DOWN ON THE FARM

Interesting Notes From Experiment Station

R. G. Hill, graduate in agriculture last June, has accepted a position as instructor in agriculture at the National Farm School, Doylestown, Pa. Mr. Hill will begin the work about the middle of August.

Professor Grantham left Saturday for his home in Indiana, where he will spend a two week's vacation.

Mr. Pilton, assistant horticulturist, is spending the month of August at his home in Erie, Pa.

The division of agronomy at the Experiment Station, has ordered 25 bushel of alfalfa seed from Baltimore. This will be used in co-operative experiments in growing alfalfa in the State.

The College Farm is now busily engaged in preparing live stock for the Eastern Fair on the eastern shore of Maryland and the State Fair to be held in Wilmington next September. It is expected to exhibit about fifteen head of cattle and as many hogs at these fairs.

Mr. W. C. Matthews and nephew of Wilmington, spent Saturday afternoon at the farm.

Dr. Reed will attend a meeting of the New York State Veterinarian Association at Utica, this week.

Professor Hayward made an address at the Grangers' picnic, Smyrna, last Thursday. Hon. L. Irving Handy was also a speaker of the day.

Mr. M. M. Hollingsworth and wife of Landenberg, Mr. T. Phillips and wife of Pomeroy, were visitors at the College Farm last Saturday.

Professor Manns was the speaker at the Grange picnic, Stanton, last week.

Prof. Grantham visited farms in the vicinity of Smyrna last Wednesday, and spent Thursday on the farm near Denton, Md., of Dr. Jeffries of Wilmington.

Mr. A. R. Smith of Edge Moor, and Mr. Moore of Sandy Spring, Md., were visitors at the farm last week. Both gentlemen are milk producers and were much interested in the silo and system of dairying carried out at the College Farm.

The unusual amount of rain has seriously interfered with work at the farm. The result is the cornfields have not been cultivated and contain many weeds and much grass at this time.

Mr. John N. Jones of Laramie, Wyoming, who had accepted the position as instructor in Animal Husbandry, has been offered a similar position with 50 per cent. greater salary at a New Hampshire Agricultural College. Mr. Jones wired asking for his release to accept the position and was granted the request.

Professor Hayward and Dr. Reed attended a meeting of the Live Stock Sanitary Board held in Wilmington last Saturday.

The Division of Horticulture has received a large amount of various seeds which will be distributed throughout the State in orchard cover crop co-operative experiments.

Professor Hayward has accepted an invitation to judge Brown Swiss and Dairy Short Horn cattle at the Vermont State Fair to be held at White River Junction on September 17th.

Latest Contribution

The firemen continue to receive contributions from the business corporations and public-spirited citizens, the latest being $25 from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. There will be a meeting of the fire company on Friday night when the use to which the money resulting from the carnivals of two years shall be put, will be discussed. Some favor an automobile engine and modern equipment, while others stand for a new building on Main street.

CHURCH NOTES

Open Air Services

The open air service held on the campus of the college last Sunday evening was the last of the series, which fact was regretted by those who attended the interesting service. All the ministers of the town were present and took some part.

The opening exercises were in charge of Rev. G. T. Alderson, of the M. E. Church; the sermon was delivered by Rev. W. J. Rowan, First Presbyterian Church, and the closing exercises were conducted by Rev. H. B. Phelps, of St. Thomas' P. E. Church.

The Scripture reading for the evening was from the first chapter of James, and from this lesson Dr. Rowan drew a practical talk filled with helpful ideas. He urged his hearers to test their religion: Is it pure and undefiled? Does it minister to the fatherless and the widows? Does it keep you unspotted from the world? Does it make you love your neighbor as yourself? The singing of the grand old hymns of the church was an impressive feature of the service.

Services at St. Thomas' Next Sunday

The Rev. Alex. M. Rich, rector of St. Luke's Church, Hawkinsville, Georgia, will officiate at St. Thomas' Church next Sunday morning, August 4.

Services will be morning prayer, sermon and holy communion at 11 o'clock.

The Rev. Mr. Rich was formerly in charge of St. James' Church, Stanton, and St. Barnabas' Church, Marshallton; and has many friends in this part of New Castle county.

The evening service at St. Thomas' during August will begin at 7 o'clock, and will be a shortened form of evening prayer with a short address. The rector, Rev. H. B. Phelps, will officiate at all evening services during August.

Illustrated Sermons

During the month of August the pastor of the M. E. Church, Rev. G. T. Alderson, will conduct illustrated sermons on Sunday evenings, beginning at 7:30. The stereopticon will be used. A variety of subjects will be presented. A special feature will be the illustrated song.

Next Sunday evening, August 4, the subject will be "The Life of Christ." The scenes of his birth and childhood, his busy life and the tragic events clustering around the cross will all be illustrated. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Christiana

No services will be held in the Head of Christiana and Christiana village churches during the month of August, owing to the absence of the pastor, Rev. Adrian Van Overen, who is on a vacation at his former home, near Grand Rapids, Michigan.

State Aid For Normal Students

The New Castle county school commissioners have granted State aid to the following, who will either re-enter or enter the West Chester Normal School in the fall: Miss Alexine G. Joseph and Miss Florence E. Husbards, Wilmington; Miss Ethel Rothwell and Miss Eleanor L. Spruance, Smyrna; Miss Edith W. Heindel, Blackbird; Miss Berta A. Halliday and Miss Verma L. Nelson, Delaware City; Miss Ethel L. Mackey and Miss Susie Ruffedge, Townsend; Miss Helen L. Steele and Miss Anna B. Zehley, Newark; and Miss Helen McDowell and Miss Bertha N. Manly, Middletown. Miss Margaret Parry, of Montchanin, and Miss Oma Singler, of Christiana, will attend the normal school at Millersville, Pa.

St. Thomas' P. E. Church held their annual Sunday school picnic in the grove adjoining Welsh Tract Church on Tuesday. Those who attended pronounced the day a great success.

