Sigma Nu Fraternity Holds Formal Dance

First Formal of Season

The winter social season was officially opened on Friday evening, December 14th, when the Delta Kappa Chapter of the Sigma Nu Fraternity gave its annual formal in Old College.

A jolly holiday spirit prevailed the dance. Christmas trees and festive greens made an appropriate background for the occasion.

Christmas lanterns served as shades for the lights. A large illuminated Sigma Nu pin was suspended from the balcony and lent a subdued glow to the Commons.

The patronesses were: Mrs. John Breuninger, Mrs. Charles B. Evans, Mrs. H. Warner McNeal, Mrs. John Pilling, Mrs. Clarence A. Short, Mrs. Louis O. Shaefer, Mrs. James K. Underwood, Mrs. Howard P. Williams, Mrs. Emma Wilson, Mrs. Ernest Wright.

Professor Lamkey Addresses Chi Rho Round Table Meeting

At the semi-weekly meeting of the Chi Rho Round Table in the Trophy Room of Old College last Thursday, Professor E. M. R. Lamkey, of the Experimental Station Staff, gave a most interesting and detailed discussion on the problem of "Science versus Religion." Professor Lamkey offered some very convincing data on the subject and brought out many new thoughts concerning the modern conception of the alliance of science to religion. There was a general discussion by all those present following the professors address.

At the last meeting of the society, A. Murray Hanson was elected president, and Roger G. Taylor, secretary.

The Round Table offers a method of religious discussion that is absolutely non-sectarian and of great benefit to any student interested in acquiring religious knowledge or anxious to settle and special phase of religion in his mind. The forum after the addresses at each meeting make this satisfaction possible.

The next meeting of the Round Table will take place on January 10, 1924. A special program is being arranged for that evening in order to give the organization a good start for the new year and make it prove of benefit to the student body.

INTER-COLLEGIATE DRAMATIC ASSOCIATION CONFERENCE AT CORNELL

Louise Jackson Attends

Louise Jackson, president of the Women's College Dramatic Club, returned from the conference of the Inter-Collegiate Dramatic Association, held at Cornell on December 10th. Miss Jackson reports that the conference was a stimulating one. Among the vital ideas gained by her at the conference was the realization that Undergraduate Dramatics is playing an important part in all student activities, and that it is inevitably to have its effect upon the professional stage.

The purpose of the conference was to afford opportunity for discussion of the various problems to be solved by each college club. The organization, Inter-Collegiate Dramatic Association, aims to promote unity of the clubs and to be of practical benefit to each association member, providing information, material, and reports of the success or failure of plays given by the college clubs. Among the requirements for membership in the Association is the submitting of detailed reports of all plays given. A permanent library containing these reports as well as much other relative material has been established at Adelphi College, Brooklyn. The Association hopes to be an influence in many ways, particularly in the obtaining of the desired play.

MUSICAL PROGRAM RENDERED DURING COLLEGE HOUR

W. C. Glee Club Sings

College Hour exercises last Tuesday were extremely unusual in their nature in that the program was entirely musical, presented by local talent.

Dr. Hullahen opened the exercises with a short talk on the importance of developing the mind of the people to appreciate music. He recalled that the Greeks, who had reached the height of literary culture, considered music an essential part of the program of developing the

The Third Annual Concert of the Wilmington Orpheus Club to Take Place in Wolf Hall

Noah H. Swayne, 2nd, Soloist

NOAH H. SWAYNE, 2nd

The justly famous Orpheus Club of Wilmington will give a concert in Wolf Hall on Thursday evening, January 10th.

These fifty singers will be conducted by Dr. H. Alexander Matthews and Noah H. Swayne, 2nd, will be the assisting soloist.

Recently the Orpheus Club presented the first concert of their seventh season in the Playhouse, where they won the enthusiastic applause of the large audience which filled Wilmington's largest theatre.

The program this season contains seventeen scheduled numbers, including four negro spirituals rendered as only Noah Swayne can render the negro folk song. Another selection which was unusually successful in Wilmington was "The Toreador."

Junior Prom To Be Held January 12 In Residence Hall

The biggest social affair of the year at the Women's College, the Junior Prom, will be held in Residence Hall January 12. Plans are being made with the hope of making this Prom a success. Madden's Orchestra has already been secured.

The committees in charge are: Executive—Charlotte Dayett and Alyce Watson.

