Blue Hens Meet Drexel Tomorrow

Gift Provided By Unnamed Trustee To Construct Two New Buildings Planned Project To Include New Powerhouse, Auxiliary Building To Quarter Maintenance Department

A gift in excess of $150,000 by an unnamed trustee to provide a new powerhouse and maintenance building was announced last week by H. Rodney Sharp, chairman of the committee on grounds and buildings of the university.

The project, which has been approved by the Board of Trustees, will include a new building to house the power machinery and boilers now used by the university, as well as an auxiliary building to house the maintenance department. The new units will replace the outmoded sheet steel structure built in 1925. South Hall, which is located behind Wolf Hall, now being used as a storeroom, will be torn down.

Plans

Preliminary plans are now being drawn for the project, and are expected to be completed before the end of the month. The new units will conform with the other buildings on the campus in respect to architectural design and proportion.

It is hoped to have bids returned in January with construction scheduled to start early next year. The new buildings will be built on the site of the present powerhouse on the east border of the middle campus opposite the Memorial Library. Previous plans had provided for a new location of the units at the upper end of the men's campus; however, this plan was discarded because of its prohibitive cost.

Dormitory

It was also learned from an official source that another gift will make erection of a new dormitory for men possible soon. The dormitory, according to a model of "The Greater University of Delaware," will be of Georgian colonial architecture, exact in design as Harter Hall, present dormitory for men. It will be situated near the intersection of Newark's Main Street and South College Avenue, facing Harter Hall.

Rush Week Under Way; Fraternity House Parties Sat.

Rush Week at the University of Delaware opened last Monday noon when the five Greek letter fraternities opened their doors and displayed their wares to the Freshman class. Rush Week will continue until Monday at 12:30, when a "silent period" will follow until the list of pledges is published by Dean Dutton, chairman of the faculty committee on fraternities.

High spots at the fraternities this week have been the social smokers. Sigma Nu and Sigma Tau Phi held their smokers on Monday and Wednesday nights while Theta Chi, Kappa Alpha, and Sigma Phi Epsilon held theirs on Tuesday and Thursday nights. Entertainment at the smokers has featured magicians, wrestlers, movies, and informal lectures.

Tomorrow night will climax the social activities when the Rush Week houseparties are held. Dr. and Mrs. Francis H. Squire, and Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Caldwell will be chaperones for the Sigma Nu house party. At the Theta Chi House, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Shield and Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kadow will be in attendance. At Sigma Phi Epsilon, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Lawrence will chaperone, while at Kappa Alpha, Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Eastman and Dr. and Mrs. Carl J. Rees will do honors. The chaperones at Sigma Tau Phi will be Mr. and Mrs. John A. Bishop and Mr. and Mrs. Ewing.

Rush Week is under the general direction of the Interfraternity council. The council is composed of the presidents of the five fraternities.

Dr. Ezra Crooks, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Preparedness institutes student meetings.

Faculty Committee On Preparedness Announces Plans

Dr. E. B. Crooks, chairman of the Faculty Committee on National Preparedness, today announced a program of student meetings for the discussion of national preparedness. "The Committee, which was authorized by the faculty and appointed by the president last week, is to serve as a clearing house for all efforts to further preparedness made by the faculty in cooperation with the federal government," said Dr. Crooks.

Meetings

To accomplish this purpose, the committee has planned meetings of the University at such times as college hour to hear speakers on national preparedness and also smaller meetings sponsored by such organizations as the Athenaeon Society on the men's campus, and the Forum on the Women's to discuss the same subject. By these meetings, Dr. Crooks hopes to create in the students the understanding of what is necessary for national preparedness.

Athenaeon

The first of these smaller meetings will be held in the Lounge of Old College at 4:15 on Thursday, November 7. It will be sponsored by the Athenaeon Society and will be open to all students who wish to attend.

The committee, which includes Dr. E. B. Crooks, chairman; Dr. T. A. Baker, secretary; Dr. N. B. Allen, Dr. Quaesita Drake; and Dr. K. W. Oberlin, meets once a week in the conference room of University Hall. It is a permanent committee appointed yearly. The committee will function as long as its work is needed, that is, for the duration of the war emergency.

Social Calendar

Review Broadcast To Cover E52 Play, Rush Week, Comedy

Frank Clendaniel, president of the Interfraternity Council, will be the guest of the Review Broadcast tonight at 7:15 over station WILM. He will be interviewed by Joe First, co-producer of the program, on topics relating to Delaware College fraternities, their membership and social activities. Clendaniel will briefly discourse on the events and "goings on" during Rush Week and will explain the values of smokers and fraternity house parties.

Excerpts from "Love's Old Sweet Song," the E 52 Players' initial presentation, will be broadcast on College Color, as the weekly program is again to be called. Several members of the cast, including Edith Counahan and Sol Markowitz, will be on hand to portray their respective parts in the preview.

A comedy skit entitled "Tom Jones," the all-American Freshie, will highlight the end of the fifteen minute Review program. This satirical farce, based on Frank Merriwell, renowned fiction and comic strip character, was written by the versatile Eddy Golin. It features the antics and predicaments of a typical green freshman.

