Cailey and Peri Macindoe were among the younger residents who enjoyed the party on Kells Avenue on Sept. 18. Alison Macindoe, who has lived there with her family for 15 years, said the street hosts the event every year for residents, relatives and friends. "This year, they ate, drank and were merry until 9 p.m. Macindoe said she was dancing with a caller. "We have residents as old as 80 and then there's my daughter who just had a baby," she said. "There are also lots of kids and when we can't ride their bikes and skate everywhere."

Newark says Artesian claims are business moves

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

City of Newark officials said advertisements and press releases sent out by Artesian Water Company this week regarding the city's lack of preparedness for the drought this summer are part of business. "It's just posturing," said city finance director, George Sarris.

According to Dian Taylor, Artesian's president and chief executive officer, "Newark and United (water companies) ignored the warnings and did nothing to prepare for the inevitable. As a result, all northern New Castle County residents were subjected to mandatory (water) restrictions."

Taylor also stated Artesian had eight million gallons a day they could have shared with Newark "at a 40 percent discount."

Sarris said there is "no way" Artesian could have provided the city of Newark with eight million gallons of water per day (mgd) this summer. "We purchased the maximum of 600,000 mgd from them during some days in August," said Sarris. "The interconnection does not have a large enough main with enough pressure for any more than that."

According to Sarris, it would take up to two years to build a main large enough to convey eight mgd. "We're not interested in paying for that," said Sarris. "We're working toward being self-reliant." (See Referendum story this page).

Taylor said this week that Artesian offered to upgrade equipment and increase the size of the main at the interconnector in 1996. "All we wanted in exchange was a two to nine-year commitment from them to purchase water from us," she said.

Sarris said the city already had an agreement with United and felt Artesian just wanted to steal a customer. "That's business," he said.

In addition, Sarris said under a five-year contract with United (Water Company) the city pays $1.67 per 1,000 gallons for a minimum of one mgd and maximum three mgd.

"Artesian sent us a bill in August for the first time in about a year, charging $3.55 per 1,000 gallons for a total bill of approximately $12,000," he said.

Sarris said it would be nice if the next Artesian bill reflects the discounted rate referred to by Taylor. "But, they are an investor-owned utility whose responsibility is to make a profit for the shareholders," he said.

Mayor Hal Godwin said he went to Artesian's offices last winter at their invitation to discuss ways they could assist Newark. "They offered everything from nothing, up to and including, taking over our operations and running it themselves," Godwin said. "But we're not interested in being bought-out - we're interested in delivering the best services at the best price we can."

Godwin said no costs were discussed for any of the services offered at that time by Artesian. "We just thought it would be good to hear the possibilities."

Taylor said if Artesian took over Newark's operations, they would "increase quality and service, reduce costs and the overall cost would be significantly less than developing a reservoir."

City officials also questioned the amount of surplus water Artesian has available. "Many of us don't believe they have all this water," said Godwin.

COME INCREASED costs or high water, Newarkers appear willing to forge ahead in their efforts to build a reservoir on the road to water supply self-reliance.

Monday night, city council heard more than their usual share of positive comments about holding a referendum to approve a city loan to purchase land for the water storage facility.

Newark resident Donald Sharp of the United Auto Workers Community Action Program said that organization supports the bond referendum. "And if you need help with the rest of the money promised from the legislature, we'll go down there and work our butts off," Sharp said.

Students score low on test

By SHARON R. COLE
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The long-anticipated scores in the Delaware State Testing Program (DSTP) were released to the districts and the public this week. Local students and their parents already knew the news was not going to be good and they were not pleasantly surprised.

Starting next Spring, students in grades 3, 5, 8, and 10 have to achieve scores that meet the cut-off points for state-mandated standards in reading, writing and mathematics, or face the consequences of mandatory summer school or repeating the grade. Scores released this week from the sample test given in April 1999 revealed that 83 percent of 10th graders, 69 percent of eighth graders, 42 percent of fifth graders and 33 percent of

The suspects allegedly began punching the man, who told his female companion to keep walking.

The two victims were followed to the man's apartment but no further assault took place.

A few days later on Main Street they saw the two suspects who allegedly asked, how the man's eye was? They then went to police with their complaint.

Talks continued on teacher accountability plan

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Efforts by a state committee to come up with a system for measuring teacher performance and effectiveness were to come to a close this week as state legislators are scheduled to meet for a Special Session on Oct. 6 to vote on the committee's proposal.

For several months, a committee of educators, lawmakers, parents, and state officials have been working to come up with some sort of compromise on the issue of teacher accountability.

State Representative William Oberle Jr. (R-Beecher's Lot) was hopeful the committee will devise a proposal before next week, but admitted on Monday, Sept. 27, that no formal meeting with the entire committee had been planned to iron out the glitches.

Oberle did say, however, that a meeting of chief negotiators on Wednesday could result in a final draft proposal.

As of deadline on Wednesday, no compromise had been announced.

State senator Steven Amick (R-Newark West), a Special Session legislator, was hoping that the committee would have come up with a proposal before this week. "I would be in favor of holding public hearings for people to express opinions (on the proposal) prior to Oct. 6, but without some sort of proposal, we can't do that," he said.

Deciding who should control teacher evaluations, training and licensing is the crux of the committee's conflict.

"What remains unresolved is whether a professional standards board will make decisions autonomously or will be overseen by the State Board of Education," said Peg Bradley, Governor Thomas Carper's education advisor.

According to James Spartz, president of the State Board of Education, the board wants to have a role in establishing the rules and regulations proposed by the professional standards board.

The professional standards committee would be a 15-member committee consisting of teachers, administrators, parents, a business person, one local board member and a representative from higher education.

This diverse panel would be unique compared to other professional boards across the country that consist only of teachers and administrators.

Although adding non-educators to the board seems all-inclusive Spartz questioned the selection process for such a panel.

Currently, the draft bill states that various organizations would make a list of nominees for the standards board that would be presented to the Governor for final selections. Spartz would prefer that these organizations describe the type of people they want on the board and allow the Governor to make selections based on that information.

Other components of the proposal have been resolved, however.

"We've agreed that teacher salaries need to increase by 15 percent within the first three years to be competitive with other states and that existing staff should have the opportunity to receive increased compensation (if they obtain additional) special teacher certifications," said Bradley.

Bradley said the draft proposal also calls for more rigorous hiring requirements, teacher recertifications every five years, and the creation of a specific evaluation process that would detect a pattern of ineffective teaching by an individual. This evaluation would be used as a basis for dismissal.

According to Amick, Special Sessions traditionally last just one day, but it is possible that deliberations could continue into the following morning.

Whether or not lawmakers will actually meet on Oct. 6 remains to be seen. State representative John Viola (D-Newark) stated, "I expect the committee to come to a consensus before Oct. 6, but that date could still be in jeopardy."

City defends itself

► ARTESIAN, from 1

Resources Agency from data provided by the water purveyors, show that on some days in August, Artesian wasn't drawing much more than eight mgd from their wells. On Aug. 7, two days after the emergency went into effect, Artesian drew 12.9 mgd from wells, and purchased 2.2 mgd from the Chester (Pa.) Water Authority, 800,000 gallons from New Castle and 200,000 gallons from the city of Wilmington.

Even as the Governor was ordering mandatory restrictions on Aug. 5, Artesian was purchasing its highest amounts for August from the city of Wilmington: 1.6 mgd on Aug. 5 and 1.4 mgd on Aug. 6. During one week in July, however, they were purchasing amounts as high as four mgd from Wilmington.

"When their out-of-state supplies started drying up, they relied on the source-of-last-resort like everybody else - the Hoopes reservoir," said Sarris.

City water director Joseph Dombrowski said Newark was not interested in water that Artesian was just buying from someone else and reselling to them at a profit.

Joanne Ruft, spokesperson for United Water, said the water problem was a regional one and solutions will not come from one water supplier. "Artesian is entitled to their perspective, we don't agree on their perspective."

"We're willing to work with everyone, the municipalities and the utilities that provided water and the state, to come up with a solution that is equitable for all of us," Ruft said. "It has to come from everyone."

Melinda Carl of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control said a drought declaration was based on many factors, not just one company's inability to supply water. "As stream flows got lower and there was a rainfall deficit, the state declared drought restrictions," she said.

Anthony Farina, press secretary for Governor Carper, agreed. "Stream levels were at historic lows and during that time it was important that restrictions be in place to conserve water," he said on Wednesday. "Thankfully, people heeded the warning."

Dombrowski said he would have preferred to wait until the end of August to ask for mandatory water restrictions in Newark. "That's when we historically have had problems," said Dombrowski. "That's what we did in 1995."

Dombrowski quickly added he was not questioning the Governor's decision to declare the drought emergency on Aug. 5. "All the water companies, as well as DEMA, the Water Resources Agency, DNREC and other state and federal water resource agencies were feeding information in to the governor's office," explained Dombrowski. "We just sent in our information like everybody else and waited to see what they decided."

