Dr. Case Leaves On Tour of Colleges

Will Visit Midwestern Universities

Dr. C. R. Kase, director of dramatics for the University, left Saturday, November 3, to go on a lecture tour for the Association of American Colleges. In cooperation with the arts program of that organization, Dr. Kase will visit the Missouri State Teachers College at Springfield, the University of Arkansas, the University of Oklahoma, the Oklahoma A. and M. College, and Alleghany College. He will spend two or three days in each college, meeting with groups and individuals for a discussion of problems and objectives. In addition, he will help each group to make its theatre of maximum service to its people and the community.

Dr. Kase will give one formal lecture in each college. The topic for his main lecture is "New Horizons for the Theatre." He will also discuss such subjects as "A Program for College Theatre," "Producing a Classic," "Theatrical Production: A Project in the Integration of the Arts," "Dramatic Art for Secondary School," and "Dramatic Conferences and Festivals."

Pep Fest to Be Held Friday Evening

The second pep fest of the year will be held this Friday, Nov. 9, in the auditorium of Wolfe Hall, from 7:30 to 8:00 p. m. Coaches Murray and Kurman, together with the football and soccer teams will be present.

This gathering will provide you with the opportunity to learn our cheers and to meet the fellows who carry the Blue and Gold on the athletic field. The first pep fest fell through rather completely in spite of the efforts of George Catts and her cheerleaders. This time let's show the teams that we are really behind them, and get in shape to yell them on to victory against Haverford on Saturday.

College Hour

For College Hour on Monday, November 12, a musical program has been selected. The first part of the program will consist of a sound film, a studio performance by John Charles Thomas. The second part will be four of Fritz Kreisler's violin selections played by Barbara Webster with Betty Kerr as pianist. These selections include Rondino (on a theme by Beethoven), Leibesleid (Love's Sorrow), Farewell to Cucullain (Londonderry Air) and Shon Rosemarin (Fair Rosmarin).

Second Meeting Of Veterans Held

Dean Daugherty Explains Liason Work With Vets' Adm.

At the second general meeting of the veterans on the campus held in Brown Hall yesterday evening, Dean Daugherty explained the liason work he has been doing to assure better cooperation between the University and the Veterans' Administration. Recently Dr. Daugherty visited the office of the Veteran's Administration in Philadelphia to gain a broader picture of the problems met by veterans in readjusting to civilian life.

Mr. Charles E. Grubb, Business Administrator of the University, also spoke at the meeting. He explained why the University has followed the practice of charging students enrolled under the G. I. Bill of Rights a tuition fee. Since the tuition of the in-state students is usually paid by the state government, the purpose of charging veteran's tuition is to transfer this cost from the state to the federal government. A bill is now pending in Congress to eliminate this charge.

The representative committee of veteran's, consisting of Harry Huxford, chairman, Dick Shapiro, and Jim Mays reported progress in lining up and summarizing the more important problems faced by the G. I.'s on campus.

Brown Hall Will Hold House Party

On Saturday evening, November 10, the fellows of Brown Hall are throwing a house party at 8:30 p. m. Music for dancing will be provided by records, and refreshments will be served.

All members of the University are invited to attend. You may come stag or with a date.

Education School Reports Activities

Miss Margaret McCarthy and Dr. W. Earl Armstrong recently attended a meeting of the governing board of the Eastern States Association of Professional Schools for Teachers in New York City. The major purpose of the association, which is composed of two representatives from each of the eight eastern states, is to guide and encourage student participation in college affairs. It was decided at the meeting to use a part of the funds of the association to make it possible for students in one college to visit students in other colleges and study their student activities and government. On March 14th and 15th a large number of representatives from each of the eight eastern states will meet in New York City in order to exchange ideas on student participation in college activities.

Misses Rena Allen and Emma C. Ehlers attended the "12th Institute on the Exceptional Child" at Duke University on November 2, 1945. After this meeting they visited the North Carolina State College for Women at Greensboro, North Carolina.

On October 24, 1945, nine of the education students, accompanied by Miss Alice Van de Voort and Dr. Armstrong, went to the New Castle Schools to administer a number of tests. Each student administered tests and was responsible for the scoring and explanation of the results to the teachers concerned.

Members of the class in "Introductions to Teachers" were guests for half a day at the Alexis I. duPont School, observing a modern school and its teaching methods and equipment. On November 13th the class is planning to spend a whole day at the school, and they are to observe what kind of tasks teachers are called upon to perform in order to see what qualifications they, as students, must develop.

