MARKET CONDITIONS MADE PUBLIC-- FARMERS REVEAL ASTONISHING FACTS

T. R. McMULLEN ADDS INTERESTING TESTIMONY

"I was born and reared in Delaware, and have lived here all my life. I attended the Wilmington market for 16 years and during all that time I was unable to get a stand. One of the clerks admitted, however, that I could get one if I came over and made it interesting."

The above is the statement made Tuesday morning at office of The Post by T. Roseby McMullin of Pocomoke Hundred near the town of Newark. Mr. McMullin is one of the most prominent and prosperous farmers in this section. As a grower of strawberries, peaches and other fruits, he has been very successful. His asparagus and sweet potatoes are perhaps the finest grown in western rural New Castle.

"I quit the market because I could not get a stand," is his answer to request for his opinion on the market question.

Mr. McMullin was for years up against this question and devoted considerable time in trying to get an effective protest by the farmers. He was one of the farmers who refused to pay a dinky 15 cents for standing on the curb. He said if a farmer wanted a stand, he wanted it should be allowed permission to accommodate a neighbor because if he were so inclined, legal proceedings were attempted to force Mr. McMullin to pay this but when refused the case was dropped and the clerk continued to collect from others.

Mr. McMullin considers it an outrage that conditions are such that it is not impossible to get a stand by a payment of the legal rates. A name at the head of the list of applicants stands no more than one at the foot. The suggestion that the option be held open for a short time for Delaware farmers seemed to him the only possible way the solution could be reached.

"I do not want," he said, "to let any farmer from the use of the curb markets. Let as many come as wish to come but I do think that as a county taxpayer, that I for any other Delaware farmer should not be forced to graft or quit the market."

In reply to his opinion on 2 o'clock as the hour for closing the market he said he thought it was foolish to close at that hour and in so doing Wilmington residents would suffer more.

Many working men do not get paid until Saturday noon. They do their marketing after that time. The farmer after 1 o'clock begins to drop his prices rather than return home with perishable goods. At this time of the day is when the real bargains are given to the working man.

The sum of Mr. McMullin's argument was this:

That the farmers of Delaware have no desire to discriminate against farmers from other states but he asks that Wilmington will make conditions such that a Delaware farmer can get a stand and at the same time keep his self respect. That's the question for Wilmington to decide.

(Report of Joint Meeting of Farmers and Chamber of Commerce as given by The Morning News.)

Charges of graft of a flagrant nature in connection with granting market permits here were made yesterday afternoon by leading farmers of New Castle County at a conference with the Chamber of Commerce cleanup committee in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the duPont building.

The extra money they were required to hand over to secure a stand in the city street markets, together with the presence of numbers of hucksters in the markets, were claimed by the farmers to be the two serious evils in the conduct of these markets.

The farmers ridiculed the idea that a stand could be secured in the local street markets for $4.50 a year, the amount of the prescribed license fee. Instead, several of them asserted that it was common for a farmer to be compelled to hand over as much as $50 before he could secure a permit to sell his wares. That these abuses have been stretched over a considerable space of time was also alleged by the grange representatives.

PRACTICE LONG STANDING.

The graft charges against former market officials were made in detail by Hervey Walker of Marshallton, a prominent granger and Democratic candidate for receiver of taxes and county treasurer last fall. Mr. Walker made his charges after the criticism had been made that farmers secured their market privileges too cheaply. He stated that he had known farmers to pay as high as $50 to secure a market stand privilege, the price depending on the desirability of the market space. The practice of paying extra for a stand, he said, had been going on for a long time and was well known to practically all the farmers. He said he knew of one farmer in particular who had applied to a clerk of the market for a stand and was told that there were no vacant spaces either on King or Madison street. The same man, he said, was advised by a neighbor to go back the next day and offer the official $10 to secure him a stand. This farmer, he said, secured his permit the next day.

Mr. Walker agreed with a fact pointed out by A. B. Moore, that recommendations to remedy market conditions were always made by clerks of the market on the eve of their retirement from office. The permits, Mr. Walker thought, should be taken out of the hands of the clerk of the market and should be issued by some municipal bureau or else City Council itself. He also agreed that there should be a system by which applications for vacancies should be decided by priority of application.

WOULD DRIVE OUT HUCKSTERS.

The graft charges and the almost unanimity of opinion among the farmers that hucksters should be driven from the King and Madison streets markets were the prominent recommendations made by the farmers in the lengthy conference. The farmers who attended and who spoke on market conditions included (continued on page 5)

PRIZES AWARDED FOR COLLEGE PLANS

Colonial Style Most Popular

The Affiliated College Commission met in the Wilmington High School building last Monday and awarded the prizes offered for plans and suggestions for the new college buildings at Newark. All of the members of the Commission were in attendance and the action was unanimous.

The awards were as follows:

First prize, $300—Brown & Whiteside.
Second, $250—L. R. Rogers.
Third, $200—J. & M. Kennedy.
Fourth, $150—W. E. Hance.
Fifth, $100—Leon Wilde Crawford.

The Commission did not, however, award the contract for the plans, the statement being made that the object of the competition was to get ideas and from these the Commission will decide what it wants and will then contract for plans in accordance with those ideas.

The submitted plans provide for the dormitory and science laboratory buildings. The conditions of the contest were that all plans of successful bidders should become the property of the Commission at the close of the competition.

