"Safety Sally" Asks: "Has Your Automobile Brains?"

Automobiles have reached a high stage of mechanical perfection but they have no brains. Automobiles have no instincts of their own and must depend entirely upon the driver for intelligence. As the Delaware Safety Council's "Safety Sally" emphasizes, "an absent-minded automobile driver is pretty sure to become an absent citizen." Driving a car demands all your attention. When a man sits behind the wheel of his car he must be alert to visualize certain situations that may occur suddenly—perhaps around the very next corner. He must know how to act not only in these emergencies but beforehand to avoid them.

Safe driving demands attention to business. First and foremost, constant attention to the business of driving is paramount. The lapse of one second's vigilance may wreck your car, kill a person or cause serious property damage. Keep your hands on the wheel, your mind alert and focused on the job of driving. If you must talk with your companion don't take your eyes off the road.

Study and remember the traffic laws. Every law ever created is a cloak of safety designed to help every citizen in the community. Good brakes, good common sense and good thoughtful drivers will result in a material reduction of accidents.

The driver who absent-mindedly holds a heavy foot on the accelerator is a constant source of danger to other users of the highways. The danger of speed is always a relative matter which depends upon weather,

Many Submit Paintings For Fine Arts Exhibition In Wilmington

The Wilmington Society of the Fine Arts launched its new season with the eighteenth annual exhibition of recent paintings by the pupils of Howard Pyle, Delaware artists and members of the society, which will continue until November 22.

Frank E. Schoonover is chairman for this exhibition, with a committee consisting of Lausat Rogers, Marcus Aurelius Repsetti and Andrew Doragh. Sixty-three artists have notified the committee of their intention to submit paintings and the number of canvasses to be considered thus far is a hundred and forty-five.

These will be passed upon by the following jury of acceptance: Mr. Earl Horter and Mr. George Gibbs, of Philadelphia; Mr. Daniel Garber, of New Hope, Pa. Each of the three judges represents a particular field of creative art: George Gibbs is a prominent illustrator, Earl Horter represents the modern or contemporary school, George Garber landscape painting of distinguished excellence.

These judges will also award the prizes offered by members of the society and by the society itself.

Mrs. Coleman du Pont has offered two prizes of one hundred dollars each, one for painting and one for illustrating. Mrs. J. A. Ellegood offers a prize of one hundred dollars for a painting of some Delaware subject, while Mr. George E. Rhoads' prize of fifty dollars will go to a woman artist under thirty-five. The Copeland Memorial Prize is the purchase of one of the exhibited paintings for its permanent collection. This fund, available annually, is somewhere between five hundred and seven hundred dollars.

Represented in the eighteenth exhibition will be many of the former pupils of Howard Pyle whose paintings exclusively filled the walls of the first Delaware show. Starting with instruction in illustrating these men and women have developed their art in diverse ways such as portraiture, etching, water colorists, mural painters, scenic designers for stage settings and costumes, miniature painting, illustrating and the creation of stained windows; very many of them are writers of distinction as well.

The first catalogue of November, 1912, lists the names of: Ellen W. Ahrens, Eleanor Abbott, Clifford W. Ashley, of George Watson Barrett and Herbert Moore who have been designing stage sets, etc., for the Schuberts in New York; of Ethel F. B. Bains, Anna Whelen Betts, Arthur E. Becher, Harold M. Brett, Elizabeth Bonsol, Charlotte Harding Brown, Sidney M. Chase now doing outstanding work in water colors although his first medium was oils, J. Eads Collins, Clyde O. Deland, Alfred Demorest, Charles de Feo Douglas Duer and H. T. Dunn.

In the first show Elizabeth Shippen Green Elliott's "Antoine and the Little Wooden Soldier" and "Tiny Tim and Bob Cratchet" by Jessie Wilcox Smith will recall to those who saw the tenderness with which these two artists deal with the universal appeal of childhood.

George M. Harding, Olive Rush, Violet Oakley and N. C. Wyeth have become distinguished mural painters.

Of the artists now living in Wilmington who were included in the 1912 exhibition are Stanley M. Arthurs, Frank E. Schoonover, Charles A. MacLellan, Katherine Pyle, Mrs. E. B. Pyle and Gayle Hoskins.

Percy V. E. Ivory, Mary Craven Johnson, W. H. D. Koerner, Ethel P. B. Leach, whose painting, "The Big Show—Fredericka," was purchased a year or so ago for the permanent collection, Winfield S. Lukens, Emlen McConnell, Thornton Oakley who is still greatly interested in the Wilmington Society of the Fine Arts although a resident of Philadelphia, were also in the first showing. Mr. and Mrs. Oakley have written and illustrated many charming books.

