EXPERT OPINION ON SANITARY CONDITIONS IN NEWARK

DR. ROBIN GIVES VIEWS ON HEALTH CONDITIONS HERE REPEATS WARNING GIVEN YEARS AGO

August 28, 1912.

My Dear Mr. Johnson: From a social remark to a newspaper note, you elaborated it into a story. I am led into taking up the rather thankless task of telling the unwilling community what it should do to protect itself and its children from possible ravages of an infectious disease. As my opinion has not been asked in this matter, save in the above mentioned newspaper note, it would seem bad manners to "butt in," but for the following reasons: First, Newark is a well known and dear to me, because of my association with the college and the people for forty years, not to mention the early associations of a personal character. Second, because Newark is a college town which receives students from all over the State and to which I hope to send my boys (and girl, when they grow up,—a town, therefore, in which every citizen of Delaware should take special interest. I trust that these reasons will be considered sufficiently cogent to justify my meddling.

To employ the phraseology of the political platform, "we view with alarm" the annual occurrence of typhoid fever in Newark. Typhoid fever visited the town 10 years ago, when I lived there, and has been visiting ever since. The "causes" were apparently discovered and removed then, and are being discovered and removed now and yet the disease keeps up its visitations with varying, at times disastrous, consequences. Evidently the true cause has either not been discovered or if discovered, not removed.

Ten years ago Prof. Chester and I examined premises and wells; we found most of them polluted, and, pointing to the "cause," suggested remedies which were apparently applied. The same thing has been done by the Board of Health Laboratory ever since and is being done today. The fact of the matter is that it is impossible in every case to establish a direct relation between a polluted well and the occurrence of typhoid fever. When the epidemic is widely distributed, suggesting a common cause, the water supply may be reasonably regarded as the only source, but in isolated cases or groups of cases, the relation between the water supply, even if polluted, and the causation of the disease is not so certain. We must bear in mind that the typhoid germ has not been actually found in the polluted water. What is found is the colon bacillus which may or may not be derived from human excrement. That a well water, containing the colon bacillus, also harbors the typhoid germs is a mere conjecture which may or may not be true. We frequently find the colon bacillus in wells removed from any possible source of contamination with human excrement, and per contra, we frequently encounter cases of typhoid fever when the water supply is pure and above suspicion. While it is true that in some cases the relation between the privy, the well and the typhoid victim is direct and unmistakable it is not so in all cases,—and this has been a constant puzzle to the sanitarians. Of late the belief has been growing into a conviction that the common domestic fly is the most frequent source of typhoid fever in rural communities,—and indeed, it seems to be particularly well adapted to act as a carrier of typhoid germs. The theory of a polluted well presupposes, first, a sufficient amount of human excrement reasonable near the water supply; second, the excrement must be in a liquid form to soak through the ground; third, the ground must be permeable and the well shallow; and, finally, after all these conditions are present, we must assume that the typhoid germs which escaped the destructive process of natural filtration entered the well in such large numbers as not to be materially affected by the dilution with the water in the well and the additional water which is constantly flowing. On the other hand no such hardships are encountered by the typhoid germs when transmitted by flies. A small lump of excrement containing the typhoid germs is deposited on the surface, flies alight and load up with a few millions of them, and carry them directly into the milk, soup, or other food to be consumed by the victim. Here is a direct course which equals direct contact of healthy persons with the excrement of typhoid patients, a source of infection which is quite common but generally overlooked. It is thus seen that the suggestion that the flies are the source of typhoid in Newark is quite within the range of possibility, if not probability. From this standpoint, and from this standpoint alone, garbage and stable manure assume sanitary importance, because they breed flies. Otherwise, neither garbage nor manure nor any other waste, excepting human excrement, can have the slightest bearing on the causation of typhoid fever, for the simple reason that these things do not harbor the germs, much as they may be offensive to one's nostrils.

However, whether the typhoid fever in Newark is caused by flies or by polluted wells we cannot escape the conclusion that THE ONLY remedy is a sewerage system which would do away at once with the human excrement which alone is the possible source of infection. The learned secretary of the Newark Board of Health remarks in a recent statement that "the best possible sewer will not help those who persist in using polluted well water, or those who persistently neglect the simplest sanitary precautions in the kitchen and of garbage disposal."

Yes, but the "best possible sewer" will prevent the pollution of the well water.

Now, we are up against it. The construction of a sewerage system means expenditure of money, and any suggestion that carries with it an attack on the pocketbook, except the suggestion to purchase a new automobile, is immediately put down as coming from a crank or one who does not know whereof he speaks. The surest way to make oneself unpopular is to make suggestions which mean the raising of taxes, and the surest way to be popular is to put the community on the back and sing its virtues. Well, at the risk of still further increasing the growing unpopularity in my home city I am repeating the statement already made, namely, that Newark will never be rid of typhoid fever so long as it permits the present system of sewerage disposal.

Respectfully,
A. Robin.

Regular Meeting Of Council

The monthly meeting of Town Council on Monday night was a short session, there being no important business. All members were present and Mayor Hossinger presided.

Council will make a determined effort this week to collect the dog tax, which is due in September. The tax is 75 cents for males and $1 for females, and there is a provision in the ordinance which provides for a fine for the harboring of an unregistered dog. Treasurer Herdman reported that he had sent for the 1912 dog tags.

During the discussion over the dog tax Councilman Luton stated that it had been his experience that men who are perfectly truthful in regard to everything else, do not mind in the least lying about their dogs when it comes time to have them registered.

In case there should be reported a case of rabies in Newark, Mayor Hossinger was directed under such circumstances to see that the muzzle law is enforced. Council has never enforced this ordinance because of the fact that some members think it a hardship on dogs.

The report of the town treasurer showed the receipts with the balance in bank during August to be $7,870.49; the disbursements, $976.57, leaving a balance of $6,893.92.

A representative of the Rumsey Electric Company of Philadelphia, was before Council trying to sell the town some new light meters. The matter was left in the hands of the light committee, of which Councilman Wilson is chairman.

