My dear Mr. Messersmith:

In view of the very great interest which you took in my recent efforts to accomplish something in connection with the Argentine problem, I thought you would be interested in reading the enclosed copy of a letter which I am sending to several of the bankers in New York, who in the end were really quite co-operative in their attitude towards the solution which I had hoped to work out.

I am really disappointed over the trend of affairs and as I see it now things will just have to get still worse before we can hope that they will get better.

Our Mayor has just been down there on a sort of a vacation trip and he came back with a message urging me to go back down there as soon as possible. Frankly, I can see nothing gained by such a trip at the present time although I would not hesitate a moment to fly down there almost any day if the situation developed in such a way that I could feel my presence there would do any good.

Anyway, I should appreciate very much receiving your own sage observations on the subject.

With kindest regards, I am,

Cordially yours,

R. S. Hecht
Chairman of the Board.
