runs and starting pitcher Evan Bowen allowed only two hits in eight innings of work to lead the University of Delaware baseball team past Rutgers University, 4-3, on Tuesday afternoon at Bob Hannah Stadium.

Brandon Menchaca added three hits for the Blue Hens, extending his Delaware seasonbest hitting streak to 23 games.

Delaware (30-21) once again took the lead in the first inning. Davis (right) led off the game by hitting his third home run of the season on a 3-2 pitch from Scarlet Knight starter Bobby Acampora. Todd Davison followed with a double, and after Alex Buchholz walked, Menchaca singled to left, but Davison was thrown out at the plate for the first out of the inning. Acampora then drew a ground ball double play from Bryan Hagerich to get out of the inning.

Rutgers (27-23-1) tied the game in the top of the second. After two consecutive two-out walks, Tim Querns hit a chopper that bounced high over Davis' head at second base, bringing presence and hard work have been so vital to the success of Blue Hen athletics and she has positively touched the lives of so many student-athletes, coaches, and our athletics staff through the years. She has been a true pioneer for women's athletics and has earned the respect of administrators throughout the country. It's been wonderful to work so closely with her over the years and we wish her all the best for the future."

Mary Ann has not only made her mark as one of the most successful coaches in University of Delaware history, but also as one of the most extraordinary administrators," said Delaware head field hockey coach Carol Miller, who was an All-American player under Hitchens and has served on the UD coaching staff since 1993. "She has provided such a memorable experience to all of our student-athletes. I came to know her as a coach who inspired greatness through her life's example of excellence and her intent to afford us an environment to create, learn, and grow on our own. She had the ability to inspire us to perform at our best. Her administrative style is very similar ? her brilliance came with hiring the best in their respective fields, offering us the guidelines and policies from which to work, and encouraging us to use our vision to successfully direct our teams. Her presence will be greatly missed, but her accomplishments will live on in each and every student-athlete and coach at the University of Delaware."

Hitchens, who currently resides in Landenberg, PA, earned her bachelor's degree in physical education from Delaware in 1967 and after two years as a teacher and coach at nearby Brandywine High School, earner her master's degree in education in 1971.

She joined the University of Delaware athletics staff in 1969 as freshman coach of the then experimental women's basketball program. Two years later she became head coach of the school's first intercollegiate team and served for seven years, leading the squad to a combined rcord of 71-35 from 1971 until 1979. Her teams never had a losing season and advanced to the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (EAIAW) regionals each year.

She was named Delaware's third head field hockey coach in 1973 and led the team to a 16year record of 196-76-30 which included 15 winning seasons, six national playoff appearances, five top four national finishes, a second place AIAW national finish in 1978, and three conference titles. During her tenure, she coached nine All-Americans and was selected as East Coast Conference Coach of the Year four times. She stepped down following the 1988 season to devote more time to her duties in athletics administration.

As Senior Associate Director of Athletics and Recreation Services, Hitchens coordinated administrative operations and personnel for athletics and recreation services as well as summer sports camps. She served two terms as president of the America East conference, in which Delaware teams competed before joining the Colonial Athletic Association, from 1992-94 and was the first woman to hold that post.

Prior to being promoted to senior associate, Hitchens served as assistant director of athletics and was a pioneer in the growth of a 12-sport women's program that has produced many nationally-recognized teams. During her tenure, UD women's athletics teams have captured three national titles, participated in national tournament competitions in several sports, and captured numerous league titles. Delaware consistenly won the Commissioner's Cup presented for overall athletics success as members of the North Atlantic/America East conference in 1991-2001.

ence in 1991-2001. In 1995, she helped coordinate the highly-successful 25th anniversary celebration of University of Delaware women's athletics and received the University's E. Arthur Trabant Award for Women's Equity.

Hitchens was inducted into the Delaware Sports Museum and Hall of Fame in May 1997 and was a member of the third induction class of the University of Delaware Athletics Hall of Fame in 1999.

