Dollar Days And Booster Days Combined for Newark—April 13-14

Events Backed By Chamber of Commerce to be Biggest in History of Town—Big Parade Planned for First Night

Merchants Backing Movement to Limit

APRIL 13th and 14th.

Better jot these dates down as days which nothing can take you away om Newark and that you will try d have everyone from surrounding ntry come to Newark.

The first Dollar Days that Newark s ever had will be held on these tes and they will also be Boost wark Days.

At the organization meeting of the wark Chamber of Commerce last ek it was decided by the merchants t April 13th and 14th should be erved as Dollar Days and a committee composed of James Hastings, B. Dean, R. Gilpin Buckingham, is Handloff and I. Marritz was ointed to make preparations for event.

n Monday afternoon this committee held a meeting and it was decided that these days should be more just an event for the merchants he town and that the whole town community should get in on it. As hese dates a general boosting for wark would be arranged.

ollar Days are being held in towns cities in all parts of the country they have proven a great success the local merchants are now making preparations to have the event his town second to none. The mittee at its meeting Monday decided that every merchant in Newark ld be approached and asked to perate in the movement. But one that the committee has gone on rd against is any "flim flaming" he public. That is for the merchants to use these days for the purpose of putting up a lot of inferior material for sale, simply for the purpose of clearing their shelves. The committee has stated that they would rather merchants would not enter into the event if they had any thoughts of this nature in mind. But the people of Newark and vicinity need have no fear of any of the local merchants "pulling" any stunts like this. Newark's merchants have always been noted for their square dealing and of their big bargains on special occasions.

On these Dollar Days the merchants claim that they will outdo themselves and that the people of Newark will receive the biggest one hundred cents' worth they ever received for a dollar.

Many of the local merchants have been thinking seriously of having a Dollar Day but with the organizing of the Chamber of Commerce it was thought that this was the time to make the master stroke and to have the event staged with the sanction of the new body.

Not only will the people of Newark be offered these rare bargains that will grace the shelves of every merchants but people of surrounding country will likewise benefit. The committee in charge of arrangements are now making efforts to have free bus service for the people of Elkton, Elk Mills and other nearby points. If this can be accomplished it will no doubt crowd Newark with more

Clean-Up Weeks Now The Style

Looks as Though Local Civic Bodies Should Get Together for This Purpose

Now is the time for a Clean-Up Week. Why not have one? An event of this kind is always profitable to the health and beauty of the Community and this of all times of the year is the best for a town-wide movement of this nature.

Wilmington and other towns of the Peninsula are having Clean-Up weeks at the present time. A clean town means a healthy town and an attractive town and what two points makes a town better fitted for its citizens and those who may be looking for a new location.

Newark in the past few weeks has been showing a better community spirit than in a long time, first the Parent-Teacher association got underway, then a Chamber of Commerce and next a first-clas ball team organized to represent the town, so why not keep the good work up and brighten up. There are several spots in the town that could stand a good cleaning and with the aid of some grass seed some pretty rough looking ing lawns could be beautified one hundred per cent.

Far be it from us to be cellar sniffers but the writer will give big odds that a general clean-up of cellars and attics in several places would eliminate fire hazards that now exist. A general Clean-Up week would not only include the cleaning up of streets and yards but also cellars, attics and other parts of stores and houses that are used for storage purposes.

Now that the Chamber of Commerce is functioning it would seem a good plan for this body to come together with the Town Council and Board of Health and have a clean-up week here in Newark that would result in the town shining like a new dollar.

Do you realize what a Clean-Up Week means? A clean town means a healthy town, an attractive town. It means that by a little forethought at this time, a little extra effort, you may prevent later on sickness in your family or your neighbor's, and at the same time make your premises a credit to the community. In addition to this it means that you will make the task of the Board of Health much easier. It is no pleasure to them to poke around in your backyards or outbuildings. It is, rather, an unpleasant duty to notify you that you must remedy certain conditions. Avoid this! Clean up, so that when the executive officer of the Board of Health makes his inspection he will find a clean town, a town you will be proud of, a town you are glad to live in. And finally, don't wait for your neighbor to clean up! Don't worry about him! He will clean up either of his own accord or by the order of the Board of Health.

Grand Castle Of K. G. E. Here

Newark to be Scene of Annual Meeting of Eagles on April 3rd—Many Visitors

One of the biggest lodge events that has ever been held in Newark will take place here on April 3rd, when the K. G. E. Grand Castle of the State, will meet here in its thirty-ninth annual session. This is an event that will bring visitors from all parts of the State and neighboring States to Newark and the local members of the K. G. E., Ivy Castle, are now making preparations to have this a banner event in the lodge's history.

Large delegations of representatives and past chiefs from various parts of Delaware have already made preparations to be here on the day of the session and the local lodge has received word from several officers of the Eagles from other States that they will be present for the annual meeting.

The local castle is well represented in the Grand Castle, the retiring Grand Chief, Robert J. Crow, being a member, who has served his post well and faithfully, covering his territory on many occassions and attending all important meetings. W. V. Heavelow is Acting Grand Sir Herald and James B. Frazer is Grand Instructor.

Ivy Castle, the local lodge of Eagles, was instituted on November 27th, 1891 and has at the present time a membership of 183. This membership includes many prominent men of the commmunity and the lodge is growing steadily in membership and popularity. Among the charter members of the organization are John K. Chambers, John A. Johnson, present Keeper of Exchequer, who has ably handled the finances of the lodge for many years, L. W. Sheppard, past Grand Chief, who served as High Priest for many years, N. J. Brown, past Clerk of Exchequer, J. W. McCormick, James T. Anderson, and William J. Lovett.