Although Taylor said Artesian was not consulted about the Governor's drought decision, Farina confirmed the Governor received reports daily from water suppliers.

No outbreaks of illness following death on campus

No other cases of the potentially fatal disease, meningococemia, have occurred at the University of Delaware since the death of 44-year-old Debra Cephas on Sept. 23.

Cephas, a custodian technician at the Morris Library, felt ill on the morning of Tuesday, Sept. 21 after arriving at work. She was transported to the hospital after other employees saw that her condition was getting worse.

Although University officials advised that the risk of the infection spreading to others was extremely low, they urged any persons who were in close contact with Cephas to contact the University's Student Health Service and antibiotics were distributed to those believing they were at risk.

Meningococemia is a serious blood-stream infection with the same bacteria causing meningococcal meningitis. However, it is not the same as meningitis which is more familiar to many people.

In an effort to quell rumors of an outbreak on campus, University of Delaware officials reported this week that there has been one report of a 20-year-old male student who was diagnosed with viral meningitis on Sept. 24.

The Wilmington student lives off-campus, and, according to Dr. Joseph Siebold, director of the University's Student Health Services, "This case is totally unrelated to the incident involving Ms. Cephas."

Meningococcal meningitis is a bacterial infection that causes inflammation of the membranes surrounding the brain and spinal cord.

College campuses are often vulnerable to this type of disease. In 1996, there was one case of meningococcal pneumonia in a UD student, who was treated in a timely manner and recovered.

Hurricane relief available

Delawareans are getting federal disaster relief for both private residences and public structures damaged by Hurricane Floyd in the form of grants for temporary housing, home repairs, and other serious disaster-relief expenses, as well as low interest loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration for losses not fully compensated by insurance.

Governor Thomas Carper, who opened a Disaster Recovery Center in Stanton on Sept. 24, said funds are also available for the state and local governments for restoring damaged public facilities.

Costs for damage in Delaware were anticipated to be more than $8 million. One of the hardest hit areas was the Glenville community near Stanton in New Castle County where more than 130 homes were damaged from flooding and other hurricane-related effects when up to 10 inches of rain fell in less than 18 hours.

"The storm produced the largest single-day rainfall in the history of this state, causing significant flooding," Carper reported.

Located at the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters Hall on Route 4 between Stanton and Newport, the "one-stop" recovery center will be open seven days a week for at least another week to provide assistance and information. To register for disaster assistance at the center or to get information, call 1-800-462-9029 or 1-800-462-7585 (TTY).

The American Red Cross also has a service center at First State Plaza, Stanton, which is open 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week. Individuals and families can meet one-on-one with a trained interviewer to obtain help with disaster relief. For information, call 1-800-287-6707 or 892-2806.

Wilmington and Western RR back in operation

Wilmington and Western Railroad announced they are operating once again despite extensive damage from Hurricane Floyd on Sept. 23.

According to the company, train rides will go from Greenbank Station to their switching yard in Marshallton. Passengers can tour some of the line's equipment there and then proceed to the CSXT interchange on the approximately 40-minute round trip.

This weekend, the company is operating the Strawbale Express on Friday at 6 and 7:30 p.m., and on Saturday and Sunday at 12:30, 2 and 3:30 p.m. Company staff said plenty of walk-up seats on the open flatcars should be available for the "hayrides" at the Greenbank Station off Route 141 at the above times.

Caboose rentals for children's birthdays are also still available.

A major portion of the line's right-of-way was damaged during the hurricane. Wilmington and Western is seeking funds to help rebuild and resume all operations as soon as possible.

Tax-deductible donations for the Track and Bridge Reconstruction Fund can be made to Historic Red Clay Valley Inc., P.O. Box 5787, Wilmington, DE 19808. For additional information, call 998-1930.

College campuses are often vulnerable to this type of disease. In 1996, there was one case of meningococcal pneumonia in a UD student, who was treated in a timely manner and recovered.

Hurricane relief available

Delawareans are getting federal disaster relief for both private residences and public structures damaged by Hurricane Floyd in the form of grants for temporary housing, home repairs, and other serious disaster-relief expenses, as well as low interest loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration for losses not fully compensated by insurance.

Governor Thomas Carper, who opened a Disaster Recovery Center in Stanton on Sept. 24, said funds are also available for the state and local governments for restoring damaged public facilities.

Costs for damage in Delaware were anticipated to be more than $8 million. One of the hardest hit areas was the Glenville community near Stanton in New Castle County where more than 130 homes were damaged from flooding and other hurricane-related effects when up to 10 inches of rain fell in less than 18 hours.

"The storm produced the largest single-day rainfall in the history of this state, causing significant flooding," Carper reported.

Located at the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters Hall on Route 4 between Stanton and Newport, the "one-stop" recovery center will be open seven days a week for at least another week to provide assistance and information. To register for disaster assistance at the center or to get information, call 1-800-462-9029 or 1-800-462-7585 (TTY).

The American Red Cross also has a service center at First State Plaza, Stanton, which is open 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week. Individuals and families can meet one-on-one with a trained interviewer to obtain help with disaster relief. For information, call 1-800-287-6707 or 892-2806.

Wilmington and Western RR back in operation

Wilmington and Western Railroad announced they are operating once again despite extensive damage from Hurricane Floyd on Sept. 23.

According to the company, train rides will go from Greenbank Station to their switching yard in Marshallton. Passengers can tour some of the line's equipment there and then proceed to the CSXT interchange on the approximately 40-minute round trip.

This weekend, the company is operating the Strawbale Express on Friday at 6 and 7:30 p.m., and on Saturday and Sunday at 12:30, 2 and 3:30 p.m. Company staff said plenty of walk-up seats on the open flatcars should be available for the "hayrides" at the Greenbank Station off Route 141 at the above times.

Caboose rentals for children's birthdays are also still available.

A major portion of the line's right-of-way was damaged during the hurricane. Wilmington and Western is seeking funds to help rebuild and resume all operations as soon as possible.

Tax-deductible donations for the Track and Bridge Reconstruction Fund can be made to Historic Red Clay Valley Inc., P.O. Box 5787, Wilmington, DE 19808. For additional information, call 998-1930.

Referendum for reservoir site to be held on Nov. 2

► REFERENDUM, from 1

City council unanimously approved holding a referendum for the Bond Issue of $4,250,000 for acquisition of the reservoir site and additional open space. The city plans to hold the referendum for residents and other property owners in the city on Nov. 2.

The money will be used to help fund the purchase of land on the former Koelig property on Paper Mill Road at its most recently appraised value of $7.235 million. The balance of the monies will come from $1.7 million in this year's state bond bill and cash reserves from the city. The state also has promised additional funding at a future date.

The city is currently seeking condemnation of the property in order to force developers Zeccola Builders Inc/Linden Hill Corporation to convey the site to the city as originally negotiated.

Despite the appraisal, the city agreed in April to a higher purchase price of $7,950,000 demanded in writing by the developers. Nevertheless, the developers subsequently decided not to sell the land to the city.

Critics of Newark's plan claim it will cost much more to buy land and build the reservoir than the city anticipates, but that didn't deter proponents this week.

Paul McCormick of Hullahen Drive who described himself as an engineer, said Newark needs this because Delaware was still in drought conditions even after recent rain. "The job (to build a reservoir) is going to cost less than $50 million and more than $5 million - that's all we know right now," he said to council. "But I want to compliment council on finally having the guts to do something - just keep going."

Fairfield resident Bruce Diehl agreed. "We have to (build a reservoir) on our own," he said. "We all know it will be a long time before the state does anything."

Diehl said paying for the facility with increased taxes didn't faze him. "You can't do everything without raising taxes sometime."

City resident and Water Resources Agency employee Jerry Kaufman said a reservoir is the best solution for Newark and will only get more expensive with time. "It will give storage, works year round, and provides open space, besides," he said.

"In addition, the county's (previous) approval for development there means 200 more homes using water (if the city doesn't build the reservoir instead)."

Even people who opposed an effort by the city over a decade ago to do much the same thing, are signed on now.

"I'm in favor of this," said Maurice Hite Jr. of Barksdale Road. "I called (city water director) Joe Dombrowski dirty names in 1988 when he first said we needed a reservoir, but now I'm convinced, and we need to do this now."

Parents anxious about low scoring on tests third graders in the Christina School District did not meet minimum standards.

► TESTS, from 1

"These scores give us a clear idea of where we are doing well and what we need to improve on," Christina Superintendent Nicholas Fischer stated. "Once the instructional needs reports are released, this is where our work begins."

The instructional needs report is a detailed report sent to the parents of each student indicating where that student needs to improve with a prescription on how to do it.

The realization that many students could fall short of the cut-off points next Spring is disheartening for some Christina parents.

