Four Hurt When Car Crashes Tree In Main Street Right Of Way

Girl Thrown Through Windshield And Badly Injured At Spot Where Negro Was Killed Two Years Ago

TREE OUTSIDE CURB

Four persons were injured Sunday night when an automobile crashed into a tree which stands out several feet from the curb in the right of way on Main street on the south side of the street, just east of the tracks at the Newark Center station. One of them, Miss Vera Brown, 21 years old, of Sparrows Point, Maryland, was thrown through the windshield of the car and seriously injured. The others injured were:

John L. McKinney, 24 years old, Baltimore, Md., lacerations of the face. McKinney was the driver of the car.

Miss Doris Hutchins, 20 years old, Sparrows Point, lacerations of the face.

Ernest Jarrell, 23 years old, Sparrows Point, injury to the ankle.

McKinney was driving west on Main street when the lights of another car, coming from the opposite direction blinded him. He pulled in toward the curb and struck the tree. Miss Brown was flung through the windshield of the car sustaining a deep cut in the neck, very close to the jugular vein, and a fractured skull. Dr. Wallace Johnson attended all four and rushed them to the Homeopathic Hospital, Wilmington, the Newark ambulance. William Cunningham, Edwin Shakespeare and Charles Tasker attended the ambulance. At the hospital, Miss Hutchins, McKinney and Jarrell were given further treatment and discharged. Miss Brown is still in the hospital, but her condition shows much improvement. At first it was thought that her injuries would prove fatal. McKinney's car was badly damaged.

There are three trees standing out the street at the spot where the accident happened. About two years ago a colored man was killed when he drove into one of them.

AFRICAN DOCTOR HERE MONDAY SPEAK HERE MONDAY

A man whose thrilling tales of life in the jungles of Africa and whose stories of his experiences as a doctor among the people on the west coast of that huge continent, have packed auditoriums throughout the United States, is to speak here in the First Clay Creek Presbyterian church, at 8 o'clock, Monday, March 14th.

He is Dr. Lucius E. Smith, M.D., of Senegal, Guinea, West Africa, who has had a wide experience as a white physician in that remote section of the world. He will have with him a wide assortment of African curios illustrating the life of the people among whom he lived, as well as many beautiful, hand-colored lantern slides, illustrating his strange experiences.

Dr. Smith is spoken of as one of the most fascinating speakers in America today.

John F. Richards has announced that he has leased the United Cannery Corporation factory and will be open for signing contracts, beginning next Monday. Mr. Richards states that he will pay the market price for both tomatoes and corn.

Mr. Richards was connected with the United Cannery in 1923 and 1923, and thoroughly understands the business. He also has the confidence of the local farmers, and it is expected that the cannery and local farmers will both find profit in his management of the concern.

Mr. Richards is anxious to have the co-operation of the farmers, and intends to hold a meeting within a short time, at which he will explain just what policies he will pursue.

Community Meeting In School Auditorium

Josiah Marvel Addresses Combined Meeting Of P. T. A. And Delaware Citizens Association

Hon. Josiah Marvel, of Wilmington, made an eloquent address before the joint meeting of the Delaware Citizens Association and the Newark Parent-Teacher Association last evening in the High School Auditorium.

Mrs. Thomas Ingham, president of the local Parent-Teacher Association, and chairman of the local committee on arrangements for last evening's meeting, was unable to be present and Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson presided. Dr. Hullihen presented the speaker.

Mr. Marvel spoke briefly of some of the changes that had come about in individual and community life during his lifetime, and attributed the advance to the yearning for better conditions which was in the heart of the people, and the consideration for their fellow-citizens. He detailed the advantages in living in a state the size of Delaware; spoke highly of the human material within the State, and urged the people to be satisfied with nothing less than the best that could be afforded in all the beautiful things of life.

The Citizens' Association, he declared, was not an uplift movement in the sense that it sought to dictate to others. It is aiming to carry on a part of the good work that was started by the Service Citizens of Delaware. The support and encouragement of the community groups known as the Parent-Teacher Association has so far been the chief work of the organization; but a much broader work is contemplated. The idea behind the movement is to provide a way for thinking people, who are yearning for better social conditions, to help themselves and their communities to that end. To date Newark has given a larger percentage of members to the Delaware Citizens Association than any town of its size in the state.

Community singing was led by Miss Anne Osborne, of the High School Faculty. The Choral Club of the Newark New Century Club, under the direction of Mrs. J. O. G. Duffy and accompanied by Miss Nell Wilson, sang two beautiful numbers. The audience was delighted, also, with the playing of the Newark School Orchestra, assisted by Mr. Chalmers, Mr. Stradley and Mr. Davis.