The Home Economics Club is sponsoring a card party on Friday, November 9. The entire student body is invited to attend. The party will be held in the Hilarium from 7 to 10 p. m. The price of a ticket is 30 cents. Tickets may be bought from any member of the ticket committee. This committee is composed of Marianna Hollingsworth, chairman; June Warrington, Mary Ruth Thomas, and Naomi Wolter.

There will be prizes and refreshments, and the fun of a good bridge game or other card games.

The general chairman for the card party is Joan Cauffiel. The other committees are as follows:

Prizes—Jane Milbourne, chairman; Nancy Jermee, June Brown, and Hannah Parsons.

Refreshments—Dorothy Jawarowski, chairman, Louise Eirman, Marian Verne, Dorothy Lyons.

Both fellows and girls are welcome, so come on out and have a good time. See you there Friday night.

Blue Hens Score Double Victory

Saturday proved to be a red letter day for the athletic teams of the University of Delaware. The informal gridiron eleven gained its first win of the season by defeating Drexel by a 26-12 margin, while the soccer team scored its second victory over Gettysburg, 2-1.

Paced by the fine playing of Angelo Cataldi, the football team showed a form reminiscent of the days of Delaware's undefeated teams of 1941-42. Cataldi scored three of the Blue Hens four touchdowns; Newell Duncan, substituting in the fullback spot carried the fourth one over the Dragon's goal line. Phil Neff's placekicking resulted in two conversions out of the four attempts.

Two extra periods were required for a final decision in the soccer game at Gettysburg. Delaware's first score was registered in the third period by Bill Barnes, and the goal scored by Joe Mackey in the second overtime period gave the Blue and Gold the edge needed for victory.

For further details of both games, turn to page three.

Film History of States To Be Made

Historical Productions, Inc., of New York, has begun work on a project whereby they will film each of the forty-eight states, sending these films to schools throughout the country. The state of Delaware has been chosen as the first state to be filmed. It is not definite whether or not the University of Delaware will take part in this production, but it is very probable that it will.

Col. Ashbridge Retires

Colonel D. M. Ashbridge has retired from his army duties at the University of Delaware. It is expected that he will resume the directorship of the Business Guidance and Placement Bureau at the University, which he held from 1936 to 1940. Colonel Ashbridge is now on terminal leave on an extended trip through the West.

Captain Donald R. Morton, Jr., has temporarily taken over his duties as head of the ASTRP, pending the arrival of a regular Army officer.

Chemical Engineering Notes

Eleanor Lupton Kennard, an alumna of the University, is now assistant research worker in the department of Literature Studies on Jet Propulsion.

Ruth Ann Staszkesky is helping as an assistant in the plastics laboratory.

Jean and Charles plan to live in Ithaca, New York, where she expects to be teaching in a nursery school and he will be attending Cornell University. Eventually he will go to the Harvard Law School.

Jean reports that she and a large group of other alumnae greatly enjoyed the dinner meeting of the New York Alumnae Chapter on October 17 at which Miss Elizabeth Durham, managing editor of the Rutgers' Alumni Magazine spoke on the problems involved in producing such a publication.

Phyllis Denny, '45, of Westfield, New Jersey, is now employed in New York City in the home economics testing laboratory of the United Fruit Company.

E-52 First Postwar Production Deemed Very Successful

The first post-war performance of the E-52 Players was presented last Thursday and Friday nights in Mitchell Hall. The play was The Great Big Doorstep; the director, Dr. C. R. Kase; the result, success and a big step forward in the Dramatic Program.

The Great Big Doorstep is a folk play picturing life among the Cajuns in the Delta country of Louisiana, a part of America that the rest of the country knows very little about. E. P. O'Donnell, the author of the novel on which the play is based, knows his Cajuns first-hand and Francis Goodrich and Albert Hackett have reflected this authenticity in their adaptation of Mr. O'Donnell's book.

The faults with this production lie mainly in the dramatization, however. The Crochet family itself becomes very real because the characters are well drawn. The father (Taggart Evans) with the sirens in his stomach and the worry that he has a failure in his heart, the wise and shrewd mother (Sybil Levenson), her family breaking up about her—these are all real people. The authors are much less successful in their supporting cast; most of these roles are vague and mere generalizations. Mr. Tobin, the Texan (Bill Merion) is the typical Texan—the smile-when-you-say-that-podner type we see so often in the movies. The same can be said of Mrs. Dupre, (Marlyn Greensberg), Tayo (Charles Rogers) and Mrs. Beaumont Crochet (Jean Tullar). This is not a reflection on the actors but on the dramatists who, in drawing the central figures so carefully, forgot the background. The acting in The Great Big Doorstep seemed to me exceptionally good. The two members of the University Drama Group, Taggart Evans and Parker Thomas, borrowed for the occasion were very successful in their roles. Mr. Evans had a rich, full part and he made the most of it. The scene in which the Commodore (Mr. Evans) and his "brudda Dewey" (Mr. Thomas) discussed Dewey's impending "funeral" was wonderful.