In October, 2000, Hitchens was honored with the Katherine Ley Award presented by the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Bosnian teens hosted by UD 4-H

IFTEEN Bosnian teens participating in the Bosnian Youth Leadership Program enjoyed a month-long stay in Delaware, hosted by the University of Delaware 4-H. They met with Delaware Gov. Ruth Ann Minner and Sen. Tom Carper (D-Del.); talked politics with Ralph Begleiter, former CNN correspondent and curcNN correspondent and cur-rent UD Rosenberg Professor of Communication; volunteered at the Milford Food Bank; and toured inner-city 4-H after-school sites.

"The purpose of the Bosnia Youth Leadership Program is to train the next generation of leaders of Bosnia-Herzegovina as it continues to recover from its 1990s war," state 4-H edu-cator Mark Manno said. "The month's activities were designed to help the students understand the responsibilities of citizens in a democracy and the most effective ways that they can make a difference in their own communities back in Bosnia.

The youth leadership program sponsored and funded by the U.S. State Department. Since 1999, it has been held each year in various locations across the nation. This is the first time that a Delaware organization has been selected to organize and execute the program.

Manno said a key part of the program involves teaching the teens how to implement a service project once when they return home. "The Bosnian youth are being trained using a 4-H model called T.R.Y. (Teens Reaching Youth)," Manno said. "This is giving them the skills they'll need to carry out meaningful service projects.'

The teens, who traveled with three Bosnian teachers, came from the cities of Banjaluka, Zenica and Livno. The group is ethnically diverse and includes Serbians, Croatians and Bosniaks. They arrived in mid-April and kicked off their trip with three days in Washington, D.C., fol-lowed by a week and a half with students used our counseling services, and almost 700 participated in group counseling sessions. We also offer educational programs on the campus, and Wellspring, the student wellness program, and the Student Services for Athletes program are part of the center.

In addition, center personnel have been key players in receiving more than $2.3 million in grants from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and the Substance and Mental Health Service Administration to combat substance abuse among college students, Bishop said.

CCSD originated in Wilmington in 1946 as the Veterans Administration Guidance Center, a vocational psychology testing program for World War II veterans who were attending college on the G.I. Bill to help them in choosing a career. When the program moved to the UD campus, it also counseled nonveterans for a fee of $5 for students and $20 for others.

UD experts discuss bird flu fears, precautions

In response to widespread news reports about the danger of a bird flu pandemic in the United States, including a television movie titled "Fatal Contact: Bird Flu in America," that was broadcast by ABC television network on May 9, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and the National Chicken Council have teamed up with local experts to provide information to the public University of Delaware experts Robin Morgan, dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, and Jack Gelb, professor of animal and food sciences and chairperson of the department, have assembled educational material about the widely publicized bird flu, known as H5N1 highly pathogenic avian influenza, which originated in Asia and has since spread to parts of Europe.

Morgan said the ABC movie, which follows an outbreak of bird flu from its origins in a Hong Kong market through its mutation into a pandemic virus that becomes easily transmittable from human to human and spreads rapidly around the world, is a work of fiction and that there is no influenza pandemic in the world at this time.

"It is important to remember that H5N1 avian influenza is almost exclusively a disease of birds," Morgan said. "The H5N1 virus has not yet appeared in the U.S. Should it appear, it does not mean the start of a pandemic."

Gelb said that while the movie is fiction, it helps to raise awareness about bird flu and steps that individuals, families and communities can take to prepare.

"You can keep a supply of food and medicines on hand in case you have to stay home, you can practice good public health measures like frequent hand washing and staying home when sick," Gelb said. "It is important for all Americans to be informed about this potential public health threat and some of the steps they can take to protect themselves and their families in the event of a pandemic."

More info and government recommendations, including the HHS Pandemic Plan, are available at www.pandemicflu.gov.

George Luther wins UD's Francis Alison Award

GEORGE W. Luther III, Maxwell P. and Mildred H. Harrington Professor of Marine Studies, has been named the 2006 winner of the Francis Alison Award, the University of Delaware's highest faculty honor.

