RESIDENTS TO ASK IMPROVEMENT OF CAPITOL TRAIL TO WILMINGTON

Circulate Petition to Have Road Widened and Re-paved

Newark residents are signing a petition to be shortly presented to the State Highway Commission, asking that the road between Newark and Wilmington, part of the Capitol Trail, be repaired.

The petition is being circulated by Representative William F. Rupp and George R. Leak. When it is presented to the Highway Commission, it is expected that it will be suggested that the work be done as part of the State's unemployment relief program.

The road has long been a subject of comment in this community. Long stretches of it are extremely rough and the entire road, from here to Wilmington, is considered too narrow. The petition asks that it be widened

In recent years, since the construction of the concrete route to the State Highway, many persons have preferred that road, thought it is somewhat longer. Other routes have been similarly favored, although all are longer than the Capitol Trail.

It is pointed out that the regular bus service between Newark and Wilmington runs over the Capitol Trail route and that the road is daily used by college students who commute to Wilmington, as well as by Newark residents who also commute. It is considered one of the most thoroughly travelled in the State. The fact that it has been allowed to fall into disrepair in recent years is, therefore, considered lamentable.

TWO FOREIGN STUDY GROUPS WILL SAIL FOR EUROPE SHORTLY

Twenty-one Members in First Section for Germany Pleases Officials

Two Foreign Study groups, under the plan originated at the University of Delaware, will sail for Europe, one on Saturday for Germany and the other on Wednesday for France.

The group that sails Saturday will be the first to be sent to Germany under the plan. It will include 21 students from 13 different institutions. In view of the economic situation, the officials at the University of Delaware are pleased with this initial number.

In the group for France, which will sail on the Mauretania of the Cunard Line at 5 p. m. Wednesday, there will be 62 students from 30 different institutions. The German group will sail on the motorship St. Louis of the Hamburg Line.

There will be no students from the University of Delaware in either group, for the first time since the plan was started. However, Miss Ellen Henderer, of Mt. Holyoak College, whose home is in Marshallton, will be a member of the German Group, and Miss Ann Moore Glassburn, of Wilmington, daughter of Lieutenant Colonel Robert P. Glassburn, who was transferred this year from his post as commandant of the R. O. T. C. at the University of Delaware, will be a member of the group for France. Miss Glassburn is a student from Vassar.

The two groups have headquarters at the Hotel New Yorker, New York City, before sailing. Dr. Walter H. Lihen, president of the University of Delaware, will address both before their departures. A. G. Wilkinson, business administrator of the University, will go to Germany to arrange business details of the group there.

Dr. Wallace M. Johnson to Attend Camp and Then Enjoy Vacation

Dr. Wallace M. Johnson will leave Sunday for Fort Hancock for two weeks training in Medical Officers' Reserve Corps, and then will motor with Mrs. Johnson and son Wallace to Dr. Johnson's parents' home in Uniontown, Pa., where they will spend several days. They will then motor to Hillsdale, Mich., to visit Mrs. Johnson's parents, returning about the 10th of September. While in Michigan Dr. Johnson will do some special work at the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor.

Dr. L. L. Bower, of Philadelphia, will take over Dr. Johnson's office and outside practice and will occupy Dr. Johnson's residence while he is away. Dr. Bower comes to Newark highly recommended by the medical profession, and we extend to him our greetings.

AMERICAN LEGION CONVENTION IN REHOBOTH FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

To Open With Banquet Tomorrow Night; Number of Newark Legionnaires to Attend

The Delaware American Legion and Women's Auxiliary will hold their convention at Rehoboth next Friday and Saturday. The convention will open with a banquet Friday evening. It is expected that Anthony Summers, of Milford, choice of Sussex County, will be elected state commander to succeed Herman H. Hanson, of Dover.

It is also believed that Edward Mulrooney, of Wilmington, will be chosen vice-commander. He is a member of Delaware Post No. 1. In the event that Mr. Summers should not run and, as the convention is likely to follow the rotation rule in electing a commander, Sussex having its turn this year, there is a possibility that Calvin Afferback, of Georgetown may be considered.

While he is in Europe at present on his wedding trip, Mr. Afferback, it is reported, would like to have the post. It is understood that George Earl Donoho, of Nanticoke Post No. 6, Seaford, present vice-commander, will not be a candidate.

The retiring officers in addition to Mr. Hanson and Mr. Donoho, include the Rev. William Gibson, of New Castle, chaplain; George H. Pusey, sergeant-at-arms, and Ira S. Brinser, historian.

Members of the Women's Auxiliary are looking forward to their convention as one of the most important they have held up to this time.

So far no opposition to Mrs. J. C. Ehrlich, of Dover, the present State president of the auxiliary, has developed and it is believed likely she will be re-elected.

For the vice-presidents, too, only one candidate has so far been nominated for each office, as follows:

First Vice-President, Mrs. Arzie P. Lewis, Newark.

Second Vice-President, Miss Helen Jones, Dover.

Third Vice-President, Mrs. Fisher Faix, Milford.

The conventions open on Friday night with banquets, the business sessions being scheduled for Saturday.

Competitive drilling for the Bugle and Drum Corps from various parts of the country will be held at 6 p. m., Saturday on Rehoboth avenue between the boardwalk and First avenue. Three cups and a specially designed bugle will be the principal prizes. The cups are donated by Governor Buck, Senator Townsend and the Department of Delaware.

ASSAULT CASE POSTPONED AS WOMAN STAYS IN COMA

Mrs. Henry Thompson Remains Unconscious After Mysterious Wounds

A hearing to have been given Henry Thompson, of near here, on a charge of malicious assault growing out of the mystery surrounding injuries that have kept his wife unconscious in the Wilmington General Hospital since Monday, was postponed this afternoon by Magistrate Daniel Thompson to await the outcome of the woman's condition.

The hearing, Magistrate Thompson said, will take place next Thursday night, providing there is a change either way in the woman's condition. It is likely the man will be turned over immediately to the higher courts.

Meanwhile, it was reported at the Wilmington General Hospital shortly before 5 o'clock today that the woman has not yet regained consciousness. Her condition remains unchanged and dangerous.