Among the late active members are the sons of Jos. T. Anderson (3), Robert J. Crow (4), D. W. Shepard (2), H. C. Caple, Sitting Past Chief; Harvey Fulton, Present Keeper of Exchequer; Ralph Edmanson, Master of Records (this office was held for many years by retiring Past Chief Crow); L. Messick; and H. Gregg, present representative to the Grand Castle.

It is the earnest desire of the retiring Grand Chief to have all the past chiefs attend the Grand Castle which will have an all-day session on the above date. It is thought that there will be an extra session at night open to all members of the lodge.

George W. Griffin Heads Chamber Of Commerce--Many Members Taken In

H. Warner McNeal, Vice-President, J. E. Dougherty and Warren Singles, Secretary and Treasurer, are Officers of Organization.

Special Dollar Day Committee Appointed

George W. Griffin, will lead the Newark Chamber of Commerce in its first adventure as an organization. He was decided on at the meeting held in the Aetna Hose Hook and Ladder Co., last Thursday night and H. Warner McNeal, was chosen as vice-president with J. E. Dougherty and Warren Singles, acting as secretary and treasurer respectively.

Besides these officers, the following men will act in conjuction with the officers named above as an executive committee; Edward L. Richards, Dr. Walter Hullihen, Norris N. Wright, A. L. Beals, G. I. Durnall, Louis Handloff and Frank A. Fader. These names were submitted by the nominating committee named previously by Mayor Frazer and there was no objection made to them by those present at the meeting last week.

The meeeting on last Thursday night was opened by Mayor Frazer, acting chairman, calling on J. Pearce Cann to read the by-laws as drawn up by the committee on by-laws composed of J. Pearce Cann, E. L. Richards and Frank Collins. The by-laws as read by Mr. Cann and approved by those present appear in the columns of this paper today and are similar to those of Chambers of Commerce in all parts of the country. The committee on nominations that made the following selection of officers was composed of J. E. Dougherty, Warren Singles and Frank Fader.

Following the reading of the by-laws the nominating committee made its report on the nominations naming the above men. There was no objection to those named and they were decided on to lead the organization.

After this Mayor Frazer turned the chair over to H. Warner McNeal, vice-president in the absence of Mr. Griffin, who was in Florida. A letter from Mr. Griffin appears in the Post today in which he boosts the organization, this letter was written before Mr. Griffin was aware of the fact that he was to be nominated or elected as president of the body. Following Mr. McNeal's taking charge of the meeting, Warren Singles read the letter received from Mr. Griffiffin.

Frank Collins made a motion that about 200 copies of the by-laws of the organization be printed. This motion was carried.

James C. Hastings, manager of the Home Drug Co., took the floor and said that he was of the opinion that various committees should be appointed at this meeting so that action could be taken by the various members in their lines of activity.

There seemed to be a great deal of opposition to the appointing of these committees at last week's meeting, it being claimed that the officers and those who had charge of the appointing of these committees should be given more time to think the matter over. No definite action was taken on the matter.

On the motion of George Medill it was decided that the following com-

Bumper Fruit Crops Predicted This Year

No Fear of Frost Ruining Crops Again--Peach and Apple Crops Large

Weather conditions up to the present time have been extremely favorable for the future of this year's fruit crop in Delaware. There have been no dangerous warm spells during the winter and the weather has been continually favorable during march. As a result fruit trees are in excellent condition and there seems but little danger that peaches and other fruit will bloom before the normal period.

Peaches and apples in Delaware appear to be set with buds and if the weather continues to be favorable for the next ten days Delaware can look forward to a bumper crop of peaches and apples.

This statement was made today by Dean McCue and it is welcomed by everyone in the State after the disastrous season last year when the cold weather ruined the fruit crop.

Owners of peach and apple orchards claim that from the number of buds per twig at the present, if bad weather does not set in, the crop this year will be one of the largest ever harvested in this State.

The fruit trees have benefited from the failure of the crop last year, following the killing of the buds by

Railroad Workings Seen By Children

William Gallaher, of B. & O. Station, Proves Valuable Teacher to Primary Grade Students

The pupils of the first primary grade under the direction of Miss M. Pauline Rutledge and Miss Pearl Price, student teacher, recently went to the station of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and there William Gallaher, local agent explained the workings of the railroad.

Now if the kiddies come home and tell you things that you did not know about horseshoeing, cobbler's work and railroads you had better listen for they might know a lot of things along this line that you do not know yourself. The first primary grade students first went to the local "smithy" shop and watched the blacksmith at work and heard him explain the use of his various tools. Then a trip was made to the cobbler's shop

Wanted--A Name-- Pizes For Same

Louis Handloff Offers a Three Month Ticket for Best Theatre Name

Here's a chance to win a three month's free pass to the new moving picture house to be conducted by Louis Handloff.

Mr. Handloff announced today that he was undecided just what to name his new theatre and that he was going to leave the matter up to the people of Newark and vicinity.

In connection with this he asked the Newark Post to help in making this selection and this paper is today printing a coupon for its readers to submit a name on. When all these coupons are received the one that best suits the judges will be awarded the prize and the lucky person will be able to attend the motion pictures free of charge for three months.

