TWO DRAMATIC CLUBS SCORE NEW SUCCESSES

"Gods of the Mountain," "Simoom" and "Maker of Dreams" Please Large Audience

Thespians of the two colleges, members of the Dramatic Club of the Women's College and of the Footlights Club of the Men's College, did themselves full justice, last evening, in the three plays presented before a large audience, in Wolf Hall. There was not a weak place in any of the plays and each of the actors and actresses gave a very fine interpretation of his or her part.

The first play, "Gods of the Mountain," by Lord Dunsany, was laid in the Far East. Agmar, a beggar, leads four other beggars into representing five Green Gods, and in this manner obtains many favors from citizens of the town which they choose for their escapade. After obtaining food and drink, and after making the citizens worship them, they are finally turned into stone, by the real Gods of Marma, who appear, clad in green raiment.

Thruout the play there is a keen play on words. Louise Jackson, as Agmar, was excellent. Her voice carried to the farthest part of the hall and had a commanding tone, typical of her position as chief of the group. Rose Roberts, the thief, was also very good, and Helen Black, as a frightened citizen, almost brought tears with her plea for mercy.

The second play, "Simoom," was probably the best acted of the three. But there was an opportunity, in this play, for good acting. Ethel Ferguson, as Biskra, an Arabian girl and religious fanatic, was especially good. Her representation was typically Arabian and her apparent charm over Guimard, a lieutenant of the Zouaves, was thrilling. William Broughall, who played the part of Guimard, had a wonderful effect upon the audience. His part was difficult and required very strained acting. But he carried it through without fault and his manner of producing the scene before his death was particularly pleasing. Howard Alexander, as the lover of Biskra, was true to Arabian life.

"The Maker of Dreams," the third play of the evening, was light and represented two "strolling singers and dancers," Pierrot, played by Johnson Rowan, and Pierrette, played by Marian Spruance. "The Maker of Dreams," dressed as a manufacturer, portrayed by Joseph Fairbanks, convinces Pierrot, who is in pursuit of happiness, thru the channels of love and marriage, that his love is at his door. He gives him a "bill of lading," which entitles him to that reward, which he finds in Pierrette, his partner in their play.

All three of these characters played well. Miss Spruance made a charming Pierrette. Her voice had a musical ring and her stage manner was par excellence. Johnson Rowan and Joseph Fairbanks, as the practical man-

Gray Carter was unanimously elected President of the Student Body for 1921-1922, last Monday, when Walter Dent Smith, Franklin K. Wills, and Alvan Allen, the other Senior members of the Student Council declined. Gray has served on the Council constantly since his Freshman year.

The other results of the elections are as follows: Junior Class Representatives to Student Council, Pitman and Williams; Sophomore Class Representative, Leamy. The Managers of Football, Basketball, Baseball, Track, and Tennis are, in the order named, L. E. H. Roemer, W. F. P. Jacobs, M. L. Draper, H. B. Geoghegan, and W. D. Smith. The Assistant Managers of sports are: Murphy, Wade, Grier, Lynch, and G. Robinson.

To Dedicate Bowlder on Memorial Day

Memorial Day in Newark will be appropriately celebratedy by the G. A. R., the American Legion, the Churches, and the University. On the spot where all of the drafted men from rural New Castle county were inducted into the service during the recent World War, exercises will be held and a huge bowlder, marking the spot, will be dedicated. The location of the bowlder will be directly in back of Purnell Hall.

The program as at present planned including a band concert from 1 p. m. to 1.30, the singing of patriotic songs, introductory to remarks by President Hullihen, a patriotic address, and the placing of wreaths on the bowlder. This last exercise will be in charge of Major Short. Next will follow a firing of the national salute of forty-eight guns. This will be followed by "taps." The address will be given by Charles F. Curley, Esq., of Wilmington. During the war, Mr. Curly was U. S. District Attorney for Delaware.

Following is the committee in charge of the exercises: Dr. W. Owen Sypherd, chairman; A. G. Wilkinson, secretary; Mayor E. B. Frazer, Mrs. Charles B. Evans; J. Piling Wright; Major Clarence A. Short; and Major L. B. Row.

Senior Dance Held in Old College

Last Friday, the Senior Class held its final dance in Old College. Approximately fifty couples enjoyed the affair. The lights, covered in blue and gold, cast a pleasing glow over the dancers and the semi-formal flannels and blue coats also added effect. Freshmen service was a special feature when the refreshment hour rolled around.

It is hoped that succeeding graduating classes will hold similar occasions and thus establish a tradition.