Thompson was arrested this week by Private Hession, of the State Police, after an extensive investigation of the mystery by County Police, who have had an officer on guard at the hospital ready to question the woman the moment she regains consciousness.

Thompson pleaded not guilty to the charge of attacking his wife. He claims he found the woman in an unconscious condition at or near the home last Monday morning and thought she had suffered a stroke. After a physician was called, Mrs.

Thompson was taken to the Wilmington General Hospital.

A number of physicians who have been in constant attendance since the woman was taken to the hospital, declare that her condition was due to severe blows on the head. They also stated they found several bruises on her body.

Some objection to the action of the State Police in arresting Thompson was said to have been voiced by County Police, who, it is understood, believe that the man's arrest will interfere with clearing up of the case.

Thompson is a World War veteran and was wounded in France. His relations with his wife have attracted the attention of police before. Recently the woman disappeared and her whereabouts were unknown for almost two weeks until she reappeared of her own volition. Police cited several such occurrences in recent years. The couple have two children. Their home is near Welsh Tract, Pencader Hundred.

Mrs. Thompson's injuries, police said, include a mass of bruises, swollen lips, discolored eyes, and teeth mashed as though she had been struck in the face by some heavy instrument. In addition, the belief was expressed that she is suffering from a mental condition as the result of a series of ordeals climaxing in the one which resulted in her present condition.

BATTERY E TO LEAVE FOR CAMP TRAINING PERIOD SATURDAY

Advance Detail To Depart Friday; Equipment Declared In Excellent Shape

Battery E, the Delaware National Guard unit from Newark, will leave for its annual summer training period at Bethany Beach on Saturday morning under command of Captain Herman W. Cook.

An advance detail of 20 men under command of Sergeant Arthur H. Harrigan, will go to the camp Friday to make preparations for the arrival of the full battery, which is a machine gun unit in 198th Artillery, Anti-Aircraft Corps.

The full complement of the battery this year will probably consist of about 65 men. The trip to the camp, which this year is named Camp Edgar M. Hoopes, will be made by motor convey. Orders for the convey, giving points of communication, have already been issued by the regimental commander.

All the equipment of the battery is declared in excellent shape. The equipment is in charge of First Lieutenant John L. Sullivan. Each year, Battery E forms a vital part in the program of training at the camp. As a machine gun branch, it usually conducts a program of night firing at targets drawn by airplanes, the brilliant colored tracer bullets making a spectacle that has attracted persons from all over the State.

In addition to Captain Cook, the battery officers are First Lieutenant Richard E. Ramsey and Second Lieutenant Harry C. Powell. The battery will leave from the Newark armory in the army trucks.

8500 PEOPLE SEE LEGION PAGEANT AT LONGWOOD

Presented Final Performance For Welfare Monday Night

Monday evening, at the open-air theatre of Longwood Gardens, estate of Pierre S. du Pont, was a veritable old-fashioned night's dream for the more than 8,000 persons who gathered here to witness the fourth and final presentation of the Washington Bicentennial pageant, "Building a Nation," under the auspices of the Kennett Square Post of the American Legion.

Presented also last Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, the colorful affair attracted more than 10,000 visitors to the famous estate.

Two hundred and eighty persons took part in the pageant, which was arranged as part of the bicentennial observance in this vicinity, and produced under the direction of John T. Hall, who directs the annual Legion Frolic in Wilmington.

Proceeds of the benefit performance of Monday evening will go to the Kennett Square and Longwood Welfare Association. The pageant consisted of a prologue, eight episodes depicting significant phases of the life of Washington, and a dramatic finale, in which all members of the cast took part. An orchestra and chorus of nearly fifty voices contributed the musical accompaniment.

Preceding the performance, the fountains, known to countless thousands, located in the theatre, were displayed, the unforgettable splendor of the new fountains in front of the greenhouse being reserved for a fitting climax to the evening's entertainment.

The effects of the vari-colored lights, controlled by an expert, on the soaring spirals of water, produced a magic atmosphere, found only in imagined fairylands. One slender uprush of water rose to more than 100 feet above the heads of the breathless audience, beautiful colors flashing so rapidly that the fountain assumed fantastic shapes.

The General Committee, headed by a former Newark boy, Knowles Bowen, son of Mr. Levi Bowen, as chairman, deserves considerable credit for the way this pageant was put over. His co-workers are to be congratulated also on their cooperation. It was well done.

SAMUEL H. EWING DIED LAST FRIDAY

Samuel H. Ewing, aged fifty-two years, died suddenly last Friday morning at his home on Elkton avenue, Newark, Del. He was engaged in the milk business.

The funeral was held Monday, with services at his late home and interment at Head of Christiana Cemetery.

WORK FOR 30 MEN WHEN QUARRY OPENS

Special to The Newark Post.
After being closed for more than a year, the Standard Lime and Stone Company, has resumed operations at its quarry near Lapidum. Thirty or more men were put to work last week and the force will be increased this week. The company has large orders for crushed stone for road building in Maryland and Delaware.

Official Opening of Mote's Garage To Be This Saturday

A completely up-to-date garage and gasoline station will be officially opened on the Elkton Road about a block from the B. and O. station, Saturday, by Henry F. Mote. In connection with the opening, Mr. Mote is holding a special tire sale today, tomorrow and Saturday.

In the sale are included a large variety of high grade tires, with a range of sizes which Mr. Mote does not believe can be matched anywhere else in town.

A mechanic will be on duty at the garage and full repairing service will be offered. The garage is sufficiently large to accommodate the equipment used by Mr. Mote in his hauling business, which will henceforth have its headquarters there, and several other cars as well.

Mr. Mote stated that he expects to install a hydraulic lift shortly. A lathe has already been installed, completing a modern workshop.

The gasoline station is of beautiful design, being constructed of high grade "face" brick in a variety of colors. It is in an excellent location and is believed certain to attract a considerable business.

MAN DROWNS WHILE WIFE SCREAMS FOR HELP

A trial trip in a yacht he contemplated purchasing ended in the drowning Sunday of Edward Watson, 33, of Lancaster, in the North East River, near Red Point, while his wife looked helplessly on.