Sybil Levenson as the mother was marvelous. A very smooth and confident actress, she makes every word and gesture count. Her scene at the makeshift dinner table was excellent. As her sensitive son Arthur, Joe Woods proved himself a versatile actor. He bridged the gap from the high comedy of the poolball sequence to the pathos of his scenes with his mother very well.

One of the surprises of the show was George Catts' performance as the girl who wanted a lover to renounce before taking the veil. She was completely natural and acted with her whole body (particularly her feet). Another surprise was Jane Booker as Topal. She has a very interesting voice and delivery and should go far in the E-52. Charles Rogers was excellent in the highly melodramatic scene with Bill

University Orchestra

The first meeting of the University Orchestra was held yesterday at 4:15 in the Music building. Numerous prospective members were present, but the orchestra still needs more talent. The students on the campus possess the ability needed. You do not need to be an expert soloist since the orchestra is just in its infancy. Let's have a much larger turnout next week.

Merion, Marlyn Greenberg as the snooty Landlady and Jean Tullar as the terrorist were completely convincing. And, of course, June Anderson and Betty Hutchinson as the lively twins who made more entrances and exits than any character I can remember, with the exception of the nurse in The Man Who Came to Dinner, were very good.

We all owe a vote of thanks to everyone concerned with this production: Dr. Kase; his assistant, Nancy McQuaid; production manager Astrid Delitzsch; and all those behind the scenes from Sergt. Layton Maybrey and Ensign Miriam Lewis for their invaluable help in scenery and makeup to Ruth Edgely who was the offstage voice of the baby, T. J. Take a bow everybody!

Books of General Interest Listed By Library Staff

During the last world war year, one of the University of Delaware's outstanding professors did some miscellaneous reading which the library staff thinks significant enough to call to the attention of the students. The list contains books of every description, and should be a useful guide in the selection of outside reading.

The war had a notable effect on the professor's choice of books, for the list includes Belgium in Bondage, by J. A. Goris, a description of the conquest of Belgium by the German Army; U. S. War Aims, by Walter Lippman, a book telling why we fought, how we fought, and how we shall shape the peace; What To Do With Germany, by L. Nizer, a blueprint for winning the peace after the conquest of Germany; United We Stand, by B. Mathews, a short survey of each of the thirty-two members of the United Nations; The Great Decision, by J. T. Shotwell, a discussion of the problems of postwar control of international affairs; Lessons of My Life, by Lord Vansittart, a book containing the author's views regarding Germany and the Germans, and what should be done with them; The Time for Decision, by Sumner Welles, a discussion of American foreign policy and plans for peace; and The Gentlemen Talk of Peace, by W. B. Ziff, a realistic approach to the problems to be faced in dealing with our defeated enemies and providing for a lasting peace.

Biographies are always interesting for they give us a good idea of how people lived in times and places entirely different from our own. The Nazarene, by Sholom Asch, is a novel based on the life of Christ, and should be read by everybody. Four-Score Years, by G. G. Coulton is an autobiography—the record of a scholar's life; and the life of William Hazlitt, written by C. M. Maclean and called Born Under Saturn, are some of the ones chosen.

Turning toward the humorous side, we find The Education of Hyman Kaplan, by L. Q. Ross, a group of amusing sketches which

Blue Hens Defeat Drexel Tech, 26-12

Aug Cataldi Stars For Victors

Scoring three touchdowns in the second quarter and adding another in the third period, the University of Delaware rolled over Drexel Institute of Technology, 26-12, Saturday as the team resumed their football rivalry after a three year lapse.

The big gun in the Delaware attack was Angelo Cataldi, fullback, who tallied three of the touchdowns. Cataldi catapulted over the goal line from the one-yard spot after a 78 yard touchdown drive that enabled the Blue Hens to tie Drexel 6-6 and pave the way for Delaware's 19-12 lead at halftime.

Cataldi bulled through center from the 5 yard marker in the third quarter to sew up the victory with the final touchdown, resulting from a 58 yard push set up on a recovered fumble and aided by an unnecessary roughness penalty committed by Drexel.