LEST WE FORGET

Theodore Roosevelt said: "A man who is good enough to shed his blood for his country is good enough to get a square deal afterwards. More than that no man is entitled to, and less than that no man shall have."

Honor the soldier dead on Memorial Day. Remember the soldier living every day of the year.

WILLIAM LYON PHELPS WILL BE THE COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Large Number of Alumni Expected to be Present

The commencement program for the Class of '21 appears very attractive and worthy of Old Delaware. Particularly are we fortunate in being able to have Dr. William Lyon Phelps for the speaker on Commencement Day. Dr. Phelps is Lampson Professor at Yale and is a noted teacher of English. He is widely known in literary circles, having contributed many books of his own writing, and having been a respected critic of others. With his wide scope of knowledge, particularly along educational lines, he will undoubtedly contribute a talk to the graduating class that will interest them directly and convey some invaluable thoughts to them. A member of the University faculty who has heard Dr. Phelps speak recently says that, in his opinion, he is without question the best speaker he has ever heard. This complimentary remark coming from a dependable source is sufficient to assure us that we are extremely fortunate in having Dr. Phelps with us on Commencement Day.

Everyone should be looking forward expectantly to the Alumni Reunion on Saturday, June 11, when the old "grads," interesting in a thousand and one ways, will again assemble on

Competitive Drills To Be Held Tomorrow

The Annual Competitive Inter-Company Drills will be held on Frazer Field tomorrow from 8 to 10 a. m. Three army officers from Fort du Pont will act as Judges. A special dinner is being arranged for the winning company on the evening of May 31st.

Receive Rod

The Department of Civil Engineering has received a Philadelphia leveling rod, the gift of Mr. J. F. Price, the well known Wilmington Civil Engineer.

WILMINGTON ALUMNI HAVE LUNCHEON

Dr. Hullihen Addresses Alumni at Noon Gathering

The Wilmington Chapter of the University of Delaware Alumni Association held its first luncheon last Wednesday at noon, in parlors A and B of the Hotel du Pont. About fifty persons attended, and the meeting was very enthusiastic. College yells heard in the days of yore on the old Delaware Campus were reborn and reverberated thruout the halls of the hotel. There was plenty of music and good victuals in addition.

The feature of the gathering was the talk given by Dr. Hullihen, who outlined a few of the changes to occur around the University in the near future. He is extremely anxious for a new library, or an enlargement of the old one, and stated that plans will soon be laid for the necessary construction. In addition, Dr. Hullihen complimented the Wilmington organization on its many activities and declared that the chapter could and would be of much value to its mother institution.

A divergence was offered when every man and woman present was asked to stand up and give his or her name, class, and present occupation. This miniature "third degree" disclosed the fact that classes from 1875 to 1920 were represented, a fact worthy of gratification on the part of all interested in Old Delaware. A singular disclosure in addition resulted. A family of three including father, mother and son, all of whom had been graduated from the college, was present. The father, Thomas Davis, was graduated in 1875. He was followed a year later by Mrs. Davis. The son, J. Rankin Davis, was a member of the class of 1911. Another anomaly in the careers of these three is the fact that they were all taught by Dr. Theodore Wolf, former professor of chemistry at the college.

A very important meeting of the Wilmington Chapter will take place tonight at the Hotel du Pont. At this meeting, the committees on Scholarships, Athletics, and Membership will make official reports.

New England Alumni Dine and Elect Officers

D. P. Barnard 4th, C. W. Collins, Edward S. Cannon, L. Conner, John A. Hopkins, Jr., H. T. Hurlock, E. H. Kennedy, R. Paul Kite, Terry Mitchell, and E. N. Vallandigham, members of the New England Association of the University of Delaware Alumni, dined together in a private room at the Parker House, Boston, on Friday night, May 20, discussed the affairs of the University and education in general, and elected officers for the ensuing year. All present showed the heartiest and most loyal interest in the University, and the discussion as to its needs proved the serious and sympathetic fashion in which the New

A. A. E. BANQUET BRILLIANT SUCCESS

Dean Cullimore Speaks; More Than 100 Present

On Thursday, May 19, the University Chapter of the American Association of Engineers held its second annual banquet. The occasion was a reflection of the spirit and loyal work of the Engineering School and brought deserving credit upon the Chapter's boosters. More than a hundred students, faculty, and guests gathered around the banquet board..

Allan R. Cullimore, Former Dean of the Engineering School, made the principal address of the evening. The repast was served in true Delaware style, and the menu was excellent.