"I have a lot of fear about this testing," said Kathy Roenne, a parent of a 10th grader at Newark High School. "I know that there are children who are bright and alert on some days and on other days they are not and I also know some of these kids are thinking a lot about what is going on at home."

Roenne also believes that the increased pressure to pass tests given on only one or two days will hurt many students.

Ginny Hayman, parent of a 10th grader at Christiana High School said that she is not totally against the test but feels that the new standards should not be the predominant factor determining student promotion.

Hayman also expressed concern for kids who lack test-taking skills. "If teachers teach students how to take these kinds of tests, then (the results may be better)."

Marshall Elementary PTA president Jeffrey Stanard said the lack of parent involvement, particularly for middle and high school students is evident in these scores. "This is going to be a reality check for parents who are going to have to cart their kids back and forth to summer school," Stanard said. "Maybe this will get more parents to be involved in their kids education to make sure they are meeting the requirements from day one."

Jean Norman, a parent of two Christina students, said a summer school session would help students catch up on missed material. "I think if a student doesn't pass the requirements, it will be in one area not all three and I have a feeling they could catch up in summer school."

The REAL story on the City of Newark's water supply situation

In 1996, Artesian Water Company offered to supply water to the City of Newark, which was in need of an additional source.

Newark officials instead chose to rely on United Water, which gets its water from the White Clay Creek—the same vulnerable source that Newark taps for its water supply.

When the creek ran dry, both Newark and United Water experienced shortages that thrust the entire county into a state of drought emergency. This led Governor Carper to impose mandatory water use restrictions on August 5, 1999.

Under the restrictions, Artesian had a SURPLUS supply of 8 million gallons per day—more than enough to supply the entire City of Newark, including the University of Delaware.

Artesian Water offered this supply to Newark and United Water at a discounted rate, hoping to bring the drought emergency to a speedy end. They declined the offer.

The drought emergency didn't have to happen.

If you're fed up with the City of Newark's handling of its water supply, contact your city councilperson. Don't wait for the next drought to call for a reliable, quality, cost effective solution in Newark.

The real work better have started already

IT HAS TO be extremely depressing for everyone involved to read the test score results for students who participated in the Delaware Student Testing Program last Spring.

If students thought the results 'would not matter' and therefore did not apply themselves, they now know different. These results mattered in ways that will affect too many students for years to come.

The scoring on these tests established the benchmarks for standards that will make or break dates for plans next summer and next summer and next summer.

Hundreds and hundreds of children in New Castle County will spend time in summer school because they do not meet the standards. Some will still have to repeat grades when that extra effort isn't successful.

Parents who have closely monitored their child's education and parents who barely know the name of the school will all have to focus more on the daily and weekly work being done there.

Because these numbers don't show any one, overwhelming pattern or message.

Schools with a high percentage of low income students scored high. Schools in areas where you might expect highly-educated, professionals to reside, scored much lower. Schools with the same curriculums in the same grades in the same district scored all over the place.

Obviously "someones" in some places are doing some things right. But the question remains - what?

School superintendent Nicholas Fischer said once the instructional needs reports are given to parents, the real work begins. We would hope real work began a long time ago for the educators.

A DSTP test was given over a year ago in Spring 1998 and the scores were equally unimpressive. Parents and teachers were supposed to have been meeting and talking about what the schools, the students and the parents could be doing more of in order to prepare children better.

The cutoff point for the standards was not known, but we hope the educational material on the tests taken in 1998 and 1999 was reviewed at length and found to be incorporated into the curriculums already.

We have to hope that those students who say they never saw some of the stuff before the day they opened the test booklets just weren't paying attention in class.

Saying some children in the lower grades have been learning the "new" material and others who have been in school longer have not is just begging the question. Some children apparently learned enough to meet the standards despite this - how?

Parents and teachers must look closely at the achievement levels of the children directly in their care as the individual scores are revealed. Be prepared to take a deep breath and have to give up some extracurricular activities of your own.

Because there appears no way around a lot of somebodies spending late afternoons, nights, Saturdays and weekends monitoring, helping, encouraging and demanding extra learning from your children.

It's depressing, but we hope it's not discouraging, because what you and the students do matters very much now.

THE MEETING OF BANK managers for Green Awning Bank was called to order. The chairman of Green Awning Bank stood at the head of a large cherry wood table and stared down at the gray and blue suited, power tied leaders of the financial institution with the highest growth rate in the country. Behind him, an LED projection chart displayed a graph rising steeply from right to left, resembling a cross section view of the steps Rocky climbed at the Philadelphia Art Museum.

"Gentlemen and lady," he began gravely, ('Lady' is not a typo; it merely reflects the reality of the 'glass ceiling'). "If we are to continue our growth at its present rate," he turned and nodded his head towards the projection, "we need to recruit new bank managers that have the vision, the drive, the intelligence, and the educational background it takes to open new branches throughout the region and across the nation." He paused, leaned towards the table and brought his fist down hard. "We need them NOW! TODAY! The branch

One of the blue suits raised his hand to be recognized. "Excuse me, sir, but this managerial need has been known for some time. Have we conducted a search for qualified people? You know the routine: head-hunters, newspaper ads, announcements in trade journals, luring the best people away from other banks."

"Of course I know the routine, you simpleton," the Chairman seethed. "By the way, you're fired." No one else raised a hand. "I thought I'd try something different this time. I thought I'd wait to the last minute, then bring you all in here to ask you if you knew anyone who has managed a bank before." No one raised a hand. "Anyone know a graduate with an MBA?" No response.

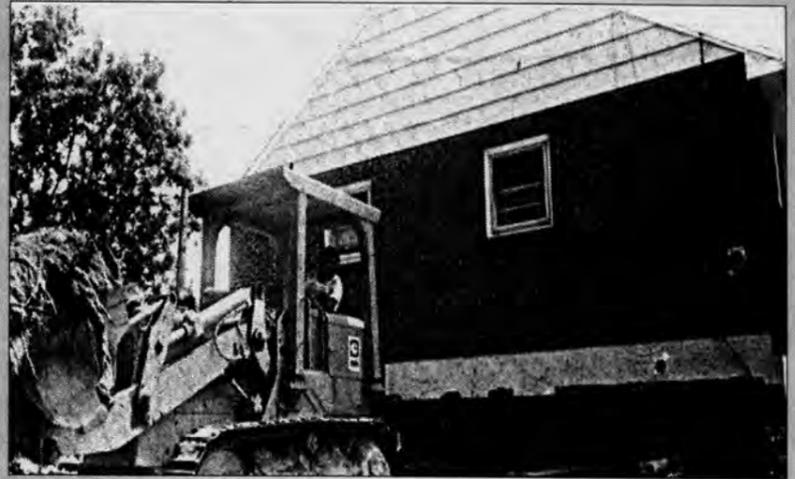

"How about people who have had a savings or checking account?"

Obviously, this would never happen in the highly competitive world of business. Unfortunately, a scenario such as the one depicted above occurs all too frequently in our schools. Newark Post Office faces rush seasons under big handicap

The much talked of new home for the Post Office is declared to be an impossible venture for several years at least. The only course open now is the enlargement of what space is now available in the Opera House building.

A post office handling the quantity of mail that Newark does, must have at least 1,800 square feet of space. The local office is operating in about half that space. Monday morning's parcel post mail this week totaled over 250 separate pieces.

Aeroplane comes down here

A large Navy biplane landed on a plowed field belonging to M.F. Whitten, along the Lincoln Highway four miles east of Newark, about noon, Monday. The pilot immediately left the machine and could not be found that afternoon. It is believed that the heavy downpour Monday morning caused his engine to miss or blinded him, so that he was forced to land. Observers say he was headed eastward when he suddenly turned and circled twice for a landing.

White Clay Dam future looks dry

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' attempt to resurrect interest in the controversial White Clay Creek dam project has fallen flat.

New Castle County and Chester County, the two governments whose go-ahead is required, to continue planning for the dam project, both flatly refused to consider the proposal.

The Corps had suggested that the $30 million dam project, involving the construction of a dam on the White Clay Creek north of Newark to create a reservoir in both counties, could have been used for water supply and for flood control.

Harkins will finish Whitechapel...

The ill-fated Whitechapel townhouse development may at last be completed enough so some people can finally live there.

I.J. Harkins, of Newark, says his building and real estate firms have been hired to complete construction of the development's 27 unfinished homes.

Original plans called for the townhouses to be sold but now the units will be rented for $320 to $340 per month, Harkins says. Harkins hopes to complete the three-story units by Jan. 31.

Four Seasons spared through road until 2000

The Newtown Road connector to alleviate traffic around Cooch's Bridge

will not be built until at least the year 2000.

The road will presumably increase traffic in the neighborhood, since it's planned to merge with Del. 896 at the development's entrance. Also, a barrier blocking the exit to the area will be opened to thru traffic.