There are no strigs connected with this offer and everyone is qualified to enter the contest. The new theatre is one of the most up-to-date on the Peninsula and Mr. Handloff has saved no expense to have the theatre meet with the approval of those who attend.

Many suitable names have been suggested to Mr. Handloff but he would rather have the people at large get a chance to name the picture house and as a result started this campaign.

Everyone can submit as many names as she or he sees fit but they must be submitted on one of the blanks in today's issue of the Post.

Those who submit names must do so on the opening night which will be Thursday, April .6th.

Mr. Handloff called the Post from New York yesterday and announced that he had arranged to open his theatre on April 6th with "Way Down East" as the attraction. This is one of the biggest pictures ever produced and has been crowding houses in New York, Philadelphia, and other large cities at $2 a seat. All names must be submitted at the theatre on this night and there will be a box inside the entrance for the purpose or receiving these names.

This manner of naming theatres is often caried out in larger cities but it is entirely an original idea of Mr. Handloff to conduct such a contest in a town the size of Newark.

"BETTER SCHOOLS FOR NEWARK"

A GET-TOGETHER DEPARTMENT CONDUCTED BY THE NEWARK PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

It has been found necessary to make many changes in the original plan for an "Open School Night" on the occasion of the regular monthly meeting of the Newark Parent-Teacher Association, Thursday, April 6th. As announced in last week's Post, the few rooms wired for evening use in the Newark School are occupied every Thursday evening by the Americanization classes. Accordingly, it will be necessary to hold the demonstration classes, announced as a part of the evening program, in the afternoon, in the regular clas rooms of the primary and grammar school in the evening by the meeting at the High School when Miss Bamberger of Johns Hopkins University will explain in a popular way the value of the methods demonstrated in the school room.

The Parent-Teacher Association wants Newark people to get acquainted with their public schools, to see how the teaching is done, to hear the teacher's reason for teaching in just this way presented; it wants them then to decide whether or not the primary and grammar grades of Newark are serving intelligently the needs of present day children. But how many people are interested enough to make two trips to the school building? Certainly what the committee asks the public to do is inconvenient, but the inconvenience which adults will experience in attending one sectional Parent-Teacher meeting, is but an infinitesimal part of the inconvenience experienced every day of the week by teachers and children on account of out of date school buildings. For detailed program of the meeting on Thursday evening, see page one of this paper.

Ide G. Sargeant, one of the speakers at the State Parent-Teacher Convention to be held in Harrington, April 8th, has a story to tell which is pertinent to Newark's problems. The delegation to which the association is to the school in 1908, Mr. Sargeant organized an alumni association. A few years later, he organized an improvement association, the latter taking the form of a Parent-Teacher Association. "As a result of the organized effort of these two associations", he declared to the wirter a few days ago, "we were able in 1918 to move into a new fifty room school building which has been declared by Dr. Strayer of Columbia, one of the finest school buildings in the United States."

Mr. Sargeant, at his school, day by day, is furnishing a striking illustration of what a modern school building may mean to a community. "The school must build a community conscience in regard to public needs and public affairs generally, a conscience commensurate with the conscience which best people of America live by in theri private life". Such is Mr. Sargeant's working standard. His school has become, literally, the social center of all neighborhood life. The building is at the service of the people day and night. Among its habitues are representatives of thiry nations. Here, at least, they have found the real America—that opportunity of which they have heard for everyone.

The school has a school nurse who spends certain hours in the building, and reserves other hours for visiting in the homes of the children. The nurse also holds baby welfare clinics in one of the school rooms, to which the mothers come. It has a dentist with assistants, and a completely equipped office which is open to the children of the neighborhood six days of the week for twelve months of the year. It has a splendid equipped gymnasium with two physical instructors, one man and one woman, at the service of the community from 8.15 in the morning until 9.30 at night. The school has cleaned the loafers off the street corners, residents of the community declare. It gives a weekly moving picture show and dance in the school auditorium in addition to many dramatic entertainments. One of the most interesting features of the school is the continuation classes for the benefit of boys and girls over fourteen who have been forced to stop school to work in the mills. For these, there are classes of all kinds. There is a completely equipped printing department and carpenter shop, a business school, cooking laboratories, millinory department, etc. The school has, in addition, developed a Personal Service Department which has taken care of scores of individual trouble cases that can be best handled by an organization. Mr. Sargeant's school represents America at its best; it is indeed an inspiration.

mittees should be appointed: Mercantile, Industrial, Civic, Educational, Real Estate and Agriculture. With the passing of this motion it was understood that it was not necessary for the President to appoint these committees until he had time to investigate who would be best suited to serve.

Mr. Hastings said that he thought these committees should be appointed, at least the mercantile committee so that the merchants could get together and work up Dollar Day, which is to be held April 13th and 14th.

Vice-President McNeal said that he would like to have more time to work up these committees.

Mr. Medill made the suggestion that the chair appoint chairmen for each of these six committees and that each chairman be vested with the power to appoint four members to each committee. No action was taken on this suggestion.

Mayor Frazer made a motion that a membership committee of five be appointed to obtain members for the Chamber of Commerce. This motion was carried and Mr. McNeal was vested with the power to appoint this committee. The following were named: E. C. Wilson, W. A. Wilkinson, John F. Richards, Everett C. Johnson, and Sol Wilson. This committee will make a call on every man of the town who has not joined the organization and make an effort to have him come into the fold.

The following special committee was appointed by the chair to work up the Dollar Day scheme: James Hastings, C. B. Dean, Louis Handloff, W. E. Brown, and Gilpin Buckingham. All these merchants will work to make Dollar Day one of the biggest events attractions to draw shoppers here will that Newark has ever had and many be worked up by the committee.

