

For the Housewife

Use judgment in selecting a salad to go with any menu. For a hearty meal a light salad, such as a leafy green vegetable and French dressing, is appropriate, or a lettuce and acid fruit salad, with French dressing.

Blankets when washed may be placed over a line with a half or a fourth on one side. The ends should be squeezed occasionally to remove excess water. Do not attempt to dry blankets out of doors in freezing weather.

Here are some suggestions for tasty sandwiches for afternoon gatherings, either at home or elsewhere: Finely ground watercress, creamed with butter, and spread on graham bread; parsley, with a few drops of lemon juice, minced and mixed with creamy butter in the same way; club cheese of sharp flavor, with chopped English walnuts, a few drops of onion juice, salt, and tomato catsup; orange rind, grated, and mixed with butter. Cut the sandwiches with fancy cookie cutters.

Summer Salad

Cover one cup of drained pineapple tidbits with one-fourth cup lemon juice. Let stand fifteen minutes. Drain and add to one-half cup stoned dates cut in strips, one-half cup figs, one-half cup grape fruit sections, and one-half cup stoned canned cherries cut in halves. Combine one-half cup mayonnaise and one-half cup cream, whipped, and moisten salad mixture with one-third of the dressing. Arrange on crisp lettuce leaves. Garnish with six stoned dates stuffed with two tablespoons cream cheese moistened with one-half teaspoon cream and seasoned with salt, pepper and paprika.

Pineapple Orangeade

To three cups of orange juice (about one dozen oranges) add two cups syrup drained from crushed pineapple and one cup of ice water. Serve in glasses set in individual bowls of crushed ice. This will serve six.

A Salad Puzzle Solved

Many a housewife has had occasion to say with a sigh, "I've tried all sorts of salads to tempt my husband but he won't eat them. And I know he should, for the fruits and vegetables are really necessary for health."

Pineapple Bath Charms

And what could be a better way to "jump up" a salad than by the use of full flavored, rich pineapple. Certainly a salad which contains this delicious fruit will captivate the heart of even the most obdurate salad hater.

From the Tropics

Chicken and Pineapple Salad: Combine one cup drained pineapple tidbits, two cups diced cooked chicken, three-fourths cup diced celery, and one-third cup mayonnaise dressing. Arrange in lettuce cups, top with mayonnaise, and garnish with ripe olives.

Original Verse

From time to time interested readers send us original verses. They are, of course, good, bad, and indifferent. To edit them carefully would cause misunderstanding.

We have decided hereafter to print those for which we have space, reserving the right to reject any which seem to us undesirable. The name of the writer must accompany each contribution and we must know whether or not the writer wishes his name used.

VIGNETTES FOR A LOCAL ALBUM

I—MISTER MAC

Don't look on Quality Hill For the best informed Man In town. Nor in the Faculty Club.

He presides at an Inn Where, many years ago, Old Aristocracy dined Amid crystal: Where walls caressed The silken hoop. Stringed music days! He knows A thousand By their first names— And their weaknesses. He knows how much Love A dog can give. He knew the Town When winter nights brought scores Of sleighs To his doorstep; And gentlemen rapped Cold fingers on the bar— But we mustn't go Into that.

Don't ask, therefore, A Ph. D. Or write letters to the "Star." To understand Men. The gentleman you seek Presides in the shadows Of old Cotillions, Danced in lace Long before the first cinders From the B. and O. Splattered the roof.

DELAWARE

By A. S. Dear

I left my sunny Florida home The hills of Delaware to roam. In winter the hills are covered with snow, In spring sweet flowers grow. I love to roam the wooded hills And over the rocks and rills. I love to visit Coeech's Bridge And view the surrounding ridge Where the British fired upon our flag, But Washington defended the grand old rag.

spoons cream, one-half teaspoon salt, a dash of pepper and paprika, and three drops onion juice; beat until smooth and creamy. Spread one-eighth inch thick on each slice of pineapple. Then press every two slices of pineapple closely together. Chill well, cut in wedge shapes and pile on crisp lettuce. Pour over it French dressing and serve with mayonnaise. As a variation, add one tablespoon Roquefort cheese or two tablespoons finely chopped chives to the cream cheese, in place of onion juice.

