FEBRUARY 3 & 4 NEWARK'S OFFICIAL DOLLAR DAYS

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, FEB. 3 AND 4, NEWARK'S GREATEST DOLLAR DAYS

Merchants Offering Merchandise at Unbelievable Prices

Friday and Saturday, February 3 and 4, will mark two of Newark's greatest thrift days in its history, when practically all merchants will offer for two days merchandise that will be sold in some cases far below cost. These two days will give thrifty buyers two days to buy articles they need, in a number of cases at one-half price and even less. And also an opportunity to stock up on the items at prices never before known.

On each page of The Newark Post you will find bargains, and we mean bargains—at prices that are so low that they will astonish you. Check the articles you need from the advertisements appearing in The Post and buy them during this sale, for we are firmly convinced that never again will merchants be offering goods at such prices.

Keep every dollar at home that is possible and shop at our local stores first. The merchants have given considerable thought to the items they are offering and we know you will get the greatest possible return for the money spent. Help make Newark's two Dollar Days a huge success. It will benefit both you and the merchants.

Watch for the Official Emblem (see Page 4) and patronize the merchants displaying it in their stores and windows.

The Newark New Century Club will enjoy its annual Covered Dish Luncheon at the Club House on February 6, at one p. m. Members are asked to have the Covered Dish at the Club House by 12:30. Mrs. Wm. J. Barnard, chairman of Hospitality Committee will again be in charge of the Luncheon. It has been due to Mrs. Barnard's careful planning that the luncheons in the past have been so successful. Everyone is looking forward to the coming luncheon. Mrs. Barnard has asked that the covered dish contain eight servings and in case a member brings a guest, a double amount. Should any food be left over after the luncheon, it will be used as usual and the money spent on needed kitchen utensils. Club hostesses for the month of February will be Mrs. S. A. Slack, Mrs. Harvey Hoffer, Mrs. G. D. Plummer and Mrs. Harvey Steele. Members bringing guests are asked to notify either Mrs. Harvey Hoffer or Mrs. Wm. Wiers.

An interesting program has been arranged by Mrs. R. O. Bausman. Both Mrs. H. S. Gabriel and Mrs. A. D. Cobb will read, the Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. S. Paul Wiers will sing. Mrs. Clarence Fraim, chairman of the division of industry, General Federation of Women's Clubs, has announced the Shoppers' Creed, which will interest Newark Club Women. It is as follows:

"I believe that the American woman, through control of a large share of the family budget, exerts a vital influence upon today's economic order. Therefore, I hold it my duty to help make this influence constructive; to govern my buying so that waste will be reduced and the greatest good to all realized from my expenditures. I believe that, as measures of true economy, I should:

Make my merchandise needs and preferences in advance wherever the opportunity is presented;

Remember that cheapness in itself is not always a bargain, and consider suitability and durability as well as price;

Avoid merchandise known to be produced under unfair competitive conditions, such as credit, alterations and deliveries;

Refrain from returning merchandise unless the goods or the store is at fault.

This is my creed. I believe in it; I shall support it."

Dr. Ryden of the University of Delaware Writes Book on Samoa

"The Foreign Policy of the United States in Relation to Samoa," is the title of a book by Dr. George H. Ryden, professor at the University of Delaware, which is expected to come from the Yale Press during the spring. The book tells of the story of the conflict of international interests between Great Britain, Germany and the United States in the southwest Pacific Ocean.

Dr. Ryden was particularly interested in the subject because of the indirect interest of Delaware in the subject through the personality of the late Secretary of State Thomas F.

Bayard. Bayard was Secretary of State under President Cleveland during his first administration during the height of the international complications in the area.

The book deals with the whole period of international developments in the Samoan Islands district and the official relation of the United States and the other two powers in the situation, and describes the present situation in the Samoan section. The recent discussion of whether the islands should have civil or naval government, a question brought up by Senator Hiram Bingham, is also considered.

RECOVERS MONEY LOST THREE MONTHS AGO

Mrs. Orville Little, of Newark, considers herself the luckiest woman in New Castle County, and with good reason. For Mrs. Little has just had returned to her $51.50 in cash and four building and loan books which she mislaid in November and had long since given up as lost.