Friends of the man, members of the yacht crew and police officers dived and grappled for the body until dark, in vain.

Watson and his wife were members of a party that went to North East Sunday where they went on the 85-foot yacht owned and commanded by Captain Alvin Foard, of North East, which they contemplated buying.

They started down the river and at Red Point Captain Foard anchored the craft and the men of the party donned bathing suits, entered the tender of the yacht and rowed to the middle of the river to enjoy a swim.

Watson was the last to dive overboard and his wife watched from the yacht. She saw him come to the surface after his first plunge and then sink. Her screams attracted the other members of the swimming party and they hurried to the spot where Watson sank and repeatedly dived to find their comrade but to no avail.

In the party in addition to Watson and his wife were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dacelar, Willis Book and Harry Eisenberger, all of Lancaster.

L. Edwards Phillips, of Elkton, was drowned only a few miles from this latest fatality.

Coroner F. Rodney Frazer being absent at Camp Ritchie, Acting Coroner Manly Drennen visited the scene and made an investigation, being convinced that the drowning was entirely accidental.

Search for the body was continued all day Monday, but was not successful until about seven o'clock Tuesday morning, when it was recovered by Capt. Ford and his brothers. Acting Coroner Drennen viewed the body and gave a certificate of death from accidental drowning.

Interment was made yesterday at Quarryville, Pa.

DR. JOHNSON ADDRESSES LIONS ON BLOOD PRESSURE AND HEALTH

An address on blood pressure in its relation to health was delivered by Dr. Wallace Johnson at the Lions Club dinner meeting at the Washington House, Tuesday night.

Dr. Johnson spoke on the care of the body in youth for proper functioning of the heart in later years. Dr. Johnson stated that the large number of deaths from heart disease could be cut down if people would take care of themselves in early years.

The program committee for August was named as follows: J. E. Daugherty for the August 9 meeting, Ira Brinser for the August 16 meeting, and George W. Rhodes for the August 30 meeting.

A member has been assigned for each meeting, when he will speak on some subject in which he thinks the members will be particularly interested.

This plan, it is felt, will insure programs of wide and varied scope, which will be of interest to everyone.

The Lions Club on Tuesday, August 9, will be hosts at the annual Golf Tournament in which Lions from this vicinity will participate. The club will entertain at dinner after the meeting.

NATIONAL ECONOMY LEAGUE TO FIGHT ABUSE OF BONUS SYSTEM

Hoover, Roosevelt, Coolidge, Al Smith, Pershing and Admiral Sims Backing War On Waste

Six of America's foremost men have accepted leadership of the National Economy League's war on waste in government declared Tuesday with formal sanction of President Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Calvin Coolidge, Alfred E. Smith, Elihu Root, Newton D. Baker, General John J. Pershing and Admiral William S. Sims comprise a national advisory council of the league, formed to guide its fight against alleged excessive payments to veterans and mounting government costs.

These six will be no mere "figure-heads," the league announced, but will serve in active capacity as advisors and leaders.

A vehement plea by President Hoover for a national group to defend Congress in withstanding "swarms of lobbies" was read before men from thirty states assembled to organize the movement.

Back Non-Partisan Fight

"There is great need for a nationwide and non-partisan organization," the message read, "designed to give persistent attention to keeping down governmental expenditures. The subject is too complicated to be dealt with by sporadic groups in temporary emergencies.

"The pressures upon governments to spend more are ceaseless, and no intermittent protests will stem the tide. Swarms of lobbies are organized behind every form of expenditure, and no organized group ever defends members of Congress who withstand their pressures. Ceaseless vigilance alone can cope with them. Every branch of government activity should be scrutinized, and of state and city governments as well as Federal."

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for President, said "the Democratic platform is clear in its declaration in favor of government economy, and also in what it says in relation to adequate care for war disabled veterans who have suffered disability or disease from actual service in time of war or their dependents."

Immediate objective of the league is to pare off some $452,000,000 in payments to veterans, most of which it is contended are collected for disabilities not suffered through war service.

The roster of name in the movement is a distinguished "who's who" from both political parties, the army, navy, and civilian life.

Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, slimly erect Virginian explorer, told the group it was "just a man's simple duty" to "stay at home and fight" for the economy cause. He is postponing his second venture into the Antarctic to serve as league chairman pro-tem.

Major General James C. Harbord, veteran of many campaigns, warned the meeting he presided over that by 1945 at present rate, payments to veterans and their dependents would be $2,000,000,000 annually.

Granville Clark, League president, urged that veterans' payments be the first place to begin the budget slashing. Mr. Clark was chosen head of the National Executive Committee.

Archibald B. Roosevelt, an initiator of the movement and league secretary, read a declaration of the League's purposes.

The Byrd Antarctic expedition was scheduled to set forth in September.

"Our ship is ready at Panama," he said. "We have 150 tons of material prepared for the voyage, but as during the war we gave our services to the nation, today we must do the same thing."

He said he hoped the league might recruit a peace army of 20,000,000 citizens to protest against "the gross governmental mistakes that are making this depression chronic."

"This league has been organized to help prevent economic chaos," he said. "It would be worse than war."

The league had its inception last May when Clark, Roosevelt and other ex-service men met to protest what they considered a "racket." They sent to President Hoover and Congress a petition concerning the "non-disabled veterans abuse." It is intended to set up state and local organizations.

Sponsors announced the league seeks:

"As our first specific objective, to secure the elimination of the great annual expenditure—now amounting to more than $450,000,000 annually—for those veterans of the Spanish-American and World Wars, who suffered no disability in war service, without, however, impairing a just and liberal provision for the dependents of those who lost their lives in war service and for those who in fact have suffered disability from war service.

"As a general objective to secure the reduction of all wasteful and unnecessary governmental expenditures."

Blame Rests on Adults

Education of motorists in traffic safety is still in the little red schoolhouse stage of development, in the opinion of Harold G. Hoffman, Motor Vehicle Commissioner of New Jersey, who believes that adults are largely responsible for the slow progress of safety training.