The New School Year

The public schools of the town opened last Monday with an enrollment of 411 pupils. Sixty-eight of these are in the High School, 15 of that number being credited to the Commercial department.

There are 18 members of the Senior Class, among the number being two boys in the regular course and two in the commercial. An interesting incident, apropos of the recent discussion regarding the place of Latin in the High School, is the fact that with Latin on the elective list, 14 pupils (out of 18) are enrolled in the Cicero class. Five boys who were in the Junior class last year have not returned, but will enter college this fall, a fact to be regretted, since with the incomplete preparation they cannot hope to compare favorably with those from other schools who have had the benefit of the entire course.

The conditions at the Grammar and Primary schools are somewhat crowded in several of the rooms, notably the first, third, fourth, seventh and eighth grades.

At State Farm And Experiment Station

Prof. Hayward has accepted an invitation to judge at the cattle show at Devon, September 19, 20 and 21. This show is somewhat unique, in that it is a social function and all the cattle entered for competition will have passed the tuberculin test.

Mr. R. F. Shannon, a prominent Jersey cattle breeder of Sewickley, Pa., was an interested visitor at the College Farm on Tuesday.

It is expected by the end of this week the peach crop at the College Farm will have been gathered. It has been much larger than anticipated and by its quality has attracted considerable attention. A number of baskets have been shipped by Newark and Wilmington people to distant friends, particularly in New England.

The farm has just sold a very choice Berkshire pig, which is to be shipped to Junior George Republic, in western Pennsylvania.

The farm has purchased two very choice registered Holstein cows from Mr. T. C. duPont, through his father, Mr. Biederman duPont. This purchase completes the cattle equipment for class room and experimental purposes.

At the State Fair next week the farm will show five breeds of cattle, five breeds of sheep, three of hogs, two breeds of horses. Prof. McCue of the Horticultural Department is planning quite an exhibit from the orchards and vineyards. Some of the choicest specimens of the various varieties of peaches, grapes and pears are in Wilmington and storage, to be taken to the fair. Prof. Grantham will show a variety of grains and forage crops, as well as charts, showing results of experimental work during the past five years.

Installing Government Standard Rods

The steeple of the Catholic Church was somewhat damaged by lightning on Sunday evening during the severe electrical storm that swept over Newark.

R. T. Edwards, the well known lightning rod constructor, is now engaged in installing regular government standard lightning rods on the church. They are the same kind used on the Washington Monument at the capital of the nation.

New Professor In Electrical Department

Prof. Thomas M. Roberts, who has charge of the Electrical Engineering Department of Delaware College, has been here for the past two weeks making renovations in the laboratory, preparatory for college work. Prof. Roberts is reported as a live wire and a maker of friends wherever he goes.

Mrs. Roberts, who came the first of the week, is an artist of recognized talent and is busy preparing some text-book work for the International Correspondence School of Scranton, Pa.

Their new home is being put in order on Prospect avenue.

The salaries of rural letter carriers on standard routes have been increased from $1,000 to $1,100 a year, this ruling affecting 30,000 men, with proportionate increase to carriers on shorter routes. The order will become effective on September 30, and applies to all the local carriers.

Pencader Republicans Name Strong Ticket

An interesting meeting was held by Pencader Republicans on Monday evening. Although the attendance was not large, there were more present than is usual at this time of the campaign.

John Davis of Coeh's Bridge was made chairman of the meeting, with Warren O. Armstrong as secretary. Mr. Davis stated the object of the meeting, vizing the selection of a strong ticket.

W. H. Evans, chairman of hundred committee, reported the action of joint meeting of Pencader and St. Georges hundreds on last Saturday, when it was agreed that the Levy Courtmen should go to St. Georges and the Senators to Pencader.

Z. T. Harris of Glasgow was then named as Pencader's choice for that office. Several present seconded the nomination of Mr. Harris and he was given the enthusiastic endorsement of all present. For Representative, Harry McCormick of near Iron Hill was named.

Without opposition, the other candidates named were Harry Russell for Assessor, Inspector for First District, John W. Powell; Inspector for Second District, Boyd McCoy.

Last Sunday was the thirteenth anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. W. J. Rowan of the First Presbyterian church, Newark.

The W. C. T. U. will hold their annual meeting for the election of officers, next Friday evening, at the home of Miss Martha Pennington.

Lightning Destroys Property

During the severe electric storm on Sunday night, lightning struck the wagon house on a farm tenanted by Joseph Pugh, and owned by the Evans' estate, which is located near Kemblesville. The building was burned to the ground the fire spreading to the dwelling house, which after hard work was saved although damaged. There were about 300 bushels of oats and a number of vehicles in the wagon house, which were destroyed.

A hay house containing 50 tons of hay, on the farm of Frederick Armstrong, near Fairhill, was set on fire by lightning and burned to the ground.

Marriage of Mr. Pence

Mr. Merville O. Pence, assistant agronomist at the Experiment Station, was married on Sept. 1 to Miss Ethel Lewis of Amboy, Ind. After a brief honeymoon in eastern cities Mr. and Mrs. Pence will return to Newark and take up their residence on West Main street. During the year of his presence among Newark people, Mr. Pence has won a host of friends in this vicinity who will unite in wishing the couple good luck and in welcoming the stranger from the Hoosier State.

Accident Near Dayetts

An automobile from Wilmington was found completely overturned on the road leading to Dargert's Mills, last Monday night. It is believed the car was struck by a second one in passing. The two occupants, Messrs Staats and Wilkinson, were taken to Dr. Peters at Christians for medical attention, one of them being quite seriously injured.

WESTERN AGRICULTURE--A COMPARISON WITH DELAWARE CONDITIONS

Prof. Grantham who recently returned from the West has at our request kindly given us the following interesting comparison between Delaware conditions and those in the West.