Dr. Twitmyer when asked on Monday if the winner in the contest would receive the contract said the competition had been arranged merely to secure ideas. The estimated cost of all the buildings presented exceeded the appropriation at the disposal of the Commission.

The five sets of drawings for which prizes were awarded included four plans of Colonial type and one of English Gothic type. The plans of the last mentioned type were drawn by Leon W. Crawford, who stated they followed the City College of New York, Princeton and University of Pennsylvania dormitories.

The drawings will probably be placed on exhibition for the information of the general public, before the final selection is made.

Accepts Position in Michigan

Prof. Norman W. Cameron of Elkton who was one of the instructors at the recent Summer School for Teachers held at Delaware College, has resigned the chair of Psychology at West Chester, Pa., Normal School to become the head of the Department of Education at the Western State Normal School, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Dr. Cameron has many friends among Delaware teachers with whom he became acquainted at the Summer School at Delaware College.

TEN CENT STORE SOLD

New Proprietor In Charge On Tuesday

The Duncan 5, 10 and 25 cent store was sold this week, through the Newark Trust and Safe Deposit Co., to F. H. Weller of North Creek, N. Y. Mr. Weller has been in Newark for the last week, but left on Tuesday to close his affairs in New York State where he has managed his own store for a number of years. He will move with his family to Newark early in September. The business deal was closed this week, Mr. Weller taking complete charge of the store on Tuesday morning.

Professor McCue Returns From South

Prof. C. A. McCue has returned from Alabama where he was offered the position of State Horticulturist and head of that department in the State institution. Although he was pleased with the opportunities there afforded, he will not make his decision until the return of his chief, Director Hayward of the Experiment Station, who is now in Europe. Prof. Hayward is expected to return early in September.

The Agricultural Committee which has charge of all questions pertaining to the Station and the agricultural department of the college, held a meeting last Monday, when the question of Professor McCue leaving Delaware was considered along with other matters pertaining to the department. In view of the absence of Director Hayward no definite action will be taken by the committee.

May Award Carnegie Medal

The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission has requested full information from A. J. Taylor, Chief Engineer of the Wilmington Sewer Department upon the deaths of Jacob Monck and Albert Traxay, colored, who were suffocated a few weeks ago at Thirteenth and Lombard streets in that city by gas fumes in a sewer. Much went to the rescue of William Boulden, who had been overcome. Trusty strove to aid the two, and all three perished.

Lodge Notes

S. Edward Lewis, the Grand Master accompanied by the Grand Lodge officers will pay an official visit to Oriental Lodge, No. 12, I. O. O. F., on Thursday evening, August 28. All members are earnestly requested to be present. Thomas A. Mullin, Secy.

BAND STAND SITE CHOSEN

Few More Contributions Needed

A list of contributors toward a band stand from which open air concerts will be given by Minnehaha Band every Thursday evening, is published in another column. The contributions total $72.50. Only a few more dollars are needed in order to complete the necessary sum, and have the work under way.

Trustees of the Academy have given permission for the erection of the stand on the grounds in the rear of the Academy grounds.

Operations At Mine Temporarily Discontinued

Owing to the illness at Atlantic City of the capitalist who has been financing the work at the ore pits on Chestnut Hill, the experimenting has been temporarily abandoned. Tests have been going on for over a year and considerable machinery has been installed. It is reported that from $20,000 to $30,000 has been spent in preliminary work. Holes have been sunk in the pit to a depth of over a hundred feet, some of the results indicating great possibilities in the old mine. The report of the geologist, Dr. Fabrig, at work compiling data for the last five months, has not yet been made public.

School Opens Next Monday

The Newark Public Schools will regularly open Monday morning, September 1st. Pupils who failed to take the examinations in June, may do so in the afternoon of the same day. All such pupils should notify the principal in advance.

Pupils who have satisfactorily completed the work of the Eighth Grade, may take up the work of the Commercial Course of the High School, but only after a personal interview with the principal by the parent of the pupil making the request. For the purpose of meeting other parents or pupils who may wish to discuss the work of the school with him, the principal will be at the High School, Friday and Saturday, August 29 and 30.

Pupils from ungraded schools should register as early as possible, preferably the first day. Otherwise they may be liable for the regular tuition.

Bank Offer To Be Accepted

It is stated that the Farmers' Bank of Wilmington has offered to take $100,000 worth of New Castle County 4 1/2 per cent road improvement bonds at par and interest and the Security Trust and Deposit Company $100,000 4 1/2 per cent bridge bonds at par and county public building 4 1/2 per cent bonds and sell them at par and interest without cost to the county. It is thought that the offer will be accepted as previous efforts to dispose of the securities were not successful.

OBITUARY

LYDIA A. TYSON.

Lydia A., wife of Isaac Tyson, died at her home, McClellandville, Delaware, on Tuesday, August 26, after an illness of several weeks, suffering from typhoid fever. The deceased was in her 68th year. A husband and four children survive. Funeral services from the late residence on Friday at 11 o'clock. Interment, Head of Christiana Cemetery.

MRS. ELIZABETH MOODY.

Mrs. Elizabeth Moody, aged 82 years, died at the home of Mrs. Kelley, Elkton Ave., on Saturday, August 23, after an illness of about 3 months. Mrs. Moody spent the greater part of her life in Newark where she had many friends. For years she was the hostess of Linden Hall, far famed for its genial atmosphere and delightful hospitality.