Provost Dan Rich announced the award at the recent Named Professors Dinner. "Dr. Luther exemplifies the best qualities of our faculty – cutting-edge research, a commitment to his students and the respect of his colleagues here and around the world," Rich said.

UD's Board of Trustees established the award in 1978 to recognize the scholarship, professional achievements and dedication of the faculty.

In addition to his professorship in the College of Marine Studies, Luther, of Rehoboth Beach, holds joint appointments in the departments of Chemistry and Biochemistry, Civil and Environmental Engineering and Plant and Soil Sciences. He also is an honorary professor at the School of Earth, Ocean and Planetary Sciences at Cardiff University in Wales.

Luther, who describes himself as "a physical inorganic chemist who happened to make the switch to applied chemistry" in the field of oceanography, conducts research covering a wide range of areas. He has studied chemical reactions in the Black Sea and in Delaware's Inland Bays, where he investigated the cause of a fish kill that left 2 million bait fish dead in Rehoboth Bay.

In the mid-1990s, with the assistance of student Paul Brendel, Luther invented a gold-tipped microelectrode sensor that can be used to measure the amount of oxygen, hydrogen sulfide and metals that marine organisms can use to survive in various environments. The device is used in situ to assess environmental health in real time, and Luther collaborates with colleagues around the world.

A member of the University faculty since 1986, Luther was named the Harrington Professor of Marine Studies in 2000. He has served as associate dean of the College of Marine Studies, has advised more than 30 graduate students and postdoctoral fellows and has published more than 165 journal articles, reports and book chapters.

CENTER, from 22

Bishop said that CCSD is important to parents. "Their children are leaving home for the first time, and it reassures them that someone is there for their students," Bishop said. The center also publishes A Parent's Guide and A Referral Guide for Faculty with suggestions for interacting with students and information about CCSD services.

Bishop received his doctorate from Ohio University and was made associate director of CCSD in 1973 and director in 1976. Recently he was awarded a lifetime achievement award by the Association of University and College Counseling Center Directors. RAY E. GRAHAM, PASTOR-

Utility Rates are ChangingSo is the Plan to Help You Adjust

The plan to allow Delmarva Power customers in Delaware to phase in new electricity rates has changed, to make it consistent with our plan in Maryland. We recognize and regret that recent changes may be confusing. At Delmarva Power, we want to help you make the right choice and explain how the phase-in plan will affect your monthly electricity bill. As we work across multiple states, it is our desire to ensure that all our customers feel they are well informed and treated fairly.

By participating in the phase-in plan, customers will pay lower rates now but pay the full increased cost of electricity plus the deferred amount later.

Delaware customers originally had until April 28th to make a decision whether to opt out of the phase-in plan or accept automatic enrollment. Customers who want to change their status can now take as long as they need to do so. We do, however, urge you to act quickly given that the new rates are already in effect.

Interest charges have also been eliminated for customers choosing to phase-in the new rates. What hasn't changed is the fact that customers in the phase in plan ultimately will pay the full increased cost of electricity plus the deferred amount beginning January 1, 2008.

We suggest the following:

 If you are in the phase-in plan and wish to remain enrolled, no further action is required.

- Similarly, if you originally opted out of the phase-in plan and remain comfortable with that decision, no further action is required.
- If you are in the phase-in plan and wish to "opt out" or,
- If you previously "opted out" of the plan and now wish to enroll, contact us by visiting www.delmarva.com or by calling 1-877-285-9316. Please have your account number handy.

We invite you to ask questions, take action and visit our Web site. Your decision will affect what you pay for electricity for many months to come.

Additional information will arrive soon in your mail, but if you have questions now, Delmarva Power is here to help. Visit our Web site at www.delmarva.com.

Under the phase-in plan, your total bill will increase relative to your current bill as follows:
Step 1:	15% on May 1, 2006;
Step 2:	25% on January 1, 2007;
Step 3:	19% on June 1, 2007, assuming no further changes in wholesale price;
Step 4:	Customers will begin to pay back the amount deferred from January 1, 2008 through June 1, 2009. This balance will be spread and billed equally during these 17 months.