OTT'S CHAPEL RECEIVES VALUABLE PAINTING

PRESENTATION MADE BY O. R. WASHBURN, CHAPEL HAS INTERESTING HISTORY

VIEW OF OTT'S CHAPEL AND SUNDAY SCHOOL

Ott's Chapel Sunday school enjoyed a pleasant service last Sunday, when a large oil painting was presented to the school by O. R. Washburn, acting for Miss Sara J. Eddy, of Bristol Ferry, Rhode Island, the artist. The painting, occupying a canvas five by six and a half feet, represents a high quality of art and a pure devotion, being itself a message of lofty emotion and truth. It was painted for the school at the suggestion of Mr. and Mrs. Washburn, who have known Miss Eddy for some years, and was forwarded, ready framed, from the artist's home, Miss Eddy is devoted to humanitarian and strictly non-denominational religious work and has done much for various societies devoted to the protection of children, to kindness to animals and to the abolition of war. In her home vicinity she has built, and maintains, under the management of an expert teacher, a settlement house, which provides a center for social life and for arts and crafts work. Along the coast in that part of the large island on which she lives, are many people who have been isolated from schools and social opportunities and the work done under her direction is especially designed to meet the needs of such people. She is a successful artist.

In presenting, on her behalf, the picture, Mr. Washburn spoke briefly of Miss Eddy and of the faith that children, and all people, have, from the unseen world, companionship such as was mentioned by Christ in His reference to the angels of the children who "do always behold the face of the Father." After his interesting address, W. H. Camer responded most eloquently for the school, expressing the great satisfaction of its members in having so beautiful a picture as a permanent possession, and voicing the official instruction of the school in sending to Miss Eddy, through the agency of Mr. Washburn, its most grateful thanks. His address was eloquent, full of well turned phrases and will long be remembered by all present. The receiving of the picture has called attention anew to the need for some repairs and redecoration for the chapel and it is expected that money for this will be raised immediately and the work begun at an early date.

Ott's Chapel, the history of which readily dates back to about 1852, when Elder Stephen Ott moved to Iron Hill from Philadelphia county, in Pennsylvania. The locality was little settled and Mr. Ott was one of a party of six families. He was an ordained Methodist preacher at that time, but after some years became identified with the Christian denomination. He came to the house now known as the Forsythe place on the lane running from the house of John Lambert, not far from the store of his grandson, William B. Walton, at Iron Hill. The farm, of something like a hundred acres, was the best one in this locality and Mr. Ott made it locally famous. He had every kind of fruit and was the originator of strawberry culture in this section of the country. He worked industriously on his farm through the week, in warm weather, and on Sundays and evenings was often holding meetings. In the cold season he preached at numerous points within a distance of a hundred miles, often having engagements at points far into Virginia. He was always well liked and at home had services in his house which were largely attended. His touch with physical labor and human interests must have given him greater power as a speaker and a greater understanding of life. At all events he and his wife became the center of much of the religious activity of this and adjoining counties. By 1871 he felt the need of a more ample church building than his house could afford, and built, at his own expense, with some little help from those most interested, on land belonging to him, the chapel. Here he went on with the work, preaching for several years, until the coming of the "closing scene" silenced a voice that had for some thirty-five years been always clear for the better ideals of religious faith. By the side of the chapel the body of this long-time worker, and that of his wife, are at rest. The work he did has been continued through the years, and always in a broad and kindly spirit. No denominational questions are asked in that meeting house. All who desire the higher life, or to hear of it, are welcomed to full fellowship in the Sunday school, which is the central organization of the church.

After Elder Ott's death, preachers were secured for a few years, so that there was preaching each Sunday. After that, until now, there has been occasional preaching but always a strong Sunday school organization has been maintained. About 1882 George S. Blake, of Elkton, began to act as superintendent, and continued to do so through the years until about a year ago, when his health failed. Since then William B. Walton has been the leader. The school is remarkable for the number of young people actively interested. The registered membership is about ninety, the usual attendance seventy to seventy-five, and almost all are young folks, the percentage of young men being notably large. There is fine material for a strong church, and from the office of this paper, it appears easily possible for our Iron Hill friends to establish regular services under the leadership of a settled pastor if they determine to do so.

CO. E. AT CAMP

GREAT PLANS FOR GOVERNOR'S DAY

The Organized Militia of Delaware in camp at the State Rifle Range near New Castle, is having a week of actual camp life and real service. Interesting reports come from Company E's part in the manoeuvres. Sergeant Hughie Morris has been appointed orderly to the Governor to act during the encampment. Captain L. B. Jacobs of Company E was officer of the day on Tuesday.

The local company left town at 9 o'clock Friday, reaching the camp shortly after 1 o'clock, having stopped for three-quarters of an hour at Christiana. On a cross road which is exactly one mile in length, the men were timed and found to make the march in twelve minutes. Upon their arrival at Camp Cannon all the men were in good condition.

The regulation army ambulance was with the company. This was purchased at the instruction of the War Department some months ago when trouble threatened with Mexico. The ambulance in active service is drawn by a team of mules, but these not being easily obtained, a fine team of horses was substituted.

In spite of the heavy rain of Monday, the First Regiment was at work early Tuesday morning. The first and second battalions under the commands of Majors Reed and Lank, respectively, advanced into action as part of an extended firing line. The men seemed to enjoy the work and went into it with earnestness. Several of them dropped out, supposedly wounded, and were attended by members of the hospital detachment. In the afternoon the men took part in battalion instruction in deployment firing and rushing. Modern warfare has changed the order of advance, and no longer will men advance in closely compact bodies, but rather in extended skirmish order, seeking cover behind every rock, tree or stump available. Guard mount is held each day at 4:15 and dress parade at 6:30.

Elaborate plans are being made for Thursday, Governor's Day. The complete program will be made public this evening. Many friends of the boys from Newark are expecting to attend.

Camping Along Christiana

A party of young people chaperoned by Misses Mabelle Pennek and Agnes Medill are camping along the Christiana near Cooch's Bridge. Among the number are Misses Audrey Miller, Helen McNeal, Marion Campbell, Katherine Bowen; Messrs. Arthur Houshian, Hawley Ferguson, Geo. Holton, Knowles Bowen and Rodney Miller.