Funeral services were held from the Presbyterian Church, Newark, on Tuesday, Interment, White Clay Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Elizabeth Moody-- An Appreciation

The passing of Mrs. Elizabeth S. Moody brings to me a flood of tender memories. I call to mind a bright summer day, now nearly twenty-five years ago, when my little family and myself found ourselves for the first time under the friendly shelter of Linden Hall. The warm welcome from Mrs. Moody and her two sisters, Miss Rebecca and Miss Margaret, abides with me yet; and in the many years that have followed, when from time to time I have received the kindly hospitality by them so generously dispensed, the ties of regard and friendship have but grown and strengthened.

And today the last of this trio of noble women is laid at rest on the sloping hillside at White Clay Creek. They wrought well. There was a dignity and refinement about Linden Hall seldom seen. The score or more of well-bred women that made their home there for many successive summers, formed a group that for culture, good manners and intelligence were unsurpassed. It was a rare company, and the ability of the hostesses to entertain and interest them from year to year showed unusual aptness and executive qualities.

But time is relentless. We live in a world that changes like a cloud. The links break but memory survives, and visions of Linden Hall with its delightful associations will appear to cheer and inspire as long as life shall last. And of Mrs. Moody who presided so efficiently and so graciously over this home too much cannot be said. Mild and gentle in manner, most kind and considerate in tendency, she merited the large circle of friends who touched her life. Not many are left to tell of the faithful womanhood which her life represented. It was a life well spent, a life that leaves behind it an inspiration and a blessing. The rough places on the journey are made easier when we recall the bright spots that appear in memory, and we take new courage for the future when we remember the faithfulness and loving kindness of some who have gone before.

GETTING ACQUAINTED ALONG THE LINE

Chamber Of Commerce To Visit Dover

Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, to arouse interest in lower Delaware in the coming State Fair has planned an automobile run to Dover via Newark, Middletown, and Smyrna on September 4th, with as many cars as possible making the run. The cars are expected to pass through Newark early Thursday morning.

New Assistant Named

The vacancy in the Department of Animal Husbandry at Experiment Station by the resignation of Carl Christopher has been filled. Frank B. Hills of Bernardston, Massachusetts, has been called to the position and will arrive in September, ready to take up the duties at the beginning of the fall term.

Mr. Hills comes well recommended from those he has been associated with in his line of work. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural College where he made Animal Husbandry his major study. After graduating, he had charge of the college herd. Last year he took his Masters degree at Iowa State College.

Will Build On Depot Road

T. Roseby McMullin purchased recently a lot on Depot Road, a short distance from the site of the proposed College for Women. The lot has a frontage of 50 feet and is more than 600 feet deep. Mr. McMullin will build there and with his son will probably enter the poultry business. He sold his farm on Chestnut Hill several months ago to S. J. Wright of Newark, the price stipulated being $12,000.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT NEAR IRON HILL

Two Horses Killed--Driver Uninjured

John Boyd, colored, of Iron Hill, while returning home from Newark Tuesday evening, was struck by the 9.30 express at Iron Hill crossing. His two horses were killed and the wagon demolished. Boyd himself was tossed into a neighboring tree but was not seriously injured. The watchman had gone home at nine o'clock and it is alleged that the whistle was not blown for the crossing.

Frazer Athletic Field Nearing Completion

The track on Frazer Field was completed today, so far as the actual work of the men employed is concerned. No one will be allowed on the track until next spring when it will be weathered and in durable condition by the time it is needed by the running teams.

The new electric mower and roller combined, purchased this week by the college authorities is a valuable addition to the equipment of the field. A horse is not allowed on the ground, which would have necessitated all the rolling being done by hand. The new machine equipped with heavy stone rollers, removes this difficulty. The entire field as it stands at present is the pride of the College and community, but the result after all may be regarded as merely the foundation of what it will be after years of time. Rows of trees will be planted along the boundary lines, and many other features requiring years for their completion, added before the general effect measures up to the donors' dream.

A number of Aetna boys motored to West Grove one evening last week to visit Firemen's Carnival.

NEWARK MEN GO TO BUFFALO

Represent Delaware At International Conference

Dr. G. A. Harter and Dr. R. C. Reed left Monday for Buffalo to attend the fourth international congress of School Hygiene, August 25-30, having been appointed to represent Delaware by Governor Miller.

The discussions will get back to the elemental importance of a sound body as fundamental for sound mental training. Practically all the leading nations of the world will be represented, and they are co-operating in an effort to find just what conditions are good for the child and how to eliminate those which are injurious.

This will be the fourth gathering of experts to be held, the former meetings having been held in Nuremberg in 1906, in London in 1908 and in Paris, 1910. The exhibits will form the most illuminating feature of the conference. These will include the different national types of school buildings, systems of ventilating and heating, lighting, plumbing, etc. The United States Bureau of Education will be an exhibitor. One of its most interesting exhibits will be a collection of recent literature upon school hygiene which has been published in many countries. A collection of photographs of school buildings taken in various states will be shown. Some of these pictures are of the pioneer schools and are very valuable, illustrating as they do, the progress that has been made in the physical environment of the children in school today.

Town Council has notified the proprietors of two of the local pool rooms to close their rooms earlier Saturday nights to avoid any forms of disorder.