After the dinner, Walter Dent Smith, newly elected president of the association, greeted the guests and stated in a short speech of welcome, that he expected, as unanimously elected president, to have an extraordinarily large amount of co-operation during the next year.

Dr. W. Owen Sypherd, head of the English department, in the first talk of the evening presented an ideal for engineers. He pointed out the advantages of additional work, aside from the technical work, with which all engineers are affiliated, stressing particularly the ideal that the men should keep acquainted with the movements of the world. He stated that reading of magazines, good literature and other periodicals, was the best way they could spend their time, "after 5 o'clock in the afternoon."

Professor H. K. Preston, who is prominently connected with the American Association of Engineers, declared the Delaware Chapter could aid considerable in increasing the "ethical standard" of the University, first, by aiding the honor system, second, by helping to make the engineering department better. Prof. Preston continued by outlining the aims and accomplishments of the A. A. E.

Allan R. Cullimore, Director of the College of Engineering of the Newark, New Jersey Technical School, received an ovation when he arose to speak. Director Cullimore congratulated the men of the association upon their splendid achievements. He declared the meeting was the "biggest night in engineering" he had ever seen or heard about at the University. During his address, he referred to Edison's recent questionaire, regarding engineering, stating that "dependability" was what employers are hunting now. He stated that "personal responsibility" was the most essential characteristic requisite to success in putting across technical training. Another point emphasized was that work cannot be turned out by talking—try it and be on time. The importance of broadening out into financial and studies, literary works, and political activity were stressed. One of the engineer's biggest tasks is to sense public opinion, and therefore, he must be a many-sided man.

"Of" or "By"?

As we look back over the several years that have elapsed since the institution of student self-government at what was then Delaware College, we may well ask ourselves the question, "Has student self-government become as effective a force in student affairs as it should; after five years of effort and endeavor on the part of those who gave the movement its initial impetus?" And with a prejudiced view in favor of the affirmative, most of us must, thru our sense of honesty, yield to the negative.

No organization can be really effective without the backing of its individual members and it is generally conceded that an organization which has that backing, and whose efforts and policies are directed by capable minds, cannot help being effective. And here lies the chief trouble with student self-government as it operates today at the University of Delaware.

The students of the University have a peculiar attitude toward that government. They speak of it in the second person rather than in the first. They accept it as a condition here, one, perhaps of the necessary evils. They enjoy its social functions; they cry for more of them. They nominate their representatives to its governing board; they cheer when their representatives are elected. And that is as far as their interest goes. They forget that they, themselves, are the student government, and that its effectiveness depends upon them. They place their representatives upon a pedestal and, kicking that support away, leave them suspended there. And so it all may be summed up in the few words—lack of personal interest, lack of individual responsibility.

The keyword of any student government is "honor," a derivative of which is "honesty." Until the students of the University realize that fact, their government cannot become effective. Honesty of thought, action, and purpose by individuals will tend toward a system which can be stopped nowhere short of perfection. Pride in self is one of the essentials in the character of a big man, and pride in self will make for a better organization with which that self is connected. It is up to the students now. Shall it be government "of the people, by the people, and for the people," or shall it be merely government "of the people"?

For Delaware!

The summer is nearly upon us and with its advent comes the annual dispersal of students to many distant points. This year the dispersal will be more widespread than it ever was before. No doubt a mid-summer canvass, if one were possible, would show Delaware men to be far to the south; far to the west; far to the north and indeed, far to the east on the broad Atlantic, and in Europe.

The continued advancement of University of Delaware as an educational institution lies as much in the hands of her adventurous students as it does in the hands of the faculty or the trustees. If these men do not "boost" Delaware; and by this we mean the unconsicous sort of "boosting," then the progress of our Alma Mater will be shamefully retarded. These men will develop many new relationships and many enterprising contacts. May we not exhort them to be forever on the alert for an opportunity to "boost" Delaware, not in an obtrusive, blatant manner but in a manner so well-demeanored and acceptable as to be thoroly convincing? Then will people say, "He's a gentleman, he's from Delaware."

Review Board Dinner To Retiring Staff

T. Wilmer Holland, William T. Anderson, Roland C. Handy, and John A. Levandis were the guests of honor at a dinner of the Review Board in Old College last night. In addition, Dr. Hullihen, Dr. Sypherd, and George L. Townsend, Esq., were the dinner guests of the Board.