TO MOVE STORE

Hopkins and Hancock, on or about April 1, will move their men's furnishing business from its present location into the store next door, formerly occupied by the grocery and paper store conducted by the late T. J. Green.

The store is being completely remodeled and refurnished by the Newark Trust Company, which handles the property. The store front will be moved out several feet, and an inclined entrance will be built. Deep show windows will be placed in the front.

The new location will give Hopkins and Hancock considerable more space than they have in their present location and they plan to departmentize the new store, adding greater variety to the lines they carry.

FOREIGN STUDY COMMITTEE MEETS

There was a meeting of the Foreign Study Committee last evening in Dean Robinson's office at Women's College. The members of the committee are: Dr. Hullihen, chairman; Dean Dutton, Dean Robinson, Dr. Evans, Dr. Benner, Professor Byam, and Mr. A. G. Wilkinson.

FOUR CAUGHT IN STATE HIGHWAY OFFICERS' NET; CARS AS SECURITY

One Drunk, One Reckless, Two Without Licenses Arraigned Before Magistrate Thompson Last Saturday

Magistrate Thompson held traffic court on Saturday as a result of a campaign of the State Highway Police to check on drivers' licenses, car license tags, highway stop regulations and other highway traffic rules. Three drivers, arrested on the Glasgow road, were arraigned before Magistrate Thompson, on Saturday.

A. T. Nielson, of Philadelphia, was arrested by Officer Hayes for not being able to produce an operator's license. His fine was $25 and costs, and as he did not have the money, he left his car, a Ford sedan, as security. The car is still in Fader's garage, waiting for Dundee to redeem it.

M. R. Dundee, of Philadelphia, was arrested by Officer Hayes for driving a motor vehicle without a drivers' license. His fine was $25 and costs, and as he did not have the money, he left his car, a Ford sedan, as security. The car is still in Fader's garage, waiting for Dundee to redeem it.

Randall Cordrey, of Salisbury, Maryland, was arrested by Officer Hession for reckless driving. He paid a fine of $25 and costs.

On Friday, Theodore A. Lay, of Charlestown, Maryland, was arrested on the Glasgow road by Officers Carpenter and Hitchens, and arraigned before Magistrate Thompson on a charge of driving while intoxicated. A physician examined him and declared him drunk. His fine was $100 and costs, and not having the money, his car, a Studebaker, was held as security. He later redeemed it.

Finkernagle Fined $5 On Assault Charge

Last Wednesday night, Magistrate Thompson, after hearing testimony in a case charging Alfred Finkernagle with assault and battery on Amos Ely, postponed judgment until Friday. On Friday he fined Alfred Finkernagle $5. The altercation occurred on the evening of February 29, and Ely signed the warrant making the charge.

Both Ely and Finkernagle testified that the trouble started when Finkernagle crossed the street from his store, which is on the north side of Main street, and accosting Ely, asked him what reason he had for talking about his (Finkernagle's) family. Ely denied that he had said anything and went on up the street to a store. When he came back, he saw Finkernagle standing where he had left him, and he asked him who had said that he had talked about Finkernagle's family. Finkernagle repudiated this information and heated words followed. Witnesses testified that both men crossed the street to the sidewalk in front of Finkernagle's store, with Finkernagle in the lead. Here the

County Agents Making Seed Corn Survey

Seed Corn This Year Poor; Agents To Make Germination Tests For Farmers

With the time of spring seeding drawing nigh, the farmers are beginning to think of where they may secure good, healthy, vigorous disease-free seed corn. With this thought in mind the members of the University of Delaware Extension Service are making a survey of the seed corn situation. According to G. M. Worrlow, Assistant County Agent for New Castle county, the condition of the seed corn this spring is very poor. This condition is probably a result of a combination of weather conditions last year during the growing season, and also in a great part due to the high moisture content of the corn last fall and the severe early winter frozes destroying the germination qualities of a large percentage of the corn.

In co-operation with the Agronomy Department of the University, Mr. Worrlow has run germination tests on samples of corn taken from farms situated in every part of this county. About 50 per cent of these samples showed a germination test so low that they should not be used for seed.

This means that approximately one-half of the farmers of New Castle county will have to buy seed corn this year. With this fact in mind the Extension workers are making arrangements to run seed corn germination tests for all the farmers in the county who desire this service.

DR. WILLIAMS DEPLORES SPIRIT OF ATHLETICS

Speaker At Athletic Council Dinner Says That Love Of Contest Pre-dominates; Letters Awarded

Dr. Jesse F. Williams, professor of Physical Education at Columbia University, was the speaker at the annual dinner of the Athletic Council of the University of Delaware, held last Friday night. The dinner, which is held in the honor of the letter men, was attended by the athletes, coaches, the Athletic Council, and a number of guests. Dr. A. S. Eastman, president of the Athletic Council, presided, and Dean Dutton was toastmaster.