A vacation spent recently in one of the States of the Middle West brings to mind sharply some of the contrasts in methods of agriculture between that section and Delaware. The chief interest of the people of the Middle West is farming. If a man is not operating his own farm he is buying or selling land in the Canadian Northwest or the Panhandle of Texas. Surplus money is reinvested in land, preferably where prices are lower. Since mortgages are taxed two per cent the man with money to invest finds it to his advantage to buy land rather than to loan. However, in many sections land is not for sale. The people are contented, due to the fact that with good roads and consolidated schools the farmer could not better himself elsewhere in the way of rural advantages. The man who is investing in other states generally retains his Middle West farm. This is the part of the country spoken of by Dr. Wilkin of the Rural Church Commission as the section of the United States where there is little or no exodus of the population. It is also very near the center of the population of the United States.

In the section visited by the writer no land can be bought for less than $100 per acre; most farms are held for $125 to $175 per acre, regardless of location. Often land with no buildings and several miles from a railroad will sell for $150 per acre.

While there is less diversified farming in the Middle West there is a marked tendency to vary the number and kind of crops. The advent of the canary is now in introducing tomato and sweet corn culture. And, in localities suitable for orcharding, apple growing is commanding the interest of the more progressive farmers. The main crops, however, are included in the following rotation: Corn, oats, wheat and clover. On the black prairie soil, wheat is rarely grown. Until recently the corn was fed to cattle and hogs. A few years ago many farmers fed their entire corn crop to steers, putting them on the market in the late winter. Now all is changed; not one farmer in fifty attempts to feed cattle. Calves for feeding purposes are not produced locally and command such a high price that together with the price of corn the feeding operation becomes rarely speculative. Undoubtedly this accounts in no small measure for the high price of beefsteak. Hogs are the main money crop. Hog feeding is considered profitable when the price of corn bears to the price of pork the ratio of 10 to 1. That is, it will pay to feed 50 cent corn to 5 cent hogs. The proximity to the great packing houses in Chicago affords the highest prices for live stock. Hogs are always sold on foot and are sold any day in the year. The selling price of hogs on foot will often bring more net profit to the producer in that section than the Delaware farmer can get after dressing his pork.

The manner of handling hogs is entirely different from our practice in Delaware. There the animals are given a wide range on the clover fields and when the wheat or oats are harvested they are turned in the fields to gather the scattered grain. This means that the farms are better fenced in that section, in fact, they are made hog-tight. One never sees hogs confined in small pens for breeding or fattening purposes as in Delaware.

This year wheat was a failure in the Middle West. Continued rains last fall prevented sowing at the proper time and the unusually severe winter killed the grain. The corn crop is late but will yield near the average. Despite the fact that the Middle West grows the bulk of the corn crop, one does not see the size of stalk on ear that is commonly grown in New Castle county. The possibilities of a high yield per acre are greater in Delaware than in Indiana or Ohio. We have the advantage of greater rainfall during the months of July and August. One of the largest oat crops ever grown in the Middle West has just been harvested. It was not uncommon to find oats reaching to the shoulders of a tall man. Yields were running from 60 to 100 bushels per acre. The price, however, was in the other direction, ranging from 30 to 24 cents a bushel.

With the exception of live stock the prices for agricultural products are decidedly better in Delaware than in the Middle West. In July corn was selling in Newark for nearly a dollar, while in the grain growing centers it was bringing about 70 cents. Generally prices for grain, corn, oats and wheat are from 15 to 25 cents per bushel higher in Delaware than in the corn belt states.

In regard to the management of the soil the Middle West farmer is much behind the Delaware farmer. Heretofore he has had to pay but little attention to the question of soil fertility, but recent years are showing the effects of long continued cropping of the land to grain. Clover is becoming more and more difficult to grow. When clover fails the land is put back to grain again, thus further depleting the soil. Sowing clover with wheat is practically the only method followed in getting a stand of grass. Very few supplementary legumes, such as vetch, cowpeas and soy beans are grown. Crimson clover is not a success on account of the severity of the winters. There is a great lack of elasticity in crop management which must be overcome if the soil is to retain its productivity.

Fertilizers are but little used, generally on the wheat crop. There are tens of thousands of acres where fertilizers have never been used. Bone meal is preferred as form of fertilizer. The corn crop receives what manure is made on the farm but no commercial fertilizer. Lime is rarely used except for an occasional patch of alfalfa. It is interesting to note that the price of commercial fertilizers is from 20 to 25 per cent higher in the middle states than in Delaware.

The corn belt farmer might learn much from the Delaware farmer who in turn might with profit put to practice some of the agricultural methods of the Middle West. Above all one is impressed by the abiding faith of the westerner in the soil, and this is reflected in the character of the rural institutions, the roads, the schools and churches. The corn farmer has a vision of the possibilities of the newer agriculture which will in time bring him to the realization of the best in country life.

EDUCATIONAL DISCUSSION

WHY ARE WOMEN DEBARRED FROM SCHOOL MANAGEMENT PERTINENT QUESTION FROM THE FARM

Editor Newark Post, Dear Sir: I have hesitated thus long to express any views of mine in reply to the query of "A Parent" in your issue of July 24th. The language and ideas of those who entered into the discussion seemed to range so far above my homely phrases, yet I now feel impelled to express some of the sentiments of the average farm-wife. Most women of the class for which I am writing appreciate well the blessings that go hand in hand with their work and know that by performing philosophically their tasks, they will, in all probability, give as much to the world and receive as much in return as their activities would bring them elsewhere.

While the woman thus living may feel at times the need of stimulus, she usually views the matter sanely and realizes that her work may be more varied and satisfying than it would be were she a housekeeper in town or city. Is there a lack of social life? That is a matter of individual opinion dependent upon the quality of one's desires and how much one may rely upon oneself, the latter condition largely a matter of proper education.

Parents on the farm today are aloof to the call of the young, and there is, in the average rural district, wholesome social life, with restrictions that may be termed blessings.

