Splendid Record Made By P. O. Employees

A test given by government inspector W. E. Hoover, at the Newark postoffice, resulted in a splendid record for the employees of the local office. A case examination was given, covering the sorting of the mails for the postoffices of Delaware, the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and two counties of Virginia. The lowest grade made by any of the clerks was ninety-six percent. The regulations require that the clerk shall be able to sort sixteen letters per minute. Miss Davy doubled the requirements by sorting thirty-six. Mr. Crow handled twenty-eight per minute.

Police Search For Swindler

The police of Wilmington are searching for a bogus check swindler who is said to have victimized a number of merchants. His latest victim is Benjamin B. Allen, who has a drug store at No. 101 West Tenth street. The man offered a check in payment for some drugs he purchased, signed "W. C. Ferris." Allen cashed it, thinking it was a check of W. J. Ferris, a New Castle druggist, whom he knows. Ferris later denied issuing the check, which proved to be worthless, and he called Allen's attention to the fact that his initials are "W. J.," whereas the initials on the check were "W. C." Allen furnished the police with a good description of the stranger, but he has disappeared.

Council Confirms Appointments

Wilmington City Council has confirmed Mayor Price's appointments of W. G. Coxe, Water Commissioner; W. P. White, City Auditor; W. E. Stover, City Assessor; Ralph Saltzman, Mayor's private secretary; D. O. Hastings, City Solicitor.

Board Of Health Active In Making Better Town

The new town ordinance forbidding drainage of waste water into the gutters went into effect July 1st with the responsibility upon the Board of Health for its enforcement.

The Town Council has very wisely decided to hold back the new road on Chapel street until all property owners have made surb connections with the sewer, and the Board of Health will use its power if necessary to hasten the good work, by condemning such properties as persist in maintaining filthy conditions.

Recent sewer connections have been made by the following: Main street—Mr. Vinsinger, Mrs. Delaware Clark, Mr. H. N. Reed, Newark Garage, Mrs. H. M. Barton, Mrs. S. M. Donnell, Mrs. Kilgore, Primary School, Mr. Geo. Rhodes, Mrs. Butler, Mr. O. Strahorn, Mrs. Pearce Cann, Mr. Wollaston, Mr. Kinsey Chambers, Mr. John Chambers, Pennsylvania R. R.; Choate street—Mr. Geo. Kerr, Mr. Chas. Leak; Chapel street—Mr. Benj. Blest, Father Dougherty; Cleveland avenue—Mr. James Weaver, M. T. Potts; Academy street—the Ferguson houses.

An Opportunity For Community Workers

In keeping with the Extension policy of the college, inaugurated at Delaware two years ago, Mr. Raymond Moley of the Summer School faculty of the college, has consented to deliver lectures upon request, at community meetings or similar church meetings. Mr. Moley's course in the summer school relates to the great underlying causes of war, the place of force in modern civilization, and the fostering of internationalism. Mr. Moley preaches the kind of patriotism that the world needs to hear. The opportunity which the Summer School offers should be appreciated by the community.

FIRE AT CURTIS PAPER MILLS

Stock House Completely Burned

Fire was discovered about nine o'clock Sunday morning by Superintendent Beals, of the Nonantum Paper Mills, in the rag house adjoining the main buildings of the mill. The frame building in which bales of rags were stored stood on the opposite side of the settling pond, a fact which greatly lessened the danger to the mill. The company's private fire-fighting apparatus was promptly put into service. Aetna Hose Hook and Ladder Company arrived a few minutes later, the engines pumping steadily upon the building for two hours and twenty-five minutes. The Water Witch Company of Wilmington assisted the local firemen, many of whom had narrow escapes when they left the roof of the building only a few seconds before it caved in. The building, which was of frame, was entirely destroyed. The loss, covered by insurance, is estimated to be between $5000 and $6000.

City-County Building Three-fourths Complete

The last lot of the $800,000 worth of building commission bonds which Wilmington agreed to sell to finance its part of the joint city and county building was sold last week at the City Treasurer's office. The lot amounted to $200,000, and the entire issue was awarded to Estabrook & Co., of New York, at their bid of $203,860, the highest of three bids received.

The new twin city hall and county Court house at Tenth and King streets is about three-quarters completed. All the exterior work is finished, and it is estimated the offices will be ready for occupancy within a year.

Rhodes Scholarships

Dr. Samuel C. Mitchell, president of Delaware College, has just made the following announcement in regard to the Rhodes scholarship for Delaware.

A scholarship of the value approximately $1500 per year, tenable at the University of Oxford, England, for a period of three years, beginning from October, 1917, will be open for competition in the State of Delaware during the year 1916. Similar Scholarships will be awarded for the years 1918, 1920, and 1921. Competitors must be citizens of the United States, between 19 and 25 years of age, and must, before the the date of entry on residence at Oxford, have completed at least their second year at some regular degree-granting American University or college. Candidates having their domicile in the State, and those who have received any part of their education there are alike eligible.

A qualifying examination will be held in October of each year; and an election to the scholarship at the close of each year preceding that for which the Scholarship is assigned.

Candidates for the 1917 scholarship may take the examination on Tuesday the 5th, and Wednesday the 6th of October, 1915, or in October, 1916.