Harmony Rd. relief still two years away

Harmony Road residents will be happy to know DelDOT plans to make good on their promise to decrease traffic on the street. Unfortunately, relief is still about two years away.

According to Michelle Ackles of DelDOT, Newark residents living on Harmony Road with the hold-up of construction to the 273/Ogletown Interchange - due to wetlands - closing Harmony Road to only local traffic has been delayed.

White Clay Dam future looks dry

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' attempt to res-

urrect interest in the controversial White Clay Creek dam project has fallen flat.

New Castle County and Chester County, the two governments whose go-ahead is required, to continue planning for the dam project, both flatly refused to consider the proposal.

The Corps had suggested that the $30 million dam project, involving the construction of a dam on the White Clay Creek north of Newark to create a reservoir in both counties, could have been used for water supply and for flood control.

Harkins will finish Whitechapel...

The ill-fated Whitechapel townhouse development may at last be completed enough so some people can finally live there.

I.J. Harkins, of Newark, says his building and real estate firms have been hired to complete construction of the development's 27 unfinished homes.

Original plans called for the townhouses to be sold but now the units will be rented for $320 to $340 per month, Harkins says. Harkins hopes to complete the three-story units by Jan. 31.

Four Seasons spared through road until 2000

The Newtown Road connector to alleviate traffic around Cooch's Bridge

will not be built until at least the year 2000.

The road will presumably increase traffic in the neighborhood, since it's planned to merge with Del. 896 at the development's entrance. Also, a barrier blocking the exit to the area will be opened to thru traffic.

Harmony Rd. relief still two years away

Harmony Road residents will be happy to know DelDOT plans to make good on their promise to decrease traffic on the street. Unfortunately, relief is still about two years away.

According to Michelle Ackles of DelDOT, Newark residents living on Harmony Road with the hold-up of construction to the 273/Ogletown Interchange - due to wetlands - closing Harmony Road to only local traffic has been delayed.

No long lines for teacher jobs in state of Delaware

► BARTLEY, from 8

Wilmington News Journal or either of the two major Philadelphia papers. West Chester University, one of the leading institutions for training new educators, was not approached for new graduates looking for work. Instead, the principal stood before the teachers at a faculty meeting two days before students were to arrive and said, half seriously and half jokingly, "Does anyone here know an English teacher or science teacher that needs work?"

There's high-powered recruitment! Apparently it is the goal of the Christina School District to keep teacher openings a better kept secret from the general public and potential employees than nuclear power secrets were kept from the Chinese. Wait, maybe that wasn't a good example; anybody can do that.

Delaware has lost its position as the most desirable place to teach in the Delaware Valley. If people in Delaware plan to take accountability in education issues seriously, then administrators need to take a more aggressive stance in meeting the staffing needs of our schools. Passively waiting for teachers to show up at district office doorsteps is not a strategy that will attract the best and brightest and place them in our schools in a timely fashion.

Newly hired teachers, no matter how qualified or experienced, need more than ONE DAY to adequately prepare for the responsibilities of teaching our children.

Legislators and school board members need to examine salary schedules that pay new teachers a lower salary than EVERY SINGLE SCHOOL DISTRICT in Pennsylvania and New Jersey (Philadelphia Inquirer, Sept. 19, 1999) that is competing for teachers from the same talent pool as Delaware.

In addition, every school district in Pennsylvania, except one, has a higher top salary than every district in New Castle County.

Of course, maybe reduced job attractiveness is a good strategy. At the student-teacher job fair held at Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware campus each year, some students are actually attracted to the New Castle County school districts' interview desks. Potential teachers frustrated with the long waits at New Jersey and Pennsylvania interview stations find they are guaranteed an interview with virtually no waiting in the short lines for Delaware schools.

The "urban legend" at Newark Community Day last Sunday was that the University of Delaware would use the drought-caused change in location to set a precedent for future years. I hope it's not true. The "vibe" on the parking lot of the Old Central Middle School was that the people of Newark would take umbrage if the University of Delaware evicted Community Day from the mall.

The Department of Education under the Carper/Minner Administration is shortchanging driver education students valuable behind-the-wheel driving experience. That Department's guidelines clearly state that each driver education student must successfully complete a minimum of five hours and fifteen minutes behind-the-wheel instruction. Yet student drivers are receiving driver education completion certificates with behind-the-wheel instruction less than the required minimum time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To make matters worse, driver education students in Delaware are being taught dangerous inaccuracies influenced in part by incorrect information contained in the Division of Motor Vehicle's Drivers Manual. Not only are Delaware driver education students being cheated out of valuable training time, but they are also being taught potentially dangerous, incorrect information. The only grade possible is an "F".

Student drivers, their parents, and all Delaware roadway users deserve a better performance than the Carper/Minner Administration is providing. Hopefully, a change in leadership after election 2000 will put an end to the dangerous incompetence of their administration.

I am conducting research for a book on the American college town and have selected Newark as one such town to study more closely. To help me in my research, I am writing to request that you publish the following author's query as a letter to the editor or a news short:

For a book on the American college town, I would appreciate hearing from anyone with insights or information relevant to the evolution and contemporary character of Newark as a college town. I would welcome personal observations and reminiscences, correspondence, diary entries, photographs, clippings, student research papers, and citations to published sources on the subject.

I am especially interested in the following topics: the evolution of the campus and its use for non-academic activities, the impact of the growth of the school on the city, town-gown relations, student-oriented commercial areas, off-campus student residential areas (e.g. "fraternity row" and the "student ghetto"), traditional faculty neighborhoods, college-related industrial development, the legacy of the 1960s, the college town as a place of personal discovery, the impact of college sports on local life, college town eccentrics, the seasonality of life in college towns, and images of college towns in literature and film.

I am also interested in a broader sense in what life is like in college towns and how college towns differ from other cities. Please respond to Blake Gumprecht, Department of Geography, University of Oklahoma, 684 Sarkeys Energy Center, Norman, OK 73019-1007 or E-Mail: gumprecht@ou.edu

Family-centered childcare programs

As we get back in to the swing of school, school activities and daycare, it occurred to me that this time of year family's start going in various directions. So how do you keep the family a focus while children are at daycare? You look for family-centered childcare.

Family-centered childcare is based on the premise that families are the center of children's lives. Programs that are family-centered reflect and respect the unique characteristics of all members of a child's family, including not only the child's mother and father but also all other significant adults who are involved in caring for the child. Historically, parent involvement in childcare programs has been understood from a program perspective. In family-centered settings, however, parent involvement is understood from the families' perspective. From this viewpoint, families' goals and needs are the basis for program design and practice.

Because family-centered childcare is flexible by definition, it will look different in different settings. However, there are some common characteristics.

Family-centered childcare supports the connections between children and their families. It recognizes that children draw their identities from the family. All family members are included and treated with respect and warmth. A basic belief in the value of families permeates program policies and practices. Such programs are welcoming and non-judgmental, and all staff are available to assist family members.

A family-centered program speaks the languages and respects the cultures of families in the program. Staff is drawn from the community the program serves. Efforts are made to build inclusiveness and to welcome all family members as partners in the program.

Family-centered programs build on family strengths and collaborate closely with other service providers. Such programs recognize various stages of development in family members and attempt to work with them to meet their needs. There is a natural give-and-take in these programs that empowers parents to make contributions to the program in ways that are not predetermined.

Believe it or not, South College Avenue runs all the way from Newark to Glasgow and so do the historical links between the communities. One of them is the Pencader Presbyterian Church at the intersection of old South College and Route 40.

A fire destroyed the original Pencader Meeting House in Glasgow in 1913, burning with it more than two centuries of history, but never destroying the memories or the faith of its congregation.

The back page of the Sunday Service program for present day Pencader Presbyterian Church is one place to find those historical memories and dates.

According to the program, in 1777, the Presbyterian Church was used for more than worship. British troops occupied the town during the Battle of Cooch's Bridge in Newark and used the church as a hospital.

Settlement originally began in the area when William Penn granted William Davies, David Evans and William Willis a 30,000-acre tract of land, known as the Welsh Tract in 1701.

Welsh Pioneers came and built homesteads there and around 1706, a one-story frame building with a sharp peaked roof was built. This building, the town's meeting house quickly became the town's center and was organized and officially named the "Welsh Tract Presbyterian Church" in 1710. The earliest use of the name "Pencader," which means "high seat," dates back to 1719.

In 1742, Margaret Williams conveyed a plot of ground, "1 acre, 38 perches," to the church for its use, according to the program. The written contract stated it was, "for the purpose of allowing full and peaceable liberty to the Presbyterian Congregation belonging to the Meeting House that is builded on said tract of land for the true worship of God in said place according to the Presbyterian Rule, discipline and doctrine and will be submissive to the rules and direction of the Presbytery of Newcastle and the Synod of Philadelphia while the sd Presbytery and the Synod walk according to the sd rule."