A 48 yard run by Dick Dowd, Drexel left halfback, in the second quarter gave the Dragon's their second and final score of the game. Drexel's fumble by Smith on its own 42 in the third quarter paved the way for Cataldi to score again and Neff's placement was good, giving Delaware a 26-12 margin. In the first half Delaware outscored Drexel 12 to 4 on first downs.

Dowd's run climaxed a 72 yard drive, started by Macri, who took the kick-off and carried it back to his own 28 yard line. A long pass from Smith to Scott put the ball on the Blue and Gold 48 from where Dowd raced around end to score.

After stalling Delaware on the 9 yard line, Drexel could not hold the Hens who answered with three touchdowns by Cataldi and one by Newell Duncan, substitute fullback who piled over the goal line from the 2 yard marker, thus climaxing a 46 yard drive for the second score. Phil Neff converted the extra point to send Coach Murray's men ahead 13-6.

Before the second quarter ended, Cataldi plunged three yards thru center for the third Delaware score, but the placement was low. This score resulted from a 61 yard drive when Joe Hearn carried Dowd's kickoff to Delaware's 39.

A pass from Cataldi to Ken Barnes put the ball on Drexel's 31 and Scotty Duncan carried it to the 13 on a reverse, then Neff moved to the six. S. Duncan shoved on to the three, from which Cataldi went thru for the final score.

Delaware Booters Down Gettysburg

The University of Delaware Soccer men bounced back into the win column as they defeated Gettysburg for the second time, 2-1.

Bill Monaghan and Tommy Riggan in the third quarter kept the Kurman eleven on even match with their rivals. Monaghan saved many goals and proved a big enough thorn to stop a penalty kick. Tom Riggan, who has been playing stalwart ball all season, drove the ball deep into enemy territory from where Bill Barnes scored the first point of the game. Gettysburg came right back to knot the score at 1-1 until the end of the fourth quarter.

In the first overtime period neither team was able to score, despite the fact that the Gettysburg eleven had the wind behind them. In the final and second overtime period Joe Mackey scored on a corner kick that made the final count 2-1.

Seniors Defeat Frosh in Hockey Return Match

After fighting the Freshmen to a 1-1 tie on last Friday the Seniors came back Monday to defeat them in a return match by a score of 2-0.

Both teams went on the field with a determination to break the tie of Friday's game, but time and again the Seniors seized the initiative to carry the ball into the Freshman defense. The Freshman backs remained stubborn and kept the ball out until near the end of the first half when Platt, Senior left wing, raced the ball down the alley, dodged the confused halfback and shot the ball to Nolde, who slipped it past the goalie for the first tally. The second and last goal made by the Seniors came soon after when a hard pass from Stonemetz to Nolde clicked to score another goal.

The second half proved to be fast and furious hockey—the ball first at one end of the field and then at the other. All four wings, Platt and Magee for the Seniors, and Cameron and Tatnall for the Freshmen, were exceptionally good and played with very little let up. The Senior backfield clicked again as their teamwork kept the ball out of the goal. The Freshmen were unable to make any score by the time the final whistle blew, and the Seniors walked away from their last hockey game at the University of Delaware with an undefeated season.

The lineup:

Freshmen	Seniors
Wooleyhan R. W.	McGee
Weber R. I.	Hulme
Fouracre C.	Nolde
Taylor L. I.	Kirk
Cameron L. W.	Platt

Murdock R. F.	Pettyjohn
Gordon L. F.	Dukek
Tierney G.	Delitzsch

Substitutes: Seniors — Barlow, LeFevre. Goals: Nolde, 2.

Freshmen Defeat Sophs in Hockey

Score: 1-0

On Thursday afternoon, November 1, the Freshmen, led by their speedy captain, Jean Cameron, defeated the Sophs in the first big hockey game of the season by a score of 1-0.

The fine offensive play of the Freshman team highlighted the entire game, but three of their goals were nullified by offside fouls. The Freshman score was tallied late in the first half by the left wing and captain, Jean Cameron.

The Sophomores came back in the second half with renewed vigor, but were unable to score. The playing of Henri Miller, left halfback, was outstanding for the Sophomores.

The lineup:

Freshmen	Pos.	Sophomores
Tatnall R. W.		Shipherd

International

The past week has brought signs of new approaches to closing the widening gap between the Big Three on matters of fundamental importance to the building of a new world order:

The first of these is Prime Minister Attlee's arriving in Washington this week to confer with President Truman primarily on the control of the atomic bomb. It is reported that he will back the typical British attitude in asking for internationalization of the bomb.

A second step is seen in the adjournment of the new Far Eastern Advisory Commission (made up of ten Allied nations with interests in the Pacific area) right after its first meeting in Washington last week. This was to give Russia time to join the deliberations and implies that Soviet cooperation is necessary.