A state committee of selection chooses the scholar from among those who have passed this examination. Applications for examination should be made to the chairman of this committee, President S. C. Mitchell, Delaware College.

A memorandum giving further particulars may be obtained either from the chairman of the Committee of Selection, or by communicating with the offices of The Rhodes Trust, Seymour House, Waterloo Place, London, S. W.

Suffragists' Request Refused

The request of Delaware suffragists, headed by Dr. Josephine M. R. White de La Cour, president of the Wilmington Equal Suffrage Association, to participate in the Americanization Day exercises held at Washington Heights, on July Fourth, was refused by Mayor-elect Price.

DELAWARE MAN KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Body Reaches Wilmington Thursday

Elmer George Brown, an alumnus of Delaware College, Class 1913, assistant superintendent at the plant of the Canadian Explosives Company at Beloeil, Quebec, Canada, was killed in an explosion at the plant of the company yesterday. Six other persons were killed and ten or more seriously injured in the explosion and resulting fire.

The fire started at a cutting machine in the cordite department, according to information received at the offices of the duPont Powder Company in Wilmington, with which the Canadian Explosives Company is affiliated. Details of the accident could not be obtained as the men working in the vicinity of the machine were either killed or were badly injured.

Following the explosion of cordite, the plant caught fire, and for a time hampered the work of rescue. Special trains were hurriedly ordered, and as fast as the injured were rescued they were taken to hospitals at Montreal, 25 miles distant. A number of women working in the cordite department were among the first rescued.

Among the others killed were Captain Murray Wilson, manager of the cordite department of the company; J. Sammons, an inspector for the British government, for which the company was filling orders; two workmen and two women working in the cordite department, adjoining the room in which the fire started. Among the seriously injured was H. C. Shock of Wilmington, formerly of Chicago, Illinois, an engineer in the employ of the company. The bodies of all the dead were recovered.

Sketch of Deceased

Elmer George Brown is a son of Deputy County Treasurer Elwood H. Brown. He is about 25 years old. He has been married about a year, Mrs. Brown formerly being Miss Marion Clark of Wilmington. He is a cousin of Jerome B. Bell, Jr., superintendent of the plant of the Canadian Explosives Company, who was not injured in the explosion, and a nephew of Jerome B. Bell, former editor of The Sunday Star. His widow is now at the home of his parents. Mr. Brown was a graduate of Delaware College where he received the Bachelor of Science degree at the commencement in June, 1913. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. The body has been shipped from Beloeil and will arrive in Wilmington sometime today or tomorrow.

Red Clay Folk Entertain

The Young People's Branch of the Red Clay Creek W. C. T. U. gave an interesting entertainment on Wednesday evening, the exercises including vocal solos, by Miss Estella Yearsley, Miss Margaret Woodward and Robert M. Walker, a recitation by Miss Emily Klair, a reading by Miss Annie Klair and music by the orchestra. Arrangements were made for an outline to be held at Burlington Island on July 29.

The Alpha A. C. of Ebenezer M. E. Church will hold a lawn fete at Fairview School House Saturday evening of this week. Ice cream, home-made cake and candy for sale. Proceeds for the base ball team.

Boy's Heroism Rewarded

Following Sunday School exercises in Emanuel Episcopal church New Castle, last week, Rev. Alban Richey presented to William Dewey Pfrommer, of West Berlin, N. J., the Ralston Purina Hero Medal, in recognition of the boy's act on July 28, 1914, when he rescued from drowning in the Delaware river, Charles Passwater, aged twelve years, of Wilmington. One of the first to congratulate him when he received the medal was Passwater, the boy whose life he had saved.

IS OUR PATRIOTISM SOUND

Mr. Moley at Summer Session Charges Delaware Teachers

Chapel exercises at the Summer School at Delaware State College were featured on Monday by an address on The Newer Patriotism, by Mr. Raymond Moley, of Columbia University, who is giving a course at the Summer Session, on International Relations. Although the speaker's words were filled with all the earnestness of the orator of an earlier day, he departed from the customary method of lauding all things American, and declaring the superiority of the nation's attainments.

"Our patriotism," the speaker declared, "is being subjected to a searching and critical examination The great European war, coming as it did so suddenly and assuming as it has such tremendous proportions, has shocked us all into a serious reconsideration of all of our former thoughts and theories. Morality, as well as other things, changes as the world progresses, and ideas and emotions must be overhauled sometimes, if we would not have the virtue of yesterday become the vice of tomorrow.

"Of nothing is this so true as of patriotism. In the name of patriotism torture, ravage, devastation, starvation, robbery, and other terrible nameless crime, are being practiced upon a scale unparalleled in the history of the world. It is high time for us in the face of this awful calamity to consider seriously and earnestly the teaching of this so called virtue, and if we Americans find within it the elements capable of bringing some such calamity, to dissolve it, to shun it, to replace it if that be possible with something high and noble."

The speaker declared his belief that much of the patriotism taught in our schools has been of this dangerous sort, and pointed out a number of the false assumptions upon which it is based.