Dr. Williams, in his address, condemned the general attitude towards athletics, saying that most people do not love sport as a sport, but love a contest, where the desire to win is uppermost. He traced the history of college athletics and deplored the lack of mental development that should be an attribute of college sport. In tracing the distinction between sport and competition, Dr. Williams spoke as follows:

"Here we might give some thought to our attitude on sport. We think we love sport, but what we love is a contest. So few persons understand really what sport is. Most of college spirit at games is not love of sport at all, but love of competition. It is evidence of a perfectly abominable desire to feel superior, to belong to the side that has won. If we cannot win ourselves, we will by proxy, by being on the winning side as an alumnus or as a placer of bets. As part of this failure to understand

Action Still Pending On Crossing Problem

Yesterday afternoon Walter Dent Smith and George F. Huber, members of the Delaware Safety Council, came to Newark to confer with the Town Council on the grade crossing problem. The Safety Council members made a thorough investigation of the situation here and gave Mayor Frazer assurance that the Delaware Council would give them complete backing and co-operation in having the condition rectified.

In answer to a letter written by Mayor Frazer, last week, to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, regarding a decision in the matter of the North College avenue crossing, Mayor Frazer has received a telegram signed by F. G. Hoskins, chief engineer of this division of the B. and O., stating that the company was making a thorough investigation, and would advise the town of a decision at an early date.

PLAN OF FARM RELIEF

Advocated by the Grange at Washington Is Winning Strong Support

The National Grange has been right on the map at Washington the past two months because of its vigorous advocacy of the Export Debiture Plan of Farm Relief, and the thorough presentation of its case by competent Grange officials. Members of Congress have listened intently to the Grange plan embodying the issuance of debenture certificates on exports of farm products, and it is the belief of many who have given the situation careful study that this is the most workable plan of farm relief that has been put forward from any source.

The Export Debiture Plan, as advocated by the Grange, is simply an endeavor to bring to the American farmer some of the benefits of the protective tariff, exactly as was contemplated by the framers of the tariff system 140 years ago, but which has never yet been put into operation. Moreover, the Export Debiture Plan lines up fully with the constructive idea which has always been a Grange characteristic, and contemplates no attack upon the present protective system in force in this country, but rather its extension to embrace the agricultural industry as well as other protected lines. While the presentation of this Grange plan has been going on at Washington, subordinate Granges in all parts of the country have discussed it thoroughly, and Grange leaders everywhere have fully familiarized themselves with it; with the result that the organization from Atlantic to Pacific is practically unanimous in its advocacy of this plan of Farm Relief. Whether it can be enacted into law this year or not, the Grange plan is certain to grow in favor and is undoubtedly today the most widely discussed phase of the farm situation to be found anywhere.

WHOLE SCHOOL TAKES COD-LIVER OIL DOSE

While attending the Eastern States Conference at Cornell University, Ithaca, New York, several weeks ago, Mrs. Helen V. McKinley, of the University of Delaware, visited the nursery school.

"The most impressive thing I saw there," said Mrs. McKinley, "was the way every child took a teaspoonful of cod-liver oil. No persuasion was necessary. In fact, since it is an everyday occurrence, it is just taken for granted that it is the thing to do. This bears out a statement made in the March-Ladies Home Journal, 'that food tastes are due largely to habit.'"

The teacher of the school stated that they consider this necessary in that section of the country, not only for children but also for adults, because they have little sunshine there. She also added that they attributed the small number of colds from which the pupils and the staff, who also take the daily dosage, suffer to this daily use of the oil.

Dr. E. V. McCollum states, in a recent lecture in Philadelphia, that adults need only two drops three times a week, while growing children need a teaspoonful per day especially in the winter months when they get little sunshine directly on the bare skin. The variety of forms in which cod-liver oil may be purchased make it suitable to any taste.

The cause of colds has long baffled physicians. The effects of them are often serious.

"Many farmers insure good health for their chickens by feeding this commodity—surely they must think as much of their children and themselves," says Mrs. McKinley.

St. Patrick's Peppy Party

When good St. Patrick rid Ireland of snakes he was doubtless unaware that he was starting a celebration which would last down to the present day. How surprised the brave old saint would have been to know that almost fifteen hundred years after his death, and in a country he never heard of, there would be people celebrating his anniversary!

Indeed, St. Patrick's day has become one of the most popular party dates of the year. One reason is that the cheerful Kelly green lends itself so well to decorations. Myriads of paper shamrocks hanging from the lights, green tinted carnations in the vases, crepe paper tablecloths adorned with Irish scenes—all help to make the festivity gay and colorful.