S. M. Palmer is now devoted himself very largely to portrait painting, Maxfield Parrish, Henry J. Peck, the ether; Roscoe Shrader, C. C. Squires, Herbert Stitt, Sarah K. Smith, Leslie Thrasher, Henry E. Townsend, Glauswald Tyng, H. C. Hall and Sarah S. S. Weber.

There is a great deal of interest in the Delaware exhibition throughout the entire country as it is a movement in this State inspired and made possible by the life-long residence of Howard Pyle.

During the winter the Wilmington Society of the Fine Arts is planning a series of exhibits all of which are contemporary—that is the artists represented are all living at this time or have only shortly died so that a comprehensive view may be had of what the artist of today is doing with his material. As the plan now stands, all the openings will be scheduled for Monday evenings in whatever month the exhibition may be arranged.

Moore, of Bear, and Ellwood Sheldon, of Marshallton, at St. Louis, on Monday, along with 200 other Eastern feed merchants and livestock feeders visiting Purina Mills, manufacturers of Checkerboard feeds.

"I have heard a lot about Coccidiosis as a disease in chickens, but I never dreamed that there was a Coccidiosis Farm," was the exclamation of one of this party as the guides took them through the large Purina research laboratories where millions of bacteria are grown for research purposes. In other parts of the laboratory, they saw large cages filled with white mice which are used for countless nutritional experimental work. They noted also the experiment which is being conducted in this laboratory to determine if alfalfa hay can be artificially cured in large baking ovens and not lose any of its food value as compared to alfalfa which is cured under the natural rays of the sun.

It was the 300 acre Purina Experimental Farm, thirty miles from St. Louis, and reached by bus, which kept every one of the visitors all eyes and ears during the hours they were there. Here they were shown feeding experiments on all kinds of poultry and livestock. At the dairy experimental unit, one of the outstanding experiments on dairy feeding had just been completed. Ninety cows were fed over a period of two years to determine if the proportion of protein ingredients in a dairy feed can be changed indiscriminately without affecting the milk making and profit making ability of the feed. This experiment proved that it is not profitable to switch rations and was explained in detail.

Other experiments, such as six generations of dogs on one kind of ration with good results; hogs fed for fattening with protein supplements from various sources, and many others were seen.

Following the farm visit the party was taken on a police-escorted sight-seeing trip over St. Louis. Among the things of interest visited were the Arena, Home of the National Dairy Show; the Lindbergh Memorial, and Forest Park, site of the 1904 World's Fair.

DANIEL MORGAN LEADER OF VIRGINIA'S FAMOUS RIFLEMEN

General Washington, Host and Huntsman

That General George Washington was an enthusiastic huntsman is evidenced in many of his own writings and letters, according to the Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. He was a superb horseman; many contemporaries in their writings noted his splendid appearance on horseback. Lafayette, in describing him in a letter home, spoke of him as the most magnificent figure he had ever beheld, when mounted on his white charger.

General Washington loved his horses and his dogs, and enjoyed the keen sport and excitement of the chase. In fact, he joined in hunting and all sports and games more for this reason than for honors or success.

He was in the habit of hunting three times a week if the weather was favorable. During the hunting season, Mount Vernon entertained many sporting guests from the neighboring estates, from Maryland and elsewhere. These guests arrived, often with their own retinues of servants, their own mounts, and remained for visits, not of days but of weeks, during which time they were entertained royally in the good old style.

Breakfast was served at candle-light, the table groaning with the bounty of delectable southern dishes. Washington himself, however, rarely partook of anything but Indian corn-cakes and milk. He often asked the blessing at his table, unless there was a clergyman present, all standing during this ceremony.

At dawn the cavalcade would be ready to start. Washington mounted or his favorite hunter, Blueskin, a fiery animal of great endurance, dark iron gray in color. For hunting he wore the fashionable costume of the times, a blue coat, scarlet waistcoat, buckskin breeches, top boots and a velvet cap. He carried a whip with a long thong.

Billy, who was Washington's body-servant during the war, rode with the hounds, mounted on Chinkling, a French huntsman's horn slung across his shoulders, riding fearlessly through brake and tangled wood, in a style which would strike terror to the heart of most modern riders.

Washington took great pride in his hounds and had his pack so critically drafted as to speed and bottom, that in running, if one dog lost the scent, another was immediately at hand to recover it. When running in full cry, you could "cover the pack with a blanket."

Mt. Vernon had a large kennel of hounds and a fine stud of horses. Washington kept with his own hands a careful register in which could be found the names, ages and marks of each. Had the records of horse-breeding during the Revolution, and the time immediately following, been more carefully kept, there is no doubt that the stables of the present day could boast descendants of the renowned stable, which included the fiery Blueskin, the famous full-blooded Arabian, Magnolia, Ajax, Valiant, and Chinkling. Some of the hounds were named Vulean, Ringwood, Singer, True Love, Music, Sweetlips, Forester, and Lockwood.