"We have taught," he declared, "that our history has been an unbroken series of glorious achievements, all of which were honorable, al lof which were right and worthy. We have, it is true, had a very remarkable history and have accomplished a vast number of great achievements, but it is absurd and harmful to claim, as it is so often claimed, that we have always been right. Judged by the standards we have set for other nations we haven't always been right."

During Miss Vernon's absence this summer Mrs. Latimer will spend two days each week in Delaware.

Mr. Moley referred to the Mexican war, the Venezuelan affair, and the acquisition of land in the Canal Zone, as notable exceptions.

"A second false assumption," the speaker declared, "concerns the circumstances under which independence was born. It has been common to assume that liberty, like the Ford automobile, was made in the United States of America. Today we celebrate the signing of the Declaration of Independence. We forget in these later days that the Declaration itself is in a sense the work of all nations. It is true that it was written by Thomas Jefferson, an American, but it is also true that he drew his great ideas of liberty from sources as wide as the world. Two writers influenced him beyond all others—John Locke, an Englishman, and Rousseau, of Switzerland and France. If time permitted we might consider at length the influence of these two writers as seen in the great document. Suffice it to say that in Locke's Treatise on Government, published in 1690, we may find the whole spirit of the American doctrine. One of the most powerful thinkers of that time and one who did immeasurable service to the cause of the Colonies was Tom Paine who claimed no country as his own and proudly called himself a citizen only of the world. Within the Declaration itself is further evidence of the broadness of its aims. It is a "decent respect" to the opinions of mankind that it is claimed to secure—it is addressed to all the world. And it is because it gained that decent respect that victory was finally won. Much of our history teaching fails to take account of the fact that our revolution was not England against America. It was Whig against Tory and the Whigs in England were as pleased as we, when the king finally acknowledged our independence.

"Another misleading factor is the treatment of the question of race. It is common to assume that in Europe for instance there are several distinct human families, each with inherent characteristics peculiar to itself. And with this goes the assumption that one race is superior to all others. We have most commonly heard that the Anlgo-Saxon "race" has this superior quality. Now within a very few years the science of anthropology has very clearly shown that not only is there no race with inherent superior qualities of mind and body; but that there is actually no such thing as race at all in the commonly accepted use of the term. Should it be possible to trace the history of the peoples of Europe it would be found that each of them have an ancestry as mixed as that of the Americans.

"Thus our old patriotism is found to be based upon wholly unsound and irrational assumptions. More than this it fails where it should be strongest—on the emotional side as well. Limiting our interest, our love, our highest sympathy to any geographical subdivision called a nation, fails to satisfy the highest demands of the human spirit. In spite of our patriotism, our sympathy and our help go out to the poor and needy of all lands, to Belgium, to India, to China.

"Let us give our first allegiance to humanity. Sixty years ago a man in Ohio said, 'I owe my first allegiance to Franklin, county; I owe it next to the state of Ohio; finally I owe it to the United States.' No one would say that now, for we all feel that allegiance is due the nation before it is due to the State. Our sympathy has widened with the years. Patriotism is only a stage in the development of conscience. God grant that it may not be the last stage and that the school boys and girls of tomorrow may learn to say, 'Humanity first, then my Country.' If we serve humanity well we need have no fear for the nation.

"We are teachers, and in a very real sense the challenge of the age is ours to accept. This is no empty platitude either for it does depend upon us whether our education shall be for war or for peace. Let us dedicate ourselves to the task of teaching our pupils to 'think and feel internationally.' Let us in our history teaching tell the great story just as it is. When we study war let us tell of the suffering, the misery, the injustice of it all and not try to make it sound like an automobile show or a light opera. Above all, let us teach that the great victories in history have not been in war at all, but in the conquest of nature by scientific agriculture and engineering, and in the conquest of disease by medical science

Let us teach in civics that the highest duty of a citizen is not the carrying of a gun but in being an honest decent member of the community; that a grafter is as much an enemy of the country as was eBnedict Arnold—besides he does more harm; above all not to be so willing to die for their country for their country cannot live except in each of them. In geography let us try to see the good in the people beyond the sea. Let us teach that the people of Mexico are not a lot of cruel murderers but a people who have by a long period of oppression and exploitation been driven into a revolt. They are ignorant, of course, but because they have had no schools. They are fighting in their imperfect way in the darkness for what we have been born to take as a matter of course. That the people of Japan are not heathen fanatics with queer ways with whom we are going to war sometime, but a highly civilized progressive people who do not want war any more than we do. Be careful about the word, foreigner, we are too apt to use it in slighting sense. I wish that in every school room in all the wide world could be written the line of Terence:

'I count nothing human foreign to me.'

"Sympathy is the great magic that in teaching, as in everything else, wins over the greatest difficulties. When you have it well learned there need be no fear for your pupils; they will learn it from everything you do.

"In all this we lose no real love for our own home land. We rather love it and the great emblem that suggests it—the flag—in a higher nobler way than ever before. We should ask for America nothing that we cannot ask for all men and all nations. I wish that every teacher could read thoughtfully and carefully the note that our President sent last month to Germany. Some of its words might with profit be carried forever in the hearts of us all—"The Government of the United States is contending for nothing less high and sacred than the rights of humanity." It is a great human document sent to a great human nation and I believe—I know—that it will be answered in the great human spirit in which it was sent.