SEVERE ELECTRIC STORM

LIGHTNING PLAYS HAVOC WITH TREES—SEVERAL PERSONS STUNNED

A terrific electric storm swept over this section last Monday evening, between the hours of four and five. There seemed to be no element lacking for the making of a frightful storm, the wind, hail, rain and lightning being of unusual violence. The greatest damage was done by the wind, in a belt just south of town. Trees were uprooted and dozens of fine healthy specimens torn limb from limb. In one woods near town the tops were taken from fourteen trees, while four large maples were broken at the strongest part of the trunk—a short distance from the ground, and spread lengthwise across the adjoining field. One end of the stone tenant house on the property of George Hiber was carried away, while the station at Pender, which stood nearby, was whisked to the opposite side of the track—leaving the roof only on the original side. Several valuable walnut trees within the town limits and a fine maple on the academy lawn were torn and twisted in many directions.

The wind was accompanied by hail which cut the crops and laid the corn flat in many places. Great

A GREAT DAY IN THE GROVE

HARVEST HOME PROGRAM COMPLETE

The people of Ebenezer and vicinity have entered with zest into the plans for the annual harvest home which will be held in Whitman's Grove, near Milford Cross Roads, tomorrow, August 1st. Workers have been busy in the grove for days placing booths, erecting seats, arranging for the dinner tables and getting the surroundings in ship-shape generally. A number of new features will be in evidence this year. The various classes of the Sunday school of Ebenezer Church have provided special amusements. Among these attractions there will be a play ground section for the children, a Japanese garden, sample, cake, candy and fancy booths, etc.

In the morning a silver medal contest will be conducted by the Wesley W. C. T. U. Another interesting item of the day's program will be the field sports. The leading events are the 100 yards dash, the mile run, pole vault and relay race. Prizes will be given the winner in each event. The small fee of ten cents will be charged to enter, or fifty cents for all ten events. At 2:30 there will be a game of baseball between Union and Strickersville. The meet is in charge of Messrs. Clarence Harkness and Warren Brelingham.

Dinner will be served by the ladies; tickets, 30 cents; also supper, tickets, 25 cents.

There will be speaking in the afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Lila Aaron, of Dover, will talk on the subject, "A Better Crop of Boys and Girls." Caleb E. Burchenal, of Wilmington, will discuss "Good Citizenship." In the evening Rev. Ashbury Burke, of Bethel, Md., will make an address.

The planning has been carefully done; the crowd is an assured thing. It only remains for the weather to make August 1st a record-breaker in the history of the Ebenezer harvest home.

Capt. Jacobs In Accident

Capt. L. B. Jacobs when returning from Camp Cannon to his home in Newark on Monday evening, narrowly escaped serious injury. Capt. Jacobs boarded the battery car being run over the trolley line from the State Range to New Castle. Through some mismanagement the car crashed into the main trolley. Capt. Jacobs was thrown violently forward, as a result of which he was unconscious for some time. He was able to resume his duties, however, on Tuesday. Several other passengers on the car were slightly injured.

Several valuable walnut trees within the town limits and a fine maple on the academy lawn were torn and twisted in many directions.

The wind was accompanied by hail which cut the crops and laid the corn flat in many places. Great sheets of rain followed. One group of campers found themselves stream-bounded for the night. Sharp flashes of lightning and great crashes of thunder rattled during the storm. A number of the men thrashing on the property of John Vought, near White Clay Creek, were slightly stunned. Miss Mildred McNeal at her home on Depot Road received a slight shock, the force of which threw her from the bed on which she was lying. All fortunately escaped serious injury.

The excitement following the storm had scarcely died away when the dreaded zone of the fire storm called the firestorm came. The insulation on a disconnected wire in the new home of Professor Tiffany had become damaged by the rain of the early evening, and when the current was turned on the smouldering was replaced by a burst of flame. The current was promptly turned from the house and the alarm sounded. Before the Acta boys could respond, however, the danger was past. The wall in one room and the rug on the floor were slightly damaged.

EDUCATION---SUGGESTION FOR THE BOY ON THE FARM

MR. WASHEURN ANSWERS "PARENT" AND OUTLINES SYSTEM FOR TRAINING AND DISCIPLINE

Editor, The Post: You recently spoke of my "attack upon culture." I am not attacking culture, I am pleading for civilization. In making such a plea I am compelled to tell the truth and the truth is seldom agreeable to politicians or to a class long in control of a government or of a system of education.

It is not a proof of the dominance of the best in our national life that I, who am not an educator, should be expected to give opinions upon educational work or be appealed to as one having opinions as to methods. People who have long studied the subject ought long ago to have discovered what is of truth; I may be able to write. But that which the famous and the powerful will not do, the unknown and unofficial citizens must undertake.

The present situation is not hard to understand. The teachers are trained to teach according to the present system, the wealthy find it to their advantage to have them, the clergy find Latin and Greek less likely to occasion doubt of their ancient theologies than would a practical understanding of the world of work and the world of natural action. It has always fallen to men of my class to demand better conditions for the mass of mankind. In the matter of education the man who is merely a money-maker, merely rich, cannot be trusted, for he is usually grossly ignorant of those finer qualities and more important facts as to the life of man, which should be included in educational work. The priest and the clergyman are unfit to dominate education, for they are so prone to emphasize the theories that support their theologies and so intent upon suppressing facts that do not support them, that they so neglect natural science, the development of a spirit of inquiry and the teaching of history as it happened, that they do not produce well developed minds, but only narrow and intense thinking among the able, and a crude obedience to tradition among the mass of the people. Indeed, if we are to judge by Spain, under the Jesuits, or England, under Henry VIII, or New England, under the Puritans, when, in each country, killing people for their speculative opinions was common, the clergy when entrusted with education, not only sacrifice breadth of education, but morals as well, to their desire to promote theological opinions.

