Dr. Dawson's Cure For Anthrax

On Monday of last week, on the same farm on which Anthrax was discovered in 1904, Dr. Kuhns, veterinarian of Dover, found that two mules belonging to Harry Clark, living near the State Capital, had died, and that the trouble was unquestionably Anthrax. The veterinarian made an examination of the district and found two cows on the farm of J. J. Coverdale, further east and towards Bowers Beach, dead with Anthrax. Returning to the farm of Clark, Dr. Kuhns discovered that a horse was sick with the malady, and immediately applied what is known as Dr. Dawson's Anthrax Cure. Dr. Dawson, the Delaware State Chemist, has been working for several years to relieve this condition and has recently completed what he terms his Anthrax Cure. The Clark horse did not die, and at that time was alive and showing signs of yielding to the treatment.

Meantime the State is insisting upon its new Anthrax laws. All carcasses it is notifying the farmers, must be either buried or burned. If buried, a grave seven feet deep must be dug, leaving four feet from the top of the body to the top of the ground. If burned, it requires about a cord of dry wood and a small trench dug for the fire to kindle beneath the animal. A good burning is preferable to a good burying job, the State says, but almost anything is preferable to a bad burning, where the blood or other fluids, infected with millions of anthrax germs, flows about, free of the flames.

The State pays eight dollars for a burning and four dollars for a burial, but insists upon burial, with a barrel of quick lime, where the burning cannot be properly done. Dr. C. F. Dawson, who has been experimenting at the College Station, is the recognized authority of the scientific world on anthrax.

Plans For Gettysburg Celebration

Governor Pennell has named Richard G. Buckingham, Newark, W. S. Blackstone, Georgetown, and J. M. Satterfield, of Dover, as members of the commission to arrange for the fiftieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. The Delaware Commission will join with similar commissions from other States, whose soldiers engaged in the struggle, in arranging for the celebration to be held two years hence.

Pilgrim's Progress

Increasing numbers attend the Sunday evening services at the M. E. Church to hear the illustrated sermons. The pastor at great pains and expense is furnishing the highest art to emphasize the great truths of Scripture. One most attractive feature is the illustrated songs. Next Sunday evening the subject will be Pilgrim's Progress. As usual the story will be interspersed with song. The pastor extends an invitation to the public.

New Industry Inquiry

Inquiries have been received from the Empire State Metal Wheel Company, asking if Newark has any large building and site for the location of their plant here. The company is now located at Fort Plain, N. Y., where they are engaged in the manufacture of children's steel wagons, wheelbarrows, auto supplies and novelties. Their present quarters will not accommodate an increasing trade and they are desirous of locating in such a town as Newark, where the railroad facilities place them nearer their markets. With headquarters here, this would make an ideal distributing point. It is not known whether any action will be taken on this request for information or any effort made to find out the possibilities of this industry.

Rural School Appointments

Miss Mary McDaniel, of Wilmington, has been appointed teacher for Fairview School, district No. 93; Miss Katherine Heiser, for White Clay Creek, district No. 36; Miss Lora Little, of Fairview, for Union School, and Miss Laura Walker, of near Mermaid, Milltown School.

STATE FARM NEWS

George Stephenson, of Omaha, Neb., permanent secretary of the National Corn Exhibition, spent the day at the station and farm on the 9th. The next exhibition will be held at Columbia, South Carolina, in January, 1913.

The farm sold recently six pure Berkshire gilts to H. C. Webb, of Blackbird.

Prof. Hayward will attend the Fair at Salisbury on Thursday.

Colonel Denny, of Dover, who has large orchard interests in Sussex county, spent a day last week inspecting the Farm orchards and consulting with the authorities relative to his work in Horticulture.

Dr. Tomlinson, of Wilmington, was the guest of the farm last week, inspecting all the experimental plots.

At the recent meeting of the Board of Trustees, the Building Committee was instructed to install a new sewage system at the College Farm. The system includes the Septic tank and the work is being done under the direction of Mr. Francis, of the duPont Company.

Professor Hayward attended the annual meeting of the New Castle County Farmers' Institutes at Stanton on Monday.

Professor McCue spent yesterday in inspecting some orchards near Laurel. This visit was made at the request of the Harrison Nurseries of Berlin, Md.

EXHIBITS AT FAIRS.

The farm sent their exhibit of live stock, consisting of six head of cattle, seven hogs and 14 sheep at the Salisbury Fair on Monday. The car was loaded and left Monday morning, under the supervision of Hertsman Reynolds and Wm. Walker, a student in Agriculture at the college. Superintendent Teller went down yesterday to look over the exhibit and put on the finishing touches. After this week at Salisbury, the exhibit will go to Easton, returning in time for our own County Fair, beginning August 29.

This is the second year at Salisbury. The Easton Fair managers were so pleased with the exhibit that, this year, an invitation was given and promise of all expenses. At the local fair there will be a much larger exhibit than heretofore. The live stock will consist of ten head of cattle, ten hogs, 14 sheep and 4 horses.

Professor Grantham will have an interesting display in the cereal and forage exhibit. Professor McCue will also have display from his department.

An interesting feature of the college exhibit will be the collection of Dr. Cook. He will show the results of our recently imported pests, such as the chestnut disease cotton Bob-weevil, Egyptian moth.

The college exhibits this year will be much larger than heretofore, requiring two large tents. It promises to attract much attention to the Agricultural work being done and to the college at large.

OBITUARY

MARY SHOEN.

Died.—On August 9, 1911, near Millard Cross Roads, Mary Shoen aged 40 years. Funeral services were held from her late residence on Saturday afternoon. Interment at Newark M. E. Cemetery.

SARAH A. ROACH.

Mrs. Sarah Roach, for the last forty years well known to the entire community, was found dead in bed this morning, Wednesday, August 16. Mrs. Roach was quite ill in the spring, but for several months has been able to be around again. She was 76 years of age. One step-son survives.

Funeral services from her late residence, Friday at 2 o'clock. Interment in White Clay Creek Cemetery.

Sixty-two tickets were sold at the Newark station this morning for the last of the excursions down Chesapeake Bay to Tolchester.

Miss Helen McNeal is suffering with typhoid fever.