Is there poverty? Assuredly, — as elsewhere, but those who are so very poor on farms might dwell in city slums. Which is preferable? As I think of my farm neighbors I know that, if physically adapted to the work, they are, individually and collectively, living as well-ordered and contented lives as they would be living in other walks of life. When the day's work is done we are not more weary than millions of other working women, and though we may not have much time for culture, it is probable that it would not be otherwise with us elsewhere and our bit of leisure time is very apt to be quiet. When we review our day, he it not a wonderful one? It is not the life of a city dweller, but it is not the life of a man who would yearn, if we did not have them?

We have had the joy of animal affection, the lessons of seed time and harvest, of self-discipline strengthened by the vagaries of the seasons, and all the world of nature. At last, when the shadows fall, we may feel, in common with all the world, the charm of the evening lamp and it is nowhere such a factor, an almost animate thing, as it is in the country home.

We have been obliged to follow quite closely nature's laws, and they have led us, unconsciously, along the line of dietetics and hygiene, and we have builded better than we knew.

More readily than any woman in the world can the farm woman absorb knowledge, for she is daily in an open school, just as her child has unconsciously imbibed kindergarten lore.

Granting all these statements I have made, why is it that there is so much spoken and written nowadays of the condition of women on farms, pity for her loneliness and sadness for the absence of color in her life and well intentioned suggestions for the improvement of her surroundings and condition.

We hear that there is a "greater percentage of insanity among farm women," of the "unwillingness of farm mothers for their daughters to marry farmers," and "rebellion of farmers' wives against the demands of farm laborers."

On the other hand, we learn that "the farmer is yearly more prosperous," that his is "the most independent life a man can lead," and that "the farmer has brighter prospects and more respect than in the history of agriculture."

The question comes quickly to our minds: "If the farmer is so fortunately cared, why is his wife such an unfortunate mortal?"

There are two answers. First, the true feeling of the average farmer's wife is not as represented by the phrases quoted above. They are ideas that took root in the minds of members of country life communities.

In the second place, the criticism of feeling that is among farm wives is simply the surmount of a long continued course of rural schools, which have been conducted all over the country.

they have not educated the farm boy and girl to come into their own; but, through their methods and lack of the proper higher courses have forced those children into our towns or have left them on the farms half trained and consequently dissatisfied.

Which brings me, Mr. Editor, to my excuse for writing. In the letter of "A Parent," the writer stated that his boy lived upon a farm and asked what course of study Mr. Washburn would map out for this boy who attends the rural schools, Newark High School and then enters college. In a later issue you asked for a general discussion of the matter, and in the splendid articles thus far submitted there is scarcely any mention of the rural school, and it does seem to me that that part of that boy's life and of the country girl's life is the most vital. If that be attended to in a proper way, we shall not be so troubled about the courses he takes in high school and college. He will not care a whit for the diploma, but will map out his course true to his nature.

In my criticism I desire to give full credit to our county superintendents, Board of Education and district school teachers. They are conscientious, tried and true. As Mrs. Dawson says, the State Board of Education will give us what we want, but it is not very likely that they will realize what we want until we tell them. It is the country people who are to blame and when they feel that fact and get to work they will get what they want. The agricultural courses in our college are doing wonderful work, but it is a bad business as well as a bad matrimonial policy to train the boys to like farming and take it for granted that the girls will fall contentedly into line. The college agricultural courses begin the work too late in life and the course is optional, while the child who is trained from the beginning of his school years has such great advantage. The young men of the college are too often obliged to become bread winners, and these courses without previous training is like teaching a horse his paces without previously accustoming him to the harness. We of the farm know that is not "horse sense." In my own school district it would be rather sad, indeed, to make a canvass and discover how many young men and women have gone to towns and cities to school or to work. The farm mother sees her children leave her because she is so situated as to schools. If we want to keep the farmer's wife and his children contented there must be a system of rural schools that shall supply to country children all educational advantages that are offered to town children, with the long walks in all kinds of weather eliminated and courses added that will tend to train the child to know how to work on a farm and to see beauty in such work. The boys and girls must both be trained, and the woman of education is the woman who will adapt herself to and better conditions anywhere.

We dread to see our little tot of six years trudge two and one-half miles to a school, detained all day, and return weary at night. Then it is very hard when the young son finds he has outgrown the district school and you reflect that he is not to be blamed for growing away from the farm if he enters the high school and hears no more of it. Then the daughter enters the high school, and practical girl that she is, finds fascination in the commercial course, and is being rapidly trained for work in some man's office.

We want our country youth to enter their work of life with a full knowledge of the value of the life, of intelligent methods of work and of supervision. There will be a wholesome sifting of false impressions of the greater advantages of city life—they will see each life in its true relation and make their choices sanely.

The farmers and their wives are the true reformers of the present rural educational system—and the farm woman who allies herself with such a movement as this is doing great things for herself and the world. She has lived on life, learned its lessons, knows the methods and while she needs the help of the world of men and women trained in educational methods, she needs to speak strongly for the rural schools which have been so conducted all over the country.

Four questions I should like to ask: Why is there not a farm woman on the State Board of Education? Why is there not a farm woman on the board of trustees of every district school? Why is not every county superintendent permitted an intelligent, educated assistant in the person of a farm woman?

Why can we not have a training course for our district school teachers?

If we could have these things other gains would follow closely and the indirect influence of the woman on the farm would be felt all along the line.

A Plain Farm Wife.

BAPTIST YEARLY MEETING AT ROCK SPRINGS

The Old School Baptist Church of Rock Springs, Pa., held a yearly meeting on the 24th and 25th of August. The meeting house is about five miles from the Conowingo bridge and is built of stone. It has been kept in good repair although it was erected more than one hundred years ago. The country about this meeting house can hardly be surpassed in the eastern states. The rolling hills covered with fine crops, the well proportioned houses mostly built from fifty to a hundred years ago, surrounded by grand old shade trees all kept in good repair, with bits of woods here and there, make country life and homes a reality indeed. Many of the children and grandchildren are still on these old homesteads; others came back at the times of the two days meetings of the church to worship the God of their fathers in this quiet place.