A low, brick building with brick floors, high pews and a high pulpit was built in 1782, according to the program. The bricks were burned on a nearby farm owned by Jacob Farls, who also planted a row of buttonwood trees near the church.

During 1852, the present church building was erected at a cost of $5,000. And in 1856, the church manse, a home for the minister, was built on Glasgow Avenue. The deed for the land was given to the church by Samuel and Sarah Harris and dated June 8, 1856.

That home now is privately owned by John LaRosch and his family. He bought it 16 years ago from the church's trustees. "The insurance people went crazy looking for the previous sale papers," LaRosch said. "They dated back to the 1840s or '50s."

None of the church's ministers had lived in the house since the 1920s, he said.

A farmer lived in the house for a long time and then a series of caretakers, but the house remained church property until LaRosch bought it.

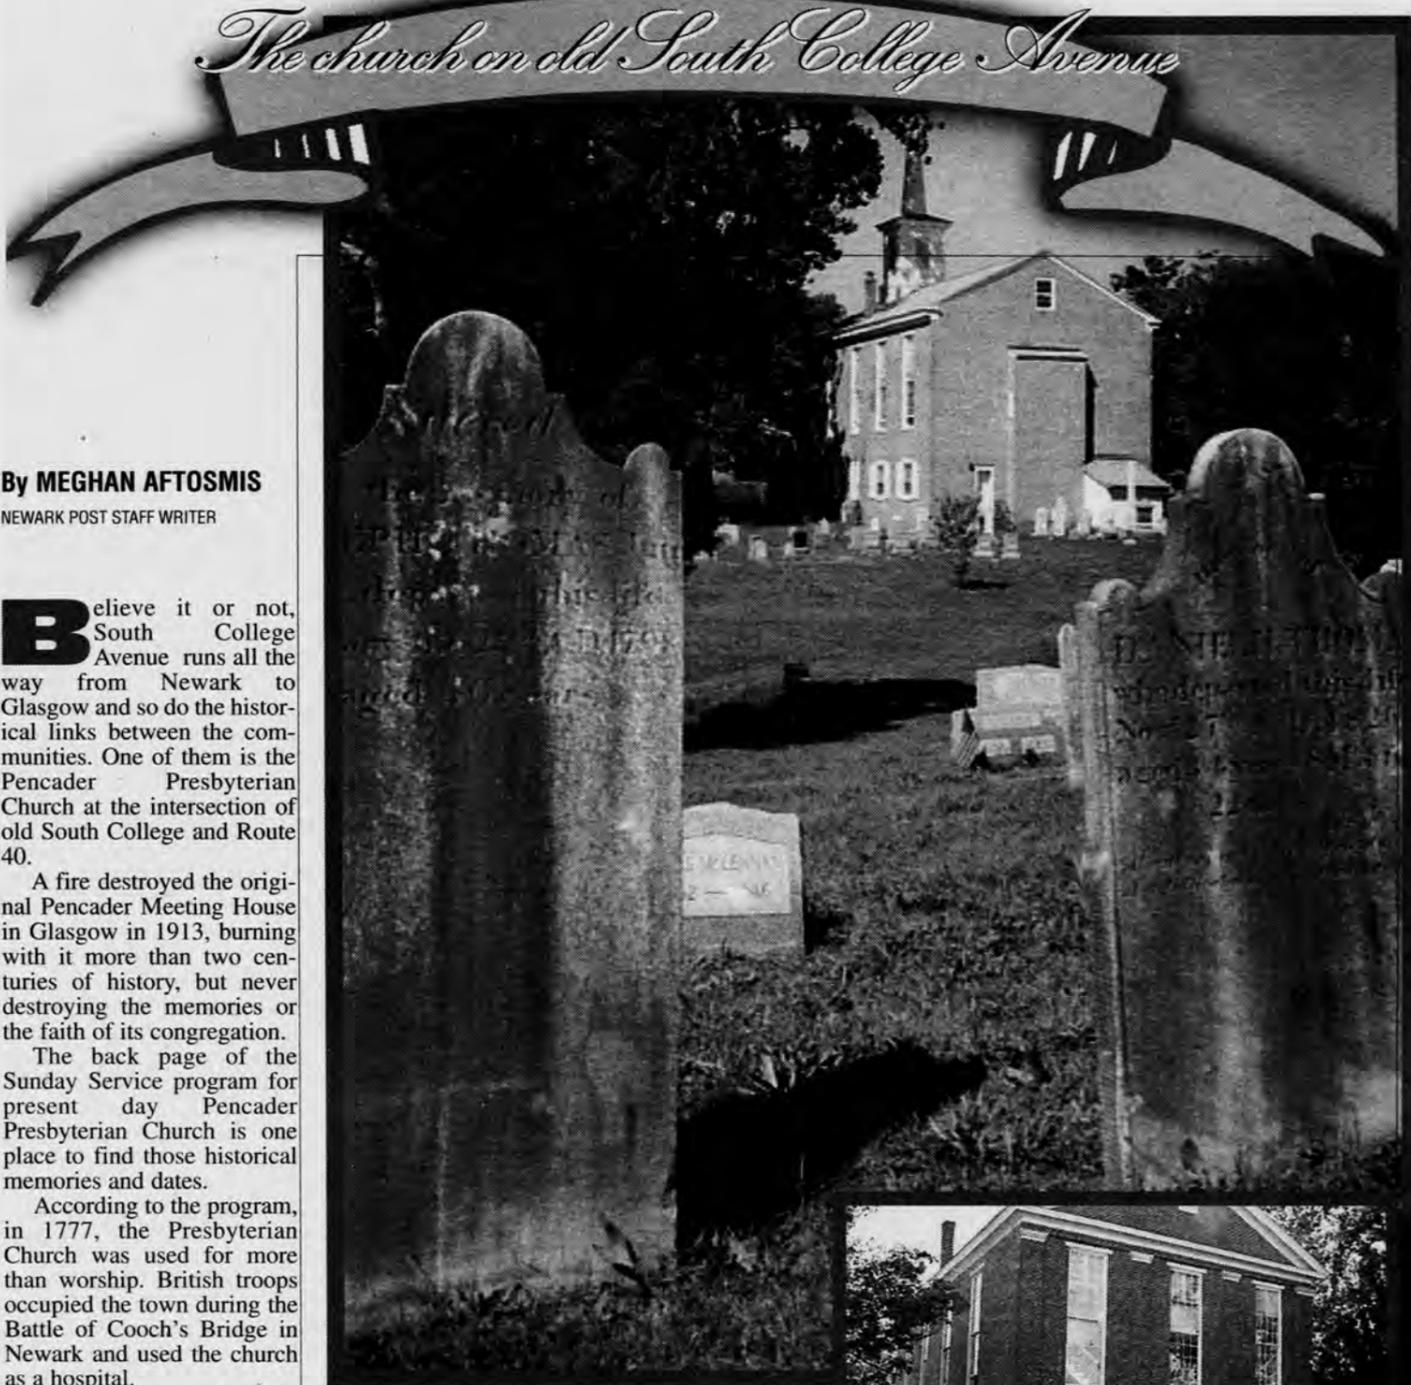

Because the house was built in 1856, the same year as Fort Delaware, he simply heads to the fort to look for replacement beams or bricks, he said.

The historical significance surrounding LaRosch's house does not end with the church. Just off Glasgow Avenue, at the end of his driveway stands the marker for the historic Aikens Tavern, owned by Mathew Aikens in the 1780s. Although no one knows where it really stood, LaRosch believes it was somewhere between Glasgow Avenue and the pond in back of his house. The state would have to do an archeological dig to find out the correct location, he said.

That might not be a waste of time. LaRosch's family has found ironware, pieces of pottery and square nails just digging around in the backyard.

"This place is crawling with archeological finds," LaRosch said. "There are still undiscovered things out here."

Children have been attending Sunday School and services at the site of the Pencader Presbyterian Church in Glasgow for over two centuries. The cemetery adjacent to the church at the intersection of Old South College and Route 40 has graves dating back to the Revolutionary War period.

A discovery that already has been made — the graves of two Union soldiers in the Civil War located in the old Methodist Church cemetery just down the road from LaRosch's house, he said. The two soldiers were from Delaware and Maryland.

The Methodist Church, which now is gone, stood on or near the site of Aiken's Tavern, which along with the Presbyterian Church formed the nucleus of the old Glasgow community.

Classical soloists come to Grand Opera House

Fall is with us again and that means a return to the great classical music programs at Delaware's Center for the Performing Arts, The Grand Opera House at 818 Market St. in Wilmington. I have written two other columns about the upcoming orchestral concerts and opera scheduled during the 1999-2000 season, but today in the arts spotlight are soloists who will perform for us during the season.

Arguably, two of the greatest soloists now performing on this planet are James Galway and Itzhak Perlman. The flautist and violinist respectively have received more accolades than just about any other performer on the same instruments active today. The great news is that no one but both of them will be at the Grand this month!