Music, Programs and Invitations—Bertha Staats and Madalin Wintrup.

Patroness Committee—Margaret Touhey and Florence Stidham.

Decorations—Frances Richards, Hazel Allen and Kathryn Ladd.

Refreshments—Dorothy Nunn, Marjorie Brosius, and Helen Baker.

DR. EDWIN SPARKS HONORED GUEST OF PHI KAPPA PHI MEN

Delivers Scholarly Address

Dr. Edwin Sparks, President of Pennsylvania State College and Regent-General of Phi Kappa Phi honorary fraternity, was the honored guest of the Delaware College Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi on the evening of Tuesday, December 11th, when he witnessed the digging of the Library foundation by the students.

Dr. Sparks was entertained at a dinner given in the West Wing Dining Room of Old College, where he addressed the faculty members of Phi Kappa Phi and the active members, who were initiated this year. The distinguished visitor spoke upon the founding of the fraternity, which was established at Penn State in 1897. In 1907 Dr. Sparks was made president of the organization. During that time Delaware became the fifth institution to be represented on the fraternity chapter roll. Phi Kappa Phi now has thirty-four chapters. About thirty members of the faculty and the active Phi Kappa Phi men attended the dinner.

Following the dinner, Dr. Sparks addressed the students in the main dining room on the subject of scholarship. His talk was brief, sparkling with humor, but at the same time it carried a sincere appeal for better scholarship in America.

SOPHOMORES WIN BASKETBALL TITLE FROM JUNIORS

Johnson Lucky One

The Sophomores won the inter-class basketball championship of the University of Delaware Monday afternoon by defeating the Juniors, 13 to 9. The Sophs had previously defeated the Freshmen while the Juniors won from the Seniors last week.

The scrimmage between the class champions and last year's varsity, which was scheduled for Tuesday, December 11th, has been postponed until Friday.

The game yesterday was exceptionally fast. The guarding

Dr. Patterson Tells Of Experiences In Mexico At Forum

Mexico, in all its phases, was discussed extensively by Doctor Patterson at Forum on last Tuesday. He began by discussing the people of Mexico, and he explained that the people and leaders of the country which we read of in the newspapers, are quite different from the true Mexicans. Most of the native Mexicans, who had the true intellect and learning, were exiled by a few adventurers who had obtained power. These Mexi-

Delaware Defeated In Close Contest By Temple U. Five

Lose by One Point in Fast Game Characterized by Roughness —Teams in Initial Fray

Captain Courtney Stars

The Blue and Gold basketball quintet went down before Temple University in the curtain raiser of the season last Tuesday night, losing by the very close score of 25 to 24, in a game that was full of fight and pep, but deplorably lacking in the elementary rudiments of good basketball.

Temple cut loose at the start and maintained a lead throughout the first half, which ended with the Delaware clan on the small end of a 17 to 9 score. Temple employed a system of short snappy passes which kept the Delaware five fighting desperately to keep the visitors from running up a big score. Captain Courtney, of the Philadelphians, displayed a brilliant brand of basketball, his floor work and shooting from the field and the foul line being one of the features of the game.

The game was rough—in fact the roughest seen on the local floor for some time. Delaware seemed to have forgotten that football was out of season and their antics as a team made up one grand orgy of personal

Y. W. C. A. Plans To Train Freshmen To Cabinet Positions

The Y. W. C. A. is trying out this year a plan which it hopes will help train Freshmen girls for positions in the cabinet. A mock cabinet composed of Freshmen has been elected. This will be modelled after the real cabinet. The responsibility of the Freshmen will be to aid those girls on the real cabinet who hold positions corresponding to their own. These Freshmen will not necessarily be chosen for the real cabinet later on, but the Y. W. C. A. feels that this will be splendid training for them.

The Freshmen chosen for the various positions are as follows: President—Margaret Nunn. Vice-President—Eliza Cook. Secretary and Treasurer—Bertha Skrivan.

Chairman of Meetings—Elizabeth Cook.

Chairman of Finance—Elizabeth Wiley.

Chairman of Publicity—Telma Buell.

Chairman of Social Service—Elizabeth Hutt.

Chairman of Bible Study—Elizabeth Elliot.

Chairman of Missions—Dorothy Wood.

Undergraduate Field Representative—Grace Ellison.