AGRICULTURE--ITS IMPROVEMENT THE NATIONAL TASK

UPON THIS DEPENDS THE RISE AND FALL OF NATIONS

The North American in a recent editorial makes some interesting observations on the great problem of America—Conservation and improvement of Agricultural conditions. This, said President Roosevelt when he called the Country Commission together, is the great National Task. Each succeeding year proves the truth of the observation.

The question is worthy of the attention and its solution demands the consideration of every citizen of the Republic.

The life of the Nation depends on Agriculture.

The editorial follows:

An ancient Chinese philosopher said: "The well-being of a people is like a tree. Agriculture is its roots, manufacture and commerce are its branches and life. If the root is injured the leaves fall, the branches break away and the tree dies."

When we stop to think that the capitalization of agriculture in this country amounts to forty-one billions of dollars and that the farm output totals nine billions annually—that is, capitalization is three times that of all the railroads—and that 53 per cent of the population is engaged directly or indirectly in agriculture, upon which every form of commercial enterprise depends, we begin to see the truth of such a saying.

And when we know that little Denmark, with one-third the area of Illinois and having more than one and a half times the population of Philadelphia county, not only feeds itself, but annually exports $9 worth of farm products per acre, the most uniformly fertile State in the Union, have averaged only $11.40, we must begin to appreciate the importance of paying immediate attention to this root of our being.

As a matter of fact which should be seriously pondered by every citizen, this country today, with an unequalled area of arable soil and general climatic conditions more favorable than elsewhere, and with the greater part of this soil in use for less than a century, is by no means the agricultural leader which nature clearly intended it should be.

As Congressman Lever, of South Carolina, chairman of the committee on agriculture in the present house, said last month to the members of the National Soil Fertility League in Chicago, "we boast of our great agricultural resources, we put ourselves on the back about it and contend that we are the greatest agriculturally producing people on the earth, but there never was a greater mistake."

"I can show you that agricultural production in this country in the last ten years has really decreased," he continued. "I can show you that the acreage planted, per thousand people, in the ten principal crops has decreased in seven instances and increased in only three during that period."

Then he amazed his hearers by citing the following figures for the years 1900-11, on the basis mentioned:

Corn decreased 14.4 per cent in acreage; wheat decreased 30.5 per cent; oats, 1.7 per cent; buckwheat 11.7 per cent; rye, 10.1 per cent; hay and forage, 3.2 per cent; tobacco, 2.9 per cent, and the only increases we had at all were in barley, 4.3 per cent; potatoes, 3.1 per cent, and cotton, 9.1 per cent.

"And yet we are boasting that production is increasing," he said. "We are bragging to ourselves along those lines, and here are the cold figures, showing that the acreage for the last ten years in the principal farm crops has actually decreased. What are we up against, gentlemen? Population has increased; population is continuing to increase and yet acreage is decreasing. What is the solution? What have we got to do?"

The answer he gave is the only possible one.

"It is absolutely necessary that we should increase production per acre to keep up the food and clothing supply of this nation." He might have added that this is absolutely necessary in order to avoid the fate that has overtaken every nation which neglected agriculture.

"The decline of soil fertility, and not either peace or war, is the fundamental cause of the decadence of nations," said the great Liebig, one of the foremost scientists of all times.

We now are face to face with the task of stemming such a decline, with the vital necessity of increasing soil production.

"Can we do it?" asks Mr. Lever, and in so doing voices a question which should become the immediate and personal concern of every person interested in the future welfare and stability of the nation.

He points to Europe, where the land was not so good as ours to begin with and where it has been under cultivation a thousand years, compared to our average of less than a hundred years—for the richest section of our soil was not even scratched until seventy-five years ago, and much of our best land has been put under cultivation within the last thirty years.

Yet in Europe, where nature has handicapped and where density of population makes giant demands upon nature, the average crop production, per acre, is from two and a half to three and a half times as large as in the United States!

Take, for instance, the farm food staple that has led the advance in the cost of living during the last ten years—potatoes, which have advanced more than 100 per cent within that period.

Our average yield is 80 bushels an acre, and we do not raise enough for our own use. Importations are increasing rapidly. We have to call upon Europe, with less and poorer soil, to make up the deficiency, for there Germany and Belgium produce an average of 225 bushels an acre; France 190, and Russia, 135.

All of which bears out B. F. Harris' recent statement, that though we have better land and as good or better tools and brains, "we are not properly employing any of these factors. We raise the wheat crop of this country on 50,000,000 acres, with an average of 13.7 bushels to the acre, while our own best farms and those in several countries of Europe, who use thousand-year-old farmlands, averaged 26 to 40 bushels an acre."

Congressman Lever says we can double the average production of all crops in this country within ten years, "if we work along the lines of the best and most approved agriculture," and substantiates this by showing that in South Carolina demonstration methods have increased cotton production from 584 to 1315 pounds an acre.

We have got to work along these lines or seek a large part of our food and clothing supply elsewhere. Already our exports of foodstuffs are declining. In the decade from 1900 to 1910 they fell from $251,000,000 to $136,000,000 and in the same period our food imports increased $13,000,000.

"These alarming figures clearly indicate that the industry of soil cultivation in the United States has fallen back decidedly as related to the increase of population and the augmented demand," says Mr. Harris.

To the average person no thought of "alarm" ever has attended the perusal of our agricultural statistics, simply because we have formed the habit of marveling at their bulk without stopping to analyze them on a comparative basis.