James Galway will appear Saturday, Oct. 9 at 8 p.m. He is not only a matchless interpreter of the classical repertoire but also a consummate entertainer whose near charismatic appeal crosses the footlights instantaneously. Put another way, he is Irish!

Mr. Galway has a unique sound, superb musicianship and dazzling virtuosity. All these things have made him one of the most sought after performers of our time. His RCA Victor discography is enormous. I have it in front of me here at the keyboard and it takes up eight 8 1/2 x 11" pages! His output ranges across Bach, Vivaldi, Mozart and Irish folk melodies.

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

To list the cities and great concert halls in which he has performed would be to fill up the rest of this edition and my editor wouldn't like that. Suffice it to say he hasn't missed any of the major ones operating today. The same is true for the symphony orchestras with which he has performed over the years.

While the backgrounds of Messers Galway and Perlman could hardly be more dissimilar, their performing has something very much in common. They are perfectionists who make the entire operation look so easy because they love what they do, and there will do it in our state this month!

Itzhak Perlman is certainly the reigning virtuoso of the violin. He enjoys a superstar status rarely afforded to a classical musician. He is recognized by audiences all over the world not only for his flawless technique but for the irrefragable joy he exudes when he makes his wonderful music. He will be on stage at the Grand Old Lady of Market Street

Tuesday, Oct. 19, at 8 p.m.

Many publications and institutions of higher learning have paid tribute to Perlman for the unique place he occupies both in the artistic and humanitarian fabric of our generation. In addition of cover stories in magazines like "Newsweek" and honorary degrees from universities on both sides of the Atlantic, President Ronald Reagan presented him with the Medal of Liberty in 1986.

Perlman has also worked extensively in television on film. He has appeared on many regular TV shows and also on some PBS specials. When not performing he is also on the tube promoting the cause of crippled children. Himself physically challenged, he must come on stage with crutches, but on his face is a smile.

Neither Galway nor Perlman has announced his complete program as deadline for this column approaches. Whatever the program, those of you lucky enough to get tickets will have an evening you will never forget. I have heard them both many times and offer you my word on it.

Please contact the Grand Opera House for tickets or information. You may stop by the Grand box office at 818 The Market Street Mall, or reach them by phone at 652-5577 or 1-800-37 GRAND; on the World Wide Web at <http://ameristar.net/grand/> or e-mail at GRANDOPERA@AOL.COM.

We are at the beginning of the month and they will be performing on the 9th and the 19th. Their concerts are always sellouts. Enjoy!

Families and childcare providers should be partners

► OUTLOOK, from 10

Family-centered childcare supports and trains caregivers. It is important to provide training for staff on the basic principles of family-centered care. Program administrators set the tone and lead by example in their relationships with families and routinely reassess their communications with them. Joint training may be provided for staff and families.

Family-centered childcare forges true partnerships with families. Unlike partnerships in traditional models, in which parents are in a passive role of being "informed" or "educated," in this partnership, parents are in a creative role of establishing goals and making decisions. In family-centered programs, families know that their feedback will effect change. The distinguishing characteristic of family-centered programs is that all policies and practices are based on the idea that childcare providers, families and their relationships with each other determine the strength of the experience and the wellbeing of the child.

In this way of thinking about childcare, families and childcare professionals are partners who have the shared responsibility of doing the best for the children in their care. Is it time to assess the childcare programs your children attend or to build stronger relationships with your childcare professionals?

There are many ways for a family to be "involved." It is important to discuss the range of options in which you can participate in this aspect of your child's life and for you to choose the type and level of participation which suits you and your child.

Appreciate the Difference.

Newark edges St. Mark's in overtime

Brennan blocks PAT to ice 7-6 victory

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

In a game highlighted by huge defensive plays, the biggest fittingly occurred on the final play of the game.

Newark High linebacker John Brennan, who had played a ferocious game for an equally nasty defense all night, broke through to block what would have been the game-tying point-after in overtime to seal a 7-6 victory over visiting St. Mark's last Saturday.

Newark, which had lost to Caesar Rodney 14-0 the week before, improved to 2-1. St. Mark's, which has not allowed a point in regulation this season, will take a 2-1 record into its 1:30 p.m. game Saturday at William Penn.

Brennan, a senior and three-year starter who also plays tight end, said he only took advantage of what was given to him on the game-ending play.

"I saw the center was keeping his head down after he snapped it," Brennan said. "So I figured, 'What do I have to lose?' I just hopped over him and threw my hands up and luck came my way. The ball hit me in the hand."

"It was a dogfight the whole way," Brennan added. "St. Mark's is a great team and I wouldn't be surprised if we meet them again."

St. Mark's, which had outscored its opponents 52-0 in its first two games, started off the game looking more like the Philadelphia Eagles.

On the first play, quarterback Jerry Denney's pass was tipped and intercepted by Newark's Pat Ferris.

Newark then had to punt after three downs, but St. Mark's gave the ball right back when running back Louis Wright fumbled the handoff on first down. Newark's Brandon Snow recovered the ball at the Spartans' 18.

Quarterback Ian Deptula then rushed for 10 yards on first down. However, Newark, which hadn't scored a touchdown in the past six quarters, could get no further. Defensive back James Drane ended the drive by knocking away Deptula's fourth-down pass in the end zone.

Neither team generated any significant offense the rest of the quarter.

In the second quarter, St. Mark's penetrated to Newark's 20. But Brennan sacked Denney on fourth down at the 28 to end the drive.

Early in the fourth quarter, Newark reached the Spartans' 11. But after a one-yard run by Brandon Haman, Deptula was sacked twice and Newark was penalized five

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

After dropping its first game of the season last week at James Madison, the University of Delaware football game has its collective mind focused on beating Richmond Saturday afternoon at Delaware Stadium.

Unfortunately, the minds of the University of Richmond players may be focused on more important things.

Richmond freshman defensive lineman Donnie Lindsey died Sunday night after jumping in a campus pond as part of a freshman tradition (university, not football) at Richmond. As the 150 or so students made their way out of the water somebody noticed that Lindsey wasn't with them. The pond was combed and Lindsey's body was discovered. CPR was done and he was rushed to the hospital. The efforts were too late.

"It's a tragedy, just awful," said an emotional Jim Reid, the Spiders' coach. "One of the reasons he came here is because of me. I feel responsible."

"I called his parents and believe me that's not a call you want to make."

Reid considered not playing this week at all.

"But as the night went on and the more I thought about it, the more I thought we should play. It would be good for the team to prepare, try to keep our schedule the same. This will help us get through it. We'll do the things that football is suppose to teach you."

"We'll come together as a family. That's what families do. We'll heal each other."

The tragedy at Richmond made the Blue Hens' football troubles seem insignificant. Nevertheless, coach Tubby Raymond addressed his team's problems.

"It's the little mistakes that are killing us," said Raymond, whose team is 3-1 overall and 1-1 in the Atlantic-10. "We're just doing some small things wrong and their what's keeping us from really progressing."

Quarterback is also turned into a bit of a question mark after Raymond replaced starter Matt Nagy with Brian Ginn during the loss to JMU.

"We removed Nagy because he didn't respond very well to early plays that didn't turn out well," Raymond said. "We thought it would be better if he watched some."

"I assume he'll start [Saturday] and be fine again."

Raymond also pointed out that the loss shouldn't ruin Delaware's season.

Tubby Raymond is concerned about Richmond's strong defense.

Mench excels in minors

Former Hen led team in hitting

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

After tearing the covers off baseballs with his bat in the Texas Rangers minor league system this summer, Newark's Kevin Mench is continuing his education as a professional baseball player in the Florida Instructional League.

Mench, a graduate of St. Mark's High who left the University of Delaware after his junior season last spring, is one of 41 players going through practices, conditioning and games in Fort Myers.

In a telephone interview earlier this week, Mench said he plans to come home to Newark around Halloween. His next baseball test won't come until spring training.

Mench, who was named Collegiate NCAA Baseball Division I Player of the Year as a sophomore, began the summer with Pulaski (Va.) in the Appalachian League for rookies. There, Mench led his team in hitting with a .362 average and home runs with 16. He also tied for team-high honors in runs batted in with 60, was second in doubles (22), and third in both runs scored (63) and stolen bases

"It didn't take me too long to get comfortable there," Mench said.

From Pulaski, Mench went to Class A Savannah (Ga.) of the South Atlantic League on Sept. 1 and hit .304 (7 for 23) with eight RBIs.

Included in his seven hits were a double, a triple and two home runs.

Mench described the pitching as a little better than the collegiate level, especially in balls around the plate.

His first home run at Pulaski came on his fourth day there and tied the game in the bottom of the eighth. The game before, he had the game-winning hit.

Mench's family traveled to Pulaski to see Kevin play twice. In one game, Kevin threw a runner out at home from rightfield. He hit two home runs on a second visit.