Following these early morning hunts, the party would return to Mt. Vernon for dinner, usually finding additional guests who had arrived from neighboring estates to learn the result of the hunt and to enjoy the afternoon's gayety.

A bounteous dinner was served, after which some of the guests would play loo, the preferred game of the times, others would gather about the harpsichord, and with accompaniment of lute and violin, raise their voices in pleasing choruses.

After supper which was served about nine or ten o'clock, there was usually dancing—the minuet, and jolly country dances which the young people especially enjoyed. As all rose early for the hunting, the hour of retirement was not late.

All sports were suspended during the war, and hunting was never revived at Mt. Vernon on its old-time scale. In 1785, Lafayette presented Washington with a pack of hounds, but increasing private and public duties caused him to give up such pleasure.

Destroying Wealth

Fire waste represents one of the greatest drains on our national resources. In destruction of life and property, in retarding industrial activity and in causing unemployment, loss of business and higher taxes, it is a financial and social burden that must be borne by the entire citizenry.

"No doubt a large part of the apathy toward fire loss results from the delusion many persons cherish about insurance," said B. W. Gearhart, State Commander of the California Department, American Legion, some time ago. "They believe that insurance pays for fire. It does not, and never can. It distributes fire losses, but it cannot recreate buildings or goods that have been reduced to ashes. Not only is property lost through fire utterly gone, but its replacement draws upon energy which should go into producing new wealth. . . . Every dollar's worth of property needlessly sacrificed to fire, represents a loss in national wealth not only to the immediate sufferer but to the entire United States."

This is eminently true. No insurance policy can compensate for the suspension of jobs, business, activity. Cases are on record where a single great fire has stopped progress in a community for many years, working an incalculable hardship on all concerned.

It may be lack of understanding of this fact that causes the laxness of the public in cooperating to banish fire hazards from the nation. At present, with business at low ebb, the tragedy of fire waste becomes more than usually evident. Every citizen must do his part in the great war against fire—a part that he should consider his duty.

Everybody's Business

In connection with the recent Fire Prevention Week, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde made a plea to farmers and rural dwellers to reduce the gigantic annual fire loss on farms—a loss said to total $100,000,000 in property and 3500 lives.

Fire Prevention Week is over. But that advice is still good—and will always be good. Every fire prevented, as Secretary Hyde pointed out, represents that much gain for the community, and a reduction in farm fire loss is equivalent to an increase in farm income.

At present, farm property losses due to fire total about a fifth of the entire national waste in property, and a third of the waste in lives. Practically all farm fires, like those in cities, are preventable. The principal causes are defective chimneys and flues, sparks on combustible roofs, lightning, careless use of matches and smoking, spontaneous ignition of farm products, careless handling and storage of gasoline and other inflammable and explosive liquids, defective wiring and improper use of electrical appliances. Almost all of these menaces may be minimized by care and thought on the part of the farmer.

Every community should organize in an effort to prevent fire. It should do this, not for one week each year only, but for fifty-two weeks. Public opinion should be used to bring home to the individual his personal responsibility for fire. Every fire damages the whole community, and costs the whole community money. It is one case where one person's business is everybody's business.

An Urgent Need

The most urgent need of the railroads at the present time is to maintain credit.

According to S. H. Bledsoe of the Santa Fe lines, the railroads should have for capital purposes, an average of not less than $585,000,000 per year for the next five years for necessary improvements, and must have $267,000,000 per year to pay maturing funded obligations.

This, many people believe, is only the railroad's lookout. But it is the general public's too. It would be difficult to find a person whose business, job, income or future is not in some way involved with that of the railroads. This is demonstrated directly by the vast purchases of supplies the rails make from such businesses as the iron and steel, copper, coal, lumber, etc., and indirectly by the fact that insurance companies, banks, trust funds and endowed institutions of all kinds have been large railroad investors. Thus every owner of an insurance policy, or a savings account, or anyone who benefits from a trust fund is, in a sense, a stockholder in the railroads.

Railroad payrolls and purchases total about $4,000,000,000 annually. It is difficult to estimate the force of this in sustaining business and payrolls. No other transportation agency—and certainly not those which, through subsidy or law taxation or lack of regulation, have taken much business away from the railroads—is so important to American social and economic progress.

To repeat, the railroads' problem is every citizen's problem. We should not lose sight of that.

Domestic Use of Power Increases

A steady increase in use of electricity in homes during the past six months has in a large degree helped to offset the decline in commercial demands.

Furthermore, decreases in the cost of domestic electric service have saved the industry's customers $430,000,000 in the last decade.

In the six months period preceding August, domestic consumers increased by 300,000, bringing the total to 20,400,000. About 70 per cent of all American homes are electrified. The average domestic consumer increased his use of power 9.6 per cent in 1930, while his average rate went down 4.8 per cent.