On the day that she lost the money and the books Mrs. Little had attended an affair in Mitchell Hall at the University of Delaware. Tuesday, while he was cleaning the hall, James Doyle, the janitor, found the books and the money underneath the upholstered seat of the balcony chair that Mrs. Little had occupied that day.

The books had apparently slipped down behind the upholstery while Mrs. Little was sitting there and had remained hidden there all the time. Numerous affairs have been held in the hall since the books were lost.

Doyle said that he nearly missed the books entirely for on Monday, as he was cleaning the upholstery he was interrupted just as he had finished cleaning part of the chair in which they were. Tuesday when he resumed his cleaning he went back to the chair and then found the books and money.

Despondent and worried over the condition of his health, James Pearson Whitlock, formerly of the first district, ended his life Monday morning at the dairy farm of Fletcher Wood, near Iron Hill, where he had been living with his uncle, Julian Whitlock, an employee at the farm.

He seemed to worry over this a great deal, and on Monday morning disappeared. Half an hour later his body was found in his automobile in a garage at the farm, death having been caused by a .38 calibre revolver bullet in the chest. He was twenty-two years of age.

SCHOOL NEWS

Why Not?

What do the pupils of the Newark High School think of the Journalism Committee. Does it properly represent the journalistic ability of the school and publish the news of the most interest to the students and public. Why not make your opinion known? Make your criticism constructive. Why not send in an article, poem, some humor or other contribution to show what type of material you want published? Just give your contribution to a member of the Journalism Committee. Try it!

Charles A. Gifford.

Help the Journalism Committee

Every pupil in the Newark Schools should be interested in seeing a creditable page of School News in the local newspaper. The members of the Journalism Committee are trying to do this, but they alone cannot accomplish much unless the whole student body is back of this idea. The following are the members of the Journalism Committee, who request the cooperation of each and every one:

Mathematical Program Presented in Junior-Senior High Assembly

Three members of Section 9A participated in the mathematical program which was presented in the assembly on Friday, January 27. This program was directed by Mr. Barker and Miss Hess.

Norma Jarmon, the first speaker, gave a talk on "The Origin of Our Numbers." She illustrated her speech on a blackboard. Here are the facts she gave:

The Origin of Our Numbers

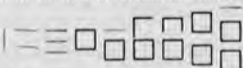

"I wonder how many of us stop to think from where our numbers came. Much of our language has come from the Romans through Latin; much of our culture is Greek. Our mathematics has been developed by Egyptians, Greeks, and later Europeans. Numbers and counting go back to earliest mankind.

The savage looked at his hand and saw four fingers and a thumb, five short straight lines and then he learned to count up to five. He looked at his other hand and saw five more straight lines so he learned to count to ten. In place of his fingers he used to illustrate his numbers by small stones, short pieces of stick, or short straight scratches in the sand or earth.

The Roman saw his hand and saw the V shape between the fore finger and thumb. He had an idea to save himself marking five straight lines to mark a V to stand for the whole five fingers. One day he held out his hands and saw two V shapes and he crossed them, and saw an X so he let X stand for ten.

This same idea of short, straight lines might have been used by man when he first started writing.

We can imagine a very definite connection between our present numbers and a series of short, straight lines. For instance primitive man might have written his numbers this way:

Our present numbers might have

A French Heroine

Last Wednesday a very interesting assembly program concerning the work and life of Joan of Arc was given by some of the members of the Junior and Senior classes.

As you all know, Joan of Arc is one of France's most honored heroes and is looked upon by the whole world as a woman who deserved the highest respect and admiration. Her birthday was celebrated last week and a very appropriate assembly program was held in her honor. The program was sponsored by Mr. Hain and Miss Hess.

After the opening exercises "La Marseillaise," a French song written to French war heroes, was sung by the school. Following this was a speech given by Louise Murray, entitled, "The Life of Joan of Arc." The speech was as follows:

The Life of Joan of Arc

I. The Voices and the Departure.—Joan of Arc was born at Domremy, a small village in Lorraine. Her parents were poor peasants. They spoke of the misfortunes which were befalling their country. Joan, loving dearly her country and her king, Charles III, wept in silence.

Joan liked to go to church, often leaving her small friends to go to pray in the chapel.

Suddenly, one day, as she sat knitting in the garden, she thought that she heard voices. She plainly heard these voices say: "Joan, your country needs you. Go seek the king. You will deliver the city of Orleans."