It has been announced that on next Friday's program, Walt Smith, chairman of the Student Council Social Committee, will speak on social events of the college year. Smith will outline the events and highlights of the Social calendar, discuss the little known events behind the social scenes and point out the troubles and headaches prevalent among the social committees before and during socials.

Delaware Eleven Seeks Initial Win Of Current Year

Halas' Team Also Courts Victory After 4 Straight Reverses

Still seeking to enter the victory column the Delaware football team will meet Drexel tomorrow afternoon on Frazer Field in the second home game of the season.

Not only will the Hens be trying for their initial win but also their first points, for although they have passed the 10 yard line of their opponents at least once in each of the three games to date, they still lack the necessary drive to score. Since last week's pathetic showing against Ursinus, Coach Murray has been trying out many different combinations in the hope of finding one with the fight, confidence, and team work necessary for a victory.

The pass defense of the Hens was practically nil with Paul Augustine, the Bears passer, always having a couple of men to throw to when the notion hit him. Then, too, the running attack of the Blue and Gold degenerated into a few feeble line-backs and wound up in a punt that usually went astray. This kicking department, as usual, was anything but good, and the coaches are still seeking someone who can do this with any degree of success.

Drexel also has failed to register

Dean Issues Scholastic Standing; Four Students Make Perfect Averages

Because of a change in the index system, the scholastic report of the Dean and Registrar of Delaware College of the University of Delaware, for the second semester of 1939-1940, consists of two parts. The first part includes scholastic averages and the Dean's List for the three upper classes — Senior, Junior, and Sophomore — whose indices are compiled under the previous system. The averages for the Freshman Class are compiled under the new system.

The index numbers used in the report for the three upper classes are as follows: A equals three points per credit hour; B, two points; C, one point; D, no points; E, minus one point; F, minus two points. 3.00 is equivalent to an average of A (the highest possible average); 2.00, to an average of B; 1.00, to an average of C. No student who is taking fewer hours than those required in his curriculum is eligible for the Dean's List (except students who have accumulated extra credits).

The index numbers used in the report for the Freshman Class are as follows: A equals four points per credit hour; B, three points; C, two points; D, one point; E, no points; F, no points. 4.00 is equivalent to an average of A (the highest possible average); 3.00, to an average of B; 2.00, to an average of C; 1.00, to an average of D. No Freshman who is taking fewer hours than those required in his curriculum is eligible for the Dean's List.

The following named upper classmen were on the Dean's List:

Skits, Songs, Speeches, Cheers, Costumes, And Comedy, For Peerade

"And then we'll fight, fight, fight for Delaware . . ."

Thus, the University of Delaware band will blare out tonight as the 1940 Freshman Peerade starts out on its winding way to the Women's College.

For many, many years past, it has been a Delaware tradition for the Freshman class to parade in costumes and perform with skits for the amusement of themselves and the rest of the student body. This period usually occurs at a time when the team needs a boost in spirit, hence, the Peerade is being held this week.

The fanfare will begin at 7:15 sharp as the Freshmen, regaled in every kind of costume conceivable, begin their trek from the steps of Old College. From here the trail leads through old Newark and eventually winds up at W.C.D. After the bellies are cajoled into following the peerade, the march goes on to Wolf Hall.

When everyone has been packed into this imposing edifice, the fun begins. It starts with a series of cheers and songs designed to bring all into a frenzy of good spirit. Then the froth trot out and present their skits or merely march across the stage.

Speeches will be in order by various noted campus personages present. The football team will be well represented by players and coaches alike. Finally the judges, after due deliberation, will award prizes to those freshmen who have produced the best skits and have worn the funniest costumes.

All in all, it ought to be a great opportunity for all hands to come out and show that old spirit which seems to have been so lately lost.

You Are Reminded...

Ever since the present school year got underway, we have watched with extreme pleasure something, notably lacking here at Delaware, begin to manifest itself in one of the ways which it has to do so.

School spirit, that indefinable something which intensifies a student's feeling of allegiance to his particular institution of learning, has shown itself in the fine support which you have given the football team—a losing team at that.

We are all familiar with the saying to the effect that everyone follows a winner; few, a loser. And fearing lest the fine spirit which you have shown in rallying round your football team should suddenly go into a fatal tailspin, we have thought it fitting to use the columns of this paper to remind you of your obligations to Delaware.

We realize the exigencies placed upon you in having to support an organization representing you, which time and time again, comes out on the short end. While we have some sympathy for you who are not in the actual battle, our sympathy must, by far and large, be directed to the men who are doing battle.

Don't think for a moment that the members of our football team are not in there to win! They are doing their best to gain the fruits of victory which you will share with them when they are successful.

Tomorrow afternoon, they will be making another earnest attempt to win. The task is difficult in view of the psychological disadvantage of being a constant loser which hovers over our team. But rest assured they will give their best for you.

Don't let the Delaware spirit die. Now is the time that the team needs your support—see them through the crisis!

...Quotable Quotes...