The membership fee as given by the by-laws and approved was $10 a year and at the meeting last week over 35 members were taken into the organization.

A Matter of Climate

"What does that picture represent?" asked Mr. Wadleigh.

"Venus rising from the sea," said the art dealer.

"Gosh! She hasn't any clothes on. I couldn't have a picture like that in my house. Show me a hunting scene."

"Here you are sir. Diana of the chase."

"She's not dressed, either. Better show me a picture of some Eskimo hunting seals."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Suitable Terms

An experienced golfer, in a fit of condescension invited a noive to a game. The noive, to the golfer's dismay and disgust, ploughed up the ground all around the ball at every stroke.

The golfer stood it for a while but after one particular vicious dig into the tee he remarked:

"You've revoked."

"We're playing golf, not whist," said the novice.

"Yes," replied the golfer, "but you have just played a spade where you should have played a club."—Royal Magazine.

Institutions vs Men

"The basis of the co-operative organization is men. Capital cannot co-operate; products cannot co-operate; only men can co-operate."

This seemingly trite but striking truth was spoken by the late G. Harold Powell so loved and honored in this community. As expressed in another column, the words are characteristic of the man. His life, experience and success prove so effectively the idea expressed. Would that we who follow him could learn early the force of his words. Today when organizations are being effected daily and co-operation is the word of the hour, let us not forget that Men are the controlling force for success. Conflicts of profession and mercantilism, capital and labor, civic and social, thinker and doer are on every hand. The Seminary and Shop, Radical in Thought and Conservative in Action, Community and State, Nations and the World—all have their champions and are in persistent clash for supremacy of their particulary theory or Ideal. These organizations representing their own interests cannot co-operate. Ideas, theories, professions cannot work for the common good unless under control and direction of the human element—Man. Even in Delaware we find these forces wasting energies. Institutions, organizations, planned for the public weal, in their enthusiasm for personal success are prone to forget the great end to be attained.

Here in Newark let us have more of the human, more of the man. There's glory enough for all. Rather than competition for success of our organization, let the human quality hold sway and co-operate.

"Only men can co-operate." Then let Manhood dominate our institutions rather than Institutions, men.

So a little community dinner might be just the thing that will get us acquainted. And when we really know the other fellow, the world is a mighty fine place.

Let's Get Acquainted

"How little is Newark acquainted" was an observation made at the Thursday night meeting of citizens. "There seems to be plenty of enthusiasm here but everyone is so backward" was heard several times. And it was and is true—we are not acquainted. Even the business men sat quietly by but with eye alert and seemingly a bit suspicious that something might be sprung.

Our business men, manufacturers, professionals are strangers to one another. All with good and worthy motives but a bit anxious, even bordering on suspicion of the other fellow. All this is probably because we do not know him.

It was suggested the other evening that a dinner be held with some entertainment, some man talk, and some straight-out exchange of views. This would mix us up and create a leveling that would generate confidence. It is a good idea. Let the various interests sit down at the banquet table and forget the personal and business superiorities that probably do not exist, after all. It may be that we are taking ourselves too seriously—a dangerous attitude always. If so, a dinner with cross fire fun and repartee would do us lots of good. Every man could boost his own particular interest or hobby. And if he can prove his case to the interest of the community, we will give him hearing and support..

Political Publicity

Publicity is the theme of the hour. The war brought out its effectiveness. Until then its merits were recognized only as a medium for success in business. Now there is a demand for its use in civic and political affairs. Campaigns and Drives for War success showed our citizens the advantage of published Truth. Illustrations of this were seen in the recent Arms Conference. Here for the first time did Nations admit the public to conferences of Diplomacy. If the Conference had accomplished nothing else, it would have warranted the call. Now the public wants to know what its representatives are doing—and what they are planning to do. They are recognized leaders only in so far as they take their constitutents into confidence. Politicians of the old school, (fortunately fast dying out) are reluctant. They know the result and are trying desperately to continue their existence as long as possible.

In Delaware we are approaching a campaign which effects very seriously the civic future of the State. There have been no statements, no plans, no official announcements, given to the public. Yet conferences are being held, plans perfected, and even delegates to the State Convention being considered. These are all secret, and outside of a few back-door leaks the public knows nothing. The old policy of "getting things lined up" and "putting the screws" on independent thinking, and then "spring it," is still in vogue. Those responsible reckon ill with this after-the-war citizenship. It is different. Gag-rule politics in convention is a relic of past shame and disgraces. The Steam Roller lost its engineer when Penrose left the throttle. In its stead there is developing a growing independence that needs to be reckoned with. Personal ambition without due regard for party wishes and State welfare cannot longer succeed. The policy now being pursued is not only dangerous but will be so resented as to tend toward failure. Both for success and service, let us urge our leaders to consult and take into confidence the whole citizenship.

Clean Up

"Clean Up" weeks are annual events in most progressive towns and Newark should be no exception. The refuse of the winter season should be disposed of as early as possible and the lawns and back yards cleared of rubbish. Grounds around our schools, churches and public plants should be among the first to set the example.

It is expected that Council will assume the leadership in the project by making announcement of dates. With this leadership and the co-operation of our citizens, Newark will come into her rightful own.

Street Courtesies

Remarks made around some of our street corners to the passing public, have been called to our attention again this week. Some months ago, in response to protests by our citizens, the Police put a stop to it. There has been another outbreak according to reports and should be looked after.