Christian Science Churches "Sacrament" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 8.

The Golden Text was from Psalms 116:12,17, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me? I will offer to Thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and will call upon the name of the Lord." Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs." (John 21:15).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Our church is built on the divine Principle, Love. . . Our Eucharist is spiritual communion with the one God. Our bread, 'which cometh down from heaven,' is Truth. Our cup is the cross. Our wine the inspiration of Love, the draught our Master drank and commended to his followers."

The Tonic of Humor

An eminent medical authority has said that if you pull down the corners of your mouth and keep them down, you will become in time as glum as you look. If you make them stay up, you will smile internally as well as outwardly. . .

We need the shock absorber of comedy relief. We should seek laughter as we seek sunshine and flowers.—Thrift Magazine.

PROVERBS OF RUSSIA

Man is caught by his tongue, and an ox by its horns. That which is taken in with the milk, only goes out with the soul. Men carry their superiority inside, animals outside. If all fools wore white caps we should look like a flock of sheep. The greatest king must at last be put to bed with a shovel. To ask is no sin, and to be refused no calamity. Walk fast and you catch misfortune, walk slow and it catches you. A bad peace is better than a good quarrel. A fox sleeps but counts hens in his dreams. Make thyself a sheep, and the wolf is ready. He that never boasts is esteemed at a third more than his value, if he is worth anything.

PROVERBS OF ITALY

One pair of ears will drain dry a hundred tongues. A doctor and a clown know more than a doctor alone. Short is the road that leads from fear to hate. Death hath no other ill except the thought of dying. Begin your web, and God will supply the thread. Any plan is bad which is not susceptible to change. He who has the courage to laugh is almost as much master of the world as he who is ready to die. After what I owe to God, nothing should be more dear or more sacred than the love and respect I owe to my country.—De Thou.

THE LORE OF THE DIAMOND

Sam'l Sachs, Diamond Expert, Talks On Gem

Wilmington Jeweler Tells History And Superstitions Surrounding The Diamond

Samuel Sachs, the diamond specialist, located in the Equitable Building, at 9th and Market streets, Wilmington, talks about the diamond.

While you must be born in April to have the diamond as your natal stone, thousands wear diamonds regardless of their month of birth. During July and August Mr. Sachs wants to say, that they are making a special offer on four items. Beads and pearls retreating for only 35c. Odd shaped unbreakable crystals, 95c. Elgin and Waltham watches repaired $1.95 and guaranteed for one year. For the ladies, Mr. Sachs would modernize their old wedding ring, with an overlay of 18 kt white gold, hand carved, with a lifetime guarantee, for only $4.05.

Now to get back to our subject, diamonds. Wear one constantly for the diamond reigns pre-eminently among the precious stones, combining in its lustre the powers of many. The Chaldea declared that the diamond is influenced by seven planets, but the diamond belongs to Jupiter, head of the planetary powers. It is dominated by Saturn and the Sun in conjunction. The Hindus dedicated the diamond to Venus. An Orphic poem tells us that the Evil Eye cannot harm the wearer of a diamond, no monarch can thwart his will and the gods have to grant his wishes.

Some tell us that the virtues of the diamond come only into force when the gem is a gift; if stolen, the thief comes to a dire end. Ancient lore says it must be worn on the left hand. The ancients considered that diamond, ground to dust, had marvelous medicinal value. Don't trust them and try for yourself; better take or leave it at that. The Hindus declare that dust from inferior diamonds taken medicinally, creates lameness. Yours may be the wrong kind. But rest assured of one thing, the acquisition of diamonds brings certain wealth. This you can try without risk.

A BUDGET THE SECRET OF HOME CONTENTMENT

The man and woman who have established their home expenditures on the budget plan have found the secret of contentment.

It matters not how small or how large the income is, the budget plan will obtain more for the money, not only material value but will bring the greatest possible amount of comfort and pleasure.

Babson, the international statistical expert says, "Almost any man who tried to run his business as he finances a home—without a definite plan—would be bankrupt in a year."