Dancing Feet

One delightful party was started early on its triumphant way. For late guests, as they came up the walk, heard the rollicking strains of Irish tunes coming from the house. So with their feet already dancing they came in to find the earlier arrivals jiggling and singing Irish songs. Until all the guests had arrived the singing continued, and then the hostess announced that in order to be real Irishmen they would have to prove that they knew something about the Irish.

Accordingly, each guest was required to tell an Irish joke, and afterwards the group voted on which was the funniest joke and which was the oldest. A jolly little prize went to each of the winners.

Lollipop Ladies

On a table were all the makings of a dressmaker's establishment—only the cloth was crepe paper, and while there were pins and thread and needles and scissors, there were paste and wire, too. The customers of this establishment were the queerest of all for they were only lollipops. But the guests proceeded with delight to dress them as policemen, shepherds, sailors, or other Irish characters.

At this particular party the supper was served buffet style. On a table was spread a crepe paper table cloth decorated with sweet green pick'le pigs with toothpick legs. What appeared to be white clay pipes were there, too, but closer inspection revealed that the bowl consisted of a piece of canned pineapple around which fondant had been molded, and the stem was of white stick candy.

Captivating Food

The menu at this party consisted of: Tuna Fish a la Newburg Parsley Crackers Olives and Celery Pineapple Ice Cream Petits Fours Coffee

The fish is decorated with sprigs of water cress, and the green color appears again on crackers which are toasted, buttered, and then sprinkled with minced parsley. The petits fours have tiny decorations of green frosting shamrocks.

The ice cream is made in the following way: chop fine six maraschino cherries, one-half cup walnuts, and one-half cup ginger. Melt one-half cup sugar in one-fourth cup hot Canton ginger syrup. Chill. Beat one pint cream; add cold syrup, nuts, and two cups crushed pineapple. Freeze. Sprinkle with tiny green candies just before serving.

The Three S's

Another St. Patrick's day hostess based her menu on a salad: Lobster Salad Almond and Olive Sandwiches Green Pepper Sandwiches Hawaiian Shamrocks Nuts Coffee Green Peppermints The lobster salad is an unusually attractive sight—even among the notoriously pretty salad family. Mix four cups canned lobster meat with one cup celery cut in small pieces. Add one-half teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon paprika. Mix with dressing made as follows: heat one can syrup drained from crushed pineapple. Mix three tablespoons sugar, three tablespoons flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon mustard and one-eighth teaspoon paprika. Add the hot syrup, stirring constantly, and bring to the boiling point. Add one-fourth cup vinegar and allow to boil slowly three minutes. When cool add enough green vegetable coloring to tint slightly, then mix with the salad. Serve in lettuce cups with the sandwiches.

Shamrock Green

Add one-half cup sugar and one tablespoon butter to one can crushed and drained pineapple. Cook about ten minutes, stirring frequently. Turn into small baked pastry shells which have been baked in shamrock shaped pans. Bake in a moderate oven for about ten minutes. When cold, decorate with shamrocks made by slicing green gum drops thin and cutting the slices into the desired shape.

NO UNLOCKED CAR SAFE

"Because your car is parked in front of your home, don't think it is safe from automobile thieves," warns the Delaware Automobile Association, which points out that auto thieves grasp opportunity wherever it is offered and as a rule specialize in residential streets where they are almost sure to find some cars with transmission or ignition keys in the lock.

"Many substantial citizens would be highly indignant," said Linnaeus L. Hoopes, Executive Secretary, of the Delaware Automobile Association, "if they were told they had contributed to the delinquency of young men and had actually, even though unintentionally, been accessories in the hit-and-run crime now so prevalent throughout the State. Yet, morally, that is what allowing a car to remain unlocked and unguarded on the street amounts to.

"Thousands of cars are 'borrowed' for joy rides by youths. In the course of the rides accidents occur. The knowledge that jail faces them as car thieves if they are caught deadens the humanitarian impulse to stop and render assistance. They are promptly classified as hit-and-run drivers.

"If car 'borrowing' were not made so easy by car owners, who permit their machines to remain unlocked in the streets, there would be fewer hit-and-run casualties. While it is not our intention to convey the thought that all hit-and-run cases originate in this practice, it is true that a large percentage can be attributed to the unlocked car.

"No citizens would allow a $2,000 diamond ring or other valuable to lie on his doorstep unguarded, a temptation to every passerby, yet thousands of motorists allow cars of that and higher values to remain at their curbs, with dangling keys an open invitation to every adventurous or criminally-minded person who happens along."