"The spirit of America is so remote from the spirit of Europe that we are barely awake to some of the menace which threatens. Most of that menace bids fair to drop to pieces in time from lack of balance and overweight." Dr. Herbert I. Priestley, professor of Mexican history at the University of California, feels that totalitarian dreams are doomed.

Reading Room Only

By HAL ARNOFF

Coed 1940 . . .

The American COED is a product of established repute. This entity of the collegiate class is the result of many years of female evolution, retaining the best hereditary qualities of the Neanderthal woman, Cleopatra, Pocahontas, and Little Orphan Annie.

The development of the COED is analogous to that of the automobile. A new model comes out every year. Like the latest car on the market, COED 1940 features such improvements as "more attractive appointments," "a smoother paint finish," "scientifically placed upholstery," "a sturdy chassis," "greater over-all length," and "terms to suit your convenience."

As in past years, the COED will be available in four different models:

COED CONVERTIBLE. This number is built for service in all types of weather. She can travel either in fast or slow company. Always prepared to convert her differential to accommodate the environment, she can be fiery or frigid, tranquil or tumultuous, idle or impetuous. She can pitch woo or horse shoes with equal ability.

Maintenance costs are moderately expensive but not prohibitive. Not a very dependable performer in the long run, but affords a good pick-up when conditions are favorable.

COED COACH. This creation is attractively styled for endurance. A very practical model, the COED COACH is durable in winter and summer. She always comes through in a pinch, and has what it takes in a clinch. She is very inexpensive, being capable of running indefinitely on a malted milk. Needs little servicing, and is quite content with the usual amount of oil. She is plain but neat in appearance and carries a minimum of accessories. No road is too steep to climb, no obstacle too difficult to surmount for the COED COACH. Built to last a lifetime, she is the unanimous choice of the men who want comfort, service, and dependability in the same package.

COED TOWN SEDAN. This model is the sophisticated of the series. She is the perennial choice of the Man Who Cares, and this year she is more dazzling than ever. Tediously designed in the famous "Eye-Flow" pattern, the COED TOWN SEDAN stops the crowd wherever she goes. This number is not manufactured in anything less than the Twelve Cylinder Super-Charger. She is a flashy creation from stem to stern, outfitted with all the latest equipment. But she must be taken to the shop every two weeks for reconditioning and a simonize. It is the fond ambition of every man to own a COED TOWN SEDAN at least once in his life.

COED ZEPHYR. This model is the speediest number of the series. Fashioned in the popular "Butterfly Styling", the COED ZEPHYR is purely the pleasure type. Owners of the COED COACH usually like to have a ZEPHYR on the side. She is light and easy to handle, but not durable under all circumstances. She is engineered to dart in and out of the tightest squeezes, and will provide loads of fun to the beginner. On the average, she gives less mileage per gal. than the CONVERTIBLE or the COACH. The owner is advised to trade her in every year.

New Members Of Honor Societies "Tapped In" Soon

Membership into an Honor Society distinguishes a person as one who is putting forth an extra effort in order to participate in the various school activities.

Choice of members is made entirely on the basis of points collected according to a point system established by the Student Council. This system recognizes the Interfraternity Council, Class offices, the Review, The Blue Hen, the Cauldron, The Freshman Handbook, Fraternities, Athenaeum Society, Humanist Society, Tau Beta Pi, Engineering Societies, Agricultural Club, Debating Society, Social committee, Economic Club, Dramatics, and all athletic teams as a possible means of getting these points.

The common conception of Honor Societies is not adhered to in the University. That is, while those who get a 2.0 average are rewarded with 4 points toward membership, they must have many more activities to gain admittance into these groups.

The Derelicts, Blue Keys, and the Spartans are the three honor societies to which a person may be admitted as a result of his extra curricular activities. Usually fifteen men from each class having the highest number of points are accepted. The Derelicts is the Senior, the Blue Keys the Junior, and the Spartans the sophomore society.

Tap Day

The members are installed at one of the home games, and the occasion is known as "tap day." The president of the Student Council taps the Derelicts. The Derelicts tap the Blue Keys, and the Blue Keys tap the Spartans.

Sol Markowitz who plays Mr. Yearling in the forthcoming Mitchell Hall production.

Debating Team Off To New Season Soon

The University of Delaware Debating Society which was undefeated after over a dozen contests last year, is about ready to embark on its 1940-41 season. The only veterans of last year's team are Bill Shaw, Dick Tybout, Ralph Margolin, Dick McNett, and Jan Bove.

The first meeting will be held at one o'clock on Wednesday in room 220, University Hall. All those interested in debating are urged to attend. Dr. Augustus Able, faculty advisor to the Society, will be present.

This year's schedule is in the making, and funds are now being sought from the Student Council.

Stage Is Set For "Love's Old Sweet Song" At Mitchell

Curtain on First Major Production By E 52 Goes Up At 8:15 p. m. Next Friday, Nov. 1st

Beverly Davis, chairman of the business staff, announced this week that almost three hundred tickets have been sold for the production, William Saroyan's LOVE'S OLD SWEET SONG, to be staged in Mitchell Hall on Friday evening, November 1.