We have based our "foolish boast" on sums total—in themselves unprecedented—without sanely considering demands and attendant conditions, which also are unprecedented; accepting results without questioning possibilities or needs. It is because of this shortsighted policy, which has taken no account of the well-being of the average individual or the economic importance of maintaining soil fertility, that "now our thought and effort as a nation, as states and citizens, is needed to direct and redirect, protect and conserve our great interests, chiefest of which is agriculture."

THE LITTLE DIAMOND STATE

As An Outsider Sees Us

Here is the manner in which the Delawarean for September speaks of Delaware:

"A little 'diazet' got the heart of the nation, whose entertainments are heralded at home and abroad. A little State, the smallest in the Union, yet renowned for its fine cooking, particularly those dishes where her own superb waters and orchards are levied on for their supplies."

All of which goes to prove that Delaware is being recognized abroad. What Delaware needs more than anything else at this time, however, is to realize it herself. A farmer at Bridgeville the other day picked $1,000 of cantaloupes off eight acres of land at one picking. The melons were sold at Bridgeville station and the producer had the money or its equivalent when he returned to his home.

It has been known for several years that fortunes were being made in the Bridgeville district on strawberries. It was known that in the Bridgeville and Selbyville districts were raised the best strawberries in the world. A Worcester County, Md., farmer a few days ago told the writer that he believed the Selbyville-Bridgeville districts raised the best strawberries in the world, but, he continued, "I don't believe it will raise anything else." Now here is the cantaloupe story and they say the Bridgeville-Selbyville district raises the best cantaloupes in the world.

The demand for the cantaloupe is unlimited. The area on which they can be raised with the peculiar delicious flavor is limited. Great fortunes should be made on this favored soil. The lesson this day's picking teaches, however, is not confined to cantaloupes. What it says most emphatically is "specialize."

The Delmarva Peninsula will produce anything which will grow in the temperate zone. What is raised here whether it be apples or peaches or sweet potatoes or cantaloupes have an incomparable flavor. The best markets in the world are persistently beckoning. The bounties are sure and the rush to these fertile fields is about to begin. The first necessity is good roads for good roads mean available markets. The roads point the way.

Farmers in the Pleasantville, New Jersey, district had their produce by horses to the Philadelphia market. The distance is about as far from Philadelphia as Smyrna is from Wilmington. By auto truck Bridgeville is nearer Wilmington than is Merchantville to Philadelphia by team. Good roads and the auto truck will solve Delaware, Delmarva and Wilmington's problems.

Cloth Better Than Glass

Cheesecloth covering for plants, a farmer tells us in an agricultural paper, are superior to glass, for they let the moisture through. The white shelter has a forcing effect, and also keeps out insects. Cucumbers from vines thus sheltered were gathered two weeks earlier than usual during the season, and the enthusiastic experimenter is planning for large results next year through the use of these cheesecloth protectors.—Ex.

After next July a standard barrel of apples must be twenty-six inches between the heads, sixty-four inches in circumference, outside measurement round the middle, and the heads must be seventeen and one-eighth inches in diameter. In accordance with a recent act of Congress, such a barrel, if the apples in it are hand picked and free from blemishes, may be labelled "Standard." But a fine of one dollar and costs will be exacted for every barrel that is marked "Standard" and does not conform to the requirements. The law was passed at the urgent solicitation of those who believe that a purchaser has a right to know what he is getting when he buys a barrel of apples.

WASHINGTON.

A nation is not merely an aggregation of individuals, but a body of laws and institutions, welded into one organic, living entity. Writing and reading of history are beneficial only in so far as history establishes a school of morals.

The past is a vast field. The bad man as well as the good man finds in the future a limitless haven for his imagination, and hopes for fame and favor at the hands of generations to succeed him. The historian, looking back at years far fled, seeking to perceive clearly through obscurity the right relation of acts of individuals, of parties or of nations, is sometimes inclined to doubt the soundness of his own judgment in a future that looks back to a past so distant.

THE NEWARK POST Newark, Delaware

Published Every Wednesday by Everett C. Johnson

Address all communications to THE NEWARK POST. Make all checks to THE NEWARK POST.

We want and invite communication, but they must be signed by the writer's name—not for publication, but for our information and protection.

Entered as second-class matter at Newark, Del., under Act of March 3, 1879. The subscription price of this paper is $1.00 per year in advance.

AUGUST 27, 1913

MARKET REFORM

A Farmer's Market in fact as well as in name. Such is the pleasing outlook of the investigation now going on by the Chamber of Commerce. We predict its success. They have entered into the consideration of this subject as strictly a business proposition.

It is gratifying, too, to see the attitude of the Wilmington papers. Their recognition of conditions and demand for an effective change is meeting with more than ordinary approval.

It is being contended that a strict enforcement of the laws would be sufficient to remedy all the existing evils. If so, that is entirely satisfactory to every farmer in this community.

We have no desire to bar the farmer from neighboring states and any such interpretation of our attitude is directly contrary to the facts. It would be not only ruinous to the city of Wilmington but directly at variance with the spirit and practice of plain American citizenship.

It matters nothing to us just how it is done, whether by a 30 or 60 day option for Delaware farmers, by separation or by extension of market streets. The thing the farmers want is the chance of an honest sale of their produce.