"Alas," answered the seventeen-year-old girl, "I am young and only a daughter of peasants. I do not know how to ride a horse or wage war. I know nothing. I ought to stay here with my parents."

But she still heard the voices. At that moment the English were going to attack Orleans.

"Joan, Joan," the voices said, "go save your country. Your king has need of you."

Joan asked one of her uncles to take her to Vaucouleurs, from whence she would go with the governor of that city to Orleans.

When the young girl came before the governor, he did not wish to hear her, but Joan was not discouraged.

"I must find the Dauphin. Heaven sends me to save my country. I will go to the king even if I must go all the way on my hands and knees."

After some hesitation the governor gave her his sword. Dressed as a boy, on a fine horse, she departed to find the king at Chinon.

II. Joan and Her King.—It was the winter of 1429, when the enemy was overrunning the country, but Joan was not afraid. After ten days she arrived at Chinon where the king was.

She entered a great room, full of people and lighted torches. Although she had never seen the king, she recognized him immediately. Kneeling before him she said:

"Kind Dauphin, I am Joan, the maid. Heaven sends me to deliver Orleans and to conduct you to Rheims to be crowned."

III. At Rheims.—Although he did not wish to do so, the king set out on the march toward Rheims, where, during a beautiful ceremony, he would be crowned by the archbishop. The cathedral was crowded with bishops and great lords. Joan, the little peasant girl, was happy. The long awaited moment of the king's coronation had arrived.

IV. The Death of Joan of Arc.—From that day bad luck seemed to follow the young girl. Her happy days were past. She wished again to attack Paris to save it from the enemy. During the battle she was wounded. The king, afraid, returned to Chinon, while Joan continued to fight. At Pompique she fell into the hands of the English. They laughed at, mocked, and insulted her. The young girl who had delivered her country was condemned to be burned as a witch.

At Rouen, in 1431, she was burned by the English. If you go there some day, you will be shown the place where Joan of Arc, after having saved her country, met death courageously.

Following Louise's very interesting selection, which was translated from French into English by Kathleen Spencer, was another oration given by Richard Brown. It was as follows:

The National Celebration of Joan of Arc's Birth in France.—The heart of every Frenchman in the world is touched by the bravery of Joan of Arc, whose short life began in 1412 and ended abruptly nineteen years later. The fete that is held to commemorate her memory is both a civic and religious holiday.

Two strangely contradictory pictures of this peasant girl present themselves: the tender young girl seeing visions in her quiet garden of Domremy and receiving there her spiritual mission; and the warrior clad maid in shining armor.

Better Speech Week Theme of High School Assembly

A playlet entitled, "Better Speech Week," was given in the High School assembly on January 30. The playlet was written to illustrate some of the common errors in grammar and the rules governing them. The play was original.

The dialogue was given by four girls from Miss Wilkinson's room, they were Louise Reed, Mary Wilson, Ruth Sinclair, Mildred Wilson.

Mary and Mildred were always using incorrect grammar, such as between instead of among. Mildred couldn't see any reason for using among when between answered the same purpose. In this certain instance she should have used among. Mary didn't see any use of learning a set of grammar rules and Ruth told her there was much use for it if you know the reasons for good language usage you wouldn't be embarrassed by having to be corrected in front of the whole class. Louise always reminded the girls of every mistake by stating a grammar rule for the mistake. These rules disgusting the girls in opposition because they wanted to tell the other girls about Jane's new dress in anyway they could. Mildred used divine shade and using sat when it should have been sit, loose when it should have been loosely. In the end, after much discussion, Mildred convinced Mary that there was something in the idea of learning grammar rules. Mary went off to her study of grammar and the rest of the girls followed. This playlet taught a lesson.

Newark Loses First Game This Season The High School basketball team lost its first game this season to the Alumni, 30-31. The Alumni quintet was composed of a number of former Newark stars.

Wharton, star forward for the school team, kept the Alumni on their toes by running up 15 points, seven field goals and one foul.

Willis, one of last year's stars and now at the University of Maryland, made 11 points with four two-pointers and three fouls. Chalmers, another former Newark star and now a graduate of Maryland, dropped in two field goals and four fouls for eight points.

Newark held the opposing team 30-31 at the beginning of the fourth quarter when the Alumni began to score and noed them out by one point, a foul shot.