Commencing Monday, the box-office in Mitchell Hall will be open daily from 4:15 to 5:30 in the afternoons and from 7:00 until 8:30 o'clock in the evenings. Admission for students is thirty-five cents, while outsiders will be admitted for fifty cents. There is no charge for reserved seats.

George Jean Nathan, prominent American critic, has this to say of William Saroyan's efforts in writing LOVE'S OLD SWEET SONG: "This play demonstrates again, that in Saroyan the American theatre has found the freshest, most imaginatively audacious, and most genuine humorous talent that has tickled it in a round of many moons."

LOVE'S OLD SWEET SONG, a modern, humorous satire on American life, contains a caricature of Steinbeck's famous Oake family in the persons of the Yearlings. The "Pa" is Cabot Yearling—whimsical, philosophical head of a brood of one wife and fifteen children. This hill-billy contingent comes into the town of Bakersfield, California, and decide to settle down to rest on the lawn owned by Ann Hamilton, beautiful and elegant woman in her early forties.

Miss Hamilton goes out into the world to search for her lover; it is then that the Yearling family moves into the house. They take over the residence—lock, stock, and barrel—and refuse to be budged.

Following the Yearlings around the country are Richard Oliver, an oldish, baldheaded newspaperman, portrayed by Walter Lilley, and Elsa Wax, a LIFE photographer who is taking pictures for "Life Goes to a Party," played by Edith Counahan.

Arthur Barab, a freshman from Wilmington, is George Stylianos, the Greek Postal Telegraph boy who sends Miss Hamilton to his father's home and attempts to dislodge the Yearlings from Miss Hamilton's formerly peaceful domicile.

Joseph First and Sol Markowitz, both of Delaware College handle important roles as lover and father respectively. First is Barnaby Gaul, traveling pitchman. The leading female character, Ann Hamilton, is played by Carolyn Miller.

Others who include themselves in the cast are Harold Friedman, Arthur Boys, Josephine Emerson, Harry Hillyard, Charlotte Runk, Jeanette Trice, Leighton Brown, Jack Warren, Edwin Golin, Judy Kase, Jane Snock, Bobby Kase, Robert Sanford, Joe LaMotta, David Buckson, Frederick Ingham, Norman Bunin, and Lloyd Jones, Jr.

There are more than thirty speaking parts in the play.

When Knute Rockne was captain of the Notre Dame football team, he invited his mother to see him play against University of Chicago. Rockne played more brilliantly than ever, making long runs and spectacular pass catches. After the game Knute proudly asked his mother what she thought of the spectacle. "It was marvelous," she said breathlessly. "That cheer-leader who turned the pinwheels was wonderful."

Smoking Rooms In Library Unlikely During This Year

Insurance on Memorial Library Prohibits Use of Flame and Smoking

"It is unlikely that there will be any smoking rooms in the library in the near future."

These were the words of Mr. William D. Lewis, university librarian, when questioned by a REVIEW reporter as to the possibility of the establishment in the Memorial Library of a room in which smoking and general conversation would be permitted. Mr. Lewis was approached in order to provide an answer to "Interested Freshman," who suggested such a lounge in the "Letters To Editor" column of last week's REVIEW.

Basis

The basis of Mr. Lewis' statement is the fact that the Memorial Library is insured under a policy which forbids smoking or the use of any open flame in any part of the building. Therefore, until the Board of Trustees sees fit to purchase a different type of insurance, there can be no such smoking room. However, the plan is not held to be entirely impossible.

Also to be considered is the fact that a satisfactory and comfortable smoke room can not be set up without a fairly sizable monetary outlay. The two smoke rooms recently added to the library of William and Mary College cost $10,000. Wealthy Harvard has no such room in its library.

Talking

To those who would have a room where talking would be allowed, Mr. Lewis says that conversation is permitted, although not encouraged, in the reading rooms. This conversation should, however, be carried on quietly so as not to disturb those persons who care to study. Mr. Lewis took the opportunity to express his constant amazement at the splendid co-operation of the majority of the students as regards silence in the library.

Though athletes are popularly supposed to have strong backs and weak minds, more of them complete their college courses than non-athletes. The percentages are 69 for athletes and 53 for non-athletes, according to the Helms Athletic Foundation.

New Hen Coach Speaks To Alumni Group At Banquet

Over 150 Grads, Wives Attend Dinner Ending Gala Homecoming Day

More than 150 alumni of the University of Delaware, and their wives attended a homecoming day program on the campus of Delaware College on Saturday. The feature of the day was a dinner in the Commons of Old College at which several university officials and graduates spoke.

Speakers were Business Administrator Charles E. Grubb, who told the group of the $150,000 gift to the university for a powerhouse; J. Baker Taylor, Jr., of Wilmington, a member of the alumni athletic council; Gerald P. Doherty, graduate manager of athletics; Warren C. Newton of Bridgeville, president of the Alumni Association, who welcomed the graduates; and coaches William Murray, Flucie L. Stewart, and Joseph Shields.

Discussing the defeat of the Delaware football team by Ursinus in the afternoon, Coach Murray and his assistants declared that they were unable to explain the team's failure, and promised more success in future games.