Not can education be entrusted to any one class. As well might the manufacturers and sellers of hardware say: "We are the experts, we are the true guides as to wrenches, reapers and fence wire" as for the ministers, the clergy, or any class to assume that they should always authoritatively determine what the common people, who buy and pay for it, shall have as to education. The average taste in music, religion and decorative art may always be inferior to the best taste, but it is from average people that the demand for the best of practical things, like machinery, education and house-building, comes. It is the business of educators to conform the school and college instruction to the needs of the civilization of the day. It is because this is not a Latin or a Greek age, that I advocate an American rather than a classical education.

In your last week's issue "A Parent" has asked a few questions. I cannot give the time to a full answer this week, but, though it will take more than one article to do it, I will reply as promptly as I can, if my opinions still seem to be worth the space. To map out a course of study as it might be in a text which would be sufficient to occupy the leisure time of the entire American Educational Association for thirty years. We have much to be rid of and much to learn. My articles, so far, have been concerned with the need of making an effort to get away from the ecclesiastical dark ages, as far as education is concerned. To make the start is the imperative need and if I contribute anything toward overcoming the deadly inertia of our educators, I shall have accomplished quite enough for one man in one year. I will, however, in another article, write as to that subject.

Taking things as they are I should say that the inquirer might find it best to send his boy to high school, having him take just as little Latin as possible, or none at all if that can be done, and paying especial attention to the use of English, the study of physics, chemistry and commercial methods, with some attention to botany. He should spend as much of his time as he can in reading the best English authors, the poets and novelists that he cares for, and such American writers as are standard and suitable to his taste. With this reading, then and later, should be good translations of Homer's writings and of some of the German authors, and a careful reading of Plutarch's "Lives." Whether he should graduate at high school should be determined by a study of the particular boy. A full high school course, at present, is not worth the time of a boy who expects to return to a farm. More important matters demand his attention. After leaving high school he should, I think, go to Delaware College and take an agricultural and mechanical course. I believe they are combined there. He should stay one full school year in that institution, if he is to graduate or take a three-year course, and after that year he should take one of the years he has declined to spend at high school and use it by going into a machine shop, the larger the shop the better, and working one year as an ordinary workman. He should not go to learn facts, but to learn to hold his mind to one thing, as shop work requires. He should not go with the idea that he is to learn how to work, but that he is there to do as he is told, earn as much money as he can and become part of a big system for one year. He would thus be disciplined into a higher type of character. He would learn the value of facts in doing good work, he would become democratic in his tendencies and be able to master better than before, any desires conflicting with the needs of his work. He would learn "law, order, duty and restraint, obedience, discipline." Above all, he would learn something of how to co-operate with his fellow man, which is the greatest of lessons in industrial success, and he would learn men, how they are best controlled when employed, and how they feel toward an employer.

After his year in the shop, I would have him go on with his course in the agriculture and mechanical work of the college. When he graduated he would be ready to go back to the farm and make it produce more, make the hired help like him and at the same time, do good work, and he would know how to make his engines and reapers behave, how to fight the enemies of his prosperity and how to gauge a politician and help break down the walls between the producer and the prosperity which ought to be his, but of which he is so generally robbed.

This plan is not ideal; the whole fabric of education is far from that, but answering off-hand, this seems the best thing to be done with such opportunities as are offered in Newark. Further thought would doubtless improve the plan.

WORKING ON THE SCHEDULE

Every Evening.
Coach McWay has not quite completed the football schedule for Delaware College eleven for the coming season.

There still remain open two Saturdays in November. He has been unable to get St. John's College of Annapolis, Md., and Mt. St. Mary's of Emmitsburg for these dates, but has received no definite reply. As has been the custom for several years, Delaware will play no Thanksgiving Day game.

Some of the colleges that Delaware will play this year are Lehigh, Washington College of Chester, Carle College of Washington, Lebanon Valley, Haverford, Gettysburg and Muhlenberg.

THE BIGGEST APPLE CROP

The biggest apple crop ever known is said to be in sight for 1912. The New York Journal of Commerce learns from apple men who have carried something of a reputation in predicting the size of crops that probably 50,000,000 bushels of apples will be marketed this year, as against 30,000,000 bushels in 1911. In no state where apples are grown is there the prospect of a failure in New York, Maine, Massachusetts and Michigan; the outlook is the best ever seen in Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia better crops are expected than last year; in Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas and Illinois the yield promises to be larger than for several years past.

RABIES TREATED AT STATE LABORATORY—INSTRUCTIONS FROM THE BOARD

The State Board of Health has issued the following statement, which explains itself:

The forwarding of specimens for examination of rabies is accompanied with more or less decomposition in transit, especially during the warmer months. Numerous specimens being received at the Delaware State Board of Health Laboratory entirely unfit for examination the following information will be of value to all concerned:

1st. If any person or persons have been bitten, the head packed in ice may be sent to the Delaware State Board of Health Laboratory, Newark, Delaware, by express, prepaid.

2d. If animal has bitten a person, and can be securely chained up for observation where he can do no harm, this is very preferable to killing the animal and submitting the head for examination.

In the first place, if the animal was capable of conveying the infection when he bit, he will develop symptoms, and die within ten days thereafter. An animal perfectly well ten days after bitten could not have been rabid at that time.

In the second place, if the animal is rabid at time of biting, it is sometimes too early in the disease to detect the negro bodies. By destroying the dog, one, therefore, oftentimes destroys his best evidence.

3d. To prevent decomposition, the head should be packed in ice in a water-tight box, or if this is impossible, place in glycerine in a tightly-sealed preserving jar, and properly packed. Personally delivered, when possible, is desirable. A wooden or iron bucket with handle is very handy for shipping or carrying a dog's head.

4th. Do not ship specimens so that they will be received on a Saturday, Sunday or a holiday, instead, hold or place in ice or in glycerine.

5th. In killing a suspected animal so far as possible avoid shooting through the brain as the part needed for examination is oftentimes shot away.

The spread of rabies throughout the State of Delaware is gradually increasing. Twenty-one persons were treated through the State Board of Health Laboratory during the year 1911. We do not know the number sent to other institutions for Pasteur treatment, but the number treated at our own laboratory shows a marked increase over previous years.