Although good work has been done in instilling safety codes in the young, Commissioner Hoffman comments, "Our efforts in teaching safety to children cannot come to full fruition until we have been successful in bringing to the adult motorist a full sense of responsibility to his own children and others. We must engender, too, a general and wholesome respect for the motor laws designed to promote safety on the highways, and insist upon their equitable enforcement."

Commissioner Hoffman also points out that while younger children have demonstrated an aptitude to assimilate safe practices, the older ones, now in high school and college, have not shown the same tendency.

"Statistics show," he says, "that these youngsters are notoriously unsafe drivers, and for the tragic accident record of youth, I am convinced that our high schools and colleges must accept a large share of responsibility. The high schools prepare these boys and girls for various activities of life; but when it comes to an activity that we are sure most of them will take up, that of driving a car, they do comparatively little."

"Education in the traffic field is universal in its application. Too often we are tempted to confine consideration of it to children, and even to the motor vehicle owner and operator, forgetting that the automobile manufacturer, the motor vehicle administrator, the highway engineer, the legislator, and even the corner traffic cop always must go on acquiring new and useful knowledge."

A $2000 marble tombstone in a Pleasantville, N. J., cemetery was sold for $50 at a sheriff's sale to satisfy a lien for part of the purchase price.

The Man in the White House

The sound of the gavel had hardly opened the session of Congress, when President Hoover began pouring in constructive measures with rapid fire succession. Practically every worthwhile and sound move to battle depression and restore business had its origination in the White House.

No President ever gave more of his time or more of his energy in efforts to solve that problem. In fact, never before in the history of the nation, has the government applied means so extensively in dealing with an economic condition.

His political opponents, who attempt to make out that Mr. Hoover lacks the courage to face an issue, haven't a leg to stand on. Who has more courageously taken a stand on such controversial issues as the bonus, economic relief, the tax bill or the President has stood as a guardian of the nation's purse strings, and every effort at raiding the Federal treasury has been riddled by Mr. Hoover with denunciations in no uncertain terms—although he realized on occasion after occasion that he might be sacrificing his political future.—Mt. Clemens (Mich.) Monitor.

Pretty Pool Politics

In order that the nation might be assured leadership courageously, strong and wise during the next four years, it looked to the Democratic Party to put its best man forward. Instead, it has put its weakest. By its nomination, it has unquestionably sacrificed the good opinion of hundreds of thousands of independent voters who this year were headed straight for its fold. The generally admirable platform of the party is unfortunately put in the hands of a nominee who has shown the least capacity for carrying it boldly into effect. The loss is not only the loss of the Democratic Party, but of the whole nation.—Hartford Courant.

The more we observe our smiling Governor in his new role as the Democratic candidate for the presidency, the better balanced the Democratic ticket seems to us. Garner was the right man, after all. For only an imagination like the Governor's could possibly supply a legislator like the Speaker with the wherewithal to finance his schemes.—New York Herald Tribune.

Democrats Nothing to Offer

The working people of the country and industry in general are more interested in something constructive that means jobs, wages and profits.

Strangely, the Democratic party has completely ignored labor in its platform. It has ignored all protection for the wage earner's salary. Tariff for revenue only is offered, which, of course, means starvation wages. There is nothing in the platform about immigration; in fact, it is silent on the subject, probably because Tammany and Frank Hague both want the bars let down.

No constructive plan is offered to rehabilitate industry, and unemployment relief, either by a dole or jobs, is also ignored. The coal miner, the millworker, those in the textile industry, copper, oil and lumber are not offered a single thing, except tariff reduction.

The Democratic party has staked its all apparently on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead act to permit light wines and beer.

It is true that the American Federation of Labor has in its program the return of light wine and beer, but everything else that the A. F. of L. advocates and stands for the Democratic party is silent upon in its platform. It is, therefore, quite apparent that the big interests or Wall Street dictated the platform, which is in line with a policy to squeeze wages down to the lowest point in many years.

The farmers also are offered little or nothing, and they are already, like labor, up in arms. The issue of jobs and bread and butter is the great issue before the whole world, and it cannot be cast aside for the issue of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, with which Congress alone can deal.—Labor World.

Backing and Filling

More recent events have shaken this confidence, however, in Governor Roosevelt's qualities. Former Governor Smith was the first to charge that his successor had hedged on power control in New York State. Meantime Governor Roosevelt began a course of wobbling which continued even up to the convention. He issued a statement that attacks should not be made on President Hoover. This offended so many Democrats that he quickly reversed himself and made the speech in which he accused the President of being run by big interests to the neglect of "the forgotten man." In the Tammany inquiry he either was silent or broke out in abuse of leading citizens, including Rabbi Wise, who desired corruption exposed and punished. With all the evidence of the misconduct of Mayor Walker in accepting money in huge sums with no pretense of returning value received, unless in political favors, Governor Roosevelt publicly criticized not Walker but Judge Seabury, conducting the inquiry, although no charges against Seabury were made of any character from any quarter.

At last the New York World Telegram and the whole group of Scripps-Howard papers printed a blistering arraignment of the Governor in a featured double-column editorial headed: "The Transformation of Roosevelt." Besides the independent Howard press the New York Times, Evening World, Evening Post, The American and the Herald Tribune joined in declaring loss of faith in the candidate for President. "The saddest thing in American public life," deplored the Evening World, "is the thing politics has done to Franklin Roosevelt." The World-Telegram concluded its review with the remark, "and thus is made clear the reason why those who are closest to him see in Franklin D. Roosevelt not another Teddy, but another trimmer."

He has four months to reinstate himself among these and other former admirers. The campaign will put his qualities of character to a further test. As between Herbert Hoover and Franklin Roosevelt the country will render a just verdict in November.—Topeka Capital.

Speaker Garner's Blunder

Speaker Garner makes an early start upon the traditional Democratic task of throwing away victory by blundering. He has chosen to play politics with unemployment relief. He aims his shafts at President Hoover, but the barbs stick in the skins of other Democrats, who are appalled at the prospect of going into the campaign with the handicap which Speaker Garner would impose upon their party by his demand that the United States Government shall create a bank from which all individuals in the country can borrow money.—Washington Post.