During the year these girls will have several opportunities to take charge of one of the real Y. W. C. A. cabinet meetings.

REAL BASKETBALL

"The invention of basketball was no accidental occurrence, nor was it the result of any happy, momentary inspiration. Doctor Naismith emphasizes that point. He simply saw the need for an interesting, competitive, indoor game, and the listless attitude of his class towards apparatus work spurred him to the attempt to fill that need. So one day he sat down at his desk and began to review mentally all the popular games of the day, with the idea in mind that one of them might be modified for indoor use. His problem was to eliminate enough of the roughness of outdoor sports from his new game so that it would be suitable for gymnasium use, and yet to leave in it enough "fight" to make the contest interesting."

The above paragraph was taken from a report by an interviewer who found out from Dr. James Naismith (the father of basketball, and at the present time director of physical education at the University of Kansas) the real object of the game.

We do not feel at liberty to criticize too rigorously the free-for-all scrap that took place with the Temple five last Tuesday. First games are very much like "first nights"—they often show up the unpolished finish of the players in each case. There was plenty of fight on both sides. But when fighting spirit degenerates into roughness on the basketball floor, the game ceases to be interesting.

McAvoy is going to turn out a real five this year and they are going to receive the support of the whole student body. We want to see a fighting five, but surely not a rough team. Real basketball consists of clean, swift, fighting action. That is the kind of game we want to root for at Delaware.

THE GLAD HAND

Delaware rooters are always ready to give their team the glad hand when they trot out on the basketball floor. That sort of spirit puts real fight in our athletes. Visiting teams are often at a loss here, however, for they very seldom receive any recognition of their presence. We are too good sportsmen to entertain hopes that our opponents win, but we can at least do them the courtesy and justice of acknowledging their presence and competitive spirit by giving them the glad hand when they come out on the floor.

—AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR

The spirit of the winter nights has brought us all to the realization that the Yuletide is near. The postman has already begun to drop greetings from our friends at our dorms. We have opened our hearts to the season, and emptied our pockets to shower gifts and Christmas Spirit upon our friends and loved ones.

Christmas Spirit—that is the jolly feeling which fills us all at this time. It is everywhere and permeates everything.

Santa Claus! why of course there is a Santa Claus. He is the Spirit that we all feel at this time. The Review feels it and wishes to extend to all its readers that same joyous feeling—A Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

"ON EARTH PEACE. — —"

The Christmas spirit pervades the Campus. Everyone is thinking about Christmas gifts and talking excitedly about plans for the holidays. As we read again the Christmas story and sing the Christmas carols, let us pause for a moment and consider those familiar words, "On earth peace, good will toward men." It is not in our power to spread peace and good will over all the earth. But here in our little University world we have the power of creating and spreading a spirit of peace and good will. In the past, we have had entirely too much unfriendliness and disunion. We have all been only too willing to criticize the faults of our friends and associates. But seldom have we offered any worthwhile suggestions as to how they might overcome those faults. In the future can we not strive to attain an attitude of tolerance? Indeed, may we not even learn to admit that ideas quite different from ours and people quite different from us may be really worthwhile? After all, though we do frequently disagree, we are essentially a united and friendly group. Hereafter, let us make our group even more friendly and united by venting our bad humors on our alarm clocks or other inanimate objects rather than on our imperfect but withal worthwhile fellow-students.

Press Club Planned
At Women's College

Plans are well under way for the organization of a press club. On Monday afternoon of December 17th, a group of girls interested in journalism met with Miss Robinson and Miss Keeley to discuss the formation of such an organization.

It was decided that the general plan and purpose of the club be worked out by a committee, consisting of Lois Garrett, chairman, Miss Keeley, Frances Jones, Lucile Petry, and Grace Reed, and that these plans be submitted at the next meeting of the club.

It is expected that this new organization will fill a long realized need for organized work in journalism. Membership will be limited to those girls who are actually interested in literary work of this type.

On Wednesday evening, November 28th, Bertha La Tour Welcome, '21, was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Hospital. Of the forty members of the class, Miss Welcome took the highest honor—a gold medal. Moreover, Miss Welcome was able to complete her course in nine months less than the other students.

An Appreciation from Abroad

Balliol College, Oxford,
December 1, 1923.

Dear John:

To you and the Student Body the sending of the cablegram of Thanksgiving greetings was probably a small thing. To me it was a breath from home—and if you have ever faced three years away from home, you will realize just how much it did mean.