Muzzling and high-dog tax have reduced rabies in many countries, especially in Europe. Something must be done in Delaware to prevent this extra expense and mental strain by being bitten with a worthless cur.

GIBSON'S TRIBUTE

Charles Dana Gibson, inspired by the Woman's Titanic Memorial Movement, has produced a masterly piece of work, in which he has embodied the high spirit and noble purpose of the project. Mr. Gibson's drawing depicts a young woman standing at the base of the memorial arch, with the palms of suffering and the laurel crowns of victory at her feet. Thus is portrayed the whole story of the movement—an organized effort of American women to erect a fitting tribute to heroic men.

Give me the man who can hold when others let go;
Who pushes ahead when others turn back;
Who stiffens up when others waver;
Who advances when others retreat;
Who knows no such words as "give up" or "am I";
And I will show you the man who will win in the end,
No matter what opposes him,
No matter what obstacles confront him.

Rudyard Kipling.

STATE COLLEGES AND THE PEOPLE

Various phases of the question, "Are newspaper and magazine writers free to tell the truth? If not, why not?" and "What can be done about it?" are subjects of discussion at the first National Newspaper Conference now being held at the State University at Madison, Wisconsin.

This conference is being held under the auspices of the university, which is doing so much toward the idea of the State College becoming a real factor in public service. Not only is this State University the center of education, but it is a force for good in the whole social life of the state. There is no phase of society that is of interest to the state but that the university has shown an inclination to play a part. It has become the bureau of information and clearing house for progress. Judging from reports, this influence has been of great moment. From this innovation—the Newspaper Conference, there promises to be much good. Leaders in the newspaper and magazine world will address the convention and will no doubt lead to clearer understanding of the duties and responsibilities of the publishing business.

The idea of the university taking up such a practical and work-a-day question is most interesting in that it shows the trend of the times.

What a force for good could our college here be in this little State by adopting this idea of public service. The Agricultural Department with its extension work is exchanging ideas with the man on the farm and both are benefited. With this idea running through all the departments, the college could throw out an unestimated influence and at the same time get in better touch with the people for whom the institution is maintained.

The college in Delaware and the people are not acquainted. Neither understands the needs and ideals of the other. The college should know these people and instead of trying to keep abreast should be the leader in everything that stands for civic and social betterment. Of course, the college stands for this, but she is not taking the active part that these newer times demand.

Delaware is experiencing the same unrest that is found everywhere and it only needs some strong power to centralize these energies. It is sadly surprising to go in the lower part of the State where this awakening is becoming daily more prominent and hear men ask "what does the college stand for in the life of our better citizenship?"

This is due to a lack of co-operation and mere acquaintance. And the college must make the advance or fail in the realization of great opportunities.

This Wisconsin idea could well be put in effect here. The rural editors of the State are but slightly acquainted with our State institution. Their attention has not been attracted to the work being done and the possibilities offered. An invitation to these men to visit the institution for a conference on the educational legislation before the next General Assembly would be the means of a clearer idea of our needs. These men could give helpful suggestions and render good service in attracting the attention of all the people of the State.

We should like to see such a conference. The Faculty, the State Board of Education and the county schools superintendents with the other representative organizations and interested private citizens—with the publicity of our rural editors down the State there would be a feeling of joint ownership and responsibility. Much of what is now questioned as misdirected energy would be centralized toward a common end in view. The college could better and more efficiently play the part of leader in the training of our boys and girls. Also, it would tend toward the linking of our public schools with the college as the rightful head of our system of education.

A POLITICAL RUSE

Democratic candidates are beginning to use one of their time-worn methods of canvassing. Approaching some Republican friend, they ask if he will not favor them with a complimentary vote. They argue that, "of course I stand no chance of election, but should like to make as good a showing as possible. I have some enemies in my own party that threaten to cut me. Your vote would not in any way embarrass the success of your candidate and it would present me in a better light to my own county committee. I want to make a good showing in my home community, etc."

It means just this: If he can play on the friendship of enough of his Republican friends, Willard Sansbury will receive one more vote for United States Senator.

Of course, a Democrat who is sincere in his belief of Democratic doctrine, and has the nerve to lend his assistance to the "Perennial" will so cast his vote. But let no Republican, by casting a complimentary vote for some Democratic friend, lend aid to such election. It is an old ruse—this innocent plea—and every Republican should be wary of being such a victim.

AN INTERESTING DISCUSSION

We wish to call the attention of our readers to the article by O. R. Washburn on page 2 of this issue. This article is the first of a series on education and suggestions for a revision of our system of training. Mr. Washburn writes with the touch of life and experience. He is one of "us common people" whom Lincoln used to say the Lord loved so well. Keen, analytical, he lays bare the fallacies of orthodox studies with a kindly sarcasm. Not only is he thoroughly familiar with history, so called, and social evolution of the past, but is attune to the spirit of a living age. He sees needs and his suggestions for their attainment are well worth careful consideration and thought.

Those of the professional class in whose charge we have placed our boys and girls, should take part in these discussions. This does not become a part of their work as a teacher, but rather a responsibility of a citizen, looking toward the betterment of conditions in the next generation. Seminary seclusion and school-room aloofness are not true parts of the thinking people of today. The man of books needs to be closer allied with the man of action and the work-a-day world. And, too, our farmers need closer association with higher thoughts than can be found in hasty scanning of the newspapers.

Education, as understood in the past, is too far removed from life. And life, as lived, by far too many, is submerged in details of commercialism or shared by oppression.

By a wedding together of the ideals of the one and the yearnings of the other, the ideal will approach the real.

DANGER IN SPEEDING

Sadness and remorse will be the final result of auto speeding on Depot Road. The boast of running from Main street corner to the old depot in 60 seconds is a foolish one. The automobile man resents any criticism of his rights and explodes his theory of discrimination. True, there are prejudices which are disgusting in their narrowness, but the wild driving of the few throws the odium on all. It is, indeed, not surprising that this prejudice does exist.

Those masters of the wheel who recognize the rights of others on the road can do much toward stopping this reckless speeding. Very seldom does one meet an autoist who will not in some part, defend this kind of lawlessness.