No Comparison

On a straight issue between the two men, Herbert Hoover would have nothing to fear from Mr. Roosevelt in this or any other campaign. There is no comparison to be made between the two in intellectual stature, grasp of national and international affairs, in the possession of constructive ideas, in courage, and, generally, in those qualities that go to make a statesman.—Muncie Press.

Hoover Will Win

We believe President Hoover will be re-elected next November. We base that belief on the firm conviction that the American people cannot be stampeded in times of stress. If this depression were local only, if it were confined to our own country, the voters would no doubt hold the administration responsible. That is the usual way. But the depression is world-wide and the intelligence of this nation is coming to realize that President Hoover had no more to do with it than the man in the moon. It is the logical sequel to the greatest and most terrible war in the world's history.

The intelligence of this country is coming to realize more than this fact. It is realizing that President Hoover, by reason of his great abilities and through courageous leadership, has done more to meet condition and to ease his country, as much as possible, over the rough places that have beset its pathway in the past two years, than has any other man in the world today. He has labored night and day, and faithfully and effectively to keep this country in a course that will lead to ultimate recovery. Indeed, President Hoover has mapped out and has followed the only course that could be followed with safety and with any assurance of success.

The voters of the United States will give President Hoover a chance. They will be fair to him. They will not throw overboard at this critical time, the safest and sanest leader that these trying times have produced. He has preserved the nation thus far. They will permit him to lead it back to better times.—Warren (O.) Tribune.

A Disappointment

If Garner's nomination was an anti-climax, what shall we say of Governor Roosevelt's appearance before the convention? In comparison with the governor's picturesque trip to Chicago, made for the commendable purpose of saving the expense of later notification ceremonies, the appearance was a striking let-down. The feeble and half-hearted applause that greeted the governor's address has left the impression that more than the supporters of Al Smith were disappointed with the convention nominee.

And well they might be. The address contained not a single inspiring utterance. After announcing that he accepted the convention platform 100 per cent, the speaker proceeded with a colorless rehash of the statements of that document. The only definite concrete suggestion offered was a proposal to set one million men to work by a project for the reforestation of useless land. The farm surplus problem was to be met by a voluntary agreement among farmers to cut production. Many members of the convention must have felt that if this was all their nominee had to offer toward the solution of the economic problem, that he declared to be the vital issue of the campaign, his case was a weak one.—Manchester Union.

America Came Through

In 1893 stark ruin stalked through the land; 467 banks failed in a few months. Mills, furnaces and factories shut down everywhere. Bankruptcy was on every hand. America had twice as many unemployed per thousand population as she has today. But she put them all back to work.

In 1907 panic broke loose. The production of pig iron dropped 50 percent in less than a year. All but the strongest men lost heart—"We are ruined," they declared, "recovery cannot come in our time." Yet in two years prosperity had returned.

In 1921, when many honest and thoughtful people were predicting worse conditions, the country was already beginning to climb to the greatest era of prosperity it had ever experienced. History tells how America has fought and won 19 major depressions. Good times always follow hard times, as surely as day follows night. Prosperity always comes back. It is coming back this time, too.

Above all things, let us have faith.—National Publishers Association.

Help From the Enemy

The President owes more to the Democratic party than he does to his own. So far the Democrats have done their best to help him get re-elected.—Portland Press-Herald.

Veterans Misled

The veterans gathering in Washington have been misled by demagogical politicians, and in many cases by revolutionary communists, who delight to fish in troubled waters and would be pleased to see riots and other disorders in the National Capital.

The right to petition Congress is inviolable, but the veterans can sign petitions at home. And they must know that bonus legislation at this time would wreck the financial program of the government and inflict irreparable injury on the nation's business and great hardship on the nation's workers.—Chicago Post.

An Opportunist

The Democrats have chosen a man who, by the admission of friends long associated with him, is deficient in the qualities of leadership and statesmanship and is inferior in character, ability and intellectual impact to such rivals as Smith and Baker and Ritchie. Not since 1896 when William Jennings Bryan orated himself into a nomination has the party selected a standard-bearer in whom the country has so little confidence.

The suspicion that Governor Roosevelt is a slippery opportunist who will break the rules of the game when it is to his advantage to do so has been pretty well confirmed by the tactics at Chicago.—Boston Herald (Rep.).

"It Is a New Deal"

The Democrats have avoided the effects of a long, disruptive deadlock. . . . They have adopted an Eastern nominee and a wet platform, but have shelved the typically Eastern leadership of Smith and Raskob. It is a new deal.

It is going to be Hoover versus Roosevelt. And Roosevelt has been rather effectively tagged . . . as a shifter and an intellectual dodger, . . . too timid to make a last-ditch fight for anything at any time.—Des Moines Register (Ind. Rep.).

Campaign Like That of 1896

Governor Roosevelt owes his nomination chiefly to two considerations—political availability, and the belief in the West and South that he represents opposition to the big interests.

Most of the delegates at the Chicago convention knew very little about their candidate. There was an extraordinary lack of enthusiasm for him personally. Roosevelt was far from being the idol of his convention supporters that Al Smith was.

The set-up for the campaign then is somewhat like that of 1896, when Bryan sought to align the South and West against the East.—Kansas City Star (Ind.).

The Washington Post is willing to admit, apropos of Governor Roosevelt's immediate airplane acceptance of the Democratic presidential nomination, that "There is some advantage in completing the contract before the party has a chance to change its mind."

CORONER'S JURY WITHOUT RIGHT TO EXONERATE PERSON CAUSING DEATH

Captain Keenan, of County Police, Held For Shooting Alleged Chicken Thief

The custom of the coroner's jury to exonerate persons found blameless of deaths they have caused was broken Wednesday night when Coroner George A. Pedrick announced that he had been officially informed that it is not within the power of the coroner's jury to exonerate anyone.