A speech by Secretary of State Byrnes last week, in which, while warning against regional blocs, he recognized the fact that Russia has special interests in the small nations of eastern Europe, seemed to be designed to lessen anxiety over Russia's course in that area.

At Home

This week Washington is the scene of the Labor-Management Conference at which eighteen representatives of industry and eighteen representatives of labor are attempting to solve the problems involved in increasing labor's wages and averting strikes by collective bargaining. America's success or failure at economic stabilization will undoubtedly have great effect on other nations.

The question of unifying the armed services is still an open one, with the Army (including the Air Force) favoring it and the Navy opposed to it.

Reductions of $5,920,000,000 have been granted by the 1945 tax bill in its final form, the first tax-cutting bill in sixteen years.

Shoes and automobiles have been crossed off the rationed list.

Last week saw friction developing between the President and Congress after seven months of harmonious relations. The rupture is unavoidable in sight of the domestic problems that have come to the foreground as a result of the ending of the war.

Abroad

China is in the throes of an undeclared civil war, as the question of physical and political control of strategic north China remains unsolved.

The situation in Java continues to grow worse, with the nationalists claiming they will settle for nothing less than political independence, and the Dutch refusing to negotiate at all until the government has been disbanded and the Nationalists unarmed.

Riots in Palestine and Egypt occurred on the anniversary of the Balfour Declaration of 1917, which favored Palestine as the Jewish nation at home. A solution is not in sight to date, but it was reported that an Anglo-American board of inquiry might be formed to study the problem.

President Vargas of Brazil was overthrown by the military after a fifteen year dictatorship. His successor, pending the December election, is the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Jose Linhares.

This week brings with it the beginnings of a new constitution for France to be written by 586 newly elected Deputies to the Constituent Assembly. Although the leading parties have sharply divergent views as to its structure, they agree that it must be "something new but something reasonable."

Library Books

First appeared in the New Yorker. Along the fiction line are found also Time Must Have a Stop, a current best-seller by A. Huxley, which presents the author's personal plan for world betterment. In the same category is None But the Lonely Heart, by Llewellyn, an intimate character study of a young Cockney living in the London slums.

The library has an ample collection of history books, and many of them were selected for informative perusal. Gallic Charter, by C. J. Laurent, is a review, in popular style, of French political history from 1870 to 1944. The Mediterranean, by E. Ludwig, is a chronicle of the peoples whose lives have been connected with the Mediterranean, from the Phoenicians to the Spaniards and Greeks of 1939; A Study of History, by A. J. Toynbee, contains six volumes, with more to come. The first three books of this series deal with the growth of civilizations; the last three deal with the breakdown and disintegration of civilizations.

The Shape of Books to Come, by J. D. Adams, a series of essays forming a survey of American literature since 1900, and Henry James: The Major Phase, by F. O. Matthiessen, a critical examination of Henry James' last novels are two books in the English field. As for education, Teacher in America, by J. Barzun, is a treatise on teaching in America—what is taught, and why and how. General Education in a Free Society (Report of the Harvard Committee) is an inquiry into the problems of general education. The Loom of Language, by F. Bodmer, is a study of the origin, growth, and present use of language.

Freshman history students should be interested in Confessions of St. Augustine, one of the great pieces of devotional literature, here translated into modern English by F. J. Sheed. Another translation is found in Tyl Ulenspiegel, by C. DeCoster, an epic novel with a sixteenth century Flemish background.

Shavian essays in a mellow than usual mood are found in Everybody's Political What's What, by G. B. Shaw. Persons and Places and The Middle Span are the memoirs of G. Santayana. Memoirs of a Superfluous Man, by A. J. Nock, consists of essays reflecting the author's "philosophy of informed common sense."

A Masque of Reason, by R. Frost, is a brief masque in blank verse with a biblical setting; another book of verse is Tahl, an epic poem by J. Ingalls which tells of the search in modern times for the meaning of life.

Other miscellaneous books are: A New Model of the Universe, by P. D. Ouspensky, which presents the principles of the psychological method in its application to problems of science, religion, and art; The Condition of Man, by L. Mumford, a rounded interpretation of the development of modern man; Reflections on the Revolution of Our Time, by H. J. Laski, an analysis of the nature of contemporary revolution; and Mainsprings of Civilization, by E. Huntington, an analysis of the role of biological inheritance and physical environment in influencing the course of history.

All of the books mentioned are on display in the library. Books of every type are included in the list, and the student is likely to find many to interest him.