It is almost a daily occurrence that a 40 to 60 mile clip is struck off here on Depot Road. These reckless drivers know the dangers in which they are placing themselves and the public, and if repeated friendly warnings and the daily reports of accidents fail to break up the foolish practice, some legal measures should be taken to safeguard the community.

TAKE WILSON WITH SALT

It is understood that Murphy of Tammany Hall arranged for Woodrow Wilson to go to sea while writing his speech of acceptance in order that he would not get too fresh.

Wilson himself seems to have sensed the idea since his return. In commenting on his speech, he urges the country to take it without the usual "pinch of salt."

GET REGISTERED

Next Saturday is registration day. Every voter who wishes to participate in the direction of public affairs is given an opportunity simply by getting registered and casting his vote at the primaries for delegates to the State convention to nominate the State ticket.

Frazer Field Progresses

Work on the Frazer field is progressing and in the next week or so, some idea of the field can be gotten. J. Stanley Frazer, one of the donors, of Frazer and Burchenal, general contractors of New York, arrived yesterday. Mr. Frazer will supervise the construction of the wall surrounding the field.

Laborers began this morning to dig trenches for the foundation. It is expected that the construction of the wall will be begun early next week.

The wall will be seven feet high and six inches thick, of hollow tile, cemented on both sides. Every 20 feet there will be pilasters 10 inches square.

Some twelve or fifteen masons will be employed and the work will all be done under the direct supervision of J. Stanley Frazer of the New York firm.

The wall will enclose the whole field, an average of about 7 acres. Dr. Elton Frazer is looking after the grading of the field with the advice of Engineer Wilson, the actual work being done by Contractors Stewart and Donahue.

The memorial gate will not be started for at least two weeks.

Among Mission Workers

The Ladies' Missionary Society of the Newark Presbyterian Church held a rummage sale in the basement last Saturday, realizing over thirty dollars from their effort. The money was raised to meet a special plea which comes from workers in China, who believe the present time to be most critical in the spread of Christianity and the conversion of the world. Owing to the changes in the political life of that country the old ideals are shattered. The Buddhists, Mohammedans, etc., are quick to realize its significance and Christian people must rise to greater effort in this great eastern mission field.

Newark To Have Candy Kitchen

Newark has been promised a candy kitchen. The offices formerly occupied by the Newark Post have been rented to Manuel Panaretos, of Elkton, where he will establish a candy kitchen, ice cream and soda parlor. All the candy and cream will be made on the premises. Mr. Panaretos is really no stranger in Newark for the reputation of his candies are known to many of our young folk who have visited Elkton. He has been associated with his brother in Elkton for several years where a similar business is being conducted.

The kitchen in Elkton has the reputation of a model shop and a similar parlor is promised here.

Fountain and fixtures arrived yesterday and the proprietor is busy arranging so as to catch the eye.

Those of Newark with a dainty tooth await with interest the opening of a real candy kitchen where fresh home sweets will be on sale.

Can You Name Him?

Friends from Iron Hill report a small, white bird, a variety quite new to them, for white birds are rare in this climate. The bird has been seen at intervals during the summer, between the Morris Dumbler place and Mr. Walton's store. It is a little larger than the English sparrow, is white (like new milk, with a creamy tinge) on most of its body, but has a black spot in each wing and a slightly bluish tinge or dove color on the upper tail feathers. Its bill is bright yellow, as are the feet, and the bird seems to be some kind of a flycatcher, as it often sits on the fence and makes brief plunges into the air, returning instantly.

Will some of our ornithological friends at the college venture a guess at this rare specimen?

Just By Way Of Comparison

Land in Baltimore hundred, Sussex county, Delaware, within four miles of the railroad is bringing more money per acre than the best farms within four miles of Newark.

Land in the town of Selbyville is bringing more money on the market today than on Main street in Newark. Selbyville, ten years ago, could not boast over 40 feet of brick pavements. Now it has over 3 miles of concrete pavements and about that much macadam streets.

A new $25,000 church was built this year and paid for at its first service.

Georgetown, a few years ago, a lost sand-dune, is reported to have nearly 10 miles of concrete pavement. In order to show a public spirit and common sense, all the old brick and wooden sidewalks were torn up and the town made a uniform job.

The town of Milford operates its public utilities under the direction of a committee elected for a long term of office. They are run at a profit every year. A member of their council says experience has proven that it is the only way.

Newark made the largest growth of any town in the State during the last ten years. Name the men who are mostly responsible and heed their advice in improving the town.

What is Newark doing toward the same advance for the next decade? With business activities increasing with every monthly report, why should Newark be content in simply trying to hold her own?

Let the automobile owners hold a meeting to boom the town.

Post Printing Plant Enlarged

The additions to The Post Printing Plant are almost completed. The press room has 1100 square feet additional space and the offices are being moved to the new part of the building on the corner. Part of the machinery will be rearranged and new machines installed. When completed the plant will meet all the requirements of an up-to-date newspaper plant and its printing department will be unsurpassed by any of the rural plants and in fact many of the city establishments. The work being done has appealed not only to the higher grades of the local trade but out of town work as well. An attempt is being made to establish city printing facilities in the healthful surroundings of a country town. Details of new equipment will be given in future issue.

Mrs. J. B. Miller, Mrs. Agnes Miller, Misses Agnes, Marian, Frances, Audrey and Jane Miller; Lindsay Miller, Misses Bessie and Edythe Whittingham spent Friday afternoon and evening at Brandywine Springs Park. The occasion was Children's Day, and a large crowd was present. The trip was made in A. C. Stiltz's hack.

Republican Meeting

A meeting of the Republicans of White Clay Creek hundred has been called for Saturday evening, in Grange Hall, at 8 o'clock. The object of the meeting is to name candidates for delegates to the coming State convention.

About The Editor

Allegorically speaking, the editor is a happy medium between a soubhane and a porterhouse steak. Nobody ever saw a rich editor, says H. J. Rann, in the Birmingham, (Ala.) News, and on the other hand no one ever encountered an editor who didn't head every subscription with a donation of four-bits and a stub-pen. The editor is said to belong to the fourth estate. This is because that is the only kind he ever leaves. He is also one of the most cheerful and overworked preparators now passing a legal tender. He has to be.