Our streets should be such that our daughters can go down town in the evening without being subjected to comment and embarrassament.

Welcome

Not only Methodists, but the whole community welcome Reverend Herson on his return for another year. As a minister he has crowded the church to hear him, as a pastor, he is loved by the congregation and out in town he is a man's man, fearless and kind.

Comments on Education

College men are as ignorant of matters of history as Edison claims them to be. Anyone who has taught in Colleges knows this.—Dr. Tigert, U. S. Commissioner of Education.

Students who go to church and who study Latin seldom get into trouble.—Dr. Comfort of Haverford.

"Educational methods are now going through the jazz and saxaphone age."

In some Delaware Schools, children stop the study of United States History in the 8th Grade. One youngster boastingly told us that she had completed her United States History and was taking up Ancient and Modern. A little Edison test on her knowledge of her State and Country was appalling.

This is a time of confusion in American education. There seem to be no standards. Study must be made interesting, and today we are weak enough to disguise all study as play. Can anything be more false? There is a silly, sentimental view of education which can be summed up as follows:

Little Willie should study when he likes, what he likes, as he likes and if he likes.

Why, we'll never make a soldier (or man either) out of a boy educated like that. He will be nothing but an overgrown boy all his life.—Dean West of Princeton.

APRIL 13th and 14th

"Good Roads, Flowers, Parks, Better Schools, Trees, Pure Water, Fresh Air, Sunshine and Work for Everybody."

GEORGE W. GRIFFIN

"It pays to advertise" is not confined to the selling of goods only, but is or should be just as effective in making life just a little more worth while to some of our fellow mortals, by calling attention to Newark; its trade and commercial possibilities; its location so favorable to their promotion; it naturally healthy position; its fine old history and traditions; its homey features so enhanced by churches, schools, amusements and the charmingly friendly spirit of its people.

So writes George W. Griffin, the new president of the Chamber of Commerce, on hearing of the proposed organization. "Working unselfishly for the good of all the people, native and adopted," strikes the keynote of the hour. His letter, so full of cheer, hope, good nature, breadth of view, makes an Inaugural that promises well.

The compliment paid him during his absence should challenge his best. His letter, written previous to his selection, shows that the idea of our citizens in the organization is in thorough accord with the philosophy, experience and observation of their choice for leader. A wonderful opportunity has been given him. That he will accept it with all the responsibility implied is shown clearly in his letter which follows:

W. A. Singles,
Newark, Del.,
My dear Warren:

Learning that you are calling a citizens' meeting next Thursday night, having for its object the organization of a Board of Trade, by means of this letter, I would like to add my hearty endorsement to the others, that I am sure will be made to such a timely movement, and I am sorry I cannot meet with you in person.

I have visited a number of cities and towns in this awakening and really remarkable state, but none seem to be without a Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce or some such civic body to boost its home attractions and commercial possibilities, and that of the commonwealth even. And talking of boosting we only know of it as a word in the dictionary, but these people down here are pastmasters in its practical operation, and while they have much to offer to home seekers, health and pleasure seekers and to investors, boosting plays no small part in the drawing of thousands of solid and sane people to this sunny south land.

"It pays to advertise" is not confined to the selling of goods only, but is or should be just as effective in making life just a little more worth while to some of our fellow mortals, by calling attention to Newark; its trade and commercial opportunities; its location so favorable to their promotion; its naturally healthy position; its fine old history and traditions; its homey features so enhanced by churches, schools, amusements and the charmingly friendly spirit of its people. These and many other talking points of the delightful old town need to be told and retold systematically to people who now know us only as a point on the State map, and in no way can this be so well done as by the co-operation of our citizenry in a formally organized Board of Trade working unselfishly for the good of all the people, native and adopted.

Hoping you and other promoters engaged in this effort to set the worth of Newark on the hill-top may meet with a full measure of success, I am,

Very sincerely yours,

GEORGE W. GRIFFIN.

spring frosts. All the energy which otherwise would have gone into the fruit has been put into vigorous tree growth and an unusually heavy production of fruit buds. The peach trees especially, growers say, seem to be making up for nature's default of last year.

Continued low temperatures and occasional sleet storms are pleasing fruit men, who say the longer the buds are kept dormant the better the chance of escaping another disastrous bout with killing frosts. At this date last year many of the peach trees were bursting into blossom, prematurely developed by warm weather in January. The buds this year are still tight. There are no signs of flowing sap, and growers are hopeful that the blossoming period will be delayed until April. Another advantage of late blossoming is the presence then of more bees and other insects to pollenize the blossoms.

Growers realize that a big crop will be of little benefit unless it can be profitably sold. As a result more attention is being given to marketing systems than ever before in the history of the Delaware fruit industry.

TELL ME THIS

Why do the daughters of the rich so often marry chauffeurs and the sons of peers marry chorus girls?

Why the Academy Trustees do not either repair or tear away broken wire on the Academy Green?

Why in the '90's College boys wore their hair long and parted it in the middle and now so short and part it on the side?

EGG FOR THE EDITOR

Egg for the Editor. No, not the kind one might suppose. Not an ancient but a modern prize egg as a compliment and not as an expression of disapproval.

Our good friend George Murray, who owns and operates the prize poultry plant near Newark, presented us with an Indian Runner Duck egg which tips the scales between five and six ounces. This beats the record. Recently a Wilmington man reported an Indian Runner egg that weighed four ounces. The usual weight is slightly over two ounces.