"When men understand each other better; when the wideness and the sameness of human aspirations are seen in a clearer light, and sympathy unlocks the hearts of all, we need have no concern for means to bring peace into the world. For peace will already be here."

Professor Dutton Talks In Chapel

Chapel talks are proving a helpful feature of this session of the Summer School as they did of the session last year. On Friday morning, July 2, Professor Dutton of the English Department, gave a talk on "The Needs for the Systematic Study of English Composition in our Schools." After calling attention to the importance of study of composition in general, the speaker showed that the main faults in the composition training of pupils in the schools, as shown by thework of applicants for entrance to college, are (1) lack of clear thinking, (2) lack of clear expression, (3) incorrect writing, and (4) bombastic writing. At a subsequent chapel hour Mr. Dutton will outline a practicable plan for the teaching of composition in the high schools of the state.

Work In Agriculture In The Summer School

At the 1915 session of the Summer School for Teachers at Delaware College two courses in agriculture are being offered. One of these dealing with the general principles and basic facts underlying the practice of agriculture and with methods of using such material in secondary school teaching, is designed to acquaint the teacher with the scope of agricultural work and enable him to deal with his specific problems in a satisfactory manner.

The other course is a special one in home and school gardening. The use of the individual school or home garden is found in many cases to be a very good method of presenting agricultural work to pupils in the lower grades, and it is with the idea of increasing the use of the garden in the schools of Delaware that teachers are being offered this special work.

Each person enrolled in the garden work is required to plant and care for a garden throughout the session. The practical work is supplemented by lecture and classroom work. Small home gardens made by pupils in the Newark public schools are being used for demonstration purposes and as examples of what can be done and has been done in the planning and construction of such gardens.

Summer Session At Delaware College

The faculty of the Summer School gave a reception to the students of the school on Thursday evening, July 1, in the college gymnasium. Mr. William J. McAvoy, physical director in the school, presided. The address of welcome was given by Professor George E. Dutton. Mr. Dutton first bade the students a cordial welcome to the College and to Newark. He then explained that the State had established the school as an investment with a view to securing better service from its teachers. In closing, he pointed out a few of the responsibilities of the students toward the school and toward the state. During the course of the evening, Mrs. J. P. Cann rendered several vocal selections and Miss Wilson played some piano solos. The evening was concluded with refreshments.

Wilmington's New Mayor Inaugurated

James F. Price was sworn into office as Mayor of Wilmington at noon Saturday, by Judge Churchman in Council Chamber in the City Hall. His inauguration was witnessed by several hundred of the new official's friends and interested citizens. The room was decorated with flags and flowers, and Mayor Price was the recipient of many floral offerings. In his inaugural address, Mayor Price asked for the co-operation of all the citizens of Wilmington, invited criticism of his public acts and promised a business-like administration for the city. Following the ceremony he held a public reception, and later in the afternoon he was at his desk and sitting in his shirt sleeves, plunged into the business that was awaiting his attention.

Guilty Of Mail Frauds

Pleading guilty in the United States District Court last Saturday to charges of using the mails to defraud, George S. Bell, alias Frank Finnell, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and W. W. Garfinkle was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment.

When the case was called United States District Attorney Nields asked that three counts against the men be dropped and they pleaded guilty to the one remaining count, that of making false returns to the Woods Dry Goods Agency of New York.

Bell, who was released from the Eastern Penitentiary several days ago after serving a sentence for impersonating a secret service operator, made a long statement to Judge Bradford asking for mercy. With Garfinkle were his wife and four children, the oldest 7 years and the youngest 7 months.

The two defendants were arrested several weeks ago with William Maysell on a charge of using the mails to defraud by making false returns by mail of the financial standing of the C. M. Wright Company, dry goods dealers of Wilmington. Maysell was sentenced to 18 months in Philadelphia on the same charge some time ago.

THOSE PICKLEWEIGHTS

Famous Family Of Pacifists To Enlarge Its Sphere Of Operations

Who has not chuckled over the unending complications in the household of the Pickleweights—Enoch ,the plaintive; Maria, the masterful; Ichabod, the Injun strategist; Dill, the rotund and voracious, and Helen Battleax, gallant defender of her brother's innocence and helplessness?

For years the tribulations of this interesting family have delighted readers of the Philadelphia North American, and the characters created by Cartoonist Bradford have become familiar to thousands. In fact, the Pickleweights have grown to be such an institution that more space and and special treatment are required to chronicle their explosive history.

Next Sunday, July 11, therefore, they make their appearance in the Sunday North American, occupying a full page, in colors. Henceforth, it is understood, they are to be known to fame as "The Peaceful Pickleweights." Bradford announces that they have moved to the country, in the hope than tranquil scenes, far removed from the turmoil of the city, will allay the hostilities that have divided them. The first page in the series shows them installed in their new home, Unfortunately, the occasion is marred by some deplorable accidents; but it is the universal hope htat the family has entered upon a career of peace.