The nicotine-sulphate treatment is one of the best to control lice in poultry flocks including a large number of pullets, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Paint the top of the roosts with liquid nicotine sulphate in late afternoon just before the birds go to roost. The fumes will kill the lice during the night. The use of sodium-fluoride dust for controlling lice on poultry necessitates handling the pullets. This frightens them and may check egg production.

Do not let pullets roost on tree limbs in the fall when they start to lay. This is a habit some pullets acquire on hot summer nights. To break them of the habit, confine them to the laying house for a few days, or clip the flight feathers on one wing.

Up To the Individual

The automobile accident problem should be approached from the standpoint that it is the individual driver's problem.

All encouragement should be given to moves to modernize traffic codes and to pass laws requiring the examination of vehicles and drivers. These steps can save many lives, to say nothing of thousands of dollars worth of property. But at the same time we must do our utmost to drive home to the individual the responsibility that is his when he takes the wheel of a car and embarks upon the public streets and highways.

It has been suggested that an honor code be created for drivers. If all drivers would seriously subscribe to it the ghastly toll of deaths would drop over night. Not one fatal accident in ten is strictly unavoidable. In nine cases someone, through recklessness, carelessness or incompetence, has erred. A life snuffed out is the result.

A tone or two of metal, moving at high speed, represents a tremendous destructive force if it is mishandled. None of us would take a chance on putting a stick of dynamite in a fire or looking down the muzzle of a gun and playing with the trigger. Yet hundreds of thousands of drivers do the motoring equivalents of these acts—by going at excessive speeds on narrow or rough roads, by passing on curves, by cutting in and out in the face of oncoming traffic, by driving on the wrong side of the highway.

Public opinion must be directed, with all its force, toward making the individual conscious of his duty, if the accident toll is to be materially checked.

Watch the Gas Industry

Those interested in the development of American civilization, both from the standpoint of industrial activity and home-life, would do well to keep a close eye on the gas industry.

It is second only to the electric in its importance as a promoter of efficiency and economy in a multitude of ways. It has twenty-odd thousand different industrial uses. And in the home, the gas central heating system, the gas stove, the gas refrigerator and similar appliances, have done much in revolutionizing domestic work and lessening drudgery.

Use of gas grows constantly. Each year thousands of new customers are added. And the industry, you might say, is still in the first phase of its history.

Making the Grade

No less an authority than Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Health Commissioner of New York City, in his outline of requirements for school children, says, "Keeping your youngsters in health is not an arduous proposition, but it requires a little care on your part. He should have a filling luncheon such as soup or salad, sandwiches, macaroni and cheese, or some other easily prepared dish, and with whatever he eats he should always have a glass of milk. When he returns home from school in the afternoon, he should have a bite, such as a sandwich and a glass of milk, as well as an apple or some other fruit. For his evening meal he should be able to eat the same dishes as the rest of the family, plus a glass of milk. His diet as well as ours should include plenty of fresh vegetables, particularly of the leafy variety; such as cabbage, lettuce, kale and spinach. Tomatoes, too, are important.

"If this balanced diet, plus the milk, is adhered to, the child will stay in health, providing the other cardinal rules of health are obeyed. These are: at least eight hours' sleep in a well-ventilated room, plenty of exercise and recreation in the open air and sunshine, and frequent bathing."

We expect top grades from our children. They have a right to expect carefully selected, adequate, growth producing and protective food from us.

An Unsound Plan

It has been suggested that the motorist be made to pay the lion's share of a $25,000,000 unemployment relief fund in California, by raising the gasoline tax rate one cent, by levying a motor sales tax, by permitting counties to levy a motor tax, and by urging the Federal government to tax automobiles or gasoline or both.

It is to be feared that many otherwise steady persons will be led astray by the cause for which the money would be used. Unemployment relief is a splendid thing, and a thing that is close to all of us. It is something that must be done. But to do it entirely or largely at the expense of motorists, as a class, would be as reprehensible as doing it at the expense of candy or electricity or airplanes or golf balls. This is a perfect example of the lengths to which officials have sought to go in "socking" the motorist's pocketbook.

A state relief fund should be made up, so far as possible, at the expense of every citizen and taxpayer. It should certainly not be made up by unfair and unjust legislation against a certain class of citizens. As the Baltimore Sun recently said, "Gas and motor-car taxes cannot be carried much further without showing diminishing returns, and if the rage for boosting them continues at the present rate the best thing that could happen would be a revolt which would compel cessation."

The Better Way

It is better to prevent a crime than to punish some one for having committed it. And, on the same principle, it is better to enforce a few basic laws than to pass new and restrictive laws which are unenforceable, and serve only to make law-breakers of otherwise law-abiding citizens.