A weekly or monthly budget plan should be in operation in each and every home, from the smallest to the largest. Items to be found on most budgets are as follows: food, clothing, laundry, heat and light, taxes and interest, furnishings, doctor and dentist, automobile, donations, church, carfare, insurance, and the one great item, savings.

The Security Trust Company at 6th and Market streets, in Wilmington, advocate the budget plan, they find that the opening of a checking account has caused hundreds to adopt a budget house plan. The hardest thing found in running a home budget plan, is to keep track of the expenditures. This is easily done when you pay by check and also you have a receipt that cannot be questioned.

At first you will find it hard to always remember to put down your cash expenses, get a small notebook and you will discover that like many other things, it will become a habit, no harder to remember to do than the daily winding of your watch.

A checking and a saving account at a friendly bank such as the Security Trust Company means independence for those who budget their expenses, for budgeting means control. If you were getting $5.00 a week less salary than you now receive you would continue to live in much the same manner as you do now. $5.00 saved for two years would enable you to make a first payment on a home or a small business you desire. Many prominent business men have made their start in just such a manner.

WOMEN ARE STUDYING HOME EFFICIENCY

Housewives, says Daniel Stoll, leading local plumber and heating contractor, are closely studying efficiency in the home.

Such details as the height of a kitchen sink no longer escape their attention. With such close investigation going on as to time-saving methods, the coal shovel has been found to have outlived its usefulness. "No coal shovel was ever made to fit a woman's hand," is a true saying, even if Shakespeare didn't write it.

An oil burner, says Mr. Stoll, is the modern way of heating the home, and the best-known and most widely used burner on the market is the Williams Oil-O-Matic. It has every feature that modern science and the resources of the largest manufacturer can produce.

Mr. Stoll has the exclusive franchise in this territory for these burners and has already had orders for several installations in local homes.

Right now, he advises, before you put in your next winter's coal, is the time to investigate. You should not put off any longer enjoying the comfort so easily obtained with the Williams Oil-O-Matic.

CHANDLER CABRIOLET AN ARISTOCRATIC MODEL

"One of the newest creations by Chandler, and one which is winning enthusiastic buying interest everywhere right now is the Chandler Cabriolet," states Mr. Drake, of the Drake Motor Co., the local Chandler distributor.

"Feeling there is a definite demand existing for a motor car incorporating the many advantages of the roadster type of automobile, with the added convenience of closed car comfort, Chandler now is building a Cabriolet on the Royal Eight, Big Six and Special Six chassis.

"Custom built throughout, the bodies of the Royal Eight and Big Six Cabriolets truly bespeak the individual beauty of Chandler coachwork. Swung low, with tailored top and body contours blending into perfect harmony of composition, the Cabriolet wins admiration in the best of company, on the boulevard, at the City Club or Country Club," further states Mr. Drake.

"Finished in sparkling duotone colors, with sportive equipment such as nickel bullet head and cowl lamps and landaulet arms, it is indeed a car of character, style and individuality. "The top can be had in either black or kahki, at no extra charge. When the weather is warm the top can be folded back, providing the refreshing coolness of a roadster.

"Upholstery with the Chandler Royal Eight and Big Six Cabriolets is smart champagne colored pigskin. The door panels and instrument board throughout are beautiful circassian walnut and harmonize perfectly with interior trim. Spanish leather is used with the Special Six Cabriolet.

"In the wide, high backed driver's seat two passengers can be seated in restful comfort. When the party is four the rumble seat can be called into service. It accommodates two additional occupants.

"When the rumble seat is used the back flap of the top can be opened, allowing congenial conversation with the passengers in the driver's seat.

"All the cabriolet models of the various Chandler series incorporate Westinghouse Vacuum Brakes, One-Shot lubrication system and the motors embody the notable Chandler high compression Pikes Peak power principle.

"A complete display is on exhibition at the local Chandler distributor's salesroom located at 115 Concord avenue, Wilmington. Phone 10619 for demonstration."

SHIPPING BOARD CONTEST

To interest the public in the American Shipping in American bottoms, the U. S. Shipping Board has offered a free trip to Europe to the firm whose window display is voted the best. This is a nation-wide contest and the local entry is Shilling Lake, at 9th and West streets, in Wilmington.