Sophs Tounce Juniors

Last Friday the Sophomores and Juniors met in a game of basketball, in which the Junior boys came off second best. The Sophs were in rare form and gave the Juniors the run-around.

By defeating the Juniors the Sophomores are now tie for first place with the Juniors and Seniors. The three teams will play off the tie soon. Probably the Juniors and Seniors will play and the winner will play the Sophomore five. The line-up for the game was:

Juniors—Perry, forward; Wilson, forward; Henning, guard; E. Smith, guard; Butterworth, center.

Sophomores—Mayer, guard; Maxwell, guard; George, forward; Frazier, forward; Smith, center.

Junior Girls Down Sophs

Friday night at 7.15 o'clock in the High School Gym the Junior girls defeated the Sophomore girls for the second time, 19 to 6. The Juniors took the lead early in the game and kept it throughout the remaining part of the game. Mary Burnett, captain and forward, was high scorer for the Juniors with a total of 17 points. The line-up:

Juniors—Mary Burnett (Capt.), forward; Frances Brown, forward; Betty Wood, center; Anna Smith, center; Marg. Plé, side center; Maralee Kennard, guard; Margaret Murray, guard; Mary Hayes, guard.

Sophs—Mary Roberts (Capt.), forward; Myra Smith, forward; Esther Martin, center; Ethel Hauber, side center; Roberta Spencer, guard; Alice Haywood, guard; Alice Cox, guard; Virginia Hurlock, guard.

First Semester's Work in Virgil

At the close of the first semester one begins to look back over the accomplishments, or lack of them, of the past four and a half months. We recall with pleasure the work of some classes, while others merely suggest an hour a day spent in boredom.

Our work in the third and fourth year Latin course seems to me to have been time well spent. After translating a difficult passage of Virgil's Aeneid correctly (a thing which I rarely do) one has the feeling of having accomplished a great piece of work.

The first five days of the semester were devoted to learning to scan Latin verse. In the first book of the Aeneid it was not, perhaps, necessary to know how to do this, but in the second we find no marks over the vowels, so in order to decide the case of some words it is often helpful to scan part, if not all of the line.

About the middle of the second week of school we started translating.

Low Fare Excursion February 4th $6.00 Round Trip to PITTSBURGH, MCKEESPORT and BRADDOCK, PA.

Most of us were in a daze. Then new books came to our rescue with better notes and all the pages in them.

The first book which we finished translating just before Christmas vacation told of Aeneas landing in Africa, after many thrilling events caused by his enemies.

The second book is "The Tale of Troy." Having only translated a few pages of it, we have not been enlightened about the contents.

Besides all this work in translation it is often interesting to note the great connection of the dead Latin language with the modern English and French.

Miss Trotts's Room Presents Interesting Assembly Program

The elementary assembly program was given by pupils of Miss Trotts's fifth grade on Monday, January 30.

Billy Godwin was chairman and introduced the speakers.

The program began with the singing of "American the Beautiful."

In January there are many important days of which the pupils reminded us. The program was as follows:

Jan. 1—New Year's Day, Patricia Wilson.

Jan. 5—Death of Calvin Coolidge, Cecilia Tierney.

Jan. 17—Birthday of Benjamin Franklin, Audrey Battersby.

Jan. 19—Birthday of Gen. Robert E. Lee, Marie Dailey.

Jan. 21—Birthday of Stonewall Jackson, Betty Mahan.

Jan. 24—Invention of telegraph, Elizabeth Ottey.

Jan. 27—Patent obtained on electric bulb, Dorothy Windle.

Jan. 29—Birthday of William McKinley, Charles Hollister.

The program closed with the singing of "America."

The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes

The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes is located on Mount Kralin, Alaska. The valley is a volcanic one. It used to have eruptions quite frequently but now they do not have very many.

The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes does not have any more geysers. Geysers are made up of hot water mixed with steam. At times this boils over, making a geyser. The last geyser was said to be the largest one the world has ever known. There is no telling when a still larger one will come.

Harold Beeson, Grade 6.

Yellowstone National Park

Yellowstone National Park is in the northwestern corner of Wyoming. It is near the Yellowstone River. The Yellowstone River cuts a deep, narrow gorge, or canyon, through Yellowstone Park. The falls of Yellowstone Park are very high. The walls of the gorge show beautiful colors.