Mermaid

There was a good meeting and good attendance at Harmony Grange last evening. The committee which ordered the clover seed reported that the seed had been distributed. A report was given of the visit which 67 of the Grange members made to Center Grange last Wednesday evening. The secretary was instructed to write a letter to Center Grange, to express the appreciation for invitation and delightful entertainment that was accorded the visitors from Harmony Grange. Several communications were read from the members who had been sent flowers when they were ill; among them, Mr. Peach and Mr. Atwell. The Grange voted to dispense with the meeting next Monday evening, in order to leave the members free to attend the illustrated lecture which will be given by Dr. L. Ernest Smith, a missionary from West Africa, in the White Clay Presbyterian Church.

Members were present on Monday evening who had been absent for a time on account of illness—Sherman Wivel was out for the first time since last October; Richard Porter, who was knocked from his bicycle by an automobile and has been crippled for some time, was able to be out without crutches; Benjamin Hicks, who has been ill with pneumonia, was also present. And the Grange was glad to welcome back the chaplain, Mrs. Annie J. Dennison, who has been visiting in Philadelphia for five weeks.

The program, in charge of the lecturer, Miss Emmaline Derrickson, was on the theme "Nature." After a piano solo, four boys acted the charade "investigate," and in a game the members proceeded to investigate the trees of the neighborhood. A number of questions were given to the members, who read them in turn. Anyone might answer the questions, which were concerning the trees in the community; the variety of trees in certain places; methods of handling different trees to insure growth, etc. The lecturer's hour closed with a Spring Song by the Grange. It had been learned that the lecturer had recently had a birthday and several amusing surprises were in store for her.

Just before the close of the meeting, the sad news was brought of the death from heart trouble of one of the members of Harmony Grange, Heisler Chambers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Chambers. He had been sick for four weeks. He was not quite twenty years of age. A great deal of sympathy was expressed for the bereaved parents and a committee composed of Miss Emmaline Derrickson, Mrs. Annie J. Dennison and Harvey Ball, was appointed to draft resolutions on the death of the young man.

The funeral services of Heisler Chambers will be held at the home of his parents at two o'clock Thursday afternoon. Relatives, friends, members of Harmony Grange and of Mill Creek Fire Company are invited to attend the services. Interment will be made in the Friends' Burying Ground at Hockessin.

Signs of Spring

A reader called us this morning to tell us that Spring had come, and we hastened to ask just how many robins she had seen. Imagine our surprise when she told us that the first robin was not the most conspicuous sign of Spring in this locality, but that the sign was rather the first dump of tin cans and rubbish along one of our most beautiful drives, and that yesterday was the date.

We wish we might say something to keep the second load from being hauled. Town pride and cleanliness should extend beyond the town limits; it should at least include the main highways and lovely wooded spots. The tin can has its use, but its after life or discard seems to be carelessly considered.

Can You Trust Men?

You don't know whom you can trust these days, do you? Every fellow out for himself, willing to cut under you for his own personal gain.

Well, let's get out of here. Go some where where you can trust your fellow man. But it's a bad night to go out. Dark, stormy and windy.

What's the big line overboard? Oh, merely a high-tension wire with thousands of volts of electricity in it. But you didn't think anything of walking under it. You knew the lineman had made it safe.

Now we'll get in a taxi and ride to the station. Got to hurry, if we're to catch the train. This fellow certainly knows how to drive. Takes a steady hand to keep out of a crash, but we'll not worry about that.

Bump! Big hole in the street. Terrific strain on the springs and the car. But nothing breaks. Sweating men at forge and lathe had done their work well. The others who fastened the nuts and bolts when the car was assembled did their work.

Well, here we are at the station. We crawl into our berths and go peacefully to sleep. The train plows on through the dark and storm. One man at the throttle holds the well-being of hundreds in his hand. Water streams against the glass through which he peers out at the right of way. One signal missed and destruction awaits. Yet some other man, a nonentity in the cosmic scheme, has seen to it that all signal lights are burning.

And other obscure toilers who have repaired the track that day have gauged it and fastened it in its proper place.

And so it goes. Every day we trust our fellow men, men in far-off places, men whom we never see, men who, in the routine of their bread-winning, are their brothers' keepers.

Oh, yes, there are men you can trust!—Pittsburgh Press.

The Ethics of Journalism

More years ago than there is any use at all in recounting, I was a "cub" reporter on a famous New York newspaper. I was, indeed, very much "cub," for it was my first attempt to earn a livelihood. I had decided, or rather it had been decided for me by a well-intending relative, that I had a "knack," as they say in New England, for the thing called "journalism."

There have been times in the succeeding years when I have doubted that very gravely. However, I became a "cub" reporter in New York at the age of nineteen, my first assignment being the delectable 7:30 p. m.-4:30 a. m. period of "general work."

At 2 a. m. one day it was discovered in some mysterious fashion by the assistant night editor that a certain admiral of the navy had arrived in New York. Now it happened that this particular admiral was engaged at the moment in a somewhat acrimonious controversy with other naval officials as to whether a certain important thing had been done properly or improperly. Therefore an interview with him was highly desirable.