This is only one feature of The North American's new comic section, which, it is declared, will be the best in the country. With the Pickleweights will appear each Sunday the original Katzenjammer Kids, whose antics have convulsed uncounted readers; "Just Boys," a page of homely humor that will delight every one who has known childhood, and a fourth page, on the most indulgent of young parents and "Their Only Child."

This new comic section will add immensely to the fascination of the Sunday North American, and should prove a source of never-ending delight to all who enpoy rollicking fun. Order from your newsdealer today. —Adv.

Statistics Compiled From Egg-Laying Competition

Mr. Everett C. Johnson,
Newark, Del.
Dear Sir:

In my examination in this week's Newark Post, of the Egg Laying Competition at the Delaware College Farm, I have counted:

One entrant from Massachusetts; 6 entrants from Connecticut; 2 from New York; 13 from New Jersey; 44 from Pennsylvania; 9 from Delaware; 1 from Maryland; 1 from West Virginia; 1 from Florida; 1 from Tennessee; 2 from Ohio; 1 from Illinois; 5 from England; total, 87. Several parties have more than one entry, to make the total of 100 pens of 5 hens per pen.

I figure 9 pens of Barred Plymouth Rocks produced 4314 eggs or 2.90 eggs per hen per week; 5 pens of White Rocks produced 2595 eggs or 3.10 eggs per hen per week; 1 pen of Buff Rocks produced 699 eggs or 4.20 eggs per hen per week; 1 pen Coumbian Rocks produced 594 eggs or 3.60 eggs per hen per week; 10 pens of White Wyandottes produced 5980 eggs or 3.62 eggs per hen per week 1 pen Coumbian Wyandottes produced 446 eggs or 2.70 per hen per week; 15 pens Single Comb Rhode Island Reds produced 7858 eggs or 3.20 eggs per week per hen; 45 pens S. C. White Leghorns produced 26542 eggs or 3.59 eggs per hen per week; 2 pens S. C. Black Leghorns produced 1079 eggs or 3.27 eggs per hen per week; 4 pens Anconas produced 2056 eggs or 3.12 eggs per hen per week; 4 S. C. Buff Orpingtons produced 2001 eggs or 3.03 eggs per hen per week 3 pens White Orpingtons produced 1436 eggs or 2.90 eggs per hen per week; total pens, 100; total eggs, 55,600.

I understand that all of the 500 hens are fed the same kind of food, but I do not know if they all are given the same quantity or value of food per hen per week, nor if the hens are all near one age; I think most all hens will produce more eggs per year when they are from 6 to 18 months old. The statement in this week's Post is for 33 weeks of the 4th year. Has the competition been made that long at the College Farm?

The yield of eggs per hen per week will be seen to be more different when the time is taken for 52 weks instead of 33 weks, or if the yield is countd for 100 hens, especially when the price is three or more cents per egg.

A few more facts from Mr. A. M. Pollard, superintendent, as to when the competition commenced at the College Farm, also about the age of the hens, and the quantity of feed given, and when the competition is to end, will interest many of your readers, especially the poultry raisers.

School Garden Work A Success

A number of the children entered in the School Garden Contest, under the direction of Miss Agnes Medill, are enthusiastic over their success. An itemized report of the sales from each crop is being made by the youthful truckers, reports which will afford interesting data for the agricultural department later on. One boy to date has cleared one dollar and sixty cents on his lettuce.

Members of the class in gardening at the Summer School will visit the children's gardens on Friday of this week.

June's Marriage Record

June, 1915, has a record of 288 marriage licenses, issued by the Clerk of the Circuit Court, at Elkton, d. The report states this is the largest number ever issued in one month here.

Around Ebenezer

The pastor of Ebenezer Church, Rev. H. O. Klug, will preach next Sunday evening on "The House that Jack Built."

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Buckingham have returned to their home near Union.

REPORT FROM AGRONOMY DEPARTMENT

Interesting Crop Investigation

The following returns from the crop investigations at the Delaware College Farm were recently submitted in a report by Professor A. E. Grantham, Agronomist.

Crop Investigations—Wheat

During 1914-1915 the department continued its study of varieties of wheat. Wheat of the same variety from various sources has been compared in order to check up the few varieties as to name. The studies have had to do particularly with the relative capacity, resistance to disease, and general adaptability for this section. A special study has been made of the tillering habits of these varieties as well as to the rate of seeding. During the year an experiment was conducted as to the effect of different rates of seeding with a large number of varieties. as indicated in the results of 1914 there seems to be considerable competition resulting from the different rates of seeding with the different sorts. It was found that some varieties decreased in length of straw, length of head and yield of grain as the rate of seeding of seeding increased. Other varieties decreased somewhat by heavier seeding but at a decidedly lower rate. The general conclusions are that certain varieties, particularly the bearded sorts, are less effected by the heavy seeding than the beardless types. This result is in line with our other investigations in regard to the productivity and hardiness of the bearded varieties as compared with the beardless. Continued investigations have shown that the bearded varieties are better yielders than the beardless one year with an other.