"If you'll stay with us, we hope to have another 'powerhouse', in addition to the one that Mr. Grubb told about," Coach Murray said. "There's nothing wrong with the team that three of four touchdowns wouldn't cure."

J. Alexander Crothers of Merchantville, N. J., was toastmaster. Charles J. Southwell of Wilmington led the group in singing.

Among the guests were the members of the varsity football team. They were introduced to the alumni, who also met the coaching staff at the dinner and at a tea dance in the Lounge of Old College after the game. Mrs. Warren C. Newton and Mrs. Robert W. Ely poured at the tea, assisted by the wives of members of the homecoming committee.

Sixty graduates attended a luncheon in the small dining room of Old College before the game. Arrangements were made by George F. Alderson, Wilmington, chairman of the homecoming committee; F. Allyn Cooch, Jr., Newark; Mr. Crothers, Robert W. Ely, Elmhurst, Howard P. Young, Wilmington, and John N. McDowell, executive secretary of the Alumni Association.

L. M. A. Dance Is Largest Ever Held By Organization

On Saturday night more than seventy-five couples attended the dance held by the Independent Men's Association in the Lounge of Old College. This is the largest number ever to attend a function held by the non-frat group.

Patrons and patronesses at the unusually successful affair were Mr. and Mrs. Alex D. Cobb and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Richardson.

Arrangements for the recording dance were made by Malloy Vaughn, social chairman, and William Richardson, president of the I.M.A. Publicity was in the hands of William Craig, while the decorations were arranged by Charles Schneider. Ticket sales were managed by Tom Minkus, treasurer of the organization.

Another dance is scheduled for shortly after Thanksgiving vacation, while a third is to be held just before the Christmas vacation commences.

City College of New York has the largest voluntary ROTC unit in the country.

Freshmen Awed And Impressed, Elevated To Olympian Heights, By Fraternity Rushing Season

By 'SNARKY'

Last week the duck season commenced and this, the week of the 21st., it is open season on Freshmen.

There was no daily or seasonal bag limit and the choice and use of weapons was entirely unrestricted. The only constraint imposed was the ban on the use of drugs or alcohol in the persuasion of prospective candidates. All Frosh were fair game and no sanctuary was inviolate to the marauding Fraternity Men. Each covey flushed was obliged to run the gauntlet of five pledge-hungry Fraternities. Heavy casualties were inflicted.

To The Chase

The campus resounded to the view-halloos of the Frat Men as they rode to the chase. The hunt was on. They came from all sides; through windows, from behind trees, out of the woodwork, stalking their bewildered quarry with skill and cunning. It is rumored that one house was employing bloodhounds to course its prey.

As for the prerequisite qualifications of would-be Frat Men, they must be able to speak indifferent English and occasionally walk on their hind-legs.

Some of the more intellectual fraternities actually go so far as to stipulate that candidates should be able to read. But most of the houses consider this an unnecessary, though laudable, accomplishment. One need not be able to read in order to enjoy Esquire, the Fraternity bible.

Frosh Awed

During Rush Week the Frosh were awed and impressed by thick rugs and deep chairs and elevated to the Olympian heights of being addressed by seniors. They were stuffed with ginger snaps, drenched in cider, and provided with alleged entertainment. Cups received in recognition of the houses' achievements were brightly burnished for the occasion.

Come into my parlor said the Frat Man to the Frosh.

Ushered into the various houses, the Frosh were confronted by a legion of Cheshire Cats, grinning engagingly at them and purring blandishments.

They were shown the bedrooms and the studies and ceremoniously conducted into the pristine, gleaming tile Valhallas that are the washrooms.

'Heaven Can Wait'

By this time the Frosh had begun to feel that heaven could wait and above all things, even the smile of that lovely Junior, he wanted membership in a fraternity.

And if he is fortunate and his choice coincides with that of the selected fraternity, the Frosh becomes a votary in the temple of comradeship and finally, with due ceremony, is inducted into the status of full-fledged membership.

Silent Monday

On the Monday following Rush Week strict silence will prevail and the Frosh are free to make their choice without further coercion.

Fraternities are truly an important factor in campus life. They facilitate organized effort for the promotion of social, athletic, and scholastic activities at the University.

Delaware houses are members of high standing in national Fraternities. They are the local representatives of some of the most powerful and influential fraternities in the country.

The advantages of co-operative living such as exists in a Fraternity are manifest, but most important of all the many advantages afforded by such a life is the promotion of man's finest instinct, comradeship.

In The Henhouse . .

Last week this column got up on the soapbox and lectured the students of Delaware concerning the lack of school spirit. It pointed out the need of whole-hearted support of the team, and further reminded the students that every man on the football field on Saturdays was doing his best. The football team promptly went and made a joke out of us. We mean to say that they were not doing their best. Anyone who had seen them play in either of the other two games, that they had played, could have seen it. We feel better qualified to say this in that we saw both of the previous contests.

In the Hampden-Sydney game the Blue and Gold was pounded unmercifully, yet each time that the occasion presented itself they dug in and completely halted the attack. It is true that they didn't show any great offensive power of their own; still they gave the indication that they were giving their best and that is more than could be said of them against Ursinus.