NEWS NOTES HERE AND THERE

Popular anniversary services will be held at Barratt's Chapel, the "Cradle of Methodism," on September 10. Rev. F. J. Cochran, the pastor, is preparing to have a number of ministers prominent in Methodism help with the services, which will be held during the entire day.

All pupils from outside districts desiring to enter the Newark school are urged to present themselves on Friday, September 1st. The same day is fixed for the second examination for those conditioned in June.

Rev. G. T. Alderson preached at Laurel Campmeeting on Tuesday and at Marydel Camp last Friday.

The Council meeting conflicting with the pre-arranged meeting of the Hose company on Friday night, was adjourned until this Wednesday evening.

Principal Friedel, who has been spending the summer at his farm near Viola, Del., will return the week previous to the opening of school, in order to have everything in readiness for the fall term.

Dr. H. J. Watson, State Bacteriologist, reports that during the summer he has given fourteen persons the Pasteur treatment, everyone of which has proved successful.

Aetna Hose Company met last Friday evening. Among other business an order was given for 200 additional feet of hose.

Word was received by W. H. Barton's family this week of an accident which occurred at the Becker home in Philadelphia. The acetylene gas plant was not giving the usual satisfaction, and the men of the family began to examine for the cause. When in close quarters, an explosion occurred, badly burning both Messrs. Casper and Benjamin Becker, who are now in the Chestnut Hill Hospital.

The annual picnic of the Sabbath School of the White Clay Creek Presbyterian Church will be held on next Thursday afternoon, August 17, on the grounds adjacent to the church. There is, in this school, a Home department of over 60 members, and they, as well as the Sabbath School proper, are expected to participate. Ice cream, cake, candies and oranges will be served, and an enjoyable day is looked for. It is hoped that every person interested in this school will make a point to be present on this occasion.

Work has been begun on a double house being erected on the building lot adjoining Frank Smith's property by Howard Ferguson.

Local Representatives

A number of members Department of Delaware G. A. R., will attend the National Enfranchisement to be held in Rochester, next week. The local party leaves over the B. & O. next Sunday morning. Rochester has prepared a hearty reception for the veterans. During the week President Taft, ex-President Roosevelt, Governor Dix, Mayor Edgerton and other distinguished speakers will address the gathering. R. G. Buckingham and J. Rankin Armstrong will represent this immediate locality.

Joseph Frazer Has Pneumonia

A cablegram from Oruro, Bolivia, was received Sunday morning by Mr. Eben Frazer, stating that his son, Joseph Frazer, was sick with pneumonia. The message was from Mr. Yount, Mr. Frazer's partner, and read as follows:

Oruro, Bolivia.

Frazer sick with pneumonia. Will keep you informed as to his condition.

It was dated Saturday, p. m., 12th inst., and was received here Sunday morning.

In view of the fact that it has been three days and no further communication has been received, it is reasonable to think that the patient has suffered no change for the worse during the intervening time. It is a case of no news, good news.

Farmers' picnic will be held at Reynolds' Grove on Thursday, August 17th. This is always largely attended by residents of Red Lion, St. Georges and other Hundreds. Powell's ice cream has come to be regarded as a part of the annual affair.

A number of people are planning to go from Newark to Atlantic City on August 23rd, on the excursion train to be run over the Pennsylvania railroad.

Last Sunday night a plant belonging to the Misses Naudain, of the East End, was a most beautiful specimen of the cactus family. The night blooming cereus began to unfold fourteen waxen blossoms before dark. By midnight the petals were stretched wide and the lily white flowers beautiful to behold.

A horse belonging to Miss Elizabeth Bowers, south of town, was struck by lightning during the severe storm of Friday night and instantly killed.

Rev. G. T. Alderson preached at Brandywine Summit Camp last Friday.

The season for ree dand railbirds opens on September 1st. Sportsmen pronounce the outlook good.

Prof. C. A. McCue delivered an address before the Horticultural Society of Bucks county, Pa., last week, on the subject of Tree Planting.

The annual picnic will be held in the Grove adjoining White Clay Creek Church on Thursday. A straw-ride from the Appleton section went to Brandywine Springs last Saturday.

A launch party started from Elkton last Saturday for Betterton. A jolly time prevailed. Members of the party from Newark were Misses Katie Steel, Marian Davis, Messrs. Charles Medill, Bayard Vandegriff, Charlie Davis, Norman Willis, Ralph Davis, LaMartine Gillfillan, Ralph Dawson and Delaware Lovett.

G. D. Kelley, Jr., Edgar McMullin, H. I. Salmons, S. R. Choate, E. B. Wright spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Salmons, Milford. The trip was made in automobile, the party motoring to Rehoboth and enjoying the Saturday evening dancing.

The peach crop of the Delaware Peninsula is reported to be the shortest in years.

The carpenter work on the new school building is nearing completion.

The K. A. Fraternity boys held a reunion at Rehoboth the last week end. About forty of the brothers were on hand.

Board of Health Meets

A meeting of the Board of Health was held last night, and plans were discussed for a cleaning up campaign. Mr. Louis Curtis, Secretary of the Board, said this morning, that it was the intention of the Board to start a campaign for a general cleaning up. He said that this is the season of the year when every precaution should be taken to prevent sickness. Cards will be issued in a few days and details of the work outlined. It is hoped that all the citizens of the town will co-operate with the Board.

Barn Burned

During the severe electric storm that visited this section last Friday night, the barn of Dr. Porter was struck by lightning and completely burned.

The storm put the telephone out of order, which delayed the giving of the alarm. By the time Aetna Fire Company reached the scene of action the building was too far gone for their efforts to be of any avail.

All the live stock was saved. Probably the greatest loss was the burning of some rare old fashioned furniture which had been stored in the building.

Fire of unknown origin, one morning last week, burned a large stone slaughter house on the Isaac W. Hoopes farm, near Kennett Square, causing a loss of $10,000.

BASE BALL NEWS

Stupid base running on the part of the visitors in the first and third innings is all that saved Newark from defeat at the hands of the Avondale club on Saturday afternoon. Avondale showed unexpected strength at the bat and in the first, third, seventh and eighth innings drove Willis's benders to all corners of the lot. They threw away runs, however, in the early innings by poor judgment on the bases, which would have brought them victory.