This window display is creating a vast amount of comment, it is out of the ordinary. The window was trimmed by Shilling-Lake, but the masterpiece, the ship, etc., was painted by Mr. Conley, a local Wilmington artist. The display is well worth a trip to see, when you are in town be sure and have a look at this window. The contest closes at midnight, July 15th.

We watched a freight train pass last night. Just an ordinary freight train, no different from any other freight. A long string of various types of cars, hauled by a giant iron and steel monster.

WILD LIFE IN THE ZOO

Of all the cruelties that man inflicts upon animals the imprisonment of wild creatures is one of the most atrocious. Whenever I see a bear or a lion in a cage and observe the unutterable longing and unrest in its eyes, I rage inwardly at the senseless cruelty and stupidity of man.

What torture must it be for a wild thing, with its delicate senses, accustomed to the freedom and natural freshness of the forest, to be thus taken away from the woods and streams and confined in a foul-smelling, narrow cage behind iron bars!

Perhaps the argument will be advanced that we gain something by viewing those creatures alive, by seeing them move about in their narrow quarters. But at best they are only half alive. There is tragedy in every aspect of them, as they restlessly pace to and fro, sniffing at the bars, or gazing back at us in apathetic dismay.

People may say these creatures do not suffer; that they have food regularly, and scientific care. But the argument is short-sighted. Eating is not the whole of existence, even for an animal. Life, for a wild animal, connotes freedom, the ardor of the chase, the inclination to roam unhindered and take his chances of survival in his natural environment.

At some not far distant day, let us hope, man will awake to the monstrous iniquity of this wrong, the senseless brutality and shame of it, and then the prisons of our public parks will be emptied.—John Taggart in "Our Dumb Animals."

ETIQUETTE OF THE SEQUENCE IN SERVING GUESTS

One of the questions that often arises in regard to table etiquette is in reference to the first service of any dish, whether this should go to the hostess or to the guest of honor. Custom in this particular varies so widely that it is not always easy for the hostess to decide which rule she wishes to prescribe for her household.

It is interesting to remember that the custom of serving the hostess first harks back to the time when the hostess considered it an act of the greatest courtesy to taste every dish before it was served to a guest, this being at that time in the nature of a safeguard to those who later were to partake of the food. The custom also carries out the form observed in the high-class restaurants and hotels of formally presenting a dish to the host or hostess, for inspection and approval, before presuming to serve it.

If the dish, when presented, is satisfactory, this is indicated merely by a nod or a slight gesture. The waiter then proceeds to serve it to those at the table, beginning with the hostess and proceeding next to the guest of honor. The sequence should then be continuous, no guest being skipped.

A practical reason for serving the hostess first is that it enables her to see that everything in connection with the dish, its arrangement and garniture, is as it should be. While it would not be possible to make any radical change at the last moment, an observing hostess makes mental note of any detail that is not to her liking and mentions it to the cook or waitress afterward. There is still another reason for serving the hostess first, especially if the food is in elaborate form or is provided with any unusual piece of silver for serving. The hostess gives a practical object lesson as to how an individual portion should be removed from the serving dish, and, in the case of any special appliances, as an asparagus server, holders for corn on the cob, or formidable-looking grape shears—she thus shows the best way to handle them. This at once gives an inexperienced guest confidence and relieves all uncertainty or embarrassment as to what is the proper thing to do.

In households where there is but one maid, or, perhaps, none at all, this ceremonious serving of the hostess first has not the same logical foundation, although the custom is usually observed. Where, from individual choice, the rule of "hostess first" is not followed, the host should clearly indicate to whom each plate is to be passed. If he serves the meat only, he casually remarks, after arranging the first plate, "This is for Mrs. Blank." The hostess then adds the vegetables that may fall to her share of the service, and sees that the plate reaches the one indicated by the host. The one serving should never leave the others in doubt for whom the portions are intended and what he wishes to be the sequence of service at table. Each one then knows whether it is correct to keep the plate or pass it on. This point of sequence of service should be thoroughly understood before hand between host and hostess. The etiquette of informal family service is usually the guest first and then the others in the order in which they sit, although in some modest homes the motto of the table service is "hostess first."