Dr. Hullihen complimented the retiring staff upon its accomplishments and stated that he believed the Review compared favorably with an University weekly in the country. Dr. Sypherd urged the Board to improve the quality of its workmanship and to give the Student Body what it needed even tho that was not what it wanted. Mr. Townsend pointed out the advisability of incorporating the paper in order to protect its business interests. General conditions of policy and management were also under discussion.

Honor System Effective at Yale

Recently, eight Sophomores in the Sheffield Scientific School were expelled from Yale University for "cribbing" in an examination. Thirteen others were placed on probation for failure to report this Honor System violation. This action was taken by the Faculty Committee on Discipline only upon the unanimous recommendation of the Student Governing Board.

The decisive action of the Student Governing Board is causing much favorable comment on the Yale Campus and is taken as a proof of the effectiveness of the Honor System.

EDISON'S QUESTIONS FOR COLLEGE MEN

Could the Wizard of Menlo Park Answer Our Set?

If there is a man in the University of Delaware who has not risen up in arms, as the result of Thomas A. Edison's recent questioning of college men, graduates, in many cases, in an attempt to find a man who is able to answer all of the questions contained in the World Almanac, he cannot rightly be called a Son of Delaware. Here, so the opinion goes, we study for the purpose of learning how to do specific work and do it correctly. And it goes without saying that a person who is versed on every subject, is what someone has called "A jack of all trades and master of none."

Here, at the University of Delaware, we should laugh at Edison's calling college men of today "ignorant." By way of comment, we feel that there are many things of which the famed Mr. Edison is totally ignorant. If he is not, then he is the brightest, most informed man in the world. To say that of any man today is to make a broad statement.

Sunday afternoon, three of us, after discussing some of the questions which Mr. Edison gave men seeking employment in his concern, and after answering all but seven questions, came to the conclusion that in our minds there are some things that the noted inventor cannot answer. We do not expect him to answer them, but here they are. What can you do with them?

In the singles Delaware took three out of the four matches, Pickford alone winning for Hopkins. The hardest fought match was that between J. Challenger and Wells which the former finally won, 8-6, 3-6, 6-4.

B. R. Challenger who umpired the matches, is to be commended for his fine work.

Mr. Manning complimented the local chapter on its pep and offered the sincere cooperation of the Wilmington chapter. He is a designing engineer for the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co. Altho the force employed dropped from 7,000 to 300, Mr. Manning was retained, a fact which substantiates his ability.

Varsity Minstrels Tomorrow Night

The Varsity Minstrel Show which was planned as a mammouth production has recently been augmented by several acts which will make it a super-mammoth show. The exact nature of these acts must not be divluged since it has been learned that scouts from the Keith Circuit are in town, trying to "steal our stuff." There is one thing funnier than a minstrel show and that is a super-mammoth minstrel show.

Checks and telegrams for reservations have been pouring in at an alarming rate. The lips of the manager are firm against more than one performance however, because of the proximity of an ancient custom which still seems to survive, namely, "final exams."

"Make It So"

The following letter, received by the Newark Post, admirably expresses the feeling of many alumni concerning our change of name:

To the Editor of the Post: When the orderly on board a United States man-of-war comes to the Captain and says, "Six bells, sir," the Captain says "Make it so," and the hour is officially declared. The Legislature, at the wish of the Board of Trustees, has said to the Alumni of what we lovingly called for fifty years "Delaware College," "The University of Delaware. Gentlemen," and, as you intimate, whatever our recent views as to the propriety of the change in name, we all now say heartily, "Make it so." If we are to call ourselves a university we must make ourselves such not merely in name and form, but in spirit, aim and fact. We have about us, immediately to the South, and immediately to the North, several universities that are such in name, form, spirit and fact. There are a good many universities in various parts of the Union that are such only in name and form. Let us join not the nominal and formal universities, but the real universities, with a distinctive character that shall make the University of Delaware, even though relatively small in size, a home of excellent things academic.

England Alumni are watching developments at Newark.

It was agreed that the Secretary should notify Dean Smith that any student who thinks of coming to Harvard or to Boston Tech can obtain thru the Association valuable information as to courses of study, living expenses, lodgings, and all other matters of interest and importance to men coming to Boston for graduate work. Members of the Association expecting to attend commencement this year undertook to make report to the Alumni meeting at Newark as to the New England organization and also as to matters of interest to men expecting to do graduate work at Harvard or Tech. It was agreed to hold another dinner of the Association on the night of Friday, October 21 next, and C. W. Collins was empowered to make all arrangements for the occasion. These officers were chosen: President, Samuel L. Conner, Professor of Civil Engineering, Tufts College, Medford, Mass.; Vice-President, Edward S. Cannon, Harvard Law School; Treasurer, C. W. Collins, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Melrose Highlands, Mass.; Secretary, E. N. Vallandigham, Chestnut Hill, Mass.