"Go up to such-and-such a street," directed my editorial chief. "That's the admiral's brother's residence. He's probably staying there."

"But," I ventured, a little timidly, "it's two o'clock, and—"

"What of it?" snapped the editor. "You're not on the Maine coast now. This is New York. Hustle up there!"

I "hustled" as fast as the transportation of those days would permit. And presently I was banging away at the doorbell and banging away at the door of a house in the district at present blithely known as the "Furious Fifties," while a policeman now and then sauntered curiously by. After a long interval of pulling and pounding a window opened somewhere above and harsh words fell upon my head somewhat to this effect.

"Young man, if you ring that bell again I shall descend and give myself the pleasure of throwing you down the steps!"

This seemed a little too much and I submitted a reply not altogether lacking in acerbity.

"Are you under the impression," I asked the admiral's brother—if such he were—"that I am here as a pastime, or for my own satisfaction?" After which I hastened away, nor paused for a reply. And whether, indeed, the noted and controversial admiral were really there I never learned.

In those days no person nor any individual's interests received much consideration from a newspaper in search of a sensation or of that elusive thing called "news." No one thought anything of routing a man out at 3 a. m. to demand from him an "interview" on something concerning which he very likely did not want to talk at any time. Little in mortal affairs or in human relationship was in any degree sacred to a newspaper editor or his reporters.

And the hard-hearted bailiff ejecting the widow and her belongings for unpaid rent was a philanthropist compared to some of the veteran news gatherers of those days. In short, "journalism," if it at all deserved such a characterization, was not only devoid of ethics, but often of common decency. In fact, to have used such a phrase as "journalistic ethics" in those days in nine out of ten "city rooms" of American newspapers, would have meant being laughed off the staff.

Today, a quarter of a century later, I believe that we have, for the most part, left that era behind forever. Competition is quite as keen, "scoops" are quite as avidly sought and as gleefully scored. But I doubt if a city editor in New York, or for that matter anywhere else, would countenance for an instant the methods resorted to twenty-five years ago to secure those "scoops." And I am confident that there is more consideration for human feeling today than would send a "cub" reporter to demand "interviews" at 3 a. m.

I think, indeed, that we have now in the United States—in England it has always existed in some measure—a definite code of newspaper ethics. To that code many, or most, of the leading American journals unquestionably subscribe. I mean to say that they have a standard of conduct, an honesty and cleanliness of purpose, a character, which definitely debars them from resorting to the vicious, or even to the manifestly unethical, in securing and presenting the "news" from day to day.

Certain papers—a few—held to those standards a quarter of a century ago, and some have come into being since with the avowed purpose of demonstrating the high possibilities of clean and unsmirched journalism. In my days as a youthful "journalist" in New York, the Evening Post there, the Republican in Springfield, Mass., the Boston Transcript, Watterson's famous Louisville Courier-Journal, the Portland Oregonian, the Philadelphia Public Ledger, the Brooklyn Eagle, and a few others were generally sniffed at in the metropolitan city rooms as "old ladies," but they were respected for all that, and not one of us but knew in his heart that they were right and that we were wrong!

As against the retrogressive influence that still holds in some degree in American journalism, other factors have come into existence; other mediums of publicity have arisen to counteract unethical methods, to fix and maintain a high standard and to prove that standard not only morally beneficial but economically practical.

There should be many more of these factors and ultimately there will be. The day of the vicious and ultra-sensational in journalism, as in literature, will pass, though here and there in certain regards it seems just now to have reached a climax. But that is the slough from which there will be a rapid emergence, for there is many a helping hand ready to aid, many influences and interests in America and elsewhere determined to establish and to maintain a high ethical and moral standard in journalism.

We may look confidently forward to the progress of the next quarter century in American journalism with every reason to hope that, in another generation, the sensational and the vicious, the "yellow," and even the unethical, will have disappeared.—M. T. G., in Christian Science Monitor.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

A SUGGESTION

March 14, 1928.

Editor Post:

Undoubtedly the Town Council will take some immediate measure to remove the dangerous condition caused by trees standing outside the curb line at several spots along Main street. They elect to remove the trees or bring the curbline outside of the trees. It seems a shame to sacrifice the trees, which add beauty to the street, and at the same time it may not be practical to narrow the street by moving the curb line. However, after the accident Sunday night, and in view of the fatal accident two years ago, both caused by the same tree, it is certain that one thing or the other must be done.

In the meantime, the dangerous condition exists, as soon as the street is dark, and as a temporary measure, red lights should be placed at these danger points, until more permanent safety measures are effected. —Motorist.