Whenever a girl with a face like a cream puff marries a youth who never earned a dime outside the shooting gallery, the editor has to paint the bride as a radiant vision of blushing beauty, and the groom as one of our rising young business men or else disappoint an expectant circle of delinquent subscribers. If the editor fails to spread a two-column obituary over the death of a prominent citizen who never paid a grocery bill outside of justice court, he is liable to be waited on by some two-listed relative of the deceased with an injured air and a punch in either hand. It has been libelously reported that the editor's diet is confined mainly to eight drafts and summer squashes taken on subscription, but he appears to be resigned to his lot as a man whose wife has gone to the seashore. The only thing that can cause him to change his occupation is a sheriff's sale or an untimely death. Few editors go to the case nowadays and set up their editorials in long primer with a three-point lead. Modern machinery does everything but meet the payroll and pay the hired girl. The editor is the most cultured person in the community. He is the only man in the village who can tell "Barriers Burned Away" from "Grant's Memoirs" and get away with it, and as a result he outranks the principal of the high school as a literateur.—Ex.

Where Printing is done

PRINTING vs. Printin

You have often heard the expression "I've got a little 'printin'" to have done and I run down to the job office and have it struck off. Of course, there are lots of shops that do "printin'" and are rightfully called job offices. And too, if you want a little "printin'" "struck-off," they are the places to go. But if you are in need of printing—that is printing, beginning with a big "P" and ending with a "t"—it's most likely that you will go to a place like the Post Press, whose shop is on Main street in the town of Newark—the State College another well-known institution is just across the street. This is not a job office and we do not strike off any "printin'."

This is a printing shop where printing is considered a work of art and not just a "job of printin'." The devil—a printer's devil—can "strike off a few" on any old press. But to do a piece of work that will attract notice worthy of a gentleman, requires a careful man at a well-appointed and well-selected case of type. Next a good press (our Goh's runs perfectly), good ink, not lamp-black—that's for printin'—and then an artist to make that form ready. Then a good pressman who has an eye for accurate register. Let the devil slip sheet it, put it in the drying rack. Then you have a piece of real printing—one, two, three or four colors, we do this. A piece of "printin' struck off" is a sad attempt at one color and then every sheet is different.

One thing we forgot—it must be good stock. This costs money, you say. Oh, yes, any work really worth while costs money. But do you know it costs you but very little more than "printin' struck off." And there's lots of satisfaction in having a piece of printing done instead of a "job of printin'" struck off. All it pays big returns. And really successful business men have printing instead of "printin'." You judge a man and so do we, by his stationery. How's yours? We don't "strike off" any letter heads and envelopes—but we can print some fine ones. Want to see a sample?

BASE BALL NEWS GAMES OF THE WEEK

Close scores and good pitching featured the games played in the Tri-County League on Saturday. Newark lost to Port Deposit on the latter's grounds by the score of 5 to 4. Havre de Grace won from Elkton, 2 to 0. It took Oxford 11 innings to defeat Northeast, 2 to 1, while Elk Mills showed good form and defeated Aberdeen, 6 to 1. As a result of the games, Port Deposit now holds first place, with Havre de Grace second; Aberdeen, third, and Newark fourth. The official standing of the teams is as follows:

W.	L.	Pct.
Port Deposit	11	5	.687
Havre de Grace	11	6	.647
Aberdeen	10	6	.625
Newark	9	7	.563
Elkton	8	8	.500
Oxford	7	9	.437
Northeast	5	12	.294
Elk Mills	4	12	.250

In the game at Port Deposit on Saturday Murray, who was in the box for Newark, was hit hard in the early part of the game. What really won the game was two home runs over a short right field fence, the balls going into the river. The team supported Murray well and he pitched good ball after the second inning, allowing but one hit the remainder of the game. Taylor, who is picked by many fans as one of the best pitchers in the league, was touched up by Newark for nine hits, but he kept them well scattered, not more than one run being made by the local boys in any one inning. Johnson played a good game at second base accepting seven chances without an error. The score follows:

Tri-County League Notes.
Although hit hard, Murray would, in all probability, have pulled out a winner, but for the short home runs.
Hoffecker again demonstrated Saturday, that he is one of the best twirlers in the league, when pitching for Elk Mills, he let Aberdeen down with three hits.

Schweitzer, the pitcher who is claimed to not be eligible, continues to keep Havre de Grace in the race, and on Saturday he shut Elkton out with only two hits.
The Oxford team during the past month, has been coming strong and promises to cause a great deal of trouble to the leaders before the season is over.

Port Deposit will play a return game her next Saturday and it is hoped that the locals will turn the tables.

Other teams will play next Saturday as follows: Elk Mills at Aberdeen; Northeast at Oxford; and Havre de Grace at Elkton.

Hoffecker, the Elk Mills crack twirler, was given good support in the game against Aberdeen and consequently he won out.

The Newark infield looks to be about as good as any in the league.

The Newark Club will play at home the first two Saturdays in August with Port Deposit and Oxford, and on August 24th Aberdeen will be here. After that, however, the team is not scheduled for another game on the home grounds until September 21, which will be with Northeast, and the season will be closed on September 28 with Elkton on the home grounds.

With the exception of the Newark-Port Deposit game, not more than ten hits were made by both teams in any of the other games played in the league last Saturday, which is another demonstration that the batteries are superior to the other players on the teams.
No Run, No Hit Game.

The Newark Field Club of the Penn-Mar League, on Saturday, defeated the Strickersville team on the local grounds, by the score of 8 to 0. The game was a notable one because of the fact that Hemphill, in his first game for the Field Club, did not allow the visitors a hit, it being the first no-run no-hit game pitched in Newark for many years, if it ever was accomplished before.