We are looking with keen interest for the outcome. The Committee in charge has won the confidence of the rural folk and farmers can well prepare for a restoration of satisfactory conditions.

SCHOOL QUESTION

During the last few weeks, there has been considerable criticism of the Public Schools, their management and lack of efficiency. Some of this criticism was based on facts while some of it was mere conclusions founded on prejudiced rumors.

Now that the School year is about to begin, we should like to suggest that the widest publicity be given to all the school activities. The teachers are invited to co-operate in giving the news to the public.

It is hoped that Newark will remember the day and give our city friends a royal welcome. The things necessary to develop this peninsula are simply a better acquaintance and co-operation of all sections. Let's do our part.

LET THE BAND PLAY

The Minnehaha Band needs just a little more money for the Public Band Stand. It is hoped that friends will chip in a mite so that the Stand can be built at the earliest possible moment.

Another matter of serious importance, that of survey of study,

UNDERGROUND WIRES

At the meeting of Council on next Monday evening it is probable that some action will be taken on the question of placing the telephone and telegraph wires underground. At the last meeting the chairman of the committee having this matter in charge reported that the Telephone Company using this territory will have a proposition to make to Council.

The suggestion of placing the wires underground has met with almost unanimous favor and Council will likely give the matter thorough consideration. Nothing the town could do would so guarantee the beauty of our streets as this improvement.

Both of these defects can be easily remedied by Council. A declaration of their position by ordinance would be supported by our whole citizenship.

Armstrong Farm Sold

Harry Lungren of Lewisville has purchased from Theodore F. Armstrong of Newark, the Foster farm near Blake, the barn on which was burned during a recent electric storm.

Squibs

"A word to the wise" is sufficient to stir up the whole neighborhood. Author unknown but supposed to have once run a country newspaper.

In the mathematics of Gossip there is only addition and multiplication. Subtraction and division are unknown.

Soon be harvest moon. Oh, but think of that Rehoboth moon! Political talk is beginning to warm up in White Clay.

The opposition to a Free Library has been rather pronounced. Any one will admit that statement even if it does appear in the Post. It has occurred to us that it might be a good thing to offer a prize for the best article entitled, "Why I am opposed to a Free Library for Newark."

Defends Umpire From Abuse

Judge Churchman of Wilmington is determined to protect baseball umpires from abuse and violence at the hands of rooters angered by their rulings, fining Norman Carter $5 for throwing a stone at Umpire Freeman and Frank Halling $1 for cursing the same official during the recent game at Front and Union streets in that city.

Farmhouse To Be Remodelled

C. F. E. Lewis who recently sold his farm adjoining Red Men's Home to Prof. A. E. Grantham of the Delaware College Experiment Station, will move to Newark in the near future. Mr. Lewis will sell his stock and farming implements this week. Professor Grantham will make his home in the remodeled farmhouse, while continuing his work as agronomist at the State Farm.

Receives Eggs By Parcel Post

Josiah Marvel, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Wilmington, received yesterday by parcel post a neat straw paper hamper containing two dozen eggs. These had been shipped by Thomas Johnson of Harrison, Del., as a test of wisdom of employing the parcel post for such services. The package was delivered in perfect condition, not an egg being broken or even cracked. If the fragile egg can be so shipped it would seem the parcel post is of unlimited possibilities.

MARKET CONDITIONS MADE PUBLIC

ed Hervey Walker, Henry Thompson, Thomas Greer, Eliza P. Hicks, Martin E. Smith, F. F. Yearsley, J. T. Kilvington, L. A. Othson, John W. Banks, J. L. Knox and Charles P. Dickey. The members of the cleanup committee present were Chairman James H. Wright, Irving Warner, John S. Hamilton, Walter Stewart Brown, A. B. Moore, Leon Walker and President Josiah Marvel. The conference started at 4 o'clock and lasted fully two hours.

INVITE CRITICISM

After Chairman Wright had explained the purposes of the meeting Mr. Hamilton made a short speech inviting the farmers to be free with their criticisms of the markets. He said the farmers themselves should be acquainted with the evils that had crept in. After the farmers had informed the committee, he said, it would weigh the information and call upon the people of Wilmington to remedy the faulty conditions.

Mr. Greer said he recalled a similar meeting two years ago at which the farmers had made recommendations and were to meet with City Council. Nothing had come of this meeting, he added. Mr. Wright explained that the present Chamber of Commerce is something entirely different and expected to find a solution for the market problem. He said that naturally his committee could not be expected to do everything asked by the farmers.

THINKS LAWS ARE ADEQUATE

Mr. Greer then expressed the opinion that the existing market laws and regulations are sufficient if they were enforced. He pointed out that the law stated distinctly that the markets were exclusively for farmers and hucksters to sell products on land which they own or lease. An enforcement of existing law, he declared would solve the huckster problem speedily.

To shed light on the discussion Mr. Wright then read sections of the market laws.

The first point then discussed was the question of spaces between the wagons. The law requires two spaces of three feet each between wagons in each block. The farmers agreed that there is nothing wrong with this. Mr. Hicks, who said he had been selling in Wilmington markets for 52 years, said that he thought there was hardly room enough in some sections of the markets for wagons to back in. Hucksters, he said, often come to the markets before the farmers arrive in town and occupy the curb spaces intended for the farmers. He asserted that there were some farmers, who, like hucksters, bought eggs in the city which they sold as strictly fresh farm eggs. He thought there were about one-fourth as many hucksters in the markets as farmers. He disagreed with the section of the law which requires the farmers to stop selling at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and thought the time limit should be 3 o'clock.