"A little spot enclosed by grace Out of the world's wild wilderness." Elder Eubanks of Newark is the pastor. Joshua T. Rowe and A. B. Frances were visiting ministers. The special blessings of the Lord seem to rest on some of these quiet country churches.

Let us aim to put more justice into our laws, more ethics into politics, love into religion and plant industrial homes upon our graves.

"Common people" is an expression destined soon to read "the people." In fact, labor today can hardly be distinguished from capital on Sunday—especially is this true with their daughters when seen in the choir.

Where There Are Little People to Sew For

The Singer Sewing Machine means all the difference between needle-and-thread drudgery and the most fascinating employment any home-loving woman can engage in.

Between the peerless Singer and the best of the department-store machines there is no more real resemblance than between fine linen and burlap.

Moreover the

SEPTEMBER 4, 1912

We wish to call attention to the article on the Sewer Question in this issue by Dr. Robin, of Wilmington. Here is a discussion by an authority—a recognized specialist in this line of scientific investigation—at least in scientific circles.

Knowing the man as we do, and realizing the benefits of his experience gained at the last session, we cannot urge too strongly his candidacy for the Senate. Send that old soldier back to the Senate.

POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY IN PRACTICE

Without laying any claim to political wisdom, we believe we can put this down as an axiom that can well be observed—that no self-appointed leader can expect the success of his candidate if he persists in ruling out of party councils, those who made him politically possible.

PENCADER TICKET

To be the choice of one's party as representative in the halls of legislation is indeed the expression of no small confidence. When this choice is the result of a unanimous opinion of that party, coming without effort or solicitation, it represents an honor of no mean proportions.

No man of political ambitions can afford to ignore those of his party who have no personally selfish interests.

No candidate should allow himself to be sacrificed in order to please the narrow whim of a political climber.

Rulings that men be forced from party councils and participation in campaigns in punishment for expression of an honest opinion is a relic of a system fast falling in ill-repute. It may take repeated defeats to impress this forcibly, but thanks to an aroused public opinion, the end is near.

I have not a wit more patient with a man who attempts to rule out of the party, an honest, though different opinion, than I have of a sore-head that would sooner see the defeat of his party than the defeat of his individual opinion or ambition.

PEOPLES' COLUMN

CANDIDATE COOCH STATES HIS POSITION ON SEWER

Newark, Del., Sept. 2, 1912. Editor of The Post, Dear Sir: In your issue of last week you say that every candidate for the Legislature should declare himself on the sewer question. I thought my position was so well known by the citizens of Newark that it would not be necessary for me to say anything more than I have. I was, as you know, one of a committee of ten appointed by Mr. J. P. Wright, president of Council, and had the honor to be its chairman.

Owing to the delay in getting plans and specifications the session of the Legislature was in its closing hours when a bill was introduced to provide for bonding and sewerage of the town. This bill hastily drawn was not satisfactory to many of the citizens, and had it passed would have been defeated at the election, which it provided to be held. An effort was made to have it amended and a large delegation of citizens went before the proper committee, and after much trouble got a hearing. This delegation had amendments prepared which would have eliminated the objectionable features of the bill, but owing to the press of other business could do nothing. I endorse a letter from Senator Miller which shows the difficulty in getting a satisfactory measure passed in the rush and hurry of the closing hours of the session.

COMRADE BUCKINGHAM

CANDIDATE FOR SENATE

We note with pleasure that our friend, Representative R. G. Buckingham, is candidate for nomination as Senator from up there in Mill Creek. That this should be is not surprising, for the old G. A. R. hero is no man's man. If he succeeds, and we hope he will, he will represent no man, but his party. As Representative at the last session of the Legislature, he was always the hero of the hour. Genial, good-natured, always politically wise, he was at the same time independent, a strong fighter with an eye for the good of old Mill Creek. He knows the needs of the folk up there and with him in the Senate, every farmer can feel satisfied that their interests are being carefully guarded and strongly advanced when opportunity affords.

At Dover he has made many friends among those down-State Representatives. His spirit of fair play, his fight at political knavery make him an exceptionally strong man for plain, ordinary citizens.

stacles arose which prevented our doing so, and I desired to advise you that a real effort had been made, as I told you in Dover that such would be done, and I did not wish you to think that the matter had been neglected. Personally, I regret that you bills did not pass, but under the circumstances I cannot see that anything more could have been done.

Very truly yours, Chas. R. Miller.

My suggestion would be, let Council appoint a committee of say three to investigate the conditions and methods by which other towns have sewerage, then have a bill prepared and introduced in the Legislature early in the session, and there is no doubt but Newark will get what it wants.

In conclusion I would say that when I was solicited to be a candidate it was with the distinct understanding on my part that I would not pledge myself to any nominee that would be likely to come before the Legislature, and that if elected, I should be free to use my best judgment on all questions, but this being a local matter I have made it an exception.

Yours respectfully, J. Wilkins Cooch.

Newark Wins On Labor Day—Gains Second Place

For the first time in many weeks the Newark Tri-County League team is now in second place. The club ousted Havre de Grace from that position on Monday by defeating them two games. Port Deposit, however, split even with Elkton and still holds first place by a small margin. Both Oxford and Aberdeen won double headers on Monday and are now close up with the leaders. The standing of the clubs at this time is as follows:

Table with 3 columns: Team, W, L, Pct. Port Deposit 16 8 .667, Newark 14 9 .609, Havre de Grace 14 10 .583, Oxford 13 10 .565, Aberdeen 13 11 .542, Elkton 11 13 .458, Elk Mills 7 16 .304, Northeast 5 18 .217.

Newark's only chance of winning out is to win all the remaining games and Port Deposit to lose two. The locals have four more scheduled games and one postponed game with Oxford. The work of the Oxford club has been one of the sensations of the league during the past two months and that team is now lunched with Havre de Grace, Newark and Aberdeen.