This is a fact of which we seem to have lost sight in our passion for passing laws. Probably no other civilized people are bound by so many legal restrictions as we are—and it is certain that no other civilized people are plagued by so much crime, or have so conspicuously failed in apprehending and convicting criminals. That is something legislators and voters might take into account when the time for consideration of new laws comes again.

The monthly dance of the Newark New Century Club will be held this evening at the club house, with George Madden's music. Committee chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Brewer. A card party was held at the home of Miss Elsie Wright by the Welfare Committee of the New Century Club on Tuesday afternoon for the aid of the needy of Newark.

A CORRECTION

We stated in our news article in regard to the State Federation of Men's Bible Classes that the City of Wilmington made a strong bid for the convention, which was not true. There were two invitations extended from Wilmington, but they were not considered by the committee.

VACATION OF U. OF D. STUDENTS

Following out the custom of the past few years students of the University of Delaware will have only a short vacation on Thanksgiving. The university will close at noon Wednesday, November 25, and classes will be resumed at 8 o'clock Friday morning, November 7. At Christmas there will be a vacation from December 18 to January 4.

The usual Thanksgiving turkey dinner for the students will be held this year at the Women's College on the evening of Monday, November 23, and at Delaware College Tuesday evening, November 24. At both colleges the dinner will be followed by a program of speaking and music.

FRATERNITY HOLDS DANCE

Members of the Theta Chi Fraternity at the University entertained at their informal dance at Old College Hall Saturday evening with about 75 couples in attendance. The Hall was decorated in red and white, the fraternity colors. Chet Lincoln and his Eleven Pennies furnished music for the affair.

Patronesses were: Mrs. C. R. Joseph, Mrs. C. E. Sparks, Miss Alice Van deVoort, Mrs. F. C. Houghton, and Mrs. H. L. Bonham.

November Issue of "Signposts" Very Interesting

A review of encouraging facts about Delaware schools, a report of a recent conference of representative educators to consider Delaware's teacher training needs, first hand impressions of the annual meeting of the Child Study Association of America and detailed descriptions of units of work which show the improved teaching being done in Delaware are outstanding features of the November issue of "Signposts," the Delaware Bulletin of Education.

Facts about Delaware schools, gleaned from a report submitted to the Governor by State Superintendent H. V. Holloway, indicate progress along several lines. To quote from the review: "With half of the country forced to retrench, Delaware has found it possible not only to hold her own, but to more nearly approach the needs of the school than in any previous year. . . The budget shows increased allowances for teachers' salaries, supervision, text books, supplies and materials, library books, maps and charts, testing program and additional music teachers."

Those particularly concerned with John Dewey's radio challenge (October 25th) to the public school to adjust to the needs of modern living, to meet the unsolved social problems of the future, will be interested in the announcement made by W. A. Wilkinson, director of the teacher training department of the University. After the presentation of teacher training needs from many angles Mr. Wilkinson declared his conviction that a complete reorganization of the department was necessary.

The review of trends in Parent Education in the United States as revealed at the Child Study meeting is significant to students of the problem in Delaware as it indicates a very definite tendency toward the development of a State program of parent education—a co-ordinating center for all—paid for by the State. Local Parent-Teacher groups planning their method of work for the year will find the report of Child Study Association committee work helpful.

"SHORTY" CHALMERS SEES DELAWARE DEFEAT P. M. C.

George "Shorty" Chalmers, star halfback and forward passer extraordinary of the University of Maryland, was a spectator at the Delaware-P. M. C. game Saturday. Chalmers, a Newark boy, took advantage of an off day in the Maryland schedule.

Chalmers, after graduating from Newark High School where he starred in three sports, football, basketball and baseball, went to Tome School. There was talk of him entering Delaware, but he finally decided to go to Maryland where he has starred for three years in the three sports, Chalmers is much interested in efforts being made to stage a game between Delaware and Maryland for the Saturday following Thanksgiving Day for the unemployment fund. Many of "Shorty's" friends would like to see him in action and should the game be arranged it would no doubt attract a tremendous crowd.

Units of work reported include: (1) The Puppet Show, described by Mrs. Viola Betts, Lord Baltimore School; (2) The Closing Day Pageant, reported by Miss A. Katherine Ralidge, Townsend School; (3) A Unit on Japan, developed by primary children under the guidance of Miss Anna R. Short, Bridgeville School; (4) "Footprints of the Past," a Sixth Grade Social Study, described by J. C. Junek, State Demonstration School.

The cover design by Miss Amy G. Gardner presents education as a doorway through which we enter a beautiful country abundant with riches for all.