DEPLORES CONDITIONS

Mr. Thompson declared with emphasis that every huckster in the city should be driven off the curbs. No city, he declared, that pretends to be a city except Wilmington would tolerate the conditions existing here. The men who sell in the city markets, he asserted, should be limited to those who till the soil. He classed as silly the suggestion that Maryland, New Jersey and Pennsylvania farmers should be barred from the local markets. He said he was surprised that one editor did not have more sense. Mr. Thompson concluded by saying that the farmer was entitled to get all he can for his produce. To this Mr. Moore replied: "He does get all he can, doesn't he?"

Mr. Walker said he considered that some newspapers created a disturbance between the consumer and the producer by trying to beland the question of prices, and accuse the farmers of being robbers. Everybody, Mr. Walker declared, sells his product for as much as he can get. The street markets will never again be what they were once, Mr. Walker said, because of the use of telephones and the delivery of purchases by merchants.

There was considerable discussion about the suggestion to have different prices charged for market spaces according to the desirability of such spaces. Mr. Dickey agreed with the suggestion. The suggestion was also made that the market permits should be sold at public auction. A number of the farmers objected to this on the ground that at present they have the privilege of renewing their permits and under the proposed plan would have to bid for it against other farmers who might want it.

The question of whether a farmer should be allowed to take out permits on more than one space also precipitated a discussion. Mr. Moore declared positively that he thought no farmer should be allowed more than one permit until all farmers who wanted spaces had secured them.

WHERE TO PUT HUCKSTERS

Went to do with the hucksters proved to be another disputed point. Mr. Marvel pointed out that the law assigns them places along Fourth street between King and Walnut and Jefferson and Moore streets. Mr. Smith said this had been changed when the so-called Jersey market was established along Walnut street. Mr. Banks suggested that the hucksters be allowed to sell along the streets intersecting King and Madison streets. Leon Walker offered the suggestion that one block in King street be set aside for hucksters exclusively. The farmers objected to this on the ground that King street is a farmers' market primarily.

Mr. Banks was the only farmer who thought the hucksters were a help to the farmers themselves. He explained that the hucksters sold fruit such as peaches, bananas, and cantaloupes while the farmers did not raise in quantities around the city, but which the consumers wanted to purchase when they came to market. Mr. Walker also inclined to the opinion that the consumer needs the huckster convenient to the street markets.

President Marvel thanked the farmers for their interest in the meeting. He said he believed the clean-up committee would honestly decide what they thought the best thing to do. Without knowing what it will do yet, the committee, he said, will proceed without fear or favor to do the best for the general public.

to thousands of causes they could not, with the present knowledge we have, meet and neutralize. I write this remembering my own youth, with summers after I left home to work my way through high school, when I was always overworked from four in the morning till nine at night, with no noon hour and no Sunday rest worth mentioning. I know that even education does not justify such toil as many follow in order to gain it; that no economic necessity short of actual starvation justifies the hard work being done by thousands of boys in all sections of the country. The achievements of old times should not be counted now. The age has grown intense. We all work faster than when our grandfathers toiled; life is more intense, the mental activities much more trying upon the body. We should remember that the young men are to be treated as carefully at least as are young colts, which the farmer will not work at all until a certain age and then only with care. The farmer is not a chief offender against the young folks; he is usually the best parent on earth; but farm conditions tend to make parents forget. There is danger for the boys and many of them, even in homes where the parents think they were careful, and the boy thought so too, are in danger of bereavement. And what I have said as to the boys can be said with equal truth as to all girls who are tested beyond their strength, either because of long hours or hard labor. Let us resolve that we will not be driven, even by economic necessity, into forgetting that our children are ours, and need joy and rest and freedom from tasks too hard. There are worse sorrows than going to an almshouse and worse misfortunes than being sold out by the sheriff. Give the children the benefit of the doubt, every time, and you will thus do all you can to have in your old age a protection against the misfortunes of the world and a comfort as you withdraw from the trials of earth to the reward of those who have, perhaps, not become wealthy but who have loved much.
 Iron Hill, Md. O. R. Washburn

legal tender. Silver dollars are legal tender for any amount, but half and quarter dollars are good for payment up to $10 only, while nickel and copper coins lose their significance at "twobits." The conditions applying to the first two mentioned vary, for although they are not legal tender between individuals, both issues are receivable for all government dues.

National bank notes, while not legal tender, and not receivable for duties on imports, may be paid by the government for all salaries and in discharge of all debts of the government except interest dues and in redemption of the national currency.

By a special enactment, no foreign coin is legal tender anywhere in the United States, hence the number of Canadian coins found near the border cannot be used by American citizens in legal payment of debt.

The Mule and The Man
 The mule—he is a gentle beast;
 And so is man.
 He's satisfied to be the least;
 And so is man.
 Like man, he may be taught some tricks;
 He does his work from 8 to 6;
 The mule—when he gets mad, he kicks;
 And so does man.

The mule—he has a load to pull;
 And so has man.
 He's happiest when he is full;
 And so is man.
 Like man he holds a patient pose,
 And when his work's done will rejoice.
 The mule—he likes to hear his voice;
 And so does man.