Baker of Virginia, Campbell of Virginia and West Virginia, and I celebrated with a little dinner of our own. The English, as you doubtless know, have little use for our Thanksgiving Day. The time here is five hours ahead of yours; but at 1.00 P. M. on Tuesday (rather Wednesday), just as you were starting your dinner, I proposed a lonesome toast to you all, and drink it in port wine—in which I probably had the advantage of you.

Will you tell the Student Body that I am very grateful and will you convey to them my heartiest wishes for a very merry Christmas and a very happy New Year?

Ever yours,

G. GRAY CARTER.

Marital Music

Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! the boys were marching—yes, actually marching right down the road into battle. I could even hear the music of the bands. Everything seemed to be in a great uproar, but every once in a while above the din could be heard the loud and relentless voice of the commander as he urged them on their long and tedious, uphill way to the final much coveted goal. The din was, on the whole, rather a cheerful sort of a noise broken at times by a few groans from the boys as a result of over-exercise and stiffness. To my surprise the noise seemed to get closer and closer, until finally the idea flashed upon my brain that it was not an army at all, but a dream; so I opened my eyes and immediately searched for the commotion. What I beheld was no less than fifteen or twenty laughing and groaning girls stretched in a row in the hall, doing the daily dozen reducing exercises ordered by the voice of the Victrola.

Fraternity Pledges

The following students have been pledged to the five Greek Letter Fraternities on the Campus since the beginning of the collegiate year 1923-1924.

Those pledged to Kappa Alpha are as follows: Leland S. Burton, Clarence B. Downing, Wm. H. Draper, N. Lewis Elli, Percy B. Lebate, Robert F. Lewis, Harold P. Nutter, Donald Murray, John C. Poole, W. Harmon Reynolds, Jr., Harvey W. Wilkinson.

ERUDITE FISSURES

Since these remarks—even the original ones—are considered worthy of a more dignified title than "wise cracks," and since the writer is unable to think of a more pertinent designation, he has clothed the plebian, "wise cracks," in aristocratic raiment and presented the linguistic yokel as a literary peer.

I wager very few of you gentle and cultured readers were able to penetrate the disguise. But now that an explanation has been offered, here follows the display of philosophical jewelry—give it the "once-over" friends,

GIVE YULETIDE PARTY

The Sophomores of the Women's College gave a Christmas entertainment in the form of a children's party in the Hilarium on Saturday evening, December 15th. Louise Harris was the "mamma" in charge of the little ones. Members of the faculty, as well as students, came dressed as boys or girls. Of course, games hold a predominant part in all children's festivities. "Going to Jerusalem," "Black and White," "Three Deep," "Ring on the String," and "Spin the Plate," all had their turn. When everyone had tired of playing, each child described the dolls, sleds, and skates Santa Claus had been asked to bring. Esther Ruston read a Christmas poem.

Then with a jingle of bells and a flutter of snowflakes, Santa himself (Marie Betts) appeared! He had an apple and a doll for each child. Upon close inspection the doll was found to be an "all-day" sucker dressed in Christmas crepe paper. After the dolls and apples had disappeared, the children sang Christmas carols and were sent home.

it's not all of the cut-glass variety.

Student Makes New Dental Discovery

They had told me that she was as simple as a child, that her fame had not spoiled her, yet I trembled as I approached this great dental artist to interview her. Miss Jefferson, with charming cordiality, bade me be seated. She smiled upon me, displaying row upon row of those creamy teeth, produced by her art.

"How do you do it?" I exclaimed, overcome. I could not tear my eyes from that exquisite set of false teeth. As I gazed at Miss Jefferson I realized the truth of Darwin's theory.

"Very simple," she said in answer to my query. "I shall give you the formula. I make no secret of it for I wish all my fellowwomen to be as beautiful as I." She stopped to sip some water which flowed between her teeth with ease and equanimity.

"Peel an orange," she continued, "and take one quarter of the peeling, and cut the teeth with scissors, free hand. Part of the orange skin forms a comfortable gum while the teeth protrude gaily between the lips. The delightful part is that they can be worn over one's real teeth with perfect comfort, and can be withdrawn at will in the drawing room without embarrassment."

Miss Jefferson wears her teeth at all times; at student meetings; at meals. They cause her no annoyance. "In fact," she said, "I feel lost without them; they are as necessary to me as a mule's tail in fly time."