Newark got the jump on Havre de Grace on the latter's grounds on Monday by winning the morning game with Schweitzer, their star twirler, in the box. Geoghegan outpitched the Havre de Grace terror, allowing Newark to win 5 to 2. With this game on ice and Schweitzer out of the way it was easy sailing in the afternoon. "Vic" Willis was in the box, but after Newark had pounded Nichols all over the lot, Willis let up and the game ended with the score 11 to 6. Newark got twenty hits off Nichols and could probably have gotten more had they needed the runs.

The Delaware State Fair

The Delaware State Fair, which opens at Wawaset Park, Wilmington, next Tuesday, to continue for four days, September 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th, is certain to be the biggest event of the kind in the history of the State, or of the Peninsula.
Arrangements completed to date make this absolutely certain. The only thing that can seriously interfere is rain, and the fair management is optimistic enough not to worry over that possibility.

Seed Wheat For Farmers

The Agronomy Department of Delaware College desires to have tested in various localities of the State, a few varieties of wheat which have been found to yield exceptionally well on the experiment farm during the past five years.
As an inducement to farmers to take up the work, the station will furnish, free of charge, sufficient seed wheat of two or three selected varieties to sow one-half acre of each. It is desired to secure ten co-operators in each county. The conditions under which the tests are to be made and further information may be secured by writing Prof. A. E. Grantham, Newark, Del.

Leave For Normal

Miss Helen Steel and Anna Setley, left Monday for West Chester, where they are enrolled at the State Normal school.
In spite of the increased accommodations made at the West Chester school, and the building of Wayne Hall to furnish dormitories for the boys, the buildings are reported inadequate for the increased number of students enrolled on Monday. Thirty or more girls will have to seek lodgings in town boarding houses. It is likely that nearly 1,000 boys and girls will be in the school for this term.

PENN-MAR LEAGUE

The Newark Field Club of the Penn-Mar League lost an excellent opportunity last Saturday to tie Iron Hill in the pennant race, by failing to back up Southpaw Hogan, who pitched a crack game. He allowed only four hits and struck out sixteen, but the fielding back of him was so miserable that Iron Hill won 8 to 2.

A SKETCH OF EVERYTOWN

Everytown has twenty-five per cent. more population than the latest census indicates. In Everytown the high cost of living is most acutely felt...

In Everytown the hotels and streets are a perfect disgrace. The city administrators are a "bunch of clams" Everytown never gets to see a good play...

Everytown is the worst place on earth for gossip. It is infested with a nest of old sisters whose sole business it is to pick to pieces the reputations of honest people...

The society set of Everytown would be ludicrous if it were not so pathetic. Those who assume social prominence are new-riches who do not know how to conduct themselves at a dinner or reception...

The servant problem is simply awful in Everytown. Other municipalities may think they have trouble with hired help, but they don't really know what vexation is.

lawyers and doctors. The newly-graduated attorney or physician had best avoid that town as the plague.

Real estate in Everytown is being held for twice its value. The natural growth of the town has enhanced the value of the property for a few old skin-flints who have lived there always and who have sold off enough to live on and are now holding the balance at an extortionate figure.

If Everytown ever expects to amount to anything it will have to poison the old fossils who are now in control and who don't know what the word progress means. And this will be as true fifty years hence as it is today.

First Maryland Regiment High Score at Saunderson's Range

The First Maryland Regiment, of which Company E of Elkton is one of the commands, won the State match at Saunderson's range, Elenburg, last Wednesday, by a score of 1,665 to the Fifth Regiment's 1,567 and the Fourth's 1,507.

Fire Near Richardsmere

Elmer Johnson, one of the noted Johnson brothers, of the "Tiek Ridge" section of Cecil, near Rising Sun, one of whom, Scott, is serving a term of 18 years in the Maryland penitentiary for the murder of James McAlister, near Rowlandville in May, 1909, is thought to have perished in the fire that destroyed the barn of John Taylor, on the old Ewing farm, near Richardsmere, last January.

lives at Craigtown, near Port Deposit, has disappeared. Just prior to the trial of his brother, Scott, at Elkton, Elmer and another brother were arrested in Newark for pulling a "gun" on a barber. Elmer slipped the weapon into his brother's pocket and got off lightly at the magistrate's hearing.

Sunrise

I stood upon the hills, when heaven's wide arch Was glorious with the sun's returning march. And woods were brightened, and soft gales Went forth to kiss the sun-clad vales.

The clouds were far beneath me; bathed in light, They gathered midway round the wooded height. And in their faded glory, shone Like hosts in battle overthrown, As many a pinnacle, with shifting glance,

Through the gray mist thrust up its shattered lance And, rocking on the cliff was left The dark pine blasted, bare, and cleft.

The veil of cloud was lifted and below Glowed the rich valley, and the river's flow Was darkened by the forest's shade Or glistened in the white cascade; Where upward, in the mellow blush of day,

The noisy bittern wheeled his spiral way. I heard the distant waters dash. I saw the current whirl and dash— And, richly by the blue lake's silver beach,

The woods were bending with a silent reach. Then o'er the vale, with gentle swell, The music of the village bell Came sweetly to the echo-giving hills;

And the wild horn, whose voice the woodland fills, Was ringing to the merry shout, That faint and far the glen sent out Where, answering to the sudden shot, thin smoke, Through thick-leaved branches, from the dingle broke.

If thou art worn and hard beset With sorrows, that thou wouldst forget. If thou wouldst read a lesson, that will keep Thy heart from fainting and the soul from sleep. Go to the woods and hills!—no tears Dim the sweet look that Nature wears.

—Longfellow.

The peach crop at the college farm has exceeded all expectations. Fully 1200 baskets of the fruit will have been sold by the close of the season. The size, flavor, coloring, etc., is exceptional.

Joseph Thomas, of the Jacob Thomas Company, wall paper manufacturers started on his annual New England trip on Monday. Mr. Thomas will be gone five or six weeks and will travel the down-east states in the interest of the local company.