It was the hardest drubbing that Willis has received this season. The visitors got ten good safe drives including three two baggers and a triple. Newark also batted well, but did not bunch their hits like the visitors. Newark won out in the ninth inning, after one was out.

Nichols who caught for Avondale, put life in the game by his good natured coaching. A feature of the contest was the fact that J. Keating, who played first base, also had two of his sons in the game. The score by innings follows:

Avondale ..... 000000220-4
Newark ..... 110001011-5

Workhouse Bonds Delivered

Warden Crawford, of the New Castle county workhouse, delivered to the Levy Court yesterday, 33 bonds of $1,000 each, that have been redeemed during the year. This makes a total of $94,000 against the institution that has been cancelled by the trustees since it was established. There remains $181,000 in bonds against the workhouse. The returned bonds will be burned.

State Buys Conowingo Bridge

Pursuant to an act passed at the last session of the Maryland Legislature, the Road Commission of that State on Saturday purchased the highway toll bridge spanning the Susquehanna river at Conowingo, from Conowingo Bridge Co., for $88,000. Shortly after the passage of the act of Assembly, the State made an offer of $82,500 for the bridge, which was accepted, but the deal was not executed. Later the bridge owners raised their price to $85,000 and then to $100,000. The matter of its sale hung fire for some time, and the figure of $88,000 was finally agreed upon as a compromise. The bridge owners have derived considerable revenue from the telephone and telegraph companies, whose wires are strung along the structure, which receipts will now go to the State and be applied toward the cost of repairs to the bridge. The State will abolish tolls on the bridge, which were made excessive, in fact, onerous upon its partial rebuilding after the burning of several spans of the structure about four years ago. The new portion of the bridge was erected in 1909 by the Roanoke, Va., Bridge Co., at a cost of $50,000, and its restoration was welcomed by residents, although the high tolls curtailed its use considerably.

Dr. Craig To Leave

Rev. Alfred E. Craig, of Grace M. E. Church, Wilmington, has recently been appointed to the presidency of Morningside University, Sioux City, Iowa.

He returned last week from the University, preaches at Brandywine Summit Camp on August 20, the following Sunday delivers his farewell sermon at Grace, and directly afterward goes to Sioux City, where he will assume his duties September 1.

Dr. Craig is a strong man, and this community loses him with regret.

Dr. Ball Has Narrow Escape

Former United States Senator, Dr. L. Heister Ball, of Paulkland, Del., and Samuel Dale, one of his employees, were given a close call when a B. & O. R. R. express struck an automobile in which they were riding, one day last week, at Kiamensi. The two men jumped in time but the machine was hurled into a ditch and completely wrecked. Doctor Ball's dog, "Billy" was on the rear seat of the auto, but escaped unhurt.

Delawareans To Speak

President Taft has assured the success of the first annual road congress of the American Association for Highway Improvement to be held at Richmond, Va., by definitely informing the officers that he will make the opening address Monday, November 20, on the subject of the improvement and maintenance of public roads.

General T. Coleman duPont, who is to build the boulevard through Delaware, has accepted an invitation to address the convention.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the New Castle County Farmers Institute was held in Grange Hall, Stanton, at 2.30 p. m., Monday.

The President, Edward T. Wear called the meeting to order. The first business of the day was the report of the treasurer, R. G. Buckingham. Philip T. Pierson, Arnold Naudain, Jr., and C. Palmer Dickey were appointed to audit the books, and found a balance of $6,26 in the hands of the treasurer, available for institute purposes.

The election of officers was then held and resulted in the unanimous re-election of the present incumbents, who are:

Edward Weer, President, New Castle, Del.; John Nivin, Secretary, Newark, Del.; Horace L. Dilworth, Vice-President, Centerville, Del.; R. G. Buckingham, Treasurer, Newark, Del.

Executive Committee—Edward Weer, New Castle; Harry Hayward, Newark; A. P. Corbit, Odessa; R. P. Robinson, Wilmington; Arnold Naudain, Newark; William Beck, Delaware City; J. Atwood Weldin, Wilmington; H. L. Dilworth, John Nivin.

Hundred Vice Presidents—Charles W. Day, Brandywine; Robert McCullough, Christiana; W. Frank Ball, Mill Creek; Geo. G. Kerr, White Clay Creek; Chas. H. Salmon, Pender; Fred Brady, St. Georges; Charles Megginson, New Castle; Alonzo T. Whitlock, Appoquinimink; H. R. Higgins, Red Lion; Harry Staats, Blackbird.

Discussion was then entered into as to the best methods of reaching the people it was most desired to have attend. The executive committee will hold a meeting at the grand stand on the fair ground in Wilmington, on Thursday, August 31, at 12 o'clock noon. Prof. Hayward stated there would be a special boys' day at the experimental farm on September 23, and said any boy under 70 would be welcome. No further business being before the meeting, it was adjourned.

John Nivin Secretary.

Let Newark Children Try

A department at the New Castle County Agricultural Fair, which promises to prove of unusual interest is that which deals with bees, honey, wax and bee supplies. Dr. Joel S. Gillfillan, Proprietor of the Manse Apiary, is Superintendent of this division.

A number of prizes have been arranged particularly for school children. No fee is required before registering the name in the contest. It is absolutely free to all.

Ten dollars in gold will be offered to the one who guesses the name of the queen bee on exhibition during the fair. $15 and two fine bees will be given to those who write the best description of the noted queen, belonging to the A. S. Root Co., of Philadelphia. These prizes may be competed for by any scholar in the schools of Delaware, the Eastern Shore of Maryland, Chester and Delaware counties, Pa.

Another contest offers $5 for the first, $2.50 for the second and a fine queen for the third best description written by any scholar in the first eight grades, and the same offer is made to pupils from ninth to twelfth grades inclusive.

This promises to be the finest display ever presented. Daily demonstrations with a full colony of bees, in a wire enclosure, will show the manipulations of the apiarist, and the manner of handling the bees.

PRELIMINARY REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON THE COURSES OF STUDY

PART I - RURAL SCHOOLS.