"We're excited for him," said David Mench, one of Kevin's older brothers. "He's having a lot of fun. It can definitely be a tough experience, especially minor league baseball."

"My other brother (Chris) also noticed that his confidence has increased some. He's more relaxed."

"When you look at him, he has all the physical tools. He's a powerful kid."

"He was always a great athlete. He also played ice hockey and soccer. He's probably about 6-1, 220, and he moves real well for a kid that size."

While in Pulaski, which is home to one of the oldest baseball parks in America, David said he also overheard some older fans discussing some of Kevin's homers. One of his blasts cleared the fence beyond the power alley in left-center and hit the roof of a building outside the stadium.

"They're good fans; very supportive," Kevin said.

Mench said he hasn't heard how highly the Rangers regarded his first year, but David said Kevin is being modest.

"I think (fans) liked him a lot down there," David said. He added that Pulaski's manager, Bruce Crabbe, said that in the 15 years he's been associated with rookie league baseball, Kevin's the best player he's ever seen at that level.

In July, Mench was named the Rangers' Minor League Player of the Month. When he was called up to Class A Savannah, he was the only rookie promoted to that team.

While in Fort Myers, he'll also play in games against other teams from the Boston Red Sox, Minnesota Twins and Cincinnati Reds.

Mench said he didn't know what to expect before his minor-league career began since it was a new experience, but he has no regrets.

"If I had a chance to do it all over again, I'd do it the same," Mench said.

Newark nips St. Mark's

► NEWARK, from 18

yards for delay of game.

On fourth down, St. Mark's' Josh Radulski sacked Deptula at the 35.

Spartans' running back Steve Rogers then raced for a 22-yard gain on first down, but a face-mask penalty and a sack by Snow helped snuff out that drive.

Newark was able to reach the St. Mark's 12 with 59 seconds left in the game. But Drane intercepted a Deptula pass in the end zone with 46 seconds left to send the game into overtime.

With each time getting four downs to score from 10 yards out, Newark went first.

Deptula threw an incomple- tion on first down, but on second down, he raced untouched into the end zone on a quarterback draw. John Brayman kicked the PAT to make it 7-0.

Rogers gained eight yards on the Spartans' first play, then scored from a foot out on third down to make it 7-6. But with the crowd of about 3,500 howling in anticipation, Brennan broke through to block Kevin Maloney's kick and a wild celebration ensued.

When asked if he was a little nervous before the play, Brennan replied: "No, sir. This is what warriors live for. This is what it's all about."

Newark Coach Butch Simpson, who lacked the services of starting halfback Seth Montgomery (injured ankle) for the second straight game, said he's concerned about his team's inability to score.

"It starts with me," Simpson said. "I call plays and I'm not getting them in the end zone. We're obviously playing pretty good defense. We're bending a little bit. But overall we can't really complain about a shutout in four quarters. But offensively we need to refine ourselves a great deal."

Simpson said injured quarter- back Eric Spiese (thumb) will share playing time with Deptula when he returns in two weeks.

St. Mark's Coach Vinnie Scott, whose team limited Newark to 149 yards rushing and 17 yards passing, said his team didn't let the game slip away.

"You know Newark has a good defense," Scott said, "and I knew it was going to be a game like this; who makes the big play. And when do you make the big play? Right at the end. The guy blocks the extra point. That's the biggest play of the game."

"That's part of what you learn in sports. It's easy to handle wins. Its hard to handle losses like this. But what you have to do is use it for motivation. The best we can do is work a little harder and be a little better."

Wright, who rushed for 160 yards the previous week against Christiana, was held to 28 by the Yellowjackets.

"The first two possessions killed us," said Wright. "I fumbled; the interception. And it's kind of a hard way to start off."

"But I can't say enough good things about our defense. We really held them when it mattered during regulation and it came down to overtime. You couldn't ask for a better game, but despite the outcome, we still have a good football team and we'll see them again."

"We'll find out how good of a football team we are by bouncing back from adversity and see how we play against William Penn."

Local players help lead the Delaware Tech soccer team

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Delaware Technical & Community College men's soccer team has soared to national prominence helped by graduates of Glasgow, Hodgson, Newark, and Christiana.

Right outside back Chester Harding of Glasgow, midfielder Wayne Iverson of Hodgson, and forward Pat McKay of Newark, have played key roles in the Spirits' 6-0 start, which included a 3-0 record in Region 19 play.

And, first-year coach Bill England is a 1974 graduate of Christiana who played on the Vikings' only state soccer championship team.

DelTech, which had outscored opponents 28-4 in its seven games, was ranked 21st in the nation for Division I junior college teams in last week's National Junior College Coaches Association poll.

England said Harding, Iverson and McKay have each provided different but important contributions to a team that uses all 16 of its players every game.

"(Harding's) a tremendous player," said England. "He's kind of quiet, but he's funnier than all get out. Whenever something comes out of his mouth in practice he cracks everybody up."

"He's real skilled and a very consistent player. He's just a great part of that whole back line."

"The main thing about us is that we play as a group, as a team," said Harding, who plans to pursue a career in acting.

Harding said the main difference in high school and college is the speed and toughness of the games.

"That's good because I like a good game," Harding said. "I like competition. (DelTech's success) would be one reason I'd stay another year."

Iverson, of Newark, has contributed a goal and a couple assists. He plans to study architectural engineering.

"(Iverson's) really been a great surprise because a lot of the freshman coming in weren't big names in the newspapers or from playoffs," England said.

"Wayne has tremendous stamina on the field. He's very fast and he's been one of the key cogs in our machine."

"He had one assist the other day when he had a nice shot that the keeper made a great save on, but somebody scored on the rebound. His stats aren't indicative of his contributions."

McKay, who has missed parts of the season because of an ankle injury, is a returning forward from last year's 12-5 team. He's notched one goal this season.

"We're more of a team this year. The talent is spread around more," said McKay, who would like to study law.

"(McKay) has a really good foot and he's one of our players who comes in when we rotate forwards around," England said.

"It's great because we don't lose anything on the field. He's got good bursts of speed and has a really good shot."

Two graduates of McKean High, Craig Moore, a returning center midfielder and captain, and Andy Dobrzynski, a stopper and defensive midfielder, have also played major roles.

Goalkeepers Josh Titter, of Avon Grove, Pa., who played last year, and Nathan Kazaitis, of Perryville (Md.), split each game because both had such good pre-seasons.

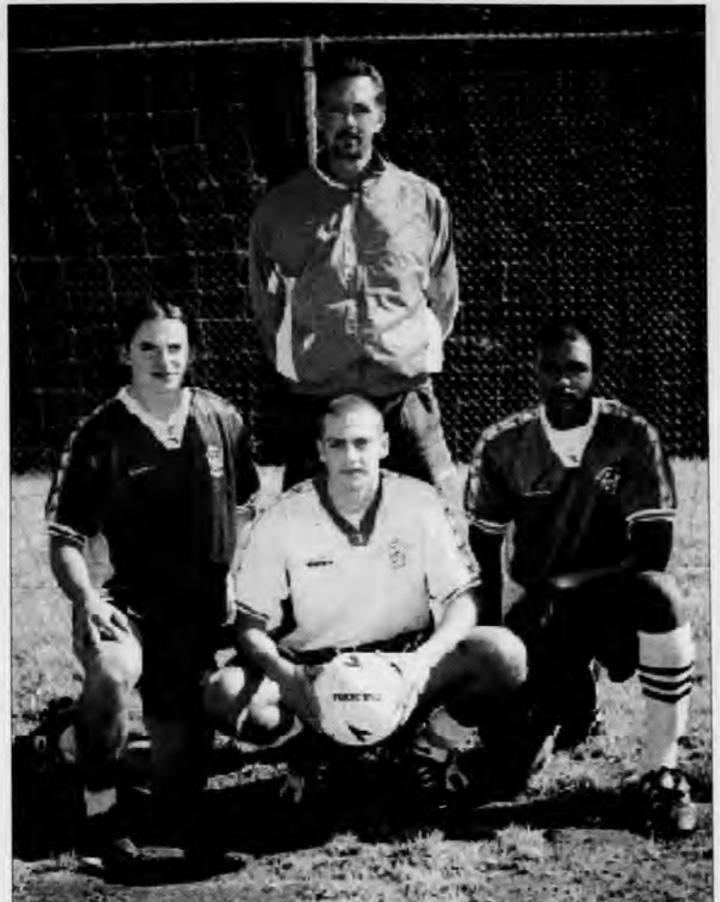

"They're both playing really well," England said. "At first I thought in the scrimmages I was going to let them play a game or a half to see who was going to play. But they were both playing so well I decided to play them both."

"They warm each other up and they're like comrades. And instead of a competing atmosphere, they're very supportive of each other. Both want to contribute and know they're going to get in every game."