"Signposts," sent free to all Delaware teachers, is issued six times a year as a joint project of the State Department of Public Instruction, the State Parent-Teacher Association and the Delaware Citizens Association. Its editor is Miss Etta J. Wilson. The Advisor Council includes: H. V. Holloway, Department of Public Instruction; W. A. Wilkinson, Department of Education, University of Delaware; Allan Hulsizer, Director Demonstration School Project; S. M. Stouffer, Superintendent City Schools, Wilmington; Howard T. Eennis, President State Parent-Teacher Association.

Parent-Teacher Association publicity chairmen act as subscription agent for the magazine.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

Newark, Delaware, Nov. 18, 1931.

To the Citizens of Newark:

In order that you may have a clear notion about the present misunderstanding that has arisen in the D. I. A. A. concerning the eligibility of a Newark player, I am taking this liberty to present the situation as it exists and as it affects the Newark football team.

The boy in question entered the Newark School in September to complete his high school training so he could enter college. Elkton, the school he graduated from, is an 11 year school and would not qualify him to receive a Delaware diploma nor, according to our understanding, does his graduation from that school qualify him to enter any college other than Maryland State College. He pays tuition at the Newark School and is accepted as a full-fledged senior, eligible to participate in all activities of the school.

The boy, along with 40 others, reported for football practice early in the fall because he had never played football before and was anxious to learn the rudiments of the game. We immediately wrote the Secretary of the D. I. A. A. to learn if this boy was eligible to participate in D. I. A. A. athletics and we also wrote other state authorities and the decision was—that there seemed to be no law to directly govern this case nor any law which would declare him ineligible, because we accepted him from a school which included only 11 years to our school as a senior of the Delaware School system.

We did not play this boy in any game for our convenience as the season's scores will indicate, but to give the boy actual game experience. He played for a few minutes only in several regular scheduled games.

Bridgeville's superintendent admitted at the D. I. A. A. meeting that he detailed two members of his faculty to the games that Newark participated in to get any information that they might use against Newark. Monday night the executive committee of the D. I. A. A. met to hear Bridgeville's protest against Newark. Bridgeville won the protest and the committee decided that the game Newark won from Dover 54-0 be awarded to Dover. The committee further decided that Bridgeville should meet Newark at Smyrna Friday of this week to play the semi-final game. (Newark still leads their division despite the forfeit of the Dover game). Bridgeville then, disregarding the decision of the executive committee, refused to play with Newark on Friday.

It is difficult at this writing to state what the outcome will be. W. K. GILLESPIE, Coach of the Newark Football Team.

GLASGOW CLUB MEETS

There's nothing like a meeting of the Glasgow Club to make one feel well, at least "in it." The things we learn how to do are up to the minute and so interestingly explained. Nearly always there's a bit of something nice to eat, stunts to do, and jokes to tell. We have a lively time each second Tuesday of the month.

At Mrs. Thos. Wright's this month, "How to be a gracious hostess" and "How to serve and make afternoon tea" were our special lessons; so, should anyone be invited to partake of afternoon tea and the hostess is a Glasgow Club member, be sure of a hearty welcome and of being served with delicious tea and cinnamon or orange toast.

The next meeting will be our Christmas party at the Commons Ballroom, Old College, on December 17, 1931.—Communicated.

PAUL IN ROME

ROMAN TEXT—I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.

ROMAN TEXT—Acts 28:1-12; 28:30-31

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul in the Great City of Rome.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Life-long Ambition Fulfilled.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Prisoner Proclaims the Gospel in Rome.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul's Ministry in the World's Capital.

1. Paul Appeals to Caesar (25:1-12). In order to appreciate this action on the part of Paul it is well to get a synthetic grasp of the experiences which forced him to make this appeal.

2. Trial before Festus (25:13-26:32). This was occasioned by the visit to Festus of Agrippa and Bernice.

3. Paul's Journey to Rome (27:1-44). The ship (v. 6). It was in a vessel of Alexandria sailing from Myra to Italy.

4. Paul's serene faith (v. 21-26). God is as near to his faithful ones on a stormy sea as in the quietude of the home.

5. The ship's crew safe (v. 27-44). All turned out as God had promised.

6. Paul's Ministry in Rome (Acts 28:30-31). Welcomed by the brethren (v. 15). They met him at the Appian Forum, a distance of about forty miles from Rome.

7. Paul's lenient treatment (v. 16). He was allowed to hire a house and live apart, being guarded by a soldier.

8. Conference with the leading Jews (v. 17-22). He allowed himself only three days to rest.

9. Paul expounding the kingdom of God (v. 23-31). He pointed out a real Kingdom, the Messianic Kingdom.

10. Personal consecration. There is also need of a clear understanding of what consecration means.

11. Pleasures Not Lasting. The pleasures of sin are but for a season, but the punishment of unrepented sin is everlasting.