Hemphill not only let the visitors down without a hit, but also made another league record in having 14 strike-outs in one game. The only batted ball that was near a hit was an infield tap, made by Bedford, after two were down in the fifth inning and this would have been an easy out had Herdman fielded it faster. Hemphill, however, could not locate the plate at times and gave four passes and hit one batsman, but good support always pulled him out of the tight places.

There were also several other peculiar features of this contest. The visitors, in the nine innings, hit but one ball out of the infield and that was an easy fly to short right, which Whirlow dropped. Out of the 27 outs made by Newark, twenty-six of them were secured by Spence and Jackson, each getting thirteen, while Hill caught a fly ball making the twenty-seventh out.

Newark had no trouble in connecting with Spratt's delivery and pounded him hard in several innings, but even at that the locals would not have gotten so many runs had Spratt been given good support. H. Draper pitched the last inning, and one run was scored off his delivery. The score follows:

Newark Field Club		R.	H.	O.	A.	E.

Penn-Mar League Notes.
Hemphill more than delivered the goods for his first game in the box for Newark Field Club.
Herdman looks to be about as good, if not a better hitter than several playing on the Newark Tri-County League team, and it might be a good idea to give him a trial in the outfield.
Jackson and Spence divided the outs pretty well, but left one for Hill.
Spence is another Field Club player who hits the ball well, and with Herdman, they might strengthen the Tri-County League club outfield.

DEAR OLD GEORGIA
 The following poem was given us by Elder Eubanks, our local "Gentleman of the South, sub." Elder Eubanks is a native of Georgia and never tires of telling us of this "Gateway to Heaven."
 Mr. Fonerdeu, a salesman visiting this town, ran across the Elder and "Georgia" naturally became the one absorbing topic. This little poem was sent to the Elder and we print it here, a witness to his much famed stories of the south:

There is, in this fair land of ours,
 No place where grow such fragrant flowers
 As bloom in dear old Georgia—
 Of truest blue, the purest lies
 In Georgia's maidens' sweet blue eyes.
 While o'er no land beam bluer skies
 Than those that bless old Georgia.

No fruits and melons are so fine
 As grown on bounteous tree and vine,
 Down in good old Georgia.
 Her sun-kissed hills and fertile plains
 Are blessed with Heaven's benignant rains;
 While wild flowers fleck fields and lanes,
 Sweet scented in old Georgia.

Her balmy breezes waft good health,
 Her ripening fields yield bounteous wealth,
 And joy abides in Georgia.
 The song-bird's note awakes every dell
 Vocal with his entrancing spell,
 And souls of men repositual dwell
 In that sweet land of Georgia

Could you but see that Eden land,
 Or valleys green and mountains grand,
 And crystal streams of Georgia,
 You would behold with wondering eyes,
 And heart aflame with glad surprise
 A veritable Paradise
 In that fair land of Georgia.

Let me be buried in the earth
 Of that good land that gave me birth:
 That dear sweet land of Georgia,
 There, in that blissful land is given
 Life's mission true—that blessed heaven,
 That lifts one's soul to that high heaven,
 Whose gateway is old Georgia.
 C. A. Fonerdeu.

UNDER THE SKY IN AUGUST
 "The Crickets' Chirr"
 Each recurring summer season finds us more and more influenced by the charm of the out-of-doors. We are awakening to the joy of the commonplace and the wonders of nature in the world about us. We feel that the hours under the open sky are well spent and restful ones indeed.
 To the nature lover the approaching month is an interesting one. Easily the dominant feature is the insect song which greets him each night, after the long hot day. The voice of the cricket is the leading one in the chorus, and has become so inseparable with the restful cool of the evening that it comes to us with a peculiar charm.
 The chirp is the outcome of the universal desire for a mate, but the cheerful little cricket continues his song late into the fall. "His joy," one scientist tells us, "rises and falls so absolutely with the thermometer, that it is possible to calculate the temperature with a remarkable degree of precision by the pitch of the insect's shrilling."
 Quoting from Dr. Schumaker: "These strange creatures are so entirely different from us in every way, though the scientist uses human terms in speaking of them, these terms only apply to the roughest analogies."
 Our voices, as well as the bark of the dog, the song of the bird, the hiss of the serpent, the croak of the frog, all are made in some way or other by the air we breathe. Every one of these sounds is produced on a wind instrument. But the cricket adds to his quip, as do his cousins the grasshopper and the katydid. The cricket and the katydid both use one wing for fiddle and the other for bow. When they grow merry they rub their wings together, much as a character in an old-fashioned novel rubbed his hands."

 His odd little car, whose only resemblance to ours is that it has a drum and nerves back of it, is found just below the knee of the front leg. When his enemies have gone to sleep, the cricket, clad in a modest brown, comes from his home beneath the sod, and under the soft light of the stars fiddles to the "listening knees of his skipping mate, the old, old tale."

AN ATTRACTIVE CAMP—COR-DIAL INVITATION EXTENDED
 The annual encampment of the First Regiment, Organized Militia of Delaware opened on Saturday at the State Rifle Range below New Castle. The site is an ideal one and the ideal weather made the opening days of the camp most auspicious. Governor Pennell arrived on the first day and with the probable exception of one day, will stay throughout the encampment. The authorities have expressed the wish that the citizens of Delaware will lend encouragement and show their appreciation by a visit to the camp. A marked improvement is noticeable to those who were familiar with the grounds last year. COAL

 Many of the best posted people believe it wise, for those who can do so, to lay in now their winter supply of coal.
 For one-sixth of the entire year no coal has been mined, and it is deemed that when cold weather comes again the demand will exceed the supply, and prices, too, will be higher.
 Benefit yourselves by filling up your bins now, and at the same time you will be out of the way of those for whom it is not convenient to buy until later on in the season. We have good coal and could deliver at any time entirely convenient to you.

Absent Ones
 Absence makes the heart grow fonder but the memory of the absent one becomes vague and dim. You long to picture in your mind just how "HE" or "SHE" would look, but there's a mysterious something which makes the mental picture impossible.
 But if you had a photograph before you, then you could recall the forgotten face, yes, even the kind acts, the gentle words.
 Wouldn't that "ONE" so far away appreciate your photograph too?