The hot springs and the geysers, however, are the great things to see in the Park. In hundreds of places there are springs where hot water bubbles up from the ground. The hot water contains mineral matter that is dissolved out of the rocks. As it flows over the ground, it cools and some of the material is deposited in a coating of varied and brilliant colors.

The geysers hurl columns of hot water and steam high into the air. Some spout at regular intervals and some spout irregularly. With some the spouting occurs every few minutes, but with others the period of rest is much longer. A famous geyser in Yellowstone Park is called "Old Faithful." It spouts hot water and steam about once an hour. Hot water from springs trickles down over terraces and makes steps.

It is visited any season in the year by many thousand people. Some people spend their vacations there.

Pauline Reed, Grade 6.

How Mother Surprised Me

One day my mother was cleaning the house. When I came home at noon mother called me up stairs. I wondered what was the matter.

When I got up stairs mother said, "Guess what I have found."

I said, "It's money." "No, it is not," I guessed a long time till I gave up and mother showed me my marbles which I had forgotten about. Now I play with them a lot more than I ever did. My! But mother surprised me.

Teddy Ingham, Grade 5.

A Pleasant Surprise

One evening when I was eating dinner I heard a lot of knocking in the kitchen.

I started to go out there, but mother did not let me go. I waited a while and then the knocking stopped.

Soon I heard father calling me from the kitchen.

I went out as fast as I could, and there standing by the oven was a bike.

Bill Northrop, Grade 5.

When I Am Grown

I wish I were grown. My sisters and brother always get to go to Virginia or some place like that, while Mary Jane and I have to stay home. When I am big enough maybe I will get to go places like that, too. I should like very much to visit Niagara Falls, New York City, Mount Vernon, and other interesting places I have heard my sisters tell about. If I only would get big faster so I could go places!

At the Taxpayers' Expense

The law of supply and demand, not the proposed St. Lawrence seaway, will be the determining factor in setting the price level for American wheat. Savings, if any, in freight costs will go to consumer and not to western farmers, says H. L. Whitridge, investment banker, before Associated Traffic Clubs of America.

"In view of the conflicting statements contained in the government reports themselves, instead of a 'proven investment,' the St. Lawrence waterway may turn out to be a gigantic speculation," says Mr. Whitridge.

About 89,000,000 Japanese electric lamps were imported into this country by the end of 1932. Since these lamps use 20.5 per cent more current than American-made lamps, the supposedly cheap imports are costing users an extra $11,000,000 annually.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 8, SPRING DOLLAR DAY IN WILMINGTON

Wednesday, February 8th, will be the Spring Dollar Day in Wilmington under the auspices of the Mercantile Section of the Chamber of Commerce and affiliated stores, which will be designated by the display of the official emblem of the Section which will be shown prominently in display windows and on counters within official stores. This day will be the outstanding opportunity for shoppers from all parts of the Peninsula and surrounding territory to secure bargains in a wide variety of merchandise seasonable at this time, or of staple use. Dollar Days have been conducted under the auspices of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce for twenty years, and have become widely known throughout the entire country, as a remarkable bargain event where real, absolute bargains are given to everyone.

Unusual efforts have been made by the retailers affiliated with the Mercantile Section to make this the premier Dollar Day of the long series, and for weeks purchasing authorities of these stores have been combing wholesale markets for additions to their already widely diversified stocks, in order to be in a position to give shoppers the benefit of the highest possible values at Dollar Day prices. Undoubtedly this will mark the highest peak of effort possible to insure taking ample care of the crowds which are certain to attend and take advantage of it, but to see that they are thoroughly satisfied with their purchases, and that these purchases shall represent real bargains.

These semi-annual Dollar Days are anticipated with much pleasure by many thousands of housewives on the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula and nearby points in Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey. The number of visitors from these places increase with each year, and each year more and more stores are so crowded with smiling visitors as oftentimes to require the assistance of "traffic policemen" to prevent such congestion that no one could get near the counters.

"Nowadays," said one of Wilmington's prominent retailers, discussing the Dollar Day operation, "people are looking for—and have a right to expect—the greatest possible return for their money, and the members of the Mercantile Section propose to see that everyone goes home well satisfied, if it be humanly possible. They will have a wider range from which to choose, and greater values than ever before will be offered."

HOME CANNING OF MEAT BECOMING VERY POPULAR

There is nothing more important than to have a pantry shelf filled with plenty of canned meat.