Squibs

The old Banquet Toast—"To Women---Heaven bless them" gives way to revision, "To Women---Heaven dress them."

Not content with the slaughter made by darts, the girls at the Women's College have organized a rifle team. Now at night one can hear the crack of the rifle out there in "No Man's Land."

You can't get Grand Opera printing for the price of Jazz.

A modern Diogenes—Prohibition officer.

Lycurgus, way back there in Greece divided the wealth equally. He was formerly from Wilmington.

Rakes, shirt sleeves, yells of Foul Ball, smell of burning brush and leaf on Saturday afternoon, marked the accepted opening of Spring in Newark.

Some one said the other day that the Spring work will start when D. C. Rose arrives from the south.

Local crack fishermen can be seen on the back steps Sunday morning fixing up their tackle.

Are you a true sportsman, willing to co-operate, want to see the town grow and develop—then join the Country Club. It is going to attract home-seekers from Wilmington.

There are more building prospects in Newark this season than for years.

University and culture are not necessarily synonomous. It is not a matter of names and places but of Ideals and Men.

The Sap is coming up—and budding candidates for office begin to appear.

Senator Ball says he wants Harmony. You bet he does. That said it.

Senator duPont says he is ready now to go to work. Fine.

There is a Board of Trade in Newark.

Deliver us from the idea, man or institution who takes the line of least resistance. Deliver us from the idea that agrees in all ways, from the man who takes and executes orders against his sense of right and justice, and deliver us, too, from the institution that plays to official or public favor irrespective of its possibilities for public service.

A Day in the Woods

Lets's get our children out in the woods and fields, away from jazz and movies. Let us gather around the campfire as evening shadows fall and sing songs and tell stories. Back awhile to Nature, let us go for there is America at its best. We will come back better citizens, better men and bring with us happier children. Away formality and let us play again.

The Silver Lining

"Isn't it great!" chortled Jones. "Blinksville is quarantined on account of smallpox."

"What's great about that?" demanded Smith.

"Well, you see," explained Jones, "I've just bought a new car and inherited $10,000."

"Well?"

"And all my in-laws live in Blinksville!" he finished jubilantly.—Way-

At The Playhouse

A motion picture that is the result of twenty-five years of preparation, that has required travels into every land of the globe for the proper scenes, and that has involved the expenditure of thousands of dollars, is scheduled to open for a one week run at the Playhouse, Wilmington, Monday, April 3rd.

This feature production in ten reels is entitled "Around the World with Burton Holmes," produced, edited and titled by Mr. Holmes himself. Mr. Holmes is known as the world's greatest traveller. He has visited every corner of the world, civilized as well as savage countries, and the results of his quarter of a century of travel are included in the film.

The human interest that is encountered on the journey make the picture a pleasing combination of educational and entertaining material with points of special interest to everyone.

SHORT CUTS

AFTER all, there are no short cuts to financial success. Most people who try to go across lots to fortune's goal have to turn back and make a new start. The slow, steady, upward climb finally brings the destination to hand. The short cut seeker is ever trying new and brambled paths. DOLLAR DAYS AND BOOSTER DAYS APRIL 13 - 14 people than have been here for many moons.

One of the big events of the two days will be held on Thursday night when a monster parade will be staged. The chairman of the committee in charge announced today that this will be a Boosters' parade and everyone in Newark will be asked to turn out and it is thought that there will be at least three bands in line.

The merchants will have their automobiles in line decorated and many private car owners have also been asked to decorate their cars and put them in line of parade. Several floats will also be on hand. The fraternal organizations of the town are going to be invited to turn out in a body and as a whole the event will be something the like of which has never before been staged in Newark or any other town on the Peninsula.

Every merchant on Main street and all the residents of the town are requested by the Dollar Day committee to decorate their homes and places of business on these days and the old town will be in a blaze of glory.

A welcome of the warmest kind is going to be extended to all visitors of Newark on these days and the merchants are going to invite the people from surrounding territory to come to Newark on April 13th and 14th and see and realize that this town is second to none in this section when it comes to real business and that the stores here can supply many wants that people previously have thought could be gotten only in the larger cities.

By a Dollar Day is not meant that bargains at a dollar will be the only thing on the shelves of the merchants but all merchnadise will be reduced to a certain extent for these days.

It is a case of come one, come all and from the present outlook, Main street is going to look like Chestnut street, Philadelphia at noon hour on its Dollar Days and Booster Days.

and the last trip was made to the railroad.

The teachers of the children wish to thank the men at these places who have been so earnest in their efforts to explain the workings of the various lines of business. That the children have digested what they have seen and heard is evident when you talk to them.

Mr. Gallaher in the trip to the railroad explained the workings of the electrical devices and signals and although bombarded with thousands of questions by the youngsters never "weakened once" and explained everything that was asked him. He told of the value of railroad safety gates to school children and impressed on them their dangers when playing on railroad tracks.

The children wanted to know why there were three colors of lights used in the signal system and what each color stood for and this was all explained thoroughly to them by Mr. Gallaher. The kind of wood used in the ties and the reason that stone ballast was now used instead of cinders were other points explained by the agent.

Before the children left Mr. Gallaher gave them several magazines to use in the school room. These had pictures and history of the steam engine from the beginning until the present up-to-date models.