Coroner Pedrick said he had been informed by Resident Judge Herbert L. Rice, when he had sought the latter's opinion on the matter, that the action of the coroner's jury is limited only to fixing the cause of death, and that the members have no power to act as judges on the guilt or innocence of anyone arraigned before them.

He said that it has been the custom of the coroner's jury to exonerate persons found blameless for the death of another as long as he could remember, but that the legal status of the coroner's jury had been shown him by Judge Rice.

His announcement was made after Captain Ralph Keenan, of the County Highway Police, had been held for the Court of Oyer and Terminer on a charge of manslaughter following an inquest into the death of Thomas Dixon, negro, suspected chicken thief, who was shot and instantly killed by the policeman early Saturday morning.

The verdict given in the case stated that Dixon had been killed by Keenan in the performance of the latter's duties. His bail was reduced from $5,000 to $1,000.

Captain Keenan, who took the witness stand, told of pursuing Dixon and his three companions, early Saturday morning, when they failed to stop on command, and of chickens being thrown from the speeding car, which were later identified as being stolen.

GOV. BUCK'S RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENT

Some two years ago there appeared in a Dover newspaper, in relation to an act of Governor Buck, the following statement: "Governor Buck's action is typical of the direct and courageous manner in which he conducts the executive business of the State." At that time the Governor had been in office some eighteen months and the people of our State had had the opportunity to see many of these lessons in efficiency. Since that time the Governor has continued to give "practical lessons in efficiency" and a resume of his administration discloses many such.

Some salient facts as to the accomplishments of the Buck administration are:

(a) Reduction of the State's bonded indebtedness by $9,170,000.

(b) Installation of a modern system of accounting for State finances which provided the first balance sheet ever kept in the State.

(c) Continuation of the development of the State highway system by construction of dual highways and secondary roads.

(d) Selection of capable and efficient persons for public service with the thought that "a public office is a public trust."

(e) Supervision of income taxes consistent with the policy of "taxation beyond need is unjust taxation."

(f) Destruction of the system of county almshouses by providing for old age pensions.

(g) Construction of a welfare home despite strong opposition of beneficiaries of the old system.

(h) Protection of the inalienable right of our citizens to a fair expression of public opinion of the ballot box.

(i) Direction of efforts to balance the State Budget when falling income threatened a deficit.

(j) Inauguration of "made" work to assist the unemployed and preparation for the relief of the distressed.

(k) Operation of the three industrial schools solely at the expense of the State, thus relieving county taxes.

(l) Deduction in debt service for special school districts by assumption on the part of the State of one-half of the cost.

(m) Incorporation in the budget requirements of State Health and Charitable Institutions—Delaware State Hospital, Brandywin Sanatorium and Delaware Colony—sufficient funds to provide marked improvement in personnel and equipment.

(n) Cooperation with the General Assembly in the organization of special commissions to study subjects of grave importance to the State.

(o) Determination to open the Indian River Inlet and to keep it open as long as the task remains.

This record of achievement, upon critical analysis, reveals that there is scarcely an important side of Delaware life that has not been affected and must meet with the approval of our people who review the things accomplished. In the promotion of the happiness and well-being of the citizens of Delaware, Governor Buck has done his part. If he is to continue this service, the voters must decide. He is willing to serve.

BUSINESS AND ECONOMICS

By Fred Vaile

On With Business!

It is encouraging to read news dispatches of increasing employment throughout the country. Although as yet only in spots, these bits of news make one feel as though the country isn't going to the bow-wows for a while at least. Psychology plays an important part in every situation. The psychologists would have us believe it plays an all important part. But whatever effect upon the mind good news has, there is a great public mind, a current stream of national and world thought that has a lot to do with prosperity or bad business, as the case may be.

Whether the public attitude is the cause or effect, no one seems to know. If a cheerful attitude toward life, toward business, and toward our institutions is the greatest cause-factor, then every man's inner resources should be exerted to triumphantly conquer fear, hesitancy, doubt and all of the other stumbling stones to progress. If, on the other hand, the public's frame of mind has no initial force, if it is merely the result of conditions or the resulting-factor in it all, some other statement of the whole situation will have to be made, and some other plan followed to reach the goal. But we all know that the loss of faith and hope, and even charity, are the loss of material graces as well as of spiritual. Whatever can bring renewed hope and fresh courage has won more than half of the battle.

If this country were suffering from the results of a great physical catastrophe, a great fire, flood, or even a great war of the immediate past, we might find some alibi on which to pin our dejections. Such is not the case. Our material resources are here, every one of them. What we lack most are things of the spirit. Generally speaking, there is not a farm that was not a farm in 1927. There is not a mine, a factory, a store or a customer missing now from that of five years ago. This is from the economic standpoint. What this country needs is a great social and moral regeneration, to cleanse us of our mental as well as from our economic and social sins. With such an awakening the people of this country will put off the old and put on the new virtues. The great tide of prosperity will come in as it went out.

"On With Business," is a slogan that may well be written into the hearts and minds of a civilized people. And this business is not all in trading of goods. It includes cooperation, support of institutions, neighborliness, kindness, unselfishness and the like. It means the BUSINESS OF LIFE AND LIVING.

NEWFOUNDLAND UNEMPLOYED RIOT AGAIN
 Unemployment riots, which helped oust Premier Sir Richard Squires and resulted in wild disorders in the house of parliament last spring, created another tense situation here recently. A mob of 1000 unemployed stoned windows of Water street stores as a demonstration against the government's failure to provide immediate relief. Some people would lead us to believe that all the unemployed are in the U. S. A.

Prepare Ground Now For Planting Alfalfa, Advises County Agent Willim

Prepare your land now for alfalfa and be ready to seed it by August 15 to 25, are the suggestions written by County Agricultural Agent Ed Willim, Jr., in his second alfalfa letter being sent to all dairymen in the county this week.

dealer and insist on getting "North-west Common" or seed from that district—above all other things don't buy inferior, southern or foreign seed (which is not adaptable to our conditions). Observations of results of good farmers over New Castle County lead me to believe that 25 pounds per acre will give a better stand than if 20 pounds is used.