THE ENTERPRISING "TAP" BOYCE CONQUERS FIRE

To prove that Tap Boyce, Troubadour of the A. & P. gypsies, is a singularly enterprising young man, ask why the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company was not called to put out a fire in the rear of the A. and P. store last Wednesday morning.

This handsome, debonaire, and courageous youth, wielding a 98c broom in true Herculean style, beat out the stubborn blaze while Newark's busy down-town populace looked on with seemingly unseeing eyes.

Amid the crackling and the torturing heat of the hanging flames, "the lone troubadour," dancing intricate steps and chanting a wierd tune, single-handed turned imminent disaster into glorious victory and thereby earned a set of ear rings for himself.

The picturesque little building, adjoining the store-proper, stands intact, but the vine of honeysuckle which so gracefully adorned the walls before, begins again its slow trend of winding in and out and up, and in time will hide the tell-tale marks of the fire demon.—Contributed.

"WIFE SAVERS"

Those inimitable comedians, Beery and Hatton, are now "Wife-Savers" in the picture of that title which is at the Arcadia Wilmington, all of the week of March 19th.

Their illustrious successes in "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now," and others have placed this pair among the fore ranks of the screen comic actors.

In "Wife-Savers" the pair are with the Army of Occupation in Switzerland and many are the mix-ups with the natives of the villages.

Beery is a private in Uncle Sam's Army and Hatton is a second lieutenant, who loves salutes and demands them on every occasion.

CLEVER CAMPAIGN PIECE

The Extension Department of the University of Delaware, as a part of the "Grow Healthy Chick" campaign, is sending out a clever circular. The circular is being sent to the farmers of New Castle county from the office of Ed William, Jr., Acting County Agent, and was conceived and executed by H. S. Palmer, extension poultryman.

The circular gives a gossip telephone conversation between two hens, Mary and Ruth, and the conversation brings out all the good and bad methods in rearing chicks. The idea is unique and cleverly presented and should be effective in presenting the points in the campaign.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH NOTES

On Thursday evening, at 7:45, the Men's Club of the church will meet. Judge Daniel O. Hastings, of Wilmington, will be the speaker.

On Friday afternoon, at four o'clock, there will be Litany and Meditation. Services will be held at the usual hours on Sunday.

Good taste is essentially a moral quality. Taste is not only a part and an index of morality—it is the only morality. The first, last, and closest trial question to any living creature is, "What do you like?"—and the entire object of true education is to make people not merely do the right things, but enjoy the right things. What we like determines what we are, and is the sign of what we are, and to teach taste is inevitably to form character.—John Ruskin.

It is advisable to have horses' teeth examined by a competent veterinarian at least once a year. Generally all that will be required is to file off the long, sharp corners which are due to uneven wearing. This roughness first causes sore tongues or cheeks, followed by a lack of proper mastication together with digestive troubles. Older horses particularly are often much benefited by proper attention to the teeth.

Two laborers were discussing the antics of an airplane.

"I'd not like to be up there in that thing, now," declared one as the plane zoomed along upside down.

"Well, I'd not like to be up there without it," replied the other.

Artist: "Oh, well, it keeps the pot boiling, you know."

"Oh, I see, you light the fire with them, eh?"

U. S. HORSES FAVORED FOR GRAND NATIONAL

American are making a strong bid to win the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, near Liverpool, England, on March 30, and hopes are running high that the coveted prize will again be brought to this country.

There is no triumph in the turf world so eagerly sought by owners of jumpers as this British classic.

Stephen (Laddie) Sanford scored with the famous Sergeant Murphy in 1923 and A Charles Schwartz lifted the laurels for this country in 1926 with Jack Horner.

Both of these owners sailed recently to make the final preparations for another conquest. The early Letting has installed Sanford's Bright Boy and favorite at 12 to 1 against.

Greatest interest in American candidates centers, perhaps, in Billy Barton, owned by Howard Bruce of Baltimore.

Billy Barton has a notable career over the jumps in the Old Line State, where steeplechasing is touched with the same tradition that it is in England.

Billy Barton is recognized as a great horse and many fancy him, perhaps for sentimental reasons; but mere greatness of performance in the past does not spell victory in the arduous Great National.

The best of them have fallen by the wayside as they strove to come home in front over the thirty obstacles that mark the approximate five-mile course at the Grand National is one of the greatest turf events; usually the King and the Prince of Wales, or one of them, is a spectator. It is not the social event that the Ascot Gold Cup or the Epsom Derby is, but it attracts thousands from all over Britain.

Recently it has lured Americans in greater numbers than ever before. This year promises to set a record. An indication of this is seen in the announcement of several steamship companies that have arranged to turn several big liners into hotels to accommodate the crowds.