"The home canning of beef, pork, rabbit and chicken is growing in New Castle county," says Mrs. Kate Henley Daugherty, County Home Demonstration Agent for the University of Delaware. "Farmers can raise the meat and can it much more economical than they can buy the fresh meat in the market. Planning for the yearly meat supply is one part of the 'live at home' program that is being encouraged by the Extension Service.

"It is not a great task to can a calf or young beef, the tenderloin and sausage of pork, or a few chickens and rabbits for home consumption," continues Mrs. Daugherty. "Not only is it an economical thing to do, but it is a great convenience to have this part of the meal already prepared when company drops in unexpectedly or when mother has to be away from home, returning late to prepare the dinner.

A number of demonstrations showing how to can the various kinds of meat in both glass jars and tin cans will be given by Mrs. Daugherty at the following places during February. All meetings will begin at 1:30 p. m.

Friday, February 3rd, at the home of Mrs. Edgar Slaughter, Townsend.

Monday, February 6th, at the home of Mrs. Albert O. Humphries, North Star.

Tuesday, February 7th, at the home of Mrs. Elmer David, Taylor's Bridge.

Thursday, February 9th, at the home of Mrs. Elwood Sheldon, near Fairview.

Monday, February 13th, at the home of Mrs. Harry Seemans near Odessa.

Tuesday, February 14th, at the home of Mrs. Carl Lynch on the Lincoln Highway.

Monday, February 23rd, at the home of Mrs. Edward Megginson of State Road.

Anyone desiring to know how to can meat is invited to attend any of these demonstrations.

Aquarium Is Help To Indoor Garden

To many indoor gardeners, the aquarium presents endless possibilities for the cultivation of plant life. How it may become not only a charming and colorful addition to any room but an interesting experiment in gardening as well was explained in a discussion given over Station WOR by Montague Free, of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden.

Mr. Free was the first guest speaker on the 1933 program of the Radio Garden Club of the extension service, New Jersey College of Agriculture and Experiment Station.

Mr. Free's talk continues the series of discussions on indoor gardening that have been the main feature of the Garden Club's winter program. These programs include, in addition to the weekly guest speaker's discussion, a short series of seasonal garden reminders and suggestions on the selection and care of cut flowers for decorative purposes.

The extension service of the New Jersey College of Agriculture and Experiment Station presents the Garden Club programs every Thursday afternoon in cooperation with the Brooklyn Botanic Garden. Gardeners, who desire to become members of the club and receive digests of the material broadcast over WOR each week should write to the Radio Garden Club, New Jersey College of Agriculture, New Brunswick, N. J.

Color For Grate Fires Aided by Treated Fuel

A brilliantly burning grate fire can be made more cheerful if chemically treated pine cones are thrown on it to produce flames of various colors. R. B. Parmenter, extension forester of the Massachusetts State College, gives directions for treating cones to produce colored flames.

For green flames, he says, treat the cones with a solution of copper sulphate, which is known also as blue vitriol or bluestone. Cones treated with strontium nitrate will burn with red flames. For bright yellow flames, the cones may be treated with a solution of ordinary table salt. Copper sulphate and strontium nitrate can be obtained at most drug stores.

Two pounds of any of the chemicals to a gallon of water makes a solution of about the right strength, says Mr. Parmenter. The cones should be dipped into the solution for a minute or two, then removed and allowed to dry. When dry they are ready for use on the fire.

FREEDOM from drudgery—time you might spend with your family—and a lot of downright comfort.

These are privileges that every man and woman deserves and that you can easily have—merely by installing automatic gas heating in your home. Because gas is so uniform and dependable, all the work and watching is done by the automatic controls.

Gas makes you a present of all the hours you now spend on your heating plant. No hurrying downstairs the moment you come home, and no getting up early in a cold house to "fix the fire." Your furnace gets up before you do, and has the house warm and cozy by the time you want to dress. And all day long the temperature indoors is healthfully even and comfortable, regardless of what the weather may be outdoors.

Those who know from experience say that gas heating is the greatest single convenience a home can have. Don't miss the freedom and comfort and ease it can give you—find out about it. Whether you plan to buy or not, this is information every family should have. Phone us for the facts. There is no obligation whatever.