Corn

As corn is the leading crop of the State, considerable attention has been given to the study of varieties. Through the agency of the Delaware Corn Growers' Association, some of the better types of corn have come under the observation of this department and they have ben tested along with the better known named varieties. About sixty varieties and strains were studied last year. These included well known commercial varieties, a few of those developed by corn breeders and a considerable number of the best local strains in the State. This has given us an opportunity of studying the behavior of these varieties with a view of comparing the yields. Many of the local strains are of good yielding stock but lack quality in that they do not carry a high percentage of shelled grain as do the improved sorts.

A study of sweet corn varieties was conducted and will be carried on this year. During 1914 the results from the sweet corn varieties were highly satisfactory. Three different dates of plantings were made. About thirty varieties

Something Wrong with Newark

"What's the matter with the Newark team?" This is a question that has been asked hundreds of times by the loyal fans of the local club during the past several weeks. For a team that is leading the league in hitting and has the pitcher who is admitted to be the best in the circuit to be trailing along with the tailenders, shows on the face of it that something is radically wrong and the fans are justly asking the cause. The victory on Monday was the first in the last four games and consequently there was quite a drop in the standing of the club.

As was stated the club is leading the league in hitting and is fielding as well if not better than any team in the organization so the real trouble must be elsewhere. While as a team Newark is at the head in batting yet it is apparent that the players as a whole pay entirely too much attention to their individual batting to the detriment of advancing runners and this one fault has probably resulted in the loss of several of the games. Of course hits are needed but it is runs that wins games and many chances to score runs are lost by players trying to kill the ball when they should sacrifice or play the hit and run. The hit and run game seems to be entirely overlooked by the local club notwithstanding the importance of this style of play in winning games. Time after time Newark has made more hits but scored less runs than their opponents which is evidence enough that something is wrong with their system of play.

Poor work on the bases is another department of the game that Newark has not only been in all season but has absolutely shown a lack of knowledge of just when to and when not to try and steal. As a whole the local players are just as fast on the bases as those of the other teams and as they generally reach first more often they should steal more bases. If they don't know when to steal someone should tell them and if they then persist in pulling bones on the paths a place should be found for such an offending player on the bench until he does learn. The material is there and there is no reason why Newark should not be winning a large majority of games played. To date the club has won 5 and lost 7 games.

What seems to be needed is someone on the bench to tell the players and if necessary tell them good and hard what to do. If they fail to do as told then get players who will obey orders. Starting with the win on Saturday there is no reason why Newark should not continue now with a string of victories that will bring the club near the top in a short time. As a result of the last two games four of the clubs are tied for the last four positions. New Castle is still going at a fast clip and has a four game lead on these four clubs. Parkside in second place leads Newark and the other three tailenders by two games. Unless New Castle should happen to crack it will be a hard matter to catch the shadmen but by playing the ball they are capable of Newark should soon overhaul Parkside and it is not too much to strive for to vatch New Castle by the end of the season. Notwithstanding their faults in past games the fans and community in general are still with the team strong as was shown by the turn out Monday afternoon and will continue to root hard but want to see more head work in the play.

New Pitcher Makes Good

Elk Mills seems to be the only team that Newark has been able to beat with any consistency and the locals took another game Monday afternoon from Kay's crowd by the score of 3 to 0. It was a pretty ball game and was played before the largest crowd of the season. Reynolds, the new pitcher, was given a trial and more than made good. He let Elk Mills down with seven hits and no runs. Reynolds worked the corners on the visitors and at that had almost perfect control as he did not walk a man but hit one in the last inning. Verecker also pitched clever ball for Elk Mills but Newark bunched three hits wit han error on him in the fifth inning when the three runs were scored.

Reynolds not only pitched good ball but also fielded his position in fine shape and helped with Newark's runs by a single. The big Baltimore boy was in serious trouble in but two innings, the first and the ninth. In the first inning Reynolds led off with a hit back of short. When Wilson dumped the ball Reynolds got it to second in plenty of time to get Reynolds but the ball got away from Schmickel. C. Reynolds also attempted to sacrifice but Reynolds got the ball to third ahead of W. Reynolds. When Wilson attempted to steal third Lucy got the ball to that base so far ahead of the runner that he was caught between the bases. Thomas fanned ending the inning. Elk Mills failed to get more than one man to first in any inning again until the ninth. Reynolds was especially clever catching run ners napping off first and after he caught two that way others who reached the initial bag were afraid to take a chance. In the ninth W. Reynolds lead off with a two bagger it being his third hit of the game but he was caught trying to stretch it to three bases. Wilson was thrown out at first. C. Reynolds was hit with a pitched ball and Thomas singled but "Billy" Jackson threw Verecker out at the first ending the game.

Lucy who caught in Saturday's game against Traction Company in Wilmington, wa sagain back of the bat and did fine work. He proved a hard worker, a good thrower and also a fair sticker.

Nwark had men on the bases in nearly every inning of the game but Verecker always tightened up except in the fifth. In this inning Lucy lead off with a single and Reynolds after trying to dump the ball also singled to right, Lucy taking third. Reynolds stole second and both runners scored on Schmickel's double. The latter stole third and scored on C. Reynolds error.