American Suckers Continue Numerous

Notwithstanding the economic depression, the American people are buying more worthless securities at the present time than ever before, according to official reports from the Post Office Department at Washington; largely stocks, etc., advertised through the press and having no value whatever.

Washington authorities estimate that a million gullible Americans annually lose more than a billion dollars through investments in worthless securities. The desire to get rich quick without work has the same old lure as ever, even when money is scarce and times are hard.

Daily "fraud orders" running into the hundreds are issued at Washington, but new schemes spring up over night and an unsuspecting public continues to bite. The number of actual lotteries now operating widely and using the mails, is so large as to constitute a national disgrace, in spite of unceasing efforts of the Post Office Department to check their operations.

One of the most serious problems in the operation of motor cars is that of proper road illumination. A very large per cent of motorists have never realized what good headlighting is, nor have they ever obtained anywhere near the best results possible with their present headlighting equipment.

Specifications of the American Standard System of the American Standard System of Headlighting provide for light ahead of the car which is adequate for the needs of the driver and at the same time the bright part of the beam is kept sufficiently low so that oncoming drivers are not bothered.

BOO WHITE WINS GAME FOR DELAWARE AGAINST P.M.C. SAT.

10,000 Spectators See University Win

Before another large crowd that packed Frazer Field, the University of Delaware football team Saturday defeated P. M. C. of Chester, Pa., 13 to 7, in a game that was in doubt almost until the last minute. The crowd was nearly as large as that at the Swarthmore game the previous Saturday. This ended the regular home schedule with the exception of the proposed game for the unemployed fund to be played the Saturday following Thanksgiving. Delaware plays Haverford Saturday of this week at Haverford.

It was another unusually colorful affair. Governor and Mrs. C. Douglass Buck, Senator and Mrs. Daniel O. Hastings, Senator John G. Townsend, Jr., former Governor and Mrs. S. S. Pennewill, of Dover; Mayor Frank G. Sparks and members of City Council of Wilmington; City Engineer Harry L. Maier and City Solicitor Harry K. Hoch, of Wilmington; A. J. Heald, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hulihan, Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Robert P. Glassburn and many other prominent citizens from all parts of the State were present.

Three bands were on the field during the game, the University band, the Cadets' chances of tying up the score or possibly winning the game as Delaware intercepted a forward pass on the next play. Lineup:

and were hard to stop. They worked the ball to about Delaware's 20-yard line when the "A" team was sent back, but it was too late to stop the drive. Pollock eventually took the ball over for a touchdown and when Thwaites kicked the goal the score was tied, 7 to 7.

The P. M. C. attack was greatly improved during the second half. On their offensive smashes the interference formed with lightning-like speed and the backs, including also Kawal, were hard to stop.

A few minutes later P. M. C. started another drive that took the ball well into Delaware's territory. On the kickoff Osborne, who starred for P. M. C., ran the ball back to the middle of the field before being downed by the Delaware safety man. A penalty on P. M. C. up in Delaware's territory was a big help to the Blue and Gold.

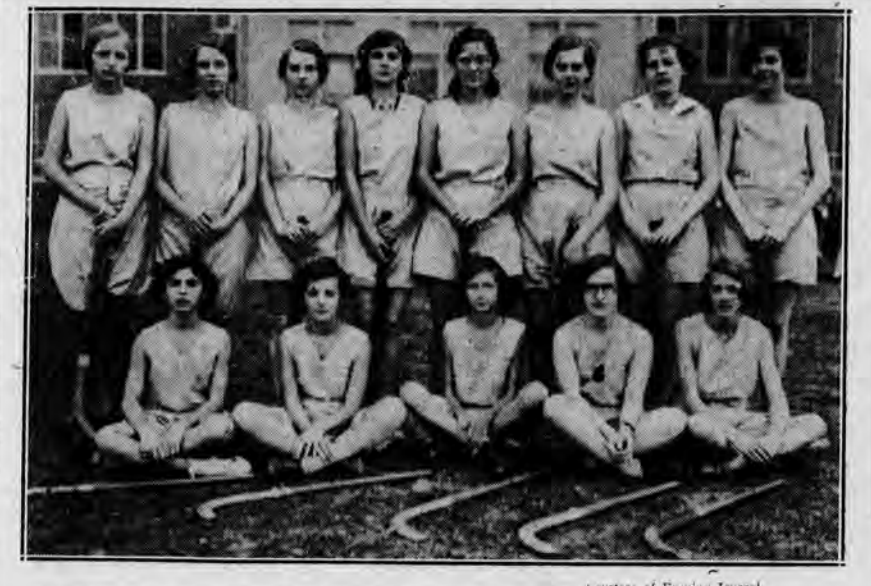

Early in the final period White made his long run for Delaware's winning touchdown. Starting back of great interference White circled the end and before a P. M. C. man could get his hands on him was down the field like a flash and over the line for the score. Green failed to kick the goal.