Facts for Farm Folks

Written by AGRICULTURAL AUTHORITIES

CHICKENS DO NOT CONDEMN OATS

By Prof. Walter B. Krueck
Over-indulgence often causes trouble. The corn-belt hens were forced for many years to survive as best they could upon the cheapest product the farmer had. In many cases this was oats. Then chicks did not grow well, the pullets did not mature early—and the hens did not lay. And so oats carried away a "black eye."

Experimental feeding trials and general nutrition work are demonstrating that a reasonable quantity of good heavy oats can be used very advantageously in the ration. Several experiment stations have demonstrated the value of ground whole oats in rations for the growing of broilers. Better growth is obtained with fewer difficulties from slipped tendons and crooked legs.

The Ohio Experiment Station of Wooster, Ohio, has shown that about 20% of good quality heavy oats in the scratch feed increased total feed consumption, helped to maintain the body weight of pullets and gave about 15% better egg production as compared to pullets receiving no oats in the ration. Practical tests have shown that some oats in the mash has a tendency to improve palatability and consequently help to maintain profitable production.

Feeders, however, should be cautioned against the abuse of oats as an ingredient. Excessive amounts will be detrimental and will limit the birds' possibilities. Poor quality oats should never be used, but good quality, heavy oats if not composing over too great a portion of the entire ration are very desirable and are gaining in favor every day with poultrymen.

BEGGING RIDES DANGEROUS PRACTICE TO CHILDREN

One of the dangers which children, especially boys of from ten to sixteen years of age, run in relation to automobile traffic is in begging rides from passing motorists. According to the Delaware Safety Council this is a perilous practice and is in particular evidence at the present time in the streets of the cities and large towns. It is a growing evil which parents, teachers in the public schools and city authorities find difficult to combat.

In many cities and towns it is against the law for anyone to station himself in the street and thereby embarrass and obstruct traffic. The police or the traffic officers hesitate to make arrests in the case of offending youngsters and reproofs and warnings have had very little effect in curbing this unsafe practice. The remedy lies deeper. There is a vital need in the home and in schools for a continuous, persistent and intelligent campaign against this exceedingly risky habit. It is something which has a double deteriorating effect on the child's character in that it weakens the moral fibre and also tends to develop a spirit of recklessness as regards danger. Both of these drawbacks to the proper building up of a boy's mental attitude are present in the custom of appealing to the driver of an automobile for free conveyance for either a short or long distance.

As regards the physical dangers attendant on soliciting free rides they are apparent and numerous. To stand in the street and necessarily more or less in the direct line of traffic, is to invite disaster from several angles. First, it often injects a necessary element of peril for the other drivers than the one solicited as well as for the driver who has been hailed. Drivers approaching the spot where the boy is standing are often compelled to swerve or at times to slacken speed or stop entirely and this results in collisions with cars following. If the driver signalled by the boy stops he is likely to risk a rear-end crash or a side-swipe from a machine following and the boy in the street may become confused and in dodging from an oncoming car dart in the path of another automobile with a resultant loss of life or serious injury.

Maintain Egg Quality

If high quality is to be maintained eggs should be gathered frequently, kept dry and stored in a cool place. A very desirable storage can be provided by partitioning off a section of the cellar for an egg room.

"LAWYER MAN" SHOWS POWELL AND BLONDELL TEAMED FOR FIRST TIME

William Powell and Joan Blondell are teamed up in pictures for the first time in "Lawyer Man," a Warner Bros. production which comes to the State Theatre on February 3 and 4. Despite the fact of the great dissimilarity in their characteristics and personality, they are said to work together with unusual effectiveness, each proving an excellent foil for the other's temperament.

Powell is of the ultra-correct and dignified type of player, while Joan is wise-cracking and slangy, and inclined to be a bit hoydenish. As feminine lead, she has just such a role in the picture, being a typical East Side New York girl who has worked her way up to secretaryship of a leading attorney, but who never forgets her early training.

Powell's characterization is quite different to what he usually plays, he being an East Side lawyer, whose brilliance brings him to the forefront of his profession. They have an excellent supporting cast which includes Helen Vinson, Alan Dinehart, Allen Jenkins, David Landau, Claire Dodd and Sheila Terry.

The picture is a revelation of metropolitan political intrigues with a glowing romance in the background. It is based on the novel by Max Trel and was adapted for the screen by Rian James and James Seymour. It was directed by William Dieterle.