Squibs

We do not think it pertinent to the issue, but since Willard Saulsbury tells where Senator Miller, Republican candidate for governor, got his money, will some one tell us where Mr. Saulsbury got his?

"I know well the common cause by which objections to such facilities of so-called education are met by the men who have been ruined by them—the common plea that anything does to exercise the mind upon. It is an utterly false one. The human soul in youth, is not a machine of which you can polish the cogs with any help or brick-dust near at hand; and, having got it into working order, and good, empty, and oiled serviceableness, start your immortal locomotive at twenty-five years old, express from the Strait Gate, on the Narrow Road."—Ruskin.

O-Cedar Polish

A woman can live with a broom in her hand and still not be a good housekeeper. The dust settling on the furniture and window sills has always been a trying problem to the dainty housewife who wants things spick and span. Not only that but dust is the greatest germ carrier. Living on our dusty streets, this has become a serious problem. You all know how you swept yesterday and company came to-day and there you could write your name on the furniture.

And now here comes a remedy O-CEDAR

Moisten a piece of cheese cloth and wipe off the furniture and the dust is absorbed. Nor does it injure the polish on the piano—it is a polish as well, absolutely GUARANTEED not to injure the highest mahogany finish.

It is in fact a wonder for it not only is a dust killer but a polish and germ killer. This may sound strange but a trial will convince the most particular.

For floors, an O-Cedar DUSTLESS MOP comes that beats electricity—it gives a tone to the floor like a new waxing—even on plain stained and varnished floors.

Again—for cleaning and polishing automobiles—it comes highly recommended.

Try it out—it's not expensive and a labor saver.

AN ESTIMATE OF THE SCHOOL TEACHER
 A school teacher is a person who teaches things to the people when they are young.
 The teacher comes to school at 8.30 o'clock, and when she has gotten enough children for a mess in her room, she teaches them reading, writing, geography, grammar, arithmetic, music, drawing, cooking, board sawing, crocheting, deep breathing, bird calls, scientific eating, patriotism, plain and fancy knitting, dressmaking, and other sciences too numerous to mention.
 When school is out she stays behind with five or six of her worst scholars and tries to save the state a job of retraining them later on. After that she hurries home to make herself a new dress and snatch a hasty supper before going back to attend a lecture by an imported specialist on the history of tribal law in Patagonia, which the superintendent thinks may give her some information which may be useful in her school work some day. A great many teachers roam the country preying on school teachers and some of them are very cruel, talking to them so long that the poor things have to sit up till morning, when they get home, to get their daily test papers corrected.
 School teachers' salaries range from $20 a month up—but not far enough up to make them dizzy. On her salary the teacher must dress nicely, buy herself things for her work which the city is too poor to get on to twenty-nine lectures and exercises a year, buy helpful books on pedagogy, pay her way to district assembly and state institutes, and away herself during three months' vacation which her salary does not pay for. In addition the teacher is supposed to board away some of her money, so that when she becomes fat and cross she can get out of the city or thereabouts on an auto and buy a new dress after on her income—

County Fair Exhibits.
 One phase of the good work being done by the experimental station at Delaware College is the sending of exhibits to the county fairs on the peninsula. They show that real work is being done. The Delaware College station has forwarded a carload of hogs and cattle for exhibition purposes at the Easton fair.
 The activity of Delaware College in this direction is certain to make a favorable impression on the farmers and one result should be to attract students from all parts of the peninsula to the institution at Newark, especially students who desire to take the agricultural course.
 Teaching by demonstration and actual results is the best kind of teaching and that is what is accomplished by these exhibits at the fairs. This fact was impressed upon visitors at the fair in this city when there were some fine exhibits from the farm of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in Sussex county, which showed what could be done on land originally considered poor, but was in fact land that needed only skillful cultivation.
 If Delaware is rich agriculturally, think of how much richer it is possible for our State to become with the application of proper methods of cultivation, even to poor land.

Rural Schools Have Champion
 The election of Edward T. Fairchild to the position of president of the National Education Association is a promising move for the rural schools. Mr. Fairchild is most closely identified with the public school system of the country, and has shown in his official career special interest in the rural schools. He is serving his third term as State Superintendent of Public Instruction of Kansas, and enjoys the distinction of being the only occupant of that office chosen for the third term.
 Mr. Fairchild was born in Dayton, Ohio, October 30, 1854, and educated at Ohio Wesleyan and Western Universities (the latter and Western University) of this national organization of teachers is an act which honors both him and the association.

 In counting your votes, put the opponents in red ink, but keep yours in your head. Don't put them down. Don't try to contradict the claims of the enemy. Victory is always stronger when it comes from the lips of the defeated.
 The question of a sewer system in Newark will play a part in choosing the next United States Senator from Delaware.

What "Bell System" Means
 It is the purpose of the Bell System to furnish through its associated companies a telephone service that is instantaneous, thoroughly efficient and, above all, universal in scope—a nationwide service.
 The Bell System is so constructed and organized that each subscriber in every community—and there are 70,000 of these Bell communities—may readily talk to every other subscriber within the range of the telephone voice.
 This mighty system embracing over 6,700,000 telephones (one to every fourteen persons in this country) and united by over 13,000,000 miles of wire, is at the command of every subscriber every hour of the twenty-four. Over 128,000 well-trained and courteous employees are handling 24,000,000 messages a day—the telephone talks of the American people.
 Each subscriber, here or in any other city and town, enjoys all the benefits of this universal and far-reaching system. A Bell subscriber in the smallest hamlet has the same facilities as the telephone user in the metropolis—the same equipment and the same ability to talk at will across the town or across the state.

Cecil County Letter

John Moore, 82 years old, was knocked down by a runaway team near his home, at Elk Mills, one day last week and seriously injured.

The rail, road bird and squirrel shooting season opened in Cecil on Monday. There is an abundant crop of wild oats in the marshes and with favorable tides gunners expect good sport.