The fielding feature of the game was a one hand catch by Grant in centre field of a ball hit by Lucy. Grant at first misjudged the ball but then went back and got it with his bare hand. Rankin played a nice game in right and at the bat and Jackson covered his usual amount of large territory around short without a blunder. The score:

New Castle Bumps Parkside

New Castle batted Coffin hard Monday afternoon and turned Parkside back to 8 to 4. Wise was batted hard enough to lose most games but Coffin could not hold the fast going New Castle boys. The score by innings:

Elkton Drops Holiday Game

Morley who is becoming the strong man of the league notwithstanding his frail physique, brought Traction Co. across a winner again Monday afternoon, defeating Elkton 3 to 1. Clay also pitched good ball for Elkton but his support crumbled. The score by innings:

Newark Lost To Traction

Hogan was touched up rather hard in the game against Traction Co. on Saturday in Wilmington and Newark lost 4 to 2. It is claimed however that the locals threw away chances to score by poor work on the bases. In the second and seventh innings Traction got to Hogan and batted in their four runs. The score follows:

Knocks and Boasts

Reynolds and Lucy looks to be a pretty nifty battery.

Tied with three other teams for the cellar position Newark should now make their start.

Rankin continues to get his two hits each game and also covers much ground in right.

Pitcher Reynolds called the attention of several of the local players to a bad habit they have of watching the ball after hitting it instead of digging out for first without turning their head.

Delaware College players are putting up a good game for Traction and have really made that team.

Elk Mills players did not take many liberties with Reynolds on the bases and when they did he caught them napping.

Umpire Weir, a brother of the "Ump" who is such a favorite with local fans was the official in Monday's games and has a fine voice for an "ump" but was off on balls and strikes.

Grant made a sensational catch with his bare hand after ploughing through the water in centre field.

There are four more games in July and Newark should be up in the race by the end of themonth.

The field would not hold the automobile on Saturday and large number had to be left on Delaware Avenue.

Lucy made a hit with the fans. His peg to third base in the first inning was a pretty one and caught Wilson so far the latter turned and tried to reach second.

Verecker is reported to have pitched a game Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, but his work on Monday did not seem to show it.

Reynolds hit two fouls that would have been good for home runs had they been fair.

If there are any better shortstops in the league than "Billy" Jackson we have not seen them here.

Continental Lost To Delaware Hard Fibre

With Bib Bill Crouch pitching Delaware Hard Fibre defeated Continental Fibre here Saturday afternoon 9 to 6. Crowe quit in the sixth inning when the visitors were bumping him pretty hard and Whiteman finished the game. All the pitchers were wild and Litz of the visitors and Robinson of the local team were hit in the head with pitched balls. It was the first defeat for the Continental for some weeks. The score:

Stands By Five Cent Fare

Replying to the Central Branch, Socialist party, which had sent them a communication requesting that action be taken by them looking to a reduction in the rate of fare charged by the Wilmington & Philadelphia Traction Company, the Board of Public Utility Commissioners has informed the Socialists that the Board does not feel that the five-cent fare now charged by the traction company is excessive or unreasonable, but is the standard trolley fare charged all over the country.

In a further consideration of the Socialist party's requests, the Board sets forth that it does not consider it its part to abuse and harass a public utility for its sins of the past before the Utility Commission was created.

The reply of the Commission is not satisfactory, a member of the Socialist party said, a public hearing being desired.

Spirit And Flesh

Oh, I want to be off to the edge of the world,
Away from the realm of law,
To the lands where never a flag's unfurled
And the life is rough and raw.

I want to be off where the roads are new,
Or there's never a road to see;
For ever and ever the long years through
The wilderness calls to me!

I play my part in the business scheme
Of barter and trade and sale,
But deep in my secret soul I dream
Of the joy of the open trail.

I think of the pungent camp smoke swirled
On the breath of the winds that blow,
And I want to be off to the edge of the world—
But I haven't the nerve to go!

—Berton Braley in July American

Correct Spelling Not Too Common

Correct spelling and good English are not always the accomplishments of a college student or even of a college graduate, claims a writer in the Boston Globe. The Harvard authorities think that they ought to be, for the examination officials and teachers are much distressed over the fact that the boys whose writings are submitted are often ignorant of the fundamental principles of spelling and grammar.

Dean Briggs, himself one of the finest writers at the University, says, in writing of the matter: "We all live in glass houses. Until the written and spoken English of college officials throughout the country is better than it is now the English used by many worthy boys in an examination will never be 'correct, coherent and idiomatic' in any strict sense of these words. We all live in glass houses; yet we must accept the duty and take the risk of throwing stones."

Evidently Professor Brigs is not one who will enforce the new rules without a wide leniency in favor of any man with a good head whose failings in English are native. In excuse for faulty spelling he writes:

"Spelling is an accomplishment the lack of which is still—or still should be— a disgrace; but many good and great men have lacked it; and since the spelling book has ceased to be in daily and universal use at school the proportion of intellectual persons who cannot spell appears to have increased.

"One of the world's greatest scholars in his own department habitually in college spelled 'speech' with an 'a', and wrote themes about 'Thackeray' and 'Scot.' One of the best-loved professors in America spelled 'usually' and similar words with one 'l', and 'niche' 'nitch.' Another college professor, who more than justified his academic training, wrote 'purgerer' for 'perjurer' in his junior year.