Near the end of the game P. M. C. got the ball to Delaware's three-yard line where a five-yard penalty ruined the Cadets' chances of tying up the score or possibly winning the game as Delaware intercepted a forward pass on the next play. Lineup:

Donkey Has Trouble Too

The Democratic national managers started their campaign to pay off the party mortgage some weeks ago with considerable of a fanfare of boastful trumpets. But reports which creep along the grape vine are to the effect that contributions to the fund are not exactly crowding the mails. Many replies to the touching appeals sent out from National headquarters are being received, it is admitted, but the tenor of them is disturbing. Too many of the faithful say they would be glad to contribute, but they are dry and do not propose to put up money to run a wet campaign or finance a party which is dominated by a bunch of wets, or with the likelihood that they will be promoting a wet candidate on a wet platform. So all the political perplexities and uneasinesses are not at the Sign of the Elephant.

This Will Interest Wage Earners

In Federal employment the legal labor day is eight hours. In a large number of northern Republican states the legal maximum number of hours for men is eight. Not a single southern Democratic state has any such limitation. No southern state limits the number of hours of daily employment to less than ten, and then only in some very few industries.

Nine states provide for weekly payment of wages. Eight of these are Republican.

Twenty-one states have what is known in railroad legislation as full-crew laws; sixteen of these states are Republican.

Twelve states limit the number of days that a woman may work in succession to six; of these twelve, only one is Democratic.

Thirteen states make it compulsory that a period of time varying from thirty minutes to one hour must be allowed for the noonday meal in all industries; of these states only two are Democratic.

Twelve states have a law that a woman can work only a fixed number of hours, not in excess of six, without being given either a meal period or a rest period; only two of these states are Democratic.

Sixteen states have a law prohibiting night work for women in certain industries; only one of these states is Democratic.

Ten states have a law which prohibits women taking home from

I. O. R. M.

The past week has been a very busy one for Minnehaha Tribe, No. 23, I. O. R. M. On last Thursday evening a team representing the tribe in baseball trailed to Little Bear and lost 2 out of 3 games. On Friday a delegation attended the initiation exercises of Pocahontas Council No. 1, of Wilmington, and on Saturday evening, a delegation headed by Great Junior Sagamore Frank H. Balling, attended a class adoption in Chester, Pa., at which the Great Sachem of Pennsylvania had a crack degree team composed of 12 tribes. Monday was an off night. Tuesday there was an adoption held at Minnehaha's wigwam before a large attendance. Last night the baseball team and also a quilt team trailed to Wilmington and played Lenape Tribe's team, but lost out, due to the lack of practice on the part of the Newark Red Men.

Tomorrow evening (Friday) a delegation will visit Monoponaca Tribe, of Chester. This is the tribe that was here several weeks ago and raised the Chiefs of Minnehaha.

Don't forget the card party on next Tuesday evening, given jointly by Mincola Council and Minnehaha Tribe. The first prize in cards will be $2.50 in gold. There will also be a door prize that everyone will share in. The games will be called promptly at 8 o'clock. Refreshments will be served.

BUY On Days VOL NEW All Ne The N ized an relief of with Mr people v luctant is to gi around N Hoover had in mind was to prevent wars from coming. His argument was that if nations could be assured of sea borne food supplies in war time the necessity for alliances and large navies would be reduced and thus there would be smaller peril of war. The Navy League either stupidly failed to grasp this idea or deliberately sought to distort the President's purpose.

The whole argument of the Navy League, and all its arguments, based on the assumption that war is inevitable. The President's theory is that war may be averted and his international policy is directed toward that end. It is the policy upon which the nation has repeatedly set its seal of approval, and which it will continue to approve.

U. OF D. FOOTBALL TEAM ENDS HOME SCHEDULE

University of Delaware football team ended their home schedule with the exception of the proposed game for the unemployed fund, last Saturday with a 13 to 7 victory over their old rivals, P. M. C., of Chester, Pa. On Saturday of this week the team plays its annual game with Haverford at Haverford, the last game of the regular schedule. Another crowd of about 5000 attended the P. M. C. game, making the second largest crowd in the history of Frazer Field. Governor and Mrs. Buck were again guests at the game, as were United States Senators John G. Townsend, Jr., and Daniel O. Hastings, as well as many other prominent citizens from all parts of the State.

Delaware's opponents for the game for the unemployed had not been decided on early this week. Efforts had been made to get either Drexel or St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, neither could be secured. After that the Delaware officials were making efforts to schedule either University of Maryland or Dickinson. The game will probably be played the Saturday following Thanksgiving on Frazer Field. Of the seven football games played so far this season Delaware has won four, tied two and lost one, the defeat being by the Navy.