Delaware Safety Council Warns Against B. B. Guns for Children

On numerous occasions the attention of the Delaware Safety Council has been called to the hazards of small children playing with air rifles, B. B. guns and other small caliber rifles.

Among other types of weapons which rank high in the cause of eye disasters are the blank cartridge or cap pistol, often considered safe because they contain no projectiles, but dangerous to the user since the flash at the time the gun is aimed and fired is very near the eye.

Barney Oldfield to Start Automobile Races at Harrington

Automobile races and the men who have made high speed one of America's most popular sports, including present day and past champions, will bring the Kent-Sussex Fair to a sensational climax on Saturday afternoon, July 30, when a six event program will be presented with the sanction of the contest board of the American Automobile Association.

Cooperatives Grow

Cooperative marketing continues to grow steadily, thus making possible the orderly distribution of agricultural products, strengthening the farmer's position in the terminal markets, and developing a credit system which will make the farmer more independent.

During the 1930-1931 season cooperatives handled nearly $2,500,000,000 of farm products, according to the Federal Farm Board. More than 1,250,000 farmers of the nation's total of 6,000,000, are members of cooperative associations.

An Expert Opinion

Before Governor Roosevelt was nominated, Frank Hague, New Jersey Democratic leader, expressed this opinion of him: "He Roosevelt" cannot carry a single-state east of the Mississippi and very few in the Far West.

"He failed to carry a single large city in the primaries, thereby indicating that the people do not regard him as the right man to lead.

Where Taxes Grow

The Census Bureau reports that the cost of 310 city governments—all the cities of the Union with 30,000 or more inhabitants—in 1930 was 66.4 per cent greater than the cost of all the forty-eight state governments, and 2.8 more than the cost of the Federal government.

In commenting on some of our present-day problems, the Portland Oregonian says editorially that life insurance is something no man or woman can afford to be without and that the harder the times, the more important it is to scrimp and save to meet one's premium payments which are necessary to keep protection in force.

LARGE CROWD ENJOYS FIELD DAY AT RED MEN'S HOME

Orphans Special Guests; Many Prominent Lodge Officials Present; Music and Sports Special Features

Tribes of the Improved Order of Red Men and Councils of Pocahontas of Delaware held their annual field day and picnic at the Red Men's Fraternal Home here Saturday afternoon. The largest crowd that has ever attended one of these affairs in the many years that they have been given was on hand and spent a delightful afternoon. There were about 1000 members and their families present during the afternoon. While there were a few from down the state the great majority of the visitors were from tribes and councils in Wilmington and rural New Castle County. Despite the fact that there was a heavy rain in Wilmington and vicinity during the afternoon there was no rain at all here to mar the occasion. The visitors spent the time on the spacious lawn and the program opened at 3 o'clock. The Continental Band of Newark furnished music. A picnic dinner was served at 5 o'clock and previously there had been athletic contests for both children and adults.

In the evening Pocahontas Council of Wilmington, under the leadership of Mrs. Harvey Hansbury, gave a play on the lawn entitled, "The District School of Blueberry Corner." This was greatly enjoyed by about 500 who had remained for the show. As usual the orphans of the Great Council of Delaware I. O. R. M., were special guests. There are fourteen orphans who are being looked after by the Great Council and it proved a wonderful afternoon for them. They were also guests at the dinner. This part of the program was in charge of Past Great Sachem Jesse T. Semerteen, of Wilmington, chairman of the Orphans Board and Frank R. Zebley, of Wilmington, secretary.

Some of the prominent officials of the order who were present included, Great Sachem, Benjamin Cooper, of Wilmington; Great Senior Sagamore, William Jackson, of Magnolia; Great Prophet W. Frank Oliphant, of Laurel; Great Junior Sagamore, Frank H. Balling, of Newark; Great Chief of Records, Edward McIntire, of Wilmington; Great Keeper of Wampum, John L. Otwell, of Wilmington; Past Great Sachem, James Faulkner, of Wilmington; Past Great Sachem, Milton Ferguson, Bayard Smith, Harry Sinclair and Carl Barber, and Past Great Sachem of Maryland, Abernathy, of Elk Mills, Md. Past Great Sachem Ferguson was chairman of the general committee that had charge of the outing with Past Great Sachem Bayard Smith as secretary.

Some of the officials of the Degree of Pocahontas present were: Deputy Great Pocahontas Miss Rita Brown, of Wilmington; Past Great Deputy Pocahontas, Mrs. Agatha Faulkner, Mrs. Elva Curry, Mrs. Mary McClain, Mrs. Mary Barcus, Mrs. Martha Shephard and Mrs. Bertha McCall, all of Wilmington.

Many of the visitors inspected the home during the day where a number of aged members of the order are spending their remaining days in comfort and plenty.

The athletic events was a feature of the program and a prize was awarded for first, second and third place in all the events. The winners were as follows:

The Entomology Department, under Dr. L. A. Stearns, will have a demonstration showing the most effective time of picking up peach drop as a supplemental measure for the control of curculio infestation. A demonstration of the application of Paradichlorobenzene for control of peach tree borer and an exhibit on the life history of the mosquito.

The Chemistry Department directed by P. B. Myers will have an exhibit showing the effect of acid, sugar and quality of pectin on jelly formation.

Dr. C. C. Palmer, of the Animal Industry Department will exhibit pathological specimens showing changes in such diseases as anthrax, abortion, tuberculosis, tumors, hog cholera, etc., and also worms or parasites of domestic animals.

A. E. Tomhave will have a display of feed ingredients necessary to formulate a complete and adequate poultry ration; explanation will be made of the purpose of the various feed ingredients in the poultry ration. Results obtained from experiments with feeding wheat and soybeans to pigs will also be shown; wheat and soybeans, being home-grown feeds for fattening pigs, and this fact will interest every Delaware farmer that fattens some pigs each year.

The Agricultural Economics Department will have a series of charts on display illustrating the receipts and expenses of the State of Delaware from 1920 to 1931 and the amount of improvement in the Delaware School System from 1918 to 1930 by M. M. Daugherty; Charts showing the number of various varieties of early apple trees in Delaware, and the number of trees of various varieties of early apples in New Jersey by H. S. Gabriel; charts showing the factors influencing the period of tenure of Delaware tenant farmers, and the trend of farm tenancy in Delaware as compared with the Middle Atlantic States by R. O. Bausman.