"We must face the fact that bad spellers may be good writers. In a certain college course in English composition the man who was recognized as the ablest writer of the class was quite capable of writing 'satin' for 'satan' and of spelling other words to match. In the grammar school his writing might have been marked zero; in college it was just marked 'A.'

Long ago some university professor, said to be President Eliot, produced a text sentence that would serve as an examination in spelling for old Noah Webster himself: "It is amusing to view the unparalleled embarrassment of a harassed pedler or saddler, sitting on a cemetery wall and viewing the symmetry of a peeled potato, pomegranate or persimmon."

The town commissioners of Chesapeake City have contracted with the Home Light & Power Company of Elkton, to furnish electricity for lighting the town for 10 years, at a cost of $1142.20 annually for the first three years and $942.20 annually for the remaining seven years.

Oats

The department continued the work on varieties of spring oats. Last year about thirty varieties were under test. Oats can not be considered a dependable crop in Delaware, for the average season the yield is low and the rate per bushel very light. A few tests with winter oats indicate that they can be grown with fair success in the lower part of the state. The present season we had a fairly good growth of winter oats on land that is well drained.

Soy Beans and Cowpeas

We are continuing the study of varieties of soy beans and cowpeas. About seventy-five varieties of soy beans and ten varieties of cowpeas were grown last year. The work on soy beans has progressed far enough for us to determine rather definitely the better sorts for hay and seed production. The Wilson variety is now quite generally grown throughout the State due to co-operative work with farmers to whom seeds were furnished in small lots. The Peking is another desirable variety although not quite as popular as the Wilson. In some parts of the State the soy bean has not met with favor due to the fact that it has been planted on very thin, sandy, soil lacking in organic matter. Under such conditions we do not recommend the soy bean. The cowpea is to be preferred on such soils.

Miscellaneous Crops

Alfalfa is being studied with respect to the value of seed from various sources and likewise the value of alfalfa for soil improvement. We have under way a rotation which includes alfalfa as follows: Alfalfa two years followed by corn the third year and the fourth year by wheat. On the Station farm the average yield of corn in this rotation has been ninety-five bushels per acre without the use of commercial fertilizers. It appears that alfalfa is splendidly adapted to soil improvement and can be made to pay even though the alfalfa is not kept down more than two or three years. In the meantime the alfalfa is cutting on the average of four tons of cured hay per acre.

Other crops such as vetch, crimson clover, winter barley, winter rye, saradilla, sweet clover and Canada peas have ben grown. The vetch is a promising crop for green manure. It seems more hardy than crimson clover and has a high fertilizer value. A careful test of the value of crimson clover, vetch and sweet clover when sowed on rather heavy wet soil is under way. We found the past year that sweet clover was more injured by heaving than any other green manure crop tested.

A grass plot comprising about thirty of the more important meadow grasses is established for the purpose of comparing the merits of these varieties on Delaware soil and also for the purpose of affording specimens for class work.

Eat Alfalfa And Get Well

Afalfa as a remedy for indigestion and mental depression was recommended at the homeopathic physicians' convention, held in Chicago last week, by Dr. A. L. Blackwood, who told of recent experiments in a Chicago hospital.

The alfalfa is converted into a tincture and administered internally. Its use, according to Doctor Blackwood, was accompanied by an immediate delightful feeling of well-being, increased appetite and great improvement in weight.

"All bodily functions were stimulated, and it was impossible to have the blues," said the physician's report.

"It stimulates the digestion, and will prove of great value in dealing with loss of appetite. It does not act as a stimulant in the same sense as liquor."

REASONS FOR SUCCESS

BECAUSE Service is the keynote of its organization.

BECAUSE The Board of Directors is composed of men successfully and actively engaged in the business world. Their judgment is based on actual experience---and not on Director Room Theories.

BECAUSE It was the first Bank in Rural New Castle County to inaugurate the Profit Sharing Plan, paying 2 per cent on Check Accounts and 3 per cent on Savings Accounts.

¶ By the initiation of its Savings Department and its Savings Banks, it has demonstrated that the Directors care for the needs of the humble depositors as well as cater to the man of big business.

BECAUSE Again when the business of this new institution warranted, it was the leader of Rural Banks in paying 4 per cent on Savings Accounts.

BECAUSE Its growth as given in its official reports, shows a steady development and increase in all its departmets, that conforms to the ideal of recognized financiers.

BECAUSE This Bank was the first to open its doors one night a week for the accommodation of its patrons who are busily engaged during the day.

BECAUSE To this institution belongs no small amount of credit for the wonderful growth of Newark during the past few years.

¶ It has presented to a purchasing public more Real Estate than was ever placed on the market in a similar length of time, and has sold more Real Estate since its organization than all other sources combined.

BECAUSE It has built a Banking House which in appointments and security surpasses any rural bank in the State and equals (except in size) any in the City of Wilmington. With its concrete structure, fire-and-burglar-proof vaults, its safe deposit boxes, its detailed appointments, the new building is a compliment to the town of Newark.

BECAUSE It has shown a spirit of progressiveness in keeping with the demands of the day. It has broken away from the ultra-conservatism which gives a feeling of awe to the prospective borrower, yet at the same time has preserved a sanity that guarantees safety to the depositor.