The "guest first" method of serving, both formally and informally, is strongly upheld abroad, as Europeans are most punctilious on the subject of precedence and not to serve a guest of honor first would be considered inexcusable discourtesy.

One can learn much by observation in all these points of table service and by being a guest, as well as a hostess, one has the opportunity to decide what method of procedure is best adapted to one's own household.—Christian Science Monitor.

INGENIOUS REPAIRS

The defects recall various articles and materials available about the house that can be utilized for comfort and decoration, and with these the work can be begun right away. Material that must be bought can be put on the shopping list and used later. As each thing is cared for, checking it off the list of things to be done will stir one to go on with the next task until the room is arranged to the queen's taste.

A crack in the wall may be filled with plaster of Paris. Make this powder into a soft paste by mixing it in vinegar, then apply it to the crack with a putty knife, scraping off the excess plaster as the work proceeds. If vinegar instead of water is used, the plaster will not harden so quickly. Make small amounts at a time and work fast.

After such a crack has been repaired it is often best to finish the wall again as it was originally in order to get all the surface of the same shade. If it is a painted wall and needs only a thorough cleaning, this is most easily done with a soap jelly made by dissolving a bar of white soap in one gallon of boiling water and adding one-half of a cupful each of kerosene and ammonia. A little of this added to a small pan of warm water makes a good lather when applied to the wall with a soft cloth or a sponge. Wash each spot well, rinse with clear water and dry before going on to the next place to repeat the operation.

There is on the market a floor varnish that dries in less than 10 minutes and wears splendidly. It is well worth while to keep something of the kind on hand to apply to the bathroom floor as needed, whether it is of wood or covered with linoleum. One or two clean washable rag rugs for emergency service are always a boon to the busy homemaker, too, especially if there are worn spots on the floor that cannot be covered otherwise. As these can be made at home from silk or cotton rags that would not be used otherwise, it is not difficult to keep a good supply on hand.

To remove any tarnish from copper and brass in the fixtures, rub well with a solution made by adding 3 tablespoonfuls of salt to 1/2 of a cupful of hot vinegar. Finish by applying a few drops of olive oil and rubbing briskly with a soft cloth. By frequent applications of this oil the metal may be kept in good condition for months thereafter without cleaning.

If the toilet bowl is not immaculate, put a little chloride of lime in the water and leave it to stand a while without flushing. Then rub the stained surface with a mop kept for the purpose, or an old whisk broom. Repeat as often as necessary until the porcelain is as clean as when new.

A few drops of kerosene on a soapy cloth will quickly make the bath tub, lavatory and the outside of the porcelain toilet bowl clean. Wiped with a dry cloth, the odor speedily disappears.

Patience is power; with time and patience the mulberry leaf becomes silk.—Chinese Proverb.

THE LOVE OF A DOG

Most boys and many girls, and ten thousand times ten thousand men and women, love dogs. We don't know when this loyal unfailing friend of man first met him, first learned to defend his flocks, his dwelling, his person and the lives of those dear to him, but wherever we have this creature we call man, there we have found his faithful friend and companion, the dog, always willing to follow him through thick and thin, never seeming to care for an instant whether his master was rich or poor, wise or ignorant, saint or sinner, alas even when beaten, starved, cruelly treated, ready to lick the hand that has hurt him. A good man once said, "When my father and mother forsake me, then the Lord will take me up." Might not one say that, when a man might feel forsaken of every earthly friend, there would still be looking up into his face the gentle, trusting eyes of his devoted dog, saying by every look and sign, "Where thou goest I will go, thy lot shall be my lot, nor shame, nor loss, nor prison bars shall move me from thy side."

I never knew a dog to betray his master, to give him evil for good, to return kindness with ingratitude, to forsake him when friends, or wealth, or reputation, were lost. Such dogs have had their influence over my own life. I am not ashamed to say that when they died I have known the bitterness of bitter tears and dug their graves with a heavy heart.

Have they souls? I wish I knew. But no man knows. Still I wonder if all that intelligence, that devotion, love, fidelity, the things we deem highest in our human kind, vanish into utter nothingness when they leave us.—Francis H. Rowley in a recent broadcast.