Against the Bears, the defensive backs were continually caught a-sleep. This may be partly due to the fact that the boys have never used the zone defense against passes. Most high schools use man-for-man defenses and consequently the change in systems has to be mastered. Still, a sleeping man would not be of much use in either system. As far as offensive power was concerned, the Hens looked as if they had decided that they couldn't gain anyway so what was the use of trying.

This week they play Drexel which is reported as having little to brag about in any department. You can be sure of one thing though, if they get their hands on the ball at all they will start to throw it around. Let's hope Delaware has more success in breaking up passes against them than they did last week.

During the past week, Coach Murray has shown just how he feels about the whole thing. Entire new teams have been tried, and, not satisfied with these, he has made more changes. No one knows any better than he what the Hens are capable of, and he means to do something about it if he has to field an entire new eleven.

One of the criticisms voiced by an opposing coach concerning Delaware was this, "They are big, slow, and dumb." There you have someone's opinion that should know what he is talking about. During the past week young Gerald Doherty has appeared to be just what the team needs, a runner who gets started fast, and once, he breaks into the open, he is hard to bring down. A runner of this type prevents the opposition from playing its secondaries right up against the line in order to stop line bucks, such as Ursinus did.

If Delaware plays against Drexel as they have played against each other during this past week, they are going to come off with their first win of the season. Never before have they shown such viciousness and determination in their play. Therefore, we say to you the student body, you are going to see a team this Saturday that is playing to win and giving the opposition no quarter. Here's hoping they come through.

Bill Lawrence's soccermen, although they have dropped both of their first two games, show promise of having better than a .500 average for the season, beginning with the game with Temple, scheduled for today. Granting that all games are tough, the fact still remains that the booters have met this past week, in the University of Maryland and Rider College, possibly two of the best collegiate soccer aggregations in the East. Rider's record is particularly impressive, the Red and White not having lost a game in their last 23, including Tuesday's close 3-2 decision over the Blue Hens, and have dropped only one out of their last 29. Maryland also manages to come up with a fine squad year in and year out, and this season is no exception. Nonetheless, they managed to just edge out the Hens by a 2-1 count. Off these two performances, Coach Lawrence's boys, if they didn't permit a losing spirit to infect them, should get straightened out before long and win more than their share of victories. The work of the veterans, especially Captain Trux Boyce, Bill Gerow, and Elmer Harrington, has left nothing to be desired, and if the comparative newcomers continue to improve, no one will have reason for complaint at the end of the season.

The lack of interest in Intramurals on the campus is becoming appalling, and reached a new high this past week when Theta Chi, of the Fraternity League, failed to field a team on two successive afternoons, making a grand (?) total of four such occurrences out of ten decisions so far rendered in that league. Thus we have a state of affairs in which the Kappa Alpha team is tied for the lead without having had the benefit of a single game in competition, while S. P. E. has a .500 percentage through the medium of a forfeit and a game they themselves failed to make an appearance for! Sigma Nu and K. A. seem thus far the only ones with enough interest to come out to the field for the games, and even these two have fallen down in this respect in other years.

As Director of Intramurals Joe Shields has said in the past, and as every one well knows, the Intramural program is put on as a courtesy to those students who are not skilled enough to compete in varsity athletics, and if the students themselves show no interest, we fail to see why Mr. Shields should be expected to spend valuable time for the handful that put in an appearance regularly.

MORE ABOUT THE SHIRTS

Leading the shirt winners at the close of the third week we find Walt Paul, William Hogan, and Luke Selby. These same three were tied for the lead last week and again remain out front in the shirt contest. During the game with Ursinus, there were no shirt winners. Had there been one or two shirts won, the outcome of the game might have been a different story. Ursinus completed 12 out of 14 passes Saturday afternoon which accounts for their victory. An interception or two at the right time would have put a crimp in their attack.

One of Ursinus' passes was knocked down by Brooks and Hogan. It seems that the two Hens both had their hands on the ball but in their eagerness to knock the pass down neither one could hold on to it. Thus a shirt was torn in half and neither gets a share. Better luck next time.

Hogan	1
Paul	1
Selby	1

INTRAMURALS

The fall intramural program is nearing its closing stages, as most of the six man touch football teams are about to play their final game.

This last week has been an exceptionally quiet one due to the lackadaisical efforts of Theta Chi and Sig Ep to put teams on the field at game time. On Monday the T C's forfeited to Kappa Alpha and again on Wednesday they repeated this performance by forfeiting to S. P. E. The latter in turn had previously forfeited to the K A's. To top this, rain caused the postponement of the encounter between two sophomore aggregations, the Comets and the Oscars. However, the game was played on Wednesday and the Oscars prevailed. The Upperclassman League will be completed next week with the meeting of Comets and the Super Aces.

As soon as the Fraternity League finishes its schedule, the playoffs will begin, providing "old man weather" permits. In past years the playoffs had to be cancelled due to the coming of snow and ice and the potential winners hashed out their rights to victory over the old "hot stove."