The committee is deeply impressed by the necessity of a carefully graded course of study for our rural and graded schools.

The inexperienced teacher will without doubt be able to do better work if he is told definitely what to do in every subject in every grade and if he is given specific suggestions as to how he may accomplish this work.

DISTINCTION BETWEEN RURAL AND GRADED SCHOOLS.

The policy of the schools in Delaware as in other States has been to provide practically the same work for the rural schools as for the town schools.

LIMITING THE GRADES OF THE RURAL SCHOOL.

There is a widely spread and not unjust criticism of our schools on the ground that the work in fundamental subjects is not well done.

SUBJECTS IN COURSE OF STUDY FOR RURAL SCHOOLS.

A great deal of time is wasted on certain of the subjects commonly taught in the rural school. The cause of the waste is not hard to find for it lies invariably in the lack of a definitely planned scheme of the work in the subject to be covered and in the careless methods of the teacher.

Delaware is an agricultural state, the majority of boys and girls in the rural schools will, or should stay on the farm, and it therefore becomes the duty of the rural school to educate them in this direction.

The course of study to be prepared should state definitely just what is to be done every year in every subject, and indicate the amount of time which may reasonably be spent on its accomplishment.

extent the instruction should be at- together oral or based partly on a text book.

The inexperienced or unskillful teacher is very apt to depend almost entirely on a text book as the guide for selecting the material for class study.

The course of study should contain the well-advised changes in the character of fundamental subjects which are advocated by our intelligent school men.

The work of the schools has very largely been confined to what are called the common school studies—reading, writing, arithmetic, grammar, spelling, geography, history and physiology.

If the home took care of the development of right moral attitudes there would still be necessity for work of this kind in the schools.

The courses of study should contain a detailed scheme of instruction in morals and manners and in physical exercises suitable for the rural school.

The value of music and drawing as cultural subjects, aside of their utility, value, entitle them to a place in a well-rounded course of instruction.

A reasonable amount of work in music and drawing form an essential part of a course of study for the rural school.

"More education for efficiency" is a general criticism directed toward the school, and it applies with peculiar force to our rural courses.

During the trial, in a local court at Baltimore last week, of four men who had been arrested on the charge of trespassing upon the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad within that city.

Delaware is an agricultural state, the majority of boys and girls in the rural schools will, or should stay on the farm, and it therefore becomes the duty of the rural school to educate them in this direction.

Quite frequently we may feel the moral of a story or of a play as distinctly applicable in a personal way.

In the little Friendship village of the story, the school board, composed, of course, of men, decides to appoint a vigilance committee, whose duty is to keep the young people off the streets.

Three women are appointed, who realize full well that such a work needed to be done in that particular little town, but they have no idea how to proceed.

A Great Success

The Harvest Home held in Whiteman's Grove last Friday was the greatest success it has ever been.

Thousands of persons visited the Grove during the day—some to hear the speakers, others for the social time and the pleasure of a day in the woods.

The large crowd who heard Mr. Handy, the lecturer of the afternoon, were loud in their praise of the mastery way in which the lawyer proved that his query, "Did He Die and Live Again?" must be answered in the affirmative.

The ladies of the church cleared $180 as a result of their efforts. The great majority of the people dined in picnic style, yet four hundred were served by the ladies during the dinner hour.

Warning Signs Are Agents

During the trial, in a local court at Baltimore last week, of four men who had been arrested on the charge of trespassing upon the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad within that city.

These sounds like reason and common sense. It is presumed in these days that all persons can read, and even the ignorant cannot fail to understand the meaning of warning signs along the railroads.

There's A Reason--Comments And Suggestions For Newark

lacking in life and charm that the youthful spirits demanded, and the question, "when we've vigilanced 'em off the streets, where are we goin' to vigilance-'em to?" seemed hard to answer.

The spell of the spring night, and the abandon of the young voices worked a charm upon the secret workers and Calliope expressed her feelings thus: "An' all of a sudden the night sort o' stretched out and up, an' I almost felt us little humans crawlin' around on the bottom of it. An' one little bunch of us was Friendship Village, an' in Friendship Village some of us was young. I kind o' saw the whole throng of 'em—the young humans that would some day be the village. There they was, bottled up in school all day, or else boxed in a store or a factory, or somebody's kitchen, an' when night came, an' spring come, an' lilacs come—land, land! They wanted something, all of 'em, an' they didn't know what they wanted.

An' what had they got? There was the streets stretchin' out in every direction, each house with its parlor—four-piece plush set, maybe, an' ingrain an' Nottingham-hams, an' mebbe not even that, an' mebbe the rest o' the family floodin' the room anyway. An' what was the parlor, even with somebody to set an' talk to 'em—what was the parlor, compared to the magic they was cravin' and couldn't name? The feelin' young an' free and springy, an' the wantin' somehow to express it?

Somethin' to do, somewheres to go, somethin' to see, somebody to be with an' laugh with—no wonder they swept out into the dark in numbers, no wonder they took the night as they could find it. They didn't hev no hotel piazza of their own, no boat-rides, no sea-shore, no fine parties, no automobiles—no nothin' but the big, excitin' dark that belongs to us all together. No wonder they took it as their own.

Why Friendship Village was no more than a great big ball-room, with these young people leavin' the main floor and settin' in alcoves, to unseen music. If the alcoves had been all palms and expense, an' dressed-up chaperons on the edges, everything would've seemed all right. As it was, it was all a danger that made my heart ache for 'em, an' for us all—an' yet it came from their same longin' for fun, for joy—and where was they to get it?

Well, the result of this committee's work was the conclusion that young folks in Friendship Village were just as young folks had always been there, social creatures who demanded action and social intercourse, and that a plan which answered these perfectly normal desires must be devised to out-charm the streets.

The beloved schoolhouse was considered none too good, and when the women failed to win the consent of the school-board by argument, they outwitted them, won the day and by the entertainment they provided, won the young folks.

Do you wonder that I feel that this story has a lesson for Newark? In our town we have an high average of intelligence and exceptionally charming homes, yet there are many restless, lonely, young people in our midst and there is a decided apathy on the part of the contented ones.