The Agronomy Department under the direction of G. L. Schuster will have charts showing the value of fertilizer in the production of alfalfa, and the value of spring top dressing for wheat and barley production. Barley is an important crop to Delaware farmers at the present time due to the low price of wheat. Information on the culture of barley may be obtained at the information booth. Information as to how to treat stored grain for the prevention of weevil infestation will also be available. H. C. Harris will conduct soil tests for lime requirements on this day and any farmer who is considering liming his soil is urged to bring a soil sample for lime requirement test. A number of farmers are probably considering seeding some alfalfa during August and here is an opportunity to get immediate information on their lime requirements. Tours will be conducted over the fertility plots where anyone interested will have ample opportunity to observe corn, soybeans and alfalfa grown under different fertilizer treatments.

The Horticulture Department under the direction of L. R. Detjen and his associates will conduct field trips to the apple and peach orchards and variety plots where interesting demonstrations are in progress on what changes can be brought about in bearing apple trees by way of changes in fertilizer treatments. In the peach orchard will be observed the better nitrogen carriers for peach fertilization and also a study of plum curculio on shedding young and older peaches. The Department is also preparing charts on cabbage breeding, fruit some new peach varieties and recent printed literature of the department.

Dr. T. F. Manns and J. F. Adams, of the Plant Pathology Department, will have exhibits showing colored illustrations of various economic diseases as well as specimens of apple and peach diseases that are now prevalent. Charts illustrating results of plant disease control on apple with various types and combinations of spray materials during 1931. Anyone having plant disease infestation is invited to bring specimens of such

NEW INCUBATOR, TESTING DEVICE OPERATED AT POULTRY PLANT

Two Innovations Are of Wide Significance In Experimental Work

An electrically controlled incubator and a shell testing device are two innovations of far reaching significance at the poultry plant of the University of Delaware Experimental Farm. Carroll Mumford, assistant in poultry in the Department of Animal Husbandry and superintendent of the poultry plant, last week described the operation of the new incubator and the manner of using the egg testing device in experimental work.

The incubator is one of the most modern in existence. A regular flow of heat, accurately controlled by rheostats, and a similarly accurate control of the moisture inside the incubator, allows a study of the hatching quality of various types of eggs produced by various flocks. The exact control of conditions under which they are hatched permits the study to be conducted in scientific manner with variables reduced to a minimum. Thousands of eggs have been hatched in the incubator which was built by the Buckeye Incubator Company and which cost $1072. It has been found that there has been a high percentage of efficiency, which, itself, will eventually pay for the incubator.

Just at present, Mr. Mumford said, a study is being made of the hatchability of eggs produced under a vegetable diet. The shell strength of such eggs are being studied with the testing device.

While it is too early to announce any results of the experiments, Mr. Mumford said, it is safe to say that it will eventually be possible to develop a vegetable ration that will give the necessary shell strength and will give a hatchability almost equal to that of eggs produced under a protein diet. This will enable farmers to utilize surplus soy bean crops for chicken feed, contributing considerably to the economy of farm management.

One feature of the incubator is a plants with them for examination and identification and find out what control measures are available. A microscopical demonstration of plant life will also be on display.

Mr. Eric Englund and Dr. Henry G. Knight Chief Speakers at Farmers' Day

Two prominent authorities on Agriculture have been secured to make addresses at Farmers' Day at the University Farm at Newark on August 2.

Dean McCue announced today that Mr. Eric Englund, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture and Dr. Henry G. Knight, Chief of the Bureau of Soils and Chemistry of the same department have consented to appear on the program.

Mr. Englund is a well known authority on rural finance as applied to agriculture, and Dr. Knight has had years of experience in the Agricultural and Chemical fields. Dr. Knight has been Director of the Agricultural Experiment Station in Wyoming, Oklahoma and West Virginia, and for several years past has been Chief of the Bureau of Soils and Chemistry. Dr. Knight is an authority on the Utilization of Agricultural wastes and by-products as well as a soil chemist of note.

The Farmers' Day speaking program will be held at the University Farm at 1.15 p. m. The morning hours will be devoted by visitors to inspection of the experimental work underway at the farm. Competent guides will conduct visitors and explain the research work underway. Particular emphasis will be given to the poultry work.

A special program is being arranged for at the poultry plant at 11 a. m., standard time, when Prof. A. E. Tomhave and Mr. C. C. Mumford, of the poultry department, will give short talks on some pertinent phases of poultry management and feeding.

The visitors will enjoy a basket picnic at noon. Coffee will be served by the University.

mechanical device which enables the operator to turn the shelves containing the eggs so that the germs will be prevented from remaining in one position. This is done at regular intervals. The incubator is operated by relays, with eggs about to be hatched being removed to a lower and larger compartment, while new eggs take their place.

The shell testing device, which was built at the plant, is a mechanism something like a scale. The egg is placed under the arm, while a weight is pushed along the top of the arm until the egg of the shell breaks. Readings are taken from a graduated scale where the weight stops.

Thousands of eggs have been broken in the experiments on the vegetable diet. After they are broken they can be sold to restaurants, or for other purposes. They are quite as good as any other eggs, except that their shells are slightly broken at the end.

Complete records are kept and the records for eggs of various breeds are also filed. It is believed the data acquired will prove of inestimable value in making future recommendations to farmers as to diet and other factors in the care of laying hens.

Another experimental method that has been adopted successfully at the poultry plant is that of raising chickens completely in confinement without permitting them to feed on the ground. Some soils, Mr. Mumford pointed out, contain elements that are not conducive to the health of the chicken. The chickens can be prevented from getting at these elements by keeping them in pens with a set of porch arrangement and wire that permitting cleanliness. Naturally the diet of these chickens can be controlled and studied scientifically.

The Department of Animal Husbandry, under which these experiments are being conducted, is headed by Professor A. E. Tomhave.