Joe Shields, intramural director, has announced that Freshmen who formerly belonged to the now defunct Eastern Eagles and Black and Blue squads, may, if they so desire, play with the Badgers in the last game. This arrangement should strengthen the frosh combination and make it equal to the others in the playoffs.

When the score of a Fordham-Alabama game came over the wire into the Yale Bowl press box (the score was 2-0) Frankie Graham of the Sun asked, "Who Pitched? Hubbell?"

What Ho!

Cokes and hot dogs on Frazier Field. Yes, it's difficult to believe. But there were Friedman and his cohorts selling hot dogs a mile a minute. Such was the astounding sight of amazed observers as they witnessed the beginning of a new era for hungry followers of the Delaware athletic teams. Henceforth, under the sponsorship of the Athletic Council, refreshments of all sorts will be on sale at the football games.

Says Harold Friedman, concessionaire and formerly connected with the Philadelphia Convention Hall concessions, "Get 'em while they're hot, get 'em anytime, get 'em."

Powerful Rider Combine Noses Blue Hen Booters

Red and White Scores 23rd Consecutive Win In Three-Year Span

Boasting a win streak of 22 straight games, Rider College rode into town last Tuesday and succeeded in adding another victory at the expense of Bill Lawrence's inexperienced but scrappy team.

Delaware got off to a poor start and for the entire first quarter they were called on to stop one concerted drive after another by the visitors. This they did, however, and it was half way the second quarter before they yielded a score to the precision-like attack of their opponents. This was a heart breaker, being a looping head shot that barely escaped the upstretched arms of Bill Gerow.

This lead lasted only a short time as Delaware finally tied the score early in the third period after a concentrated bombardment of shots that would not be denied a score. Not satisfied with a tie the Blue and Gold started another drive early in the fourth period that resulted in a lead that loomed larger and larger as the minutes waned. Rider hadn't won 22 straight games on nothing though, and they showed this in the last few minutes of the game. Outplayed for the first three quarters, they began to show the class and courage that was expected of them and this proved too much for the weary-legged Blue Hens. Before they could be stopped the visitors had scored two goals to assume a lead they never relinquished, the score remaining 3-2.

Outstanding for the Hens was the work of Captain Trux Boyce and Bill Gerow. Trux played his usual fine offensive game, while Gerow made several nice stops of attempted scores.

Pep Fest After Two Losers Proves Delaware Spirit

The peppiest pep fest of the season was held last Friday evening in Wolf Hall. In anticipation of this year's first home game and grateful for an excuse to put off doing their homework, Delaware's freshman class, supplemented by a good number of upperclassmen, sundry members of the faculty, and a generous sprinkling of W.C. babes thronged into the hallowed howl hall.

A little after seven o'clock, those bounding limb-twisters, the cheerleaders, started the ball rolling. The audience stripped and lashed their larynxes about for some time; then, the vociferations of the evening got underway with a prediction by Doc Dougherty of a 19 to 0 score, favor of Delaware. However, Doc Blumberg the next rhetorician of the evening, did not entirely agree on this prophecy. The doc took a conservative stand by saying that the game would be close and that Delaware would lead by six or seven points. Then, he went a bit farther by offering to give the first man who made a touchdown for Delaware five dollars. Somebody should have called his bluff.

Movies of the Hampden-Sydney game were next on the program. These were followed by more snappy cheering and a grand climax of "Delaware Forever."

a decision, but they have at least scored a pair of touchdowns, both against the University of Buffalo to whom they lost by the score of 20-13. They have played one more than the Blue Hens, losing to Juniata in their opener, 14-0, and after the Buffalo fray succumbing to Gettysburg, 41-0, and last week to Rensselaer Poly, 26-0.

In spite of these reverse, however, the Dragons are said to possess a scrappy team with a potent passing attack, their big weakness being the lack of a running game. Walter Halas, Jr., son of the teams coach, leads what offends the Techmen possess, and in spite of poor blocking is capable of gaining considerable yardage.

Although Coach Murray has done much experimenting this week with different combinations, relegating many of last Saturday's starters to the sidelines, there will very likely be few changes in the line-up of the Hens. Conrad Sadowski probably will be forced to remain on the bench due to a severe shoulder injury, and Walt Paul may call signals, but beyond this there is no indication that any general shake-up in personnel will take place.

"Whenever you find a group fighting to increase its share of the national consumption in ways that lessen the national production as a whole, you have an example of local 'power politics.' Unfortunately, American trade-unionism, by and large, has not yet wholly emerged from this fighting-for-one's-rights-at-the-expense-of-others stage. There are, of course, some notable exceptions in the way of unions that have given effective co-operation in increasing the productivity of their numbers and the total production of their industries. But all too many, not only of the rank and file but of the leaders as well, still believe, or profess to believe, that the less a man can do today and still draw his pay, the more there will be left for him and his fellow workmen to do tomorrow." Dr. Harvey N. Davis, president of Stevens Institute of Technology, declares that power politics represents a reversion to the philosophy of highway robbery.

Aggie News . . .