Our streets present no disorder, no riotous crowds, but there are plenty of young people who are dispirited or eager for "some-wheres to go." We lament the existence of pool-rooms, which seem to thrive amazingly, yet we have spacious, dignified school and church buildings which belongs to the people, (and i to the people, then more especially to the rising generation) and these are reaching their highest development along the line of service until they answer to the call for innocent and inexpensive diversion and opportunity for mental development in a manner to reach all classes at all times.

It will be no desecration to church lecture-room to be the scene of a candy-pull once a week and rather than a loss of dignity, there will be added a staunch loyalty of a set of young people who will take pride in the upbuilding of a church that is in every sense their own.

The church which provides a well-lighted reading room, open every evening, with an occasional evening of games, is surely coming into its own.

The school that confines young creatures for several hours a day, compelling them to lay aside for the time the natural impetus of action and play, in order to instil methods and knowledge that we believe to be for their good, can gain in influence by catering to the social natures of the young people at odd times. Charades and tableaux may seem all unnecessary to us who are old, but such an afternoon or evening is an event in a child's life.

Of course, it is requisite that such diversion, or digressions, if you will have it so, must be properly conducted, but there are so many of us to do it. Many of our old folk, with serious mien, could, if given a chance, show the young how to enjoy themselves—as in days agone.

Absent Ones

Absence makes the heart grow fonder, but the memory of the absent one becomes vague and dim. You long to picture in your mind just how "HE" or "SHE" would look, but there's a mysterious something which makes this mental picture impossible.

But if you had a photograph before you, then you could recall the forgotten face, yes, even the kind acts, the gentle words.

Wouldn't that "ONE" so far away appreciate your photograph too.

COATESVILLE

IN spite of reports to the contrary, no one can believe that the outrage of Coatesville was the work of any reputable citizen. Aside from the brutality displayed the whole affair was sickening to any one with a semblance of refinement. Of course, it is a blot on Chester county and the State, and nation, for that matter, but to say that representative citizens of old sturdy Chester county gave their approval to this cowardly mob is beyond belief.

To relieve the stain, to uphold the dignity of the law and maintain the reputation for common decency, the supreme duty of the hour is for the decent element of Coatesville citizens to demand a relentless investigation of the details of this lynching. There should be no trouble in discovering the ring leaders and their arrest, conviction and punishment should be speedy. This disgrace can be partially wiped out only by energetic action. Only by a fearless investigation and severe application of the law, can the safety of her citizenship and dignity of the State be upheld.

THE campaign for better sanitary conditions by the Board of Health is deserving of the support of the whole community. It is hoped that the work will be entered into with a spirit of good will and determination. The work will be in charge of Louis Curtis, Secretary of the Board. His position is, at best, a trying one. Let us all give him our best support and lend a hand.

PRESIDENT TAFT ON RECALL

In his message vetoing the Arizona-New Mexico Statehood resolution, transmitted to the House recently, the President says of the recall of Judges as provided for in the Arizona Constitution: "This provision *** seems so pernicious in its effect, so destructive of independence in the judiciary, so likely to subject the rights of the individual to the possible tyranny of a popular majority, and therefore to be so injurious to the cause of free government, that I must disapprove a Constitution containing it."

"Could there be a system more ingeniously devised to subject Judges to momentary gusts of popular passion?" "No honest, clear-headed man *** can deny that the unbridled expression of the majority of a community, converted hastily into law or action would sometimes make a government tyrannical and cruel."

"In order to maintain the rights of the minority and the individual and to preserve our constitutional balance we must have Judges with courage to decide against the majority when justice and law require."

"We cannot be blind to the fact that often an intelligent and respectable electorate may be so aroused upon to issue that it will visit with condemnation the decision of a just Judge."

"The motive it would offer to unscrupulous combinations to seek to control politics in order to control the Judges is clear."

"What kind of judgments might those on the unpopular side expect from courts whose Judges must make their decisions under such legalized terrorism?"

AS TO JUDGES

"YE shall not respect persons in judgment; but ye shall hear the small as well as the great; ye shall not be afraid of the face of man."

"Thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honor the person of the mighty; but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbor."

A MAN who is given a position SIMPLY because he is a good Republican or a good Democrat, is likely to think first of his political allegiance and obligation, and when in a juncture it is necessary for him to choose which of the two masters he will serve, he is likely to choose the ward politician, who has given him the job instead of the impersonal community and the intangible body of tax-paying citizens.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE FAIR

The arrangements for the coming Wilmington Fair on August 29th, 30th and 31st, and September 1st, indicate that this is to be the biggest fair Delaware has ever known. All the management asks for now is favorable weather, and it is believed that after the adverse weather conditions of a year ago Providence is certain to smile upon the association during the week of the fair this year.

Not only are the racing events of more interest than usual, showing many fast horses entered for handsome prizes, but the farm and machinery exhibits promise to excel anything ever seen here before. It is a noticeable fact that, after an apparent decline in interest for years, the farm and machinery exhibits at county fairs have again come to attract the attention they deserve and with this fact in mind the management of the Wilmington Fair have spared no effort to provide a display extraordinary in every way this season.

The dog show on Wednesday offers a splendid list of entries and will undoubtedly be one of the real features of the fair. Those who recall the remarkable success of last year's exhibit, are sure to realize what they may expect when it is stated that this year's show is to excel it in every way.

The spectacular feature of the fair this year is offered by California Frank's big Wild West, which will show on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The fair management were determined to secure a big attraction in this line, this season and they feel they have made no mistake in booking California Frank and his aggregation.

C. Frank Hadley, better known as "California Frank" was born west of the Rockies in that glorious golden State of California, his parents arriving there in the early fifties, when the stage road was the only road the country knew. Young Frank started his career as a cowboy and broncho rider. Later he entered the sheriff's office and became deputy marshal in Tulare county, distinguishing himself as an outlaw catcher and making more captures of outlaws and bandits than any other officer in California. He served in the Spanish-American war, and later was induced to appear in public along the Orpheum Circuit, in the Keith houses and others. He was also a feature of the Jamestown Exposition, the World's Fair at St. Louis, and the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

California Frank now has a typical Wild West, presenting some of the most daring riders who ever appeared in public, in this country and abroad. Prince Lucca, a Russian Cossack, and a band of daring horsemen, are regarded as the most remarkable riders in the world. Miss Ada Somerville, a California girl, is one of the best lady riders and horse trainers in the world, and was the trainer of DeAvlo, the only horse that ever did the famous "buck dance." The Indians with California Frank's show, come from several tribes and are all under the supervision of Ed Botsford, the famous scout. Mammie Francis, one of the greatest of female rifle shots; Bee-Ho-Gray, the greatest trick and fancy roper, and numerous other star features are with the show.