The ships will lie at anchor in Liverpool, and rates have been fixed so that those unable Aintree—heartbreaking obstacles that make the race the supreme test of steeplechase racing.

Billy Barton has been campaigning through the early season abroad and has won two out of three races. The bookmakers are willing to lay 100 to 1 generally against any particular horse winning the race.

However, the bookmakers seemed to think that Billy Barton had a much better chance than the 100 to 1 shot. So in January he was rated at 33 to 1. Then Billy Barton with a professional jockey up created an upset on January 20 when he won the Winchester Handicap at Newbury.

The significance of this was reflected in the contracting odds the very next day. From 33 to 1 they fell to 16 to 1. Subsequently, however, Billy Barton did not do so well. This may have been because an amateur was riding him. He did not place in the Newbury Steeplechase on February 15 and the National Trial Stakes on February 24.

American hopes are not confined to one horse. With Sanford's Bright's Boy favorite and Schwartz's one-time winner, Jack Horner, in the lists, the prospects seem bright.

sport is the silly talk about being a good loser. A real sportsman feels no chagrin at losing any more than he feels elation at winning. Why should he? Winning can be joyous only to him who sought to show superiority and losing sorrowful to him who sought and failed to show superiority.

During the dinner Coach Joe Rothrock announced that Robert Jaquette, center on this season's basketball team had been elected captain of the team for next season. Jaquette is a product of Newark High School and is a junior. He has made his letter two years in basketball and played a fine game the season just ended. It was also announced that R. P. Hobson, had been elected manager and Richard I. Rinard, assistant manager of basketball for next season. Letters for basketball and soccer were also awarded.

In addition to Dr. Williams short talks were given by Dean Dutton, Dr. Walter Hullihen, president of the University; James F. Wilson, president of the Student Council; Alex J. Taylor, a trustee who had charge of the building of the new swimming pool and Coach Rothrock.

Dr. Eastman, president of the Athletic Council, in his opening remarks told of the development of athletics at Delaware and what is being done in that line. He said more were taking part in physical exercises at the University than ever before. He took the occasion to thank several volunteer coaches who have been of great assistance in the development of some of the sports this college year, naming, Captain K. S. Whittemore, who coached tennis; Alfred Fletcher, soccer; Lt. Col. Robert M. Carswell, fencing, and Bernard Nobis, a student, who coached swimming.

Dean Dutton, after a short talk, introduced President Hullihen, who congratulated the swimming team on the success of the opening meet last Tuesday night and said the enlarged gymnasium and swimming pool greatly improved the facilities for some sports. Mr. Taylor, whose aid made the swimming pool possible, was given an ovation when called upon for a speech. He told of the work that has already been done and said it was now planned to revamp the old boiler house near the gymnasium so that a handball court, an additional basketball court and more showers and lockers, could be provided.

James E. Wilson, told of a movement among the students to form an organization among those students who have been out for manager of teams but have failed to secure the appointment. He said this would give some recognition to students who have worked hard without getting anything in return and that the principal duty of the proposed organization would be to entertain visiting teams.

Coach Rothrock, referring to the recent basketball season, said the team played good ball but lost a number of games. The squad, he said, had the Delaware fighting spirit and defeated Swarthmore for the first time in some years. He told of the large number of students who are taking part in the various sports and that in addition there are 160 freshmen and sophomores in the physical training classes.

Letter Awards—Coach Rothrock awarded letters for basketball and soccer as follows:

Basketball—Captain Creamer, Captain-elect Jaquette, Taylor, Hill, Barton, Harris, H. Holt and Manager Bringham.

Soccer—Captain Roser, Captain-elect Lang, Powell, Ryan, Bringham, Potts, Collins, Snowberger, Smith, Watson, Heppie, Hill, Lawrence and Manager Derrickson.

verbal argument continued and Ely testified that he punched Finkernagle. The men then struggled back on Finkernagle's property and Finkernagle struck Ely, knocking him down and breaking his glasses. Ely testified that his face was cut and that he had had to receive medical attention. Finkernagle admitted striking Ely after Ely had struck him first. Ely testified that Finkernagle had struck him again while he was on the ground.

Both Ely and James Blades, a witness, claimed that Finkernagle had given Ely a push when they were arguing on the south side of the street. This Finkernagle denied.

Benjamin Wirt and Lambert Ivans, witnesses, testified to seeing the men on Finkernagle's property and that they saw Finkernagle hold Ely on the ground and heard him say that he did not want to hit him. They said that they saw no actual blows struck, but assumed that blows had been struck as Ely's face was bleeding when he got up.

Ferd Finkernagle, Alfred Finkernagle's son, testified that the encounter took place on his father's property, but that he had not seen the fight.

J. Pierce Cann represented Ely at the hearing, while Finkernagle acted in his own defense.