By CLARENCE BROWN

The Junior and Senior Agronomy classes spent an interesting afternoon recently visiting several of the demonstration projects of the Delaware Soil Conservation Service. The two main projects visited were widely separated; one was north west of Newark while the other was near Delaware City. This afforded comparison between work on different types of land and consequent practices. The fellows were particularly interested in the remarks made by the landowners who, after all, really know what has been accomplished.

The Dairy Cattle Management Class spent last Thursday morning at the Blue Hen Dairy Bottling and Pasteurizing Plant in Wilmington. Mr. C. P. Hearn took the class on a tour of the plant explained the process from the farmer's milk cans to the germ proof sealing of the cream-top bottles. The homogenizing equipment drew particular attention as this is a comparatively new development in the Dairy Industry. Welcome samples of this processed milk left little doubt in the fellow's minds as to the value of Homogenizing. The condensing equipment in the plant was said to condense milk in the ratio of 3 to 1.

Mr. Scogland is beginning work with the Poultry Judging Class and hopes to train the class in this work so that a winning team can be selected to represent the University at the Intercollegiate Poultry Judging event to be held later in the year at Rutgers.

More recent results have been received from the Eastern States Exposition judging work. Along with this material was a handsome blue ribbon designed for display on the lapel of John Curtis who attained 49 points out of a possible 50 on the judging of Brown Swiss. This high score placed John in top place of all contestants from numerous Universities at the show for this dairy class.

The Senior Agronomy Class drove to Dover Wednesday afternoon to visit the State Seed Analyst and learn how this work is carried on. Mr. Clough, the State Analyst discussed the state seed law as it now exists and the proposed new law. The present law is in need of severe revision; it is at present inflexible, incomplete and lacks effective enforcement measures. The equipment of the laboratory was demonstrated and the technique of seed analysis shown.

DR. MOWAT DISCUSSES BRITISH MORALE IN PRESENT WAR CRISIS

By TOM MALONE

Tuesday morning, at the usual fifth hour, a College Hour meeting was held in Mitchell Hall. The speaker for the occasion was Dr. A. B. Mowat who, as most of you know by now, is at the University through the auspices of the Carnegie Foundation and is only to stay with us through the month of October. Dr. Mowat spoke on war-time conditions in England and their effect on the British people.

It is seldom that the College Hour committee chooses as entertaining a speaker for their monthly program. Dr. Mowat had the immediate advantage of a pleasing voice. Most Americans enjoying listening to a British accent no matter what the topic and the man from Bristol had certainly chosen a timely and interesting subject. Moreover he had an audience that was decidedly sympathetic to the British cause. Despite this fact, he made no attempt to bring any political allusions into his address.

Divisions of Talk

His talk seemed to fall into three natural divisions—the effect of the war on British education, the extent of the bombing and the effect of this bombing on the morale of the British people.

Every institution of learning in England has suffered a loss in attendance since the beginning of the war. This is true even in the case of the primary grades where the children are certainly not eligible for the conscription. Dr. Mowat could offer no positive reason why this should be so. He suggested two possibilities, the first being the theory that the children may have been withdrawn by their parents, the other is the evacuation that takes place within the country itself. But these cases are strictly in the minority. Dr. Mowat, stressing this lack of explanation, did make the proposal that some ambitious young A.B. might make this the subject for a thesis in the quest for a Ph.D.

The Universities, as is to be expected, have been affected rather deeply. The draft age in England is 18 to 30 and this naturally wreaks havoc on the higher institutions. The destruction isn't a total one, however, for all of the women students continue their attendance and about one-third of the men remain in school. Some of this may be accounted for by the exemptions accorded to the medical and scientific students whose work is considered valuable for the future of England. Those students whose college work is interrupted by the draft may take an examination over the work covered and thus receive credit for that amount.

Such a depletion has the natural result of requiring a smaller faculty. The scientists and economists are in great demand by the government and have to give up their posts at their universities. Other men, such as Dr. Mowat are given leaves of absence so they may lecture in other parts of the world.

Students Volunteer

When the war started a university student could volunteer and be sent immediately to an officers training unit where, after a five months period of training he would receive his commission. This was a distinct advantage as those students taken in the draft had to serve in the ranks for a period of three months before they could apply for this training course.

The men, when drafted are given the privilege of requesting the branch of service for which they have a preference. Naturally these requests are rather difficult to grant as some branches are more popular than the others. This is notably true of the navy and the air corps.

Discusses Bombing

Dr. Mowat then turned to a discussion of the bombing of England by the enemy. He left England on the twenty-third of September and said, with confidence, that the raiders had not left any deep mark by that time. He pointed out that 80 per cent of London is grass. It stands to reason then, that a great deal of the bombs should strike this 80 per cent. He insisted that he had no intention of minimizing the effect of these bombs for he admitted that the property damage was tremendous. The loss of life was high, but still may be compared to the deaths caused by auto accidents.

This served as a good introduction for his remarks on the British morale and here Dr. Mowat brought in to play all the droll humor for which the British are famous. He recounted a few choice anecdotes of his experiences as an air-raid warden in the city of Bristol, and he gave a short account of an actual air-raid and the calmness with which the British accepted them.