There will be ample restaurant accommodations on the ground this year, and everything else that tends to comfort and convenience. The fair management have seen to all of this. The special train going south over the Delaware road will prove very convenient for the thousands who come to the fair from Southern Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Miss Aetna Hall spent Sunday with Coatesville friends.

A Pome

"Tell me not in idle juggle, marriage is an empty dream, for a girl is dead that's single, and things are not what they seem. Life is real, life is earnest, single blessedness a fib; man thou art to man returneth was not spoken of the rib. Not enjoyment and not sorrow is our destined end or way, we must act that each tomorrow finds us nearer marriage day. Life is short and youth is fleeting, and our hearts though light and gay, pleasant drums are ever beating wedding' marches all the day. In the world's broad field of battle, in the bivouac of life, be not like dumb, driven cattle, be a heroine

—a wife. Trust no future however pleasant, let the dead past bury its dead. Act, act in the living present, heart within and hope o'er-head! Lives of married folks remind us we can make our lives as well, and, departing, leave behind us lots of kids to shout and yell; such examples that another, wasting time in idle sport, a forlorn, unmarried brother, seeing small take heart and court. Let us then be up and doing, leaving nothing to regret, still contriving, still pursuing, and each one a husband get."

Haag Circus Last Wednesday

Last Wednesday was Circus Day. Early in the morning the large wagons with the canvas coverings adding a touch of mystery, began to rumble through the streets. This show brought with them the largest number of animals the town has seen for years. In addition to the elephants, camels, lions, tigers, monkeys, etc., seventy-five beautifully kept horses and about thirty ponies travelled with the outfit. Steam pianos and plenty of clowns were in evidence everywhere. The show was pronounced the best of its kind the town has had for years.

Soothing Breezes
"Made to Order"

A General Electric Fan is equivalent to a cooling breeze in any part of the house where there is an ordinary lighting socket. Just attach the plug, turn the switch, and you can have a breeze in any degree from a soothing zephyr to a strong and steady draft that will dry the "wash" indoors on rainy days.

A General Electric Fan gives all this comfort and utility for the insignificant cost of less than a cent an hour.

The Oscillating Type turns from side to side, and will uniformly ventilate the largest room.

A commonsense regard for your comfort and efficiency demands the use of a General Electric Fan—a product of the highest type of manufacturing skill.

We have a complete line of General Electric Fans displayed in our show room, or we will gladly have a representative call on you

CONDITIONS AT WORK HOUSE

Dr. Robin Makes Inspection

The following letter written by Dr. Robin, of Wilmington, appeared in the Wilmington Sunday Star last Sunday. It presents the situation in a conservative manner and coming from one of his knowledge will, no doubt, command serious attention.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

Dear Sir: Frequent references to the prevalence of tuberculosis in the New Castle County Workhouse have attracted public attention and aroused the suspicion that while generally exaggerated, the assertions are more or less well founded. Indeed, from our general knowledge of the causation of tuberculosis we may conclude beforehand that a prison offers the most favorable conditions for the development and spread of the disease.

Tuberculosis is a disease of the "shut-in", the undernourished, the overworked and those with a general low vitality.

That the inmates are "shut in" is, of course, a condition inseparable from prison life. It can be and should be remedied to a certain extent, but at best prison life must mean confinement within strong walls.

Overcrowding is a condition frequently found in prison and is admitted to exist in our workhouse. Overcrowding means lack of sufficient air space and consequently lack of ventilation, and therefore must be a potent factor in the spread of tuberculosis.

That the prisoners are underfed is shown by the low cost of maintenance, to which, by the way, the prison reports "point with pride." At the present high cost of food, it is difficult to maintain a person on 8 cents a day. The food must be of the cheapest grade and lack in variety, even if theoretically nutritious. We all know how the sameness in food falls on one's palate and is thus rendered indigestible.

In Massachusetts—a State that can boast of a degree of enlightenment on sanitary matters not equalled by any other State in the Union—special attention is paid to the diet of the prisoners, who receive milk with cereals or meats and bread and coffee for breakfast; stews, fish or meats with vegetables and bread for dinner; and bread, coffee, prunes or apple sauce for supper. Each prisoner is also given the privilege of ordering enough fruit in season once a week to furnish a daily supply for the remainder of the week.

That the prisoners of our county workhouse are overcrowded is hardly open to question, since the very system of their employment is one of exploitation. The principal object is to derive as much revenue from the prisoners as possible, and the means adopted are calculated to accomplish this particular object. The prisoners are hired out to a contractor who has no particular interest in their welfare and looks upon them merely as sources of profit. Consequently, conditions differ little in this respect from those prevailing in any of the large sweat shops. The workers are huddled together in one large and rather poorly ventilated room, are driven to work to their utmost by guards or foremen and are further encouraged to overwork themselves by a bonus i. e., that in order that a prisoner may receive some pittance for his work he must exceed the task from which the State derives the profit. A more pernicious system of grinding out profits from prisoners could not be devised and is only akin to the system of overtime work resorted to in all sweat shops. As a purely punitive measure, this system will pass muster with any of the "hard labor" methods employed in the middle ages, but if the aim is at correction, we fail to see how such brutalizing exploitation can help the reform. However, from the standpoint of tuberculosis, this sweat shop system of keeping our prisoners employed cannot but help the spread of infection by undermining the vitality of the inmates on the one hand, and by the close association of the prisoners on the other.