Many of the girls at the Women's College are going in strong for the fad. Miss Wolfenden and Miss Fletcher appeared Tuesday night at dinner in their new teeth and Miss Ady has a pair ordered.

My charming hostess offered to show me how they looked out of the mouth. With a dainty gesture she extracted her teeth while I fainted away with delight.

Varsity Downs Sophomore Five In Practice Tilt

The winning streak of the Sophomore class was crashed against the insurmountable barrier afforded by the varsity last Friday afternoon, when the class champions were defeated by a score of 27 to 9.

The varsity was supported by four of last year's letter men, Captain France, McKelvie, Jackson, and Williams, and was further aided by Gibson and Garvine. Gibson, a member of last year's scrubs, showed excellent speed and form in boosting the varsity's score six points with his field goals. Garvine proved that his athletic ability was not confined to the grid-iron by giving an exhibition of speed and skill. He showed his efficiency in shooting by making four "two-pointers," and his speed and accuracy in dribbling and cutting for the basket surprised many who were not acquainted with his previous cage career. In fact, it now appears as though this Freshman might develop into the best guard that the Delaware quintet has ever known.

Although the Sophomores offered a hard and game fight, they were out-classed by the weight and experience of the varsity five.

cans are not able to get back to their native land; hence, the unscrupulous leaders still reign.

Dr. Patterson also explained the political attitude of the populace. In the first place most of the people are desirous of rebelling against any political party in power; in fact they thrive on it. Then, there is really no difference in political parties; the only object in having differences is that certain men grow eager to see some of their own relatives in office—therefore they plot against the ruling régime.

Dr. Patterson said he could think of no place in the world as attractive and interesting as Mexico. The old, quaint, Spanish atmosphere still clings to the country; there are many interesting places to visit; also there are many fetes and carnivals which are interesting.

Every one who heard Dr. Patterson was very pleased with the talk; any one who was particularly interested in Latin American countries would have enjoyed this meeting.

Louise Thompson poured tea; and she was assisted by Katherine Banard, Eloise Rodney, and Sally Callamay.

INTER-COLLEGIATE DRAMATIC CONFERENCE

and in establishing fair prices for costumes, make ups, and stage settings.

Among the most interesting problems discussed was the length of time used in the preparation of a long play. Five to seven weeks was the answer generally given. Whether or not a college play should be taken on the road was a question answered in the negative. Reports of the amounts of money spent in producing single plays varied from ten dollars to three thousand. When the question arose as to which was most efficient and beneficial to the club, student, faculty or professional coaches, the conference divided equally between the student and professional coach. Most clubs use a dual plan of membership, having active and associate members. A new idea presented at the conference in regard to membership was that Dramatic Clubs should adopt point systems similar to those in use by athletic associations.

Colleges Represented
Adelphi, Albany, Barnard, Cedar Crest, Cornell, Delaware, Elmira, Goucher, Hollins, Hood, Keuka, Mount Holyoke, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Richmond, Rochester, Russell Sage, Skidmore, Smith, Syracuse, Vassar, Vermont, Wheaton, Wilson.

It is interesting to note that it was the general opinion of the conference that plays by Shaw are extremely difficult to present. This statement adds considerable value to the already great appreciation due Miss Jackson for her remarkable production of Pymalion.

On her way to Cornell, Miss Jackson visited Vassar, as a guest of the Philaethus, the Dramatic Club. She was especially interested in Vassar's Students' Building, where all dramatics was carried on, in the open air theatre, and in the form of organization of Phil., familiar for Philaethus.

Talk It Over At Home

A Christmas Vacation Suggestion To Seniors

THIS is your last year in college. This is your last Christmas vacation.

Your career after graduation is a question that you will want to talk over with the folks at home. They will be even more interested than you are. Now is the time to do it.

The John Hancock has in its field organization producers who began as life insurance men immediately after graduation and have made a conspicuous success of it.

Why waste time trying out something else which looks "just as good" and then come into the life insurance work to compete with the man who got into the game from the start?