G. Harold Powell---His Life and Death as Reported in National Exchange

Sent to the Post from Florida

The death of G. Harold Powell, general manager of the California Fruit Growers Exchange, is today mourned by thousands of friends and citrus fruit growers. While attending a dinner party at the Hotel Maryland in Pasadena, Saturday evening, February 18, Mr. Powell was stricken with heart failure and died a few moments later without regaining consciousness. A friend at the dinner party had just told Mr. Powell about the report that he intended to run for the United States Senate at the next election. "I will tell you more about that later," said Mr. Powell, and his head fell forward and he lost consciousness. These were the last words spoken by him. He was removed to a quiet room nearby and a physician summoned, but Mr. Powell died before medical aid could reach him.

Coming to California in 1911 as secretary and manager of the Citrus Protective League, Mr. Powell was made general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange in 1913, which position he filled until the time of his death. During the World War he attracted national and international attention as an organizor and executive for the Food Administration. It was as a result of his work under Herbert Hoover in handling all perishable food products during the war that he was awarded the Cross of the Chevalier of the Order of the Crown by King Albert of Belgium. In addition to his nationally recognized work in behalf of the citrus fruit industry, he was known internationally as an authority on agricultural marketing. He was the author of several books dealing with the growing, packing and marketing of fruits and wrote several bulletins on co-operative marketing published by the United States Department of Agriculture. Mr. Powell served as third vice-president of the third international congress of refrigerating industries in Chicago in 1913 and was also a delagate to the first congress in Paris. He was a member of various scientific organizations such as the Pomological Society, the Society of Horticulture Science and the Washington Botanical Society. His name was also prominent on the rosters of many local and nation-wide commercial organizations. He was a member of the Committee of Domestic Distribution of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. As a member of the executive committee of the state agricultural legislative committee he represented the citrus fruit industry, and on the Los Angeles board of the foreign finance corporation he represented the state agricultural industries.

Born at Ghent, N. Y., on February 8, 1872, Mr. Powell lived just ten days past the half century mark. He grew up on the farm of his father, George T. Powell, a prominent New York state apple grower and a well known investigator and writer on fruit matters. In 1891, after gradating from the Union Free High School at Chatham, N. Y., he entered Cornell and began his agricultural course, studying under Liberty H. Bailey. He graduated from Cornell with the degree of both Bachelor and Master of Agriculture. He was horticulturist at the experiment station of Delaware College, 1896 until 1901, when he went to the Bureau of Plant Industry. United States Department of Agriculture, becoming the assistant chief of the bureau in 1910 and also acting chief in the absence of Dr. Galloway.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Gertrude E. Clark Powell, he is survived by three sons: H. Clark Powell, a senior in the University of California; George T. Powell, a student at Leland Stanford University and Lawrence G. Powell.

His mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Powell, were visiting at his home in Pasadena at the time of his death. The services were private, those in charge believing it impossible to accommodate the large number of friends who would attend a public funeral. It is planned to hold a memorial service in Los Angeles at a later date.

In his untimely death the California citrus industry loses its greatest leader; the nation an authority on marketing problems and his host of business associates an invaluable friend and counsellor. Typical of the man and his character was a statement made by him that "The basis of the co-operative organization is men. Capital cannot co-operate; products cannot co-operate; only men can co-operate." Filled with an indomitable spirit of enthusiasm and success, G. Harold Powell radiated this spirit to all associated with him so that he was able to lead his organization and the California citrus industry through many trials and reverses during his time as general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange.

The Self Hazer

The young man walked down the street, one shoe off and his coat turned inside out. A policeman stopped him.

"What's the idea?" he demanded.

"Well, you see, it's this way," replied the young man. "I'm taking a course at a correspondence school and yesterday those darn sophomores wrote to me and told me to haze myself."—The Owl.

A Raging Havana Radical

"Secretary (of the Cuban treasury) Gelabert further adds that the government's money must be respected and that the cupidity of some people to obtain possession of what does not belong to them—as is now happening in some cases—must be counteracted. Such an uncompromising opinion, of course, has caused a tremendous sensation here."—Havana Cable to the New York Journal of Commerce.

Taking No Chances

"Well," said the happy bridegroom to the minister at the conclusion of the ceremony, "how much do I owe you?"

"Oh, I'll leave that to you," was the reply. "You can better estimate the value of the service rendered."

"Suppose we postpone settlement then—say for a year. By that time I shall know whether I ought to give you $100 or nothing."

"No, no," said the clergyman, who was a married man himself, "make it $5 now."—Boston Transcript.

The Age of Discretion

"You brought the clothes earlier than usual," said a south side housewife to her colored laundress.

"Yessum," said the laundress. "I wanted to git through with the wash so I could go an' visit my grandmother."

"Why, you have grown children yourself. Your grandmother must be rather old."

"Yessum. She's a settled woman. She's a hundred and one years old."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Number, Please

The telephone girl sits in her chair,
And listens to voices from everywhere,
She hears all the gossip, she hears all the news,
She knows who is happy and who has the blues.
She knows every girl who is chasing the boys,
She knows the excuses each fellow employs,
She knows all our troubles, she knows all our strife,
She knows every man who is mean to his wife;
She knows every one who has a dark past,
She knows every man who's inclined to be fast.
In fact, there's a secret 'neath each pretty curl,
Of that quiet, demure-looking telephone girl.
If the telephone girl should tell what she knows,
She'd turn half our friends into bitterest foes;
She'd start a small wind that would soon be a gale,
And engulf us in trouble, and land us in jail.
She could let go a story, which, gaining in force,
Would cause half our wives to sue for divorce.
She would get all the churches mixed up in a fight
And turn our glad days into sorrowful night.
In fact, she would keep the whole world in a stew,
If she told just a tenth of all that she knew.
Now doesn't it set your head in a whirl,
When you think what you owe to the telephone girl?