It must be remembered that the vitality of the prisoners is anyway below par. Most of them come to the prison tainted by hereditary predispositions and with acquired ills—the result of dissipation and unhygienic living. They are for the most part human wrecks, unhealthy both in body and mind, with vicious habits and perverted physiologic functions. Even under ordinary conditions they fall ready victims to tuberculosis. How much more are they likely to contract the disease under the conditions prevailing in our workhouse! That tuberculosis is the bane of every prison is attested to by numerous statistics. Even in the Massachusetts State Prison, over 50 per cent. of all deaths were due to tuberculosis; this death rate has been reduced of late to 30 per cent. by the adoption of precautionary measures. Moreover, since 1905 the State has been maintaining a special hospital for tuberculosis prisoners at Rutland, an example followed by several other States since.

In fact, in our own State, we find a splendid example of special care of tuberculosis inmates of a State institution. As far as confinement goes there is but little difference between the inmates of the State Hospital for the Insane and the workhouse, and yet a wise and liberal Board of Trustees in the former institution long ago appreciated the necessity of isolating the tuberculosis insane in a separate building.

It is ridiculous to rise in holy wrath against well founded criticism and shut one's eyes to conditions which are so glaring as to attract the attention of even a passerby. It is equally unworthy of the dignity of public trustees to defend an evil by the assertion that a similar evil exists elsewhere. The statements frequently made by the trustees of the workhouse in refutation of charges made against the institution remind me of the statements that used to be made by the Water Commissioners about the old Sellers' filter, which, they said, "worked to the satisfaction of the citizens." As a matter of fact, the citizens had not the slightest conception of the value of the filter, and the commissioners did not see fit to inform them. However, while the filter was working "to the satisfaction of the citizens," typhoid fever was claiming about 500 victims annually. Later, when the people were informed as to the true condition of the water supply, they willingly permitted the city to spend a million dollars on a modern filtration plant with the result that not a single case of the disease in this city can be traced to our water supply.

When the late Dr. Ralph Stubbs was physician to the workhouse, we had frequent conferences on the subject, and he deplored the fact that he was unable to handle the problem satisfactorily, owing to lack of provision for the care of the tuberculosis prisoners.

Dr. Rumford, the present physician to the workhouse, admits the prevalence of tuberculosis in the workhouse, in one form or another, and also deplures the same want of provision for the proper care of the consumptive inmates. There are only two ways of eliminating tuberculosis: One is to raise the resistance of the individual by a proper mode of life, and the other is to prevent infection. We realize that the workhouse is neither a boarding house nor a hospital; it is a penal institution, and the inmate must take such chances of having his system undermined as are inseparable from a life of enforced confinement. Therefore the only remaining method of dealing with the problem is to prevent infection, and this can be readily accomplished by isolating the tuberculous inmates either in a separate wing of the present building or a separate building, especially constructed for that purpose. Of course, it will cost money. But is it just to inoculate a prisoner with a fatal disease in addition to the sentence which he is serving for his crime? Reduced to its ultimate conclusion it practically amounts to a death sentence for crimes for which in many instances only a short period of confinement has been imposed by the courts.

However, if our citizens should disclaim any leanings towards humanitarianism, when such leanings mean an increase of taxation, I would remind them that in this instance "the chickens come home to roost." The infected prisoner, when released, comes back to his haunts and spreads infection right and left, thus adding fuel to the fire which is already raging and which our citizens are endeavoring

STORIES For LITTLE FOLK

BETWEEN THE DARK AND THE DAYLIGHT
 WHEN THE NIGHT IS BEGINNING TO LOWER,
 COMES A PAUSE IN THE DAY'S OCCUPATION THAT IS KNOWN AS THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

THE little boy, Ned, was three and one-half years old. His home was in a large city, where there were more tall buildings, clanging bells, and passing trolley cars, than birds and grass and beautiful trees. When the hot days of summer came his mother began to talk of the great, open country, where he might play all day long, watching the friendly little creatures that live in the woods and fields, and gather the ripe fruit from the laden trees.

One day father brought the big trunk from the attic to a room down-stairs, and there followed a happy, busy time. The little boy chose one or two of his favorite toys—and mother placed them in a corner at the bottom of the trunk. Then a few of his nicest books—in view of rainy days. All of his clothes and all of mother's, as well as everything one could need, were not forgotten, but found a place in the nice, snug trunk in which they were to take a car ride.

The last article had just been fixed, the lid shut, the lock turned and the key put in mother's bag, when there was a ring at the front door bell. A big, strong expressman came and hoisted the trunk on his shoulder. He carried it to a big automobile waiting outside. Then Ned was dressed in his new suit with the blue anchor embroidered on the front and the blue star on the sleeve. How still he sat while mother was dressing in anticipation of the pleasure in store! They reached the station in plenty of time and soon found themselves seated in the train.

As the city was left behind the sights and sounds became strange to Ned, and it was great fun to see all the new things from the window as the car sped by. An hour's ride brought them to their journey's end, and Ned's fourteen year old cousin greeted them with a welcoming smile. As they walked around the station, they discovered the way in which the rest of their journey was to be made. There in front of them, patiently waiting for passengers, was a muscular little brown pony hitched to a cunning little two wheeled cart. Ned saw interesting things everywhere, but as he was very tired, he only had time, after the drive, to eat his supper before going to bed.

In the morning he was ready for a grand good time. He fed the chickens and watched the ducks take their morning plunge and enjoy a swim. The little pigs made him laugh and laugh as they frolicked and played. He got a little basket, went to the orchard and gathered apples from under the trees. A great big engine was chugging between the barns. He watched and watched the men as they put in the sheaves of wheat that mother had so often told him about, and wondered as it was separated into piles of grain and heaps of straw.

Finally the men had finished their work and then came the greatest fun of all! The big engine clumsily chattered away and Will and Ned were given permission to romp on the straw. They climbed to the top and went sliding down—faster than on any toboggan in the park.

Ned found something for every minute of the day. After the chickens had their supper, he heard his mother call him. She was sitting on the porch and her lap looked to be such a comfortable place! He climbed up and settled down with a sigh of content.

Tell me, mother, the story about the ponds I heard last night—who are the frogs and knee-deeps?
 As he snuggled closer, his mother began:
 Once upon a time there lived two little tadpoles named Polly

Wog and Taddy Pole. They were neighbors who always played together and had a good time. One morning Taddy could not get out of bed, as he was not feeling well. As he was lying there thinking what a good time Polly and he had, he suddenly felt an aching on the side of his body, and out popped a little leg. Soon he felt an itching on the other side, and out popped another little leg. He called to his mother to come quickly. When she came she told him to be real careful and not kick the covers off his new legs, as he might catch cold.