Westminster Concert
A Financial Success

The recital of the Westminster Choral Club, which was presented at Wolf Hall on December 10th by the Old College Singers, was a success in every sense of the word. The recital was a pleasing one. The variety of music made the program interesting, and the Choral Club, program as it is hard for a club which is probably the best in the State, rendered the songs well. It was gratifying to the Old College Singers to have such a program (as it is hard for a club in its infancy to put such a thing across. Looking at it from the financial side, the Old College Singers are pleased, because enough money was made to buy music so that they will be able to present a concert next spring.

fouls, pileups, and misplays. This bedlam was added to by the unexcusably poor umpiring on the part of Gallagher. His decisions were decidedly unpopular with both the players and the crowd.

Williams and Jackson led in scoring, each having seven points each. The game was entirely individual work, there being no organized effort or concerted attack. Delaware's grand rally in the second half tied things up at 21 all, but Temple came back and managed to hold a one-point lead during the last few moments, the score ending 25 to 24. There were no stars except those seen by the players. The score:

student's mind; and he suggested that it might be well for some of our students to become more appreciative musically.

The Delaware College Orchestra, heading the program, played two enjoyable selections.

Miss Mary Braeme Jones, of the Women's College, sang a very delightful soprano solo. She was applauded in true Delawarean style, but would not sing an encore.

Professor Mosher, amid the cheers and yells from members of the Men's College, played two very beautiful selections on the violin. The ovations of applause which he received would have kept him playing all morning if time had not been pressing.

The Glee Club of the Women's College sang a pretty Christmas song, which was followed by a baritone solo by Dr. Ryder.

Our Orchestra terminated the program with another selection, after which the girls departed.

In the meeting of the men which followed, the proposition concerning our entertaining our boys studying in France was discussed. It was decided that a voluntary collection be taken and that the boys over there should be set up to a real Christmas dinner on Christmas night at our expense, including tickets to a show afterward. A sum of twenty-eight dollars was realized.

GIVE CONCERT HERE

dor Song" by Bizet. This song has a very pleasing melody, despite its difficult passages, and with Mr. Swayne taking the lead and supported by the entire chorus of male voices it makes a particularly impressive number.

Noah H. Swayne, 2nd, the basso who will be the soloist of the Orpheus Club's concert at Wolf Hall on January 10th, began his career as a boy soprano in St. George's Church, New York City. Subsequently he sang at St. Paul's School, New York, under Dr. Horatio Parker, the distinguished American composer.

While a student at Yale he was a soloist with the Yale University Club. Since that time he has appeared with almost innumerable musical societies and organizations, always with growing success. He is a member of the Orpheus Club of Philadelphia and for a number of years was the president of the Philadelphia Choral Union.

Mr. Swayne's singing has been repeatedly acclaimed by critics. Of his work as the assisting soloist in a concert last winter in New York City, a leading paper said:

"His success was pronounced, and he was repeatedly recalled by an audience that took the entire seating capacity of the Metropolitan Opera House."

More recently, in commenting on Mr. Swayne's appearance at the Academy of Music in that city, the Philadelphia Public Ledger remarked:

"He sang with consummate artistry. He has a basso of delicious quality, which he uses with extraordinary skill and the most refined discernment."

Musical America, regarded the leading musical authority of both Europe and America, describes Mr. Swayne's voice as "of superb quality, handled with the utmost skill, refinement and artistry."

TWO TO ATTEND
Y. W. C. A. CONVENTION

dred foreign students, who are studying here in America, are also expected to attend the Convention. Among some of the big questions discussed at this Y. W. C. A. Convention, which meets only once in four years, will be international relationships and race relations.

Among many noted speakers at the Convention will be ex-President Wilson, Dr. John R. Mott, Dr. Paul Harrison from Arabia, and Dr. Woods from England.

CHRISTMAS DINNER AT WOMEN'S COLLEGE

the Hilarium to sing the old favorite Christmas carols. As the six o'clock bell rang they went into the dining room, where a holiday dinner awaited them. Indeed it was a real banquet which they enjoyed. Was there not a toast mistress, who introduced a number of clever speakers? Elizabeth MacIntire, '24, president of the Student Executive Council, presided and introduced the following speakers: Dean Robinson, Mrs. A. D. Warner, Miss Eckman, Emily P. Roe, '24, Charlotte Dayett, '25, Beulah Thompson, '26, and Lavinia Skewis, '27. The student speakers were the presidents of the four classes. From time to time as the meal progressed the girls sang Christmas carols. After the Alma Mater had been sung everyone went into the Hilarium where the frivolous ones danced, the sociable ones gossiped and the serious ones meditated.