"I'm also looking at the injury factor as we get into the hard part of the schedule. I prefer to have both of them ready at any time."

"The other players I rotate in and they get at least half a game in. Everybody's hungry because they know they're going to play. It's really helped because it's spread the scoring around."

Freshman Shahram Zia, of Afghanistan, meanwhile, leads a balanced Spirit scoring attack with five goals.

England said this season has gone better than he could have hoped for in his first year. The team's biggest test will come Oct. 20 when it plays Mercer on the road.

"I didn't really know it was going to turn into something like this," said England. "I knew there were a few good players from last years squad who lost eligibility, and I was trying to figure out how

I was going to fill all those holes. But the players who have come in have been exceptional and it's made it a lot easier."

"Right now (morale) is great. It's a pretty tight unit considering in junior college the turnover rate is high, so its really hard in trying to establish some kind of continuity."

Hens' season goals all still attainable

► HENS, from 18

"UMass won a national championship last year after losing three conference games," the coach said. "The year before Youngstown lost three conference games and won the national championship."

"Our main objective is to get into the tournament. All of our goals are still in front of us."

As far as Richmond goes, the Spiders enter Saturday's contest with a 2-2 record after beating New Hampshire 27-17 last week. Richmond has beaten Delaware three times in 15 tries.

The Delaware coaching staff is concerned about the Spiders' defense — especially after scoring just seven points against James Madison.

"They spend more time practicing to defense us than anybody," Raymond said. "Their defense is also the best in the conference."

Richmond leads the Atlantic-10 in pass defense (141.5 yards per game), ranks second in scoring defense and third in rushing defense.

Offensively, the Spiders are led by quarterback Jimmie Miles. Miles, an option quarterback, leads the team in rushing (217 yards) and has thrown for 650 yards and seven touchdowns as well.

"They run the option but the quarterback doesn't pitch the ball much," Raymond said. "He's big and strong and runs more like a fullback."

Conference update

James Madison, with its win over the Blue Hens, moved to 3-0 in A-10 play. Villanova is 2-0 and Connecticut is 1-0. JMU travels to Villanova Saturday while UConn hosts Rhode Island.

UMass is 1-1 in the league and 1-2 overall after falling to Division I-A Toledo.

Pressey still impressive

Newark's Butcher Pressey rushed for 61 yards on 12 carries last Saturday and still leads the Hens in rushing with 286 yards so far this season. He still owns an impressive 8.2 yards per carry average.

Butch Patrick, who began the year on offense, was switched back to cornerback and is listed second on the depth chart.

Jason VanKerkhoven last week caught his first pass of the year for 31 yards.

Christiana hands Wm. Penn first volleyball loss of season

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

After going unbeaten in individual games for a 3-0 record to start the season, William Penn's volleyball team hit a road bump last week when it lost to Blue Hen Conference foe Christiana 15-7, 8-15, 15-13.

But Colonials' coach Lori Minka and her players still have high hopes, especially after rebounding in the next match with a 15-8, 15-8 conference victory over Brandywine.

Plenty of talent and experience remains from a team that went 11-5 last season. Three of the Colonials' losses last season were to Alexis I. du Pont, which beat William Penn by two points in the third game of the state tournament's first round.

"Our goals this year are to win Flight A, the Blue Hen Conference championship, and get to the Bob (Carpenter Center, where the finals are held)," said Minka, who is in her ninth season at William Penn.

"I went into this season thinking that if we get a favorable (tournament) draw, and if we get the ball to our hitters, who I think are the strongest in the state, we can do it. Michelle Whalen, who is a senior middle hitter, has been known to knock people over and you don't see that too often in volleyball. We definitely have the hitters, and we're a very tall team, which makes us pretty good defensively at the net."

In addition to Whalen, who is five feet, nine inches tall, the starters are: senior middle hitter Brianne Sullivan (6 foot, one inch tall) senior setter Melissa Zebley (5-2), junior outside Sarah Booth (5-10), right front Kim Knollenberg, a transfer from Florida, and junior outside hitter Lindsay Miller (5-8).

Other key players are senior defensive specialist Kristin Lentelle, Krista Slater, and Sam Pietrzak. Jessica Woolman and Amber and Kristen Tussey complete the varsity.

Sullivan, Knollenberg, Miller, Booth and Pietrzak played together in the off-season in the USA Volleyball winter league, while Miller and Booth were members of an under-16, Delaware-based team that went to the nationals in New Orleans and finished 18th out of 64.

Miller and Booth were the first two William Penn players ever to play in the nationals, Minka said.

"We have a lot of potential this year," said Whalen, who is in her third year of varsity play and also a team captain. "We want to take the conference and take things one step at a time, but I think we have the potential to be state champs if we play together and concentrate."

"We're pretty close (as a team) and we like to joke around. There's no animosity."

Minka is aided by junior varsity coach Debbie Pfozter, freshman coach Camille Hawthorne, and Lindsay Baker, a volunteer varsity coach.

Minka said if her team's goals want to be realized, some improvement with and without the serve needs to be done.

"We've been really concentrating on and we're going to continue to concentrate on our serve reception and defense," said Minka, whose team hit nine bad serves against Christiana. "We can go a whole practice without missing a serve, so it's just a matter of taking it from the practice court into the game. If you're going to be a premier team in the state, you have to take that practice mentality of, 'Hey, I'm going to serve you the ball and I'm not going to send you a lollipop. I'm going to go ahead and serve for a point' "

Olympic Medalists, World Champions, and U.S. Equestrian Team Veterans to Compete at Fair Hill International

When the eleventh Fair Hill International kicks off on October 22, many of the top names in equestrian sports will be on hand to compete in this prestigious event. Eventers and combined drivers all consider the Fair Hill International one of their most important competitions of the year. Fair Hill hosts the U.S. Equestrian Team (USET) Three Day Event Fall Championship, the USET Four-in-Hand Driving Championship, the American Horse Shows Association (AHSA) Singles Driving Championship, and the final leg of the exciting Jaguar Triple Crown of Combined Driving.

Located at the Fair Hill Natural Resources Area in Fair Hill, MD, the Fair Hill International brings world class equestrian competition in the international sports of Eventing and Combined Driving to the beautiful Maryland countryside on October 22-25. Proceeds benefit the Union Hospital of Cecil County and the United States Equestrian Team. Gates open at 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, while the hours are 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. on Monday.

The 1998 CCI and USET Three-Day Event Fall Champion, Mark Weissbecker of Richmond, MA, will be returning to defend his title. Weissbecker also won the championship in 1994. This year, he will be facing a field of many of the toughest riders from North America and beyond.

The dynamic husband and wife team of David and Karen O'Connor of The Plains, VA are sure to provide fierce competition for Weissbecker. Both O'Connors were members of the Silver Medal winning eventing squad at the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games and members of the Bronze Medal squad at the 1998 World Championships in Rome, Italy. This past summer, David won team Gold and individual Silver Medals at the Pan American Games in Winnipeg, Canada.

Another 1999 Pan American Games team Gold Medalist, Abigail Lufkin of Middleburg, VA, will also be trying to seize the Fair Hill championship. Lufkin won the Individual Bronze Medal as well as the Pan American Games and placed third at this year's Rolex Kentucky Three Day Event CCI*. Joining Lufkin and David O'Connor will be their 1999 Pan Am Gold Medal teammate, Lauren Hart of Southern Pines, NC.

US ROUTE 301 MAJOR INVESTMENT STUDY Public Workshop #5 CONTRACT #88-113-01

Middletown High School Choir Room
October 13, 1999
4:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.

The Delaware Department of Transportation (DelDOT) and the Wilmington Area Planning Council (WILMAPCO) are jointly sponsoring a "Route 301 Major Investment Study (MIS) Public Workshop" on October 13, 1999 from 4:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. at the Middletown High School, Choir Room, 120 Silver Lake Road, Middletown, DE.

The MIS is a review process that examines a wide range of transportation strategies prior to initiating new federally-funded transportation infrastructure projects.

The Route 301 MIS process takes a broad look at the relationship between land use and transportation. The goal of the MIS is to accomplish three basic tasks:

- carefully examine the future land use in the Route 301 area;
- develop several alternative future scenarios of how that land use might occur;
- identify alternative transportation systems which serve that future land use.

This workshop will focus on the conclusion of the MIS. The recommended multi-modal "package" of improvements and the supporting findings will be presented.

Interested persons are invited to express their view in writing, giving reasons for support of, or opposition to the proposed. Comments will be received on site or can be mailed to DelDOT's External Affairs Office, P.O. Box 778, Dover, DE 19903. If requested in advance, DelDOT will make available the services of an interpreter for the hearing impaired. If an interpreter is desired, please make the request by phone or mail a week in advance.

For further information contact the Office of External Affairs at 1-800-652-5600 (in DE) or 302-760-2080 or write to the Office of External Affairs at the above address.