The mule is sometimes kind and good;
 And so is man.
 He eats all kinds of breakfast food;
 And so does man.
 Like man, he balks at gaudy dress
 And all outlandish foolishness;
 The mule's accused of mulishness;
 And so is man.

Prison Reform in Delaware
 Prison reform in Delaware is a big issue now before the people. We appeal to all the Friends societies, the humane meetings and the fraternal orders of the State to get into the discussion. Let us abolish the pen, the stripes, the silent system the tuberculosis punishment and move our prisoners on a big farm growing fruits and flowers and learning how to live and make a living. Keep the dark cell only for the treacherous or those absolutely incorrigible, found so after all reasonable attempts to reform are exhausted.

Varieties Of Money Now In Circulation
 There are ten kinds of money in circulation in our country at the present time. The government is now getting ready to distribute the new bills, which are to be smaller and neater than the old ones, and that will make another kind, at least until the old ones are all called in.

In spite of the fact that money is money, and "all money looks alike," it may surprise some one to learn that not all money is legal tender. Legal tender gets its name from the fact that in payment of debts or obligation of any sort, it can be paid to the creditor "in full of all demands." The following is a list of the various kinds of money with which the American people pay their bills:

Gold coins, standard silver dollars, subsidiary silver, gold certificates, silver certificates, treasury notes, United States notes (greenbacks), national bank notes, nickel coins and bronze coins. Some of the most impressive sounding names in the above list fall short of being legal tender at all. Then, again, the minor coins are legal tender only for surprisingly small amounts.

Everywhere in this country, enormous quantities of gold certificates, silver certificates and national bank notes are not

Are You Fair To The Boy?

The struggle for existence on the farm is very severe and many things get overlooked because of this. One of the points which even physicians and pastors seem not to notice or find it best not to mention, is the fact that many young men on the farm are being badly overworked and that often no one suspects it except the boys themselves, and sometimes they do not. A youth is under a great natural strain from his thirteenth to twentieth year. A large portion of the food he eats is required for the development of manhood. A moderate amount of work under protected conditions is good for him; keeping him well trained and tending to prevent his forming vicious habits. But school life makes a heavy drain upon the boys and the work before and after school adds to it, and through the vacation season they often do a man's work. This overworking does not, usually, act directly to break down the health but the long hours, often from dawn till dark, the heavy work behind plow, harrow or shovel, leaves the reserve strength account very low. The vitality of a man is like a bank account; you can check it out till it is gone and then draw on the capacity to borrow, the borrowing being done in this case from the reserves of fat and red blood in the body. To check out too much is to invite illness and death.

A youth needs sleep; lots of it. His brain works as hard as a man's and exhausts him. His labor is harder upon him than on a man for he has softer tendons, less reserve power, less skill to save himself from weariness. His body is growing and that means the need of sleep. Little children grow most rapidly and their longer sleeping hours are proof of the connection between growth and the need of rest. It is natural for a growing, working boy to lie abed in the morning and as much time as he wishes to sleep, not simply lie abed, should be given him in which to do it; if it is twelve hours a night. Sufficient sleep would have kept the undertaker away from millions of homes. The boy who has for economic reasons, to get up at dawn and work till dark should have at least two hours rest at noon and be encouraged to take a nap at that time. His food should be looked after. A lunch in the forenoon should be provided for him and even if he is indifferent to it he should be supplied with plenty of nutrition during days of hard toil. Holidays should be frequent. Boys must enjoy life to keep well. Otherwise work becomes hateful and drudgery causes the body to work like unoled machinery. A boy has a man's wants with only a boy's ability to attain what is desired. The parents should try hard, even at the cost of poverty, to give the boy opportunity for recreation. Pleasure relaxes the nerves strained by overwork; it gladdens the heart and improves the nerve conditions and makes health natural. It is idle to say that if a boy has strength to be out nights he is not overworked. The overworked boy is the one who, until he is near physical collapse, will instinctively seek rest in social pleasure; seek relief from the death which pursues him by casting care aside. Every boy should be encouraged to be out evenings now and then, if he goes where he can have a good time without getting bad habits or endangering his health. And when a boy has been out during an evening, and come home late, he ought to be given a chance to sleep later in the morning or to have a good rest at noon of the day following. Such indulgence costs, sometimes, and a growing mortgage is a serious thing. None the less it is not so much of an evil as an undertakers bill.

The effect of overwork does not appear, as a rule, outwardly. The vitality is low, the boy may look thin, or have poor digestion or be subject to hard colds or unexplained lameness, but he gets along. But when the typhoid infection has to be met, or tuberculosis attacks him, as it attacks thousands who endure it a while and throw it off without its being known, the weakened boy suffers because of the unnatural strain put upon him by long hours or too hard exertions at a critical age. In millions of cases death results from some attack of disease which would not have caused even illness had the boy not been working so long or hard each day. It is common for a powerful farmer to say: "I worked harder than that when I was young; it won't hurt the boy any." But if he would look back at his boyhood he would see that many a bright companion of those days, not quite so enduring as he, died young under the burden of labor he carried and did not fall under. There is much talk of a mysterious Providence, at the funerals of the young which might be displaced by silence or the truth that God kills no one but parents do; little as they dream of what they are doing.

No one realizes more than the writer of this how hard is the pressure of poverty, or some apparent necessity, upon the parents of the country. The illness of boys is not always due to paternal neglect, but