In a collision one day last week between a runaway team owned by Ernest Biles of Providence, and a buggy in which Mrs. George Weaver and children were riding, near Leslie, the latter were thrown out and one of the children was injured severely.

Jesse Wooleyhan of the Earleville section, one day last week shot a bald eagle measuring seven feet from tip to tip of wings, that had been preying upon his chickens.

Captain Carroll Edgar and Corporal Leroy Sykes of Company E of Elkton, First Regiment, M. N. R., secured places on the State Rifle team which will compete in the coming inter-state tournament at Sea Girt, N. J.

A wharf is in course of erection at Chesapeake Haven, the proposed new resort at Grove Point, Elk River.

Cecil schools reopened on Monday after the summer vacation, which began on June 1.

Hog cholera is prevalent in the Fifth district and a number of cases have proved fatal.

Evans Dunbar and wife, formerly Miss Dorothy Garrett of Childs, are occupying their newly completed residence on upper North street, Elkton.

Prof. Carroll Edgar, for several years past instructor in manual training in the Elkton High School, who recently resigned, has accepted a like position in Baltimore at an increased salary.

The State Road Commission has grouped the Maryland counties into divisions for the better supervision of work. Cecil, Kent and Queen Anne's form one of the Eastern Shore divisions, with Engineer Edwin Friese of Queen Anne's in charge.

Charles E. Larzalere, a well known bricklayer of Elkton, has rented the Felton Hotel, near the railroad station, and will shortly open it to patrons. The hotel is quite a roomy brick structure built in 1862. The late O. P. Clemson was one of its most successful managers in the old "license" times.

Robert Donnelly has finished repairing the Gilpin building at North and High streets, Elkton, which contains the postoffice, Wilson's barber shop, Giles' banquet hall and the rooms of Union Lodge, A. F. and A. M.

The late Jacob S. Snyder of Kembleville left his $20,000 estate to his widow for life, and after her death it will pass to his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Ogden, of Philadelphia.

Miss May Terhune left her home in North East early last week for Seattle, Washington, where she will be met by her future husband, Mr. Colman Day, formerly of North East, who is now engaged in the lumber business in Prescott, Oregon, where their marriage is set for September 14.

Chester W. Mews of Mews Bros., the well known threshing machine operators of the Glasgow section, and two women friends had a close call one night last week when his automobile was struck and demolished by an east-bound express at the Fourteenth street crossing of the B. & O. R. R. in Chester, Pa. The occupants of the car managed to leap from it in time to escape injury.

Two Italians were lodged in Elkton jail on Thursday by Sheriff Perkins, charged with drawing pistols on colored hands employed with them on road work in progress near the town. The negroes hid in nearby cornfields and at night came to Elkton and swore out warrants for the Italians who had threatened them.

The launch "Ethel," owned by Chas. Harvey of North East, sank at her wharf in that town one morning last week shortly after Rev. W. H. Briggs and members of Zion and Calvert M. E. Churches had landed on their return from Belterton. The launch had run out of gasoline before reaching Turkey Point on her return trip and two of the party went in a rowboat for a fresh supply. During their absence the water became quite rough and the women in the party were greatly alarmed. The party should have reached North East before midnight but did not arrive until about 4 o'clock the next morning.

While at work on a pole in West Elkton one day last week Edgar Plummer, a lineman, employed by the Home Electric Light and Power Company, was shocked by a live wire and fell twenty feet to the ground. He was severely shocked and jarred, but as his belt had been holding him upright he fell on his feet and thus escaped serious injury.

The Progressives or "Bull Moosers" of the Eastern Shore have called a convention at Easton for tomorrow (Thursday) to nominate a candidate for Congress. Hon. J. H. Covington, the Democratic candidate, has been thus far unopposed. The Rooseveltites do not expect to win the seat but they think a nominee for Congress will swell their vote in the district and State for their electoral ticket. The matter of separate electors is to be decided this week by the reading of the Republican State Convention to name out and out Taft electors. Those chosen after the May primaries, who favor Roosevelt, are expected to resign.

The Cecil County Commissioners and Road Engineer Richards on Thursday inspected the bridge over the Big Elk, near Cowantown, recently damaged by floods. The structure will likely be repaired shortly.

Emerson R. Crothers of Elkton, Harvey H. Mackey of the Fourth district, and William M. Pogue of Rising Sun are the Cecil members of the advisory committee of 100 members selected by the Democratic State Central Committee to manage the Wilson and Marshall campaign in Maryland. Local district committees have been named to organize campaign clubs in Cecil. For the Fourth district Heister Hess of Fair Hill and Wilmer D. Thompson of Providence have been chosen.

Cecil marksmen made a fine showing in the second annual tournament of the Maryland State Sportsmen's Association, held at Prospect Park, Baltimore, on Wednesday and Thursday. The first team of the Rising Sun Gun Club was second in the team race on Wednesday with a score of 132 out of 150 targets, and the club's second team was third with a score of 129. J. W. Ewing of the club in the amateur contest, broke 142 out of 150. On Thursday Ewing won the State individual amateur championship with a general average for the two days of 277 out of 300. He won besides the special prize for the winner of the event, an elegant gold medal with diamond setting.

The bulk of the stock of the proposed Elkton Banking and Trust Company, chartered by the Legislature of 1910, has been subscribed and the concern will shortly start business. Its promoters are greatly encouraged by the marked success of the Newark Bank and Trust Company and are confident that a profitable field lies open in Cecil. The stock could have readily been disposed of to a limited number of investors but it was deemed preferable to have it widely distributed. An organization will be shortly effected. The capital will be placed at $50,000 divided into 1,000 shares. Many business men and other residents of Elkton have taken stock in the concern, which will be quartered in a new building to be erected on the site of the old McCullough office building on North street, recently sold to the company by Manly Drennen.

Harry Thayer, employed at the Deibert barge building plant at Chesapeake City, is laid up with a fractured shoulder blade and two broken ribs caused by a fall of twenty feet from a scaffold while at work.