After she went away he felt the same itching in his shoulder and a little arm popped out. Then he felt an itching in his other shoulder, and another arm popped out. He called his mother and told her he felt all right again, so she told him he could get up and play.

As he came out of the house, Polly came running up to him. She also had new arms and legs, for she had been sick, too, and was glad to get out again.

When evening came they went with their mother to the pond. They heard grandfather frog's deep bass voice singing, "Jug-a-rum, jug-a-rum, jug-a-rum." And grandmother frog chimed in with "Inter-a-roum, inter-a-roum, inter-a-roum." Then came father frog with his voice, not quite so deep as grandfather's. "Knee-deep, knee-deep, knee-deep." They were delighted to hear their mother singing, "Go-to-sleep, go-to-sleep, go-to-sleep," just the same as she had so often when tucking them in bed. The auntie they did not like so much, for she sang, "Spare the rod—spoil the child, spare the rod—spoil the child," but they were fond of their gay uncle, for every time auntie sang her song, he would sing, "Don't spank 'em, don't spank 'em." When the older frogs were through the little frogs began their shrill chorus—"Cutty-up-high-jinks, cutty-up-high-jinks, cutty-up-high-jinks." How they did "cut up" and have a good time!

When they were tired and sleepy their mothers took them home and put them to bed. They said they had enjoyed the concert so much, and were very glad that they were real froggies at last.

The little boy had been listening intently. When the story was finished he lifted his eyes and saw the great, red sun. There were no houses to block the view and as it slowly sank below the horizon he and mother watched the beautiful colorings that flooded the skies and softly sang this lullaby, which led to a happy and cheerful good-night.

"As the sun is sinking in the west,
 And the golden stars appear,
 A mother laid her babe to rest,
 Her baby boy so dear.
 She murmured in a low sweet voice
 'God's angels are hovering nigh'
 And as the blue eyes closed in sleep,

She sang this lullaby:
 'Hush-a-Baby Bunting,
 Dada's gone a-hunting—
 Gone to get a rabbit skin
 To wrap the Baby Bunting in,
 'Hush-a-Baby Bunting,
 Dada's gone a-hunting—
 Gone to get a rabbit skin
 To wrap the Baby Bunting in—
 Hush-a-bye—Hear mother sing,
 Hush—hush!"

CONDITIONS AT THE WORK HOUSE

 to stamp out. That this is not a fanciful picture may be shown by at least two cases which came under my observation. In one case an ex-convict who claimed to have contracted the disease at the workhouse was under my care at the dispensary for several months, a burden to himself and his family and a constant source of infection to others.

At the present time there is confined at the workhouse a young man in an advanced stage of the disease, and as far as I can ascertain, no particular care is being taken of this prisoner. He is not isolated, and mingles with the other prisoners. He is there for some petty theft and will not stay long, but long enough to leave several million tubercle bacilli in the institution.

In conclusion let me remark that this letter has not been written in a spirit of captious criticism. I myself am connected with a public institution and know how easy it is to provoke fault-finding. I write because of my conviction that it is a matter of public concern, in which we are all vitally interested, and the sooner the general public takes up this question of tuberculosis in our workhouse the better it will be for all concerned.

Respectfully,
 A. ROBIN, M. D.

Big Time At Augustine Beach

A number of people from this locality attended the gathering at Augustine Pier last Thursday. Beside the 1500 people brought by the steamer Clyde, three hundred and fifty carriages and many automobiles deposited their share of merry-makers, making the entire crowd number at least 5,000. Much fun was furnished during the evening by a barn dance.

Grape Juice As A Man Winner

There is something in a social glass that appeals to us all. To make a call on one of these hot evenings and have the hostess bring out a dainty glass of grape juice is indeed a pleasure. If she is up on the social usages, it will be the grape. The bruised fruit has held first place as a refreshing drink since Cleopatra bewitched Caesar and the girl who makes the hit of the season serves the man of the hour with one of those Glace' Ambrosias. To know just how to make one of these drinks is an art that no man can afford to neglect. As a food and social attribute it has no equal—and the kind to buy is Walker's, sold by Rhodes, the Druggist. What Is A Newspaper

"A newspaper is a thing that every person in town knows how to run except the editor. It is what should be an oven for 'roasts' on everyone except yourself, members of your family and a few of your particular friends for whom it should be a sweet scented bouquet of praise. It is what you want to see the editor keep your name out of as soon as you have settled with the police justice on the morning after and to get your name into it as soon as the cards are issued two weeks before. It is what is 'just too horrid and inquisitive for anything and please keep my name out' when the reporter wishes to know about the bridge whist club and which is the mean old sheet that never gets anything right when your name is omitted from

Environment

By Marguerite Ogden Bigelow. A wrong environment can stay the soul that does not fight. It can suffocate all aspirations that do not insist on breathing freely. It can stab to the death all ideals that will turn their faces and run from ridicule. It can poison all love that is not strong enough to absolve those who would drag life down to their level. It can even bleed the great of their greatness, unless their blood is warm enough to heat other blood to the pace of its current. The soul that would know freedom, happiness and fullest life must escape from the wrong environment, or fight sturdily and overcome it. Therefore, if the environment be narrow, let us delve deep for hidden treasures; if the environment be shallow, let us search the heights for stars; if the sky be cloudy and the ground hard, let us visit with the wind the far away fruitful valleys, and bring home rich, succulent nourishment to tide us over the period of famine; if the environment be foul, soiling our fairest garments, let us become gardeners, and cherish flowers that bloom best in the mire, if the environment be drowsy as a poppy patch of luxury, let us tear up the roots that are nearest, so that we may set our feet on rough and rugged earth; if the environment be cramped, let us, like Sampson, break down the pillars of the Philistines at our own peril. For though the environment be narrow, shallow, dark, foul, dull or cramped, it can be changed by independence and sympathy on the part of those who fight all alone, but who live, love and suffer with all others. —From North American. A large band of gypsies passed through the town on Tuesday.