Wood Block Took Art To The Poor

Starting with Initial Letter in China, Reached Europe in 14th Century

Grew Into Engraving

The wood block was first used in China. Not till the sixth or seventh century did it find its way to Japan. And there, as in China, it was used only for initial letter stamps. These were elaborate things, and were used by the scribes.

From Japan the wood block passed into Germany some time in the eleventh century. Later, it crossed the Alps, blazing a trail into Italy.

But in the vicinity of Nuremburg, some three hundred years after this, the initial letter was relegated to an insignificant place in the life of the wood block, by means of which the first pictured art found its way into the homes of the poor.

Between Nuremburg and Italy the artists passed, back and forth, working for the different "presses," sinking their personalities in the growth of the new art for their home folks.

These "presses" were crude affairs, but, such as they were, they were thought out to make better prints straightway following the wood block picture. Even so, rubbing was still the only means of getting an imprint. This was long before type. The titles were cut on the block picture—the lower portion usually—and only one side of the page was printed. "Block books" were made of these prints, largely for use in monasteries, for practically all the art of that time was, in character, religious.

The new art was very new, as yet, when a church ablaze destroyed a painting. It was a masterpiece and its loss was mourned. Accidents like this had happened before; they were regrettable. In this instance, however, a copy had been faithfully engraved on a wood block—and lo! The great conception was not lost! It would live in the engraving!

All eyes were centered now on this new art. Even patricians tried to use the knife and block. But, sad to tell, the knife and block remains to us of merit from this course.

Would surprises never cease? Finiguerro, a master goldsmith, has carved in low relief an elaborate composition. It was his greatest work. He knew it. He was handling it lovingly before its delivery to the purchaser; he was cleaning it. Pressing the cloth down hard to further dry the liquid he had used, he noticed on lifting it that the imprint of his carving was on the cloth. He was not slow to take advantage of his discovery.

Again the little world was stirred. Straightway Pollaiuolo, also a goldsmith, engraved on copper "The Battle of the Naked Men." This was his only known engraving, but it will last as long as our most enduring monuments of the art. But this is only a by-path in the trail of the wood block. Wood engraving had not reached the stage of a fine art at the time of Finiguerro's discovery of engraving on metal (about the middle of the fifteenth century).

The trail of the wood block now leads us into Mexico, where it is similar in conception and execution to that of European engraving; but it is too far removed from the great center of art—where many are working—to get substantial results. It flourished in Mexico, more like an echo.

Following the discovery of copper plate engraving we have the printing of the Gutenburg Bible, said by some authorities to be the first use of movable type. Soon Savonarola is distributing his sermons in pamphlet form among the people. Koburger has "perfected" the press "Perfected up" books are being published. A rich doctor of Rome successfully experimenting with type when appears the Chronicle at the Nuremburg press. (Columbus has found the new world.) At this press Durer is apprenticed to Wolgemuth, and together with Pleydendorf they compose the art staff of the Chronicle. And they make the type.

This publication is to appear yearly. Some copies are to be found, but for the most part it is to issued as a newspaper. It is the first printed newspaper in the world—or did China have one? Printing was first used there in 202 B. C., but the secret never got out—China had a wall! Besides, she wasn't even mentioned in Europe till a missionary carried the "word." This was about the middle of the thirteenth century.

The Nuremburg Chronicle, as a newspaper, established a precedent which holds today. It had a section devoted to book reviews; it ran pictures of the prominent men of the day and age! It flayed the "heretic;" it published pictures of women—and saints, and Carlyle said of it that it contained more real information than any one thing he ever got hold of. It featured pictures of the principle cities, along with articles calculated to boost their especial advantages. And if any picture was not forthcoming, in the mad rush for its yearly issuance, the printers ran what they had and captioned it to suit the occasion.

The best engravers gave their lives to copy the work of the great painters until they obtained their reputations in that way. They renounced their own personalities; they reproduced contemporary work faithfully—almost with veneration—and now they live along with the masters at whose services they placed their knowledge and their skill.

At the close of the seventeenth century the trail of the wood block was traceable all over Europe and across the water to America. Indeed, wherever art was known.

Back to Japan it went—as a picture art—and was the rage there. And the new art was developed until, in the middle of the eighteenth century. Hiroshige was born to become their "only one native and national artist."

Again came the wood block back to Europe, for into the hands of Whistler came Hiroshige's prints. Reverently Whistler handled them until—although he used another medium—he acquired somewhat of Hiroshige's cunning, and we have "The Hiroshige of the West."

But a little before Whistler and about the time wood engraving had reached its height in Japan, and its lowest ebb throughout Europe, John and Thomas Bewick were born at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, destined to revive the art for our generation. By a few years these boys preceded Hiroshige.

And now, after all this information, those print collectors and print lovers generally who are mixed in their minds regarding the age of Japanese prints will—in all probability—continue so to the end of their days thinking them very, very old. Perhaps they are right, in a way. Perhaps that wood block initial letter that found its way to Japan, thereby starting a trail down to us through the interesting years, had within it something of the spirit of China's wondrous day—before drowsiness overtook her—which the Japanese caught and held.

For there is a charm in these Japanese prints. And, strange to say, it is the charm of age—the charm of the East.—(From Los Angeles Times)