Professor Rees Addresses Rehabs

Last Wednesday, the Rehabilitation men were given a very snappy talk on the "Man Who Means Business," by Prof. C. J. Rees. He compared a man's life with the four dimensions in the mathematical world. Lenth was compared to the man's physical make-up. Width may be designated by his social power or his ability to get along well with with his fellowmen. Depth may be considered as a man's mental power. That indescribable fourth dimension in a man's life may be called his soul element, and is a man's ability to make a masterpiece of his life in the equal development of all sides of his make-up, his physical body, his social power, and his mental qualities.

Miss Mabel Tebo, student coach and advisor, is to be congratulated for having worked all of the plays up to such a high standard. Moreover, Dr. Foster, who did the faculty coaching, was responsible for much of the success of the triple exhibition of dramatic work. Miss Eleanor Marshall, '22, Madge Rickard, '23, and Florence Phillips, '23, worked out the costumes and settings. Miss Dorothy Wolff and Miss Rachel Taylor also gave assistance in managing and directing the plays. J. Paul Wintrup had charge of the advertising and assisted with the scenery.

President's Inspection

President Hullihen and members of the faculty reviewed and inspected the battalion last Thursday morning and, at the same time, President Hullihen presented the members of the winning platoon with medals for supremacy in rifle shooting.

The battalion was formed on Frazer Field, and, after the usual military ceremony of playing the Star Spangled Banner, the battalion was formally presented to the President by Cadet Major Gordy. Subsequently, the President, followed by the faculty, (in a column of twos,) inspected the men. Then followed the formal presentation of medals. Milton Terrel, '24, was awarded the individual medal, over Brown, '23. The winner was not decided until Thursday morning, when Terrell won in the shoot-off.

Members of the winning platoon were: Wise, C. A. Smith, Burdge, Cooper, Daniels, Robbins, Terrill, Linn, and Winters.

R. O. T. C. Seniors Visit Proving Grounds

On Thursday, May 19, twenty Seniors of the R. O. T. C. unit and Major Row made an interesting visit to the United States Proving Grounds, at Aberdeen, Maryland. The Commandant, who is a personal friend of Major Row, took special pains to make the trip worth while and the visitors were permitted to see at first hand many of the tests then going on.

The visitors were first conducted to the Museum, where they were shown many relics of the recent war. Among these relics was a complete field machine shop, consisting of several large trucks on which were found lathes and other machines. Several tanks which had seen service in France were also objects of much interest to the students.

From the museum, the students were next taken to the Instrument Room, where the chronographs, or instruments for recording the muzzle velocity of shells, were found. The next point of interest was the airplane hangar, in which was found several of the large bombers used in practice for bombing, one of which was one of the well-known Handby-Page bombers. A thoro examination was made of these planes and many details explained by the Commander.

Finally, the visitors were taken to the range, and the action of the big guns which were being tested was explained. The whole trip was full of interest for those taking it, and too much credit cannot be given to Major Row for his efforts.

Members of Sigma Phi Epsilon and a number of out-of-town guests participated in the annual Spring informal dance of the fraternity, in Old College, Saturday night. It was estimated that seventy-five couples were present.

The hall was decorated in a pleasing manner. The lights were made to represent dice and on the large panels, huge Aces were placed. At the entrance, two "hands" were arranged on the panels, one a "Royal Straight Flush," the other a "Full House."

Dancing continued until 12 o'clock. Music was furnished by the "Original Six." The patronesses were: Mrs. Walter Hullihen, Mrs. H. E. Tiffany, Mrs. George L. Townsend, Mrs. George Carter, Mrs. L. K. Bowen and Miss Quaesita Drake.

Kiwanis Club Beats Faculty Nine

Our beloved faculty last Friday went down to defeat in one of its hardest fought and best played games this season. The team took a trip to Wilmington and played the Kiwanis Club baseball team on Harlan Field.

"Doc" Winters, of the Kiwanians, pitched an excellent game and fanned twleve men. Both teams put across a run in the fourth inning, and the game which was scheduled to last for seven innings had to be stretched another inning. In the eighth inning Hoch, of the Kiwanians, knocked the ball into left field for a double and drove home the winning run, making the score 2 to 1, in favor of the Kiwanians. Batteries — Delaware: Shipley, Kalp, and Kirkbride; Kiwanians: Winters and Hoch.
