AMERICAN EMBASSY
Mexico, July 6, 1942.

My dear friend:

I have just received this moment your letter of June 30 and by this time you have undoubtedly received my note of that same date. It has been fine to hear from you and I do miss a word from you very much, but I can understand your many occupations and preoccupations.

Secretary and Mrs. Wickard arrived this morning and are staying with us at the house during the Agricultural Conference which will last until the middle of next week. We have a very large and very interesting delegation. I am glad to know that you met Mr. Wickard in Washington recently and I shall, if possible, arrange for a trip to Necaxa. There are so many demands on his time and so many things the Mexican Government wishes him to do that I still do not know just what we will be able to do. It is good of you to invite him to visit Necaxa and I will try to arrange the trip. I see Mr. and Mrs. Conway from time to time and we have become very good friends. He is a very charming and cultured gentleman.

This is a very brief note but I did want you to know how pleased Marion and I were to hear from you all and she joins me in affectionate regard to you all.

Cordially yours,
